

RISING SHADOWS

SHEET #

CCC-BMG-MOON 2-2 ARMY OF THE UNSEEN ADVENTURE LOGSHEET

Character Name	Class and Level	Event	Date
Player Name	DCI #	Dungeon Master	DCI #

ADVENTURE CHECKPOINTS	TREASURE CHECKPOINTS				MAGIC ITEM UNLOCKED
	Tier 1	Tier 2	Tier 3	Tier 4
Starting	Starting				+1 Longbow An elven bow of excellent craftsmanship. Its limbs are carved from dark wood, with silver runes decorating its length. The silverwork seems to be part of an old elvish poem: "Seamless dreams tide through fleeting hands, as upon the wind she toils with a fellon thread, whispering mellowed breath upon bonds of silver." (uncommon, Table F)
Earned	Earned
	Spent
Total	Total
GOLD		REOWN		DOWNTIME
Starting	Starting	Starting		Starting
Gained	Earned	Earned		Earned
Spent	Spent	Spent		Spent
Total	Total	Total		Total

STORY SUMMARY

When messengers to the village of Dynnegall on the Isle of Moray go unanswered, you ventured forth to investigate. Along the way, you met Seren, a Llewyr elf, going to find the fate of her son Andras who lives in Dynnegall.

At Dynnegall, you found an abandoned village haunted by skulks, who were once those of fey ancestry who lived in the village. The Howling Disease had transformed them into creatures of the Shadowfell. You defeated the skulks and found Andrais' secret laboratory where he was investigating a cure to the Howling Disease. Unfortunately, he too was infected and transformed into an allip before finishing his task.

In your adventures in Dynnegall, you did which of the following:

- You fought and killed Seren.
- You were able to finish Andras's work, which didn't cure the Howling Disease, but found a ritual that freed the infected spirits of shadow corruption, allowing the spirits to return to the Feywild.
- You discovered a prophecy about the coming of the Howling Disease to the Moonshaes.

ADVENTURE NOTES

Story Awards

Dreams of Prophecy. The maddening impulse to write the words echoing in your head has long faded, but that doesn't stop them from visiting your dreams along with visions of dark woods and whispered chants.

Hero of Dynnegall. Wrapped in a silver ribbon with a red seal is a letter from Earl Orwin Rhys himself, acknowledging your heroic deeds at Dynnegall. The letter has little value but is sure to provide bragging rights at any tavern in Moray.

Farmstead – Dynnegall, Moray. For your efforts to finish her son's life work, Seren of the Llewyr has given you the deed to a farmhouse near Dynnegall on the Isle of Moray.

