On the cave floor of SL5-13, 40' below the water line, sits a small white-marble building in the greco-roman style. It is 10'x15' and 12' tall, with an arched roof. The edge of the structure is lined by thin red porphyry columns (2' in diameter). Within is a stone sarcophagus. Initially the interior is dark and water filled, as the interior is open to the surrounding waters. The pediments of the structure are noteworthy. The north pediment bears a full-relief sculpture, in black marble, of a spear; this is a hint as to the location of the great artifact within. The south pediment bears an inscription in Mithric: Here lie the mortal remains of Kentillian the Magnificent, the life-bringer and death-dealer, the spear-wielder and the water-tamer. Know, O thieves, that her mind and powers still defend her and her treasures!

Entering the temple (by slipping between the porphyry columns) triggers several magical effects:

1. Continual light bursts forth from the ceiling of the shrine;
2. A modified and permanent part water spell expels the water from the interior of the shrine, leaving it damp but air-filled;
3. A hydrodaemon is summoned into the water surrounding the shrine
4. Any remaining piscodaemons from SL5-14 leap into the water to confront intruders. One piscodaemon arrives per round until all have entered the fray.
5. The lich, Kentillian, awakens from her plane-traveling slumbers in the chamber below (SL5-13B); Kentillian immediately prepares actions to repel those who would disturb her rest.

Sarcophagus: The sarcophagus is a beautiful solid piece of blue granite, its sides incised with arcane symbols and runes. The lid is carved in high relief, and shows a grinning elderly woman dressed in the robes of a sorcerer but holding an impressive, black spear made of ebony and chased with silver sigils. The figure is that of Kentillian the Magnificent, an archmage of the late-Archontean golden age. The spear is made of ebony, and detects obviously of magic; unfortunately the magic is merely a permanent magic aura cast on it by Kentillian in the hopes that would-be thieves will believe it to be the ebon spear (see new magic items). The spear can be removed by making an open-doors check. The sarcophagus can also be slid aside with the application of a combined 40 points of STR (although a maximum of three characters can work at a given time); doing so reveals a stone staircase leading to SL5-13B. The staircase is painted in complex geometric patterns on every surface – walls, ceiling, treads – which help to conceal a series of deadly symbols (see traps).

Kentillian the Magnificent: Once Kentillian is alerted to the presence of intruders in the shrine, she takes vigorous steps to protect her lair. She casts invisibility on herself first, then uses her circlet to teleport to the now-dry shrine. She then casts time stop before unleashing an array of deadly offensive spells, including some combination of power words, repulsion (to push foes into the water to face the hydrodaemon), death spell, disintegrate, monster summoning, etc. At the end of the time stop, she either teleports back to SL5-13B (if her initial attacks have not significantly affected her foes) or continues the assault (if she is winning). GM Note: Kentillian is no longer able to wield the ebon spear (despite one of her nicknames, “Spear-Wielder”), as the process of becoming a lich turned her evil, thus barring her from using the spear.

If she is hard-pressed by intruders who follow her into SL5-13B, Kentillian will eventually teleport away to the Great Hall (3-123) to regroup. A kind GM might allow Kentillian to permit overmatched potential-thieves a brief moment in which to escape (without loot, of course).

Should Kentillian be awakened but not defeated, she takes up residence in the ruins on SL5-14 and will proceed to extend her will over as many of the neighboring halls as is feasible. She easily dominates the lizardmen, who will serve her and repair the structures on the island. Within a year she will have extended her sphere of influence to include the Drowned Canyon (SL6) and portions of Level 4. During this time she will transform this sub-level into a suitable lair for a lich, complete with a substantial number of undead and summoned servitors.

Kentillian’s phylactery is guarded by the water elemental at SL5-8. If Kentillian is reactivated, she will recover the phylactery and devise a new hiding place for it.

Trap (symbol): The stairs under the sarcophagus are trapped with numerous castings of symbol. The symbols appear in this order as one descends towards SL5-13B: death (stair tread), hopelessness (ceiling), stunning (left wall), sleep (right wall), death (ceiling), insanity (stair tread).

Inhabitants:

1. Kentillian the Undying, lich (formerly 25th-level male Archontean magic user): SZ M; AL N(E); AC 0; MV 60; HD 11+14; HP 88; #AT 1; Dmg 1-10. Special attacks: fear; paralysis; magic use. Special defenses: +1 or better weapon to hit; immunity to charm, sleep, enfeeblement, polymorph, cold, electricity, insanity and death spells/symbols. Possessions: amulet of the planes; helm of teleportation (in the form of a circlet); ring of free action; ring of spell turning; robe of scintillating colors; staff of the magi (25 charges); wand of polymorphing (55 charges). Memorized spells: enlarge, hold portal, magic missile, push, shield; darkness 15’ radius, ESP, invisibility (x2), knock; dispel magic (x2), hold person, lightning bolt (x2); charm monster, confusion (x2), dig, ice storm; airy water, cone of cold, feeblemind, magic jar, teleport; forceful hand, death spell, globe of invulnerability, flesh to stone, repulsion; grasping hand, limited wish, power word stun, monster summoning V, vanish; clenched fist, maze, mind blank, power word blind, trap the soul; crushing hand, power word kill, prismatic sphere, temporal stasis, time stop.

2. 1 hydrodaemon (named Aquilapitax): SZ L; AL NE; AC 2; MV 60’, 60’ flying (Class D), 240’ swimming; HD 9+36; HP 101; #AT 3 or 5; Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-8/1-8/1-10; MR 70% to 1st-level spells (-5% per level over 1st). Constant abilities: infravision; ultravision. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: word of recall (1/day); half damage from acid, cold and magical fire; half or no damage from water-based attacks; silver, or +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to poison and paralysis. Special: detect invisible; read magic; comprehend languages; invisibility; telepathy; teleport without error; dimension door; darkness within 10’; create water; water walking (as the ring), gate in a hydrodaemon (50%); summon 12 HD water elemental.

Treasure:

Ebon spear with magic aura (50 gp).

SL5-13B: Lair of Kentillian the Lich (unmapped)

The stairs from SL5-13A lead down 50’ to a large hall, 30’ wide, 50’ long, and 20’ tall. Five semi-circular niches line each long wall. A 7’-tall stone statue of an Archontean legionary stands in each niche; each spearman wields a black iron spear (see new magic items). Four of the ten are Archontean animated constructs (animated spearmen – see new monsters), who lurch into action when any living creature enters the chamber.

Ten thick-piled carpets line the hall; each bears a scene of Archontean history, and each is worth 200-2,000 gp. Atop the carpets is a suite of heavy oak furniture of exceptional quality: a leather-seated chair (300 gp), a 5’-tall bookcase (250 gp), three circular side tables (150 gp each), a large oval coffee table (250 gp), a desk and chair (400 gp), an armoire (600 gp), and a locked wooden chest. At one end of the chamber is a catafalque, draped in green and gold silk (50 gp).

On an invisible ledge on one of the short walls rests the artifact known as the ebon spear (see new magic items). Although she ‘borrowed’ it from the archonal treasury with the goal of using its many powers on her own behalf, Kentillian found herself unable to use the spear; this is because the spear is good-aligned, and Kentillian’s increasing fascination with necromancy and lichdom changed her alignment to evil.

Kentillian the Undying, a powerful lich, has been resting here for more than 1,300 years. Since this chamber cannot currently be entered except via SL5-13A, and since Kentillian will be awakened once SL5-13A is entered, it is highly unlikely that Kentillian will be encountered here first. Instead, she will first confront intruders in SL5-13A. She may then teleport back to SL5-13B to await powerful intruders. Here, in her lair, she will make a last-ditch effort to destroy intruders, employing spells and relying on the animated spearmen for assistance. If she appears likely to be defeated, she teleports away to 3-123 to regroup.

Secret Door: A secret door on the wall opposite the staircase to SL5-13A once led upwards to the basement of SL5-14. The door is normal to find, and opens only to knock (or destruction). The staircase beyond is filled with rubble due to a major cave-in. If Kentillian is allowed to re-establish herself in this area (see SL5-13A), she will have the lizardmen clear the rubble within 6 months.

Inhabitants:

1. Kentillian the Undying (see stats at SL5-13A)
2. 4 Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 45, 40, 38, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons. Possessions: black iron spear.

Treasure:

The ebon spear (see new magic items); 10 carpets, each worth 100-200 gp; oak furniture (see text); and 4 black iron spears (see new magic items) on the constructs.

11 codices: Trifold Tome of Theodore the White, Travels in the Astral Plane, Thorcin Poisons and their Cures, The Seventy-Seven Quips of Balak the Arch-mage, Thirty Uses for Arcanum, Summoning from the Beyond, Symbols of Power, The Properties of Blood, Planar Dwellers and their Powers, Pandects of Thaumaturgical Visitation, Intelligent User's Guide to the Mystical Properties of Gems, (see Arden Vul books for all)

Kentillian's spell books (in fifteen volumes)

Chest: 17,321 sp; 11,922 gp; 753 ancient octagonal platinum coins (see Arden Vul items); 10 aquamarines (500 gp each); 10 chrysoberyls (500 gp each); and 2 jacinths (5,000 gp each).

Kentillian's Spell Books (in fifteen large volumes): All 1st-level spells; all 2nd-level spells; all 3rd-level spells; all 4th-level spells, all 5th-level spells, all 6th-level spells; all 7th-level spells; clenched fist, clone, incendiary cloud, mass charm, maze, monster summoning VI, permanency, polymorph any object, spell immunity, symbol; astral spell, crushing hand, gate, meteor swarm, power word, kill, prismatic sphere, time stop. The spell books also contain the following new spells: Basil's torch treatment, Cleophalus's look-away spell, friend of the Hekate; the Bracteros effect, locate place, Pol's endless sneezes, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr, wizard's cache; garrulous mouth; Dameon's shadow spell book; harnessing the chaos, the hekate's bonds, Pol's improved eye; curse item, Pol's inner eye; Kentillian's abyssal ice, Kentillian's airy command, Pol's recall, warding chain of glyphs; Kentillian's animate water, Kentillian's useful sphere, mindshift, planar punishment.

SL5-14: Island with Ruined Buildings

This island rises only 2' above the waters of the cave, and is home to the ruins of Kentillian's former residence and laboratory. The ruins are guarded - still! - by six piscodaemons bound to that task centuries ago by archmage Kentillian (see SL5-13A). These fearsome creatures attack anyone or anything that ventures onto the island; as a result, the lizardmen avoid it like the plague, saying only that it is 'haunted'. If the shrine at SL5-13A is entered, any surviving piscodaemons instantly leap into the water to attack those seeking to disturb Kentillian's rest. In one of the ruined buildings a secret door leads to staircase. The stairs lead down 25 feet to a laboratory which still contains some nice equipment. A second staircase descends from that laboratory, but it is filled with rubble (originally it led to SL5-13B).

Inhabitants:

1. 6 piscodaemons: SZ M; AL NE; AC -1; MV 60'; 180' swimming; HD 6; HP 45, 42, 37, 33, 32, 30; #AT 2; Dmg 2-16/2-16; MR 60% to 1st-level spells. Constant abilities: infravision; ultravision. Special attacks: seize with claws; poison. Special defenses: never surprised; -1 to damage die from water-based spells; half damage from acid, cold, and fire; immune to poison and paralysis; silver, or +1 or better weapons to hit. Special: detect invisible; read magic; comprehend languages; invisibility; telepathy; word of recall.

Treasure:

4 10-lb gold ingots (500 gp each) and a full set of glass activation squares (see Tothian teleportation rings in new magic items).

Potions of animal control, clairvoyance, diminution, ESP, extra healing, fire resistance (x2), flying, gaseous form, longevity (x2), speed.

4 spell scrolls: one with mindshift (see new spells); one with Pol's endless sneezes, Pol's improved eye, Pol's inner eye, and Pol's recall (see new spells for all); one with planar punishment and harnessing the chaos (see new spells for both); and the last with grasping hand and crushing hand.

SL5-15: Secondary Lake and Island

This lake is only reachable by swimming, since all the tunnels that reach it are fully filled with water. Once the cavern is reached, however, explorers will find that the ceiling of the cave reaches 20' above the water, and that a low island occupies the middle of the lake. There is a 25% chance that six lizardmen are present in the lake, traveling to and from other locations in their domain. There is also a 10% chance that the giant crabs (from SL5-33) are present. On the island stands the stump of a column carved from black basalt. Only 3' of the column still stand, although three additional, larger fragments lie on the sandy island nearby. The column detects strongly of evil, and bears spiral carvings of blasphemous imagery of sacrifice and destruction, all conducted by bloated amphibian-oid beings.

Next to the column is a crude shrine constructed by the lizardmen shamans out of rocks. The shrine's wobbly surface holds several enormous teeth, a rotting scalp with hair still attached, four pretty pebbles (pearls worth 100 gp each), and a large, iron candelabra with room for four candles. The lizardmen have attached carved soapstone idols to the candelabra in place of candles; one of the spots is empty, however, as one of the idols was stolen (see 4-184). The other three idols are barely recognizable as pregnant lizardman females.

A skeleton of an adventurer lies pinned under one of the column fragments; although her equipment is gone, digging produces a belt pouch with 25 gp and a parchment slip. The parchment contains the following doggerel:

*Those who truly wish to go,
To the foul ziggurat below,
Should carefully place a tear of dread
Into the Pukel-thing's awful head.
But lest you'd see the croakers rise,
Touch naught save those evil eyes!*

GM Note: The text refers to the pukel-mander (see new magic items) in SL5-28.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 lizardmen (25%): SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 13, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.
2. 1-2 enormous giant crabs from SL5-33 (10%): for stats, see SL5-33.

Treasure:

See text.

SL5-16: Warm Cave with Egg Clutches

The green friend (see new flora) grows thick along the walls here, extending into the 4'-deep water. Amongst the fronds on both sides of the cave are six clutches of lizardman eggs. The cave is littered with foot-traps placed at random beneath the water; the traps are placed everywhere except the path indicated by the dotted line on the map. Careful movement off the safe path has a 50% chance per round to activate a trap; running or lunging through the water raises the chance to 66%. Thrashing sounds (as of someone trying to free oneself from a foot-trap) will bring the guards swimming in from SL5-18, as well as five of the guards from SL5-17.

Traps (foot-trap): The traps require a save vs paralysis or else the victim is immobilized for 2-4 rounds. Immobility cancels DEX bonuses to AC and reduces to-hit rolls by 2.

Treasure:

Each clutch of eggs could be sold for 200 gp, although there is a 25% chance per month that the clutch hatches.

SL5-17: Guardpost Cave

The tunnel from SL5-16 rises sharply, ensuring that this cave is free from standing water. To secure their primary route to Sub-Level 6, Chief Sgraal has placed a guard of 6 lizardmen here. These guards crouch behind a boulder, armed with javelins and clubs. If combat breaks out in SL5-16 or SL5-18, though, all but one will move to defend the egg clutches.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 13, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL5-18: Lizardman Egg Guardians

Eight lizardmen wait patiently in the dry ell to the north of this cave. They are guardians of the egg clutches, and react swiftly to sounds of disturbances from SL5-16. The southern portion of the cave is filled with 4'-deep water.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 13, 12, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL5-19: Egg Clutches

Another five egg clutches dot the walls of this cave, nestled among the fronds of the green friend in the 4'-deep water.

Treasure:

Each clutch of eggs could be sold for 200 gp, although there is a 10% chance per week that the clutch hatches.

SL5-20: 'Dry' Cave with Remains

Near the ceiling of the tunnel running between SL5-18 and SL5-20 is a narrow opening (3' tall) into this relatively dry cave. Inside lie the ancient remains of Strith, assistant of Kentillian the Archmage (see SL5-13A). Strith grew alarmed by Kentillian's frenzy as the latter neared the end of her transformation into a lich, and attempted to flee. Kentillian's daemonic agents tracked him down and slew him in this small side chamber. Strith's skeleton still wears rags of his old livery (a stylized "K"), and his rotted leather satchel contains an ivory plaque with instructions, as well as a faded parchment with its own information. By his side is a spear +1, +4 vs. reptiles made of ebony (but not THE ebon spear, for which see SL5-13B).

The ivory plaque contains a list of orders, inscribed in blood in the Mithric language: "1) Take the body of Kentillian the Magnificent to the resting chamber at the foot of the pillar. 2) Watch the water rise, and retire to the laboratory under the residence. 3) Wait for my summoned minions to transform you into a higher form. 4) Once transformed, wait four-score years before descending and releasing Kentillian the Undying. 5) Do not mention any of these details to those meddling priests of Thoth, and especially avoid Kel Bormol, the so-called 'Overseer.' Signed: Kentillian the Magnificent, soon-to-be Kentillian the Undying."

The parchment scrap, which appears to be partially burned, reads, in Mithric: "... you were right to contact me. Bring the incriminating plaque to the Great Hall at once so that we may stop this foolishness. We shall meet on the 24th. Keep quiet until then. [Signed] Kel Bormol, Overseer."

Treasure:

An ebony spear +1, +4 vs. reptiles; an ivory plaque worth 10 gp.

SL5-21: Unsettling Sight

At this intersection, a glowing mushroom patch on the east wall throws some light onto two human corpses tied upside down to the green friend (see new flora) on the western wall such that the heads and shoulders of the corpses are below the water line. The corpses are pale and bloated, and contain no treasure. The southern tunnel drops off swiftly, and incautious explorers may tumble downward into the tunnel that leads underwater to SL5-13.

SL5-22: Lizardman Clan

A group of 10 lizardman adults and 4 hatchlings occupy this cave, in which the green friend (see new flora) grows freely. This clan has acquired a gold Sortian eye (see new magic items) from the Drowned Canyon (Sub-Level 6), which they have displayed proudly at the north end of the cavern. Searching for two turns produces one item from the table at SL5-2.

Inhabitants:

1. 10 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60'; 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 13, 13, 12, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. Of the ten, four are females who fight as 1 HD creatures.
2. 4 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2).

Treasure:

A gold Sortian eye (see new magic items).

SL5-23: Lizardman Clan

A clan of 8 lizardmen and 1 hatchling inhabit this cave. These lizardmen are disaffected, and are 25% likely to surrender in any encounter, begging to be allowed to flee to Sub-Level 9 to join the Lagrok tribe on Sub-Level 9. They have no extra treasure. An item from the table in SL5-2 can be found here, but only after searching for four turns.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60'; 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 13, 13, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. Of the eight, two are females who fight as 1 HD creatures.
2. 1 lizardman hatchling: noncombatant (AC 7, HP 2).

SL5-24: Blocked Tunnel to Sub-Level 4 (SL4-31)

A significant cave-in blocks this tunnel. Once 1-3 weeks have been spent excavating debris, the tunnel will prove to lead to area SL4-31 in the Goblin Warrens.

SL5-25: Tunnel to Sub-Level 9 (SL9-9)

This tunnel snakes downward to the Kaliyani Pits (SL9-9).

SL5-26: Elite Warriors

The twelve elite lizardman warriors (see new monsters) of Chief Sgraal's bodyguard dwell here. Only six are normally present, though, and if a serious invasion of the caves is underway, all twelve will be found at SL5-36 defending the chief. The green friend (see new flora) is sparse here, and the warriors have collected a few trappings of civilized life: some stools, a table, and a keg of sour-tasting wine. The passage to the north is trapped with a noise trap placed near the intersection with SL5-27.

Trap (noise): The tunnel leading north has a noise trap in the form of a depression in the rock covered over by fronds of the green friend. Although the 'pit' is only 2' deep, it is packed with old bits of crockery and glass salvaged from elsewhere. Anyone activating the trap will take only 1-2 HP damage, but will make a noise just loud enough to alert the warriors.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 3; MV 90'; 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 25, 24, 22, 20, 18, 16; #AT 1 or 3; 3-9 (broadsword) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadswords; javelins.

SL5-27: Tunnel to Level 7 (7-95)

This broad tunnel leads downward before ending up in the outskirts of the troll thegn's court (area 7-95). The lizardmen use it to bring occasional tribute to the troll thegn. The tunnel dries out quickly as it descends, and the green friend accordingly ceases to line its walls after 100' or so.

Concealed Door (southeast): Hidden among the fronds of the green friend is a concealed entrance to a narrow tunnel leading to SL5-36.

SL5-28: Pool of the Pukel-mander

As with SL5-15, this cave can only be reached by swimming, since both the northern and western passages lie below the waterline. The cave itself is 25' in height, but the water only fills 15' feet of it. Looming out of the water in the center of the cave is a pukel-

mander (see new magic items). This evil statue is only 10' tall, but it stands on an 8'-tall plinth. As a result, the top 3' of the statue (its bulbous eyes and some of its cavernous mouth) peer ominously from the water.

Touching the pukel-mander with anything other than a tear of Kauket (see new magic items) summons eight giant frogs to attack the intruders.

The plinth of the statue contains various 'offerings', gingerly left there by the lizardmen. Although afraid of the pukel-mander, Chief Sgraal and the lizardmen are aware of its power and thus venerate it as their primary deity.

There is a 10% chance the shamans have let the enormous giant crabs (SL5-33) swim to this chamber to snack on green friend fronds.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 giant frogs (possibly): SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 30', 90' swimming, 100' jumping; HD 2; HP 16, 15, 14, 14, 13, 12, 11, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; tongue strikes at +4 to hit; swallow on natural 20.
2. 2 enormous giant crabs (10%): for stats, see SL5-33.

Treasure:

On the plinth, underwater, are various offerings, including six pearls (100 gp each), a troll thegn's passport (see Arden Vul items), a platinum key to the Obsidian Gates (5-6D), and a fully charged rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items).

SL5-29: The Green Frenemy

This underwater side cave holds a mutated, aggressive form of the green friend (see new flora) known as the green frenemy (see new monsters). The entrance to the cave has been blocked by a rough latticework of sticks and wicker. Inside, the fronds of what appears to be the green friend appear as usual, albeit in a slightly lighter shade of green. Those entering the chamber and swimming to the point marked X will realize their error, as the green frenemy then lashes out with its toxic fronds.

There is a 10% chance the giant crabs (SL5-33) are loose, and nibbling on green frenemy fronds through the latticework.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 patch of green frenemy (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 0'; HD 4 per 10'x10'x10' section; HP 20 per 10'x10'x10' section; #AT 8 per 10'x10'x10' section; Dmg 1-3(x8). Special attacks: surprises those familiar with the green friend (see new flora) on 1-4 in 6.
2. 2 enormous giant crabs (10%): for stats see SL5-33.

SL5-30: Shamans' Caves

The three shamans of the Skreel tribe live in this complex of caves, all of which are covered with the green friend (see new flora). The senior shaman is Kusok One-Eye, while the two junior shamans are Lorg and Bsak. A fourth shaman, Kzaal the Prophet, has recently left to pursue a vision (see 4-2). Lorg occupies the south cave, Bsak the north cave, and Kusok One-Eye the east cave (i.e., SL5-31). There is only a 25% chance that any shaman will be present here; otherwise they will be in SL5-36.

Lorg has scraped away the green friend from a section of wall and has tried his hand at some interesting - if primitive - wall paintings showing lizards around a huge salamander. He also has a string of exotic shells that is enchanted as an amulet of health, and he wields a dagger +2, nine lives stealer (taken from a priest of Set). He has taken a tear of Kauket from SL5-36 without Kusok's permission, but doesn't know what to do with it.

The cave of Bsak is decorated with smelly, decomposing trophies, including two fishmen heads, a giant snake, and, oddly, a mountain lion pelt. She also has two black pearls (250 gp each) plundered from SL5-36. Bsak is much smarter than the other two shamans, and is thus less interested in serving Rimmaq-Isfet. She would like very much to return to 'traditional' ways.

Inhabitants:

1. Lorg, 5th-level lizardman shaman (25%): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD as a 4+1 HD monsters; HP 26; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 3-6 (dagger +2), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: dagger +2, nine lives stealer; amulet of health. Spells memorized: cause light wounds, light, cause fear; chant, resist fire, speak with animals; dispel magic.
2. Bsak, 3rd-level lizardman shaman (25%): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD as a 3+1 HD monster; HP 19; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (spear) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: javelins, spear. Spells memorized: cause light wounds, light; chant.

Treasure:

Lorg: amulet of health; a tear of Kauket (see new magic items); dagger +2, nine lives stealer (2 lives left).

Bsak: 2 black pearls 500 gp each.

SL5-31: Kusok One-Eye's Cave

The senior shaman, Kusok One-Eye, resides here. His cave is the most 'civilized' of the three, with a fine ebony stool, a weapons rack with a broadsword and mace, a tattered banner with an image of a black boar on it (an ancient Set war-banner), and a chipped set of crystal stemware which Kusok greatly admires (25 gp). At the rear of his cave the green friend conceals a narrow tunnel that leads to SL5-32.

Kusok is an old and wily lizardman who has sharply influenced the direction Chief Sgraal has taken over the past 20 years. It was Kusok who located area SL5-32 (although he has not revealed its existence to the chief) and gradually converted the tribe to a mild form of veneration of the demon prince, Kauket. Unbeknownst to the rest of the tribe, Kusok has actually had a vision in which Kauket appeared to him and demanded fidelity; this is the cause of Kusok's new faith.

Due to their long relationship, Sgraal places much faith in Kusok's advice; should Kusok die, however, Bsak will make a serious play to abandon the dangerous 'salamander-thing' in favor of a more generic animistic worship. Kusok is aware of Bsak's tendencies, and would like to encompass her demise.

If surprised in his cave, Kusok attempts to retreat to SL5-32.

Inhabitants:

1. Kusok One-Eye, 7th-level lizardman shaman (25%): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD as 5+1 HD monster; HP 35; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 3-6 (dagger +2) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: dagger +2, of venom; javelins. Spells memorized: cause light wounds, light, resist fear; augury, chant, resist fire; blindness, cause disease; poison.

Treasure:

Two tears of Kauket (see new magic items); a dagger +2, of venom; a bejeweled golden cup (1,250 gp); 3 garnets worth 300 gp each, 6 gourds full of double-doses of green friend juice (see new flora), each of which can cure 4-14 HP; and three gourds full of acid from a keqemander (2-8 HP damage each, plus 1 HP splash).

SL5-32: Shrine of Heqeti Heroes

This forgotten minor shrine to Kauket celebrates some of the great heqeti heroes of antiquity. The chamber is vaguely hemispherical in shape, with a curved ceiling sloping down to the floor. About twenty 5'-diameter, spherical chunks of arcnum (see new magic items) are embedded haphazardly in the walls and ceiling. Two heqeti teleport wells occupy the center of the chamber. Six statues of heqeti heroes line the walls.

Arcnum Spheres and their Effect: The sorcery of heqeti weavers was potent enough that the arcnum chunks slowly drip a viscous orange ooze. Originally the weavers would collect the orange slime and cultivate it elsewhere. But because the teleport wells are inoperative, the ooze has coalesced over the centuries into three motile, orange oozes (see new monsters). To reward his devotion, Kauket has bequeathed protection from the orange oozes on Kusok One-Eye; as a result, they ignore him (but only him) when he enters the chamber. The arcnum spheres can be removed, but it takes 1-3 turns per sphere to do so.

In addition to the ooze, the heqeti enchantments cause the arcnum spheres to manifest slightly different effects than normal arcnum. In essence, this chamber functions as a wild magic zone. Spells cast inside the chamber are subject to failure or deviation; a save versus spells is required for any spell to take effect. If the save is failed by more than five, the spell fails utterly (and the spell slot is lost); if it fails by five or less, the effect is altered somehow. A kind GM might allow a roll of 4d6 under INT to permit a spell-caster to be aware that something is awry in this chamber. Roll on the following table for deviations:

D8	Effect
1	Duration altered: 1-2: halved; 3-4 quartered
2	Power halved (e.g. damage)
3	Target shifts. 1-3: friend; 4-5: self; 6: enemy
4	Another spell of the same level goes off instead of the intended one
5	Normal effects, plus additional negative effects at the GM's discretion
6	Roll twice, ignoring results over 5
7	Roll thrice, ignoring results over 5
8	All five effects occur

Heqeti Statues: The six statues are 10' tall and depict heqeti warriors. These warriors fiercely brandish spears, javelins, clubs, and axes, all while displaying their gaping, tooth-lined maws. The eyes of each statue are red gems. Three of the eyes are missing (taken by Kusok One-Eye). Of the remaining nine, three are tears of Kauket (see new magic items) and six are 'merely' garnets worth 300 gp each.

Heqeti Teleport Wells: Each well takes the form of a 7'-diameter circle of stone rising 3' above the floor. These wells are currently inoperative, and are thus devoid of the inky blackness of the operative ones. They currently appear simply as 10'-deep wells, although the bottom of each well bears a carved image of an amphibian head, with a 4'-diameter hole in the place of the mouth. The wells could be reactivated by dropping a tear of Kauket (see new magic items) into the appropriate mouth. If reactivated, the wells connect to area 10-24.

Treasure:

Six garnets (330 gp each); 3 tears of Kauket (see new magic items); 20 5-lb chunks of arcnum (see new magic items) embedded in the walls.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 orange oozes (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 6; MV 30'; HD 8; HP 57, 49, 43; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12; MR 85%. Special attacks: destroy magic item on hit. Special defenses: non-magic weapons to hit.

SL5-33: Giant Crab Cage

The shamans keep two enormous giant crabs penned into this side cave via a latticework gate woven of sticks, reeds, and green friend fronds. The crabs are larger and tougher than normal, perhaps because of their diet of green friend and humanoid meat. Most of the time (60%) the crabs are penned in this cave; if not here, they may be found at SL5-15, SL5-28, SL5-29 or SL5-34 (10% chance each). Due to their love of green friend, this cave has been stripped bare of the algal growth. The north lobe of this cave rises out of the water, providing a resting spot for the crabs.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 enormous giant crabs: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 4; HP 31, 27; #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/2-8. Surprise on 1-4.

SL5-34: Lizardman Water Torture

The water here is still deep (15'), but the cave rises a good 10' above the waterline. Here the lizardmen hold and torture any captives by binding them to the ubiquitous green friend. This system allows prisoners to be positioned in various ways, half-in or half-out of the water. It also gives the giant crabs (SL5-33) the opportunity to inflict pain and torture on the bound prisoners under close supervision of shaman Kusok One-Eye. At the moment the tribe has the following five prisoners.

Inhabitants:

1. Grachan of Newmarket, 2nd-level male Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL CG; AC 9; MV 120'; HD 2; HP 3 (max 15); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 14, INT 8, WIS 10, DEX 15, CON 12, CHA 14. Possessions: none. Grachan has been held a long time and is nearly dead; not only has he abandoned hope of rescue, he has also gone insane.
2. Crosbenim the goblin: SZ S; AL LE; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 1-1; HP 5; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Crosbenim is in good shape, and is designated for ransom. Within a month he will be delivered to the goblin king at SL4-22.
3. A fishman (see new monsters), newly caught in the Drowned Canyon (SL6): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60'; 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 18; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
4. Another fishman (see new monsters), this one mostly dead: SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60'; 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 2 (max 17); #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
5. Visby, 5th-level male Archontean magic user: SZ M; AL NG; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 11 (max 21); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 10, INT 17, WIS 15, DEX 10, CON 16, CHA 9. Possessions: none. Visby was caught spying for the Drome (see World of Archontos appendix) in the Forum of Set (4-2) and was traded to the lizardmen. His spell book is currently located at area 4-62.
6. 2 enormous giant crabs (10%): for stats, see SL5-33.

SL5-35: Yurtil Skreel-Friend

This dry side cave is the residence of Yurtil Skreel-Friend, a partly insane sorcerer whose mind was crippled by contact with Kauket. Although clearly abnormal, as he is content to dress only in a loincloth and keep company with lizardmen, Yurtil is still a competent mage. His cave has been scraped clean of the green friend (see new flora), and he possesses an extremely nasty bedroll formed from his old clothing. His spell book is hidden under a loose rock, and is carefully wrapped in oilskin; with it are two gourds of double doses of green friend juice (each cures 4-14 HP), a nearly-depleted ivory wand of frost (2 charges remaining), and a pouch with 53 sp and 31 gp.

Yurtil appears as a wild-haired, bushy-bearded, pasty-skinned human wearing only his necklace of adaptation, a loincloth, and a belt for his dagger and components. His skin is slowly developing scales, due to the tear of Kauket (see new magic items) he has possessed for many years. He bears numerous nicks and scrapes acquired by swimming through the domain of the Skreel. He speaks the lizardman tongue well and is considered a close advisor to Chief Sgraal (SL5-36). Although Sgraal would like to play Yurtil and Kusok One-Eye (SL5-31) against each other, the two advisors get along quite well due to their shared devotion to Kauket. Yurtil knows almost nothing of the wider world (including Arden Vul), save for the Drowned Canyon (SL6), to which he occasionally leads raiding parties. He is fanatically loyal to Sgraal, and is suspicious and distrustful of outsiders. Yurtil is found in his cave 25% of the time.

Inhabitants:

1. Yurtil Skreel-friend, 6th-level male Thorcin magic user: SZ M; AL CE; AC 7; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 26; #AT 1; Dmg 3-6 (dagger +2); MR 5% (from tear of Kauket). Abilities: STR 14, INT 16, WIS 12, DEX 17, CON 16, CHA 11. Possessions: dagger +2; necklace of adaptation; tear of Kauket. Memorized spells: enlarge, light, magic missile, shocking grasp; Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), Frigg's elephant ears (see new spells); haste, slow.

Treasure:

Under a rock in the cave: two gourds of green friend juice (see new flora), a pouch with 77 sp and 103 gp, and a wand of frost with 2 charges; spell book.

On Yurtil's person: dagger +2; necklace of adaptation; and a tear of Kauket (see new magic items).

Yurtil Skreel-Friend's Spell Book: Comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, identify, jump, light, magic missile, magic aura, read magic, shocking grasp, spider climb, ventriloquism; continual light, darkness 15' radius, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), Frigg's elephant ears (see new spells), invisibility, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, web; blink, dispel magic, feign death, fireball, haste, slow, water breathing.

SL5-36: Chief's Hall

This large, partly-worked chamber forms the heart of the Skreel Tribe. It is here that Chief Sgraal holds court over his subjects, accompanied by his bodyguard of elite warriors, his harem, and his advisors. The southwest part of the cave is natural stone, with several beaten paths leading to the rest of the complex. A small, but deep pool, with an underwater passage leading to the pool of the pukel-mander (SL5-28), lies here. The northern and eastern parts of the chamber feature worked walls, slightly pebbled and oily, whose original decoration has long since decayed. All that remain are a throne mounted on a dais in the northeast corner, a life-like statue in the northwest corner, and a partly buried statue in the southeast corner. The cave is partly lit by torches thrust into makeshift sconces next to both the pool and the throne.

Pool: The pool is over 30' deep, and contains numerous bits of statuary and worked stone. At its base a tunnel leads to SL5-28.

Throne: Chief Sgraal receives visitors from this spot. An imposing lizard king, Sgraal is over 7' tall and brandishes his fearsome trident in battle. The throne is stone, but has been decorated with gemstones (40 stones worth 2-40 gp each), shells, and other oddities (including a gold Sortian eye - see new magic items) glued to it by the harem.

Other Inhabitants: Sgraal is accompanied by 6 elite lizardman guards at all times, and is ordinarily surrounded by six females, his shamans (75% chance each), and his human advisor, Yurtil Skreel-Friend (75%, see SL5-35).

Statues: The statue in the northwest corner is 10' tall, and depicts a crouching, bipedal amphibianoid being with powerful hind legs, a round, warty torso, and a squat, flattened head. The eyes are large emeralds (1,400 gp each), while the body is carved from a block of green-brown marble. Only those with experience with such monsters would recognize the creature as a keqemander demon (see new monsters). Although the statue does not come to life, it affects its environment in two ways. First, any effort to remove the eyes causes an actual keqemander to teleport to the chamber to defend the statue. Second, the statue oozes an acidic slime (much like an actual keqemander does), which the chief's harem has collected in gourds and which they will use as missiles if need be.

The statue in the southeast corner is 80% covered by the cave-in that wrecked that corner of the room. All that is visible is a reptilian head with empty eye sockets.

Escape Passages: In addition to the pool, Sgraal has a secondary escape route hidden in the fragmentary northern corridor. There, behind a heap of refuse, is a tiny tunnel that snakes out to join the main route to the troll thegn's court (SL5-27).

Tactics: If visitors to the lizardman caves appear confident and powerful, Chief Sgraal will be willing to treat them as honored guests, at least until he can determine their motives. Sgraal is willing to trade information (especially concerning the ebon spear at SL5-13B) in return for concrete favors, including the elimination of the fishermen in the flooded vaults (Sub-Level 7). He would also consider offering information about Kentillian and/or the Set cult.

If visitors are hostile, and if Chief Sgraal has been given time enough to prepare, he will be ready with all three shamans, with Yurtil, with twelve elite warriors, and six females. The females will throw acid grenades (see above) before entering combat. Chief Sgraal will seek out the toughest warriors and attempt to lay them low with his formidable blades. If things are looking grim, one of the females or warriors will touch the emerald eyes of the statue to summon the keqemander.

Inhabitants:

1. Chief Sgraal, a lizard king: SZ L; AL CE; AC 1; MV 150', 120' swimming; HD 8; HP 53; #AT 1; Dmg 12-27. Special attacks: skewer if roll to hit is 5 more than needed. Possessions: trident; amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items); girdle of hill giant strength.
2. Kusok One-Eye, Lorg, and Bsak, shamans (75% for each in normal times; 100% if caves are threatened): for stats, see SL5-30 and SL5-31.
3. Yurtil Skreel-Friend (75% normally; 100% if caves are threatened): for stats, see SL5-35.
4. 6 elite lizardmen, or 12 if an invasion is underway: SZ M; AL NE; AC 3; MV 90', 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 25, 25, 24, 23, 22, 21, 20, 20, 19, 19, 18, 16; #AT 1 or 3; 2-9 (broadsword) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadswords, javelins.
5. 6 lizardmen females: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 12, 11, 11, 10, 9, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg

3-8 (acid gourds) or 1-2/1-2/1-8. They fight as 1 HD creatures. Possessions: each has 3 acid gourds (3-8 HP damage in the first round, plus 1-4 HP damage for an additional 1-3 rounds).

6. 1 keqemander demon (see new monsters): SZ L; AL CE; AC -2; MV 90', 150' flying (Class D); HD 8; HP 55; #AT 3; Dmg 1-4/1-4/3-18; MR 40%. Constant abilities: dread (-1 to saves); infravision. Special attacks: acid spit (3-10 dmg; 30' range, every other round); cause fear; darkness (10' radius); exude acid with chance to degrade armor; use a symbol of discord. Special defenses: only hit by magic weapons; half damage from cold, electricity, fire, and gas; become invisible. Special: levitate; telekinesis (4,000 gp weight); project image; teleport without error; 50% chance to gate in either another keqemander or a Type I-IV demon.

Treasure:

See text.

SL5-37: Moldy Antechamber

This antechamber smells terribly of mold and damp. The walls are pebbled and slightly oily, while mud cakes the floor. Clear paths lead to the three doors. The three chambers within are not used by the lizardmen, but are reserved for the very occasional visitor.

SL5-38: Moldy Chamber

This guest room reeks terribly of mold and decay. It has pebbled and oily walls, a pile of damp furs for a bed, a rickety chair and table, and a barrel of stagnant water. Despite the conditions, there is a 50% chance it is occupied by one of the visitors on the Moldy Chamber Visitors table on the next page.

SL5-39: Another Moldy Chamber

Identical in every way to SL5-38, save that there is only a 10% chance a visitor will be found here.

SL5-40: A Third Moldy Chamber

Nearly identical to SL5-38, except that no visitor will be found and a fragment of unusual mosaic exists under the grime that lines the floor. The mosaic depicts great hopping bipedal amphibians spearing a variety of foes, including humans, spindly-limbed beings with horns, and varumani. In the background an enormous ziggurat rises above the slaughter. GM: the mosaic fragments do not reflect an actual event, but they are rather a form of heqeti propaganda; they suggest that due to their fidelity to Kauket (represented by the ziggurat) the heqeti are able to overcome all foes. The humans in the mosaic appear as crude ancient Archontean, and the spindly beings are rudishva.

SL5-41: Sgraal's Hoard

A narrow tunnel behind the throne leads to this heqeti-era chamber where Sgraal keeps the loot of the tribe. Here may be found a pile of mixed coins (12,395 cp; 8,587 sp; 3,875 gp); a matched set of three pieces of silver and emerald jewelry (1,250, 2,450, 5,000 gp each); a solid platinum statuette of a crouching panther (10,000 gp, but 25 lb); three sets of rusting-but-usable chain mail, one of which is chain mail +1; and the legendary blade, Desmesure, an intelligent sword +2, dragon-slayer (see new magic items).

Secret Door (south): The secret door is normal to locate, and opens by simply pushing it inwards into the narrow corridor. The second secret door works in the same fashion.

Treasure:
See text.

SL5-42: Secret Room

None of the lizardmen knows of this chamber. It contains the corpses of three ancient Archontean heavy legionaries and three heqeti, all slain in close quarter combat. One of the Archontean was a dekarch, whose corpse holds a wax tablet on which his orders can still be read (in Mithric): Eliminate the Hoppers near their subsidiary shrine in the caves past Kentillian's Compound. Use the periapt to locate their foul nest, and put them all to the sword. Avoid their caustic slimes, and, above all, avoid touching their deities. We shall send in war mages to deactivate those idols after you have taken care of the defenders. [Signed] Marius Tricotor, Archon.

The armor and weapons of the legionaries is badly damaged and corroded by the centuries, and are unusable. The stone-tipped bone spears of the heqeti, however, are still in pretty good shape.

On the east wall is a crude quasi-mosaic formed of largish pieces of stone fit into mortar. Although the mortar is flaking, the stone pieces show an amphibianoid being placing something into the eye socket of a huge amphibian statue.

Treasure:

In addition to the tablet, which might well fetch 100 gp as a relic of the great Marius Tricotor, the dekarch still clutches a greater periapt of finding that has been attuned to both heqeti and demons. As a result, it will indicate the presence of 'something' to the south (i.e., towards SL5-32).

SL5-43: Boundary Marker

The door to this chamber has been completely destroyed. A smear of color on the east wall marks the site of a destroyed Archontean fresco. The remainder of the furnishings of what was once a tomb-

Moldy Chamber Visitors Table

D6	Moldy Chamber Visitors	GM Notes
1	1. Kellan, the Set sergeant (see new monsters), as a 5th-level Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 5; HP 37; #AT 1, Dmg 3-8 (mace +1), 1-6 (spear) and 1-4 (light crossbow). Special defense: fanaticism. Possessions: Set armor (see Arden Vul items) and wooden shield; footman's mace +1; spear; light crossbow with 20 bolts. 2. 4 Set guardsmen (see new monsters), as 2nd-level Archontean fighters: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 18, 17, 15, 12; #AT 1, Dmg 2-7 (mace), 1-6 (spear) and 1-4 (light crossbow). Special defense: fanaticism. Possessions: red scale mail and wooden shield; footman's maces; spears; light crossbows with 20 bolts	Kellan has been sent by High Priestess Stephania (4-51) to negotiate with Sgraal about shared access on Level 4. Kellan talks smoothly but is a vicious betrayer.
2	1. Uthgrim, 5th-level male Thorcin magic user: SZ M; AL LN; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4 (dagger). Abilities: STR 13, INT 17, WIS 10, DEX 16, CON 9, CHA 16. Possessions: ring of protection +2; amulet of protection from normal missiles; dagger; bag with 625 pp. Memorized spells: comprehend languages, enlarge, friends, sleep; ESP, ray of enfeeblement; hold person. 2. 5 1st-level Thorcin fighters (3 male, 2 female): SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 120'; HD 1; HP 9, 8, 7, 7, 5; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8 (long sword) or 1-6 (spear). Possessions: leather armor and shield; long sword; spear	Uthgrim has been sent by the Order of the Fifth Circle (one of the magical collegia; see World of Archontos appendix) to locate Yurtil Skreel-Friend (SL5-35) and bring him back to Narsileon.
3	1. Narbonnim, goblin emissary from King Weskenim (SL4-22): SZ S; AL LE; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 1-1; HP 5; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. 2. 4 goblins: S SZ S; AL LE; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 1-1; HP 7, 5, 4, 3; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6.	Narbonnim is here to negotiate the ransom for her cousin, Crosbenim (see SL5-34).
4	Ferx, a true varumani (see new monsters): SZ L; AL LN; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 60; #AT 3 or 1; Dmg 3-6/3-6/4-10 or 6-24 (two-handed sword, 2-20+4). Special defenses: surprised only on 1 in 6; save as 8 th -level fighter or 8 th -level magic user, whichever is better; immune to cold, poison, charm, hold, feeblemind, confusion, and other mind-affecting magic; regenerate 3 HP/rd; infravision. Possessions: huge two-handed sword; ring mail	Ferx is an ambassador from the troll thegn (7-30). He is deeply unhappy to have been sent here, to what he considers the back of beyond, and rightly understands his posting to be a punishment. He eagerly looks for allies who might help him return to the thegn's favor.
5	Party of NPC adventurers (select from NPC appendix)	They have heard a (reliable) rumor that the ebon spear is located somewhere nearby (found at SL5-13B, see new magic items) and are negotiating with Sgraal for information. They are hostile to others interested in the spear.
6	GM's choice

architect's chamber were looted centuries ago. A 5'x3' hole in the south wall leads to the territory of the Skreel.

To mark the northern boundary of their territory, the Skreel have impaled a fishman body on a stake (see new monsters), and thrust it into a crack in the floor. Yurtil Skreel-friend (SL5-35) has also scrawled the words "Skreel-Home" in Archontean on the north wall.

Unbeknownst to the lizardman, the smear of paint on the east wall conceals a secret compartment in the wall. The compartment is detected as a secret door. The compartment is locked and the key is long gone; what is more, painted plaster covers its keyhole. The lock is unusual, as it is miniature sized; its small size imposes a -20% chance to pick attempts. Of course, the compartment could be dug out of the wall with appropriate tools (for example, the chisels in SL5-45). Within the compartment is an ivory scroll case containing a parchment map detailing all the non-secret areas of the tomb level of Sub-Level 6 (i.e., SL6-38 to SL6-46, SL6-58 to SL6-61, SL6-65 to SL6-67, SL6-70 to SL6-74, SL6-80 to SL6-87, SL6-90 to SL6-93, SL6-95, and SL6-97). Each of these tombs is labeled with its inhabitant.

SL5-44: Sarcophagus Preparation

The door to this chamber is unusual, as it is hinged on the top of the door frame rather than the side. Iron pins attached to the bottom of the door could be slid into matching holes in the floor to 'lock it' in place. Fortunately for explorers, the pins have been removed, allowing the door to swing easily on its hinge.

Three unfinished stone sarcophagi stand in its center. A set of chisels in a chamois carrying case are found inside one of them (30 gp). One of the sarcophagi has been partly sculpted; one long side shows scenes of an archon dispensing justice. The walls still retain a few fragments of frescoes, all showing scenes of Archontean burial rituals: it is possible to pick out Thoth, Maat, Anubis, and other figures associated with burial.

A stunjelly has made its way from the Drowned Canyon (Sub-Level 6), and is waiting patiently along the north wall for fishmen, lizardmen or adventurers to provide it with a meal. It has no treasure, a fact that makes it even more difficult to spot (and grants it a better chance to surprise).

Inhabitants:

1. 1 stunjelly: SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 30'; HD 4; HP 25; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: paralysation; surprise 3 in 6.

SL5-45: Storage Room with Lost Adventurer

The door to this chamber is still functional, and has been spiked shut from the inside. The sound of weeping is evident from within.

Leofwin Rufus, survivor from a failed expedition to the Drowned Canyon (SL6), has barricaded himself within the chamber, hoping to avoid the fishmen (see new monsters). He is childishly grateful to rescuers, and imprints on the most dominant figure of any such group, who thereafter receives the brunt of his increasingly awkward attentions.

The walls are lined with fifteen large stone bins (4'x4'x4'). Originally these held supplies for the workmen who delved the tombs of Sub-Level 6. All but five are now empty. The contents of the five are:

Bin #1: potable water, placed here by the Skreel to be used by their warbands exploring Sub-Level 6.

Bin #2: 120 pieces of chalk in various lengths and thicknesses. Most is white, but a few have been colored red and blue.

Bin #3: a 2'-deep layer of undecomposed fish scales. Buried in the scales is a clever mesh bag coated in the scales. Within the bag is a garnet (300 gp). It is easy to miss the bag unless one searches the scales carefully.

Bin #4: a block and tackle that is, however, missing its rope. If rope is added to it, it would aid in pulling or lifting heavy objects.

Bin #5: 25 pieces of granite, each about 12"x3" in size, roughly shaped into the form of a biped. These were to be sculpted into tomb garnishings, but were never completed. The clever or greedy may notice that one of the pieces seems much heavier than its fellows: this is because it is actually a solid gold statuette of Bastet with a permanent illusion cast upon it. The statuette is worth 4,000 gp. PCs who offer the statue as a gift at the temple of Bastet (8-30) gain a +40% reaction adjustment bonus. If the PCs have already encountered the temple, the offer of the statue as a gift automatically moves the current relationship one beneficial step on the encounter reactions table.

GM Note: The corpses of the remainder of Leofwin's party may be found at SL6-16A. Leofwin got separated from his party during a fishman attack and knows nothing of their fate, or of the secret door at SL6-16A. He knows the following route into Arden Vul: 3-1, 3-12, 5-2, 5-41, 5-43, 5-48, 5-35, 5-53, 5-55, 6-3, 6-5, 6-6A, 6-143, SL6-25, SL6-6, SL6-35, SL6-36.

Inhabitants:

1. Leofwin Rufus, 5th-level male Thorcin cleric of Heschius
Ban: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 5; HP 17 (max 31); #AT 1; Dmg 4-9 (footman's flail +2). Abilities: STR 11, INT 8, WIS 16, DEX 9, CON 12, CHA 17. Possessions: banded mail and shield; footman's flail +2; backpack with 3 flasks of oil, two torches, a packet of iron rations, 50' of rope, and a silver holy symbol. Spells: bless, command, cure light wounds, light, protection from evil; chant, find traps, hold person, silence 15' radius (x2); feign death.

SL5-46: Fishman Ambush

The door to this chamber is identical to that found at SL5-44; it has been pinned into an open position by a long pole. Two more unfinished sarcophagi may be found here; both are only rough-hewn, without any sculptural decoration.

A hunting party of eight fishmen (see new monsters) crouches here, hoping to ambush some lizardmen. The fishmen have come from their home in the Flooded Vaults (SL7) through the Drowned Canyon (SL6).

Inhabitants:

1. 8 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 19, 18, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

SL5-47: Corridor to Sub-Level 6 (SL6-36)

This broad corridor leads 40' north until it reaches the Drowned Canyon (SL6-36). The corridor is littered with military debris: broken spears, axe-hafts, splintered arrows, bits of metal and leather, and so forth.

SUB-LEVEL 6: THE DROWNED CANYON

This sub-level was discovered in antiquity and used by all of the intelligent factions who occupied the Halls. A permanent geyser to the west produces a never-ending stream of relatively warm water (~75 degrees), which fills a small lake before cascading down some rapids to a waterfall that pours into a steep-walled canyon. Originally the water level was much lower than it is now, a fact which explains why numerous now-submerged tomb-openings may be found in the canyon walls. With the more recent damming of the canyon (SL6-25), the water level has risen so as to cover many of the openings, partially or fully flooding some of those tomb-openings (and also permanently flooding Sub-Level 7, the Flooded Vaults). The lake and canyon are home to numerous fish, eels, and crayfish, most notably a colossal moray eel, a pair of giant pike, and some giant crayfish. Due to the food potential of the area, it has become the site of running battles between the fishmen (see new monsters) from the Flooded Vaults (Sub-Level 7) and the lizardmen who oppose them (Sub-Level 5). The other significant feature of the level is the hidden Tower of Pol (SL6-17), the home of a powerful and eccentric wizard.

Unlike most other levels of Arden Vul, The Drowned Canyon is divided into two maps because of its size and three dimensional complexity. The first map (The Drowned Canyon) contains areas SL6-1 through SL6-37. The second map (The Drowned Canyon, Tomb Level) contains the remainder of the encounter areas.

THE TOMBS OF THE DROWNED CANYON

During the early centuries of the Archontean hegemony in Arden Vul, it became fashionable for archons and other important imperial officials to carve their burial tombs into the walls of the Canyon (before, of course, it was 'drowned'). These tombs are accessible via a series of fourteen openings delved into the Canyon walls. Some of the openings are well-fashioned corridors, but others are rough-carved or even natural tunnels. While all were originally constructed above the water line, the emergence of the Reiv-Tor in the Flooded Vaults (SL7-23) and the subsequent 'drowning' of the canyon has meant that many of the tombs are flooded.

The GM should pay close attention to the height of a tomb opening relative to the current water level. On the map these relative elevations are represented with a negative number in feet, which indicates how far below the main cavern floor (i.e., SL6-11 and SL6-30) each opening lies. An important benchmark is the current water level in the canyon; the water line is at present at -45' (i.e., 45' below the level of the main cave floor). To take an example, the corridor opening at SL6-38 is at -60'. This means that the floor of this particular corridor is 60' below the cavern floor, and 15' below the water line of the Canyon. As this corridor is 10' tall, its opening is completely submerged; but since this corridor quickly runs into a set of stairs that rise 20', however, the door to SL6-42 is dry. Movement and combat in completely submerged tombs carries the usual restrictions appropriate to underwater action.

It is also important for the GM to consider the air supply in some of the dry tombs (e.g., SL6-42, SL6-43, SL6-47, SL6-48, and areas SL6-72 to SL6-79). In these cases, the air is stale and cannot be replenished (unless the dam at SL6-25 is destroyed and the water level drops). Prolonged activity in these areas will use up the oxygen in the air, slowly rendering those areas poisonous as the percentage of oxygen drops and the percentage of carbon dioxide rises. The rate of decline in air quality is accentuated by a number of factors: higher breathing rate through hard exercise (e.g., combat); the use of torches; and/or the creation or employment of fire (e.g., cooking fires or fireballs). See the Air Supply Modification Table for guidelines in reducing supply duration in those areas where the supply of oxygen is fixed. All other dry areas are linked to the main cavern air supply and do not suffer these penalties.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Heqeti areas: SL6-4, SL6-6, SL6-35

Rudishva areas: SL6-3, SL6-27, SL6-32, SL6-37

Archontean areas: all other worked areas

Air Supply Modification Table

Areas	Duration of air supply for casual activity, for one person (or five persons)	Modification to duration for combat or other hard exertion	Modification to duration for torch use	Modification to duration for employment of large fire (e.g. fireball)
SL6-42, SL6-47, SL6-48	12 days (2.4 days)	Duration is reduced by 1 hour per round of combat per person	Duration is reduced by 3 hours per turn of torch use	Duration is reduced by 50% per use of fire
SL6-43	3 days (14.5 hours)	Duration is reduced by 1 hour per round of combat per person	Duration is reduced by 3 hours per turn of torch use	Duration is reduced by 50% per use of fire
SL6-72 to SL6-79	48 days (9.6 days)	Duration is reduced by 1 hour per round of combat per person	Duration is reduced by 3 hours per turn of torch use	Duration is reduced by 50% per use of fire

ICONIC AREAS

The Drowned Canyon (SL6-24) - to an extent the entire sub-level is considered iconic, but in a fabled, El Dorado sort of way

IMPORTANT NPCs

Pol, the Grinning Mage (SL6-8)

Basil Choumnos, castellan of the Tower of Pol (SL6-17A)

FACTIONS

No one faction controls the Drowned Canyon. However, both the fishmen of Sub-Level 7 (see new monsters) and the Skreel lizardmen of Sub-Level 5 regularly patrol the area, fishing in the canyon itself and warring with each other.

ENVIRONMENT

See above for water levels in the tombs and restrictions on air in certain tombs.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Level 3: stair at SL6-7, leading up to 3-87

To Level 5: stair at SL6-37, leading up to 5-115

To Level 5: rudishva teleport node (T13) at SL6-3, leading to 5-31

To Level 5: stairs at SL6-55A, leading up to 5-42

To Level 6: spillway at SL6-25, leading down to 6-143

To Level 6: tunnel at SL6-56, leading down to 6-166

To Level 7: long tunnel at SL6-18, leading down to 7-135

To Level 7: tunnel at SL6-26, leading down to 7-86

To Level 9: stairs at SL6-4A, leading down to 9-125

To Sub-Level 5: corridor at SL6-36, leading to SL5-47

To Sub-Level 7: corridor at SL6-39, leading to SL7-1

To the Tower of Scrutiny: gate at SL6-17A, leading to TS-12

To the imperial capital city of Archontos: gate at SL6-17A

To the City of Brass: gate at SL6-17A

To the Astral Plane: gate at SL6-17A

To various locations: Thothian teleportation ring (see new magic items) at SL6-28

Teleportation destinations on Sub-Level 6:

SL6-19: from a teleporter at 6-48

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

1. The Main Cavern (areas SL6-1 to SL6-23, and areas SL6-26 to SL6-37)

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 6 chance for an encounter.

D12	Encounter
1	A pod of 6 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 27, 24, 22, 20, 19, 19; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4

2	2-3 scraggs: SZ M; AL C(E); AC 3; MV 30', 150' swimming; HD 5+5; HP 33, 29, 25; #AT 3; Dmg 2-4/2-5/3-12. Special defenses: regenerate 3 HP/rd while in fresh water
3	A Priscian exploring party, consisting of a war mage and 2 conversi (see new monsters). This group of Priscians used area 6-48 to travel to SL6-19. They were looking for a previous party of Priscians that met its end at SL6-19. Justinian has managed to avoid the ooze (SL6-19) and is looking for a way out of the sub-level. 1. Justinian, a Priscian war mage (see new monsters) and member of Quintus, as a 6 th -level magic user: SZ M; AL LN; AC 3; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 21; #AT 1; Dmg 3-9 ( Priscian gladius +2 ). Abilities: STR 12, INT 17, WIS 13, DEX 16, CON 11, CHA 14. Possessions: Priscian chain mail (see new magic items); a Priscian gladius +2 (see new magic items); 345 sp; a key to 9-58; a stone of alarm ; a vial of Keogh's restorative ointment ; a pearl of power (level 3); and his spell book. Spells memorized: charm person, detect magic, magic missile, shield, levitate, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr; dispel magic, fireball . Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, floating disk, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, detect invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), scare, wizard lock; dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion, tiny hut, tongues 2. 2 Priscian conversi (see new monsters), as 3 rd -level fighters: SZ M; AL LN; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 3; HP 27, 25; #AT 1; Dmg 2-9 (long sword), or 2-5 (light crossbow). Possessions: Priscian chain mail (see new magic items), long swords, light crossbows. The conversi typically have STR 16
4	4 gargoyles: SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 90', 150' flying (Class C); HD 4+4; HP 31, 28, 26, 25; #AT 4; Dmg 1-3/1-3/1-6/1-4. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit. The gargoyles flew up the spillway (6-143) from the Great Chasm (6-108)
5	Sir Calculor, the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 10th-level male human fighter : SZ M; AL LN; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 9+3; HP 88; #AT 3/2; Dmg 7-13 ( broadsword +2 ). Abilities: STR 18/65, INT 15, WIS 13, DEX 12, CON 16, CHA 11. Possessions: gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring, circlet of command, and backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); 8 ancient octagonal platinum coins (see Arden Vul items), 125 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items); broad sword +2 . Calculor's mission is a private one, to be determined by the GM.
6	Basil Choumnos: for stats, see SL6-17. Basil is nervous about being away from the Tower of Pol (SL6-17A). He seeks knowledge about any visitors to the sub-level, but is quick to use his stone of recall (see new magic items) if threatened.

7-10*	8 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 16, 15, 13, 13, 12, 11, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. They plan to fish in the drowned cavern (SL6-24).
11-12*	8 fishermen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 19, 18, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. The fishermen have come from SL7 to acquire food from the drowned canyon (SL6-24). They would also like to acquire some new captives, whether lizardmen or human.

*On the north side of SL6-24, these encounters occur as listed; that is, lizardmen 7-10, and fishermen on a roll of 11-12. On the south side of the Canyon, however, this frequency is reversed, such that the fishermen appear on a roll of 7-10 and the lizardmen appear on a roll of 11-12.

2. The Drowned Canyon (areas SL6-24 and SL6-25)

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 6 chance of an encounter.

D20	Encounter
1-6	Colossal moray eel (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 90' swimming; HD 9; HP 68; #AT 1; Dmg 4-24. If slain as a random encounter, it cannot be encountered at SL6-58 or SL6-60
7-11	1 giant pike: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 360' swimming; HD 4; HP 22; #AT 1; Dmg 4-16. Special attacks surprise on 4 in 6. If slain as a random encounter, it cannot be encountered at SL6-71
12-13	1-2 giant crayfish: SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 4+4; HP 33, 28; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6. Crayfish slain as random encounters should be subtracted from the number found at SL6-93 or SL6-97
14-15	2-3 scraggs: SZ M; AL C(E); AC 3; MV 30', 150' swimming; HD 5+5; HP 33, 29, 25; #AT 3; Dmg 2-4/2-5/3-12. Special defenses: regenerate 3 HP/rd while in fresh water
16-18	8 fishermen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 19, 18, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. The fishermen have come from SL7 to acquire food from the drowned canyon (SL6-24). They would also like to acquire some new captives, whether lizardmen or human.
19-20	8 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 16, 15, 13, 13, 12, 11, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. They plan to fish in the drowned cavern (SL6-24).

3. The Tombs (areas SL6-38 to SL6-98)

There are no random encounters here, although flashy exploration of the tombs has a strong likelihood (50%) of causing one of the above encounters to occur as PCs exit the tomb(s).

LEVEL KEY

SL6-1: Lake and River

The water of this small lake roils with turbulence caused by the huge geyser that gushes at its center. The geyser shoots a 15'-diameter column of water 50' into the air. The water fills a basin in the rock that is 50' deep at the western edge; the water level is 5' below the natural floor of the surrounding cavern. As the water flows east, the bed becomes shallower and the current becomes stronger. Anyone swimming in either of the channels of the lake that flank the small island (SL6-2) must roll 3d8 under STR to avoid being swept by the current across the rapids (SL6-1A) and, potentially, down the waterfall (SL6-1B). The geyser is quite noisy and conversation is difficult around the lake. Indeed, listen checks anywhere within 70' of the geyser suffer a -1 penalty.

The lake is the abode of a deadly hydrodaemon (secret name: Pisscatig). The hydrodaemon is an ally of Kauket, and has lived here for about a millennium. The lizardmen fear it, and placate it with offerings of fish, dead fishermen, and small tokens. It is likely to watch parties exploring the lake and island before leaping into combat by using its dimension door and glide powers. It will happily summon a water elemental to its aid, but will be loath to attempt to gate in another hydrodaemon, doing so only in extremis.

The hydrodaemon tolerates the existence of two phase salamanders, who live and hunt along the banks of the lake.

Inhabitants:

- Pisscatig, a hydrodaemon: SZ L; AL NE; AC 2; MV 60', 60' flying (Class D), 240' swimming; HD 9+36; HP 96; #AT 3 or 5; Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-8/1-8/1-10; MR 70% to 1st-level spells (-5% per level over 1st). Constant abilities: infravision; ultravision. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: word of recall (1/day); half damage from acid, cold and magical fire; half or no damage from water-based attacks; silver, or +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to poison and paralysis. Special: detect invisible; read magic; comprehend languages; invisibility; telepathy; teleport without error; dimension door; darkness within 10'; create water; water walking (as the ring), gate in a hydrodaemon (50%); summon 12 HD water elemental.
- 2 phase salamanders (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 3 (or 6); MV 90', 120' swimming; HD 5; HP 32, 23; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: phase (+4 to hit). Special: AC 6 if unable to phase.

Treasure:

In a large chitinous chest on the bottom of the lake, close to the island: a string of 3,977 gp with holes in their centers strung on ribbons of dried human flesh; an elaborately shaped and carved box, 3'x1'x1', formed out of solid platinum, depicting, strangely enough, elven warriors at the hunt (worth 12,500 pp); 5 azurites (20 gp each); 5 rock crystals (50 gp each); a bloodstone (50 gp); a small black opal (750 gp); and a silver coffer sealed with wax within which are two spell scrolls, Kentillian's animate water and Kentillian's airy command (see new spells for each).

SL6-1A: Rapids

The water from the lake passes over a set of rocky spurs as it drops 10' in elevation. Anyone swept over the rapids takes 2-7 HP damage from the battering.

SL6-1B: Falls

The river here drops a further 30' into the canyon proper as it passes over a hard granite ledge. Anyone caught in the current is swept over the falls unless he/she manages to struggle to the bank and hold on for dear life by successfully rolling 4d6 under STR. Those swept over the falls take 2-8 HP damage and cause a large splash that is likely (66% chance) to attract the colossal eel (see SL6-24).

SL6-2: Island with Statue

A small island rises 15' above the surface of the lake (and 5' above the surrounding pavements). A 10'-diameter granite pediment holds a stained and bespattered marble statue of an Archontean woman dressed in archaic heavy armor. A pile of rubble lies north and west of the statue. Those who spend more than 2 turns poking around on the island are sure to attract the attention of the hydrodaemon at SL6-1.

Statue: The 12'-tall marble statue depicts Cassandra Rubea ('the red'), also known as 'the easily angered', a once important but now forgotten archon whose deeds were overshadowed by those of her successor, the great Marius Tricotor. The sculptor depicts Cassandra with unusually short hair and an intent scowl, complete with furrowed brow. She gestures east with a naked gladius. The statue is covered with grime, guano, and other unpleasantries. Cleaning the statue reveals an inscription in Mithric on the backplate of her armor: "Cassandra Rubea, archon of Arden Vul, who cleansed this water course of the demon-spawned heqeti."

Rubble: The rubble is ancient and covered with moss and algae; still, the lizardmen (from Sub-Level 5) have recently placed a few clay tokens in the form of crouching amphibians reverently on top of the moss. If investigated, the bits of rubble prove to be the remains of a far older statue that the Archontean overturned after their victory here. The pieces depict a salamander-headed and -torsoed being, with fanged lower incisors, a rudimentary tail, and powerful legs and arms. The stonework is rough and primitive, but still detects strongly of evil. The statue was a shrine to Kauket, carved in the shape of an enormous heqeti warrior. Beneath the rubble is a hide quiver with some heqeti barbed poison arrows.

Treasure:

6 heqeti barbed arrows, coated in Kauket's vision (see Arden Vul items).

SL6-2A: Broken Bridge

This stone span was broken in antiquity, leaving a 10' gap between its surviving segments. The bridge was a delicate segmented single arch that rose 10' above the floor of the cavern and was 5' wide.

SL6-2B: Bridge

The bridge is formed of a single, delicate, segmented arch that rises 10' above the floor of the cavern and is 5' wide. It is perfectly safe.

SL6-3: Hidden Passage to Rudishva Chamber

The rudishva iris door leading to this chamber lies directly west of the geyser; given the noise and turbulent water it is difficult to spot (treat as a secret door). Touching a pale green, orange, pink, silver, or yellow rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) to the accompanying panel causes the door to dilate open.

The 8'-wide passageway is coated in dusty, but intact white tiles, and contains no right angles. It leads to a similar-looking chamber. The rudishva used the room as a base while they visited the Drowned Canyon. The center of the chamber contains a still-working nutrition station. On the south wall is a pair of bunk beds constructed, somewhat prosaically, out of painted (white) wood. To the east is a teleport node.

Nutrition Station: This useful device appears as a sickle-shaped counter about 4'x4'x4' in size; on the concave side are 3 curved yellow tubes that extend from the counter over a silvered plate. A row of three colored buttons is set into the edge of the console by the tubes. Manipulating the buttons causes one of the tubes to spurt one of six varieties of high-protein, high-vitamin food paste onto the silver 'plate' (or into a container placed on it). The paste is not very appetizing, but highly nutritious.

Teleport Node: The node is comprised of a 5'-diameter circle of silvery material inset into the floor, with a 10"x10" square of the same material affixed to the wall. A rune is etched into the silvery material. To activate a node, one stands on the circle and touches one's hand to the square.

T13: access to area 5-31

Treasure:

Abandoned under the bunkbed is a fully charged rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items).

SL6-4: Heqeti Aerie

This ancient chamber has remained undiscovered for more than two millennia. Originally designed by the heqeti as a site from which to observe activity in the region, it is located 70' up – and within – the rock wall that flanks the lake. Two passages that are 4' wide and 6' tall allow observation of areas SL6-5, SL6-1, and SL6-2.

The chamber's walls are pebbled and oily. The east wall has an unusual half-round sculpture of Rimmaq-Isfet carved into the wall; the inscrutable evil god takes the form of a salamander with squid tentacles protruding from its mouth. He brandishes a harpoon in his small arms. The sculpture appears wet and viscous, as if a mucus membrane is covering it. The wetness is caused by a variety of heqeti slime (see new monsters) that soaks up and relates a message. Any stepping within 5' of the sculpture will hear the following, spoken in Heqeti: "The Devourer is displeased with our efforts. Punishment shall befall all those who fail to carry the war to the humans. The dread lord sends a new ally, Pisscatig, to accomplish what the heqeti could not. For your failures, you will serve Rimmaq-Isfet in other ways!" GM Note: the message refers to the wars of the heqeti and the Archontean. More usefully, if foolishly, it reveals the private name of the hydrodaemon found in SL2-1.

The corpses of two heqeti hoppers lie on the floor. They have into large heqeti slime zombies (see new monsters) which rise to confront all intruders.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 heqeti slime zombies: SZ L; AL N; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 42, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: slime infestation. Special defenses: immune to electricity.

Treasure:

Beneath the sculpture is a silk pouch with 3 tears of Kauket (see new magic items).

SL6-4A: Stairs Down to Level 9 (9-125)

These stairs lead down several hundred feet from the heqeti aerie to area 9-125.

SL6-5: Wizard Duel

A platform of worked granite blocks rises 10' from the (natural) floor of the cave. Twelve slim porphyry columns, 3' in diameter and 15' tall, form an alley along the platform within which two statues depicting magic users face each other. In the center of the alley, between the two statues, is a marble pentagram inset into the granite. Scattered along the north, south, and west of the platform are the worn fragments of other statues, their features effaced by time and vandalism. Despite this debris, no other obvious pediments for statues exist near this location; the current pair of statues occupies the only suitable locations.

Statues: Two life-sized, highly realistic granite statues face each other across the platform. The eastern statue depicts a male elf in body-fitting leathers crouching as he points a wand towards the west. He wears a skullcap and backpack, and is grasping for a pouch at his belt. The circular pediment on which he stands reads, in fresh-looking Mithric script: Erist Ellagelsson. Zero years.

The western statue depicts a tall human female, dressed more typically in flowing robes and a soft cap. She carries no equipment. Her arms and hands are caught in the midst of the gestures appropriate to spell-casting. The Mithric inscription on her pediment reads Gemma of Arcturos, 173 years.

The statues detect as magic, as they are nothing less than the petrified forms of the past two unsuccessful challengers to lordship of the Tower of Pol (SL6-17). Either or both could be restored to flesh with a stone to flesh spell (see below for their reactions). Should a new claimant defeat Basil (SL6-17A), the current lord of the Tower of Pol, Erist's statue will fragment into a dozen pieces and a statue of Basil (with the Mithric inscription 'Basil Choumnos, 37 years') will take his place.

GM Notes: Erist is the son of Lady Ellagel, one of the powerful elven lords in the Realm of Gallador (see World of Arden Vul appendix). He located the Tower about 75 years ago and challenged its chatelaine (Gemma), but was defeated and, as a consequence, petrified. Erist's half-brother, Hallor, is searching for his lost sibling (7-76F). If restored to flesh Erist will thank his rescuers profusely; he is funny and wry, and might agree to work with good-aligned parties. He is anxious for news of the fate of his companion (and lover, although he does not reveal this), Kesti Jiradell (see 9-18) and hopes any new companions will help him to look for her. Gemma of Arcturos had been chatelaine for 173 years before being defeated 37 years ago by Basil Choumnos, the current lord (see SL6-17). If returned to life, however, Gemma acts imperiously; she demands service as her right, and orders rescuers to help her to reclaim her 'rightful' lordship of the Tower of Pol. Gemma is hampered by the fact that her spell book is still within the Tower (SL6-17A). She can be tricked by flattery into revealing the operation of the pentagram.

Pentagram: The pentagram (about 5' in diameter) is white marble. The following is inscribed in its center in a magical script that is only legible with read magic: "The Tower of Pol shall be revealed to those who demonstrate their art." Standing on the pentagram and casting an arcane spell (of any type) causes the caster and all within 10' to be teleported to area SL6-17.

GM Note: Information about the Tower of Pol and the strange customs that regulate it may be obtained through the assiduous – and lucky – searching of the compartments under the cobblestones at area SL6-6.

Inhabitants:

1. Erist Ellagelsson, 5th-level male elf magic user: SZ M; AL CG; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 15; #AT 1; Dmg by 1-4 (dagger). Abilities: STR 12, INT 17, WIS 15, DEX 17, CON 9, CHA 11. Possessions: dagger; ring of protection +1; wand of magic missiles (32 charges); 133 sp; 67 gp; and his spell book. Memorized spells: charm person, jump; invisibility, ray of enfeeblement (all others were used during his duel with Gemma). Spell Book: burning hands, charm person, detect magic, feather fall, identify, jump, light, magic missile, read magic, shield; darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, invisibility, knock, locate object, ray of enfeeblement, rope trick, wizard lock; dispel magic, hold person, protection from evil 10' radius, suggestion.
2. Gemma of Arcturos, 10th-level female Archontean magic user: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 10; HP 31; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4 (dagger). Abilities: STR 8, INT 18, WIS 16, DEX 15, CON 10, CHA 12. Possessions: staff of striking (13 charges); dagger; bracers of defense (AC 4); brooch of shielding (48 HP left); wand of conjuration (32 charges). Memorized spells: armor, magic missile, taunt; detect invisibility, levitate, hideous laughter; dispel magic, monster summoning I; stoneskin; feeblemind (all other spells were used during her duel with Basil Choumnos).

SL6-6: Cobblestoned Pavement, North

This section of floor is slightly elevated from the rest of the north side of the river (SL6-1), and is covered by a heqeti-era pavement made of irregularly sized cobblestones dry-fitted together. The pavement rises 5' above the natural floor, and accesses the latter via two short flights of stairs. The cobblestones date to the heqeti period and average about 3'x2' in size. Should any of the approximately 1,400 individual cobblestones be pried from the floor, a 1'-square cavity in the rock is revealed beneath it. Each cavity has a 1 in 4 chance of containing an object selected from the following chart:

D20	Object	Notes
1-6	Skull, human
7-12	Skull, heqeti
13-14	Skull, varumani
15	Skull, varuda
16	Skull, rudishva

17	Folded wad of parchment	This is the testament of Skarphedin of Westholm (see Arden Vul books). Once the testament has been found, treat rolls of 17 as 'skull, animal'
18-19	Random object, deposited by later visitors	Roll d8 1-4: piece of adventuring gear 5: helmet and dagger (10% chance it is a dagger +1 ) 6. treasure map (GM's choice) 7. scroll case, 15% chance it is filled with a level 1-5 MU spell 8. small cache of coins or gems worth 50-400 gp
20	Special Object 1-2: silver skull 3-4: gold skull 5-6: platinum skull	The type of skull is determined by rolling again and ignoring results over 16. Silver skulls are worth 300 gp and have a 33% chance to be cursed (GM's choice); gold skulls are worth 1,500 gp (50% to be cursed ); platinum skulls are worth 3,500 gp (66% to be cursed ). Skulls weigh 8 lb.

A maximum of 8 silver, 4 gold, and 1 platinum skulls can be found under the pavement. The testament of Skarphedin of Westholm can be found only once.

SL6-7: Stairs Up to 3-87

These stairs are carved into a huge natural pillar of rock. A locked iron grating blocks the stairs 30' into their ascent; the lock is old and easily picked (+10%) or broken (+1 chance to open doors rolls). Beyond the grating the stairs rise steeply over 550' to area 3-87. Those mounting the stairs from Sub-Level 6 are likely to alert the wight resident in 3-86; the wight waits to ambush those who emerge, tired, from the long climb.

SL6-8: Stone Face of Pol

On the west side of this huge natural pillar is carved a 5'-tall, half-round representation of a grinning human face. The face is that of Pol, the infamous Grinning Mage. Pol has short, curly hair, a long, hooked nose, eyes creased with laugh lines, and a grinning mouth. Although the stone carving contains sixteen 6"-wide slots into which teeth might originally have been placed, the mouth is empty.

Activating the Stone Head: Should any of the ivory teeth of Pol (see new magic items) be located and inserted into the mouth, the head will activate and interact with passers-by. Once a tooth is inserted into a slot, it fuses with the jaw and may only be removed again by the successful use of dispel magic (treat each tooth as 12th level for purposes of dispelling) How much interactivity the head obtains is a function of the number of teeth inserted into its mouth. It should be emphasized that Pol never loses the lower-level functions as more teeth are added. That is, the spells he gains with 7-12 teeth can still be cast once he gains thirteen teeth; and, once he regains all sixteen teeth, he can cast any of the spells received at lower numbers of teeth.

of Teeth	Pol's INT	Notes
1-6	Low (3-8)	Pol cracks crude, unfunny jokes and generally acts like a drunken fool. He can describe comings and goings and issue rough, unspecific warnings
7-12	Average (9-12)	Pol's jokes are better, if still predictable. He actively solicits new jokes. He can explain how to access the Tower of Pol (SL6-17A) and the dueling process. He can detect magic at will, and will do so in return for new jokes or riddles.
13-15	High (13-18)	Pol puns cleverly, and his jokes are sophisticated (if somewhat out of date). He is self-aware, and attempts to trade information for the recovery of his remaining teeth. He can identify magic items, but will do so only if a new tooth is provided (one tooth per casting). He can cast magic missile (8x/day, at 16 th level) if attacked.
16	Supra intelligent (19)	Pol ceases to joke, as the humor now resides solely within his own mind. He now develops agendas, mostly to do with information pertinent to the current state of the Halls. To aid in pursuing these agendas, Pol can now cast charm monster , charm person , mass charm , feeblemind , and geas , and will do so (25% chance) if pestered for information. See below for more information.

Background: Pol was the first Archontean to discover the Drowned Canyon, and was the architect of the Tower of Pol (see SL6-6 and SL6-17A). At the end of his long life, unbeaten by claimants to his stewardship of the Tower, Pol elected to pursue a unique path for immortality, and attempted to transfer his consciousness to this specially carved image. The transfer worked – to an extent – as Pol’s famously impish personality was implanted in the carved face; still, the enchantment was only partly successful, as Pol’s intelligence was linked to the ivory teeth that that formed a part of the carved head. Only when all 16 teeth are present is Pol’s full intelligence present.

If and when all sixteen teeth are inserted into their proper places, Pol emerges as more powerful, more dangerous, and less friendly. At this point Pol develops and attempts to implement complex, long-term strategies, and he uses the spell powers listed above to ‘recruit’ agents to assist him in these agendas. Pol ceases to interact in the former jovial manner, instead presenting a cold, rational, driven demeanor when consulted.

Pol’s Agenda: What Pol actually wants is up to the GM to determine, but should be abstruse and annoying (after all he’s a stone head!). He likely seeks obscure arcane tomes and spells, and perhaps a way to allow his consciousness to travel the Astral Plane. He ruthlessly attempts to charm and compel those he encounters (with geas) to procure information and/or objects that may assist him in this plan.

Neutralizing or Destroying Pol: Pol is AC -2, is hit only by +2 weapons, has 25% MR, and requires 50 HP damage to destroy (or, at least, to sufficiently mar so as to render him unable to interact). He saves as a magic user of the same level as the number of teeth currently in his mouth (i.e., 1st to 16th level). Once 13 teeth have been restored, Pol can cast magic missile (8x/day, at 16th-level) and will do so if targeted with dispel magic or other hostile effects. Transmute rock to mud is highly effective against Pol for obvious reasons, although his natural MR 25% gives him a fighting chance against it.

SL6-9: North Colossus: Irene Bellatrix

This colossal statue is 25’ tall and faces west. It depicts a breastplate-clad female warrior. The warrior gestures with a short javelin towards area SL6-10. The statue has been decapitated, and its head lies at the bottom of the Drowned Canyon. The pedestal reads as follows (in Mithric):

*Subjugator and destroyer,
Purger with fire and gladius,
Irene belied her name*

Trap (tripwire): A thin cord is tied to the foot of the statue and runs NNE towards SL6-10. Those approaching the edge of the Drowned Canyon or the stairs at SL6-10 run the risk of tripping on the cord (roll 4d6 under DEX or trip). If someone trips on the cord, there is a 25% chance of slipping over the edge of the chasm, modified downward by 5% for every point of DEX over 14 or upward by 5% every point of DEX under 10. Those who trip are automatically surprised by the fishmen (see new monsters) lurking at area SL6-10.

GM Note: The statue represents Irene (meaning ‘peace’ in Greek) Bellatrix, a once-famous warrior-archon who, following in the footsteps of the great Marius, cleaned up the remnants of heqeti activity in most of the middle levels of Arden Vul.

SL6-10: Stairs Leading Down into the Canyon

A narrow (4’-wide) and steep set of stairs is carved into the west end of the cliff at this location. Due to the spray from the waterfall (SL6-1B), the steps are slippery. They descend 50’ in total, although only the top 30’ are above the water level in the Drowned Canyon.

At the point where the stairs enter the water (that is, 30’ below the cliff edge) drifts a pile of flotsam comprised of wooden planks, some mostly rotted canvas, and some bloated corpses of fishmen and lizardmen. Clever PCs could use the planks to construct a raft capable of exploring the water of the canyon.

A hunting party of fishmen (see new monsters) lurks in ambush at the top of the stairs and along the cliff edge, where they use holes in the cliff to support themselves below the pavement level.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60’, 150’ swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

SL6-11: Natural Cavern, North Side

Away from the pavement (SL6-6), the floor of the cave is rough; movement is reduced to ¾ of normal. For every 3 turns spent wandering in this area there is a 25% chance of coming across a corpse; if one is indicated, roll 2d6, once for type and once for condition. A total of 18 corpses can be encountered.

D6	Type	Condition
1-2	Fishman	Ancient, stripped of all equipment, and badly decayed
3	Lizardman	Fresh, with 3-60 gp worth of minor valuables or equipment
4	Goblin	Recent, but flensed of all flesh
5	Human adventurer. If recent, it’s a member of Leofwin Rufus’s doomed party (see SL5-44 and SL6-16)	Recent, bound and gagged, with a gaping abdominal wound
6	Specimen of unknown, minor, demon-kind	Ancient, trapped with explosive runes , and carrying a scroll of protection from demons

SL6-12: Cave of the Colossal Column

Several stalagmites and stalactites have fused together in the northeast corner of this cave, forming a huge cave column some 20’ in diameter and extending 30’ to the ceiling of the cave. Significant flowstone drifts emerge from areas SL6-14 and SL6-15 and lend an uneven, slippery feel to the cavern floor.

A 4’-wide walkway has been carved into the column at a level 15’ up from the floor. The walkway allows a clear view of the approach from the south as well as access to hollowed-out cylinder within the column. The cylinder has a 4’-diameter access hole, and is 10’ in diameter and 10’ deep.

A crude wooden ladder rests against the north side of the column; it provides access to the walkway. Inside the niche is a jointed, 20’-long rope-and-wood bridge that can be used to connect the walkway to the lip of area SL6-15. The fishmen (see new monsters) use these devices to access the walkway and their shrine in the neighboring cave.

A party of 6 fishmen occupies this area. They are alert to activity from the south, and use ranged weapons from the walkway against all comers. All six wear an odd necklace made of bits of found material (coral, bone, smooth glass, teeth); the necklaces vaguely resemble a fanged eel's head. These necklaces mark their bearers as member of the cult of the eel (see SL6-15).

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

Treasure:

The coral-like necklaces are worth 25 gp each as examples of folk art. At the bottom of the niche in the column is a frost brand long sword wrapped in chamois cloth. The fishmen are ignorant of the presence of this fabled blade.

SL6-13: Cave with Pool

From a flowstone lip near the entrance to SL6-12, the cavern floor slopes sharply downwards to reach the floor of this cave (5' differential in height). A pool covers most of the surface area of the cave, leaving only a narrow (3') ledge around it. The pool is shallow (5'-10' deep) except in its exact center, where a sinkhole leads to a water-filled passage that connects to area SL6-1. The pool is filled with algae, lichen, and blind cave fish. A pod of eight giant frogs make their home in and around the pond. At the bottom of the pool is a skeleton of a long-dead human adventurer.

The fishmen in SL6-12 and SL6-15 do not bother the frogs, which they consider to be kindred spirits.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 giant frogs: SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 30'; 90' swimming, 100' jumping; HD 3; HP 24, 23, 23, 22, 21, 21, 20, 19; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; tongue strikes at +4 to hit; swallow on natural 20.

Treasure:

The skeleton bears a spear +2, a still-usable suit of elven chain mail, and two teeth of Pol (see new magic items).

SL6-14: Empty Cave

Due to the nearby presence of the fishmen (SL6-12 and SL6-15) and the giant frogs (SL6-13), this cave is currently uninhabited.

SL6-15: Shrine to the Eel

This entrance to this cave is 20' feet off the floor of the main cavern (SL6-12). The fishmen (see new monsters) use the hinged bridge stored in the column at SL6-12 to access the cave, although a thief could easily climb up to it (+10% to climb chance).

The interior of the cave is floored with ancient flowstone, and the entire area still drips with moisture. Stumps of numerous stalagmites dot the floor; all appear to have been broken off or battered into small remnants of their former glory. Only a single stalagmite still stands in the center of the cave. This stalagmite is about 5' tall and has an odd twist to its top 1' of height; because of the twist, the stalagmite looks a bit like an eel with mouth turned to face the opening of the cave. The fishmen who discovered this formation have carefully accentuated the likeness, carving eyeholes and some indentations that suggest teeth. The eel/stalagmite is draped with small offerings left by the fishmen, including skeletal fish, several mummified lizardman hands, a set of dried eyeballs on a string, and some broken javelins.

Impaled on a few of the remaining stalagmite stumps are some nasty-smelling, naked corpses; one is a human male, another is a lizardman, and the third is an apostate fishman (see new monsters).

The northwestern projection has a 15'-deep pool of cold, clear water, within which the fishmen cultivate some ordinary moray eels (regular sized).

Down the long, narrow northern finger is a secondary shrine, built of a mound of lizardman skulls and a looted and badly tarnished silver tray. On top of the tray are six large lumps of obsidian (25 gp each), a rare black sapphire (5,000 gp) mixed among the obsidian, and a 1'-tall jade statuette of an eel. The latter is a pledge of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new magic items).

This cave is the home of splinter group of fishmen (see new monsters), known as the cult of the eel. They worship the colossal moray eel (SL6-24) as the true form of Rimmaq-Isfet; when they discovered this cave with the unusual stalagmite, they adopted it as their shrine. They placate and adore the great eel here, offering bits of personal 'treasure' in the hopes of winning the eel's favor and in fending off its attacks. The members of the cult of the eel have not completely abandoned their colleagues in the Flooded Vaults (SL7); rather, they believe they have uncovered additional insight into the ways of great Rimmaq-Isfet, ways which their 'ordinary' brethren have yet to appreciate.

Inhabitants:

1. 7 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

2. Kreel, a 7th-level fishman shaman (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD as a 6+ HD creature; HP 41; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 4-9 (mace +2); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. Possessions: mace +2. Spells prepared: cure light wounds, light, protection from good; chant, snake charm, resist fire; blindness, dispel magic; poison (reverse of neutralize poison).

3. 4 giant eels (moray): SZ M; AL N; AC 6; HD 5; HP 35, 31, 28, 25, 24; #AT 1; Dmg 3-18.

Treasure:

6 lumps of obsidian (25 gp); a black sapphire (5,000 gp); a pledge of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new magic items); a blue glass activation square (see Thothian teleportation rings in new magic items); and the shaman's mace +2.

SL6-16: Tomb of Tiresias the White

This chamber holds the mortal remains of Tiresias Cornutus, aka "the White", an imperial wizard in antiquity and secretly an important leader of the Sortians. The chamber is 15' tall, and clad entirely in 1'-square white tiles in the center of each of which is painted in blue paint a 3" blue knot (the symbol of the Sortians). A black granite sarcophagus, 10' long and 5' wide, occupies the center of the chamber. At the west end is a 10'-tall, carved bust of a distinguished-looking, middle-aged man. Open stone chests stand against the north and south walls. Smears of fresh blood mar the white surface of the floor just to the east of the sarcophagus.

The tomb is occupied at present by a flensing demon named Belubzor. The demon arrived when a member of the Priscian Order unaffiliated with Nerub Null (see 9-64) located the tomb some forty years ago; Belubzor slew that explorer and all his company, and has waited patiently here ever since. Belubzor clings to the ceiling in an invisible form and will attack as soon as attention is paid to the sarcophagus. It disposes of flensed bodies outside the secret door (SL6-16A).

Sarcophagus: This black granite object is imposing, rising 5' from the floor and occupying a 10'x5' footprint. A crack for a lid appears to be visible. Incised on the 'lid' in silver-filled letters is the following inscription in Mithric: Tiresias Cornutus, styled 'the White', soldier in the cause of justice and egalitarianism, lies at rest. He braved the heat put forth by Isadora, companion of his dearest friend, Priscus the Hekate, and welcomed a change in his eternal form. Where in life Tiresias was fiercest champion of the ways of the Sortians, so too in death does he espouse the cause of right and justice. The silver gilt is worth 25 gp. For all its appearances, the 'sarcophagus' is actually a solid block of stone carved so as to resemble a sarcophagus. It takes 1-4 attempts to 'open' the sarcophagus before PCs realize there isn't actually a lid; while these efforts are underway, the flensing demon will attack.

Huge Bust of Tiresias: This massive bust – 10' tall, 5' wide, and 3' deep – is carved of solid marble, and with close attention to every detail. According to the bust, Tiresias was an elderly man, thin to the point of gauntness, nearly bald with unruly tufts of hair by his ears, with narrowed, suspicious eyes and a short, snub nose. The only splash of color that interrupts the white tones of the marble comes from a heavy chain of gold and lapis rectangles that lies around Tiresias's neck. The chain detects as magic, although it has no special properties, and is worth 1,325 gp. Touching the chain causes a magic mouth to speak these words in Mithric, "Remove me at your peril!" This is an empty threat, however, and if the chain is removed, the head of the bust will also click open on a hinge, revealing a hollow cavity within the marble. The cavity contains an alabaster jar with the ashes of Tiresias the White; the jar is worth 50 gp but the ashes could be traded to the modern Priscians for 575 gp. But the real treasures are a complete copy of the ultra-rare Priscian text, the Hidden Codex (see new Arden Vul books), and Tiresias's ring of free action.

Stone Chests: The north chest contains 5,392 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) in neat, but dusty, stacks. The south chest contains a Sortian baculus (see new magic items), a 3-lb lump of arcnum, an ankh of protection (see new magic items for both), gold and sapphire Sortian eyes (see new magic items), and a set of six gold goblets with scenes from the life of Priscus Pulcher (worth 200 gp each).

Secret Door (west): The door is tall and narrow (6'x2'), but normal to locate. It opens by depressing a tile near the door and then, while the tile is depressed, pushing the door inward. Beyond the door is a narrow corridor that ends in a one-way door to SL6-12.

Secret Door (south, aka SL16-A): The door is easy to locate from this side (1 in 4). It opens by knocking three times and speaking 'open' in Mithric.

GM Note: Tiresias the White was a mage attached to the imperial legions, and a trusted advisor to the archon of Arden Vul. Yet he also was one of Priscus Pulcher's oldest friends, and came to share the egalitarian ideals of Priscus and the other Sortians. Working from within the imperial hierarchy, Tiresias provided valuable intelligence to the Sortians until his actions finally provoked the suspicions of the Drome. As a military man, he wished to die honorably rather than be exposed as a traitor, so Isadora, the gold dragon and companion of Priscus Pulcher, agreed to provide him with a suitably dramatic and reputation-saving demise through her blazing dragon-fire. Other Sortians ensured his burial in this hidden location.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 flensing demon (name: Belubzor) (see new monsters): SZ L; AC -1; MV 90'; leap 40'; HD 9+9; HP 76; #AT 4; Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6; MR 35%. Constant abilities: infravision. Special attacks: flensing; leap; mucous spit. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; half damage from cold, electricity, fire, and gas. Special: invisibility; detect invisibility; levitate (1,000 lb); dispel magic; darkness (20' diameter); ESP; teleport without error; gate (50%).

Treasure:

See text.

SL6-16A: Corpses and Secret Door

The corpses of six human adventurers are piled in front of the secret door. Judging by the reek, they have been dead about 3 days. The skin of four of the corpses has been completely flensed from its body, leaving grotesque, sticky, pink masses of rotting flesh.

GM Note: These are the comrades of Leofwin Rufus (see SL5-44). The adventurers made their way up the spillway from 6-143 to SL6-25. They were ambushed by fishermen as they investigated SL6-9, and retreated here after several of their group were slain and/or driven away. The survivors discovered the secret door to SL6-16, investigated, and were killed by the demon, who deposited their flensed bodies here.

Secret Door (northeast): This door is cleverly camouflaged to look like a piece of the natural cave wall. It is normal to locate and opens by knocking three times and speaking 'open' in Mithric; otherwise it must be forced by strength or magic.

SL6-17: Cavern of Pol

This cavern is about 60' tall and brightly lit from continual light spells cast strategically along its walls. Rising up 45' above its floor is the infamous Tower of Pol (see SL6-17A). The floor of the cavern is natural, but not difficult to traverse; several paths are visible, including an obvious one between the pentagram and the dueling pit, and another between the pool and the dueling pit.

To the north of the tower is a pool of cool, clear, potable water. To the south is a marble pentagram inset into the stone; it is 5' in diameter and identical to that found at SL6-5. To the west is a 10'-deep, 25'-long, 10'-wide pit carved carefully from the bedrock.

The cavern of Pol can only be entered by three means: 1) the tunnel at SL6-18 from 7-135; 2) use of the pentagram at SL6-5; or 3) certain kinds of high-level magic (e.g., teleportation), although the location of the cavern would need to be discovered first.

Entering the cavern via the tunnel provokes no reaction from the inhabitant of the tower, unless a visitor should subsequently stand upon the pentagram and shout a challenge. Those who arrive from SL6-5 via the pentagram, however, automatically invoke a clause in the arcane fabric of the tower such that the castellan must immediately appear and duel the new claimant. The current castellan – Basil Choumnos – will thus appear within 3 rounds, having teleported from the tower to the south lip of the dueling pit. He immediately issues the formal challenge: “I, Basil Choumnos, am rightful lord of the Tower of Pol. Who challenges my right?” Intruders have a brief opportunity to explain themselves, during which Basil will explain, imperiously, their choice: either a party magic user duels him, or the intruders flee back the way they came. Once the terms are understood, Basil repeats the formal challenge and the visitor must reply with his/her name and some form of challenge. If Basil is attacked at any point during negotiations, his obligation to duel is terminated, and he is teleported back to the Tower; in such circumstances, Basil is likely to utterly ignore any clamor from outside. Only if the intruders are particularly annoying and appear weak will he mount to the top of the tower and engage the intruders in combat from that safe location. If a duel is agreed upon, however, the two parties proceed to the dueling pit (see below).

Pentagram: This ancient marble symbol is the primary means by which the castellan of the Tower of Pol enters and leaves his/her domain. To employ the pentagram, one stands on it and casts any arcane spell; instantly the caster and all within 10' are transported to area SL6-5.

Dueling Pit: This pit was carved out of the bedrock by Pol and forms an integral part of the magic of this location. If a visitor accepts the challenge to duel the castellan of the Tower, the two proceed to the dueling pit (10'x10'x25') and descend into it. The current castellan then issues this formal invitation to duel: “I, Basil Choumnos, castellan of the Tower of Pol, welcome this chance to demonstrate my lordship. Let the challenge commence!”

At this point a wall of force shaped like a half-dome covers the dueling pit while the two mages do battle. Duels are to the death, and are expected to employ magic; of course, anything goes in the duel, and not a few castellans have gained lordship by clever use of weaponry or other unexpected techniques. When one duelist has been brought to 0 HP or below, he/she is instantly transformed into a stone statue at area SL6-5, and the powers and obligation of the castellan (see SL6-17A for these) are imposed (or reinforced) in the victor. The victor is immediately teleported within the Tower, and the force shield disappears. Unless onlookers are able to dismantle a wall of force, they are unable to affect the course of the duel. Note: Even with the space provided by the wall of force, the dimensions of dueling pit impose certain constraints on what is possible within the duel.

SL6-17A: Tower of Pol

The tower of Pol is a dwelling constructed by one of the great archmages of antiquity, Pol of Archontos. In addition to its ordinary features, it is imbued with powerful magics that convey potent benefits on the owner (known as the castellan or chatelaine) as well as certain binding obligations. The current castellan is Basil Choumnos, known to his former colleagues as ‘the skin-changer’ for his use of polymorph spells; Basil defeated Gemma of Arcturos thirty-seven years ago and has reigned as lord (with only one challenge) ever since.

The tower itself is a three-story obsidian structure with a roof; it rises 45' above the floor of the 60'-tall cavern. It appears to have no doors or windows, since the castellan uses specially prepared objects to instantaneously transport himself into or out of the foreboding tower.

Benefits and Obligations of the Castellan

Although possession of the Tower of Pol was highly sought after in antiquity, and while it certainly offers great security, wealth and power to its possessor, it also bears heavy obligations. Benefits include residence for as long as one is able to defeat challengers, access to the library and spell-books inside the tower, casual access to great wealth, access to powerful transportation magic (including the gates), and the tempting opportunity for near eternal life.

But the obligations are heavy. By defeating the current castellan, a challenger immediately falls under the effect of several powerful geases. For one, the new castellan can never be away from the Tower for more than 3 days at any given time, or else he/she will start to lose CON at the point of 1/day. Should a stubborn castellan refuse to return and thus die elsewhere, the next magic user to arrive in SL6-17 via the pentagram in SL6-5 will find a key on the pentagram with the phrase 'home' inscribed on it; picking up the key and speaking the word 'home' instantly establishes the finder as the new castellan, with all rights and obligations pertaining thereto.

A second obligation of castellanship is the requirement to appear and duel any and every challenger who discovers the Cavern of Pol. The force of the geas is such that – unless the castellan is inside the cryogenic chamber or traveling in another plane – he/she must immediately activate one of the recall objects and head forth to offer magical combat to the challenger. The only way to escape the geas is by the use of a wish; should a castellan successfully wish to end the geas, he/she will find himself returned to SL6-5 carrying a maximum of 25 lb of gear. It should be obvious that ownership of the Tower is as much a curse as it is a benefit, and is not really conducive to active adventuring. Duelists beware!

Level 1: Ground Floor

The ground floor of the tower is for storage and mundane affairs. Scores of boxes, crates, kegs, and other containers hold supplies of dried meat, vegetables, spices, and other cooking materials. A table and workspace with cooking pots and pans lies to the east. Heat for cooking is provided by a tripod of heating (see new magic items). A spiral stair leads up to Level 2. Along the south wall are three armor racks with unused weapons and armor; next to them is a set of hooks attached to the stone wall, these contain six objects attached to leather thongs. These objects – three keys and three small stones – are permanently enchanted with Pol's recall (see new spells) and are spares for the castellan to use in transporting himself/herself inside and outside the tower. Each key is different, and opens no lock; but if one holds or wears one of the keys and speaks 'home', one is instantly transported to Level 2 of the Tower of Pol. The three rocks are similar, and function in a similar way: one speaks 'challenge' and one is instantly transported to the dueling pit in SL6-17.

Level 2: Living Quarters

This floor is devoted to living and studying. The north side features a thick woven carpet (45 gp), a pair of stuffed leather chairs, another tripod of heating (see new magic items), and a cabinet stocked with brandy and wine (12 bottles, 10-100 gp each). The west has a comfortable bed and an open stone chest filled with coins; the chest is an ever-full chest (see new magic items). The east side contains a desk and scroll case; the latter is a trove of valuable spells and treatises. To the south is a pair of bookshelves and a library table; the library contains only 27 volumes, including several spell books.

Most significant might be the six massive folio volumes comprising the Castellan's Spell Book: begun by Pol himself, subsequent castellans have added to the tome such that all the standard spells are present here (plus those Pol invented – see new spells). The presence of this codex explains why more spell books are not present; since a full reference library was always present, castellans did not feel the need to preserve all the books of their predecessors. The Castellan's Spell Book has one flaw to it: should it be taken from the Tower of Pol, it will erase one spell per day until the books are empty (roll randomly to determine level and spell that are deleted).

Level 3: Gates and Laboratory

To the north of the staircase is a rudishva cryogenic chamber (see new technological items). Next to it is a chest filled with two dozen rudishva lesser power supplies and three rudishva greater power supplies (see new technological items). All but two of the lesser power supplies are drained, and only one of the three greater power supplies is still operable. Over the centuries, the castellans have used the cryogenic chamber to extend their lives beyond their usual limits. Casually stored in the cryogenic chamber is a soft chamois pouch filled with 40 tourmalines (100 gp each).

To the south is a fully stocked magical and alchemical laboratory, with glassware, retorts, mortars, and ingredients worth 7,500 gp. A few potent magic items lie among the lab equipment.

On the east, west, southeast, and southwest walls are inscribed permanent gates that allow the castellan to journey to distant locations and planes. The east gate leads to the Astral Plane; the west gate leads to the City of Brass; the southeast gate leads to a forgotten sub-basement in the imperial capital of Archontos; while the southwest gate leads to the top floor of the Tower of Scrutiny (TS-12).

Roof:

The roof is accessed via a rope ladder to a steel trapdoor. Basil Choumnos almost never uses the roof; for this reason the trapdoor is locked and barred.

Inhabitants:

1. Basil Choumnos, 9th-level male human magic user: SZ M; AL CE; AC -1; MV 120'; HD 9; HP 29; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6 (staff of the magi). STR 9; INT 18; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 8; CHA 9. Possessions: staff of the magi (17 charges); bracers of defense (AC 2); leviathan's teeth (9 teeth); amulet of spell absorption (14 spell levels remaining), cap of serenity, ring of shield, key of recall, stone of recall, ring of higher purpose (see new magic items for last seven items). Memorized spells: magic missile, shield, shrink (reverse of enlarge) (x2); invisibility (x2), mirror image; dispel magic, hold person (x2); fire shield, ice storm; feblemind.

Treasure:

Level 1: recall devices; three suits of chain mail, one of which is chain mail +3; one suit of imperial field plate (see Arden Vul items); a dozen well-made spears, one of which is a spear +2; a long sword and a luckblade (broadsword); and a pair of footmen's flails.

Level 2: ever-full chest (see new magic items), holding 1,789 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), 371 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), 4,590 sp and 987 gp. A library of books is also present (see below for list), as are a sizable number of scrolls (also see below). The spell books of Gemma of Arcturos (SL6-5) and the current castellan, Basil

Choumnos, are found here. Even more significant are the six massive volumes of the Castellan's Spell Book, which contain all known spells plus the unique spells of Pol (see new spells).
 Level 3: laboratory gear worth 7,500 gp. Pouch with 40 tourmalines (100 gp each). Two rudishva lesser power supplies, and one greater power supply (see new technological items for both). Also an olifant of command (demonic entities), a shrunk head, a greater salt lamp of protection, and an insidious bone flute (see new magic items for all).

Spell Book of Gemma of Arcturos: Burning hands, charm person, dancing lights, detect magic, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, melt, message, precipitation, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, taunt, ventriloquism, wizard's mark; bind, darkness 15' radius, deeppockets, detect evil, flaming sphere, forget, invisibility, irritation, know alignment, locate object, acid arrow, rope trick, vocalize, web, wizard lock; blink, cloudburst, dispel magic, explosive runes, fly, gust of wind, hold person, item, minute meteor, secret page, slow, suggestion, water breathing; confusion, dig, dimension door, extension I, fire trap, fumble, ice storm, massmorph, plant growth, polymorph self, remove curse, shout, wall of ice; avoidance, interposing hand, contact other plane, extension II, hold monster, magic jar, sending, teleport; chain lightning, eyebite, part water.

Spell Book of Basil Choumnos: Armor, charm person, dancing lights, enlarge, feather fall, grease, identify, light, magic missile, mending, magic aura, push, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; continual light, ESP, flaming sphere, forget, invisibility, levitate, mirror image, preserve, rope trick, scare, strength, web; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, feign death, hold person, invisibility 10' radius, material, protection from evil 10' radius, sepia snake sigil, wind wall; charm monster, dimension door, fire shield, ice storm, mnemonic enhancer, remove curse, stoneskin; airy water, cloudkill, distance distortion, feeblemind, passwall, stone shape; enchant an item, globe of invulnerability, project image.

Scrolls(SecondFloor):Protection from demons, protection from devils, protection from elementals, protection from magic, protection from petrification, protection from possession, protection from undead. A scroll of light, read magic, and shield. A scroll of knock, locate object, wizard lock, and hold portal. A scroll of comprehend languages, suggestion, and tongues. A scroll of minor globe of invulnerability. A scroll of extension I, extension II, and extension III. A scroll of monster summoning I, monster summoning II, monster summoning III, and monster summoning IV. A scroll of power word, stun; power word, blind; and power word, kill.

Library of the Tower of Pol (see Arden Vul books for all):

Title	Author
The Ancient Ones	Laelius the Praetor
Archons of Arden Vul (with handwritten additions describing Basil the Thorcin-Slayer, Pellas the Last, Adrienic I, and Basil Junienos)	Anonymous
The Nine Hells: a Catalogue, with Descriptions and Summoning Notes	Ixion of Narsileon

The Dogmatics of Father Set	The Third Potestator
Emperors of Archontos	Mucius the Lesser
History of the Pagan Cults	Oronius
Irene Bellatrix: on the wars of this great archon	Egidius of Archontos
Lay of Marius Invictus	Lucius Cornelius Scriptor
Legionary Rex and the Hidden Temple	Marcus Marcus
The Lives of the Noble Founders, Arden and Vul	Harodocius the Legate
Meson's Guide to the Brothels of Archontos	Meson the Oak
Mind over Blood, or how to Cheat Death	Syagria Aitón
On the Errors of the Sortians	Anonymous
On Friends and Enemies	Teracleon
Pandects of Thaumaturgical Visitation	Fauricius of Magger
Pol's Book of Laughs	The Grinning Mage
Principles of Comedy	Teracleon
The Seventy-Seven Quips of Balak the Arch-mage	Balak the Arch-mage
Thoth in All His Forms	Gaufridus magister
Travels in the Astral Plane	Nicodemus the Noseless
Trifold Tome of Theodore the White	Theodore the White
The Twelve Labors of Arden	Anonymous
Waldinus's Guide to the City of Brass	Waldinus Counsel-Avoider
Words and Symbols: an attempt to understand the symbols of the Old Ones	Hanon the Scribe

SL6-18: Tunnel down to Level 7 (7-135)

This tunnel snakes downward before ending up at area 7-135.

SL6-19: Damp Ledge with Mosaic

This substantial sub-cavern is reached via a ledge 20' above the floor of the main cavern. It glistens with dampness, and several decomposed corpses are visible from the entranceway. A 15'-diameter mosaic in the form of a giant, complex blue knot lies at the west end of the cave.

The dampness is a gray ooze of unusual size and potency. The mosaic is the arrival point for one of the Sortian faces at 6-48 (see new magic items). The corpses are the remains of the last three Priscian war mages to attempt to access the Drowned Canyon via the teleporter.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 enormous gray ooze: SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 10'; HD 5+5; HP 37; #AT 1; Dmg 2-16. Special attacks: corrode metal. Special defenses: impervious to spells; immune to heat and cold.

Treasure:

The ooze has consumed all the metallic valuables from the dead Priscians, such that only three light-blue surcoats, a poison of climbing, and three scrolls (water breathing, enchanted weapon, and interposing hand) in a wooden scroll case remain.

SL6-20: Doors to Nowhere

A pair of 12'-tall, 20'-wide double doors looms over the cavern here. The doors are black granite. Each half has a 3'-tall symbol incised on its surface and is filled with crushed, fused lapis. The symbol on the left door is of a stylus and piece of parchment; that on the right is of a coil of rope surrounding a helmet. The doors are locked and wizard locked at the 6th-level. The keys, if they ever existed, are long gone.

Those who manage to open the doors are likely to be disappointed, for they lead nowhere. A 10' space just deep enough to allow the doors to open exists behind them; a solid, unworked, stone wall lies beyond. Smashed into this space, where the left valve opens, is the corpse of an elven magic user.

Treasure:

On the magic user's corpse: two teeth of Pol (see new magic items); six 100 gp pearls; a snapped (and useless) magic staff; and a slip of parchment with a list of colors reading "red-black-yellow-blue-green-white" (the coordinates to the Thothian teleportation ring at SL6-28 – see new magic items).

SL6-21: Secret Door and Trapped Corridor

Secret Door: The secret door takes the form of a circular stone plug that is normal to locate. It opens by pushing it inward (i.e., by making a successful open doors check).

Beyond the secret door is a narrow, 6'-wide tunnel leading to SL6-22. A series of traps lies in wait along the tunnel for the unwary.

Trap #1 (scything blade): A 10' section of floor is a pressure plate; stepping on it causes several blades to scythe across the hallway, dealing 3-18 HP damage to those in its path.

Trap #2 (pit with spikes): Immediately beyond the pressure plate for trap #1 is a 10' section of floor that gives way to a 10'-deep pit trap containing sharpened wooden stakes. Any falling in takes 2-12 HP damage.

Trap #3 (Poisoned darts): The final 10' of corridor before the door to SL6-22 is a pressure plate connected to a dozen air-powered poison darts. Each dart inflicts 1-2 HP and requires a save vs. poison (at +2 due to the antiquity of the poison).

SL6-22: Vault of Sulla the Myrmex

The 'door' to this chamber is a solid slab of granite on which is inscribed (in silver gilt) a skull-and-crossbones and the following message (in Mithric): "The Myrmex rests unquietly within. Do not free him, for he knows only destruction." The entrance slab has no opening mechanism and can thus be opened or bypassed only by strong magic or several hours labor with a pick and maul.

The chamber is a simple, roughly smoothed stone vault without decoration. In its center is a 4'-square pedestal upon which rests an oversized torso made of carved obsidian. Five 2'-diameter, 5'-tall pedestals dot the walls of the chamber; on each of the pedestals is a different piece of Sulla the Myrmex, including his two legs, two arms, and head. Each of the pieces is also constructed of obsidian, but with bronze pins, hinges, and other devices to ensure working joints at the elbows, wrists, knees, ankles, and neck. The head is striking, with a permanent half-smile, exaggerated oval eyes, and heavily ringleted hair. The hands have a fork-like apparatus bound onto their outer surface (hence the Myrmex). Close inspection of any of the pieces reveals a strange smith's mark; it is a Dwarven rune for "Quality" connected to a name, "Zhorak." [GM Note: Zhorak was a dwarven smith who lived in Arden Vul in antiquity; his forge may be found in the Nether Reaches at 8-100]

Should any piece of the Myrmex be restored to the torso, the two pieces will fuse together with an ominous 'clunk'. Should all five pieces be restored, Sulla the Myrmex rises from the central pedestal and begins to wreak destruction upon all around him. Sulla does not immediately attack humans, but will do so relentlessly if he himself is attacked. Instead, he departs his vault and begins to systematically destroy a) all representational statuary (i.e., anything that represents a human or sentient form), and b) any architectural feature from the heqeti or rudishva periods. He starts in the Drowned Canyon and moves on to other levels. Sulla cannot detect secret doors, so hidden areas are safe, but he can and will break down doors in his quest. If not stopped, Sulla inflicts substantial damage on the dungeon itself.

Background: Sulla is the Myrmex (see new monsters), a unique construct created by Zhorak the Smith, a dwarven smith whose long career spanned much of the era of the Archontean hegemony. In addition to obvious uses against the heqeti, the archons used Sulla to demolish unwanted structures.

Inhabitants:

1. Sulla the Myrmex (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 60'; HD 16; HP 70; #AT 2; Dmg 3-24/3-24; MR special. Special attacks: slow once every 3 rds; clenched fists 1/turn. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to cold and fire; cured by electricity; immune to all spells except stone to flesh.

SL6-23: Ledge Overlooking Canyon

A ledge has been carved into the south side of this massive stone pillar; it is 50' above the floor of the cavern (SL6-11) and provides an excellent view of the Drowned Cavern. The north side of the ledge is worked stone, and features a fine bas-relief of an archaic Archontean infantryman spearing an amphibian-oid creature. The ledge is dusty and empty save for two 50' coils of silk rope.

Secret Door (north): This door is easy to find (1 in 4), and opens easily by pushing inward.

SL6-23A: Hidden Chamber

This chamber is completely hidden within the massive pillar that rises on the north side of the Drowned Canyon. It is accessible via the secret door at SL6-23 as well as by the long, vertical tube within the pillar that leads down to SL6-51.

The interior is badly damaged, with shreds of painted plaster hanging from the walls and ceiling. Two sarcophagi and a funerary shrine crowd the chamber. The sarcophagi are plain and undecorated, originally having held the bodies of senior Archontean military commanders. Their lids are shattered, and treasure appears scattered around the chamber. Hiding behind the northern sarcophagus are three wights that will spring to the attack once the chamber is entered.

A jagged, 5'-diameter hole in the pavement provides access to area SL6-51. Note that this hole is 75' above the floor of SL6-51.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 wights: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 4+3; HP 33, 29, 27; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: silver or magic needed to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

Treasure:

Scattered across the floor are 433 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) and 387 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items). Among the coins are a platinum model of an archaic legionary fortress (1,150 gp to the right buyer), a spear +2, +3 versus golems, a light crossbow of accuracy, and a piece of obsidian on which are carved in careful Mithric the following words: "The construct known as Sulla had to be dismantled, for in the absence of the dwarven smith, he has proven uncontrollable. The military sorcerers of the XIth Legion were required to dismantle it with spells of transmutation" [the plaque refers to Sulla the Myrmex, whose remains lie in SL6-22].

SL6-24: The Drowned Canyon

The dominant feature of this level, the Drowned Canyon is one of the iconic locations within Arden Vul. The canyon proper is the area east of the waterfall (SL6-1B) and west of the dam (SL6-25). It is 180' deep towards the western part of the canyon, although the floor slopes upward at its eastern end. In antiquity the dam was lower than it is now, and consequently the water level was substantially lower. Yet when Reiv-Tor began to dominate the Flooded Vaults (see SL7-23), he had his minions build up the dam with chitinous 'coral', thus raising the water level substantially. At the moment the water level is 30' below the level of the waterfall and 45' below the level of the cave floor (areas SL6-11 and SL6-30). A moderate current moves from west to east.

What makes the Drowned Canyon iconic is the fact that during its late, decadent period, the archons of Arden Vul preferred to construct tombs for themselves along the walls of the canyon. The openings to these tombs do, indeed, line the canyon walls, although due to the rise in water level, many of the tombs are now partly or wholly underwater.

The canyon is home to numerous schools of fish, as well as freshwater crustaceans and algae. But the dominant figure in the canyon is a highly aggressive colossal moray eel. Despite being regularly consumed by the eel, the fishermen from the Flooded Vaults (Sub-Level 7) venerate it as a creature of Rimmaq-Isfet; one sect of them has even erected a shrine to the eel (SL6-15). The lizardmen from Sub-Level 5 (SL5) fish here quite regularly, and regard the eel as a nightmare and terror.

The eel is alerted to the presence of explorers by noise and motion. After two rounds of combat in or near the water, the eel has a 75% chance per subsequent round of combat to be drawn to the sound and, therefore, to attack if possible. If the PCs spend a turn swimming or diving in the canyon, the eel has a 50% chance per subsequent round to investigate. Those boating on the surface are slightly more secure, as there is only a 25% chance per turn after the first two turns that the eel comes to investigate quiet rowing or paddling. Those falling over the waterfall (SL6-1B) have a 66% chance of attracting the eel.

A certain amount of treasure has accumulated on the floor of the canyon over the centuries. The head of the statue Irene Bellatrix (SL6-9) also rests on the canyon floor.

Inhabitants:

1. Colossal moray eel (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 90' swimming; HD 9; HP 68; #AT 1; Dmg 4-24.

Treasure:

A 12'-tall, bronze statue of a generic archon, pointing with a baculus (650 gp); a set of wax tablets wrapped in oilcloth, on which this note in Mithric is still legible: "The Twins honored Arden Vul by choosing it for their resting place. The least we can do is ensure that prying eyes do not discover their tomb. Redouble your efforts to conceal its true location" (GM: the note refers to areas SL6-86 to SL6-88); a slightly rusty suit of cursed imperial field plate of vulnerability (see Arden Vul items); a shield +1, +4 vs. missiles; a marble sarcophagus lid with a high-relief carving of an Archontean lady (250 gp); and a tarnished silver casket (55 gp) still holding a set of matched platinum and emerald jewelry (earrings, necklace, and ring) worth 9,500 gp.

SL6-25: Dam, and Spillway to Level 6 (6-143)

Originally the water from the drowned canyon flowed naturally across the dam into the spillway, which meant that the water level was much lower than it is today. The lower water level allowed access to the tomb openings along the canyon walls. But when Reiv-Tor (SL7-23) arrived in Sub-Level 7 and wished to flood it entirely, he ordered his fishermen to raise the height of the dam; this they did, using chitinous exoskeletal bits and bio-engineered adhesives. Rising 40' above the floor of the spillway, the new dam ensures that many of the tomb entrances are flooded or partially flooded. It also has created a secondary waterfall from the dammed canyon into the spillway.

The spillway is about 40' wide, 4' tall, and semicircular; its circular walls are natural stone, but the flat floor is smooth, worked granite. From the dam it proceeds east before turning northeast; eventually it reaches the Great Chasm at area 6-6A. The pitch of the spillway is gentle, only about 20-degrees. There is a breach in the spillway roof after the turn to the northeast (see 6-152).

Clever explorers might attempt to destroy the dam, thereby reducing the water level in the canyon and rendering the tomb openings easier to access. The dam is sturdy, however, and requires significant structural damage before collapsing. It requires a minimum of 60 HP of damage with picks, mauls and shovels to breach the dam (which is AC 2); there is a 1% cumulative chance for each additional HP of damage inflicted on the dam beyond the first 60 that it will collapse in a roar of water and chitinous material. Those on or near the dam when it breaches are likely to be swept down the spillway and into the chasm to their doom. High-level spells, including earthquake, disintegrate, and the like, will breach the dam in a matter of rounds. Summoning a water or earth elemental is also an expeditious method of breaching the dam. Patient and noisy attempts to destroy the dam bring all nearby fishermen and the colossal moray eel to the attack; in addition, an emergency force of 24 fishermen will arrive from the Flooded Vaults within 1-3 turns to investigate.

Eliminating the dam has serious consequences for several levels and sub-levels, as follows:

1. Level 9: in the short term, a much greater volume of water than is normal will course down the spillway and into the chasm; this will cause a tremendous increase in the volume and force of the waterfall, such that the following areas are affected: 9-1, 9-4, 9-7 to 9-10, 9-65, 9-73, 9-83, 9-87, 9-127, 9-135, 9-136, and 9-142.
2. Sub-Level 6: the new waterline of the Drowned Canyon (SL6-24) will be 85'-90' below the level of the cavern floor. This means that all the tomb entrances – that is, areas SL6-25, SL6-26, SL6-27, SL6-35, SL6-36, SL6-37, SL6-44, SL6-45, SL6-53, SL6-54, SL6-67, SL6-68, SL6-77, SL6-78, and SL6-79 – will now be above the waterline, and many of the tombs will empty of water. Due to descending stairs and slopes, however, some areas will retain their water levels, e.g., SL6-47. Such circumstances will make it easier to spot the tombs and plunder them; it will also make avoiding the moray eel much easier.
3. Sub-Level 7 (the Flooded Vaults): significant area of this level will empty of water. The activity and mobility of the fishmen and of Reiv-Tor (SL7-23) will be curtailed as a result.

SL6-26: Sunken Area and Tunnel Down to Level 7 (7-86)

This section of floor slopes downward to form a concave depression about 10' below the main level of the floor. Unlike the natural cavern floor, this area appears to be a slagged mixture of stone, metal struts and rods, and fragments of a strange grayish substance (plasteel). None of these remnants take a recognizable form, nor are they easily separated from the stone to which they have been fused.

A large purple pudding (see new monsters) inhabits the area, and the southeastern corner of the depression has a hole in the cavern wall that leads to a tunnel that descends precipitously to area 7-86.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 large purple pudding (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 60'; HD 10; HP 69; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12. Special attacks: corrosive to metal and leather. Special defenses: immune to fire; grows with electricity; conductive.

SL6-27: Rudishva Pagoda

A 10'-tall granite platform rises from the cavern floor; it is topped by a 15'-tall stone canopy that is supported by six basalt columns. Each column is carved in a sinuous style that depicts floral and animal patterns. The granite floor of the platform is also carved in elaborate leaves, stems, and bizarre creatures; the central 10'x10' section actually covers a hole in the structure. Against the rear of the platform, flush with the cavern wall, is a 15'-tall, carved ivory screen, in the same elaborate style. In the center of the screen is a multi-lobed object composed of several roughly oval pods; a ramp descends from one of the ramps. GM Note: this multi-lobed object is a representation of the Beacon (for the bridge of the Beacon, see SL14-10). The screen could bring up to 15,000 gp, but would be very difficult to move.

The section of floor that covers the hidden chamber could be pried up with an open doors check and some sort of lever. Beneath is a 10'x10'x10' chamber carved out of the granite. The chamber is empty, but would make an excellent hiding place.

SL6-28: Archontean Parvis and Teleportation

Ring

The cobblestones are here covered with thirteen white marble slabs some 3" thick. Many of them are cracked and buckled; each could be pried up easily (and the usual heqeti cobblestones are beneath them – see SL6-35).

To the southeast of this area is a set of 2"-tall paving stones arranged in a 6'-diameter ring. Inset into the floor next to the ring is a rectangle 48" long by 8" tall; the rectangle is divided into six interior compartments, each 8" square. Together these elements form a Thothian teleportation ring (see new magic items). To activate the ring, one must place six colored glass activation squares into the inset according to a sequence that matches the 'address' of the ring to which one wishes to travel. Once the squares are placed, a brief shimmer of energy is visible over the ring. At this point the user has 1 round to collect the squares and enter the ring, after which anyone in the ring is teleported without error to address indicated by that sequence of squares. If the glass activation squares are not collected and/or if the travelers do not possess a second set of them, they are likely to be stranded in the location to which they have just teleported. The address of this ring is as follows: RE-BK-YE-BL-GR-WH (see new magic items for explanation). None of the glass activation squares necessary to operate the circle are present.

SL6-29: Archimedean Screw

Here, at the edge of the Drowned Canyon, the Archontean built a massive Archimedean screw. The screw descends 75', and is made of copper. One operates it by turning a copper handle on the upper end; after about 100 rotations, water starts to emerge at the top. A clever PC could clamber down the screw casing and thus gain access to area SL6-81; such a descent is fairly easy (roll 2d8 under DEX), but the return ascent is more difficult (roll 3d8 under STR).

SL6-30: Natural Cavern, South Side

Away from the pavement (SL6-35) the floor of the cavern is rough; movement is reduced to ¾ of normal movement in this area. For every three turns spent roaming about the natural area there is a 25% chance to encounter something from the following table (this is in addition to normal random encounter checks):

D10	Additional Encounter
1-3	A sprung trap: a snare set by the lizardmen has caught a fishman (see new monsters)
4-6	An un-sprung trap, which activates if not detected. 1-2: concealed pit, 1-6 HP damage 3-4: snare, 1-2 HP damage and dangle upside down 5-6: polished skull, but with green slime inside it
7-8	A corpse: 1-3=fishman (see new monsters); 4-5=lizardman stripped of possessions; 6=a charred scrag
9	1 basic exploration automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 150'; HD 4; HP 29; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-4; MR 40%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire. It is seeking: 1-2= arcanaum (see new magic items); 3-5=a rare lichen; 6-7= a person (50% it's one of the PCs); 8=the resting place of the fabled construct, Sulla the Myrmex (see SL6-22)

10	A small sack filled with 1-2: 37 gp worth of small coins 3-4: 11 pieces of rock crystal (8 gp each) 5-6: the well-preserved head of a fishman 7-8: a kettle filled with turnips, potatoes, and leeks 9-10: dried mushrooms and lichen, as follows: 3 doses of red veil, 2 doses of blue haze, 2 doses of aqua vitae, and 1 dose of eye opener (see new flora)
----	---

SL6-31: Hidden Chamber within Rock

Formation, with Stairs Down

Secret Door: A wide (10'x10') secret door is set into the side of this rock formation 30' above the floor of the cavern. It is normal to detect, but only opens by picking a locking mechanism or succeeding at an open doors check. Attempts to pick the lock are made more difficult by the lack of a ledge on which to stand.

Within is a chamber carved out of the middle of the rock formation. At its rear is a spiral staircase leading down to SL6-89.

The walls contain 8'-tall mosaics depicting specific individuals, each of whom is identified by a caption in Mithric. On the east wall are the following: 1) Grumia, a heavy-set woman in a lemon-yellow toga; 2) Marius Crito, a man dressed in lemon-yellow legionary armor; and 3) Arthuinus, a man dressed in the stereotypical tunic of a sage, albeit one colored lemon yellow. On the west wall the mosaics are these: 1) Constans V, in lemon-yellow imperial field plate; 2) Eborius the Regent, a swarthy-colored man wearing strange belts and loose, white clothing, and 3) Clavius Tekton, a young-looking man dressed in a lemon-yellow tunic displaying a pair of dividers as he steps casually on a stone block. [GM: these are all Archontean emperors of the glory period of Arden Vul]

The chamber's floor features a 10'-diameter mosaic of a lemon-yellow hoplite helmet around which a black serpent is coiled. Anyone from the Archontean Empire recognizes this as one of the primary symbols of the empire. Stepping on the mosaic causes two effects: 1) the appearance of a magic mouth, that speaks these words in Mithric: "By command of the emperor Clavius Tekton you are forbidden further passage! Retire now!"; and 2) the summoning of an invisible stalker commanded to eliminate the interloper (that is, the first to step on the mosaic). These effects can only happen once each.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 invisible stalker: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 55; #AT 1; Dmg 4-16; MR 30%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-5. Special defenses: invisibility.

SL6-32: Pool of the Black Pillars

Here at the south side of the cavern is a broad, shallow pool of murky brown water. Projecting from the water are two 3'-diameter pillars formed of black hematite. On the north side of each pillar is a small, chiseled rectangular indentation. The pillars are also incised with silver glyphs; these glyphs take the form of octagonal shapes with radiating and delimiting lines of varying length and number. These symbols are in fact, the literary form of Glyphik, the language of the rudishva culture. Were these to be translated (an act that is difficult to achieve without help), they will read as follows (the same text on each pillar):

*Scudding clouds in the pink skies of Tethrek
Roiling magma along the great rift on Uirik IV
A lone treckal's cry from the forest of Harrup
The nitrogen clouds near the claw cluster
To these iconic sites beloved by all travelers
Is joined this location of savage, dripping beauty
Observe, wonder, and meditate on its sublimity*

Should two low-security rudishva identity plaques (see new technological items) (i.e., rust, copper, brown, or bronze) be placed simultaneously into the indentations on the pillars, a three dimensional 'illusion' will appear in the space between the pillars. This 'illusion' takes the form of one of the four sites mentioned in the verse listed above, plus a fifth that is instantly recognizable as the Drowned Canyon itself. These images last for 15 second each before scrolling to the next one. Visitors who are not starfarers are highly unlikely to recognize the sites, particularly the nebulae of the claw cluster.

SL6-33: Stairs Down into the Drowned Canyon

A narrow (4') set of very steep stairs descends 50' into the Drowned Canyon, although the final 20' are under the surface of the water. The steps are wet and slippery from the spray of the falls (SL6-1B). A long smear of blood and mangled viscera coats the middle section of the stairs (no body is present, however).

Just as at area SL6-10, some flotsam has accumulated here, where the stairs enter the water: three waterlogged planks, a wooden desk top, and some wooden shelves. Enterprising PCs could make a crude but serviceable raft from the debris.

SL6-34: South Colossus: Tardif the Sage

This colossal statue is 25' tall and faces west. It depicts in neo-realist style a toga-clad, sandaled human man. His head sports an old-fashioned philosopher's beard, and a garland of oak leaves surrounds his head. With his left hand, he points with a stylus towards the geyser. His right hand cups or strokes his beard. The pedestal reads as follows (in Mithric):

*Font of justice and counsel,
Lyrical poet in composition and governing,
Tardif shone with sophia*

GM Note: Tardif the Sage was archon of Arden Vul during the glory years of peace and prosperity after Marius's conquests. He was known as a scholar, poet, playwright, and wise judge.

SL6-35: Cobblestoned Pavement, South

Like its counterpart on the north side, a pavement made of irregularly sized cobblestones dry-fitted together covers the cavern floor here. The pavement rises 5' above the natural floor, and accesses the latter via two short flights of stairs. The cobblestones date to the heqeti period and average about 3'x2' in size. Should one of the approximately 1,600 cobblestones be pried from the floor, a 1'-square cavity in the rock will be revealed beneath it. There is a 1 in 10 chance that any given cavity is filled with an object selected from the following chart:

D20	Object	Notes
1-6	Skull, human
7-12	Skull, heqeti
13-14	Skull, varumani
15	Skull, varuda
16	Skull, rudishva
17	Skull, kaliyani
18-19	Random object, deposited by later visitors	Roll d8 1-4: piece of adventuring gear 5: helmet and dagger (10% chance it is a dagger +1 ) 6. treasure map (GM's choice) 7. scroll case, 15% chance it is filled with a level 1-5 MU spell 8. small cache of coins or gems worth 50-400 gp
20	Special Object 1-2: silver skull 3-4: gold skull 5-6: platinum skull	The type of skull is determined by rolling again and ignoring results over 17. Silver skulls are worth 300 gp and have a 33% chance to be curse d (GM's choice); gold skulls are worth 1,500 gp (50% to be curse d); platinum skulls are worth 3,500 gp (66% to be curse d). Skulls weigh 8 lb.

A maximum of 10 silver, 5 gold, and 1 platinum skulls can be found under the pavement.

SL6-36: Corridor to Sub-Level 5 (SL5-47)

The cobblestones end just within the mouth of this corridor, which wends south to SL5-47 in the lizardman caves. The corridor is littered with trash, including numerous broken arrows of a primitive nature.

There is a 25% chance that a war party composed of 10 lizardmen is lurking within the entrance to the corridor.

Inhabitants:

1. 10 lizardmen (25%): SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60; 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 13, 13, 12, 12, 11, 11, 10, 9, 9; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL6-37: Fiery Wall and Stairs Up to Level 5 (5-115)

A set of worn stone stairs leads up about 300' to area 5-115. They are covered in several inches of undisturbed dust.

A rudishva fiery force wall cowl the stairwell on all sides (including above); the flame is broken only by an 8'-tall, 4'-wide oval in which a holographic figure stands on one leg. The figure has two legs, but six arms, many holding a different object (drum, pot of fire, lotus, and dagger; the other two hands hold nothing). It is possible to catch a glimpse of the stairs through the aperture (indeed, through the figure), but the curious are well advised not to tarry! If any living being approaches within 5'; the figure starts to dance, beginning slowly but swiftly increasing its tempo. After 3 rounds, the whirling figure begins to call forth blobs of fire from the fiery force wall; these blobs hit unerringly for 1-6 damage each (with a chance to ignite combustibles).

The force wall can only be destroyed by casting disintegration on it. Should a being present an orange or a silver rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) after the figure has begun to dance, the figure will dematerialize, allowing the holder and his/her friends to step through the oval opening. After a turn, the dancer rematerializes.

SL6-38: Archway and Stairs (Submerged)

This 10'-tall arched entrance to Archontean-era tombs lies 60' below the level of cavern floor and 20' below the water level of the Drowned Canyon. The archway leads to a set of stairs that climb 20' and exit the water before reaching a sodden, moisture-filled wooden door. Three hand axes are buried in the door, and the skeleton of a dwarf in a badly rent chain hauberk lies in front of it. The door should be considered 'stuck'.

Treasure:

A damaged, dwarf-sized chain hauberk (AC 6); 3 hand axes; battle axe; a pouch with 50 gp worth of wet silver dust; and a silver flute (25 gp).

SL6-39: Grand Porch and Corridor to Sub-Level 7 (SL7-1) (Submerged)

This semi-circular porch extends into the Drowned Canyon and, in antiquity, afforded a fine prospect of the canyon proper. As it lies 80' below the floor of the cavern, and 35' below the water line, the porch is now a wonder only glimpsed by aquatic travelers. Three slim porphyry pillars line the opening to a 10'-tall, 20'-wide corridor that proceeds about 200' north to Sub-Level 7 (SL7-1).

Although sediment has accumulated on the ledge, a once-grand mosaic is visible amongst the grime. The mosaic shows two figures, one a warrior woman and the other a cowed sorcerer, standing on either side of a lemon-yellow hoplite helmet around which a serpent is coiled. GM Note: the images are of Arden and Vul, and the helmet is one of the imperial symbols.

There is a 50% chance that 6 fishmen (see new monsters) are lurking just behind the porphyry pillars, waiting for their moment to avoid the colossal moray eel (see SL6-24) and swim for the stairs at SL6-10.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold, poison.

SL6-40: Hallway (Submerged)

A 10'-tall archway leads to a long hallway. As both are 60' below the cavern floor and 20' below the water level of the Drowned Canyon, they are completely filled with water.

The hallway is dark and murky, and several inches of sediment have collected on the floor. Inspection of the sediment reveals a dozen human-sized, albeit webbed, footprints.

SL6-41: Archway and Stairs (Submerged)

This 10' arched entrance to Archontean-era tombs lies 60' below the level of cavern floor and 20' below the water level of the Drowned Canyon. The archway leads to a set of stairs that climb 20' and exit the water before reaching a sodden, moisture-filled wooden door. The door is considered 'stuck'.

SL6-42: Tomb of Zoferus Felix (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

Due to the stairs at SL6-38, this tomb lies above the current waterline of the canyon. That said, the chamber is damp and humid, and patches of spectacular (but benign) red, green, and purple mold have destroyed all of the former wall decorations. A section of false living mosaic (see new magic items) exists on the west wall. A 10'x5'x5' marble sarcophagus stands in the center of the chamber.

Trap (false living mosaic): The section on the west wall is 3' wide and 7' tall. This specimen of living mosaic is unusual for two reasons: it is trapped and it conceals a secret door leading towards SL6-48. The living mosaic seems to depict twenty-four tiny legionaries marching down the wall, from top to bottom, towards a rectangular object that might be a sarcophagus. If watched, the legionaries gather around the sarcophagus and attempt to open it with spears and crowbars. If any living being approaches within 5' of the mosaic, two of the tiny legionaries turn towards the viewer and hurl two tiny darts out of the mosaic and into the viewer's eyes. The viewer must save versus poison or go permanently blind in both eyes. The trap was originally programmed to work twelve times; over the years it has been triggered five times, and thus it will only operate seven more times. Once the trap has been triggered, it will become evident that this is not, in fact, a piece of true living mosaic, but rather a sorcerous trap designed to resemble living mosaic. The trap can be disabled by dispel magic or neutralize poison. It can also be avoided relatively easily by using shielding or translucent, hardened materials (like glass). Finally, the trap conceals the secret door leading towards SL6-48.

Sarcophagus: The sarcophagus is carved on all sides in a half-round style. One long side shows toga-clad Archontean gathering around a burial pyre for a great warrior [Marius Tricotor, 6-154]; the other long side shows legionaries spearing bipedal salamanders. One short side shows a toga-clad man holding a bundle of fasces in one arm, while pointing to a pair of large doors with his other hand; the other short side shows the same toga-clad man sitting in a seat of justice, pointing with a baculus at some disputants. The man on the short sides is Zoferus Felix, one of the archons of Arden Vul during its glory years.

Unfortunately, Zoferus Felix's tomb was looted in antiquity. The lid to the sarcophagus is gone (at the bottom of the drowned canyon), and all that is left inside it are some bones and bits of moldy linen.

Secret Door (east): This door is 4' tall and 3' wide. Although normal to find, it is obscured by a particularly vibrant patch of orange mold. It is locked, and the key is lost; picking the lock or forcing the door are the only ways to open it. It gives access to a 4' square corridor leading east towards SL6-43. If this door is approached from the east (i.e., from SL6-43), it is easy to locate (1 in 4); it opens by pressing a stud in the cramped corridor, which causes the door to spring inward.

Secret Door (west): The door is 3' wide and 7' tall and is concealed within the false (and trapped) living mosaic described above. Provided PCs can get close enough to the wall to search it, the door is normal to find and opens by pressing the mosaic sarcophagus.

Treasure:

The elaborate sarcophagus of Zoferus Felix, although extremely heavy (750 lb), might bring 250 gp to an Archontean official.

SL6-43: Tomb of Halfenius Scriptor (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

Although this tomb lies above the waterline, it is damp and humid. Smears of paint are all that remain of the formerly opulent wall decorations. A plain basalt sarcophagus, 10'x5'x5' in size, lies in the center of the chamber. Several piles of rotted wood suggest the remains of furniture. One of those piles (a former bookshelf) conceals a carefully wrapped oilskin package that contains two slim codices. The lid of the sarcophagus lies shattered on the floor. If examined, the Mithric inscription "Halfenius Scriptor, Archon of Arden Vul, Recorder of Great Deeds," is apparent. Inside the sarcophagus is the complete, if disaggregated, skeleton of Archon Halfenius Scriptor.

A hole in the pavement leads 10' down to the ceiling of SL6-44. Half of the hole is filled with water, as is the entirety of area SL6-44. Those peering into the hole see the glint of gold amid the silt of the floor beneath the hole.

Secret Door (west): This door is 4' tall and 3' wide. The frescoes that helped conceal it are gone, and it is thus easy (1 in 4) to locate. It is locked, and the key is lost; picking the lock or forcing the door are the only ways to open it. It gives access to a 4' square corridor leading west towards SL6-42. If this door is approached from the west (i.e., from SL6-42), it is easy to locate (1 in 4); it opens by pressing a stud in the cramped corridor, which causes the door to spring inward.

Treasure:

Two codices wrapped in oilskin. One contains three magic user spells, Basil's torch treatment, the Bracteros effect and Pol's endless sneezes (see new spells). The other contains the Lay of Marius Invictus and the Deeds of Marius (see Arden Vul books), both of which were written by Lucius Cornelius Scriptor (see 6-135).

SL6-44: Tomb of Irene Bellatrix (Submerged)

This tomb is fully underwater and, like area SL6-40, murky due to layers of silt. The door is stuck open at a 45-degree angle. The gleam of partly tarnished gold amid the silt on the floor is visible from the doorway or from the hole leading up to SL6-43.

The north wall features a three-quarters round carving of a crossed gladius and wand. The floor is littered with fragments of a stone sarcophagus, formerly that of one of the famous archons of Arden Vul (see SL6-9). The tomb is now occupied by a shoal of quippers who prefer it for the slightly cooler water; the shoal ventures into the canyon a couple of times a day.

A 5'-diameter hole in the ceiling leads up 10' to area SL6-43.

The wall carving has a secret compartment in the stone wand; it is opened by locating an indentation and inserting a ½"-diameter object into the hole. This action causes the base of the stone wand to break open, revealing an enchanted rod within.

Inhabitants:

1. 43 quippers: SZ S; AL N; AC 8; MV 90' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 4(x10), 3(x11), 2(x11), 1(x11); #AT 1; Dmg 1-2. Special: only 75% chance to attack initially; blood in the water causes frenzy.

Treasure:

A rod of lordly might is hidden within the stone carving. Thirteen ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) are scattered amid the silt that covers the floor.

SL6-45: Tomb of Cassandra Rubea (Submerged)

The door to this, the oldest of the tombs in the canyon, is stone, and in good condition. However, it is also magically warded by a wizard lock cast by a 12th-level magic user. Because of this fact, the tomb chamber within is currently dry. Opening the door causes the water to rush in, bringing the PCs with it (to the tune of 1-6 HP damage each). The chamber floods with dirty, murky water in one round.

The 15'-tall chamber is the resting place of Casandra Rubea. She was one of the first great archons of Arden Vul and a predecessor of the iconic Marius Tricotor (6-154). She was an expansionist, and it was she who claimed the Drowned Canyon for Archontos.

The walls are covered in archaic-seeming frescoes depicting Cassandra Rubea and her senior staff. To the east she is seen in military garb shouting at legionaries and slapping them with the flat of her gladius; to the west she is sitting in an old-school seat of justice (a camp chair), dressed in toga with olive wreath, but with reddened face and gritted teeth; to the southwest she is seen gesturing at a cave in which a geyser and river are prominent (i.e., the drowned canyon); to the southeast she is seen, red-faced, berating a set of impassive courtiers standing in front of a large horned skeleton bound in chains [a giant rudishva skeleton – see new monsters].

In the center of the chamber are two 8'-tall marble statues of Cassandra Rubea; her 10'x5'x5' sarcophagus rests on a triangular dais against the north wall. Four more 8'-tall statues – of archaically dressed Archontean legionaries – occupy the northwest, southwest, northeast, and southeast corners of the chamber.

Center-West Statue: This statue shows Cassandra as a solid woman dressed in legionary garb, with breastplate, greaves, and hoplite helmet. Her mouth is open and her eyes narrowed, and she gestures with a gladius towards her sarcophagus. The south face of the statue's base reads, in Mithric: "Cassandra Rubea, scourge of the strong, prop to the weak. With her firm hand, the imperial standard of Basileus Drusirrus was planted among the upper precincts of the abandoned catacombs." The north face carries a briefer inscription in the same tongue: "Vice may be a virtue." This inscription is important in solving the puzzle of Cassandra's tomb (see below).

Center-East Statue: This statue shows Cassandra Rubea dressed in leathers, equipped with a traveler's staff and pouch, consulting a map; the statue's face is again twisted in a grimace of irritation. The south face of the plinth carries this inscription in Mithric: "The archon led the way in discovering new sources of the mystical stone. She followed the ancient path to the Canyon, which she claimed for Archontos." The north face reads: "The reddened tolerate no injustice." This, too, provides a clue to the puzzle below.

Other Statues: The four statues of legionaries are Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters). They animate if the puzzle atop the sarcophagus is mishandled. The animated spearmen function normally in the submerged chamber.

Sarcophagus of Cassandra Rubea: The tomb proper is a beautiful piece of marble craftsmanship placed on a 3'-tall triangular dais. The sides of the sarcophagus depict Cassandra Rubea leading groups of legionaries against huge trolls [i.e., varumani], huge, horned skeletons [i.e., giant rudishva skeletons], and bipedal amphibians [i.e., heqeti]. The lid is enchanted such that it may only be opened if a puzzle is solved correctly, or if dispel magic is cast at the 12th level or above. Fifteen square indentations have been chiseled into the marble lid of the sarcophagus. The indentations are 4"x4" and 1" deep, and are arranged in three rows; the first 'row' has one square, while the next two have seven squares each. Carved ivory plaques rest in the two rows of seven indentations; each plaque depicts a human being in a different scene.

Puzzle: Cassandra Rubea's tomb may only be opened safely by selecting one of the fourteen ivory plaques and placing it into the single square above the two rows. The plaques represent the traditional Seven Virtues and Seven Vices of the Archontean Empire. The solution to the puzzle is to select the plaque representing 'anger' and place it in the single indentation (in the top row). Clues to this fact lie in the infamously irascible personality of Cassandra Rubea, a fact that may be glimpsed both on wall frescoes and on the short inscriptions on the north sides of the statues' plinths. Each time a wrong plaque is placed in the solitary indentation, one of the animated spearmen (see new monsters) lumbers to the attack. After the four animated spearmen are destroyed, wrong plaques cause 2-12 HP electrical damage to the person handling the plaques, and 1-6 HP electrical damage to everyone else in the tomb. When the correct plaque (anger, or a female pulling at her hair and gnashing her teeth) is placed in the indentation, a palpable click is heard; the tomb can now be opened, but only by making an open doors check.

Archontean Virtues and Vices: In traditional Archontean moral philosophy, there were seven cardinal virtues, each with a complementary cardinal vice. These virtues, vices, and the traditional depiction of each are summarized as follows:

Virtue/ Vice	Image of Virtue	Image of Vice
Prudence/ Rashness	A farmer plows his field while another lies lazily under a tree	A legionary rushing ahead of his unit
Justice/ Pride	A seated woman gesturing to two disputants kneeling before her	A rider falling from a horse
Patience/ Anger	A benignly smiling man walks through a crowd of clamoring petitioners	A female pulling at her hair and gnashing her teeth
Courage/ Treason	A lone legionary confronts a troll	Two men embracing, with one preparing to stab the other with a dagger
Probity/ Lust	A man and woman touch hands in the traditional marriage gesture	A naked female with toads attached to breasts and genitals
Vigor/ Sloth	A man digging with a shovel	A fat man leaning against a donkey
Largesse/ Avarice	A woman handing an apple to a beggar and a gladius to a man	A man sitting on a money chest

Inhabitants:

1. 4 Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 45, 40, 35, 33; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons.

Treasure:

Inside Cassandra's tomb: three yellow feldspar jars, one with Cassandra's ashes, one with her mummified heart, and one with her mummified brain. A hoplite helmet is inscribed on each jar with silver gilt. The jars could be presented to an upper level imperial official in return for favors and 750 gp. Also in the tomb and packed in wax are 1,000 mint ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), a packet of love letters between Cassandra Rubea and the basileus, Drusirrus the Legionary, which could bring 1,000 gp and instant notoriety and scandal throughout the empire; a 3'x5' silk rug depicting Larel and the Wolves (see Larel One-Eye in the World of Archontos appendix), worth 450 gp; a palm of repelling with 3 charges (a rudishva useful palm - see new magic items), and two rings, each a ring of friendly defense (see new magic items).

SL6-46: Tomb of Georgius Aurellus (Submerged)

The door to this completely submerged chamber is forced open at a 45-degree angle; the water here is dark with suspended silt. Inside, the chamber is bare save for a pair of stone sarcophagi, each 8'x4'x5'. Surprisingly, the sarcophagi are intact. Four giant groupers (see new monsters) lurk here in the murk.

The two sarcophagi contain the remains of the archon, Georgius Aurellus, and his favorite concubine, Jellida the Lithe. The archon's sarcophagus is blue granite, with these words carved on its lid in Mithric: "Georgius Aurellus, greatest archon of Arden Vul. architect of a comprehensible future, powerful lord, stern master." Beneath the inscription is a low-relief carving of a thickset man in legionary garb, pointing a gladius toward the west. The concubine's sarcophagus is also of blue granite, with an inscription in Mithric and an incised image of a naked woman. The inscription reads: "Faithful Jellida, called the Lithe, served well. Her reward was to accompany her master."

Should Georgius's sarcophagus be opened first, his spirit emerges (into the flooded chamber) and moans, "Do not touch my faithful Jellida! You shall be punished if you do." If Jellida's tomb is left undisturbed, the spirit does nothing and it will be possible to freely loot Georgius's tomb. If Jellida's tomb is subsequently opened, Georgius's spirit transforms into a vengeful spirit (see new monsters), and he attacks immediately.

Should Jellida's sarcophagus be opened first, her spirit emerges and whispers, "I am now freed. Thank you. But I warn you, do not free that pig. He is greedy and selfish and should be left to lie." Her spirit then departs and her belongings are fair game. If Georgius's sarcophagus is opened after Jellida's, Georgius emerges immediately as a vengeful spirit (see new monsters) and attacks.

Secret Door (west): This door is 4' tall by 3' wide and easy to spot due to the centuries of water damage (1 in 4). It can only be opened by force. Beyond it a narrow staircase rises out of the water.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 giant grouper fish (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 60' swimming; HD 5; HP 37, 33, 29, 23; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6; swallow prey.
2. Georgius Aurellus, vengeful spirit (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 1; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 38; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire; turned as vampire; reform in 1-6 hours so long as his bones remain disturbed.

Treasure:

1. Tomb of Georgius Aurellus: a set of platinum and begemmed regalia in the forms of a miniature spear, a circlet, a ring, and a small tablet (worth 2,500 gp); a collar of servitude (see new magic items) attached to a fine silver chain (25 gp); and a set of 12 1'-tall dancing houris (see new magic items).
2. Tomb of Jellida the Lithe: a set of remarkable jewelry made of jade, ivory, and gold, including three toe rings (400 gp each), an anklet (975 gp), four bracelets (850 gp each), three rings (525 gp each), and a torc (1,875 gp); a wax-sealed stone jar containing three cones of incense of attraction (see new magic items); and a second wax-sealed stone jar containing an ebony case filled with exotic spices, powders, and unguents (now dried, but capable of rehydration) (495 gp for the box and contents).

SL6-47: Tomb of Ligareus of Archontos (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

Trap (keyhole): The door to this long-hidden tomb is stone; a trapped golden seal some 2' in diameter covers the keyhole. The seal features a hoplite helmet that encases the letters A and V [for Arden Vul]. Unless the trap is detected and disarmed, the seal explodes for 3-18 HP damage to all within a 10' radius. Underneath the seal is a keyhole, but the key disappeared long ago; the lock will have to be picked.

The interior of this tomb is pristine and brightly lit from a continual light spell cast on the ceiling; it has not been disturbed in over 1,900 years. The walls are covered in plaster that has been painted sky-blue. Three low, semicircular daises line the walls, while a 10'x6'x5' granite block (the tomb) stands in the center of the room. A fine layer of maize-colored dust or sand is spread evenly across the floor (although not on the daises or tomb). If visitors enter the chamber, the yellow dust coalesces swiftly (2 rounds) into a large dust monster (see new monsters) that immediately attacks.

The Three Daises: Each dais holds a fragment of a special type of living mosaic (see new magic items). Where most of the other examples of living mosaic found in Arden Vul contain static images of a particular location, these three patches of living mosaic allow a viewer to enter the location indicated on the patch of pavement through a process of instant translocation. One merely touches the image and one is drawn instantly into it, thereby appearing in the desired location. From west to east, the living mosaics depict the following locations:

Dais	Image	Location and Notes
West	A pile of rubble overlooked by a pyramid.	The ruined governor's palace (AV-29) in the city of Arden Vul. Those touching this image are translocated into the rubble: roll 3d6 under DEX or take 2-12 HP damage in the process.
North	A vast hall forested with columns carved as writhing serpents. 66% chance to see robed human figures passing among the columns	The New Audience Hall in the imperial palace of Archontos (see World of Archontos appendix).
East	A tall hall with many doors, the upper levels of are spanned by a delicate bridge. Statues of ibises line the bridge. 50% chance to see small upright animals with weapons	The Great Hall of Thoth (3-123). The figures are beastmen. The translocated appear at the north end of the Hall.

The Tomb: The granite block is the burial place of Ligareus of Archontos. The block appears seamless. It boasts inscriptions in Mithric and 2"-diameter holes on all five visible sides. The tomb can only be opened if an imperial baculus (rod of authority) or any other 2"-diameter stick is placed into the correct hole. The correct hole lies on the north face of the tomb; if it is activated, the entire block slides to the west, revealing a shallow pit in which lies the mummified remains of Ligareus along with some of his valuables.

Face of the tomb	Inscription (in Mithric)	Effect produced by Related Hole
Top	Ligareus of Archontos, archon of Arden Vul, sorcerer of renown, humble servant of the basileus, rests here	A spirit image of Ligareus appears and urges visitors in Mithric to take pity on the son of hard-working people and let him lie in peace
North	An image of a marketplace, with several stalls showing merchants flogging their wares. Close inspection shows a man, woman, and young boy standing in front of a fish stall	The tomb opens
East	An image of a sorcerer pointing his wand at a two troll-like beings	Two bestial varumani appear and attack (see below for stats)
South	An image of an imperial functionary scrutinizing the work of masons who are preparing pavements. Close inspection shows the pavement to be mosaic	Magical compulsion strikes the wielder of the baculus such that he/she is obsessed with finding new examples of living mosaic . Remove curse cancels the obsession.
West	An elderly archon sits in a chair, while a horde of women and children of various ages crowd happily around him	The spirit of Ligareus appears and recites a simple, if heartfelt poem in Mithric: When the night grows near/ Victories are not to be counted/ Nor is wisdom to be tallied/ For a willing spouse/ and the fruit of one's loins/ are all that is needed/ to stoke the fires/ Of the coldest hearts.

GM Notes: Ligareus is remembered for three things: 1) being the originator of the Ligareon clan, 2) inventing living mosaic, and 3) serving as archon of Arden Vul in the century after Marius. The first is certainly the most commonly known fact about Ligareus, especially as the Ligareon clan has been one of the Five Families that have ruled the Empire for about 1,800 years (see World of Archontos appendix). What the proud current members of the Ligareon have forgotten (or, in a few cases, consciously obscured) is the humble origins of Ligareus as the son of fishmongers. Evidence of this fact would be extremely valuable to the rivals of the Ligareon, especially to the Xenarcheon; if accompanied by proof, such as the bones and relics of Ligareus, either clan might pay up to 5,000 gp to acquire this knowledge.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 dust monster (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 0; MV 90'; HD 8, HP 39; #AT 1; Dmg 3-18. Special attacks: suffocation; blinding. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from blunt magical weapons.
2. 2 bestial varumani (see new monsters): SZ L; AL NE; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 50, 49; #AT 3; Dmg 3-6/3-6/3-10. Special defenses: regenerate 3 HP/rd; infravision; immune to poison.

Treasure:

A staff of power (8 charges); Ligareus's baculus of authority, in the form of a silver rod with a dull-orange, still-potent lump of arcanum (see new magic items) at its head (475 gp); a well-preserved set of Ligareus's bones wrapped in silk (100 gp for the silk); a tarnished bronze tablet that lists three generations of Ligareus's ancestors, all of whom were fishmongers (10 sp for metal, up to 5,000 gp to political forces within the Empire); and a gold ceremonial hoplite helmet (500 gp).

SL6-48: Unfinished Side-Tomb (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

The door to this chamber is identical to that protecting SL6-47, complete with trapped golden seal and lock.

Alas, the interior of this tomb was never finished. The small chamber features rough-hewn, undecorated walls. A pair of skeletons (of mistakenly entombed workers) lies on the floor alongside a pick, a maul, and a shovel.

SL6-49: Tunnel Entrance (Submerged)

This entrance is a rough hole in the natural wall of the canyon; it was never finished, and does not lead to a tomb proper. The tunnel beyond it is 8' tall and 6' wide; it slopes downward subtly and perhaps imperceptibly. As the entrance is located 85' below the floor of the cavern (SL6-11) and 40' below the surface of the water in the canyon, the tunnel is completely filled with water.

SL6-50: Tunnel Entrance (Submerged)

Another unfinished tomb entrance, this rough tunnel is 6' tall and 5' wide, and rises quickly and steeply towards the west. By the time the tunnel turns north, it has risen 20' and become clear of water.

SL6-51: Cylindrical Cave (dry), with access to area SL6-23A

This cave is a cylinder, about 25' in diameter, but 75' tall. In its ceiling is a hole leading to SL6-23A.

A pair of tomb robbers lies dead on the floor of the cave; no visible wounds mar the corpses, although the arms and legs are in unnatural positions and some evidence of crushing (or falling?) damage is evident. The robbers wear ancient clothing and equipment, as their corpses are 1,500 years old.

Treasure:

A suit of chain mail; a helm of underwater action; a pouch with three aquamarines (525 gp each); 53 sp and 71 gp; a staff; four broken potion bottles and one surviving potion of extra healing; and an archon's baculus, in the form of a solid silver rod, 2" in diameter and 3' long, with a lump of arcanum (see new magic items) soldered to its head (worth 475 gp).

SL6-52: Cave (Dry)

In the ceiling of this cave is a 5'-diameter hole that leads up to SL6-64. Unfortunately the floor of this cave is quite unstable due to water erosion below. All those entering the chamber must make a successful roll of 4d6 under DEX or drop 10'-30' into a sub-cave, taking 1-6 HP damage per 10' fallen. Those falling or dropping from SL6-64 take the usual falling damage but must also roll 6d6 under DEX to avoid collapsing the floor and taking another set of falling damage.

SL6-53: Large Cave (Submerged)

The passage from SL6-49 slopes downward steeply before ending in this large, 50'-tall, flooded cave. It is the home of a pack of lacedons. Although the cave itself is nondescript, numerous bones of explorers line its floor. It will take many turns to search the mulch, bones, and debris for the treasure scattered about the cave floor. The lacedons generally lurk in the upper portion of the cave, ready to swoop down on any who enter from north or south.

Inhabitants:

1. 15 lacedons: SZ M; AL CE; AC 6; MV 90', 90' swimming; HD 2; HP 15(x3), 14, 13(x3), 12(x3), 11, 10(x3), 9; #AT 3; Dmg 1-3/1-3/1-6. Special attacks: paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm.

Treasure:

3 suits of rusty chain mail; a dozen rusted and pitted weapons (swords, maces, daggers); 431 ancient silver pennies and 579 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) scattered about; 137 sp and 173 gp similarly scattered about; a ring of water breathing (see new magic items); a rod of turning (see new magic items) wrapped in oilskin and silk; and a pair of 2'-tall statuettes of rudishva, carved from obsidian but adorned with chips of precious and semi-precious stones (450 gp each).

SL6-54: Large Cave (dry)

Although the floor of this cave lies below the waterline, a rise in the tunnel running between SL6-50 and SL6-54 ensures that its floor remains dry. Numerous stalagmites and stalactites dot the chamber, making movement slow. Two ravenous ropers lurk among the rock formations.

Inhabitants:

I. 2 ropers: SZ L; AL CE; AC 0; MV 30'; HD 11; HP 77, 68; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20; MR 80%. Special attacks: six poisonous strands (20'-50' range; reduce STR by 50% in 1-3 rds). Special defenses: immune to lightning; take half damage from cold.

Treasure:

In the gut of one of the ropers are 9 gemstones: 2 pieces of amber (100 gp each), 2 violet garnets (500 gp each), 2 moss agates (13 gp each), 2 tourmalines (100 gp), and a white opal (1000 gp).

SL6-55: Archontean Vault (Submerged)

This important Archontean vault for the storage of valuable and dangerous objects has been lost to common knowledge for centuries. It is, of course, flooded with murky water.

The chamber is 18' tall and contains no right angles; all corners are rounded in imitation of the rudishva style. The vault is built around a massive lump of arcanum (see new magic items), which forms a ragged centerpiece that is 8' tall, 7' wide, and 5' long. This huge, central nugget of arcanum should be interpreted as the equivalent of a natural pocket of arcanum (see new magic items for effects on spell-casters).

Six pedestals, 4' tall and 3' in diameter, stand against the east and west walls; two large stone chests stand between the pedestals on each wall (such that one encounters a pedestal, a chest, a pedestal, a chest, and finally a pedestal). The chests are stone; three are locked but one has been opened. Above the objects that line the west wall is inscribed into the stone the following inscription in Mithric: "Let us learn from our predecessors, who discovered Arcanum and were mighty sorcerers. We must venerate, not exterminate, the rudishva!"

An imperial stone guardian (see new monsters) stands by the wall to the west of the northern entrance; the remains of a shattered second guardian are scattered across the floor. The stone guardian animates as soon as anything in the chamber is touched (originally its defensive programming could be disarmed by a spoken command word, but that command word is lost in the mists of time).

Pedestals (clockwise, from SW)

The top of each pedestal is a 5'-diameter disk of polished granite. A bronze display tripod is set into each disk, while a Mithric inscription on the disk describes what is (or was) held in the tripod

Pedestal #1 (west side): One bracelet from a pair of rudishva communication bracelets (see new technological devices). The inscription reads "Rudishva Artifact". The other bracelet can be found at 6-117.

Pedestal #2 (west side): The tripod holds nothing. The inscription on the granite disk reads 'the Tablet of the Beacon,' but graffiti added to the disk reads "...when it is recovered from the command chamber on the chasm floor." [GM Note: the Tablet of the Beacon (see new technological items) is now located in 9-107]

Pedestal #3 (west side): A large skull, with pronounced incisors and two small horns. The inscription reads: "Rudishva". The skull is filled with molten silver, giving it weight (150 gp).

Pedestal #4 (east side): An empty rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items). The inscription reads 'Source of Rudishva Power.'

Pedestal #5 (east side): A severely damaged rudishva laser pistol (see new technological items) that is missing its firing tip. If used, the pistol will explode, causing 4-24 HP damage to all within 15'. Roll 4d6 under INT to recognize the damage to the pistol. The inscription reads: "Do not touch! Dangerous Weaponry."

Pedestal #6 (east side): A malfunctioning GnuCoder 3000 data recorder. One button has been painted bright yellow; if pressed, the machine displays the Do Your Part! data crystal (see Arden Vul books) as a 3'x5', two-dimensional holograph. Otherwise, the GnuCoder is inoperative. The inscription reads "Rudishva sorcery."

Stone Chests

Chest #1 (between Pedestals #1 and #2): This chest is open and empty; its lid lies shattered on the floor.

Chest #2 (between pedestals #2 and #3): 12 fist-sized lumps of arcanum (see new magic items).

Chest #3 (between pedestals #4 and #5): 6 rudishva lesser power supplies, 2 rudishva breathers, a rudishva laser pistol, and a rudishva sonic fence (see new technological items for all).

Chest #4 (between pedestals #5 and #6): 12 large platinum ingots weighing 20 lb each and worth 5,000 gp each.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 imperial stone guardian (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 8+3; HP 60; #AT 2; Dmg 3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

Treasure:

See above.

SL6-55A: Stairs Up to Level 5 (5-42)

This passage climbs out of the water via two brief stairs. A longer set of stairs climbs about 300' before ending at the bronze doors of area 5-42. The bronze doors are impossible to open from this side, except by using a knock spell cast at the 8th-level or better.

SL6-56: Tunnel leading to 6-166

Although it starts out fully submerged, this tunnel rises swiftly after about 50' of length and becomes dry. Beyond this point the tunnel slopes down again, but is still dry. It leads ultimately to area 6-166.

SL6-57: Tunnel Entrance (Submerged)

This 10'-tall rough-carved tunnel is located at a point 65' below the floor of the cavern, and descends in a gentle slope towards SL6-59. The colossal eel (see SL6-24) often lurks in this tunnel, hoping for prey to pass by. If it has not been encountered in the open water of the Drowned Canyon, it will be found here.

Inhabitant:

1. Colossal moray eel (see new monsters): stats at SL6-24

SL6-58: Tomb Entrance (Partly-Submerged)

This 10'x10' opening in the canyon wall is located 50' below the cavern floor. Because the water level in the canyon is at a point 45' below the cavern floor, this opening is half-submerged and half open to the air. The water level is about 5' above the corridor's floor.

SL6-59: Empty Tomb of Hesezion the Red-Handed (Submerged)

This tomb was prepared for the notorious Hesezion the Red-Handed, archon during the last centuries of the Archontean domination in Arden Vul. Hesezion had the tomb prepared as an adjunct to the famed Tombs of the Archons (SL6-63), but was arrested for his crimes and taken to Archontos for punishment. His tomb was thus never used. The empty chamber was originally only accessible from SL6-61, but ancient tomb robbers delved the tunnel at SL6-57 and broke into it. The walls show no signs of decoration, and there is nothing on the floor save the tools of the tomb-robbers, namely some ancient pick-axes, hammers, and chisels. The bones of a few of the eel's victims have ended up here, along with a bit of treasure.

Treasure:

A suit of blood-red leather armor +2; a scimitar +2 named Red-band (INT 13; empathy, True Neutral, detect sloping passages in a 10' radius, detect elevator/shifting walls/rooms in a 10' radius; ego 4), a pair of copper armbands chased with silver (145 gp each); a leather purse with 57 gp; a silk pouch with gold choker (1,400 gp); a pair of ordinary long swords; a potion of healing, and a pair of bracers of archery (greater).

SL6-60: Hall of the Archons (Partly-Submerged)

Like the entrance corridor (SL6-58), this 15'-tall chamber is only partly submerged; the water level is 5' above the floor. Statues (9' tall) of four ancient archons stand in the corners of the room. Double doors stand between each pair of statues. A chiseled inscription in Mithric occupies the northeast wall; it used to have gold filling, but previous robbers have scraped almost all of it out (5 gp worth remains). In 2'-high letters, the inscription reads: "From on high the Basileus looks with approval on the deeds of his archons. They have earned their rest." [GM Note: the words 'on high' are a clue to the location of the trapdoor in the ceiling]

A hint of the formerly vibrant painted walls exists in the smears of wet color that run down the walls and statues. A secret trapdoor in the ceiling leads to SL6-63.

Statues: The statues depict generalized images of archons. One shows a male archon in toga, gesturing with a baculus. A second shows a female archon in legionary armor. A third shows a seated archon pointing with a baculus (e.g., justice). The fourth shows an archon in court dress, with circlet and rod of authority. All four statues are Archontean animated constructs of the animated spearman variety (see new monsters). If the false doors are opened, the four constructs animate and attack. Due to the 5' deep water, PCs will be at -1 to hit and damage, and will move at half the normal rate.

Door Traps: The doors are false. If opened, the statues animate.

Secret Trap-Door (ceiling): The trapdoor is about 5' square and is normal to detect. It opens by pushing a stone square up and into the narrow corridor above (open doors check). The tunnel to SL6-63 is 5' in diameter and rough-carved.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters), in the form of archons: SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 45, 38, 35, 33; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons.

SL6-61: Antechamber (Dry)

This 10'-tall chamber was originally the antechamber to the now-looted tomb at SL6-59. Given the stairs that lead south, it is currently dry, and still preserves some of its original decoration. Six 8'-tall figures in high relief line the walls of the chamber: each represents the same figure, an archon in toga, cradling a baculus of authority with arms crossed. Each figure's mouth is wide open. Inlaid in the floor is a 15'-diameter circular mosaic: it shows a blue hoplite helmet on a lemon yellow field.

Mosaic Trap: Should any bit of the mosaic be touched, a spectre emerges from the mouths of three of the high-relief wall figures. Two are half-strength victims of the other, full-strength spectre. Should any PCs die at the hands of the spectres, they remain bound to the chamber and to one of the high-relief archons.

Secret Door (west): The door is easy (1 in 4) to find, and opens by pulling a slab inward (open doors check).

Inhabitants:

1. 1 spectre: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150', 300' flying (Class B); HD 7+3; HP 52; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis
2. 2 half-strength spectres: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150', 300' flying (Class B); HD 3+3; HP 26, 24; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

SL6-62: Treasure Chamber (Dry)

This 8'-tall chamber is rough-carved and plain. Four 4'-square by 4'-tall, open stone bins stand in the middle of the room. An iron bar is set into the north wall; from it depends an ivory horn of domination (see new magic items). Three of the bins contain treasure. The fourth is empty. Bin #1 holds 5,439 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), bin #2 has 3,467 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), and bin #3 has 1,111 white pearls (100 gp each) and one giant pearl worth 5,000 gp.

Secret Door (east): The door is normal to find, and opens by pushing a stone slab towards the east (open doors check).

Treasure:

See text.

SL6-63: Tombs of the Archons (Dry)

This 15'-tall, secret chamber is home to the sarcophagi of six ancient archons of Arden Vul. It hasn't been visited since Hesektion the Red-Handed (see SL6-59) had his tomb dug in 1556 AEP. Six elaborate marble sarcophagi stand in two rows, while a 10'-tall statue of the Archontean basileus (emperor) presides from the north wall. A large inscription in Mithric occupies the north wall.

Sarcophagi

The top of each sarcophagus is carved with an image of its inhabitant, and the side of each carries an inscription in Mithric. From southwest to southeast, the sarcophagi are these:

Sarcophagus #1: Kallidan Ill-Counseled

Image: A male archon in toga, wearing a circlet, and cradling a baculus in both hands. He wears a silver ring (on his left hand).

Inscription: Kallidan the archon, who always listened to the last word; a fair man who saw right in all and hence brought justice to none.

Contents: Kallidan's bones, wrapped in a lemon-yellow silk shroud decorated with purple dragons (175 gp).

Sarcophagus #2: Veltarius the Collegian

Image: A male archon dressed in the sleeveless robes of a scholar.

He carries a wand and wears bracers. A silver ring sits on his right hand.

Inscription: Veltarius the Collegian, font of wisdom, delver after arcanum; he brought the College to Arden Vul.

Contents: Veltarius's bones and a wand of illusion (20 charges).

Sarcophagus #3: Hjalti of Westholm

Image: A large man with long, braided hair, wearing leather armor (i.e., a Wiskin). He cradles a two-handed sword, but wears no ring Inscription: Hjalti of Westholm, beloved of Ketillion, died with the rest of the usurpers. [Note: Ketillion is the emperor Ketillion Clausus, a Wiskin who rose to the Yellow]

Contents: Hjalti's bones, a poisoned dagger, and a two-handed sword +3.

Sarcophagus #4: Jovianus

Image: A man with cropped hair and Archontean nose, wearing legionary armor. He carries an unsheathed gladius against his chest. His left hand wears a gold ring.

Inscription: Jovianus, restorer of order, scourge of the Wiskinga.

Contents: Jovianus's bones, scale mail +1.

Sarcophagus #5: Quirinus the Factor

Image: An aged man dressed in the toga of office, cradling a baculus. He wears a gold ring on the right hand.

Inscription: Quirinus, builder in more ways than one; architect, negotiator, harmonizer; wise father.

Contents: Quirinus's bones.

Sarcophagus #6: Borsella Iron-Fist

Image: A female with fierce eyes and a scowl, dressed in legionary armor. Her hands are clenched in fists. An iron ring is on the right ring-finger.

Inscription: Borsella, she of the iron fists, who tolerated no disobedience.

Contents: Empty.

Statue of the Basileus, and Inscription: The painted marble statue is of a basileus, draped in the formal, high-collared robe of the emperor, wearing the traditional fluted cylindrical headdress of office. The emperor holds forth his right hand, inviting beseechers to kiss it. With the left hand he points into the center of the room. The statue is painted in lifelike, bright colors. On the pediment is carved the phrase "Clavius made me" [GM Note: this refers to Clavius Yellow-Born, emperor from 1191-1204 AEP, under whose rule the majority of this chamber was planned and executed]. Those PCs who specifically inspect the emperor's extended hand may notice some wear marks on the ring finger (see below).

On the north wall is found the following inscription, in 2'-tall, gold-filled, Mithric letters:

*From the right hand of the basileus flows
The golden authority that every archon shows.
It adheres by right to the lord's hand,
And must be returned at the emperor's demand.
Fear is not theirs, who his wishes fulfill,
But woe befalls they who his command fail.*

The inscription provides a clue to the puzzle that obscures access to the trap door leading to SL6-62. Only if a gold ring is taken from the right hand of one of the archons and placed on the basileus's extended hand will the statue of the basileus grind to the left, revealing the hole down to SL6-62. Clearly it is the ring of Quirinus the Factor (gold ring, on the right hand) that is needed. Each time that the wrong ring is placed on the basileus's hand, a sheet of fire sweeps forth from his hand, inflicting 6-36 HP damage on all in the chamber (save for half damage).

Secret Trapdoor (floor): The door is normal to find, but the statue which covers the trapdoor can only be moved if the puzzle described above is solved. Once that occurs, the statue grinds aside and reveals a 5'-diameter hole that drops into the tunnel to SL6-62.

Treasure:

The silk shroud (175 gp); a wand of illusion (20 charges), a poisoned dagger; a two-handed sword +3; and scale mail +1. The silver rings on sarcophagi #1 and #2 are worth 25 gp each. The gold rings on sarcophagi #4 and #5 are worth 75 gp each.

SL6-64: Side Cave with Hole down to SL6-52 (Dry)

This dry tunnel is only 4' in diameter and leads to a dead-end with a hole in the floor. The hole leads down to area SL6-52.

SL6-65: Corridor Entrance (Submerged)

A 10'-tall arched corridor leads inward towards the catacombs of the Archontean curial class. The corridor is 30' below the water level and formed of worked, but undecorated, granite. A flight of steps leads upward immediately inside the entrance.

SL6-66: Corridor Entrance (Submerged)

An 8'-tall square corridor leads southwest from this point; the corridor is 30' below the water line. A trapped iron grillwork blocks the corridor 10' from the entrance. The grillwork can be opened with a successfully lift gates roll. The skeletal corpse of an ancient tomb robber lies on the floor before the grillwork.

Trap (electricity): The grillwork has a warding chain of glyphs (electricity) spell cast upon it (see new spells). Originally there were seven glyphs inscribed on the grillwork, but over the centuries the first four have been activated, leaving only the last three (per the spell description these inflict 5d6, 6d6 and 7d6 damage respectively). Since the glyph is the one for electricity, and since the grillwork is submerged, it will affect all those in a 50' radius from the grillwork and not just the one who touches the glyph.

Treasure:

The tomb robber's tattered clothing is archaic. It bears a dagger, a sodden and rotted staff, and a pouch in which are 45 gp, 8 pp, and small silver statuette (2" tall) of an archon with the name "Vafer the Telator, archon" inscribed on the base (145 gp).

GM Note: Players may inquire about the meaning of 'telator'. The word in Mithric was unusual, an archaic, obscure term even when Mithric was the common language; it meant 'web-spinner', with the connotation of 'plotter'. Certain PCs might have a chance of knowing this obscure meaning. Those PCs familiar with Mithric must roll 6d4 under INT to recognize this ancient term.

SL6-67: Antechamber with Tombs (Submerged)

This undecorated antechamber to the complex built by Vafer Telator is filled with murky water. Three carved stone sarcophagi (8'x4'x4') occupy its center. The sarcophagi can be opened regularly, but also constitute a puzzle. The south wall carries an inscription in Mithric: "Search not for Lord Vafer. The spinner-of-webs has departed towards the spillway." GM Note: this inscription is designed to throw off tomb-robbers searching for Lord Vafer's tomb (SL6-69).

Sarcophagi

The three are identically sized (8'x4'x4'), with lids containing gisants on them. The lids may be removed with an open doors check, revealing some mediocre contents. Clever PCs may recognize that the gisants and inscriptions are part of a puzzle. All three sarcophagi detect as magic.

Sarcophagus 1

Gisant: A middle-aged man, dressed in the robes of a bureaucrat and holding a stylus and writing tablet.

Initial Orientation: The head of the man is towards the southwest.
Inscription (in Mithric) above Head: "logoTHete and chartouLarios of diSTInction".

Contents: A bundle of bones inside badly-decomposed linen wraps, a platinum stylus (75 gp), numerous ruined sheets of parchment, and one soggy but still usable scroll of protection from elementals.

Sarcophagus 2

Gisant: An aged man, dressed in a toga and cradling both the fasces of authority and the archon's baculus.

Initial Orientation: The head of the man is towards the southwest.
Inscription (in Mithric) above Head: "archON and friENd of the imperaTOR".

Contents: A complete skeleton, with a violet garnet (500 gp) inside the skull; a set of silver fasces wrapped in gold thread (100 gp, but up to 2,500 gp to an imperial collector).

Sarcophagus 3

Gisant: A young boy, dressed in a tunic and holding a toy sword.

Initial Orientation: The head of the boy is towards the northeast.

Inscription (in Mithric) above Head: “suiTEd for DOMination at an eARly age”.

Contents: the skeleton of a 10-year old boy, plus a worm-ridden wooden sword.

Puzzle: The puzzle involves arranging the lids in the correct order and then touching the letters that spell TELATOR (Vafer's nickname). Once this is accomplished, the secret door to SL6-68 pops open. Solving the puzzle depends on several factors. First, PCs must first realize that the lids are interchangeable, and can be shifted from sarcophagus to sarcophagus. Second, they must also realize that orientation matters, that is, that the heads of the gisants must be placed towards the northeast (and not towards the southwest). A clue to this fact is found on the inscription on the south wall (the spillway lies towards the northeast). Third, they must realize that the correct order of lids is boy-man-old man. Finally, they must recognize that the strange capitalization scheme found in the inscriptions is significant. Each inscription has three sets of capitalized letters. Once the lids are arranged in proper chronological order, it is possible to spell out TELATOR by looking at the first, second, and third set of capitalized letters on each gisant (respectively). That is, the first set of capitalized letters on the 'boy' gisant is TE; the second set of capitalized letters on the gisant with the middle-aged man is LA; and the third set of capitalized letters on the gisant with the old man is TOR. A clue to the significance of 'telator' is found on the corpse in SL6-66.

Secret Door (northeast): The door is normal to locate. Only the key found in the hidden compartment of the sarcophagus at SL6-68 can open it. Attempts to pick the lock have only a flat 5% chance to succeed.

Secret Door (Southwest): This door is easy to locate (1 in 4), as the water from the canyon has revealed its outline. Only by solving the puzzle of the three sarcophagi can it be opened.

SL6-68: False Tomb of Vafer Telator (Submerged)

This chamber is home to the false tomb of the Archon Vafer Telator, and includes a nasty trap/curse. The walls were originally cerulean blue, with large gold-colored hoplite helmets scattered across the blue field. The blue paint has faded and dissolved over time, leaving a few patches of blue and the approximately 20 burnished gold-gilt images of helmets (15 gp each if scraped off). A faded inscription in Mithric can barely be made out on the south wall; it reads, “Lord Vafer was most unwise. All he touched turned to gold, and he found he could not eat gold. Ponder this and take heed lest you suffer his fate! Only a kind patriarch can reverse his fate.”

A pair of stone statues of kneeling, loincloth-clad bearers crouches on both the east and the west wall; these statues face the sarcophagus and are shaped such that the hands of each of the four seem to be holding a stick, or the pole of a sedan chair. While no poles are present, a standard 1”- or 2”-diameter pole could fit easily into their hands. Close examination of the debris in the chamber might reveal some splintered and rotted fragments of wooden poles. As described below, the statues are enchanted and can be used to help raise the lid of the sarcophagus.

Sarcophagus: The marble sarcophagus is massive, some 20' long, 6' wide, and 5' tall. An image of a recumbent Vafer Telator is carved out of the lid; the archon is dressed in his toga and sandals, and grips his fasces and baculus of authority. He appears as a thin, elderly man with a pinched face, narrowed eyes, and clenched teeth. Inspection of the sides of the sarcophagus reveal carved imperial symbols, including hoplite helmets, large elaborate keys, and dragons. Closer inspection reveals two round holes, 2” in diameter, on each side. These holes line up exactly with the (missing) poles held by the bearer statues along the walls. Should four 5’-long, 1-” or 2”-diameter poles be inserted into the bearers' hands, they could be slotted easily into the holes on the sarcophagus sides. Once four poles have been fitted in this way, the stone statues stand up via magic and lift the lid of the sarcophagus with them. This is the only way to access the interior of the sarcophagus.

Within is a smaller space, about 8'x4'x4' in size. The (false) corpse of Vafer Telator lies within, wrapped in linen bandages with a single boney finger protruding from midway down the corpse. What is disconcerting, however, is that the corpse – body, linen wraps, finger – is solid gold and cursed (see below). Only by extreme care – gloves, or careful use of ropes – can Vafer's body be removed without incurring the curse.

Curse: The false Vafer's body is afflicted with the Midas Curse. Should any living flesh touch the (false) corpse, that flesh and all objects touching it are instantly turned into gold. Touching a non-living object to the body has no effect; only living flesh triggers transforming effect. Those turned to gold by Vafer remain true gold for only 1-8 days; after the 1-8 days have passed, the 'gold' reverts to a gold-colored stone. During the period in which Vafer's victims are made of true gold, the curse is also 'contagious,' such that victims can also transform other living flesh into gold (again, for 1-8 days). The curse can only be removed by a 12th-level (or better), good-aligned cleric who casts remove curse on the original corpse (Vafer's false corpse). If this is done, Vafer's body remains solid gold but loses the curse (and can thus be used as wealth), and all victims still within the 1-8-day window revert to normal flesh. If the remove curse is cast after the expiration of the 1-8-day window, victims remain stone (but can be restored via a stone to flesh spell).

Hidden Compartment (sarcophagus): Beneath the cursed golden corpse of Vafer Telator is a secret compartment, 2” square. It is difficult to detect passively (1 in 8), but normal to detect if the interior of the sarcophagus is searched carefully (once the golden corpse has been removed). Within the compartment is a golden skeleton-type key whose tooth is shaped like a tiny ankh. This key operates the secret door (northeast) in SL6-67 that leads to Vafer's true tomb (SL6-69).

Treasure:

Should remove curse be cast at a high enough level on the solid gold corpse, the gold loses its curse and can be chopped up, or sold as is. It is extremely heavy. The golden body weighs 400 lb and is worth 25,000 gp intact; the broken into pieces it is worth 20,000 gp.

SL6-69: True Tomb of Vafer Telator (Submerged)

The true tomb of the archon, Vafer Telator, lies hidden in this chamber. The entire chamber - walls, floor, and ceiling - is covered in tarnished gold leaf, (total of 435 gp). Two stone chests stand against the north wall, while Vafer Telator -now a fearsome (if soggy) mummy- himself stands upright in the center of the chamber amid the murky water.

Secret Door (southwest): This door is easy to detect if approaching from SL6-69. It is locked and almost impossible to open (5% flat chance to pick the lock) without the key, which is found in SL6-68.

Secret Door (east, into SL6-70): This door is easy (1 in 4) to detect if approaching it from SL6-69. It can be pulled open from that side with an open doors check.

Inhabitants:

1. Vafer Telator, a mummy: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 6+3; HP 48; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12. Special attacks: fear; rotting disease. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from magic weapons; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis; turned as a vampire due to the special pin he wears. Since Vafer is submerged, he risks no danger from fire.

Treasure:

Chest #1: 10,000 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), plus a solid gold archon's baculus (250 gp, but 2,500 gp to an imperial collector)

Chest #2: a shield +2, a hammer +2, gauntlets of ogre power, and a rust-colored bag of tricks

Corpse of Vafer Telator: the mummy wears a lesser necklace of prayer beads (same as the usual, except that special beads can only be used once) and a gold pin shaped like a hoplite helmet. The pin - a symbol of imperial authority - causes Vafer to be turned as a vampire. Destroying the pin grants 1,000 experience points to a good character.

SL6-70: Burial Niches (Submerged)

This 10'-tall corridor is lined with niches in which the lesser officials of the Archontean civil administration were buried during the period when the Canyon was used as a burial site. Most of these officials were scribes, chartoularii, lesser logothetes, protonotarii, and so forth. Because the entrance to this area was open to direct access for a long time, almost all of these niches were broken open and plundered in antiquity. As a result, the corridor currently is littered with piles of broken stone burial plugs, minor bits of iron and steel, and masses of bones. Long strips of linen shrouds hang lazily in the murky water.

Careful and time-consuming searching through the rubble and the numerous empty niches reveals a few valuables left behind by the plunderers. One item may be found per turn of searching (up to 8 items). Determine items using this table:

D30	Item(s)	Notes
1	9 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) tied into a roll with linen
2	An iron holy symbol of Thoth	25 sp

3	1-2 octagonal platinum coins (see Arden Vul items)
4	13 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) strung on a leather cord
5	A silver holy symbol of Set	50 gp
6	A silver holy symbol of Horus	50 gp
7	A battered and empty rudishva lesser power supply	See new technological items
8	A silver Sortian eye	See new magic items
9	A gold Sortian eye	See new magic items
10	An ancient gladius with a fine, red-dragon-skin handle	It is a frost brand (short sword)
11	An ivory false eye	10 gp
12	A 2' tusk from an unknown beast	75 gp
13	A monstrous, 4'-long femur carved as a flute	100-400 gp
14	A piece of brass with 2 Rudishva glyphs and Archontean equivalents etched on it. The glyphs are translated as 'sight' and 'protection'.
15	A signet ring	45 gp, but 20% chance it is from an important historical person and is thus worth 275 gp
16	A brass ring with a gaudy blue crystal on it	A hidden compartment lies under the stone; it is empty (35 gp)
17	A torc	1-4: silver (25 gp) 5: gold (125 gp) 6: silver and gems (375 gp)
18	A bronze arm band, with the name Phagtro inscribed inside it	15 gp normally, but 175 gp to an antiquarian. GM Note: Phagtro was a famous Thorcin warrior who fought for the old Empire (see 4-95 and 4-138B)
19	A pair of gaudy brass and blue-glass earrings	5 gp
20	A single diamond stud earring	450 gp
21	A fragment of an inscription in Mithric, reading, "...-eon the Logothete, Senior Assistant to Cornelius Scriptor, who helped gather the materials for the scriptor's life of Marius the Great."	A reference to Lucius Cornelius Scriptor (6-130). The name of the proud assistant is lost to time.

22	A fragment of an inscription in Mithric, reading “Thesel[erion] [the protonot]arius, son of Ysabel, who did his duty to the last. He fell to the Hoppers while bringing new orders to the command post at the foot of the Great Chasm.”	GM Note: a reference to the Archontean command post established near the floor of the Great Chasm (areas 9-100 to 9-107)
23	An inscription in Mithric that reads “Mariana the wise, junior priestess of Bastet, who remained at her post when the others of her order fled for the Nether Reaches.”	A cryptic reference to the shrine to Bastet found in the Nether Reaches (Level 8-38)
24	A fragmentary inscription in Mithric that reads, “Jeskel the Far-Traveler, apprentice to Kentillian the Magnificent, who turned to the service of the Empire when Kentillian sought unlife in the caves below the temple of Set. He brought [the rest is lost]”	GM Note: a reference to the tomb of Kentillian, at SL5-13A
25	A scroll case made from a varumani femur and stoppered with cork plugs	It contains a scroll of protection from devils
26	A heavy iron key	The key fits the door at SL7-13
27	A gold pin (3” tall) depicting a honey pot	25 gp for the metal, but 85 gp to an antiquarian who recognizes it as a symbol of the 5 th Velites (legion of light infantry)
28	A gold ceremonial medallion, 4” in diameter, with an image of Marius the archon on the obverse, and a ziggurat on the reverse	Worth 125 gp. For more on Marius, see 6-154. The ziggurat is that of the heqeti (areas 10-32 to 10-35)
29	A tightly stoppered flask of ancient brandy, now incredibly potent	50 gp
30	A single arrow upon which is carved a man fighting a bear	It is an arrow of mammal slaying

The giant pikes that lair to the east attack hungrily as soon as intruders are half-way down the hallway. See SL6-71 for statistics.

Secret Door (north): The door is small (4’ square) and normal to locate. A keyhole exists, but the key is lost. The door must be battered open or wrested open with a bend bars check.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 giant pikes (see SL6-71 for stats)

SL6-71: Shattered Tomb with Fish (Submerged)

A broken sarcophagus lies in this chamber. It is clear that some party in the past systematically destroyed the chamber, for the walls are chipped and pitted (with only a few patches of remaining paint), and all identifying marks on the sarcophagus have been purposefully obliterated. The torn and gnawed corpses of nine fishmen and lizardmen float at the top of the chamber; two skeletons of ancient tomb robbers lie on the floor. Two giant pikes use this chamber as a resting place when they are not hunting in the Drowned Canyon.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 giant pikes: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 360’ swimming; HD 4; HP 26, 22; #AT 1; Dmg 4-16. Special attacks surprise on 4 in 6.

Treasure:

A suit of chain mail, a bent, but still usable staff +1, assorted coins worth 254 sp and 119 gp, and a pair of gold bracelets worth 150 gp for the pair.

SL6-72: Burial Niches (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this area is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

This corridor is filled with plundered and broken burial niches just as in SL6-70. Searching the mounds of debris for valuables is time-consuming but eventually produces one item for every turn of searching (up to 8 items). Use the chart in SL6-70 to determine found objects.

SL6-73: Shattered Tomb (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

This once-elegant tomb has been systematically plundered by looters. As with SL6-71, the looters also enthusiastically obliterated all reference to the original owner of the sarcophagus, and tried to do so with the wall-art as well. Frescoes remain, but all faces have been erased; the result is a series of toga-clad imperial officers without faces or identifying features.

SL6-74: Lower Chamber (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

An ominous sight greets visitors to this 30’x30’x10’ chamber. A bullet-shaped basalt monument stands in the exact center of the room; scattered around it are eight moldering corpses. The corpses appear to have been flung backward, although each has an outstretched hand that seems to be reaching towards the monument. All surfaces – walls, ceiling, and even the floor – are plastered and painted lemon yellow; while mold and damp has damaged the plaster in some spots, it is remarkably well-preserved. An inscription in Mithric has been carved into the south wall and filled with silver (50 gp); it reads “Heroes of the Empire look down on you from above. Duty, Loyalty, and Respect are your obligations.” [GM Note: this inscription is a clue to the operation of the mechanism for opening the way to SL6-77; see SL6-76 for more details]

Skeletons: The eight come from various periods. Four appear ancient, two are lizardmen, and two are fishmen. None of the remains appear to bear any injury, nor do any of them animate. The skeletons have been stripped of all valuables.

Deadly Monument: The bullet-shaped monument is formed of sickly grey granite and is 3' in diameter and 6' tall. It detects as magic and as evil. A stream of arcane glyphs has been painted across the monument in a bone-white paint; the glyphs swirl across the monument's surface in three large whorls. Those with the ability to view the glyphs from a distance (i.e., magically) will notice that there are fifty-eight distinct glyphs. Such viewers might also notice eight blank spots in the stream (where glyphs previously existed).

It takes advanced knowledge of magical theory to recognize that each of the glyph represents the concept of death from a different linguistic, planar, or cultural perspective. Practically speaking, magic users of 7th-level and above have a chance to recognize the nature of the glyphs: the chance is 30% plus 5% per additional experience level.

Each glyph carries a deadly enchantment: if any living creature approaches within 10' of the monument, the next glyph in the stream discharges in a burst of magical power while a deep voice intones the word 'death' in Mithric. All those within 15' of the monument who possess 60 HP or less are instantly slain (those with more than 60 HP take 60 HP damage). Victims are permitted a save versus death magic (with a -2 penalty); if the save is made, the victim merely takes 30 HP damage.

Each time a glyph activates, it is erased from the monument; as a result, the monument only has fifty-eight more uses. It is possible to mask the power of the monument, at least temporarily: casting dispel magic on the monument (by a caster of at least 7th-level dampens the power of the monument for 1-3 turns. Such should be sufficient to allow a swift party to climb through the concealed hole in the ceiling.

Concealed Hole: The plastered ceiling conceals a 10'x10' hole that leads up a 5'-long tunnel to SL6-75. PCs have normal chances to detect this concealed 'door'. Once detected, it is easy to break through the plaster to reveal the hole.

SL6-75: Upper Chamber (Dry)

Notes: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above. It also lies beyond the walls of the main cavern of the Drowned Canyon, a fact which means that the floor level relative to the cavern floor is no longer relevant.

This enormous chamber has 20'-tall walls and a pyramidal ceiling that rises another 10'. Four colossal statues stand in the corners of the room facing its center. Stirring inscriptions in Mithric appear on three of the four walls. A 10'x10' hole in floor leads down 5' to the plaster ceiling of SL6-74. A 3' parapet surrounds the hole.

Statues: All four of the 12' statues are of legionaries at parade rest. They detect of magic, but do not animate until/unless the relics from SL6-77 are brought into this chamber. At that point they lumber to life and prepare to destroy the desecrators.

Inscriptions: Three of the walls feature a word incised into the stone in 2'-tall capital letters. They read as follows:

North: Respect
East: Duty
West: Loyalty

Inhabitants:

1. 4 imperial stone guardians (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 8+3; HP 60, 60, 60, 57; #AT 2; Dmg 3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

SL6-76: Hall of Imperial Heroes (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

This 30'-tall, barrel-vaulted hall offers an impressive tribute to some long-forgotten military heroes of antiquity. A 10'-wide strip of red onyx has been inset into the granite; it leads from the entrance to the main statue at the south end of the hall. Flanking the red stone walkway are eight 15'-tall statues. An inscription (actually a song) runs along the wall at a point 20' above the floor; it starts in the northwest corner and ends in the northeast corner. The words of the Mithric inscription are 2' tall, inset into the stone, and inlaid with more red onyx. At the south end of the hall stands a 20'-tall statue of the great Archontean hero, Spiculus Carbo.

Statues of Lesser Heroes: The eight statues depict men and women in military garb, albeit in clothing and equipment unique to each individual. Each stands on a low plinth on which the name of the hero is inscribed. The statues are enchanted (and detect as magic). Should any one of the three code words embedded in the song inscription (duty, loyalty, respect) be touched (see below), all eight break out into a rough version of the song, chanted in loud bass tones. Should the physical remains of Spiculus Carbo be looted from SL6-77, the eight offer boos, hisses, and raspberries in equally loud tones. From southwest to southeast, the statues depict:

1. Hertulion, in legionary gear, in a defensive posture with shield and spear
2. Janata (F), in scout garb, wielding a sling
3. Hjalton, a dekach, gesturing with baculus
4. Terencius Borsa, as a legionary thrusting with short sword
5. Eadgifia (F), polemarch with shield raised, thrusting with spear
6. Lauret (F), archer nocking an arrow in her short bow
7. Isketius the Black, as a legionary crouching behind his shield
8. Marcus the Elephant, in a loincloth holding a club

Statue of Spiculus Carbo: This basalt statue is enormous, rising 20' above the floor. Spiculus Carbo, a long-forgotten hero of the ancient Archontean empire, is dressed in battered field plate, and leans wearily on his spear. The heads of two heqeti hoppers lie at his feet. The plinth carries this inscription: "Spiculus Carbo, scutarius, who embodied the three virtues of his calling in falling for his comrades during the great war against the Hoppers."

Inscription/Song: The words (in Mithric) of the song are as follows (N.B.: the three code words are underlined here for the GM's purposes alone; nothing on the wall distinguishes these words from the others):

*Hail to the heroes, whose deeds are clear to all
None of them stepped back, when duty made its call
Amid the press and without doubt they formed the sacred wall
And there with blades a-flashing, they saw the enemy fall
Through loyalty fierce and honor clear they forced the foe in thrall
Their deeds of noble service demand respect from all*

GM Note: This was a popular marching song of the legions during the period of Archon Marius Tricotor. There is a slim chance that a PC with a military background may recognize some of the phrases from modern military practice.

Secret passage (to SL6-77): It is almost impossible (1 in 12) to detect that there is a hidden passageway under the statue of Spiculus Carbo. It is revealed when the three code words (clues to which may be found in the inscriptions in SL6-74 and SL6-75) are touched, in any order and within 5 minutes. At that point the statue slides forward, revealing the stairs and hidden passage.

SL6-77: Secret Tomb of Spiculus Carbo (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

This hidden chamber houses the remains of Spiculus Carbo, as well as some relics associated with him. A stone table stands in the center of the 8'-tall, rough-carved chamber. An armor rack stands behind it.

Table: The physical remains of Spiculus Carbo sit on the table. These include the skull, femurs, and one skeletal hand, as well as an alabaster jar filled with ashes (the rest of his remains). The bones have been coated with molten gold and gleam dully; they are worth 125 gp but if associated with any of Carbo's gear might bring 875 gp. Alas, if any of the remains (bones or ashes) are brought into SL6-75, the four imperial stone guardians there immediately attack.

Next to the remains are Spiculus's hoplite helmet, to which is attached a pair of fox pelts, his gladius, a silver cloak pin, and a pair of worn sandals. The helmet is normal, but the fox pelts are enchanted (fox crests – see new magic items), as are the sandals (sandals of agility – see new magic items).

Armor Rack: The rack holds Spiculus Carbo's extremely battered suit of imperial field plate (see Arden Vul items), as well as his spear +3. Due to its age and condition, the armor requires 450 gp worth of repair work for peak functionality; until such work is completed, it provides AC 4 (instead of the normal AC 2).

SL6-78: Tomb of Licata the Archer (Dry)

Note: the air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

The earthly remains of a second hero of the Archontean wars versus the heqeti may be found here. The chamber is 20' tall, and the walls are painted a bright lemon-yellow color. Three 10'-tall statues of female archers with nocked arrows stand in the north, east, and south corners. Licata's remains rest on a stone table in the center of the chamber.

Trap (pressure plate and magical arrows): A pressure plate occupies the 10'x10' square just inside the entranceway. For each medium-sized creature that crosses the plate, there is a 75% chance that the trap triggers. Once triggered, each of the stone statues releases two magical arrows per round at randomly determined targets. For purposes of rolling to hit, the archers have 8 HD; each arrow inflicts 2-8 HP damage. The arrows strike any object existing within a plane defined as between 3' and 10' above the floor; those lying prone, and/or those who can levitate/fly to a point 10' above the floor, are immune from the arrow fire. Dispel magic cast on one of the statues immediately stops arrow fire from that statue.

Table: The stone table contains the remains of Licata the archer: a skull, with two huge red spinels (350 gp each) set into its eye sockets, a set of finger bones wired together, and a cedar box containing her ashes. The box is inlaid with silver, and carries the image of a coiled bowstring (the insignia of the I Velites legion) and the name 'Licata the dekach'. If the box is opened, it releases Licata's spirit, now a terrible spectre.

Also on the table are the following: a heavy gold signet ring that reads 'Licata' and 'Loyalty' (350 gp); her long bow +2; a quiver of 20 arrows +2; and a beautiful opal and jade necklace (2,250 gp).

Inhabitants:

1. Licata the spectre: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150; 300' flying (Class B); HD 7+3; HP 52; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

SL6-79: Unfinished Tomb (Dry)

Note: The air supply in this chamber is fixed; see general sub-level conditions above.

The door to this chamber is locked; Kel Bormol (SL3-2A) has the only remaining key. Inside is an unfinished tomb. A unique symbol, devised by Kel Bormol himself, has been cast seventeen times on the door: it is a symbol of forgetting, which causes those who fail to save versus spells (with a -2 penalty) to turn away from their present task and adopt some new course of action. The symbol is designed to prevent intruders from entering the chamber.

A block of stone (for the never-begun sarcophagus) stands in the middle of the room. A generic decoration plan was begun, but the only part completed is an image of a legionary (still faceless) with the word 'Respect' (in Mithric) in 3' letters above him.

As the war of Theosophs and Sortians raged (see World of Archontos appendix), the late Archontean-era archmage, Kel Bormol, took precautions for his own safety. He repurposed several chambers throughout the Halls as bolt-holes to which he could teleport if conditions in the city grew desperate. This tomb was one of his third-tier refuges. Here he deposited some coin, a few potions, and copies of his spell-books. These items are all concealed in an invisible stone chest fastened to the ceiling with steel bars.

Treasure:

Invisible chest with: 500 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items); potions of gaseous form, clarity, deafening light, dispelling, and truthfulness (see new magic items for the last four); and his spell books.

Kel Bormol's Spell Books (in eleven large volumes): All 1st-level spells plus Basil's torch treatment, Cleophalus's look-away spell, and friend of the Hekate (see new spells for all three); all 2nd-level spells plus the Bracteros effect, locate place, Pol's endless sneezes, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr, and wizard's cache (see new spells for all five); all 3rd-level spells plus garrulous mouth (see new spells); all 4th-level spells plus Dameon's shadow spell book (see new spells); all 5th-level spells plus harnessing the chaos, the hecate's bonds, and Pol's improved eye (see new spells for all three); anti-magic shell, curse item (see new spells), death spell, disintegrate, enchant an item, extension III, forceful hand, geas, globe of invulnerability, invisible stalker, legend lore, monster summoning IV, project image, reincarnation, repulsion, stone to flesh, transformation; cacodemon, delayed blast fireball, duo-dimension, grasping hand, limited wish, mass invisibility, monster summoning V, Pol's recall (see new spells), power word stun, vanish, warding chain of glyphs (see new spells); clenched fist, incendiary cloud, irresistible dance, mass charm, mind blank, mindshift (see new spells), monster summoning VI, permanency, polymorph object, power word blind, spell immunity, symbol; astral spell, crushing hand, gate, meteor swarm, power word kill, prismatic sphere, time stop.

SL6-80: Concealed Corridor Entrance (Partly-submerged)

The entrance to this corridor is concealed by a permanent illusion spell, which makes it seem as if the face of the canyon wall continues across the opening. The floor of this 10'-tall corridor is only 5' below the waterline. Because of this fact, any activity in the canyon that produces waves is likely to cause problems with the illusion, as the waves or ripples will appear to disappear into the 'solid' wall of the canyon.

SL6-81: Corridor Entrance (Dry)

The water in the Canyon laps gently at the lip of this 15'-tall corridor. The entrance corridor and stairs are covered with lemon-yellow tiles that are about 2" square. Given the general moisture of the area, the tiles are quite slippery.

SL6-82: Plundered Tomb of Phocius Tricotor (Dry)

This chamber is the most visited of the tombs in the Drowned Canyon, as it is the only one whose entrance is completely accessible from above the waterline. It is monumental in size, being some 20' tall. Mosaics originally covered the walls and ceiling. The tomb was designed for Phocius Tricotor, the adopted son of the great Marius Tricotor (see 6-154), who was slain in operations against the heqeti. Aware of Marius's grief, his courtiers arranged this elaborate tomb. Sadly, it was plundered in antiquity and little is left save some decorations. Graceful arches lead to subsidiary tombs on the east, west and south sides.

The mosaics on the walls have been badly damaged by time and looters. The largest intact piece occupies the southwest corner, and shows a stern archon with cropped, grey hair riding a floating platform while pointing at misshapen amphibians. Next to the archon is a man who looks similar, albeit younger. Ancient graffiti names the two figures as "Marius the Great" and "Phocius, his dead son." The other intact piece of mosaic is in the northeast corner, and shows a skinny man in a white scribe's tunic holding a stylus and a wax tablet; this man has the same hair style, and several prominent blemishes by his nose. More graffiti is scrawled by this image. It reads: "Lucius Cornelius the thief, who stole the divine Marius's relics." [GM Note: this person is Lucius Cornelius Scriptor – see 6-135]

In the center of the chamber is a worn, veined-marble dais (10'x10'). In its center stands an unusual vertical sarcophagus that is 5' square, but 8' tall. The top 2' of the sarcophagus have been broken off, leaving a hollow shell. The sarcophagus is empty, but its four sides bear incised images of a young Archontean male, with close-cropped hair, Roman nose, and piercing eyes, engaging in military actions. The north-facing side of the sarcophagus also reads "Phocius Tricotor."

SL6-83: Side Tomb (Dry)

A 10'x5'x4' sarcophagus rests in this 10'-tall side tomb. The lid is long gone, as are its contents. The walls are decorated with smeared and dripping frescoes of jungle scenes. Nothing is present here save two 50' coils of silken rope that are tucked behind the sarcophagus.

SL6-84: Side Tomb with Corpse (Dry)

A 10'x5'x4' sarcophagus rests in this 10'-tall side chamber. The lid and original contents of the tomb are gone, but the skeleton of an ancient tomb robber lies sprawled halfway inside and halfway outside the sarcophagus. The walls of the chamber were painted cerulean blue, and originally featured eight figures in Archontean dress. The faces of the eight have been carefully effaced, leaving bare wall where the faces once were.

Should the side tomb be entered, the skeleton will lurch to its feet and begin moaning (in Mithric) "The eyes! They see me! They see you! Beware the eyes!" [GM Note: the corpse is referring to the eyes of Pol (see new magic items) in SL6-85, but the precise origin of the corpse's fear may well be unclear]. The animated skeleton follows PCs through areas SL6-82 to SL6-85, moaning its warning all the while, but it does not attack.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 animated skeleton: SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 60'; HD 1; HP 5; #AT 0; Dmg nil. Special defenses: immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold; cutting and piercing weapons do half damage.

Treasure:

The skeleton wears battered, but usable, leather armor, and has a long sword belted at its waist. A gold chain with a silver-and-ivory cameo of an eye hangs around its neck (110 gp).

SL6-85: Side Tomb (Dry)

Another empty 10'x5'x4' sarcophagus rests in this 10'-tall side chamber. The original lid and contents disappeared ages ago. A pair of battered wooden planks provides a new lid, on top of which rest a pair of eyes of Pol (see new magic items). The walls seem originally to have been painted, but only a small portion of blue and yellow paint remains.

Secret Trapdoor (floor): This trapdoor is normal to locate, and can be accessed if an open doors check is made in moving the sarcophagus that lies atop it. The corridor climbs briefly before reaching a second secret door that is easy (1 in 4) to locate. From this side the second door opens by depressing a 3"-square section of the floor.

Treasure:

A pair of eyes of Pol (see new magic items).

SL6-86: False Tomb of Thekla (Partly-submerged)

Five feet of murky water slosh around in this 10'-tall chamber, which is home to a giant anaconda. The wall frescoes have been ruined by moisture, a moldy mosaic occupies the west wall, and a granite sarcophagus sits in the center of the room on a 2' dais. On the west wall a jumble of debris has accumulated around what once was a ceremonial rack (for a sword) built into the wall. It is in this debris that the anaconda lairs. Three water-slimed skeletons lie on the floor near the sarcophagus. GM Note: this area was intended as a red-herring for those seeking to loot the tombs of Taticus and Thekla, whose true tomb lies at SL6-88.

Mosaic: The mosaic shows a pair of warriors striking at a huge, hairy troll. One warrior is male and the other female, but both share similar features: they both have long, shoulder-length hair and pointed noses, and they both wear black leather armor, wield falchions, and wear silver lockets looped around their necks. GM Note: a bookish PC has a chance to recognize the pair of warriors in the mosaic as the legendary Archontean hero-twins, Taticus and Thekla, by rolling 4d6 under INT.

Sarcophagus: The lid bears an incised image of a female warrior wearing leather armor and carrying a falchion. The lid of the sarcophagus is already cracked open, and can be fully removed easily, without any sort of check. Only the moldy remains of a female human, wrapped in linen bandages, remain.

Secret Door (east): The door is normal to locate, and opens by pulling down on the left support for the sword rack that is found on the east wall. Doing so releases a mechanism that causes a panel on the eastern wall to swing into the chamber.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 giant constrictor snake: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 90'; HD 6+1; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/2-8. Special attacks: constriction.

Treasure:

Inside the sarcophagus: all the original (meagre) treasure was looted in antiquity, but a pair of brass leg bracelets studded with jet gems is still hidden inside the wrappings (50 gp each). Skeletons: black leather armor, scale mail, a mace, a long sword, a purse with 53 ancient silver pennies and 39 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items for both); a silver statuette of a hooded cobra (135 gp); and an elixir of health.

SL6-87: False Tomb of Taticus (Partly-submerged)

Five feet of water slosh about in this chamber. Although moisture has ruined most of the frescoes, a section of mosaic mounted on the south wall shows a pair of warriors striking simultaneously at a troll. A granite sarcophagus (10'x5'x5') rests in the center of the chamber on a 2' dais. Built into the west wall just above the water line is an empty rack, apparently intended for a sword.

Mosaic: One warrior is male and the other female, but both share similar features: they both have long, shoulder-length hair and pointed noses, and they both wear black leather armor, wield falchions, and wear silver lockets looped around their necks. Note: A bookish PC has a chance to recognize the pair of warriors in the mosaic as the legendary Archontean hero-twins, Taticus and Thekla, by rolling 4d6 under INT.

Sarcophagus: The lid bears a crude image scribed in the stone of a warrior wearing leather armor and holding a falchion. The legend reads “Taticus the Strong.” The lid of the sarcophagus can be budged with an open doors check, but it is also trapped (see below). Within is a male body wrapped in shrouds along with some treasure.

Trap (sarcophagus lid): The lid is trapped such that if the seam is broken between lid and sarcophagus, a powerful set of springs will project the now-broken lid upwards and outwards. Anyone within 10’ of the sarcophagus must roll 3d8 under DEX or take 3-12 HP damage from the explosion and stone fragments.

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find, and opens if a hidden button inside the sarcophagus is located and pressed.

Treasure:

Inside the sarcophagus: 119 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items); a pair of silver and turquoise bracelets (75 gp each); a scroll of magic missile and locate object; and a parchment scroll entitled Fraternal Triumph, or Taticus and Thekla against the Troll (see Arden Vul books).

SL6-88: Hidden Tomb of the Twins (Dry)

The true tomb of Taticus and Thekla, the legendary Archontean hero-twins, is located here. The 15’-tall chamber is sheathed in blue tiles (6” square), on each of which has been painted the tau (yin-yang) symbol (which symbolizes twins for Archontean). Perhaps 30% of the tiles have fallen to the floor, leaving the floor littered with broken tiles and ceramic dust. Two sarcophagi dominate the center of the chamber, although an enormous black ‘troll’ stands on a dais on the south wall. Between the two sarcophagi is a large patch of living mosaic (see new magic items).

The ‘troll’ is 10’ tall, thick and muscled, and covered with black bristly hair. The ‘troll’ is actually a Type IV demon that has used its polymorph self ability to appear as the legendary object of the Twins’ great victory. The demon has been bound to this chamber to fulfill this function – and to defend the gemini blades (see new magic items) – for close to 2,000 years, and is eager for combat and release. Once it has defeated 17 robbers, it will be freed from its task. As such, the first thing it does is Gate in another demon to ensure it defeats any tomb raiders.

Sarcophagi: Both of the 10’x5’x5’ sarcophagi are formed of coal-black basalt. The tops of each sarcophagus bear a heavily incised and silver-filled image of their respective inhabitants, Taticus and Thekla. Taticus appears as a young man dressed in leather armor with a flowing cloak; Thekla is a young woman and dressed similarly. Both have shoulder-length hair and wear locket. On each sarcophagus, however, the images of the twin’s locket is pierced vertically by one of the legendary gemini blades (see new magic items). The only way to release the lid of either lid is to pull forth the blade from the basalt; to do this, however, requires either a twin or a person of chaotic good or chaotic neutral alignment. Within each sarcophagus is some additional treasure.

Living Mosaic: A large, 10’x3’, patch of living mosaic (see new magic items) occupies the space between the two sarcophagi. It depicts area 6-157 and is 75% likely to show troll-like beings moving through the image.

Secret Door (northeast, to SL6-87): This door is easy to locate (1 in 4), and opens by pulling a thin circle of wire nestled in the seam between wall and ceiling.

Secret Door (northwest, to SL6-86): This door is easy to locate (1 in 4), and opens outward by finding and depressing a 3”-square on the south wall.

Secret Door (east, towards SL6-85): This door is hard to find (1 in 8) and only opens by brute force (open doors check to push it towards the east).

Secret Door (west, towards SL6-89): The door is hard to locate (1 in 8) and can only be opened by pulling it inward via a successful open doors check.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 type IV demon: SZ L; AL CE; AC -1; MV 90’, 120’ flying (Class E); HD 11; HP 78; #AT 3; Dmg 1-4/1-4/2-8; MR 65%. Constant abilities: infravision. Special attacks: +2 to hit; cause fear; darkness 10’ radius; use symbol (fear or discord). Special defenses: half damage from cold, electricity, fire, gas; +1 or better weapons to hit. Special: teleport without error; detect magic; read languages; telekinesis (5,000 gp); project image; create illusion; levitate; polymorph self; dispel magic; gate in demon of type I to IV (60%).

Treasure:

The gemini blades (see new magic items), only removable by chaotic good PCs or by twins.

Tomb of Taticus: a red, hooded, cloak of displacement; a pair of red boots (25 gp); Taticus's seal matrix, which could be used to make new seals or could be sold to an antiquarian for 3,000 gp; a silver, gold, and bejeweled belt, worth 1,850gp; and a fine platinum cloak pin worth 425 gp.

Tomb of Thekla: a set of red boots of striding and springing; a fine, silk, hooded cloak (50 gp); an amethyst and silver hair pin (450 gp); a gold signet ring (250 gp); a second gold ring set with a huge topaz (650 gp).

SL6-89: Hidden Staircase up to SL6-31 (Dry)

A simple granite circular staircase leads upward to SL6-31 from this location. It is only accessible via one of the secret doors that give forth into the area.

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find, and is relatively tall and narrow (3' wide by 8' tall). It opens by pushing in at the top of this panel, which is set on a horizontal pin.

Secret Door (east): This door is hard to find (1 in 8) and opens only if a pencil-thick button on the east wall is located and depressed.

SL6-90: Tomb Entrance (Submerged)

A 10'-tall archway leads inward at this point. The entrance is 15' below the waterline, and the corridor is fully submerged.

SL6-91: Corridor Entrance (Submerged)

A 10'-tall square corridor leads inward. The entrance lies 15' below the waterline, but halfway down the corridor stairs lead up out of the water.

SL6-92: Corridor Entrance (Submerged)

A 10'-tall square corridor entrance may be found here. The entrance is 15' below the waterline and the corridor is fully submerged.

SL6-93: First Tomb of Vipsania Pacifica (Submerged)

Archon Vipsania Pacifica built this area as the antechamber to her true tomb (SL6-94). The chamber is 10' tall and filled with murky water. Vipsania's sarcophagus dominates the center of the chamber, while ruined wall frescoes provide hints of color amid the gloom. Two giant crayfish lurk in the murky water on either side of the door, eager for a meal.

Sarcophagus: This object is a rococo monstrosity! It is 5' tall, 10' long, and 4' wide, and built of veined marble with 2'-tall porphyry columns set into the base of the sarcophagus on all sides. The lid is solid and massive, with a white effigy of Vipsania built into it. Vipsania appears as a whip-thin, tall woman with waist-length hair and narrowed eyes. She wears a long robe and carries an ankh and an unrolled scroll. Inscribed in tiny letters on the scroll are the following words in Mithric: "Vipsania Pacifica, archon of Arden Vul. She brought and required peace." Unless PCs specifically examine the scroll, they are likely to miss the inscription.

The lid can only be budged with a successful open doors check. Although the contents were looted in antiquity, the tomb-robbers had a warped sense of humor, and left a goblin skull behind. They also left a sherd of pottery with the following mocking note scrawled on it in Mithric: "Vipsania wasn't so peaceful when we made off with her belongings. Better luck next time!" What the robbers missed was a false bottom, which can be detected as a secret door. Inside the false bottom are a four solid gold rods tied up with gold thread and piece of solid marble carved like a 5"-diameter, rolled-up scroll. Each has a different word inscribed (in Mithric) on it: wrath, love, serenity, and sorrow. The rods can be used to manipulate objects in area SL6-94. The scroll is needed to open the secret door to Vipsania's true tomb.

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find. The opening mechanism is a 5"-diameter slot in the wall. The marble scroll in the false-bottom of the sarcophagus fits the slot perfectly.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 giant crayfish: SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 60; 120' swimming; HD 4+4; HP 33, 28; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6.

Treasure:

Four solid gold rods, 1" in diameter and 6" long (850 gp each). The rods can be used to manipulate objects in area SL6-94.

SL6-94: True Tomb of Vipsania Pacifica (Dry)

Up a narrow staircase may be found the true tomb of Vipsania Pacifica, archon of Arden Vul. The chamber is 10' tall. Instead of the usual frescoes, four 5'-tall, granite, high-relief images of faces stand forth along the bare stone walls. Standing on the floor beneath each visage is a 3'-tall stone urn. Vipsania's granite sarcophagus stands in the center of the chamber.

Sarcophagus: The sarcophagus is 10' long, 3' wide and 4' high. The north side bears the words "Vipsania, archon." The lid is solid and no seam is visible. Four 2"-diameter holes are spaced evenly across the lid, each with a square of colored tile inset next to it: the colors are red, black, pink and pale blue.

The holes are intended to be used (wisely!) in conjunction with the liquids obtained from the stone visages (see below). Pouring any of the liquids into the appropriately-colored hole causes a seam to appear around the top of the sarcophagus; the lid can then be removed with an open doors check. Yet some combinations have additional magical effects.

The safest solution is to obtain the pale blue liquid (of serenity or peacefulness, that is, the quality associated with Vipsania's nickname) and pour it into the pale blue hole. Pouring the red liquid into the red hole, however, causes the liquid to spontaneously combust; all the contents of the sarcophagus are destroyed. Pouring the black liquid into the black hole generates an oily, thick poison gas; this gas emerges from all four holes in the sarcophagus and fills the chamber within 3 rounds. All present must save or die. The gas dissipates after an hour. Pouring the pink liquid into the pink hole, moreover, inflicts a powerful curse of greed on all those within 15'; the curse acts such that each victim will intensely covet the next item of value that he/she glimpses. The greed and obsession for this item will be so great that the victim will not allow it to be possessed by another, nor will he/she allow it to be sold. If a liquid is poured into the inappropriate hole (black into blue, for instance), no effect is produced, but the seam for the lid also does not appear. For the contents of the sarcophagus, see treasure listing below.

Stone Visages

Each of the 5'-tall images shows the same human woman with long hair and an elaborate torc. The mouths of all four are open. The four faces differ, however, with regard to the emotion displayed upon them.

East Face: Vipsania's mouth is twisted open in a sneer, her eyes are narrowed, and her nostrils are flared. This face represents anger or wrath. If the golden rod from SL6-93 that is marked 'wrath' is placed in the angry mouth, a flask filled with red liquid will appear in the stone urn beneath it. If the wrong rod is inserted into the mouth, that rod will be utterly consumed.

South Face: The eyes are open wide, and the mouth is formed in a perfect 'o'. Here Vipsania depicts sorrow. Should the golden rod inscribed with 'sorrow' (from SL6-93) be placed in the mouth, a flask of black liquid appears in the urn beneath the face. If the wrong rod is inserted into the mouth, that rod will be utterly consumed.

West Face: The face's lips are puckered as if to give a kiss, and the eyes are creased welcomingly with laugh lines. The face depicts 'love'. If the golden rod marked 'love' (from SL6-93) is placed in the mouth, a flask filled with pink liquid appears in the urn beneath the head. If the wrong rod is inserted into the mouth, that rod will be utterly consumed.

North Face: Vipsania's lips are just barely open, and her mouth offers a hint of a smile. Her eyes are half-lidded. This face is meant to depict 'peace' or serenity. If the appropriate golden rod from SL6-93 is placed between the lips, a flask with pale blue liquid appears in the urn beneath the face. If the wrong rod is inserted into the mouth, that rod will be utterly consumed.

Treasure:

Liquids: the red liquid can serve as a potion of fire breath; the black potion is a poison potion; the pink potion is a philter of love; and the blue liquid is a philter of persuasion.

Sarcophagus: in addition to the bones of Vipsania Pacifica, the tomb contains two bolts of beautiful silk from the imperial workshops (250 gp each); an alabaster jar with 111 ancient octagonal platinum pieces (see Arden Vul items); a vellum codex bound in red leather entitled the Secreta Secretorum (see Arden Vul books); a rod of rulership (16 charges); a  tome of understanding; and a gold-and-ruby necklace in a sunburst pattern (5,800 gp).

SL6-95: Alleged Tomb of Jacinth the Rose (Dry)

The stairs from SL6-91 ensure that this area is dry. Its air is also good, a fact which may cause the clever to realize there is another exit to the chamber. In fact this entire chamber was devised as a clever trick and trap, designed to deter those seeking the more profitable tombs hidden in SL6-96.

The chamber is 12' tall, brightly lit by a continual light spell, and decorated with vibrant, colorful frescoes. The frescoes are badly damaged by moisture and mold, but show mostly floral scenes with a maiden cavorting through them. The maiden is tall, with black hair, laughing eyes, and pretty teeth. In the center of the chamber is a sarcophagus of pink marble. On its lid is a marble effigy of a shapely woman clad in a tunic with an elaborate belt, a brooch, and a flower wreath in her hair. A name is carved on the east side of the sarcophagus: Jacinth the Rose. Aside from her name, the sides of the sarcophagus are carved elaborately with high-relief flowers, including roses, daisies, marigolds, and hyacinths.

The lid (with effigy) is heavy, and can only be opened via a successful open doors check. If the lid is opened, a puff of poisonous dust envelopes all within 10' (see below for effects). Inside is a mummified body (not that of Jacinth the Rose) that wears a belt of femininity/masculinity and an amulet of inescapable location. A curse has also been placed on these two items: if either is either successfully removed via remove curse, the cursed item instantly teleports back to this tomb, allowing it to be found by a subsequent tomb-robber.

GM Note: Jacinth the Rose was once a well-known figure in Archontean folklore, although her stories are largely forgotten today. She was a notorious trickster, with a malicious bent (unlike that of Larel One-Eye – see World of Archontos appendix). It is unlikely that most PCs will have heard of Jacinth the Rose, although the GM might deem that a bard or other scholarly PC could succeed at a roll under INT (5d6 for bards, 6d6 for others) in order to have heard of her devious reputation for not being what she seemed. Of course, should PCs have located and read a copy of the Song of Jacinth the Rose (see Arden Vul books) they will have a much better chance of recognizing that this name spells trouble. Her corpse does not rest here at all. Indeed, according to the Song, it is to be found in the forests north of Archontos.

Trap (poisonous dust): This poisonous dust is released in a 10' -diameter cloud when the lid of Jacinth the Rose's sarcophagus is opened. It is slow-acting, and causes death in 1-4 days after much choking, coughing, and spitting of blood. Those making a save versus poison avoid breathing it in and are immune.

Secret Door (south): This door is normal to locate. Only by locating the largest carved rose on the sarcophagus and pressing its center will the door open.

Treasure:

A belt of femininity/masculinity; a brooch of inescapable location; and 357 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) scattered inside the tomb.

SL6-96: Multiple Tomb Chamber (Dry)

This large hall is the resting place of the famous alchemist (and infamous libertine), Plotina. The chamber is 15' tall, with unpainted walls. Six simple stone sarcophagi hold the remains of Plotina's favorite concubines. Her own resting place is a huge stone table at the south end of the room; there she lies as a mummy, surrounded by many potion bottles. A stone chest sits under the table.

Sarcophagi: Each of these identical sarcophagi is 8'x3'x3' in size, with the face of a young woman and a name inscribed on the lid. When Plotina arises from her table, the ghosts that occupy each tomb push off their sarcophagus lids and rush to defend their mistress. The names of the concubines are: Levia, Domitilla, Helena, Reseda, Vincia, and Irene. Each sarcophagus contains a piece of jewelry.

Table and Mummy: Plotina the mummy lies on the stone table, surrounded by samples of her alchemical genius. As soon as the chamber is entered, she rises from the table, whispers (in Mithric) 'More lovers for me!' and begins to hurl potions at the intruders; her former concubines – now ghastrs – swiftly join the fray. The following potions and concoctions are available for Plotina to hurl or use; due to her instability, roll randomly to determine which potions she employs in a given round: greek fire x6 (see new magic items), molasses x3 (see new magic items), hostile levitation x2 (see new magic items), fire resistance x2 (see new magic items), frost cage x3 (see new magic items), singing birds x3 (see new magic items). Also on the table are 4 potions of extra healing, a potion of invisibility, a potion of superheroism, and a potion of levitation.

Secret Door (north): The door is easy to locate (1 in 4) and opens by pulling it inward by brute force (open doors check).

Secret Door (east): This door is normal to locate, and rotates on a horizontal pin. It opens by pushing the lower part of the door, allowing one to crawl into the tunnel to SL6-89.

Trapped Secret Door (west): This door is normal to locate. It appears to have a lock, but this is a red herring. The lock has a poison needle designed to stab any who try to pick it (save or die). The door actually opens by standing on a 6" square of pavement and then pushing inward.

Inhabitants:

1. Plotina the mummy: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 6+3; HP 48; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12. Special attacks: fear; rotting disease. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from magic weapons; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis. She is turned as a vampire so long as at least one of her ghastrs are alive. She can hurl two potions per round.
2. 6 ghastrs: SZ M; AL CE; AC 4; MV 150'; HD 4; HP 30, 28, 27, 26, 25, 22; #AT 3; Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-8. Special attacks: stench; paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm.

Treasure:

Sarcophagi: one piece of jewelry per tomb: a silver-and-amber choker (1,750 gp), a gold comb (600 gp), a silver-and-gold chalice (800 gp), a silver arm ring (400 gp), a silver-and-onyx pendant (750 gp), and a gold-and-opal necklace (3,500 gp)
Chest: Plotina's recipe book, with formulae for the six special potions listed above; two glass carboys filled with potions of healing (10 potions per carboy); 2 philters of persuasiveness; and 6 packets of incense of attraction (see new magic items).
Potions on the table: see text above.

SL6-97: Pair of Looted Tombs (Submerged)

This 8'-tall chamber is completely undecorated. Two large granite tombs stand in its center. Each is rough carved and without decoration save the name of the former inhabitant. The north sarcophagus reads "Cassius" and the southern one reads "Heraclion." The chamber is the breeding ground for 4 giant crayfish. GM Note: these names are of two minor archons; for the reason they are found here, see SL6-98.

Secret Door (south): The secret door is normal to find. It can only be opened if the tomb of Heraclion is pushed aside and the now-obvious floor-plate operated.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 giant crayfish: SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 60'; 120' swimming; HD 4+4; HP 33, 31, 28, 25; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6.

SL6-98: Tomb of Psallion the Logothete (Dry)

The once-important logothete, Psallion the Red, built this tomb for himself during the waning days of the Archontean tomb-building period (during the archonate of Borsella Iron-Fist). Psallion had area SL6-97 constructed as a red-herring, and stocked it with the sarcophagi of two minor archons of the previous century. The narrow stairs and corridor from SL6-97 are 8' tall and undecorated.

Trap (falling block): The corridor leading to Psallion's tomb (SL6-98) has a falling block trap. If tripped a 5' cube of granite drops from the ceiling, inflicting 8-48 HP damage on the intruder; successfully rolling 3d6 under DEX indicates half damage. If triggered, the trap completely blocks access to the tomb; those wishing to enter it will need picks, mauls, and other equipment.

Psallion's Tomb: Psallion's tomb is compact, but richly decorated. The west wall includes a beautiful mosaic showing a detailed image of an old-style logothete's office. The logothete (Psallion), dressed in cerulean tunic, sits on a dais to the right of the scene, while lesser officials (chartoularii) count coins using abacuses and petitioners gesture pitifully at the logothete. On the east wall is a standard depiction of a (female) archon; the archon wears her toga and cradles fasces and a baculus. The only nod to a specific archon is the fact that her face is grimly set and she's shaking a fist over her shoulder (Borsella Iron-Fist).

The sarcophagus is a beautiful marble affair carved elaborately with images of chartoularii and logothetes. The lid is sealed and requires an open doors check to remove. Inside is a second, wooden, sarcophagus with gilt and lapis decoration showing a pudgy man of late middle years, with shoulder-length hair and a pug nose. Inside is Psallion's mummified body, along with much treasure.

Secret Door (north): The door leading to SL6-97 is easy to find (1 in 4) and opens from this side by pressing an easily-discovered square panel on the riser of the first stair leading south.

Secret Door (South): The door leading to SL6-96 is easy to locate from this side (1 in 4). It opens by locating and pulling a wire that is concealed in the seam between wall and ceiling.

Treasure:

The mummy wears a brooch of shielding (with 45 points of damage reduction remaining), a circlet of persuasion, and a set of exquisite jade bracelets, arm bands, and torc (the set is worth 12,500 gp). Scattered around the mummy are 3,333 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), a scroll of protection from petrification and a scroll of stone to flesh.

SUB-LEVEL 7: THE FLOODED VAULTS

With the rise in the water level of the Drowned Canyon and the failure of the regulatory mechanisms installed by the cult of Thoth, much of this sub-level gradually flooded. While some areas are completely submerged, others are merely awash in several (4') feet of water and even fewer areas remain dry (but damp). It is the home of a species of fishmen that is unique to Arden Vul (see new monsters). The fishmen move swiftly in the submerged and partly-submerged areas of the level, and are adept at using the system of wells to flank and surround potential intruders. PCs who visit the area will need to be strong swimmers and should possess some magical means of breathing or otherwise moving through water.

The region is dominated by an insane rudishva survivor, the former xenobiology officer of the Beacon, Reiv-Tor. Already before the rudishva collapse Reiv-Tor was experimenting with bio-engineering, perfecting means of gene sequencing and splicing. He even claimed to be able to produce a 'better' rudishva, one that would be capable of resisting the toxic agents the crew of the Beacon had encountered in Arden Vul.

After he failed to convince his colleagues, he began experimenting on himself; one of the early successes was a cell flushing therapy (perfected in conjunction with the future Master of the Sun-Scarred Knights) that offered greatly expanded lifespans. After the collapse he found himself working for the Archontians in a limited fashion from a laboratory created for him on Sub-Level 7; they knew him as 'the necromancer', even though he despised that term (and it was mostly inaccurate).

When the empire splintered, Reiv-Tor was poised to seize control of this region. Doing so, his experiments in bioengineering rapidly accelerated in number and type. He became obsessed with the idea that water was the ideal medium for life and began altering his body to make it more suited for aquatic living. He also began mutating captured goblins, beastmen and humans into servitors – the fishmen. Approximately 60 fishmen inhabit the sub-level, and Reiv-Tor is always in the process of creating new ones.

Finally, he also created a few forms of unique life to help him restructure his environment to match his tastes; these include the coral generating fish, the lantern fish, and the spy fish. It was Reiv-Tor and his creatures, of course, who built up the dam in the Drowned Canyon (SL6-25).

Now Reiv-Tor is mostly insane, content to rule his aquatic domain from area SL7-23, while creating new fishmen servitors and gradually converting the stonework into coral. Reiv-Tor uses the fishmen to defend his domain, as well as to gather food and intelligence in the Drowned Canyon. Under his direction, the fishmen have constructed a series of wells and connecting tunnels which dot the level, allowing them to move rapidly between various points of the level.

Given the presence of his spy-fish through the sub-level, and the somewhat linear route that must be taken to Reiv-Tor's lair (SL7-23), it is highly probable that Reiv-Tor will be aware of the approach of a party of PCs. His minions will be prepared in area

SL7-22 to defend their master, as will Reiv-Tor himself with his final defense force in SL7-23.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Archontian areas: all the worked areas were originally built by the Archontians. However, Reiv-Tor has heavily modified substantial areas of the sub-level. Those chambers and corridors marked with 'squiggly walls' on the map have been transformed by Reiv-Tor's coral generating fish. In these areas (which can either be submerged or partly-submerged - see below) the stonework has been coated by a chitinous residue that resembles fresh-water coral. The coral is rough and sharp in places and, while it follows the original contours of chambers in a general way, produces uneven walls, floors, and ceilings.

IMPORTANT NPCs

Reiv-Tor, insane rudishva survivor (SL7-23)

ENVIRONMENT

Most of the original doors in this region were typical wood-and-iron constructions. Given the dampness of the area, these doors are almost entirely 'stuck' partly open. A few exceptions occur; they are noted in the level key.

All the areas of Sub-Level 7 fall into one of three categories:

Dry: These areas are typically at the margins of Reiv-Tor's domain (SL7-5, SL7-6, SL7-9, SL7-10, SL7-12) or outside it entirely (SL7-26 to SL7-38). While they do not feature any standing water, they are typically damp and moist, with mold and fungus growing in the damp conditions. The fishmen visit these areas, but do not prefer them.

Fully Submerged: In some areas, the water from the Drowned Canyon completely fills the chambers and halls. The water is typically murky and silt-filled, and relatively warm. Vision is quite low – 20' at best. The fishmen know these areas intimately, and don't suffer from vision issues while in submerged chambers. Combat for PCs in submerged chambers follows the usual rules for underwater combat.

Partly-Submerged: These areas are not fully submerged, but rather contain 4' of standing water. The water is murky, silt-filled, and warm. The fishmen have no trouble operating like, well, fish in these conditions. PCs, however, have their movement cut in half. Combat is at -1 to hit due to the awkward conditions.

Wells

Several areas in this level are accessible only or partly via a set of wells (see SL7-2, SL7-20, SL7-21, SL7-22, SL7-23, SL7-25 and SL7-27). Most of the wells (those in SL7-2 are an exception) are similar in dimensions; they protrude 4' above the floor, are 4' in diameter, and are formed out of the ubiquitous chitinous coral produced by Reiv-Tor's coral generating fish. The wells are 35' deep and filled with murky water. At the foot of each well is a 6'-diameter, coralized tunnel that leads to another well; these coralized tunnels are fully submerged.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Level 4: tunnel at SL7-37, leading up to 4-76

To Level 6: corridor at SL7-6, leading down to 6-153

To Level 7: stairs at SL7-31, leading down to 7-119

To Level 7: tunnel at SL7-9A, leading down to 7-148

To Sub-Level 6: corridor at SL7-1, leading to SL6-39

To Various Areas: Thothian teleportation ring (see new magic items) at SL7-30

Teleport destinations on Sub-Level 7:

SL7-8: from teleporter at UP-11

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

1. Areas with No Random Encounters

SL7-5, SL7-6, SL7-8 to SL7-10, SL7-27 to SL7-29, SL7-34

2. Domain of Reiv-Tor and the Fishmen: SL7-1 to SL7-4, SL7-7, SL7-11 to SL7-26

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 4 chance of an encounter.

D6	Encounter
1-2	1 fishman chief (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 3; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 5; HP 35; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 2-7/2-7 or 3-9 (trident); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. Possessions: trident. 4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison
3	4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison 1-2 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind
4	4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison 1-2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 8; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor

5-6	4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison
-----	---

3. Northwest Areas: SL7-30 to SL7-39

Checks should be made every 4 turns, with a 1 in 6 chance of an encounter.

D6	Encounter
1-2	3-4 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 27, 26, 25, 24; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4
3	The roper from SL7-36: SZ L; AL CE; AC 0; MV 30'; HD 11; HP 67; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20; MR 80%. Special attacks: six poisonous strands (20'-50' range; reduce STR by 50% in 1-3 rds). Special defenses: immune to lightning; take half damage from cold.
4	1-3 owlbears: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 5+2; HP 39, 33, 29; #AT 3; Dmg 1-6/1-6/2-12. Special attacks: hug
5	2-4 subterranean lizards: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 43, 41, 39, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12. Special attacks: double damage on a natural roll to hit of 20
6	5-8 giant centipedes: SZ S; AL N; AC 9; MV 150'; HD 1 or 2 HP; HP 2(x4), 1(x4); #AT 1; Dmg n.a. Special attacks: poison (+4 to save)

LEVEL KEY

SL7-1: Grand Corridor Connecting to Sub-Level 6 (SL6-39) (Submerged or Partly-Submerged)

This corridor connects Reiv-Tor's domain with the Drowned Canyon (SL6-39). It is completely submerged in murky water between the Drowned Canyon and a set of stairs midway down its length. North of the steep stairs, the corridor is partly submerged in 4' of water. It was originally brightly painted, but only a few smudges of paint now remain. In the northern section of the corridor, four niches contain statues of former archons of Arden Vul; the marble statues are crusted with lichen and mold and are marked by water stains.

A troop of fishmen (see new monsters) patrols the upper part of the corridor, near the statues. They are quick to dive into the submerged section to confront intruders. The southern portion of the corridor contains various specimens of Reiv-Tor's fish. Combat in the southern part of the corridor has a 33% chance to attract the attention of the fishmen in SL7-11, who arrive to aid their comrades in 2-4 rounds. If these other fishmen are alerted, they release the barracuda in SL7-12; the barracuda arrive one round after the fishmen.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 10; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
3. 4 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 3, 3, 2, 1; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.
4. 2 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.

SL7-2: Hall of Judgment (Partly-Submerged)

This massive hall was the chief site of Archontean imperial justice in antiquity. The chamber is 25' high and boasts a 4'-tall frieze in high relief running around all the walls. The frieze depicts generic scenes of Archontean administrators in every aspect of justice: arresting, imprisoning, trying, and executing malefactors. Five daises rise impressively out of the water, four to the left and right and one – the largest – at the head of the chamber. All the daises originally featured stone seats of justice, but under Reiv-Tor's guidance the chairs on the two daises closest to the door have been replaced with coral wells leading to the fishmen's network of tunnels. The four lesser daises are stepped, with three broad steps leading out of the murky water. The central dais is taller (15') and is reached by a set of stairs set into the rear of the dais. The remaining seats of justice are impressive pieces of stone carving, with a hoplite helmet prominently featured on the seat back of each.

The chamber is a hive of activity for the fishmen.

Secret Trap Door (main dais): This trap door is normal to locate and opens with a successful open doors check. It leads down to a narrow corridor that climbs steeply towards area SL7-30.

Inhabitants:

1. 10 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 21, 20, 19, 18, 17, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 1 fishman chief (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 3; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 5; HP 35; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 2-7/2-7 or 3-9 (trident); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. Possessions: trident.
3. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 10; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
4. 4 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 3, 3, 2, 1; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.
5. 2 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.

Treasure:

The fishman chief carries 3 javelins of the raptor. One of the fishmen carries a rudishva useful palm (palm of repelling – see new magic items) in a pouch, but he doesn't know its powers.

SL7-3: Ruined Guard Chamber (Submerged)

The door to this former guard chamber is stuck in a partly open position. The interior has been ruined by years of water and a full coating of chitinous 'coral'. Several sodden bits of wood and some rusted iron equipment occupy the floor of the chamber. A dead coral generating fish (see new monsters) floats near the ceiling; it appears to have been speared to death.

SL7-4: Antechamber (Submerged)

Coral generating fish have completely coated the walls and floor of this antechamber. Only the ceiling remains natural, and it glows brightly thanks to a long-forgotten continual light spell. A permanent magic mouth cast on the fourth stair riser in antiquity booms forth as soon as anyone mounts the stairs; it declaims in Mithric, "The Shrine of Unconquered Marius Beckons! Approach with Humility and Respect!" GM Note: this refers to the route from SL7-6 to 6-153, and thence to 6-154. A rotting fishman corpse rests on the landing by the secret door to area SL7-5. Three giant groupers and a lantern fish wait in the murk.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 giant grouper fish (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 60' swimming; HD 5; HP 37, 29, 23; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6; swallow prey.
2. 1 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 8; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.

SL7-5: Secret Tomb of Marius's Daughter (Partly-Submerged)

Secret Door: The door is easy to locate (1 in 4). A pencil-thick hole serves as the opening mechanism: anything inserted into the hole causes the door to grind open.

The corridor from the secret door to the tomb of Cassandra, the youngest daughter of Marius Tricotor (see 6-154), inclines gently upward. As a result, the eastern end of the corridor and the tomb itself are partly-submerged in 4' of murky water. A high relief carving of a legionary holding the hand of a young girl (5 years old) occupies the north wall, while a red granite sarcophagus stands in the center of the chamber.

Relief Carving: The legionary has close-cropped hair and gentle eyes, and his expression is one of tenderness. He wears battered, worn, legionary armor and carries a sheathed gladius. A golden torc hangs around his neck; on it is the Mithric inscription 'A father's love for his daughter.' The girl has a pair of braids and wears a simple tunic; she looks up lovingly at the legionary. The pair are of course the great Archon Marius and Cassandra, his daughter who died at the age of five. GM Note: careful inspection of the simple functionality of Marius's gear as depicted in this chamber may help those who eventually make their way to the Shrine of Marius (6-154).

Sarcophagus: The 8'x4'x4' sarcophagus is of red granite and is undecorated save for the name Kassandra inscribed on the lid. The lid is difficult to remove (open doors check). Inside are the bones of a young person, wrapped carefully in a linen shroud. Next to the body are five toys made of silver, gold, ivory, and ebony: these toys are a horse, an Archontean legionary, a lion, a peddler (GM: it is Larel One-Eye – see World of Archontos appendix), and the goddess Isis. Each toy has movable limbs and is a fine specimen of craftsmanship; each would bring 150 gp to an Archontean buyer. Should the remains or the toys be disturbed, however, the spirit of Kassandra manifests.

Spirit of Kassandra Tricotor: Little Kassandra's spirit has all the personality of a lively, mischievous five-year old girl. She is interested in play (hide and seek), in tricks, in baubles, and in other typical pursuits. She has no combat abilities, but if her toys are removed from the chamber, she will haunt the desecrator, following him/her and constantly badgering him/her for the return of her possessions. The only way to cease the hauntings is to return the toys to the tomb. Kassandra is, however, a font of information about her father, some of it even useful. If engaged politely but playfully in conversation, she can reveal her perceptions of Marius's personality (simple, honest, kind), his lack of interest in pomp and circumstance, his friendship with Lucius Cornelius Scriptor, and his victories against the 'slimy hoppers'. Of course, all information is presented from the viewpoint of a five year old.

Treasure:

Golden torc (100 gp); 5 toys made of silver, gold, ivory and ebony (150 gp each).

SL7-6: Stone Spearmen, with corridor to 6-153 (Dry)

Two Archontean animated constructs (spearmen - see new monsters) stand against the east wall. The corpses of five fishmen are strewn about the chamber. Underneath one of the corpses, in the exact center of the chamber, is a mosaic depicting a compass. By the arrow pointing 'east' is an image of a yellow hoplite helmet and the letter 'M'. [GM: a clue that the shrine of Marius lies to the east, at 6-154]. The eastern corridor descends 225' down numerous short staircases until it reaches 6-153.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 38, 33; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons.

SL7-7: Floating Bodies (Partly-Submerged)

The door to this chamber is stuck open, albeit in such a way that one must squeeze through a 20" crack to enter it. Three corpses of fishmen float in the 4'-deep water of the entry hallway. All appear to have been savaged by claws and bites.

The chamber proper was once a vibrantly-decorated sitting room for Archontean officials. Now yellow and blue streaks of paint run down the walls, and a heavy, waterlogged set of oak furniture decomposes in the water. Four more badly decayed-corporse of fishmen float in the water; two of the bodies are actually coffer corpses, which wait until one is inspected before attacking.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 coffer corpses: SZ M; AL CE; AC 8; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 15, 10; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Special attacks: strangle; fear. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm and mind-affecting spells.

SL7-8: Columned Hallway (Dry)

Two rows of red granite columns support the ceiling of this dry, but humid, chamber. A piece of living mosaic (see new magic items) is inset into the east wall: it depicts area SL7-22.

Note: This hallway is a potential destination for the teleporter at UP-11.

SL7-9: Barileon the Spectre (Dry)

The chief administrator (proedros) of the Archontean administrative center here on Sub-Level 7 lived in this chamber. It is dry, but smells musty. The walls are covered with faded and mildewy frescoes depicting Archtonean officials directing scribes, notarii, chartoularii, and so forth. A large, 10'x20' oak table stands in the southern portion of the chamber; it is littered with parchment. In the north half is a rotting bed, an oak desk, and a pair of mouse-infested leather chairs. Barileon has returned as a spectre, and he floats near the ceiling, waiting to attack any who venture within.

Most of the parchment pieces are mundane requisitions of ink, parchment, cloth, leather, and other sundries. One incomplete quire, however, is entitled Justification for the Ravatorus Project (see Arden Vul books); it contains valuable information concerning this sub-level.

Inside the locked desk drawer is Barileon's necklace of office, made of platinum with a yellow gold pendant studded with emeralds (8,500 gp).

Inhabitants:

1. Barileon the spectre: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150', 300' flying (Class B); HD 7+3; HP 49; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

Treasure:

Proedros's necklace (8,500 gp).

SL7-9A: Tunnel to Level 7 and the Great Chasm (7-148)

A 4'-diameter tunnel wends eastward from Barileon's chamber, intersecting the Great Chasm at 7-148.

SL7-10: Chamber of the Chartoularii (Dry)

Nine desks and chairs crowd this chamber. The desks have been stripped of their papers and valuables. Extended and/or noisy searching here may draw Barileon the spectre from SL7-9.

SL7-11: Fishmen Outpost (Submerged)

The door to this coral-encrusted chamber is wide open. Inside are eight fishmen sharpening their spears, as well as a pair of large lantern fish. If they hear noise in SL7-1 (33% chance) or if they are confronted in their lair, one of their number swims for the door to SL7-12 to release the barracuda.

A stout, 10'-thick column stands in the center of the chamber. It is carved in a spiral fashion, and depicts the deeds of the late-period archon, Agapion, particularly his campaigns against a tribe of giants found to the west of the city of Arden Vul. The carving is of lesser quality than that of the golden age of Archontos, but is still easy to decipher. Archontean legionaries attack a huge palisade and steading, where they fight against giants with clubs and rocks; eventually the steading burns. Agapion appears regularly as an elegant figure on horseback, pointing at the enemy with his baculus of authority. For obscure reasons, the coral generating fish have not touched the column.

Secret Compartment: A secret compartment within the column may be accessed by locating (1 in 6) and pressing a catch, which is disguised as the head of Agapion's horse. The compartment is about 2' square and contains a pale green ioun stone, a pearly white ioun stone, and the giant's tooth (see new magic items).

Inhabitants:

1. 8 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 234, 22, 20, 19, 18, 16, 15, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 2 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.
3. 2 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 4, 2; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.

Treasure:

A pale green ioun stone, a pearly white ioun stone, and the giant's tooth (see new magic items).

SL7-12: Barracuda (Submerged)

The fishmen keep four fresh-water barracuda penned in this coral-covered chamber. Both doors are shut, but not locked. If the fishmen in SL7-11 hear intruders, or if they move to engage in combat in SL7-1, one of the fishmen releases the barracuda to join the fray. The growing coral has destroyed any former decoration in this chamber.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 barracuda: SZ M; AL N; AC 6; MV 300' swimming; HD 3; HP 20, 19, 17, 14; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8.

SL7-13: Old Torture Chamber (Dry)

The door to this chamber is locked and stuck. The only remaining key may be found in the burial niches at SL6-70; even with the key, a certain amount of force is necessary to open it. Inside, the chamber is dry, albeit humid. Six sets of manacles are attached to the south wall with chains and staples; each set of manacles holds a skeleton. A long, 10'x4' table occupies the center of the room; the skeletal corpse of a rudishva still in its tattered orange jumpsuit lies atop of the table, apparently restrained by more manacles. Several severe wooden chairs are scattered about the table, and a dozen rusty and pitted torturers' implements are scattered on the floor under the table. A wooden pail sits on the table next to the rudishva corpse; in it are 57 teeth from various species, all stained with old blood, plus a ring of keys. The keys open the manacles on the wall and the table. One of the teeth is one of the teeth of Pol (see new magic items).

The skeletons attached to the south wall are those of two human males, a heqeti, a varumani, an ogre, and a human female. All six are animate, but not dangerous; all six chatter evilly but senselessly when the chamber is entered. If released, they attack. Otherwise they are harmless and can be easily battered to pieces.

The skeleton manacled to the table is that of a rudishva security officer named Naik-Lir. It appears inert and immobile at first, especially in comparison to the other skeletons in the chamber. Only if the keys are used to loosen the manacles on its wrists and ankles does it spring to life in the form of a giant rudishva skeleton (see new monsters). Once freed it issues a booming challenge (in Rudishva), demanding to know if its saviors are minions of Reiv-Tor (SL7-23); if the answer (in Rudishva) is yes, the skeleton attacks immediately. If the response is no or obvious incomprehension, then the skeleton issues general threats and departs, making its way towards SL7-22. It might be possible for a diplomatic and respectful party to converse briefly with Naik-Lir. Such conversation would elicit the following information: 1) Reiv-Tor abandoned his people in their time of need to serve the humans; 2) Reiv-Tor is obsessed with creating new life forms; 3) in the last days of Archontean rule in Arden Vul, Naik-Lir came to SL7 seeking to negotiate with the Archontean and/or Reiv-Tor, but was seized and tortured to death; 4) Naik-Lir knows nothing of the current waterlogged nature of the area, nor of the fishmen or other aquatic species; 5) Naik-Lir has a good sense of the general location of Reiv-Tor, even granted the latter's subsequent remodelling of the sub-level.

GM Note: If allowed to leave without combat, Naik-Lir heads for SL7-16. As an undead creature, he has no problem 'breathing' in submerged areas. He easily defeats the fishmen there before moving into SL7-17 and down the corridor towards SL7-20. Along the way he reduces the population of inhabitants in areas SL7-17, SL7-18, and SL7-19 (see notes in each of these areas) before being overwhelmed by the kopoacynth in SL7-20.

Inhabitants:

1. Naik-Lir, intelligent giant rudishva skeleton (see new monsters): SZ L; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8+8; HP 68; #AT 1 or 2; Dmg 3-18 (weapon) or 2-8/2-8 (bone throwing); MR 50%. Special attacks: bone throwing; sonic blast. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from sharp or edged weapons; half damage from fire; immune to sleep, charm, cold, poison, and paralysis.
2. 6 skeletons: SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 120'; HD 1; HP 8, 7, 6, 5, 5, 4; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Special defenses: immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold; cutting and piercing weapons do half damage.

Treasure:

One of the teeth of Pol (see new magic items) is in the bucket; Naik-Lir wears a rudishva communication bracelet (see new technological items); a spear gun with 6 spears (see new technological items) sits in the northwest corner.

SL7-14: Fishmen Lair (Submerged)

The door to this coral-encrusted chamber is itself completely encrusted with coral; it is stuck wide open.

Two coral generating fish are busily filling the rest of the chamber with spikes of coral that resemble stalactites and stalagmites. They make the chamber difficult to navigate (-20' to movement). A group of six fishmen inhabits the chamber. They have skewered some recently caught fish on two of the coral spikes. An incomplete coral well stands in the northwest corner.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60'; 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 22, 20, 18, 16, 15, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 8; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
3. 2 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 13, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.

Treasure:

One of the fishmen wears a foebane necklace (see new magic items).

SL7-15: Assorted Fish (Submerged)

The narrow corridor leading to this room is completely coated in coral and difficult to navigate. Four lantern fish lurk in the coral of the passage; they are constantly hungry and attack once a person has passed their position. Two giant grouper fish lurk in the room proper. They swiftly move to engage those fighting the lantern fish; of course only one can engage at a time in the narrow hallway. A skeletal giant grouper is pinned to the coral by a long sword +1 that is still stuck between its bones (its flesh was eaten by the remaining groupers). Lodged in the coral of the floor is a statuette of feline friendship.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 14, 11, 10, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.

2. 2 giant grouper fish (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 60' swimming; HD 5; HP 33, 29; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6; swallow prey.
3. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 8; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
4. 2 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 3, 2; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.

Treasure:

Long sword +1; statuette of feline friendship (see new magic items).

SL7-16: Fishmen Lair (Submerged)

Four fishmen lurk in the gloom of this coral-encrusted chamber. The door to SL7-17 is stuck open. The fishmen have constructed a small (2'-tall) idol that is meant to represent Reiv-Tor. It is made of shaped bits of coral, to which have been attached a small lump of arcanum (see new magic items), two large pearls (200 gp each), and an ivory cameo of an Archontean imperial official (75 gp).

GM Note: If Naik-Lir has been released from confinement (see area SL7-13), he will have slain all four fishmen here.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5 (4 with bracers); MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. Possessions: One of the fishmen is wearing a set of bracers of defense (AC 4).

Treasure:

One of the fishmen wears a gold ankle bracelet (150 gp). Two large pearls (200 gp each); ivory cameo (75 gp). One wears bracers of defense (AC 4).

SL7-17: Giant Clams (Submerged)

The coral in this room is substantially thicker than elsewhere. This allows the three giant clams that reside here greater opportunity for camouflage; they surprise on a 3 in 6 chance.

GM Note: If Naik-Lir has been released (see SL7-13), he will have slain one of the clams and reduced another to half hit points.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 giant clams (see new monsters): SZ L; AC 0; MV 10' swimming; HD 9; HP 62, 59, 55; #AT 1; Dmg 1-10. Special attacks: surprise on 1-3 in 6; trap victim on hit.
2. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150'; HD 2; HP 13, 10; #AT 1; Dmg special (chitin)

Treasure:

Three black pearls (500 gp, 1,000 gp, 1,500 gp), one each lodged in a clam's gullet.

SL7-18: Coral Face (Submerged)

Six fishmen and numerous fish inhabit this coral-encrusted chamber. On the south wall the coral mysteriously takes the form of a woman's face some 10' in diameter. The face is a manifestation of Wadjet, the ancient Archontean deity of protection, a shrine to whom existed here in antiquity. The identity of the face will be difficult for PCs to discern without divination magic. If Wadjet is beseeched by name before the coral face, she grants boons in the form of air bubbles that emanate from her coral 'lips'. She grants no more than 3 boons per week, and only one per person. The bubbles appear as 2'-diameter air bubbles, and are activated when the beseecher touches the bubble. Roll to see what effect they have:

D6	Boon
1	Water breathing: the bubble fastens itself around the head of the beseecher. For the next 24 hours the recipient can breathe in water as well as air.
2	Blessing: the bubble fastens itself around the head of the beseecher. For 6 hours, the recipient is under the effect of a bless spell.
3	Fortitude: the bubble pops, but provides 6 hours of protection against fear (+4 to saves).
4	Righteous Anger: the bubble pops, but provides the recipient with +1 to hit and damage for 6 hours
5	Healing: the bubble pops, but heals 3-24 of damage on the beseecher.
6	Protection from water-based creatures: the bubble fastens itself around the beseecher's head. For 3 hours the recipient's AC is improved by one versus all water-based or water-dwelling creatures.

GM Note: If Naik-Lir has been released from SL7-13, 3 of the fishmen here will be dead.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 22, 20, 18, 17, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 1 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 11; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.
3. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 8; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
4. 1 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 2; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.

SL7-19: Still More Fishmen (Mostly Submerged)

The murky water stands 15' deep in this 25'-tall chamber. Unless explorers specifically look for it, they may miss the fact that a ledge leading to dry chambers rests at the waterline on the north wall. Coral covers the floor and all the submerged walls. A sloping pile of coral against the north wall conceals a stairway that once led up to the ledge. The door at the north edge of the ledge is locked and stuck; its key disappeared centuries ago. Eight fishmen reside here.

GM Note: If Naik-Lir has been released from SL7-13, then 3 of the fishmen living here will be dead.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 20, 18, 16, 16, 15, 13; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 1 spy fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7 or 3; MV 150' swimming; HD 1-4 HP; HP 2; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special: blind.
3. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 8; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.

Treasure:

One of the fishmen wears a necklace of adaptation, although it appears as a simple coral necklace.

SL7-20: Crossroads Wells (Partly-Submerged)

This chamber has a vaguely gothic feel to it, as five statues of winged, monkey-like beings sit on ledges set on the walls. Two of the statues sit on ledges on the east wall, two more on the west wall, and one on the south wall (although cautious observers may notice an empty ledge on the south wall). The statues are kopoacinch (water gargoyles), which swiftly attack any non-fishmen who enter the chamber.

Three wells, each 4' tall, 4' in diameter, and made out of the ubiquitous chitinous coral, stand in the center of the chamber. The wells are 35' deep and filled with murky water. They lead, via submerged, coral-ized tunnels 6' in diameter, to other parts of Reiv-Tor's domain.

For every turn spent in this chamber there is a 1 in 6 chance that 1-3 fishmen emerge from one of the wells.

GM Note: If Naik-Lir was released from SL7-13, his corpse will be floating in the water here.

Inhabitants:

1. 5 kopoacinch (water gargoyles): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 90', 150' swimming; HD 4+4; HP 31, 28, 26, 25, 21; #AT 4; Dmg 1-3/1-3/1-6/1-4. Special defenses: Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit.
2. 1 in 6 chance for 1-3 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

Treasure:

If Naik-Lir's corpse is here, his rudishva communication bracelet (see new technological items) is also present.

SL7-21: Well Chamber (Partly-Submerged)

Two coral wells occupy this chamber. Nothing else is present, although there is a 1 in 6 chance per turn spent in this chamber that 1-3 fishmen emerge from one of the wells. Days spent chipping away the coral would reveal that this chamber was originally connected to both SL7-20 and SL7-22.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 in 6 chance for 1-3 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

SL7-22: Gateway to Reiv-Tor (Partly Submerged)

This ancient Archontean meeting hall was one of the first to be modified extensively by Reiv-Tor and his fishmen. Indeed, before their expansion into the rest of Sub-Level 7 this was the main residence for the fishmen. It still provides the only route to Reiv-Tor's lair and lab.

The ceiling rises 30' above the floor. Murky water sits 4' deep on the floor, and coral coats the walls from floor to waterline. Four colossal statues dominate the chamber. Three coral wells are also present, two along the eastern wall and one in the center of the chamber. The tunnel beneath the south-eastern well is unfinished.

Ten fishmen and assorted fish dwell here, guarding the approaches to Reiv-Tor's lair. Three prisoners are tied to the statues by ropes; they are awaiting transfer to Reiv-Tor's lab for transformation into fishmen.

Statues: The statues stand 20' tall and are water stained and algae-encrusted. Erected in the last century of Archontean rule in Arden Vul, they reflect the pinnacle of Archontean artistic hyper-realism. The (submerged) plinth of each statue carries an inscription in Mithric with the name of each subject. Manipulation of the statues is a puzzle, which can lead the clever to some treasure.

North: Alcibiades the Hunter

The famed hero Alcibiades is depicted in a huntsman's leathers, leaning casually on his great bow while gesturing to the north with his left hand. His long hair is held back by a circlet.

East: Phocion the Builder

A well-known (in antiquity) architect and planner of public works, Phocion leans against a half-column while holding a level and a set of dividers. Phocion has neatly trimmed hair and beard, and wears a simple tunic with a belt pouch (for Phocion's tomb, see 8-142).

South: Clandius the Centurion

The details of Clandius's fame are lost to time. He points south with his gladius, while peering over his left shoulder (towards Phocion). His legionary gear is standard. A woven bag with a few of the fishmen's valuables is slung across his gladius.

West: Marcion the Sorcerer

Dressed in a stiff-necked robe, Marcion glares ominously to the west, with twin wands held across his chest. He wears a skull cap and has pointed eyebrows.

Puzzle: One of Marcion's wands is removable, and made of iron painted to resemble the granite of the statue. It can be detected as a secret door. If the wand is removed, it becomes apparent that it is, in fact, an arrow. The wand/arrow may be nocked in Alcibiades's bow; doing so activates a hidden catch (on Alcibiades's leg, where the arrow/wand rests while nocked). The catch opens a hidden compartment concealed behind Phocion's belt pouch. Within the compartment are ten alexandrites (500 gp each) and a ring of water breathing (see new magic items).

Inhabitants:

1. 10 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60'; 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 24, 22, 21, 20, 19, 18, 17, 16, 15, 13; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.
2. 1 lantern fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 8 or 4; MV 120' swimming; HD 2; HP 12; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: blind.
3. 2 coral generating fish (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 150' swimming; HD 2; HP 12, 9; #AT 1; Dmg none. Special attacks: chitin spray degrades armor.
4. 1 giant grouper fish (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 60' swimming; HD 5; HP 37; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: surprise on 3 in 6; swallow prey.
5. Hall, male Wiskin: SZ M; AL LN; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 1-6 HP; HP 2 (max 5); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Hall was a torch-bearer captured by the fishmen in SL6. He is roped to the statue of Phocion.
6. Bartimaeus Greenliver, 2nd-level male halfling fighter: SZ S; AL NE; AC 8; MV 90'; HD 2; HP 10 (max 15); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 16, INT 9, WIS 13, DEX 16, CON 15, CHA 7. Bartimaeus was one of Phlebotomas Plumthorn's thugs (see 3-5) who fell out with his boss and went 'exploring' in Arden Vul. This proved to be a mistake, as he was captured by the Set Cult (Level 4) and then traded to the lizardmen (Sub-Level 5). He proved valuable as a scout, and accompanied the lizardmen to Sub-Level 6, where he was taken in an ambush. Bartimaeus has a good sense of the layout of Level 4 and Sub-Levels 5, 6 and 7. He has no equipment, and is roped to the statue of Alcibiades.
7. Petronia, 3rd-level female Archontean thief: SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 120'; HD 3; HP 16, down to 7; #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 9, INT 11, WIS 13, DEX 16, CON 9, CHA 15. Thief skills: 40%, OL 38%, F/RT 30%, MS 27%, HS 20%, HN 15%, CW 87%. Petronia was captured at the same time as Hall, while their party was exploring SL6. Her equipment is gone. She knows how to get from Level 4 to Sub-Level 5 (i.e., from 4-165 to 5-1), and thence to Sub-Level 6 (i.e., from SL5-47 to SL6-36).

Treasure:

Hidden compartment: 10 alexandrites (500 gp each), and a ring of water breathing (see new magic items).

In a woven bag slung across Clandius's gladius: 177 sp, 83 gp, a golden conch shell (230 gp), and three pearls (100 gp each).

SL7-23: Lair of Reiv-Tor (Partly-Submerged)

This vast, 25'-tall, circular chamber is the home and laboratory of the deranged rudishva, Reiv-Tor. It is awash in water (4' deep), with coralized floor and walls (to the 4' mark). A coral well rises 3' from the floor in the center of the chamber; it allows access to the rest of Reiv-Tor's domain via an underground, coralized passage to SL7-22. Vestiges of an Archontean fresco run around the upper register of the chamber; they appear to show a civic procession, with notables in togas carrying urns and small busts (of their ancestors). The eastern stairwell descends to a completely blocked, rubble-filled hallway.

The dominant feature of the chamber, however, are the nine huge cylinders that line the northwest, northeast, and southeast walls of the chamber. Smaller tubes of bio-plas snake from the tops of the cylinders to a separate, 8'-tall plasteel basin that burbles with yellow neuroderm (see new technological items).

The chamber is the home and laboratory of the deranged ancient rudishva, Reiv-Tor. Here Reiv-Tor transforms sentient creatures into fishmen, while conducting other experiments about piscine matters. He is typically assisted by 4 fishmen, and protected by 8 eels that swim freely in the warm waters of the chamber.

Cylinders: Reiv-Tor brought the nine cylinders and the neuroderm basin from other portions of the halls during the collapse of the Archontean hegemony. Originally containment units used for cryogenic storage (e.g. SL2-2), Reiv-Tor repurposed the cylinders to use in his transformation experiments. Currently they hold the bodies of those captured by his fishmen, bodies which are being transformed by the neuroderm into new fishmen.

The cylinders are made of plasteel, with plasglass panels on the front allowing access. Each cylinder is connected to the main basin of neuroderm via a flexible, bio-plas tube attached to its top. One of the nine is fatally broken, but the other eight hold creatures in various stages of transformation into fishmen. Three of the subjects were once human, one was once an elf, and five were once lizardmen. Although PCs might harbor hopes of saving those undergoing transformation, the initial stages of the process destroy the subjects' previous identities and memories; as a result, releasing the inhabitants will not necessarily restore them to their previous state. That said, each subject is at a slightly different stage of transformation, and might react slightly differently to being released. Roll d6 twice and consult the following table, once to determine the stage of transformation and once to determine the reaction of a released creature:

D6	Stage of Transformation	Reaction
1	Early: feet webbed and enlarged	Catatonic. Will die of self-neglect in 4-7 days
2	Early: feet and hands webbed and enlarged	Catatonic. Will die of self-neglect in 4-7 days
3	Middle: feet and hands webbed, skin green but dry	Purposeless wandering. Moves in a random direction; takes no aggressive action
4	Middle: feet and hands webbed, skin green and dripping	Purposeless wandering in a random direction; attacks if impeded
5	Late: feet and hands webbed, skin green and dripping, face partially transformed	Attacks any non-fishmen immediately.
6	Late: a full fishman (see new monsters)	Attacks all those nearby immediately, mouthing wordless cries

Operating the Cylinders and Neuroderm: A plasteel console on the side of the basin is used to control the supply of neuroderm to the cylinders. The console features three buttons, a smoky grey-glass screen, thirteen 3" slots, and a larger, 6"-wide slot. One button activates the console, turning the screen on and allowing selection of genetic properties via the touch screen. A second button opens the glass-plas screen of a selected cylinder. The third button activates the flow of neuroderm from the pool to the selected cylinder. The second and third buttons can only be operated if a control card has been inserted into the containment unit selected from the view-screen. Six of the slots are currently filled.

To remove an inhabitant from a unit, therefore, requires the following actions: power on, selection of appropriate unit on touch-screen, removal of control card, depressing the second button.

Reiv-Tor: Like his colleagues, the Arena Lord (6-85) and Psalor-Ki (5-74), Reiv-Tor is one of the few remaining rudishva from the Beacon. Just as insane as his former friends, Reiv-Tor has partly transformed his own body into an enormous fish-thing. His green, scaly, skin drips ichor, while his feet and hands are elongated and webbed. His head retains the characteristic horns of the rudishva, but is otherwise altered to give it a prominent, fin-like ridge in its center, plus flaring gills. Despite his fearsome appearance and his undoubted insanity, Reiv-Tor speaks multiple languages and knows quite a bit about the Halls. There is a 20% chance that he negotiates with visitors; in such cases he can offer explanations for the transformation of Sub-Level 7 and might provide directions to the main public areas of Levels 3, 4, 5 and 6 (he knows nothing of tombs or secret chambers, though). Reiv-Tor is utterly unstable, though, and there is a 50% chance per turn of negotiation that he decides to add visitors to his growing band of fishmen.

Inhabitants:

1. Reiv-Tor, transformed rudishva (see new monsters): SZ L; AL CE; AC 2; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 9; HP 61; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10 (trident of Reiv-Tor), 3-8 (spear gun); MR 20%. Special attacks: attacks as a 9th-level fighter. Implants: medical (regenerate 2 hp/round, 50% immunity to disease and poison); microprocessor (INT 18, +25% to reaction rolls); shield (AC 2; hit only by magic); metabolism (reduced aging, reduced need for food). Possessions: trident of Reiv-Tor (see new magic items); rudishva spear gun with special modifications (see new technological items); three potions of watery form (see new magic items); two potions of speed; silver rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items); control card for neuroderm basin; keys to the great pillar (c.f., 6-103), appearing as 1'-long, 3"-diameter, grey plasteel rods with a notched, 1"-tall flange on each end.

2. 2 fishman chiefs (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 3; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 5; HP 35, 29; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 2-7/2-7 or 3-9 (trident); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison. Possessions: trident.

3. 4 fishmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 5; MV 60', 150' swimming; HD 3+1; HP 20, 18, 16, 15; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-3/1-3 or 2-7 (bone club, spear or javelin); MR 10%. Special attacks: paralyzing mucus. Special defenses: immune to cold and poison.

4. 4 electric eels: SZ M; AL N; AC 9; MV 720' swimming; HD 2; HP 15, 12, 11, 10; #AT 1; Dmg 1-3. Special attacks: jolt.

5. 4 blood eels (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 7;

MV 120' swimming; HD 3; HP 21, 19, 18, 17; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: drain blood; 5% chance for disease.

SL7-24: Reiv-Tor's Chamber and Laboratory (Dry)

This dry ell is reached from SL7-23 via a rickety ladder; it is 10' above the floor of the main chamber. Here Reiv-Tor has a private refuge for resting, experimenting with chemicals, and keeping his important treasure.

The chamber is undecorated. Reiv-Tor's hammock hangs in the southeast corner, next to a tripod of warmth (see new magic items) over which a pot of fish stew burbles. Underneath the hammock is a troll chest (see new technological items) keyed to Reiv-Tor. The west wall is occupied by a full alchemical apparatus (3,000 gp). A rudishva fire extinguisher (see new technological items) sits on the bench top.

Treasure:

Alchemical laboratory: in addition to the equipment itself, Reiv-Tor has 24 rare specimens of monster parts and plants (worth 1-100 gp each), a dozen white pearls (100 gp each), and potions of sweetwater, polymorph, human control, animal control, three potions of watery form (see new magic items); and three potions of water-breathing (see new magic items). Six rudishva implants (see new monsters – rudishva – for details) and a laser pistol (see new technological items) have been opened up on the workbench, with tiny colored bits of plasteel and small wires scattered nearby.

Troll Chest (see new technological items): a set of six platinum figures of the nataraja dancer, 6" tall and studded with small precious stones (650 gp each, 5,000 gp the set); a small ivory coffer (175 gp) filled with 25 tourmalines (100 gp each); a large iron box filled with 771 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), 311 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), 1,912 sp and 291 gp; a set of silver Banion's dice (see new magic items); a heqeti amulet of swimming (see new magic items); 1-3 samples of each of the rudishva implants (see new monsters – rudishva – for details); six empty and 2 full rudishva lesser power supplies; a pair of communications bracelets; and a laser pistol (see new technological items for the last three items).

SL7-25: Chamber of Bones (Partly-Submerged)

The water that partly floods this small chamber is filled with bones. Most of the bones are from lizardmen or humans and represent the discarded remains of the fishermen's meals. The stairs leading east descend 20' into a short water-filled passageway. There is a 20% chance that one of the crocodiles from SL7-26 has swum through the passageway to scavenge for food scraps among the bones; if it is encountered here, it should be removed from the roster in SL7-26.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 crocodile (20% chance): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 3; HP 18; #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/1-12. Special attacks: surprise on 1-3.

SL7-26: Hall with Overlook (Partly-Submerged)

This 20' tall chamber is brightly lit by a continual light spell cast here in antiquity. Its main, western reaches are covered with 4' of mostly-stagnant water. A balcony overlooks the east end, however; it is 10' above the floor (and 6' above the water level). A mound of detritus – muck, bones, and two collapsed pillars – occupies the middle of the chamber. Eight crocodiles inhabit the chamber; they frequently rest on the pile of detritus, but are adept at striking from the water as well.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 crocodiles: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 3; HP 24, 23, 22, 21, 20, 19, 18, 17; #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/1-12. Special attacks: surprise on 1-3.

SL7-27: Pillared Hall (Dry; Partly-Submerged)

Another bi-level hall, the western end is 10' below the floor of the main chamber. Given the new coralized well dug by the fishermen into the western alcove, the western section is under 4' of water. The main section, though, is dry, and features eight beautiful blue-granite columns and a long central mosaic set between the columns. The mosaic tells a story in episodes running from west to east: the episodes are scenes from the famous Labors of Arden, and depict Labors 2, 3, 5 and 8 (see Twelve Labors of Arden in Arden Vul books). In the apse at the east end is a statue of Arden the warrior, dressed in legionary garb and resting on her famous spear. Four wights prowl among the columns.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 wights: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 4+3; HP 33, 30, 27, 25; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: silver or magic needed to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

SL7-28: Looted Armory (Dry)

This small chamber served as an armory during the Archontean era. Ten racks for armor are present, as well as four large weapons racks. Most of the equipment, however, is gone, with a few choice exceptions. The floor is littered with a 2' layer of broken bits of metal and shredded pieces of leather (clearly the remains of the equipment that once rested here).

Secret Door (north): The door is normal to detect, but only opens when a spear haft is thrust into a hole set in the ceiling above the secret door.

Treasure:

Hidden in the litter is a two-handed sword +2, and a set of imperial field plate +1 (see Arden Vul items).

SL7-29: Tomb of Erdenion Thrice-Blessed (Dry)

This 25'-tall chamber serves as the tomb of Arden's last surviving relative, Erdenion. Her sarcophagus rests on a plinth in the center of the chamber; it is a massive piece of obsidian, 10'x4'x6' in size, with an inscription in silver Mithric letters running along all four sides. The walls are painted cerulean blue and depict a female archontean in a variety of archetypal poses both martial and peaceful: leaning on a spear, thrusting her spear, casting a spear overhand, gesturing with a baton of authority, holding a set of judicial scales, and strumming a lute. To the north is a statue of Erdenion, again as a legionary leaning on her spear; close examination shows that the spear is a real (and magical) spear, painted to resemble the granite of the statue. The spear is Erdenion's spear (see new magic items), a potent weapon and the item needed to open the sarcophagus.

Sarcophagus: The obsidian sarcophagus is heavy and solid-seeming, although a crack for a lid is apparent. The inscription reads, in Mithric: "The famous warrior, Erdenion, beloved daughter of the line of Arden the Great, rests within. Touch not, lest you suffer the agony of all thieves." The sarcophagus is dotted with neatly drilled holes, each about 1" in diameter and  $\frac{3}{4}$ " deep (none penetrate the 4"-thick walls of the sarcophagus). The lid of the sarcophagus is enchanted, such that only by applying the proper object to the proper hole can the lid be budged. The proper object is Erdenion's spear, and the proper hole is the third hole in the fifth row of holes on the west side of the sarcophagus. Erdenion's spear is held in the hand of the statue to the north, while a thief who rolls a successful open lock check can identify the proper hole. Those using trial by error have a 1% chance of successfully guessing the right hole. If they guess incorrectly or use an object other than Erdenion's spear to activate the sarcophagus, they trigger one of several traps.

Traps (sarcophagus): The sarcophagus is triply trapped. Any manipulation of the an incorrect hole, or even manipulation of the correct hole by anything other than Erdenion's spear, triggers a trap. The first incorrect manipulation causes an audible 'click' and the sound of shattering glass from within the sarcophagus (as the scrolls and potions within are destroyed by acid). The second incorrect manipulation causes the statue of Erdenion to rumble to life as an enhanced Archontean animated construct (animated spearman). If the sarcophagus is manipulated incorrectly a third time, the ceiling of the chamber caves in, inflicting 6-48 HP damage on all within the chamber. At that point the sarcophagus is impossible to open short of powerful magic (e.g., knock cast by a 10th-level or better magic user).

GM Note: Despite the heroic imagery of the tomb, Erdenion was a woman of little accomplishment, who traded on her famous ancestry to secure an appointment in the administrative hierarchy of Arden Vul.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 enhanced Archontean animated construct - spearmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 10; HP 68; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons. Regardless of whether she uses her spear or her fists, she strikes once per round for 5-10 HP damage.

Treasure:

Erdenion's spear (see new magic items).

Sarcophagus: six scrolls (see below); a genealogy of the lineage of Arden extending from Arden's grandparents to Erdenion (i.e., fifteen generations), worth 2,500 gp to a courtier in Archontos or Narsileon; 1,774 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items); 863 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); the horn of Arden (see new magic items); and six potions, of the berserk, deafening light, extra healing (x2), hostile levitation, and molasses (see new magic items for all but the potions of extra healing).

Scrolls: limited wish, statue; legend lore; airy water, transmute water to dust; stoneskin, stone shape; dispel magic, transmute rock to mud; knock.

SL7-30: Thothian Teleportation Ring (Dry)

At the end of the corridor is a set of 2"-tall paving stones arranged in a 6'-diameter ring. Inset into the floor next to the ring is a rectangle 48" long by 8" tall; the rectangle is divided into six interior compartments, each 8" square. Together these elements form a Thothian teleportation ring (see new magic items). To activate the ring, one must place six colored glass activation squares into the inset according to a sequence that matches the 'address' of the ring to which one wishes to travel. Once the squares are placed, a brief shimmer of energy is visible over the ring. At this point the user has 1 round to collect the squares and enter the ring, after which anyone in the ring is teleported without error to address indicated by that sequence of squares. If the glass activation squares are not collected and/or if the travelers do not possess a second set of them, they are likely to be stranded in the location to which they have just teleported. The address of this ring is as follows: YE-RE-BL-GR-BK-WH (see new magic items for explanation).

Incredibly, a full set of the glass activation squares rest inside the inset. They are arranged in this sequence: black-red-yellow-green-blue-white; this is the address to the ring in area SL4-49.

Secret Door (east): The door in the hallway is normal to find. It is locked but the key is long gone; picking the lock or bashing in the door are the only ways to open it.

SL7-31: Spiral Staircase Down to Level 7 (7-119) (Dry)

This well-carved staircase leads down 425' to area 7-119 in the domain of the vampire, Cinna Minux (see 7-122).

SL7-32: Chamber of the Stone Circles (Dry)

This chamber features a pair of concentric circles inset into the stone floor; the walls are undecorated. The larger circle is 10' in diameter and made of white marble; the inner circle is 4' in diameter and made of red granite.

SL7-33: Closet (Dry)

A row of mostly-rotted wooden shelves occupies the north and west walls of this small chamber. They are empty save for a single ivory coffer.

Secret Door (north): This door is difficult to locate (1 in 8) due to its location behind the crumbling wooden shelving. It is opened by applying sheer force.

Treasure:

The ivory coffer is worth 250 gp, and is inscribed in Elvish with the words 'Stones of Passage'. Within the coffer are seven polished pieces of red granite, each about 3" in height. Each is a stone of passage (see new magic items).

SL7-34: Tomb of Grenfell the Elusive (Dry)

This 30'-tall chamber features an impressive barrel-vaulted ceiling and a prominent sarcophagus on a raised dais. The wall frescoes depict an orange-robed figure directing workers in construction projects, gesturing at an indeterminate monstrous figure with a wand, and whispering into the ear of an archon. Alas, it appears that the tomb was looted long ago, for the lid of the sarcophagus lies shattered on the floor and nothing more than bones and tatters of cloth occupy its interior. A lone inscription in Mithric runs along the long side of the sarcophagus: "Grenfell the Great, as elusive as he was powerful."

True Tomb: The true sarcophagus is invisible, and is attached to the ceiling of the chamber. Only detect invisibility, true seeing, or something comparable will detect its presence. Of course a PC that blundered about near the ceiling would easily run into the 5'x5'x10' projection attached to the center of the ceiling. Unlike most sarcophagi, which open on top, the lid of this hidden sarcophagus is on the bottom; the lid is made of ebony wood (carved with the name of its inhabitant – worth 275 gp), and slides into grooves in the stone sides of the object. Opening the tomb releases 6 shadows, the mummified corpse of Grenfell the Elusive, and a scattering of treasure, all of which fall immediately to the floor some 20' below. The two alabaster urns inside the sarcophagus will do 2-12 HP damage to up to two randomly determined PCs below the sarcophagus; successfully rolling 3d6 under DEX means the PC has avoided a falling urn.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 shadows: SZ M; AL CE; AC 7; MV 120; HD 3+3; HP 24, 23, 20, 18, 18, 17; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: 90% undetectable; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold.

Treasure:

Carved ebony lid with name Grenfell the Elusive (275 gp)
Within the sarcophagus: an alabaster urn (45 gp) with 547 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items); another alabaster urn (45 gp) with 547 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); a delicate gold sculpture of an Archontean legionary battling a troll (500 gp intact; 225 gp if allowed to drop to the floor); a helm of underwater action; a scroll with rope trick, massmorph, and maze; a wand of wonder (10 charges); and a wand of spectral force with 17 charges (see new magic items).

SL7-35: Chamber of the Impermeable Curtain (Dry)

A invisible 'curtain' of impenetrable energy runs from north to south through this chamber. The curtain is analogous to a permanent wall of force in that it is unaffected by attacks or spells; it differs, however, by being flexible and inflicting 1-4 HP of electrical damage on any who touch it without one of the stones of passage (see SL7-33). The curtain is difficult to detect (as a secret door), a fact which makes it entirely possible for PCs to walk into it or through it. Those walking into the curtain from the east pass through it automatically, with only a flicker of energy to show they have passed through the barrier. Those walking into the curtain from the west side, however, will be almost entirely enveloped by the curtain (taking 1-4 HP damage, of course) before they recognize its existence. Only if one is carrying a stone of passage (see new magic items and area SL7-33) can one pass through the curtain. The following inscription is found incised in Mithric above both eastern and western exits in 3'-tall, silver-filled letters: 'By order of the archon, none shall pass save those with proper authorization.'

SL7-36: Roper Cave (Dry)

The mouth of this cave is 20' below the level of the bridge across the chasm (SL7-37), but the floor of the cave slopes up dramatically as it proceeds to the narrow passage in the northeast corner. The second lobe of the cave (by SL7-34) is flatter, but filled with stalactites and stalagmites. Among the rock formations is a very hungry roper, trapped here by the presence of the chasm cephalopods in SL7-37. The door to SL7-34 is hidden behind a stalagmite.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 roper: SZ L; AL CE; AC 0; MV 30'; HD 11; HP 67; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20; MR 80%. Special attacks: six poisonous strands (20'-50' range; reduce STR by 50% in 1-3 rds). Special defenses: immune to lightning; take half damage from cold.

Treasure:

4 aquamarines (500 gp each) in the roper's gullet.

SL7-37: Lesser chasm with Tunnel to Level 4 (4-76) (Dry)

A small natural chasm runs from southwest to northeast; it is 60' in length, about 30' in width, and 55' in height. A slender stone bridge (3' wide) runs from the northwest side to area SL7-38. The tunnel to the north and west corkscrews steeply upward to area 4-76. A pod of medium chasm cephalopods occupies the chasm.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 32, 27, 26, 25, 24, 23; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4.

SL7-38: Landing (Dry)

The landing on the southeast side of the lesser chasm is of worked stone. Three skeletons of human adventurers lie on the pavement, victims of the chasm cephalopods. They still bear some treasure.

Treasure:

Rope of climbing; a pouch with 347 sp and 179 gp; a potion of extra healing; a long sword; six daggers; leather armor +1; and a scroll of protection from demons.

SL7-39: Crossroads (Dry)

Three unfinished hallways lead from this crossroads. At the end of the eastern hallway the skeletal remains of two humans in ragged tunics appear stretched out towards an ivory coffer. The treasure is a coffer of Zox (see new magic items), and the remains are those of two slaves who escaped from the Forum of Set (4-2) only to be slain by the powers released from the coffer. Should the GM wish to expand Arden Vul, these hallways could be developed to lead to new areas.

Treasure:

Coffer of Zox (see new magic items), containing two wights, three ghouls, and six zombies.

SUB-LEVEL 8: THE CAVES BEHIND THE FALLS

Behind the great waterfall that cascades down the cliff face of Arden Vul lies a small and almost unknown network of caves. In antiquity the temple of Set used these caves to develop and breed the several species of the Set animals (see new monsters) that are holy to Set. The modern cult rediscovered the cave system about fifteen years ago and is attempting to revive the breeding of Set animals. They have been stymied by their ignorance of the specifics and extent of the old breeding program, as well as by the fact that they have been unable to discover the old breeding labs (areas SL8-17 to SL8-23) due to the major tunnel collapse at area SL8-10. As a result, their efforts have been fairly limited, producing only some lesser specimens in the areas SL8-5 and SL8-7. They are unaware of the fact that access to the old facilities and to an independent strain of greater Set animals is still possible, but only if one is able to traverse the underwater tunnels of area SL8-6.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Archontean areas: SL8-9, SL8-13A, SL8-17 to SL8-24

FACTIONS

Although the Set cult is the only faction aware of this sub-level, it does not yet fully control the region.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Exterior: cave at SL8-1, leading to the cliff face at EX-16

To Level 4: stairs at SL8-19, leading up to 4-162

To Sub-Level 9: ledge at SL8-15, leading down to SL9-1

To Sub-Level 13: stairs at SL8-24, leading down to SL13-29

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS:

Random encounters in this sub-level work a bit differently. Areas SL8-11 to SL8-24 have no random encounters at all. In the southern section of the level, however, it is possible for the inhabitants of SL8-5 or SL8-7 to wander about. This means that if PCs investigate SL8-3 to SL8-10 first, there is a chance that either the Set guardsmen or the Set animals in SL8-5 will wander to the west. The same holds in reverse: if PCs investigate SL8-5 first, there is a chance that some portion of the Set cult or Set animals in SL8-7 will wander to the east. GM should check every four turns, with a 1 in 6 chance for one of the residents to begin 'wandering'.

LEVEL KEY

SL8-1: Cave in the Cliff Face (aka EX-16)

Hidden behind the waterfall that pours down the cliff face of Arden Vul is this small cave. Only 15' wide, the cave entrance is slick with spray. The noise of the waterfall makes it impossible to communicate orally (or to perform listen checks).

The cave is invisible to viewers from the valley floor, and is extremely difficult to find (detect as a secret door) even for those flying or hovering in front of the Falls.

The most likely way for adventurers to locate the cave from the exterior is for them to notice the narrow path (2' wide) that hugs the cliff face as it descends from area EX-14 before disappearing behind the waterfall and connecting to this cave. Those standing at EX-14 have a 1 in 6 chance (3 in 8 for rangers) to notice the path. In order to successfully navigate the path, adventurers must roll 4d6 under DEX or plunge to their deaths below. Thieves, of course, need not make this roll. A party that ropes itself together increases its chances: the roll is improved to 3d6 under DEX, with a -1 modifier to the roll for every roped thief.

Those approaching the cave from the north, that is, from within the cliff itself (via SL8-2) have no difficulty locating the narrow path that leads up to EX-14.

Those who first discover the cave from the exterior find that the cave opening quickly narrows into a tunnel that slopes steeply downward. After 30' the tunnel ends in a stone door that is wizard locked (at the 12th level of casting). A large key-hole is evident, but the lock resists picking (-10% to open locks). Ten keys to the lock were made. The locations of four are known to the cult of Set (4-47, 4-51, 4-56, 4-57), while the other six are thought to be lost. In fact, the other six may be found at these locations: AV-29, 4-2 (see Meral the Key-monger), 4-142, 5-30, 6-138, and 7-76C.

GM Note: The cave opening is about 450' above the valley floor and 1050' below the level of the plateau on which the city of Arden Vul lies.

SL8-2: Guardian Constructs

Two archontean animated constructs (see new monsters), in the form of jackal-headed humans carrying stone axes, stand in this flattened and widened tunnel. They attack anyone who does not present a holy symbol of Set. They pursue fleeing intruders to the stone door at SL8-1 and into SL8-5, but are unable to fit into SL8-4 or the tunnel leading to SL8-3.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 Archontean animated constructs - spearmen (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 6; HP 38, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells; +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from slashing or piercing weapons.

SL8-3: Supply Caves

The modern Set cult has established a supply depot of sorts in this lobed cave. The western lobe holds three nailed crates holding dried vegetables, sacks of ground meal, and dried meats. The southern lobe holds six javelins, three 'man-catcher'-style devices, four 15'x15' weighted nets, a pair of bespoke, rigid, boiled-leather suits (AC 6, but with MV 30'). The boiled-leather suits were designed for use in handling the Set animals (so as to avoid the animals' stings). A locked iron case (3'x1'x1') contains three smoke pots; when lit these devices emit a narcotic gas: save versus breath weapons or move at half speed and suffer -2 penalties to all rolls for 1 hour.

SL8-4: Watery Tunnel

This narrow (4'-wide) tunnel slopes down steeply. The final 20' of it are filled from floor to ceiling with water. A lime-encrusted skeleton of an ancient Set priest lies within the water, just before the tunnel enters area SL8-6B. The skeleton is that of one of the priests involved in the ancient cult's Set animal breeding program. His skull was crushed by a heavy, blunt object (see note at SL8-8). The priest's equipment is gone, save for a broken deacon's was stick (see new magic items).

SL8-5: Set Animal Cave

This 35'-tall cavern is marked by two twisting rock pillars that rise from floor to ceiling. The floor is uneven, with many dips, projections, and folds. Six Set animals (see new monsters) are racing around the cavern, chasing a pair of goats under the uneasy eyes of a pair of Set guardsmen (see new monsters).

Inhabitants:

1. 6 Set animals (see new monsters): SZ S; AL LE; AC 5; MV 150'; HD 2; HP 15, 14, 13, 12, 11, 11; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: venom; jump; confusion; dispel magic 1/day.
2. 2 goats: SZ M; AL N; AC 7, MV 150'; HD 1+2; HP 7; #AT 1; Dmg 1-3. Special attacks: charge.
3. 2 Set guardsmen (see new monsters), as 2nd-level Archontean fighters: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 17, 12; #AT 1, Dmg 2-7 (mace), 1-6 (spear) and 1-4 (light crossbow). Special defense: fanaticism. Possessions: red scale mail and wooden shield; footman's maces; spears; light crossbows with 20 bolts.

SL8-6: Tripartite Pool

This pool has three separate areas connected by tunnels. The water is cold and slightly opaque due to sediment and the activity of the Set animals. All three sections of the pool are 40' deep.

The tunnel between SL8-6A and SL8-6B lies at a point 20' below the surface of the water, while the other two tunnels (from SL8-6A to SL8-6C and from SL8-6B to SL8-6C) commence at a point 30' below the surface of the water. The modern Set cult is unaware of the underwater tunnels.

SL8-7: Set Animal Cave

This large cave has a 30' ceiling and is riddled with holes, folds, and projections – save for a flattened area at area SL8-9. The modern Set cult is using this site to try to breed Set animals. Given the apparent lack of fertility of any of the summoned Set animals, High Priestess Stephania (4-51) has sent a Set deacon (see new monsters) and a pair of acolytes to see if they can iron out the bugs in this program. These priests, along with four Set guardsmen, are nervously watching one greater and six Set animals (see new monsters) hunt and torment a bewildered giant lizard. Should combat break out with intruders (e.g., the PCs), the Set animals are just as likely to attack the Set priests and guardsmen as they are the PCs.

Unbeknownst to the Set priests and guardsmen, Stephania will not let her minions depart these caves lest they reveal the existence of the breeding program.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 giant lizard: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 150'; HD 3+1; HP 11 (max 20); #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: double damage on a natural 20 to hit.
2. 6 Set animals (see new monsters): SZ S; AL LE; AC 5; MV 150'; HD 2; HP 15, 14, 13, 12, 11, 11; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: venom; jump; confusion; dispel magic 1/day.

3. 1 greater Set animal (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150'; HD 6; HP 40; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special attacks: venom (chance for paralysis); jump; confusion; dispel magic 1/day.
4. Korakios the Set deacon (see new monsters), as a 6th-level Archontean cleric of Set: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 41; #AT 1; Dmg 3-8 (mace +1). Possessions: Set armor +1 (see Arden Vul items); deacon's was stick (see new magic items); footman's mace +1; an amulet of protection against normal missiles (see new magic items); a potion of extra healing; a potion of glibness; a scroll of curse; and a gold holy symbol of Set (150 gp). Spells prayed for: command, cure light wounds (x2), cause fear, protection from good; chant, hold person, know alignment, resist fire, silence 15' radius; animate dead, dispel magic, cause blindness; cause serious wounds.
5. 2 Set acolytes (see new monsters), as 3rd-level Archontean clerics of Set: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 60'; HD 3; HP 21, 19; #AT 1; Dmg 2-7 (mace) and 1-4 (light crossbow). Possessions: Set armor (see Arden Vul items); footman's mace; light crossbow; acolyte's was stick (see new magic items); and a silver holy symbol of Set (10 gp). Spells prayed for: command, cure light wounds, curse (reverse of bless), protection from good; hold person, silence 15' radius.
6. 4 Set guardsmen (see new monsters), as 2nd-level Archontean fighters: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 18, 17, 15, 12; #AT 1, Dmg 2-7 (mace), 1-6 (spear) and 1-4 (light crossbow). Special defense: fanaticism. Possessions: red scale mail and wooden shield; footman's maces; spears; light crossbows, 20 bolts.

SL8-8: Ledge and Cave with Forgotten Corpse

A ledge 5' below the ceiling of area SL8-7 leads to a 10'-tall side cave. The cave itself is rather nondescript, save for an ancient corpse mostly concealed beneath a scattering of rock and dust. The corpse wears a suit of Set armor +1 (see Arden Vul items) and the ring of Set known as Lorica (see new magic items); next to the body are a mace, a rotted leather purse with 65 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) and three white pearls (100 gp each), the fourth lantern from area SL8-9, and a 3"-long, tarnished copper message tube containing an ancient piece of parchment. The parchment reads: "To Julianus, loyal priest, from Laurellik, son of Set and High Priest of Arden Vul. You are to eliminate all loose ends in the breeding program. Eliminate all other administrators of the program; how you do it is of no concern to me. Merely ensure that no witnesses remain. Secure the brood-mother and remove Lorica from the fool Hecurion's finger, and bring them with you to the outer door on the eve of the feast of Arden. There you will be met by my personal guard, who will escort you to my side. Tell no one." High Priestess Stephania would pay up to 3,000 gp for the return of Lorica.

GM Note: The corpse found here is that of Julianus, private agent of Laurellik, the last high priest of Set before the Archontean retreat. As the parchment notes, Laurellik ordered Julinaus to 'clean' the breeding program by killing all the priests. Julianus was mostly successful, as the corpse of the head of the breeding program, Hecurion, may be found at SL8-11, where Julianus slew him. Unfortunately for Julianus, no one ever met him at area SL8-1 on the eve of the feast of Arden, and he was slain here by the very brood-mother Set animal that he was transporting. Aside from this history, the note also provides hints about the existence of a formal laboratory deeper within the caves (see SL8-16 to SL8-23).

SL8-9: Ancient Pavilion

This area in the midst of the larger cave was worked carefully in antiquity. A 20'x20' section of the cave floor has been flattened, and a large summoning circle incised into the center of the flattened area. At each corner of the pavilion stands a thick, 5'-diameter and 5'-tall stone half-column, from the top of each of which extends an iron shepherd's crook. From three of the four crooks hangs a lantern. Four stone benches, carved to resemble crocodiles, surround the summoning circle, which of course is a magic circle appropriate for conducting summoning rituals.

The lanterns are enchanted and unusual, since there is no way to open them and thus insert a fuel source. The bottom of each, however, bears an inscription in the secret language of Set: "Bring divine light so as to protect the faithful." Casting light (or continual light) on each of the four lanterns and then hanging them from the shepherd's crook creates a magical barrier of protection that encloses the pavilion. This barrier prevents anything (creature, missile, spell) from outside the pavilion from entering it, but allows those within the area of protection to cast spells or hurl missiles. The zone of protection lasts for as long as the light spells last. Curiously, continual light cast on a lantern is not actually continuous; it merely lasts for double the duration of a regular light spell. GM Note: Until the fourth lantern is located, the protection function is inoperable. The fourth lantern is found at SL8-8. The modern Set cult is ignorant of the lanterns' function.

SL8-10: Sloping Tunnel and Cave-In

The northern extension of the cave slopes steeply downward. While it originally connected to SL8-11, a large cave-in has permanently blocked the passage. Lying on the scree are the corpses of three Set guardsmen; two are ancient and one is fresh. The two ancient bodies have skulls that appear to have been bashed in from behind with a heavy object (see note at SL8-8), while the fresh body seems to have been stung and clawed to death (by a Set animal). Among the bodies are the following pieces of useful equipment: two suits of nonmagical Set armor (see Arden Vul items), two short swords, a spear +1, three 50' coils of rope, two neatly folded nets (15'x15'), and, tucked into a boot, a vial of Set animal repellent (see Arden Vul items). The repellent is dried out, but could be rehydrated.

SL8-11: Large Cave with Ancient Corpses

This cave is cold and dry, with no sounds and not even a breath of air. Three ancient corpses lie among the knobby projections on the floor. Two are of Set guardsmen, but the third is dressed in priest's robes. The priestly corpse is that of Hecurion, former director of the Set animal project (see areas SL8-16 to SL8-24). Hecurion has been garrotted, and his ring finger hacked off with a knife. The culprit of these murders was Julianus, who slew the project staff on the orders of the last high priest of Set (see SL8-8).

Hecurion's spirit lingers by his corpse, hoping that the Set ring, Lorica, which Hecurion once wore, can be recovered and returned to the proper Set authority. The spirit can interact in a limited way with visitors, mostly by moaning 'Bring me Lorica' (alternating in Mithric and the secret tongue of the priests of Set) and pointing at its missing finger. Should the PCs locate Lorica (at SL8-8) and show it to the spirit, Hecurion whispers "For your reward, press the left eye of the middle statue of our lord. Thank you!" [GM: this advice refers to the puzzle at SL8-13].

Treasure:

Two sets of Set armor (see Arden Vul items); two poisoned darts (25% the venom is still usable); a set of ancient Set priest robes (worth 75 gp); a platinum signet ring with the name "Hecurion" (500 gp); and a scroll of protection from poison.

SL8-12: Cave with Portcullis

Cold, still, and quiet like the rest of this area, this cave is empty save for a portcullis that blocks the tunnel to the west (to SL8-11). The mechanism for raising it – a lever and pulley system built into the north wall of this area – has been violently destroyed. The portcullis will need to be raised by a successful lift gates roll.

GM Note: PCs would be wise to lure the brood mother (see SL8-13) here for combat, as she cannot be aided by the Eyes of Set in this location.

SL8-13: Great Cave of the Set Animals

This enormous cavern is 60' tall in places. Originally the chief site of the ancient Set cult's research on Set animals, the cave is now deathly still, without any of the usual subterranean sounds or breezes. Several rock formations stud the floor, rising between 5' and 15' above the ground. An enormous rock pillar rises in the center of the chamber, all the way to the roof; inspection shows it to have been carefully shaped by generations of Set cultists.

The northwest wall has also been shaped (flattened) and carved with three colossal (20') half-round images of Set in the form of a human with Set-animal head carrying ankhs cradled in both arms. The sculptures are vivid and imposing but inanimate. A secret door is set into the legs of the middle sculpture.

To the northeast the cave dips into a 20'-deep depression; The floor of the depression is filled with hundreds of bones, mostly of small to medium animals, but with a few man-sized specimens as well. The bones are ancient and brittle. Although it would take at least 4 turns to search through the bones, there are a few items of value scattered within the debris.

The cave is currently the lair of a huge undead Set animal, namely the brood mother abandoned here over 1,200 years ago when the Archontes retreated from Arden Vul (see note at SL8-8). She manifests in the northeastern, bone-filled depression a turn after the cave is entered. This fearsome creature is the undead revenant of the central breeding animal developed by the temple of Set in antiquity. Her evil nature and her strong association with Set allowed her to return to haunt this cavern. So long as combat takes place in the cavern proper, she is at an advantage due to the Eyes of Set on the central pillar (see below); she has her hit points restored, she acts first in each round, and she is able to teleport at will in the chamber. Should the pillar's powers be masked, or should combat move to another location, she loses those abilities.

Rock Pillar with Eyes of Set: The pillar stretches 30' from floor to ceiling, and is a uniform 10' in diameter. Every square foot is covered with carved faces of Set in different sizes and artistic styles. Some are large (3') and formal studies in Archontean realism, where others are small (6") and primitive. Most are still painted. The majority show a human face with red hair, but many also take the form of Set animals, boars, crocodiles and other animals associated with the god. The entire pillar radiates strongly of magic.

The stone eyes of the images flutter open as soon as any living creature comes within 10'. The eyes are, in fact, a conduit to a subconscious part of Set's mind, and allow the god to witness and interact with events in this holy cavern. Set participates in two primary ways. First, since his eyes cover the pillar, they can see anywhere in the cavern. This allows the undead brood mother several combat advantages, including an initial surprise round, always striking first during combat, and the ability to teleport unerringly within the cavern. Area-effect magic that obscures Set's vision (e.g., darkness), gas, or thick smoke will negate these effects; dispel magic cast on the pillar also negates the effects, albeit only temporarily (4-6 rounds). The second way that Set can act in the cavern is to open one of the rock mouths every other round and deliver a jolt of red energy to a subject in the cavern. The energy-blast effects subjects differently based on their alignment: LE individuals are cured of a random amount of hit points (from 1d8 to 4d8); other evil or neutral individuals are struck as if by a slow spell; good creatures are struck for 1d8 to 4d8 damage. The target of the energy blast will be the undead Set animal (50%) or a random member of the party (50%).

Secret Door (northwest wall, to SL8-13A): This door is difficult to spot (1 in 8) and equally difficult to open. It requires that a the left eyeball of the central half-round carving of Set be pushed inward. Keep in mind that this eyeball is some 17' above the floor. The ghost of Hecurion (see SL8-11) could assist in locating the trigger for this door.

Inhabitants:

1. The brood mother, aka a giant undead Set animal: SZ L; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150'; HD 8+8; HP 63; #AT 2; Dmg 1-10/1-4; MR 33%. Special attacks: energy drain; dispel magic 1/day; paralyzation. The brood mother's abilities may be enhanced if the Eyes of Set are active (teleport, initial surprise, acts first in every round).

Treasure:

Amid the bones in the northeast depression: 231 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), 79 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), a chipped emerald (700 gp), and a scroll with the magic user spells fireball, freezing sphere and stone to flesh.

SL8-13A: Hidden Chamber

This tiny chamber is only 4' tall. Within are a few choice treasures deposited here for security, as they lay under the watchful eyes of Set himself. The items include a 2'x3' coffret made of solid silver, with enamelled plates affixed to its lid and sides; the enamel shows Set animals cavorting around an image of Set in his Set animal-headed bipedal form. Within the coffret is an exact copy of the Theskelonia (see Arden Vul books); this text would fetch 10,000 gp or extensive favors from High Priestess Stephania (4-51). Alongside the coffret are six heavy platinum signet-style rings (500 gp each), whose faces have not yet been carved (i.e., they are blank), an ankh of protection (see new magic items), a manual of golems, 4 pieces of incense of meditation, and a candle of invocation.

SL8-14: Side Cave

The mouth of this cave is 20' above the floor of the neighboring cavern. A breath of air can be felt from the narrow crack (18" wide and 30" tall) in the northeast corner that leads to SL8-15. A 25'-long ladder and the corpse of an ancient Set priest lie against the western wall. The priest's robes have been rent by blades and he appears to have bled out. Clenched in his teeth is a roll of parchment. The words on the parchment are in the secret tongue of the priests of Set and appear to have been scrawled in blood (his own?): "Julianus has gone mad and is killing us all, even his own brothers. Someone must tell the high priest of this treachery. Perhaps the brood mother will save me, and punish him? Let it be so!" [GM: for Julianus, see SL8-8]

Treasure:

The priest wears a heavy gold chain with a gold holy symbol of Set (250 gp); he also has a scroll of protection from acid wrapped around his lower leg, under the robe.

SL8-15: Tunnel and Cliff to SL9-1 (Kaliyani Pits)

This tunnel is choked with spider webs, as it is the lair of a pair of phase spiders that typically hunt lizardmen on Sub-Level 9. A few items of treasure and numerous bones litter the floor of the tunnel beneath the webs. The 'tunnel' leading to SL8-14 is no more than a crack, being only 18" wide and 30" tall. The spiders are aware of it, but are too large to squeeze down it. The ledge (aka SL9-1) is 20' above the mushroom cave at SL9-2.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 phase spiders: SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 60', 150' in web; HD 5+5; HP 43, 36; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Special attacks: poison (-2 to saves). Special defenses: phasing.

Treasure:

3,097 scattered ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), a dagger +1, a scroll of protection from plants, a scroll of stone to flesh, and a star sapphire (3,000 gp).

SL8-16: Cliff and Entrance to Set Labs

A worked ledge sits 40' above the floor of the large cavern. Two heavy iron screw-eyes have been set into the stone at the edge of the cliff. By each is an ancient and partly-rotted rope ladder. While the ladders could be attached to the screw-eyes and used to descend the cliff, they have a 50% chance of breaking.

Within a 5'-diameter circle inset into the stone floor is a boar made of chips of red basalt surrounded by chips of blue granite. Passing over this inset causes a light spell to activate on the portcullis at SL8-17 and a magic mouth to intone, in Mithric "Passage is forbidden without permission of the director."

SL8-17: Portcullis and Levers

Two heavy steel portcullises flank the entrance to area SL8-18. Both currently are in the 'down' position, with their bases fitted into 1'-deep holes in the floor. The niche to the east of the portcullis contains two iron levers set into the floor. The western lever raises and lowers the portcullis here (at SL8-17); the eastern lever raises the portcullis to the east of the door at SL8-18.

SL8-18: Ancient Set Laboratory

This chamber served as the laboratory for experimentation on Set animal breeding. A large purple pudding (see new monsters) is currently investigating the laboratory; it lurks over the door as intruders enter so as to better drop on them unawares.

On a basic level, the entire room serves as a high-quality alchemical and research laboratory, with benches, beakers, retorts, mortars and pestles, glass specimen bottles, bins with various alchemical supplies. If carefully boxed and taken away, the entirety could bring 10,000 gp. A smaller, more portable and less fragile selection could bring 2,000 gp. Alternatively, it could be used in situ for the creation of potions or other kinds of magical research (i.e., spell research or creation of magical items).

Amid all the mundane alchemical gear are a few more interesting items, including a Set animal preserved in brine (55 gp), sixteen vials of Set animal blood (100 gp per vial; magical qualities to be determined by the GM), a deacon's was stick (see new magic items), and six large codices secured inside a teak chest.

Entitled 'Research into Our Lord's Holy Form', the codices commence in the year 1511 AEP with the final entry in 1803 AEP (the year of the abandonment of Arden Vul). A cursory scan reveals that the Set cult commissioned a program to attempt to summon, tame, and breed Set animals (from context it appears that typically they can only be summoned, and by higher level clerics). The three hundred-year project was mostly unsuccessful until the final decade, when the director, a certain Hecurion, appears to have summoned and bound a large Set animal, and then transformed it slightly with a complex infusion of human and dragon blood, along with arcanum (see new magic items) and other alchemical elements. The infusion seems to have succeeded in preventing the Set animal from departing, and Hecurion then set about attempting to turn it into a 'brood mother', capable of siring other similar 'modified' animals. The last entry describes the brood mother's growing size and some troubling aggressiveness, and laments that political conditions are preventing the project from securing the necessary resources to complete the breeding project.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 large purple pudding (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 60'; HD 10; HP 66; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12. Special attacks: corrosive to metal and leather. Special defenses: immune to fire; grows with electricity; conductive.

SL8-19: Stairs Up to Level 4 (4-162)

These narrow stairs lead up 200' to area 4-162. The stairs are dusty and choked with cobwebs; they have not been used in more than a thousand years.

SL8-20: Ancient Set Barracks and Portcullis

A dozen rotted wooden bunkbeds stand in the western half of this ancient barracks. To the east are eight battered wooden chairs, a few low tables, three weapons racks, six armor racks, and a trio of large wooden chests. On the north wall is a lever that controls the portcullis to the east of the door. The area is coated with a thick layer of dust.

Among the detritus are the following useful items: three suits of red Set armor (see Arden Vul items); six short swords, three shields, twenty javelins, and a mummified heqeti head (25 gp).

Inside the chests are a variety of personal effects: two silk handkerchiefs, a crude set of wooden dice, a finely carved set of obsidian chess pieces (50 gp), a sandalwood snuff box (20 gp), and three cones of incense of relaxation (see new magic items).

The portcullis to the east of the door is heavy steel and set into holes in the floor.

SL8-21: Common Area

This chamber constituted a lounge for the members of the Set animal project. A dozen comfortable leather chairs (now rotted), a liquor cabinet with four bottles of still-drinkable alcohol (45 gp total), an inlaid gaming table (65 gp), a cabinet with desiccated meat and dried fruit, a keg of water, and a tripod of heating (see new magic items) are present here.

SL8-22: Director's Chamber

A once-sumptuous bed (now rotted and dusty) lies to the west of the door. To the east is a fine oaken circular table and three oak chairs, as well as an oak writing desk, an oak armoire, and an oak scroll cabinet. The north wall has a large fresco of red-haired Set standing benignly over a sextet of small Set animals. The chamber was the residence of the director of the Set animal project, the last of whom was Hecurion (see SL8-11). The furniture is all sturdy and still usable (45 gp for each item).

The scroll case contains three light romance 'novelettes', plus copies of Hoel Gargus's Sixteen Steps to Successful Administration, the anonymous Dogmatics of Father Set, Canis Renard's Elements of Animal Reproduction, Kalut's The Properties of Blood, especially when infused with other elements, and Licinius Monad's Practical Animal Magic (see Arden Vul books for all). Tucked amid the codices is a scroll with the cleric spells enthrall, cure critical wounds and true seeing.

The armoire contains three usable sets of ceremonial robes for Set priests. On the table is a silver ewer and six silver goblets (175 gp for the set), along with a bottle of ancient brandy (25 gp).

The desk contains parchment, dried ink, pens, erasing stones, and other practical objects. It also holds Hecurion's diary, written in the secret tongue of the priests of Set. Most of the diary involves mundane comments about the difficulties of personnel management (Hecurion seems to have been insecure), speculation about the fate of the project given the collapsing social order in the city, and some extremely general but positive comments about Hecurion's success with "the brood mother" and the likelihood of producing progeny. The last entry is unusual, as it injects a note of specificity and paranoia. It reads: "The most recent communication from Laurellik, our Father in Set, is disturbing. He seems preoccupied and unable to recognize the importance of our imminent success in the project. It is as if I have lost my favor with him. But how can this be? I have always served him faithfully. Undoubtedly our results will bring him around. I will send Julianus to beg his indulgence and to delay the evacuation for as long as possible, for the study is close to completion." [GM: for Julianus and Laurellik, see SL8-8]

SL8-23: Priests' Residence

Six beds made of rotted pine, six chests, and six armoires comprise the contents of this former residence for the staff of the Set animal project. The east wall has a fresco depicting an enormous and somewhat unsettling image of a Set animal's head.

Among the chests and armoires are some usable cotton and silk clothing, a silver slide whistle (25 gp), three silver holy symbols of Set (35 gp each), a pack of battered playing cards, a set of finely-tooled metal dice (25 gp), a fine ivory comb (25 gp), copies of Meson's Guide to the Brothels of Archontos and the Whispering Widow (see Arden Vul books for both), and a total of 229 ancient copper bits, 94 ancient silver pennies, and 31 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items for the coins).

One of the chests, however, has a false bottom. Within is a gold scapular clasp (100 gp), a pouch with six red garnets (100 gp each), and a jade scroll case trapped with contact poison. Within the case is a parchment commission in Mithric, from Laurellik the high priest of Set to the priest Julianus, ordering Julianus to report on the activities of Hecurion the Director and to await further orders from Laurellik himself (see SL8-8, SL8-11, SL8-22).

SL8-24: Stairs leading down to Sub-Level 13 (S13-29)

The stairs are narrow (5'), rather roughly-hewn, and choked with heavy cobwebs. They lead down to Sub-Level 13 (SL13-29).

Secret Door (east and west): On both sides the secret door is normal to find and opens by depressing a fairly obvious stud in the floor.

2020

SUB-LEVEL 9: THE KALIYANI PITS

The central feature of this sub-level is a massive cavern, warmed by geothermal energy and covered by a thick layer of burbling red mud (SL9-3, SL9-32, SL9-54). Numerous rock pillars and outcroppings rise from the mud, as do many random and several fixed geysers of hot, mineral-rich water. The mud and the geyser-water have numerous magical and practical uses, a fact recognized by nearly all of the peoples that have settled in Arden Vul. The rudishva built a small research station in the northeast sector of the great cavern (SL9-41 to SL9-49). When the kaliyani fled the halls following their betrayal of their rudishva masters, they made their way to this level, where the heat and moisture were more conducive to their natural biological states, and where there was plenty of arcana (see new magic items) to fuel their sorcery. Vestiges of their habitation are found at SL9-50 to SL9-53. Eventually the kaliyani left Arden Vul for regions deeper within the Underearth.

About twenty years ago, a renegade band of kaliyani abandoned their main settlement of Lissak-Tol and made their way here, hoping to recover some of their lost technological heritage and to reoccupy the Halls. They have delved a small, but well-guarded outpost to the east of the main cavern (SL9-59 to SL9-78) and named it a consortium, even though this act contravenes kaliyani custom, which only allows eleven consortia, all traditionally ruled by males. Their central chamber (SL9-72), with its three deep pits, has given the area its name. Even more recently, the kaliyani enslaved a small tribe of renegade lizardmen (the Lagrok tribe) dwelling in the southern reaches of the cavern. The lizardmen live in the side caves above the mud flats and use rickety rope bridges to travel between the rock outcroppings. The lizardmen hunt mud crabs, mud worms, and lizards that they trap from above, and spend the rest of their time sifting the mud for valuable minerals and arcana for their kaliyani masters.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Heqeti areas: SL9-27, SL9-30

Rudishva areas: SL9-41, SL9-41A, SL9-43 to SL9-49, SL9-52, SL9-53

Kaliyani areas: SL9-60 to SL9-77

IMPORTANT NPCs

Nisslok, lizard king, chief of the Lagrok tribe of lizardmen (SL9-27)

Tsilliv, kaliyani Magistra of the Twelfth Consortium (SL9-77)

FACTIONS

The kaliyani control much of the sub-level, including all of the kaliyani pits (SL9-60 to SL9-78) as well as most of the mud flats region. They have not yet discovered the ancient rudishva base (SL9-41, SL9-43 to SL9-49).

ENVIRONMENT

The sub-level is hot and humid thanks to the geothermal activity that gives rise to the mud flats (SL9-3, SL9-32, SL9-54). Travel on the hot mud is slow as well as dangerous thanks to numerous mudpots and mudsinks (for which, see SL9-3).

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Level 4: stairs at SL9-75, leading up to 4-51B

To Level 6: teleporter at SL9-53, leading to 6-32

To Level 7: stairs at SL9-49, leading down to 7-111

To Level 9: tunnel at SL9-37, leading down to 9-119

To Sub-Level 5: tunnel at SL9-9, leading up to SL5-25

To Sub-Level 8: ledge at SL9-1, leading up to SL8-15

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

1. Areas without Random Encounters

SL9-43 to SL9-49, SL9-52, SL9-53.

2. The Great Cavern and Environs (areas SL9-2 to SL9-10, SL9-15 to SL9-24, SL9-28 to SL9-42, SL9-50, SL9-51, SL9-54 to SL9-63)

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 6 chance for an encounter.

D12	Encounter
1-4	6 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 31, 27, 26, 25, 25, 24; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4
5-6	1. 5 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 30, 27, 26, 25, 24; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4 2. 1 large chasm cephalopod (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 6; HP 45; #AT 6 (five tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; one tentacle drains spells from casters, adding 2-8 HP to chasm cephalopod per spell
7-9	1-3 mud worms (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 60, 57, 51; #AT 1; Dmg 3-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: acid bite; bite corrodes armor; drown attempt on natural 20. Special defenses: immune to acid. There is a 33% chance every other round of combat to draw another mud worm to the mele

10-11	A hunting party of 6 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 14, 14, 13, 13, 12; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. If killed, they should be removed from the numbers found in areas SL9-11 to SL9-14
12	A trio of kaliyani soldiers, coming to or from the Pits. For stats, see SL9-68. If killed, they should be removed from the roster at SL9-68.

3. The Lizardman Caves (SL9-11 to SL9-14, SL9-25 to SL9-27)

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 4 chance for an encounter.

D6	Encounter
1-2	2 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2). If allowed to do so, the hatchlings will alert any nearby adult lizardmen
3-5	3 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 13, 13, 12; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. If killed, they should be removed from the closest lizardman roster
6	2 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90', 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 26, 23, 22, 21, 20, 19; #AT 1 or 3; 3-9 (broadsword) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadswords; javelins; foebane necklaces (see new magic items); and one combustible mud gourd each (see Arden Vul items). If killed, they should be removed from the roster at SL9-17

4. The Kaliyani Pits (SL9-64 to SL9-78)

Checks should be made every 3 turns, with a 1 in 4 chance for an encounter. Any encounter in this area will be from the inhabitants of the nearest inhabited chamber.

LEVEL KEY

SL9-1: Ledge and Tunnel to SL8-15

This ledge is 20' above the mushroom cave (SL9-2). From area SL9-2 it is hard to spot, and thus can only be detected as if it were a concealed door. The lizardmen are ignorant of its existence. The ledge leads to a tunnel that connects to SL8-15.

SL9-2: Mushroom Cave and Ledge

This ledge rises 10' above the floor of the mud flats (SL9-3). It is home to a species of giant mushrooms that the lizardmen find delicious. Close by the northern wall is a lone midnight rose plant (see new flora). The lizardmen have connected this ledge to their rope-bridge network; this bridge rises 10' to meet the outcropping at SL9-4. Despite their continued interest in the area, they are mystified by the fact that members of their tribe keep disappearing here; these vanished lizardmen are the victims of the phase spiders from SL8-15.

Rope Bridge: The bridge is attached to two iron posts hammered into the stone at the lip of the ledge. The bridge proper is comprised of numerous ropes made of twined creepers of a sort never before seen by PCs and interspersed with boards on which to walk. The bridge is safe, but unsuited for combat or other activities requiring concentration or movement. GM Note: the ropes and boards come from the kaliyani who get them from contacts in the Underearth.

Treasure:

Numerous specimens of the aqua vitae, cloud cap, and white rib varieties of giant mushroom, plus a solitary midnight rose plant (see new flora).

SL9-3: Southern Mud Flats

The southern portion of the main cavern rises, on average, about 60' from floor to ceiling, and the environment is hot and humid. The floor of the cavern is covered with a thick (4'- to 8'-deep) layer of mineral-rich mud thrown up by the mudpots and mud volcanoes that dot the region. Glows of campfires are visible from several rock outcroppings that rise from the flats. Slogging about in the mud flats is likely to attract the attention of the mud worms from below and the lizardmen from above (via their rope bridges).

Movement in the Mud Flats:

Movement through the mud is difficult for man-sized creatures, or any creature weighing (or carrying) 120 lb or more; such creatures move at 1/3 movement and risk falling down periodically. Very light or very dexterous creatures (DEX>16) might be able to skim swiftly across the surface of the flats; these creatures move at 2/3 movement. Possession of 'mud-skis' (see Arden Vul items) allows creatures of any size or weight to move at 2/3 movement; possession of a mud boat allows movement at a rate of 30'.

Mudpots and Mudsinks: There are no fixed geysers here (as in SL9-32), but rather numerous mudpots and mudsinks.

Mudpots are spots that burble constantly while occasionally throwing up impressive sprays of superheated, mineral-rich mud. There is a 1 in 4 chance every three turns that a mudpot erupts near any group traveling the flats. Mudpots inflict 1-6 HP damage to all in a 20' radius from the steam and hot mud.

Mudsinks occur when the swirl of the geothermal currents cause the mud to be sucked downward. There is a 1 in 6 chance every three turns for a mudsink to appear in a given 10' radius. If one is indicated, roll randomly to determine which 1-2 PCs are affected. Those affected must successfully roll 3d6 under STR or be sucked under the mud and drowned in 1-3 rounds. Up to three PCs unaffected by the mudsink can attempt a 'to hit' roll versus AC 3 in order to locate a victim and save him/her from drowning.

The hot mud can also be disruptive to spell-casting, invisibility, and other activities. The lizardmen have learned to recognize the sound of impending mudpot explosions and mudsink implosions, and will never be caught by one unless unable to move.

Native Inhabitants: The mud flats are home to numerous strange life forms, most of which are small, harmless, and resemble small crustaceans and arthropods (albeit with strangely colored carapaces). In addition, numerous voracious mud worms (see new monsters) make the flats their home, hunting the smaller creatures as well as the occasional lizardman who falls from the bridges or an unlucky kaliyani. The worms hunt singly, and can be encountered as random encounters anywhere in the flats. Combat with one worm is likely (33%) to attract another worm every other round that combat continues. So long as two of the worms remain, the population can recover the loss of its other members.

The flats are also attractive to chasm cephalopods (see new monsters), which thrive in the heat and humidity. Indeed, all chasm cephalopods found on SL9 are of medium or large size, and all are able to regenerate 1 HP/round due to the therapeutic minerals of the area. The cephalopods may also be found randomly throughout the flats, but are especially likely to congregate near the geysers and near area SL9-35. The chasm cephalopods drift towards any flying creatures, and may even swarm those on isolated rock outcroppings. Coating oneself in a layer of the mud from the cavern floor effectively renders one immune from the cephalopods. While the lizardmen understand this, and adorn themselves appropriately, the kaliyani do not. Chasm cephalopods are encountered in groups of 6 medium and 3 large.

Inhabitants:

1. 20 mud worms (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 62, 61, 61, 60, 60, 59, 58, 58, 57, 57, 56(x3), 52, 51, 51, 50, 47, 46, 44; #AT 1; Dmg 3-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: acid bite; bite corrodes armor; drown attempt on natural 20. Special defenses: immune to acid.
2. 24 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 31(x4), 29 (x4), 27(x4), 26(x4), 25(x4), 24(x4); #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4.
3. 18 large chasm cephalopod (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 6; HP 45, 44, 43(x3), 41, 40(x3), 39, 38, 37, 36(x3), 35(x3); #AT 6 (five tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; one tentacle drains spells from casters, adding 2-8 HP to chasm cephalopod per spell.

SL9-4: Mud Dredging

This large rock formation rises from the flats and eventually reaches the ceiling. A tunnel through the formation has been claimed by the lizardmen, and the glow of a fire is visible from the south. The entire area reeks of sulfur.

Under the supervision of a kaliyani scout, four lizardmen are dredging the nearby mud flats for arcenum (see new magic items), minerals, and lost treasures. The dredging operation consists of a 5'-tall iron tripod, a wooden arm extending horizontally from the tripod top, and a rope and bucket that descend from the arm.

The fire is located in the niche in the western side of the tunnel, and is visible from the south only. The fire is fueled by dried mushroom and wood imported from the Underearth. A steel rack sits atop the fire, on which a heavy cast-iron pot and a retort sit. The retort is collecting sulfur from the mud.

If the inhabitants notice activity to the south, and/or if they spot dangerous-looking opponents crossing the southern rope bridge, the kaliyani will cut the rope bridge, dropping anyone on the bridge into the mud.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 14, 13, 12; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

2. 1 5th-level kaliyani scout (see new monsters), as a 5th-level thief: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 16. Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 40%, HS 31%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; a set of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp; a vial of poison; and a pair of solid-gold earrings shaped like hearts (175 gp).

Treasure:

6 pieces of amber (100 gp each); a pair of copper statuettes of gravid female heqeti (200 gp each); a 3-lb sack of copper flakes (1 gp); a 2-lb sack of iron filings (25 gp); a total of 14.5 lb of arcenum (see new magic items) in very small lumps; a 5-lb sack of sulfur (250 gp); a 5-lb sack of glowing phosphorus (250 gp).

SL9-5: Small Side Cave

This cave is only slightly above the surface of the mud flats. A battered mud boat has been pushed into the cave. Investigating the cave, however, gives the mud people lurking outside SL9-6 time to gather and prepare an ambush for those returning to the flats.

Treasure:

Mud-boat, a flat-bottomed, pole-propelled skiff that allows 30' movement for 4-6 persons.

SL9-6: Larger Side Cave

The observant may notice that shallow footholes have been bored into the stone face leading up to this cave (they can be detected as a secret door).

The cave within is the site of an ancient campsite, with a fire ring, several rotting crates, some sacks, a keg of musty water, and a locked wooden chest. To the rear is a hammock, on which rests the skeleton of Tomasion the Dirty, an ancient Archontean mage who managed to locate this sub-level and intended to milk it for its valuable resources.

Tomasion created four mud people (see new monsters) before he succumbed to food poisoning. The mud people still wait patiently outside the mouth of the cave; they are slow to gather, and thus only attack those leaving Tomasion's camp. The mud people also attack those investigating the neighboring cave (SL9-5), doing so when that cave is exited.

The crates contain glassware packed in sawdust, appropriate for use in alchemy or magical research (3,500 gp). The sacks contain dried fruit, spoiled grains, and ten sets of iron rations. Two of the sets of iron rations are spoiled, and will cause an acute, terminal, gastro-intestinal disease in anyone who consumes them; roll 3d6 under WIS to detect signs that the rations are bad.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 mud people (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 44, 41, 38, 33; #AT 2; Dmg 1-8/1-8. Special attacks: hurl mud blobs; drown foes in mud. Special defenses: regenerate 2 HP/rd while touching mud; half damage from edged weapons, and from fire and electricity.

Treasure:

The chest is locked (but the key is on Tomasion's person). Within are 437 ancient silver pennies, 229 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), a solid copper statuette of a heqeti hopper (2'; worth 300 gp); two potions of mud breathing; two potions of water walking (see new magic items for both); two potions of healing; an unusable, mud-jammed rudishva laser pistol (see new technological items); rust and platinum rudishva identity plaques (see new technological items); a codex entitled The Value of Mud (see Arden Vul books); a scroll of permanency; and Tomasion's spell book.

Tomasion's Spell Book: Armor, burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, find familiar, hold portal, identify, jump, light, magic missile, message, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, floating disc, unseen servant; audible glamor, continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, invisibility, knock, levitate, magic mouth, mirror image, rope trick, scare, stinking cloud, strength, web, wizard lock; blink, clairvoyance, detect illusion, dispel magic, fireball, fly, hold person, lightning bolt, monster summoning I, protection from normal missiles, secret page, slow, suggestion, wind wall; dig, dimension door, dispel illusion, extension I, fire trap, polymorph other, remove curse, shout, wizard eye; airy water, conjure elemental, contact other plane, extension II, monster summoning III, passwall, transmute rock to mud, wall of stone; chain lightning, legend lore; reincarnation, stone to flesh; forcecage.

SL9-7: Smelly Cave

The entrance from SL9-3 to this cave is blocked by a latticed fence of pointed sticks aimed inward towards SL9-7. The fence makes passage between the caves difficult; movement is halved and running is impossible.

The cave proper is covered with a 2" layer of wet, nearly liquid mud. A mud worm corpse lies on the floor, while the decomposing heads of three lizardmen dangle from strings attached to the ceiling. Due to the rot, the cave smells badly.

SL9-8: Scene of Battle

This cave reeks of blood and rot. Numerous 2' to 6' rock protrusions stud the floor. The atmosphere is damp, and patches of dried and cracked mud coat the stone floor.

The bloated corpses of six lizardmen are attracting flies and small insects. Amid the fresh corpses are the skeletonized remains of another dozen lizardmen. Two of the corpses are booby-trapped.

Trap #1 (green slime): This corpse is wearing an odd brown sack-like garment, with a crude shoulder-slung pouch. The pouch is empty, but is trapped with four splinters of wood designed to pierce the hands of any who investigate. The splinters have been smeared with green slime. The trap is relatively easy for thieves to locate (+10% to find traps). Green slime: SZ S; AL N; AC 9; MV 0'; HD 2; HP 12; #AT 0; Dmg special. Special attacks: convert to slime; corrosive to wood and metal. Special defenses: immune to physical attacks and all magic save cure disease.

Trap #2 (pit): This corpse lies on the ground in a patch of dried mud near one of the outcroppings. The dried mud actually coats a thin mat of cut green fern fronds (see new flora) covering a 10'-deep pit filled with sharpened wooden stakes. Those falling into the pit take 1-6 HP damage and must roll as save versus poison, as the stakes are smeared with a noxious mix of excrement and strange minerals. Those who fail the save contract a serious, debilitating disease of the GM's choice.

GM Note: This liminal cave is regularly the site of battle between the Skreel lizardmen of Sub-Level 5 and the Lagrok lizardmen of Sub-Level 9. New traps will be devised here within 3 weeks if the existing ones are disarmed.

SL9-9: Tunnel up to SL5-25

This long, upward-leading tunnel eventually links to the lizardman caves at SL5-25. Half-way up the tunnel a 6'-tall pile of rocks partially blocks the tunnel; the rocks must be shifted or climbed over. The rock pile is trapped.

Trap (stone slime): The lizardmen of SL9 have coated the rocks at the top of the pile with a stone slime (see new monsters). Unless travelers specifically inspect the rocks, they are unlikely to notice the slime. Handling the rocks or climbing over them brings such travelers into contact with the slime. It takes a few rounds of stinging, burning, flesh-eating pain to recognize what is happening.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 stone slime (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 9; MV 0'; HD 3; HP 17; #AT 0; Dmg special. Special attacks: turn victim to stone slime; consume wood and metal.

SL9-10: Tall Outcropping

Two rope bridges - extending southwest to SL9-4 and southeast to SL9-11 respectively - dominate this outcropping. A trio of gourds filled with combustible mud (see Arden Vul items) provides dim light in a 20' radius. A rope ladder is attached to the east side of the outcropping; it can be unfurled to allow access to the flats.

SL9-11: Watch Cave

This opening in the cavern wall provides access to the main living quarters of this sub-level's lizardmen. A rope bridge extends northwest to SL9-10. Two elite lizardman warriors are on guard duty here at all times, armed with javelins and combustible mud gourds (see Arden Vul items). If intruders appear overwhelming, the guards have orders to cut the guy lines to the rope bridge; one will then summon assistance from the caves within.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90'; 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 24, 20; #AT 1 or 3; 4-10 (broadsword +1) and javelin (2-7), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadwords +1; javelins; foebane necklaces (see new magic items); and one combustible mud gourd each (see Arden Vul items).

SL9-12: Lizardman Cave

Eight lizardmen and four hatchlings inhabit this cave. Scores of insects, fish, and crabs hang from the ceiling by twists of dried tendons. Crude stick-figure drawings cover the west wall: they show stick lizardmen fighting with other stick lizardmen, with a huge worm, and with floating jellyfish (chasm cephalopods).

The most recent drawing shows a six-legged snake-like creature pointing a thick stick at lizardmen, who bow before it (the figure is a kaliyani).

In addition to the tasty insects, the lizardmen have a juvenile mud worm carcass. A pile of javelins sits by the exit to the cave, mostly made of bone, but with a few quality wooden ones mixed into the pile.

If loud combat breaks out here, it draws the inhabitants of SL9-13 and SL9-14 within two rounds.

Inhabitants:

1. 8 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 17, 16, 15, 14, 14, 12, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. Of the eight, two are females who fight as 1 HD creatures.
2. 4 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2).

SL9-13: Another Lizardman Cave

Ten lizardmen and three hatchlings inhabit this cave. This group has a cauldron of boiling (see new magic items), which they use to create soups of fish, insects, crabs, and chasm cephalopod remains. The soup is nutritious but tastes strongly of minerals.

An enterprising lizardman sculptor has carved a crude, life-sized image of a kaliyani onto the south wall of the cave. Various small items – teeth, polished bone, a pale blue tourmaline (250 gp), and some locks of human hair are arranged as offerings around the crude sculpture.

If loud combat breaks out here, it draws the inhabitants of SL9-12 and SL9-14 within two rounds.

Inhabitants:

1. 10 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 17, 16, 15, 14, 14, 13, 13, 12, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. Of the ten, three are females who fight as 1 HD creatures.
2. 3 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2).

SL9-14: A Third Lizardman Cave

Twelve lizardmen and five hatchlings dwell here. The cave smells of decay, rot, and blood. Indeed, this band has the corpses of three lizardmen (from SL5) hanging from hooks, curing. A flat rock in the center of the cave serves as a sort of workshop, where butchering occurs and where lizardman equipment (spears, javelins, ropes for the bridges, fishing hooks, etc.) is created.

Casually thrown to one side is a 3'x1' lump of gold. Once a statuette, long years in the mud flats have erased any semblance of its original features. The gnarled lump of gold is actually cursed, such that it slowly twists any statue within 10', eventually ruining it and potentially animating it with righteous anger. After one day of exposure, the cursed gold causes slight alterations to a nearby statue's hands, arms and legs; after two days, limbs are noticeably twisted into new, unpleasant positions and any facial features are contorted into a rictus of rage; after three full days, statues are completely twisted into bizarre and nearly unrecognizable new positions. If the cursed gold is not removed by the fourth day, the now-twisted statue comes to life as a golem of the appropriate type (stone, iron/bronze, etc.); the golem has 1 HD per 1' height of the original statue. Once animated, the golem is berserk and attacks until destroyed.

If loud combat breaks out here, it will draw the inhabitants of SL9-12 and SL9-13 within two rounds.

Inhabitants:

1. 12 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 17, 16, 15, 14, 14, 13, 13, 13, 12, 11, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields. Of the twelve, four are females who fight as 1 HD creatures.
2. 5 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2).

Treasure:

A heavy lump of cursed gold (3'x1'), worth 5,500 gp.

SL9-15: Low Rock Outcropping

A shelf of rock sticks out of the mud here. It is an important intersection in the lizardmen's rope bridge network, as bridges extend northwest to SL9-18, northeast to SL9-16, and south to SL9-4. Due to its low height and the neighboring mudpots, this outcropping is regularly spattered with hot mud; there is a 1 in 4 chance every turn to get spattered for 1-6 HP damage. Amid all the ropes and guy-wires are three lizardman hatchlings, looking for signs of mud worms nearby. If they notice intruders, they run swiftly towards SL9-16 and SL9-17 so as to warn the chief.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 lizardman hatchlings: noncombatants (AC 7, HP 2).

SL9-16: Curved Outcropping

Three lizardmen are dredging the mud flats for arcenum (see new magic items), minerals, and lost treasures. As at SL9-4, the dredging operation consists of a 5'-tall iron tripod, a wooden arm extending horizontally from the tripod top, and a rope and bucket that descend from the arm. The area smells strongly of sulfur.

A fire glows dimly from its location in the northern apex of the outcropping (overlooking the lake). The fire is visible from the north and to the western half of the cavern south of the lake. The lizardmen stock the fire with dried mushrooms as well as with wood provided by the kaliyani. A steel rack sits atop the fire, on which a heavy cast-iron pot and a retort sit. The retort is collecting sulfur from the mud.

Rope bridges connect this outcropping to SL9-15 and SL9-17.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 14, 13, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

Treasure:

2 pieces of amber (100 gp each); a bronze candelabra, badly dented (35 gp); a 3-lb sack of lumps of iron (3 gp); a single enormous lump of copper ore (200 gp); a 5-lb sack of sulfur (250 gp); a 5-lb sack of glowing phosphorus (250 gp); 11.5 lb of arcenum (see new magic items) in small lumps; and an hiltless sword +2, nine lives stealer (with 3 lives left to steal). The sword needs a new hilt and some general polishing and sharpening before it can be used (125 gp worth of repairs).

SL9-17: Elite Lizardman Lodge

Nine elite lizardmen warriors occupy this cave. They have three lizardman carcasses hanging from a hook in the southern niche, and also two live, but tongueless prisoners, whom they have tied to a stalagmite and are busy tormenting. They have also somehow acquired a cask of Hak's mushroom ale (7-94), which they call 'strong water' and use for preparing themselves for battle. The quantity of ale left in the cask is low, and they are thus loath to share it with any save their most respected allies.

In addition to their supplies, the elite warriors have concocted three 'sleds' for use on the mud flats; these devices are made from the shells of some unknown creature (4'x2'), and have ropes attached to them for pulling or dragging. The elite warriors are also known to 'swim' quickly through the mud and then hurl themselves forward on their sleds, allowing them to close distances to enemies with surprising speed.

The elite warriors are cocky and aggressive, even with those who have proven themselves friends of the Lagrok tribe. They are also eager to fight all comers, and will take risks that the regular lizardmen might not.

The elite warriors are quick to support Chief Graalk (SL9-27) if combat breaks out in his hall.

The corpses are of Skreel lizardmen (from SL5), taken in battle at SL9-8. The mute prisoners are a terrified Set guardsman and another Skreel lizardman.

Inhabitants:

1. 9 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90'; 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 26, 25, 24, 23, 22, 21, 20, 19, 18; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 3-9 (broadsword) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: broadswords; javelins; foebane necklaces (see new magic items); and one combustible mud gourd each (see Arden Vul items). One of the nine has a broadsword +1, and another has five javelins +2.
2. Leutherius, tongueless male Set guardsman (see new monsters), as a 2nd-level male Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LE; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 2; HP 4 (max 15); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 14, INT 8, WIS 9, DEX 12, CON 16, CHA 11. Leutherius accompanied the Set party to SL8, and fell into the water at SL8-6A; he managed to reach SL8-13 and avoided the perils there, only to be flee the phase spiders at SL8-15 and tumble down the cliff to SL9. The Lagrok tribe captured him at SL9-2. Knowing how valuable his information about SL8 would be to High Priestess Stephania (4-51), Leutherius resisted all questions about 'where he came from;' eventually the lizardmen grew frustrated and tore his tongue out.
3. Skreel lizardman, tongueless (from SL5): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60', 120'; HD 2+1; HP 4 (max 8); #AT 1 or 3; Dmg by weapon, or 1-2/1-2/1-8.

Treasure:

Three mud sleds; nine foebane necklaces (see new magic items); a half-empty keg of Hak's mushroom ale (7-94) worth 5 gp; long sword +1; five javelins +2.

SL9-18: Small Rock Ledge

This rock pillar extends from floor to ceiling. At a point 5' above the mud, however, a large ledge has been cut into the side of the pillar. The space is about 6' tall and 8' in diameter. Its size renders the pillar above it structurally unsound; explosive spells or objects, or even exceptionally loud noises have a 50% chance of causing the 55' of rock pillar to topple down onto anyone standing on the ledge. This event would inflict 8-48 HP damage to all on the ledge, and would undoubtedly fling them into the mud.

Rope bridges extend west to SL9-19, and southeast to SL9-15.

SL9-19: Outcropping

A small fire burns on this outcropping, fueled by dried mushrooms and dung. The light of the fire is visible from the north and east. The lizardmen don't frequent the outcropping very often, as they are afraid of the kaliyani in SL9-20. Rope bridges lead to areas SL9-18, SL9-20, and SL9-29.

SL9-20: Kaliyani Advisors

Four kaliyani sent by Tsilliv (SL9-77) to oversee their lizardmen thralls inhabit this cave. A rope bridge leads northeast from the cave mouth to area SL9-19.

Just inside the entrance, and blocking sight into the rest of the cave, is a three-panel folding screen that is 9' tall and 15' wide. Each panel is made up of fifteen plaques of carved bone that have been wired together. A small silver bell protrudes from the screen and can be struck with a silver mallet. The carvings on each panel shows a fierce kaliyani warrior within an ouroboros; the kaliyani are depicted on all six legs and as if they are coming straight at the viewer. The screen is intended to intimidate the lizardmen, who ring the bell (and drop a small offering) when they need aid from the kaliyani. The screen is quite striking and valuable (1,750 gp).

Spriviv, the leader of the kaliyani advance team, and one of his scouts are always present here, while the other two scouts may be found supervising the lizardmen (at SL9-4 and SL9-27). Spriviv is arrogant and not very watchful; as a result the kaliyani here are relatively easily surprised (+1 to surprise checks). Their quarters include four hammocks slung from the ceiling, four kit bags also slung from the ceiling, a small 'barrel' made of crustacean shells filled with 15 doses of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items), a sheaf of 18 javelins, four picks and three shovels sized for kaliyani, and six panniers filled with ore and other objects dredged from the mud (see SL9-4). They also possess a rope ladder that can be used to access the mudflats below, as well as four sets of mud skis (see Arden Vul items).

If confronted by a powerful opponents (and especially if surprised), Spriviv attempts to negotiate. He only speaks lizardman and kaliyani, and he will betray the PCs at the first opportunity.

Inhabitants:

1. Spriviv, 7th-level kaliyani scout (see new monsters), as a 7th-level thief: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; HD 7; HP 47; #AT 2; Dmg 4-9/4-9 (scimitars +1) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 17. Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 52%, F/RT 50%, MS 60%, HS 48%, HN 25%, CW 94%, RL 35%. Possessions: a pair of scimitars +1; 4 javelins; some tattered red silk ribbons tied in a complex web around his body, in which is threaded 275 gp worth of platinum wire; a potion of human control and a potion of deafening light (see new magic items).
2. 1 5th-level kaliyani scout (see new monsters), as a 5th-level thief: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 38; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special:

infravision; DEX 16. Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 40%, HS 31%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; a set of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp; a vial of poison and a philter of persuasiveness; and a jade torc studded with small bits of crystal (125 gp).

Treasure:

The panniers hold 16 pieces of amber (325 gp total); a battered copper statuettes of heqeti warrior (75 gp); 8 lb of copper flakes (3 gp); 12 lb of iron filings (25 gp); 3 5-lb lumps of arcanum (see new magic items); 20 lb of sulfur (1,000 gp); 10 lb glowing phosphorus (500 gp); 2 lumps of gold (90 gp); 3 lumps of silver (55 gp); and a glass sphere of arcane assistance (destruction) (see new magic items).

SL9-21: Warm Mineral Lake

A small lake bisects the mud flats at this location. The lake is warm (~90 degrees Fahrenheit) and its water is mineral rich. Despite the unusual conditions, it is home to several species of algae as well as a host of crabs and lesser invertebrates and a highly-adapted species of fish. As a result the lizardmen regularly fish for crabs and fish. Because one of the species of algae forms mats and is antithetical to other life forms, the lizardmen do not swim in the lake.

Four mats of deadly algae float on the surface of the lake; they are yellow-green, with flecks of black and purple. Swimming through them has a 75% chance of causing an infection similar to meningitis, one that will kill the host in 1-3 months. Unless they are first identified and then consciously avoided, a swimmer has a 50% chance of encountering one of the mats. The mats can easily be burned with fire.

SL9-22: Tiny Rock Outcropping

This outcropping is barely 5' in diameter and rises only 10' above the level of the lake. Its surface is mostly taken up by a complex web of iron posts and rope guy-lines that support the two rope bridges, one leading to SL9-28, and the other leading to SL9-24.

There's a 25% chance that 2 lizardmen are present, using drop lines to fish for crab and fish. If present, they step away every time the geyser at SL9-23 erupts, spraying the area with hot water and causing 1-6 damage to any creatures on the outcropping.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 lizardmen (25%): SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60'; 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL9-23: Hot Geyser

A powerful geyser of hot water erupts every other turn from this location. The geyser rises 35' above the surface of the lake and affects all within a 25'-diameter circle. Anyone swimming or flying over the geyser's location takes 5-30 HP damage and will be tossed 30' in a random direction. Boats will be overturned, and their occupants will take 2-12 HP damage.

SL9-24: Ledge of Greqillap the Undying

This massive pillar of rock is completely coated with an electric green algae. On a broad ledge located 25' above the waterline sits a 10'-tall lump also covered with the same algae. Chiseled into the ledge in front of the lump in 8"-tall letters are the following words, written in an obscure demonic dialect: "For assistance, bring the eleven and beseech lord Greqillap seven times." Lying in front of the lump is the corpses of two kaliyani; the corpses show signs of being mauled, beaten, and cut up.

If the algae is scraped or burned away, the lump is revealed to be an enormous demonic head, with two stumps of horns, a single eye, and protruding fangs. Anyone who states the name "Greqillap" seven times while standing on the ledge has a chance to summon Greqillap, a powerful and inimical being of the outer planes. The chance is a base 25%, plus 10% for every additional language known by the beseecher.

Greqillap is one of the eleven senior servitors of the alien entity, Mzingaloq (see deities in World of Archontos appendix), who wait in Dripping Lyaeltok for the return of their lord. Summoning Greqillap is almost certainly foolhardy, for it is extremely powerful and antithetical to the races of the Prime Material Plane. Once summoned, Greqillap immediately commences combat maneuvers unless it spots the eleven live sacrifices (of sentient beings) that it demands as a prerequisite to negotiation. If there are no sacrifices, Greqillap attacks for 3-6 rounds before departing whence it came, all the while grunting "Where are the eleven? Where?" in its two known tongues. Communication with Greqillap is difficult even if one has prepared the appropriate sacrifices, since it comprehends only its own tongue (the tongue of Mzingaloq) and a proto-archaic form of the LE alignment tongue. Those who know the modern alignment tongue for LE are able to recognize 50% of Greqillap's words (and vice versa); it is highly unlikely, however, that any but the most ardent demonologist would know any words of the tongue of Mzingaloq.

Discussion with Greqillap – should it be possible – is potentially valuable, since Greqillap is able to offer useful advice about how to weaken the activities of Rimmaq-Isfet and Kauket on the Prime Material Plane (this is because Greqillap's lord, Mzingaloq, is the arch-rival of Rimmaq-Isfet). It can provide general information about the relationship between Rimmaq-Isfet and Kauket as well as specific information about how to use areas 8-76, 9-40 and SL13-10L to weaken those entities. N.B.: Offering sacrifices to Greqillap is obviously an evil act.

Information about Mzingaloq and Greqillap is extraordinarily rare; only a handful of the most ancient texts describe this alien 'god', and those texts are carefully guarded treasures of the Order of Thoth in its headquarters in Archontos. One such text is On the Terrible Old Gods, by Sarquin of Archontos (see Arden Vul books); only nine copies were redacted, but several are located in Arden Vul (e.g., area SL10A-32).

Inhabitants:

1. Greqillap the Undying, a greater servitor of Mzingaloq (see new monsters): SZ L; AL LE; AC 0; MV 90', 120' flying (Class A); HD 16; HP 128; #AT 4; Dmg 2-12/2-12/2-12/2-12; MR 45%. Continual abilities: infravision, ultravision. Special attacks: cause fear; engulf victims; Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to charm, hold, fire, cold, and mind affecting spells; half damage from electricity. Special: detect magic; detect invisible; teleport without error; telekinesis.

SL9-25: Fishy Cave with Trapped Entry

Six lizardman warriors guard this cave. The reek of fish – drying and rotting – is almost overpowering. The western entrance to the cave is trapped. The north and south walls are covered with algal ropes from which fish taken in SL9-21 are drying. A rope bridge extends west towards SL9-22.

Sweep Trap (west): With the help of the kaliyani, the lizardman have rigged a trap designed to sweep incautious intruders into the lake (SL9-21). The western entrance to the cave is covered with a mat of discarded reeds and fish bones. Hidden among them is a rope connected to eye-hooks in the walls and ceiling. One of the lizardmen guards can pull the free end of the rope, causing it to spring up to ankle height. An intruder who fails to notice the rope will cause an 8'-square panel of bone, wood, and dried algae to drop down, thus potentially sweeping all in the entrance backwards and into SL9-21. All intruders in the entranceway must successfully roll 3d6 under DEX or be swept into the lake.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 15, 13, 13, 12, 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL9-26: Witch Doctors' Cave with Hatchling Pool

Kresst Two-Toes, the senior witch doctor of the Lagrok tribe, and his apprentice Prisp, inhabit this cave. They are responsible for guarding the hatchling pool occupying the eastern half of the cave. The pool is shallow, warm, and muddy, perfect for the gestation of lizardman eggs. Currently seventeen eggs may be found here.

Inhabitants:

1. Kresst Two-Toes, 7th/2nd-level lizardman witch doctor: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD as 5+ HD monster; HP 35; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 3-9 (morning star +1) and javelin (1-6), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: javelins; morning star +1; and an amulet of spell absorption (see new magic items) with 17 spell levels remaining. Memorized spells: cure light wounds, fear, light, augury, chant, speak with animals; blindness, dispel magic; divination; dancing lights, shield.

2. Prisp, 3rd/2nd-level lizardman witch doctor: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD as 3+ HD creature; HP 21; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 2-8 (morning star) and 2-7 (javelin +1), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: javelins, including one javelin +1; morning star. Memorized spells: detect magic, fear; resist fire; affect normal fires, push.

SL9-27: Hall of the Lizard King

Chief Nisslok rules the Lagrok tribe from this decrepit former heqeti hall. He is always accompanied by three aggressive females, three elite warriors, and a kaliyani advisor. The sound of combat brings reinforcements from SL9-17, SL9-25, and SL9-26.

The hall is 25' tall and supported with three solid columns. A balcony 10' above the ground occupies the south wall. The construction is rough and pebbled in the heqeti fashion, but is no longer oily or greasy. The west wall is covered by a 10'-tall high relief sculpture. The sculpture shows four worm-like tentacles protruding from the wall and hovering over a shell-like basin. Originally this was a fountain, but it ceased working years ago. Chief Nisslok fills the basin with water from the mineral lake (SL9-21).

Furnishings include two tripods of heating (see new magic items), two tattered Archontean carpets showing the coronation of two emperors (45 gp each), and Nisslok's stone throne set against the north wall.

Nisslok's harem is busy skinning alive a captured Skreel lizardman (c.f. SL5) in preparation for a feast.

Nisslok is proud and aggressive, and unhappy about the kaliyani domination of his people. While he is likely to try to kill and devour most adventuring parties, a very strong one might be able to negotiate with him, especially if that party offered assistance versus the Skreel (on SL5) and the kaliyani.

Inhabitants:

1. Nisslok, a lizard king: SZ L; AL CE; AC 1; MV 150', 120' swimming; HD 8; HP 53; #AT 1; Dmg 7-22 (Fishgutter, trident +2). Special attacks: skewer if roll to hit is 5 more than needed. Possessions: a foebane necklace (see new magic items); jade jewelery worth 350 gp; Fishgutter, a magical trident +2; a conch of crustacean assistance; and 3 globes of sulfuric distress (see new magic items for all).

2. 3 aggressive female lizardmen who fight as males: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 14, 13, 13; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins.

3. 3 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90', 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 27, 25, 23; #AT 1 or 3; 4-10 (broadword +1) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadwords +1; javelins; foebane necklaces (see new magic items); and one combustible mud gourd each (see Arden Vul items).

4. 1 5th-level kaliyani scout (see new monsters), as a 5th-level thief: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 36; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 16. Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 40%, HS 31%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; a set of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp; a vial of poison and a philter of persuasiveness; a pair of jade earrings shaped like snakes (125 gp).

SL9-27A: Chief's Treasure

This broken corridor formerly led to the heqeti areas of Level 9, but the connection is impassable due to massive cave-ins. Chief Nisslok uses the area to store his treasure, piled in a disorganized heap.

Treasure:

Two 3'-tall granite heads of Archontean spearmen taken from statues somewhere else in Arden Vul (50 gp each); a chipped but still beautiful red-and-black glazed Archontean urn, showing the 4th labor of Arden (350 gp – see SL13-10D); a 4'-tall leather javelin case, in which is concealed a kaliyani blasting rod (see new technological items); 6 3-lb lumps of arcenum (see new magic items); an enormous node of raw gold ore, weighing 75 lb (2,000 gp); a badly rusted iron box containing 1,379 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) and 259 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); a solid gold skull with 2 red garnets for eyes (2,375 gp); and 2 codices, a waterlogged deluxe copy of the Litany of Light and a pristine copy of the Pandects of Thaumaturgical Visitation attributed to Knut Knot-Cleaver (see Arden Vul books).

SL9-28: Watchers' Cave

This small, nondescript cave overlooks the lake. A pair of lizardmen sit here at all times, allegedly guarding the approaches to SL9-22. They are lazy and easy to surprise (+1 to rolls), however. A rope bridge extends east to SL9-22.

Inhabitants

1. 2 lizardmen: SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 11, 10; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

SL9-29: Deserted Cave with Statue

Dominating this spacious, sand-lined cave is a badly worn, 7'-tall statue depicting a heqeti hopper held horizontally by a worm-like thing with numerous tentacle-like feelers extending from its mouth. The statue is ancient and badly worn, and it takes much examination to decipher the nature of the figures or the fact that the name Reestiq is carved along the right arm of the heqeti (see SL9-30). It is also difficult to spot this name as the statue gives off an aura of doom; those failing to save versus spells will flee the area, only regaining their courage when more than 30' away from the statue. For every two experience levels above 1st (or for every 2 HD above 1 HD), those viewing the statue receive a +1 bonus to their save.

The statue can be manipulated by twisting the horizontal heqeti counter clockwise atop the worm-like thing. Doing so requires a successful open doors roll. If the statue is successfully rotated, a secret door slides open in the north wall, revealing steps that lead down to area SL9-30.

Secret Door (north): The door is hard to detect (1 in 8) and only opens by manipulating the statue as described above.

Treasure:

A few bits of coral on leather strings and twists of silver and jade jewelry sit in a wooden bowl at the foot of the statue; these are offerings made by nervous lizardmen to the 'god' of the statue. The offerings are worth a total of 37 gp.

SL9-30: Tomb of Reestiq the Builder

The stairs from SL9-29 lead to a 15'x20' chamber, the false tomb of a long-forgotten heqeti builder named Reestiq. In the center of the false tomb is an 8'x3'x4' sarcophagus. All surfaces in the tomb – walls, ceiling, floor, and sarcophagus – are faced in several inches of dried and flaking mud originally taken from the nearby flats. The mud has been carved in places, but the millennia have rendered most of the images fragmentary – about all that can be inferred is that the images are heqeti. Trodding on the mud floor causes puffs of dried mud to be kicked into the air, while touching the walls causes them to flake. To strip the mud from the walls is a dirty and choke-inducing task; it is also fruitless, as the stone beneath them is barren.

The west wall, however, is slightly different: thirteen long (heqeti) thigh bones extend horizontally from the flaking mud of the wall. The western wall is also a false wall, of mud-and wattle construction. Removing any of the bones from the western wall causes a puff of air from the true tomb (to the west) to jet into the chamber, revealing a bone-sized hole into that next chamber. Those wishing to look through the holes must move swiftly, since within 5 rounds of the removal of the bone, Reestiq leaps from his true sarcophagus and bursts through the false mud wall. Those who move swiftly to peer through the holes see a similar 15'x15' chamber, similarly coated in mud. They are likely to witness the lid of a second sarcophagus being thrown off and the charge of Reestiq through the mud wall.

Trap (poison dust): When/if Reestiq charges through the mud wall separating the two tombs, he dislodges a poison dust that the heqeti built into the mud of the partition. This dust is mixed with the mud, and as Reestiq charges, all within a 30'-diameter circle will need to save versus poison (with a +1 bonus due to the age of the poison) or die. Since this is not truly a mechanical trap, the poison dust is difficult if not impossible to detect as a trap. A kind GM might allow thieves to detect the false wall as a trap, but it would likely be impossible for them to detect the nature of the trap. Should the PCs somehow detect the wall and break it down before Reestiq is able to act, the poison will still be released.

True Tomb: The true tomb of Reestiq is located in the western half of the complex, behind the mud-and-wattle false wall. It is comprised of a second 15'x20' chamber with another sarcophagus in its center. Although the sarcophagus is intact when area SL9-30 is entered, Reestiq rises from within the sarcophagus either when one of the extruding bones is removed from it or when the wall is knocked down. The images carved into the dry mud of the walls are more intact here, and show an erect heqeti (Reestiq) directing other heqeti in digging, erecting walls, and carving statues. Reestiq's treasure is inside the sarcophagus.

Inhabitants:

1. Reestiq, an heqeti old one (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 6+6; HP 47, 45, 40, 39, 38, 37; #AT 1 Dmg 3-12. Special attacks: leap; cursed tongue. Special defenses: turned as spectres; half damage from piercing and edged weapons; immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold-based spells. Reestiq cannot be turned while within SL9-30. Possessions: obsidian-tipped spear +2 (which may only be wielded by those with STR 16 or greater); two mud salamander charms, conveying magic immunity and fire protection (see new magic items); thick jade collar (2,000 gp)

Treasure:

In addition to Reestiq's personal items, the sarcophagus contains the following: two more mud salamander charms (see new magic items – the charms convey MR 25% and fire protection, respectively), a heqefi ring (see new magic items), sixteen jade bangles (100 gp each), and a piece of flattened, baked mud with a sketch of areas 9-109 to 9-126 on it. This 'map' contains other areas that were destroyed ages ago, but does indicate the secret door and stairs at 9-124/9-125.

SL9-31: Cave of the Skeletal Lizardmen

The bleached skeletons of eight lizardmen hang from pegs roughly thrust into walls of this cave. The bones have been bound together with bits of dried ligament. The skeletons rattle menacingly if touched, but are inanimate. A rope ladder, attached to pegs hammered into the floor, is coiled neatly by the ledge overlooking SL9-32.

SL9-32: Northern Mud Flats

The northern portion of the main cavern rises, on average, about 75' from floor to ceiling, and the environment is hot and humid. The floor of the cavern is covered with a thick (5' to 10'-deep) layer of mineral-rich mud thrown up by the mudpots and mud volcanoes that dot the region. The mud in the central region of the flats (the area between SL9-38, SL9-33 and SL9-33) is covered in a 2" layer of warm water that slowly drains towards the lake. Mudpots are common throughout the region (see SL9-3).

Movement across the flats is as described for SL9-3. The same chances to encounter random mudpots and mudsinks apply here.

SL9-33: Broad Ledge

This broad ledge provides a fine view of the northern flats and the geysers to the north. An ancient campsite is located to the southeast, by the column of rock extending to the ceiling. The ledge is a favored gathering spot for chasm cephalopods, and a pod is sure to arrive here within 3-6 turns.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 27, 26, 25, 24; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4.
2. 2 large chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 6; HP 43, 39; #AT 6 (five tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; one tentacle drains spells from casters, adding 2-8 HP to chasm cephalopod per spell.

SL9-34: High Ledge

Atop the ledge may be found the limed-over skeleton of an orange-jumpsuited rudishva, a senior officer in the tactical corps who fled here after suffering mortal injuries during the rebellion of the kaliyani against the rudishva.

Treasure:

On the rudishva corpse: a biometric protection card (see new technological items) allowing the bearer to pass any point defense array (e.g., SL9-43) without activating those defenses.

SL9-35: Rocky Beach

A terrified lizardman has been staked to the rocky beach just by the edge of the mudflats. This warrior is being sacrificed to the mud worms as punishment for questioning Chief Nisslok's policies. Every turn that explorers spend on the beach there is a cumulative 10% chance (to a maximum of 70%) of a mud worm arriving to investigate and attack. Even if freed, the lizardman will never associate itself with humans or demi-humans; it will attempt to flee down the tunnel at SL9-37.

In addition to the lizardman, a pair of rotting riding salamander corpses occupies the beach. The kaliyani were hoping to use them for transporting goods into Arden Vul, but a combination of factors (including the mud worms) doomed this effort.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 wounded lizardman: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60'; 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 5 (max 14); #AT #AT 1 or 3; Dmg by weapon, or 1-2/1-2/1-8.

SL9-36: Elevated Cave

This cave lies 20' above the beach at SL9-35. Six elite lizardman warriors are always posted in the southern lobe, near the narrow tunnel to SL9-26. They have orders to observe and only engage if visitors appear interested in that tunnel. The floor of the main cave is sandy and shows signs of traffic to the east.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 elite lizardmen: SZ M; AL NE; AC 2; MV 90'; 150' swimming; HD 3+3; HP 26, 23, 22, 21, 20, 19; #AT 1 or 3; 3-9 (broadsword) and 2-7 (javelin), or 1-3/1-3/2-9. Possessions: broadswords; javelins; foebane necklaces (see new magic items); and one combustible mud gourd each (see Arden Vul items).

SL9-37: Tunnel Down to 9-119

This narrow tunnel wends downward in a series of tight corkscrews before reaching area 9-119. A dwarf might notice that many sections of the tunnel were recently constructed, while a ranger might notice the recent passage of a group of six-legged beings. These are signs of the passage of the kaliyani advance team that has moved into the main halls (see 9-118).

SL9-38: Northern Geyser

A powerful geyser of hot water erupts every other turn from this location. The geyser rises 55' above the mud flats and affects all within a 30'-diameter circle. Anyone walking by or flying over the geyser's location will take 5-30 HP damage and be tossed 30' in a random direction. The frequency of the geyser ensures that the area is shrouded in mist most of the time; this makes it difficult to spot the ledge at SL9-41. Chasm cephalopods are attracted to the steam, and are often found near the geysers.

SL9-39: Southern Geyser

A second geyser erupts here every fourth turn, rising 35' in the air and affecting all in a 20' radius. Otherwise it is identical to the geyser at SL9-38. Mist is only present 3 turns in 4.

SL9-40: Western Geyser

A third geyser erupts here every fourth turn, rising 45' in the air and affecting all in a 25' radius. Otherwise it is identical to the geyser at SL9-38.

SL9-41: Forgotten Rudishva Overlook

A ledge 40' above the mudflats leads to a long-forgotten rudishva science station. The mist produced by the geyser at SL9-38 makes it very difficult to spot the ledge without close inspection of the rock outcropping.

The science station is cut into the north face of this rock outcropping. The surfaces – floor, walls, ceiling – are sheathed with white marble, and edges are rounded such that there are no right angles. A console in white plasteel rests against the west wall, but it was destroyed in antiquity. Two 4'-tall iron rods are set into the lip of the ledge overlooking SL9-32. Mounted atop each rod is a yellow-and-blue cylinder with smoked glass-steel ends and several buttons, sliding switches, and glyphs along the shaft. These are rudishva CompositScan 3000 mineral detectors (see new technological items). The two devices are difficult to detach from the iron rods (20% chance to render each unusable in removal). One of the two has malfunctioned slightly, and can no longer be programmed to locate anything but arcanum (see new magic items). The other is still fully operational. An overlooked rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items) is wedged between the console and the wall.

Chasm cephalopods congregate near the geyser, investigation of the ledge is sure to attract a pod of these strange creatures.

Inhabitants:

1. 5 medium chasm cephalopods (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 4; HP 28, 27, 26, 25, 24; #AT 5 (4 tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4.
2. 3 large chasm cephalopod (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60' flying (Class A); HD 6; HP 42, 39, 35; #AT 6 (five tentacles and a beak); Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4; one tentacle drains spells from casters, adding 2-8 HP to chasm cephalopod per spell.

Treasure:

Two rudishva CompositScan 3000 devices; rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items).

SL9-41A: Winding Stairs

The stairs leading from SL9-41 to SL9-42 (or vice versa) are quite narrow (4' wide) and steep. They descend through the rock outcropping into the bedrock beneath the mudflats before climbing to reach area SL9-42.

SL9-42: Low Ledges

A strange semi-circular hut, some 9' tall, is wedged against the southwest side of the central pillar rising amid these ledges. The hut is made of a framework of bone over which is stretched pieces of particolored leather taken from lizardmen and giant lizards. Peep holes allow inhabitants a good view of areas to the northwest, southwest, and southeast. The leather is spotted with mud from the mudpots that occasionally erupt nearby.

A pair of kaliyani soldiers crouch within the hut. Their task is to watch over the approaches to areas SL9-51 and SL9-59. The guards are generally unhappy with their assignment and take any opportunity to depart. Should imposing-looking foes approach from any of the areas within their line of sight, there is a 75% chance that they push down the walls of their hut, launch themselves on their mud skis (see Arden Vul items), and hightail it to area SL9-59 in order to report the intruders. If closely followed, the soldiers stop at area SL9-59 to fight, as they have strict orders not to reveal which is the true door into the Pits. Even if they decide to stay in their position (25%), they attempt to flee once their HP are reduced in half.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 1st-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 4; HP 26, 24; #AT 2 or 1; Dmg 1-4/1-4 or 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) and 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; minor jewelry worth 153 gp. These individuals have no psionic ability.

SL9-43: Stairs and Corpses

A set of wide stairs sinks into the rock towards the west, becoming the narrow stairs (SL9-41A) that lead towards area SL9-41. Around the mouth of the stairs are the ancient, charred remains of a dozen kaliyani, a number of small lizards, and a few chasm cephalopod husks. To the east is a rudishva iris door that opens only when a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque is presented.

Guarding the door are a pair of rudishva point defense arrays (see new technological items). The arrays were programmed to blast any being who did not possess a biometric scan card (see new technological items), and they are still functional today. Each array strikes as a 10 HD fighter, attacking three times every two rounds, and inflicting 6-36 HP damage on a target (impedes regeneration). Biometric protection cards (see new technological items) allowing the bearer to bypass the arrays can be found at SL9-34 and SL9-44.

SL9-44: Rudishva Science Station: Control Room

The door to the west is a rudishva iris door that opens only when a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque is presented. Next to the door is slumped the orange-jumpsuited skeleton of a rudishva with a laser pistol in its hands. In the eastern niche is a smashed, wrap-around console 4' above the floor, and a set of three 10'x5' wall-mounted viewscreens that are also obviously broken. A heavy stone hammer rests on the floor by the console. Attached to the south wall by a set of clamps and brackets is a rudishva jet-ski (see new technological items). In the hallway to the north are the skeletons of four kaliyani; their bones carry scorch marks.

GM Notes: The rudishva was Cliv-Nol, a jemadar of the Tactical Corps, who together with his colleague Pejar-Bel (7-108), prevented the kaliyani from occupying the science station's main facilities and plundering its supplies. Cliv-Nol managed to slay those sent to neutralize him, and then changed the programming of the point defense arrays (SL9-43) such that they would target all biological life forms. After Pejar-Bel sacrificed himself on Level 7, Cliv-Nol realized that there would be no escape; he destroyed the consoles here and took his own life.

Treasure:

A rudishva laser pistol, with a full lesser power supply; a rudishva jet-ski; a sky blue rudishva identity plaque; and a rudishva biometric protection card (see new technological items for all).

SL9-44A: Rudishva Science Station: Empty Teleport Node

Although it might seem that a rudishva teleport node should exist in this niche, the rudishva never had the resources to equip this location. As a result the niche is empty, with bare stone surfaces and two insets cut into the rock: a 1"-deep, 5'-diameter circle on the floor, and a 1"-deep, 10"-square section on the wall.

SL9-45: Rudishva Science Station: Bunkroom

Beyond the rudishva iris door is a severe chamber with four plasteel bunks attached to the north and south walls. Beneath each bunk are two drawers. On the east wall is a strange pulsating purple light; the light is emitted from a 3"-diameter rod suspended vertically between two plates that protrude from the wall.

The drawers contain the following: four white laboratory jumpsuits; two biohazard suits (see new technological items); a lump of carved granite showing a heqeti warrior with a spear (45 gp); six pieces of colored glass strung together as a mobile (to hang from a ceiling); three pairs of heavy white work gloves; a set of rudishva hand tools (screwdrivers, wirecutter, laser level, laser measure, etc.); and a 3' segment of mud worm vertebrae.

SL9-46: Rudishva Science Station: Main Hall

All three doors to this chamber are rudishva iris doors. Only the middle door (to SL9-49) requires a plaque to open: a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque opens it. The other two are motion activated; anyone approaching within 5' causes them to freely dilate open.

This chamber is sheathed in black granite and contains four distinct areas of interest: a sunken leisure area to the north, a raised platform in the middle on which are heaped a dozen ancient kaliyani corpses, a long table with attached benches to the south, and an empty niche in the east wall.

To the north end is a sunken area 20' long, 10' wide, and 5' deep. A seating ledge runs around inside lip of the area; the ledge is made of a synthetic foam that adapts to the contours of anyone who sits on it. Three consoles sit at the bottom of the sunken area, one a table for games, and two with pyramidal smoked glass-steel entertainment panels (3'x3'x3'). The screens are cracked and useless, but the gaming board has a set of rudishva geometric gaming pieces made of plastic worth 75 gp.

Opposite the door leading to 7-111 is a 10'x10' platform rising 3' off the floor. The platform is made of particolored 18" squares of plasteel – red, yellow, green, mauve, blue, black, etc. The platform is slightly obscured by an 8' pile of mostly-skeletonized kaliyani. Mixed in with the bone are bits of fabric and broken equipment. Crouching inert in the center of the pile is a stone nataraja (a rudishva animated construct - see new monsters). Having been programmed by Cliv-Nol (SL9-44) to defend the chamber against all non-rudishva, the stone nataraja did its part and waits for further foes. It will leap from within the pile of bones as soon as any entity approaches within 5'.

The southern end of the science station's main hall is dominated by a 15'-long, 5'-wide white plasteel table. To one end of the table is bolted a Nutri-vore 2500 food-and-drink dispenser (see new technological items).

The west wall has an empty niche in which the stone nataraja formerly crouched.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 rudishva animated constructs - stone natarajas (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 58; #AT 1; Dmg 4-11; MR 25%. Special attacks: sonic or fire attack. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to cold, fire, electricity, poison, and mind-affecting spells.

Treasure:

Nutri-vore 2500 dispenser (see new technological items).

SL9-47: Rudishva Science Station: Laboratory

The heart of the science station, this laboratory was where the rudishva attempted to find a source for the elements and isotopes they hoped would allow them to repair and fly the remaining shuttle of the Beacon (SL13-37). The walls are lined with consoles and plasteel chairs, on which sit an impressive array of equipment, screens, hardened glassware, data crystals (see new technological items), and so forth. Most of it has been smashed, however. The center of the chamber holds several free standing pieces of equipment: a pair of centrifuges, a fusion chamber, and a storage 'refrigerator' with environmental controls. A being with sufficient understanding of advanced science could use these devices to prepare compounds, test reactions, and store results.

GM Note: Guidelines for operation of these devices are not included here. The GM should devise them as appropriate to his/her campaign. At the very least, the equipment should allow the distillation of the elements and compounds necessary to create more deuterium fuel for the rudishva shuttle (see 9-94 and SL9-48 for full information).

Treasure:

Scattered amid the rubble are the following: nine usable test-tubes, a digital scale (using strange units of measurement), a set of measuring 'spoons', four packages of generic gel for creating solutions, a digitally controlled heating element, three heavy gloves for handling materials; a spool of copper wire (45 gp); a spool of platinum wire (245 gp); a spool of gold wire (145 gp); and sixteen very small diamonds for industrial use (550 gp).

SL9-48: Rudishva Science Station: Head of Station

The former quarters of the chief science officer of the Beacon, Spiv-Kol, are austere and functional. A combination bunk-wardrobe made of yellow plasteel occupies the east wall. Spiv-Kol's workstation, also in yellow plasteel, is attached to the north wall. The skeleton of the science officer is slumped in the chair, his white jumpsuit charred with energy blasts. The desk top contains a GnuCoder 3000 data recorder, a lump of arcanum (see new magic items), and two 5" squares of crystal that display 3D scenes (one of a gigantic waterfall at night under a sky with three moons; the other an image of four rudishva in strange dress). Several data crystals (see new technological items) are scattered on top of and beneath the desk; most appear to have been smashed, but three are still functional. Against the south wall are three wall-mounted cabinets that used to contain data-crystals. Sadly, the cabinets and their contents are scorched with fire (the product of the kaliyani attack, as the kaliyani wished to destroy the scientific achievements of this station). The surviving data crystals are as follows: Creating

D-3He Reactions from Native Minerals, Laboratory Notes of Spiv-Kol, Chief Science Officer, and Native Fauna of the Local Mud Flats (see Arden Vul books for all).

SL9-49: Stairs Down to Level 7 (7-111)

These stairs are narrow and rounded, in the rudishva tradition. They lead down to area 7-111.

SL9-50: Elevated Cave with Fiery Curtain

Sitting only a few feet above the floor of the mudflats, this cave is spattered with old and recent eruptions of mud from the nearby mud-pots. The floor is rough and natural near the flats, but becomes worked in front of the corridor leading north; there an 8'-diameter ouroboros made of red marble is inset into the flattened granite.

Beyond the ouroboros, a fiery force shield blocks access to the chamber to the north; the flame is broken only by an 8'-tall, 4'-wide oval in which a holographic figure stands on one leg. The figure has two legs, but six arms, each holding a different object (drum, pot of fire, lotus, and dagger; the other two hands hold nothing). It is possible to catch a glimpse of the stairs through the aperture (indeed, through the figure), but the curious are well advised not to tarry! If any living being approaches within 5'; the figure starts to dance, beginning slowly but swiftly increasing its tempo. After 3 rounds, the whirling figure begins to call forth blobs of fire from the fiery force wall; these blobs hit unerringly for 1-6 HP damage each (with a chance to ignite combustibles).

The force wall can only be destroyed by casting disintegration on it. Unlike other fiery veils in Arden Vul (e.g. 5-90A and SL6-37), the presentation of a rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) does NOT cause the dancer or veil to dematerialize, even temporarily.

GM Note: The kaliyani used areas SL9-52 to SL9-53 as a temporary residence after their betrayal of the rudishva in antiquity. From here they moved into the Underearth. As they left they sealed the small complex with the fiery veil. When the kaliyani returned, they found themselves unable to lower the veil.

SL9-51: Cave with New Tunnel

The mud covering the floor of this cave is only 3' deep, and no mud pots or other thermal activity are present. A dwarf will recognize signs of recent construction on the walls of the cave, and especially on the narrow (5'-wide) tunnel leading north).

When they realized they could not bypass the fiery veil at SL9-50, the modern kaliyani decided to dig a new tunnel towards area SL9-52. The digging was slow and laborious, and they only completed it several months ago.

SL9-52: Ancient Kaliyani Hall

This large chamber lacks any 90-degree angles. Every surface of the native granite is carved in medium relief, mostly depicting anonymous kaliyani battling against a wide variety of enemies, including heqeti. Floral and geometric patterns link the imagery. One exception to this effect is a large ouroboros symbol made of smooth black marble that is inset into the floor around the central pool in smooth black marble. The central pool is 10' deep, and lined with white marble; thanks to a serious crack in its floor, the pool is empty, with only a yellow-ish residue to show that it once held kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items). To the west is a shrine with an 8'-tall statue of a kaliyani science officer. To the east is a niche, in front of which are the shattered pieces of a destroyed stone nataraja (see new monsters). Three kaliyani soldiers are posted here to guard the approaches to the teleportal in SL9-53. They are careful to stay away from the fiery veil at SL9-50, but fight fiercely to defend this historic site.

Statue: The statue is 8' tall and made of red granite and white marble. It is ancient and unusual, as the rudishva did not favor monumental depictions of living individuals. The statue depicts a kaliyani, shown standing erect, wearing a modest tunic and holding a test-tube and a lump of arcnum (see new magic items). The test-tube contains a secret compartment, which may be detected as a secret door. Once detected, the compartment may be opened by prising off the cap of the test-tube, thus revealing a compartment holding two data crystals (see new technological items): the Case for Action, and the Life and Deeds of Rekkarev (see Arden Vul books for both).

GM Notes: This area was used by the kaliyani in antiquity as a staging area after their successful revolt against the rudishva and before they departed for the underearth. The statue depicts Rekkarev, the Second Science Officer of the Beacon. He is still held in high esteem by the modern kaliyani as a legendary hero of the kaliyani and as the discoverer of arcnum.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 4th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of heroism, one a potion of invulnerability, and the third a potion of stone giant strength.

SL9-53: Ancient Transport Nexus

Two of the three lobes of this small area once held rudishva teleport niches. The western teleport circle has been literally ripped from the floor, and the silver disk broken into fragments; it is, of course unusable. The northern niche, however, is operative. The modern kaliyani have attempted a repair operation on the teleportation disk which has largely succeeded, allowing them access to area 6-32. The rudishva iris door to the east opens with an orange, silver, or yellow rudishva identity plaque, but the corridor that used to link to further kaliyani areas and to the science station was destroyed during the rebellion against the rudishva.

Teleport Node: The node is comprised of the usual 5'-diameter circle and 10" square of silvery metal affixed respectively to the floor and wall. To activate the node, one stands on the circle and touches one's hand to the square. The teleporter's connectivity is a bit dodgy (see above). Each use has a 15% chance to fail, rendering the teleporter unusable for 1-4 turns; when failure occurs, all within the silvered circle must save versus breath weapons or take 4-24 HP electric damage.

T23: access to area 6-32

SL9-54: Western Mud Flats

The mud flats extend to the west in a long cave that links the northern and southern flats. Here the ceiling is less tall, rising only about 30' above the mud in most places (except at SL9-59). The environment remains hot and humid, and the mud is just as thick (5' to 10' deep) as elsewhere. Mud-pots and mud volcanoes are common throughout the region (see SL9-3).

Movement across the flats is as described for SL9-3. The same risk of mudpots and mudsinks applies here.

SL9-55: Mud Cells

The kaliyani keep four prisoners standing up to their necks in mud in this location. The prisoners are shackled by chains to the walls of the narrow caves; the chains can be adjusted so that they permit an unfortunate victim to just barely keep his/her/its head above the level of the mud. To keep the mud worms away, the kaliyani have erected a barrier of resin-coated logs across the mouth of the area; the tips of the logs rise 4' above the level of the mud. The prisoners emit a string of piteous moans, and are quick to beg assistance from any visitor.

GM Note: None of the prisoners has any equipment. All were captured near area 6-43 by an early kaliyani expedition to Level 6. Vig was serving as guide to a party of explorers, most of whom were killed; the kaliyani transported the survivors from 6-32 to SL9-53 for interrogation. The party was funded by Lady Alexia Basileon in order to track down the iron circlet of Ghanor (see new magic items). The leader of the adventurers was Nixion the Bold, a member of the sept of Azure knights that has chosen to support Lady Alexia at the Azure Keep (see AK-1).

Inhabitants:

1. Vig, lesser varumani (see new monsters): SZ L; AL LE; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 41 (max 50); #AT 3 or 1; Dmg 3-6/3-6/4-10 or by weapon. Special defenses: 33% resistant to mind-affecting magic; immune to cold and poison; save as 8th-level fighter or 8th-level magic user, whichever is better; regenerate 3 HP/rd; infravision. Vig is in good shape, thanks to his ability to regenerate.

2. Nixion the Bold, knight of the Azure Shield (see World of Archontos appendix), 4th-level male Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 9; MV 120'; HD 4; HP 13 (max 31); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 16, INT 14, WIS 12, DEX 15, CON 10, CHA 15.
3. Cyra Red-Eyes, 5th-level female Archontean thief: SZ M; AL N; AC 7; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 9 (max 21); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 12, INT 14, WIS 11, DEX 17, CON 9, CHA 14. Thief skills: PP 55%, OL 52%, F/RT 40%, MS 45%, HS 36%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%.
4. Testareon, 4th-level male Archontean magic user: SZ M; AL NE; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 4; HP 3 (max 13); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 9, INT 18, WIS 15, DEX 10, CON 15, CHA 8. His spell book has been destroyed.

SL9-56: Platform with Ancient Carvings

A 5' platform of ancient, cracked stone flagstones rises from the mud in this location. The north and east walls are covered in middle-relief carvings of kaliyani, rudishva, varumani, varuda, and a variety of bizarre and implausible life forms. All figures writhe together in a mass, making it difficult to follow a narrative arc. Still, observation by one with INT 15 or more, or by one with some knowledge of the demise of the rudishva hegemony might glean the following: 1) the kaliyani are larger, and hence more important than their fellows; 2) a sub-text seems to involve kaliyani stabbing rudishva with long knives. The truly observant (those rolling 4d8 under INT) might notice a coded message in Rudishva Glyphik within the swirl of imagery. The message is spread across 25 feet of wall, and asserts: "The Hegemony is Broken. The Beacon will never rise again. We depart."

SL9-57: Stepping Stones

A series of roughly-carved stone pillars rises from the mud. Placed here by the ancient kaliyani to facilitate movement through the mud, several of the pillars have collapsed. Still, as they rise 2-4' above the mud, they allow expedited movement across the flats.

SL9-58: Alcove

Beneath the mud of this alcove is a long forgotten troll chest (see new technological items) containing three laser rifles and six lesser power supplies (see new technological items).

SL9-58A: Arcanum Cave

This extension to the main cavern is hotter and more humid than the main mud flats. It also reeks of sulfur. More significantly, it is dominated by a huge node of arcanum (see new magic items). Resting atop the node are six picks, six heavy hammers, and six canvas-and-wooden buckets. The node is approximately 45' high and 30' in diameter, although only a section 10' tall and 20' in diameter protrudes above the mud. The normal effects of exposure to high concentrations of arcanum apply here.

GM Note: The kaliyani mine chunks of arcanum from this node to fuel their spell-casting. The size of the node was one reason that Tsilliv chose to build her consortium here. Still, the intensity of the arcanum effects makes it difficult for the kaliyani to spend extended periods of time here.

SL9-59: Imposing Rock Wall with Many Doors

A broad ledge rises 5' above the mudflats here and is illuminated by five torches thrust into the base of the western wall. Muddy footprints may be obvious all across the shelf. A ranger might be able to tell that the footprints belong to six-legged beings. The shelf is overshadowed, however, by the dramatic western rock wall. The wall is 45' tall and, aside from the ledges, is covered in elaborate mid-relief carvings of kaliyani. Every inch of the wall shows either a kaliyani writhing in combat, a kaliyani dancing in ecstasy, or intertwining vines and floral motifs.

Four ledges extend outwards 5' from the wall. They vary in height – the northern and southern ledges are 10' from the floor, while the central two ledges are 20' above the floor. Each ledge leads to a short corridor that ends in a door. The wall and ceilings of the corridors are also fully carved with similar imagery.

Hidden among the elaborate carvings of the wall (at a height of 35' from the floor) are three arrow slits, which allow kaliyani soldiers in area SL9-64 to attack those in the cavern or mudflats.

Secret Latch: Hidden among the stone tracery to the south of the ledge leading to area SL9-62 is a stone latch, which opens the door at SL9-62. Locating the latch is extremely difficult to do by hazard; only if PCs guess that a knob, button or latch is hidden among the stonework will they have a chance (1 in 8, after 2-5 turns searching) to locate the latch. Of course spying on kaliyani entering the Pits improves these odds: in this case, searchers have a 1 in 3 chance per turn to locate the knob.

Kaliyani Tactics: When non-kaliyani first approach the great wall, the kaliyani in SL9-64 choose silence and caution. They prefer to allow the traps in areas SL9-60, SL9-61, and SL9-63 to deter visitors. Only if the visitors 1) discover the true door (SL9-62), and 2) seem close to discovering the opening mechanism for that door do they start to take action. At that point they ring the gong at the northern part of SL9-64 to rally more troops to the defense of the Pits. Of course, visitors may already be aware that defenders are ready due to the murder holes above the false entrances; but the kaliyani do not reveal the arrow slits until it seems useful and appropriate. If a party of visitors retreats and returns, the kaliyani make full use of the arrow slits to soften up enemies on the approach to SL9-62.

SL9-60: Ledge and Trapped False Door

This ledge leads to a short corridor and a false stone door. The walls and ceiling of the corridor, as well as the door itself, are carved with the usual kaliyani images. The floor shows muddy footprints (as the kaliyani regularly make a false trail). The stone door is circular, with a cylindrical 1" in diameter that is meant to appear as a key hole. Inserting anything into the hole triggers a trap. In addition, if the kaliyani guards in area SL9-64 are aware of the intruders, they will have their asp eggs (see new magic items) ready.

Trapped door (poisoned javelins): The trap is triggered by inserting anything into the cylindrical 'keyhole' in the false door. Immediately 12 spring-loaded javelins fire from recessed holes in the carved door. Each javelin strikes as an 8th-level fighter and does 1-6 HP damage. In addition, the javelins are smeared with lethal poison, against which victims must save or die. Given a day, the kaliyani will replace the javelins and reset the trap. It should be clear that simple countermeasures (e.g., using shields to block the javelins) can bypass this trap.

Murder Hole: If alerted (see text at SL9-64), the kaliyani will have asp eggs (see new magic items) ready to drop on those within the corridor. The murder hole is in fact three small, 4"-diameter holes that blend into the carvings. A kaliyani can hurl one asp egg per round through the murder holes. Each kaliyani has two eggs of fire and two eggs of cold.

SL9-61: Ledge and Trapped False Door

This ledge, corridor and door is identical to area SL9-60 with the exception of the type of trap connected to the door. Note that the rules about the murder hole also apply here.

Trapped Door (lightning bolt): Inserting anything into the cylindrical 'key hole' causes a lightning bolt (8 dice) to fire into the corridor. Those who save vs spells take ½ damage. Dispel magic cast at 9th level or above will permanently disarm this trap.

SL9-62: Ledge and Trapped True Door

This ledge, corridor, and door are identical to area SL9-60 with two important exceptions. First, the door here is the true door that leads into the kaliyani pits. It may be opened by locating and releasing the latch set into the carvings on the great wall (SL9-59). Second, the door is still trapped, albeit in a different way.

Trapped Door (glyphs of warding): Should anyone manipulate the cylindrical 'key hole', a pair of powerful glyphs of warding (cast at 9th level) are triggered. One glyph affects the person who manipulated the 'key hole'. It is a level-drain glyph requiring the victim to save versus petrification (at -1 penalty) or lose an experience level. The other affects all within the corridor. It is a glyph of paralysis; all must save versus paralysis (at -1 penalty) or be paralyzed for 1-3 turns. Should a party be totally incapacitated by paralysis, the kaliyani will take them prisoner and prepare them for a dire fate in the Pit (SL9-66). If some or most are paralyzed, the kaliyani will use the murder holes first before opening the door to engage the remnants. If none are paralyzed, the kaliyani use the murder holes but do not open the door.

SL9-63: Ledge and Trapped False Door

The ledge, corridor and door are identical to those at SK9-60, with the exception of the trap.

Trapped Door (delayed blast fireball): Inserting anything into the cylindrical 'key hole' triggers the equivalent of a delayed blast fireball (9 dice) in the corridor. Successful saves versus spells halve the damage.

SL9-64: Kaliyani Fighting Tunnel

This long, undecorated corridor allows the kaliyani to inflict damage upon enemies assaulting the great wall (SL9-59). The corridor runs above all four entrance corridors, and murder holes above each of them allow the kaliyani to drop asp eggs (see new magic items) on intruders within areas SL9-60, SL9-61, SL9-62, and SL9-63. In addition, three arrow slits allow the kaliyani to fire missiles into SL9-59 and SL9-54. Access to the rest of the Pits is obtained via a 3'-diameter hole in the northern lobe of the corridor; the hole has foot- and hand-holds cut into its walls, and descends 35' to area SL9-65. A sturdy rope of twined, knotted, subterranean vines is attached to a thick staple set into the floor of the fighting tunnel; the rope descends all the way to the floor of SL9-65.

Four kaliyani soldiers are always posted in this area. They are usually observant, and will detect any visitors approaching on the stepping stones (SL9-57) or wading through the flats (SL9-54). Invisible parties, however, will take them by surprise. The guards will also be alerted (for 6 turns) if the soldiers at SL9-42 flee ahead of enemies.

The four guards have a reed basket with sixteen asp eggs (see new magic items), eight each of eggs of fire and eggs of cold. Next to the basket is a bronze gong which the guards use to alert the compound as necessary.

Kaliyani Tactics: If the kaliyani are alerted, either by the fleeing soldiers at SL9-42 or by spotting approaching enemies, they wait cautiously to see what happens. They do not reveal themselves until enemies begin to manipulate the doors (SL9-60 to SL9-63). Then they use the murder holes as described at SL9-60. If an approaching party appears powerful, and/or if that party is able to circumvent or shrug off the effects of the trapped door(s) and asp eggs, then one of the kaliyani rings the gong to summon assistance. At that point the kaliyani will begin to use the arrow slits to shower missiles on retreating foes. Should a given party of intruders retreat and then return, the kaliyani will not hesitate to use the arrow slits as soon as the foes are within range.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 5th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 44, 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers has a potion of heroism. Another has a potion of stone giant strength.

Treasure:

Bronze gong, 4' in diameter (100 gp); basket of asp eggs (see new magic items).

SL9-65: Kaliyani Guard Room

Four kaliyani soldiers and a kaliyani sorcerer are posted to this chamber as guards for the great wall (SL9-59). They respond immediately to the sounding of the gong in SL9-64 by rushing to the true door (SL9-62) and by sending for reinforcements from within the Pits.

The chamber is spartan. Simple stone benches line the east and west walls. Above the benches hang two folding, 20'-tall ladders that are used by the kaliyani to exit from SL9-62 to the mudflats below. To the north two practice dummies are suspended from the ceiling by ropes. To the east are two niches. The larger holds a basin of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items). The smaller one leads to the hole leading up to SL9-64; a rope of knotted subterranean vines hangs from the ceiling of the smaller niche, allowing kaliyani to swarm up into the hole.

The team has a woven basket with 2 of each of the asp eggs (see new magic items).

Inhabitants:

1. Pelipev, 5th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 5; HP 25; #AT 32; Dmg 3-8/3-8/6-24 (scimitar/scimitar/blasting rod) or 2-7/2-

7/6-24 (javelin/javelin/blasting rod). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 210. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: comprehend languages, charm person; scare. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; a kaliyani blasting rod (see new technological items) with 4 charges; and a bracelet formed of tiny pearls on gold wire (75 gp).

2. 4 5th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 44, 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of heroism, and another has a flask filled with oil of fiery burning.

Treasure:

Asp eggs (see new magic items), 2 of each type.

SL9-66: The Pit of Torment

The first of the eponymous pits that define the sub-level dominates this long chamber. The walls and ceiling are completely covered in a riot of mid-relief carvings that depict a swirl of kaliyani figures, large winged creatures, snakes, salamanders, crawling bugs, spiders, and giant mushrooms. The pit has a lip rising 3' above the floor. It is 20' deep and expands horizontally as it descends (the floor of the pit covers twice the area of its mouth). Within the pit dwells a horrific monster taken from the deep places of the Underearth, a crawling soul borer (see new monsters).

Leaning against the northeast wall is a ramp made of wood that can be placed into the pit so as to allow the soul borer to exit, or kaliyani to go into the pit. In the north wall is an undecorated niche with a 3'-tall basin of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see arden vul items).

Should PCs be captured by the kaliyani, they will be tossed into the pit for 1-3 days to be tormented by the soul borer; at that point the kaliyani either allow the victims be killed by the soul borer (50%) or consign them to one of the mud cells (SL9-55).

Should combat break out in this chamber, possibly as a result of the PCs storming the true door (SL9-62), the crawling soul borer will not be able to participate. Instead, it emits high pitched keening wails as it senses the presence of victims around it. If the kaliyani have time to prepare for an assault, they will have already placed the ramp into the pit, and the soul borer will be loose in the chamber.

Unless they are observing a torment, or engaging in combat, the kaliyani do not otherwise congregate here.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 crawling soul borer (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 45'; HD 12; HP 83; #AT 3-5, and 2; Dmg 2-8/2-8/2-8/2-8/2-8, and special; MR 25%. Special attacks: engulf (4-24 HP); eye attacks (domination, or energy drain, or intellect drain). Special defenses: immune to cold, fire, and poison; +2 to saves.

SL9-67: Conclave of the Consortium

This chamber and the corridor that encircles it are heart of Tsilliv's new consortium.

The walls, floor and ceiling of the hallway are completely carved, in the kaliyani style. But instead of random or repetitive scenes of kaliyani and others, the mid-relief carvings here tell a clear narrative in 3'-tall panels running at eye height. The panels which start to the east of the entry to SL9-66, depict Tsilliv herself, from her early years as a sorceress-in-training, to her epic struggles against creatures in the Underearth, to her rise to the rank of magistra, to her appearance before the Enclave of the Eleven, and finally to her departure from Lissak-Tol at the head of a group of faithful followers.

The hexagonal chamber within the hallway is the Conclave chamber itself. Stairs descend 10' from the ambulatory hallway. The walls, floor, and ceiling are carved in mid-relief and depict generic images of kaliyani overcoming foes. Two rows of benches line the walls to the north and south. In the center is a raised oval dais. A wooden rostrum shaped like an asp's head rises from the dais, while a leather whip and a strange oliphant lie atop the rostrum. The whip is used to keep order in rowdy sessions of the conclave, while the oliphant (from the tooth of some demonic marine creature) is passed from speaker to speaker, allowing one the right to speak during conclaves. The horn is also a horn of chaos (see new magic items)

GM Notes: Since the kaliyani are inimical to humans, and since meetings of a consortium's conclave are private, it almost impossible for an adventuring party to be present during such a meeting. Rather, the chamber is likely to be empty during hostilities between the kaliyani and any such party. Should a party infiltrate by stealth or acquire magical means of scrying the Pits, however, there is a 10% chance that a meeting of the conclave is under way. At a conclave, all members of the consortium present within the Pits assemble in this area. The leader, magistra Tsilliv (SL9-77), presides from the rostrum. She introduces business and acknowledges those other kaliyani who wish to speak, using the whip to indicate the speaker's will and to silence opposition. Although conclaves are noisy and demonstrative, and frequently involve wrestling, biting, and snapping, they must end with unanimity (hence the whip). In the case of this consortium, Tsilliv has a relatively easy time in enforcing her will over the others.

Treasure:

Horn of chaos (see new magic items).

SL9-68: Kaliyani Lounge

Boasting a 20'-tall, domed ceiling but still undecorated walls, this area provides space for off-duty kaliyani to relax and train. Simple stone benches line the walls around the doors. A tripod of heating (see new magic items) stands in the northeast corner. In the other three corners, practice dummies are suspended from the ceiling and floor by ropes. These are composed of drying mud and bits of detritus all wrapped in leather and painted to resemble lizardmen and humans. Near each practice dummy is a wooden barrel containing a sheaf of ordinary javelins and spears.

Three kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters) are present here, practicing their javelin-hurling skills. They join any general alarm in SL9-66 or SL9-72 within 3 rounds. If surprised hear, they vocalize loudly, hoping to wake their comrades in the barracks (SL9-69 to SL9-71).

Inhabitants:

1. 3 4th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of speed, one a potion of invulnerability, and the third a potion of frost giant strength.

SL9-69: Soldiers' Barracks

At the end of this 15'-tall hallway is a 3'-tall basin filled with kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items). All surfaces are undecorated. Radiating off of the central passage are six arms, which contain the bunks for the kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters) present in the complex. Each arm contains six bunks carved into the stone walls, three on each side. Each bunk extends 4' into the wall, and is only 4' tall. A curtain of woven reeds hangs across each bunk, thus affording some privacy to the occupant. Within each bunk is a set of furs, leather skins, and personal items. Thirty of the bunks are claimed, but at any given time there are six kaliyani soldiers present among the bunks, resting or sleeping. In addition to containing a small amount of valuables, each bunk has a chance to contain something more interesting. Roll once on the following table for each bunk that is searched (it takes 1 turn to search a bunk). Each item may only be found once.

D12	Item	GM Note
1-6	Nothing
7	Dagger +1	Curved and serrated; worth twice the normal price

8	A packet of red veil mushrooms	See new flora
9	Small sack with 133 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items)	These coins are badly worn, and are worth only 4 gp each (not the usual 5 gp)
10	Three 100 gp pearls
11	A 3" piece of amber carved in the shape of a mushroom	Worth 85 gp
12	A 3" lead rod with a short note in Kaliyani Semi-glyphik inscribed on it. The note reads: "Observe and report on the actions of the traitor Tsilliv. The Eleven are relying on you. Convey oral reports through the short ones. Retain this message as proof of your loyal status. [signed] Magistra Lisskiv"	GM: A hint that the kaliyani on SL9 are renegades from the main kaliyani settlement. The 'short ones' refer to derro; see SL9-76.

Should the kaliyani be alerted to an attack, all the soldiers rush to defend the complex, meeting either at SL9-66 or SL9-72 as appropriate to the circumstance.

Inhabitants:

- 1 7th-level kaliyani soldier (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 7; HP 49; #AT 2; Dmg 3-9/3-8 (bastard sword +1/scimitar). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: bastard sword +1 and a serrated scimitar; a ring of protection +2; a vial of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items); small jewelry worth 179 gp; and potions of superheroism and fire giant strength.
- 2 6th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 7; HP 53, 47; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: a pair of scimitars; six javelins +1; a ring of protection +1; a vial of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items), and an assortment of silver rings, worked-glass and minor gemstones and repurposed coins worth 125 gp. One has a potion of invulnerability, while the other has a potion of frost giant strength.
- 3 4th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of heroism, one a potion of invulnerability, and the third a potion of stone giant strength.

Treasure:

Each claimed bunk has a combination of small precious stones, bits of silver, and other valuables worth 3-60 gp. See above for other possible valuables.

SL9-70: Scouts' Barracks

This area is identical to area SL9-69, complete with basin of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see arden vul items) and thirty six bunks. It is the residence for the consortium's scouts, the majority of whom are on expeditions into Arden Vul. Thirty of the bunks are claimed, but at any given time only two scouts are found here. Searching the bunks also has a chance to produce an unusual item: roll once per turn spent searching an individual bunk. Each item may only be found once.

D12	Item	GM Note
1-6	Nothing
7	Three steel darts +2 , wrapped in soft leather
8	2 potions of truthfulness (see new magic items)
9	2 vials of hallucinogenic poison
10	2 vials of lethal poison
11	An 'action figure' of a kaliyani, made of jade, ivory, and gold, and held together by cords	Worth 90 gp; 6" tall.
12	A careful map on parchment showing a route from SL9-79 to the kaliyani settlement of Lissak-Tol.	Annotations in Kaliyani Semi-glyphik indicate settlements of other denizens of the Underearth as well as rough estimates of distance, indicated in days travel (7 days to Lissak-Tol)

Should the kaliyani be alerted to an attack, all the scouts will rush to defend the complex, meeting either at SL9-66 or SL9-72 as appropriate.

Inhabitants:

- 2 5th-level kaliyani scouts (see new monsters), as 5th-level thieves: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 41, 38; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 16. Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 40%, HS 31%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; a set of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp. One has a vial of poison, while the other has a pair of solid-gold earrings shaped like hearts (175 gp).

Treasure:

Each claimed bunk has small valuables worth 3-60 gp.

SL9-71: Sorcerers' Barracks

This area is identical to area SL9-69. It is the barracks area for the kaliyani sorcerers who have joined Tsilliv's consortium. Twelve of the bunks are claimed, but at any given time only three sorcerers are present here, resting. Searching any bunk for a turn has a chance to produce an interesting item: roll on the following table to determine what is found. Each item may only be found once.

D10	Item	GM Note
1-5	Nothing
6	1-2 asp's eggs	See new magic items. Determine type randomly
7	Seven figurines of human warriors carved out of ivory	Worth 30 gp each
8	A jade ouroboros bracelet	The clasp is the mouth of the snake. Part of the bracelet has been hollowed out; within is a tiny dose of lethal poison. Worth 250 gp.
9	A rolled piece of parchment with a list of eighty names (in Glyphik), with either one mark or two next to each name. The first name is Tsilliv (see SL9-77)	The creator of this list is convinced (correctly, see SL9-69) that there are traitors within Tsilliv's ranks. Those seven names with two marks next to them are the kaliyani suspected of being traitors.
10	A parchment map showing the route from SL9-79 to Lissak-Tol.	The map has one annotation in Kaliyani Semi-glyphik, reading '7 days.' Unlike the map in SL9-70, this one does not reveal the locations and distances of the dwellings of other subterranean races.

Should the kaliyani be alerted to an attack, all the sorcerers rush to defend the complex, meeting either at SL9-66 or SL9-72 as appropriate.

Inhabitants:

1. Grakep, 5th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 5; HP 25; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 210. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: light, charm person, strength. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; an asp egg (see new magic items) in the egg of fire format; and a large piece of amber shaped like a turtle (200 gp).
2. Psillav, 6th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 29; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 190. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: charm person, dancing lights, unseen servant, invisibility, mirror image; blink. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; an asp egg (see new magic items) in the egg of cold format; and a copper tile etched with an image of an Archontean legionary (35 gp).

3. Ykriv, a 7th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL CE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 7; HP 39; #AT 2; Dmg 2-5/5-10/6-24 (dagger/scimitar +2/blasting rod). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 240. Attack modes psionic blast, mind thrust, psychic crush. Defense modes: mind blank, thought shield, intellect fortress. Disciplines: cellular adjustment, domination, detect magic; mind barring. Spells: comprehend languages, charm person, hypnotism; darkness 15' radius, invisibility, mirror image; dispel magic. Possessions: kaliyani blasting rod with 3 charges (see new technological items); 2 serrated daggers; a serrated scimitar +2; 1.5 lb arcana (see new magic items); a pot of royal jelly from a bee hive (35 gp).

Treasure:

Each claimed bunk holds small valuables worth 4-80 gp.

SL9-72: The Kaliyani Pits

This huge central chamber of the kaliyani complex is dominated by the large statue at the north end and by the three pits that give the entire area its name. The ceiling is 30' tall, and all right angles have been carefully removed. All surfaces – ceiling, walls, and floor – are carved with elaborate, interwoven images of kaliyani, animals, and floral motifs. At any given moment, seven kaliyani are present here, conversing and enjoying the pits.

Statue: The north end of the chamber is dominated by a massive statue. At its core the statue is of a 20'-diameter ouroboros surrounding an 18'-tall nataraja dancer. Protruding from the ouroboros are four heads of snakes that stare, with open mouths straight into the chamber. The ouroboros is white marble, while the snake heads and dancer are black marble. The dancer is unusual, as rather than a human or rudishva, it appears as a kaliyani, albeit in the classic pose: perched on one leg, while the other five appendages are arrayed in a nimbus around it. Three of the arms holds objects: a serrated dagger, a small drum, and a fire pot. The head is that of a kaliyani with an exaggerated grin, although it wears a strange conical hat.

The snake-heads that protrude from the ouroboros are enchanted by kaliyani techno-sorcery. Each produces a different effect when the appropriate word is chanted in Kaliyani. One shoots a small fireball (3-18 HP damage) that explodes in a 10' radius; one produces a bolt of electricity (2-12 HP damage) that has an 80' range and the capacity to rebound; one produces three magic missiles (2-5 HP each); and the final one shoots a dispel magic beam (at 10th-level of ability). Any kaliyani sorcerer of 7th-level or above can activate these effects. Each sorcerer can activate one head per round and can direct them using his/her hands, much as a conductor directs an orchestra. Each effect strikes as if it were a 10th-level fighter. It is possible to destroy the snakes' heads by inflicting 25 HP damage on each of them.

The Pits: Three pits dominate the center of the room, each 20'x10' and 25' deep. Each is filled with fresh water, albeit water that is colored by harmless dyes rendering them bright orange, bright yellow, and pale blue. Despite their strange appearance, the pits are innocuous, and are used by the kaliyani for relaxation and leisure.

GM Note: One of the kaliyani soldiers here is a spy. He has been reporting back to the Eleven in Lissak-Tol concerning Tsilliv's plans and movements, using the derro trader, Gest Felstapper (SL9-76) as his go-between. Should open combat break out here, that soldier – whose name is Serriv – will wait his opportunity to betray Tsilliv; he might then be willing to negotiate with PCs who have opposed the magistra.

Inhabitants:

1. Kvillor, 5th-level kaliyani sorcerers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 5; HP 25; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 210. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: comprehend languages, charm person, scare. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; an asp egg (see new magic items) in the egg of fire format; and a large piece of amber shaped like a turtle (200 gp).
2. Gert, 3rd-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 4; HP 23; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 180. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: detect invisibility, light. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; and a painted set of kaliyani nesting dolls made of gourds (100 gp).
3. Qebbil, 6th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 30; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 3-8/2-7 (javelin +1/javelin). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 190. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes: mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: charm person, dancing lights, unseen servant, invisibility, mirror image; blink. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins +1; a wand of ice with 4 charges; and a basilisk eye preserved in a glass jar (55 gp).
4. Serriv, a 7th-level kaliyani soldier (see new monsters) and traitor: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 7; HP 49; #AT 2; Dmg 3-10/3-8 (long sword +2/scimitar). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: long sword +2 and a serrated scimitar; a ring of protection +2; a vial of kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items); small jewelry worth 179 gp; and potions of superheroism and cloud giant strength.
5. 2 5th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 42, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of invisibility, and another has a potion of invulnerability.
6. Jevvil, 7th-level kaliyani scout (see new monsters), as a 7th-level thief: SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; HD 7; HP 47; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8

(scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 17. Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 52%, F/RT 50%, MS 60%, HS 48%, HN 25%, CW 94%, RL 35%. Possessions: the a pair of poisoned, serrated scimitars; 6 javelins +1; a combination of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp; a vial of poison; a potion of invisibility; and a thick silver torc inscribed 'to Fulvia' (175 gp).

Treasure:

At the bottom of the middle pit is a forgotten diamond of exceptional size (10,000 gp).

SL9-73: Locked Treasure Chamber

The movable wealth of Tsilliv and her consortium is held in this hallway, behind a locked door (Tsilliv holds the key). Four unlocked wooden chests hold most of the small valuables, while larger items are stacked and piled against the walls.

Treasure:

Chest #1: 275 lb of arcenum (see new magic items), in chunks weighing 1-5 lb each.

Chest #2: 16 pieces of amber (100 gp each); 10 3-lb sacks of copper flakes (1 gp each); 10 2-lb sacks of iron filings (4 gp each); 10 5-lb sacks of sulfur (250 gp each); and 7 5-lb sacks of glowing phosphorus (250 gp).

Chest #3: a leather sack with 1,129 ancient copper bits, 784 ancient silver pennies, and 543 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items for the coins); 3 black opals carved with heqeti faces (980 gp each); 50 1-lb silver ingots (50 sp each); and 10 4-lb gold ingots (200 gp each).

Chest #4: 8 asp eggs (see new magic items), 2 each of eggs of fire, eggs of cold, eggs of torment, and eggs of blinding; 3 kaliyani blasting rods (see new technological items); a statuette of faithful service (see new magic items) of the warrior Festus; a set of predictive tokens (see new magic items); a pledge of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new magic items); and an olifant of command displaying demonic entities (see new magic items).

Loose items: a worn, but still usable suit of imperial field plate +2 (see Arden Vul items); a 9'-tall marble statue of Joviva, the archtepyal ancient Archontean beauty, carved by the famous sculptor Hortensius (worth 10,000 gp if transported back to Archontos or Narsileon).

SL9-74: Trade Hall

This grand chamber is 20' tall and brightly lit with continual light spells. Statues stand in or near each corner. The native granite is sheathed in black marble, with no right angles remaining. Worked into the marble of the south wall is an enormous (15'-diameter) ouroboros symbol, within which is the Semi-glyphik symbol for the number 12. Two basins along the east wall contain fresh water. Three battered wooden trestle tables with matching benches sit near the west wall.

Statues: A statue occupies each of the four corners of the hall. Each statue is 10' tall and carved from local granite. They are all of recent construction, and of pedestrian artistic quality.

Northeast: A crouching kaliyani soldier, wielding a pair of scimitars.

Northwest: An erect kaliyani scout, shading its eyes as it gazes down the corridor towards SL9-78.

Southeast: A standing kaliyani sorcerer, wearing a blowsy tunic and consulting a scroll.

Southwest: A six-legged lizard, standing on its hind legs and displaying a ferocious fanged mouth. A 2"-diameter hole extends all the way through the statue; it is used to manipulate the secret door (see below).

Portcullis: In the corridor leading towards SL9-78 is an iron portcullis that is set into holes in the floor. The raising wheel is set into the stone just to the west of the portcullis. Two kaliyani soldiers are always posted on the west side of the portcullis. To the east side of the portcullis, a wooden ladder some 15' tall rests along the corridor wall (it is used for climbing up and down from SL9-78).

Secret Door (southwest): Tucked behind the statue of the six-legged lizard, this door is normal to find. It opens by inserting a piece of metal into the hole in the statue, and then using that metal as a lever to rotate the statue. Doing so causes the door to rise, allowing access to the stairs.

GM Note: In keeping with Tsilliv's desire for this area to appear as a 'normal' consortium, she ordered a formal entrance and trade hall be constructed at the point at which this complex merges with the Underearth. The hope was to attract trade from other subterranean races. But the renegade nature of her Consortium, and the general racial hostility of the kaliyani towards others, has ensured that the area remains nearly empty and under-utilized.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 4th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 42, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of growth, one a potion of invulnerability, and the third a potion of human control (humans).
2. Six derro (66% chance) (for stats, see SL9-76)

SL9-75 (aka 4-51B): Stairs Up to Level 4 (4-51A)

The stairs are narrow, and lead upwards about 650' to the Shrine of the Snake and the cult of Set (4-51A).

GM Note: When they arrived at SL9, the kaliyani discovered a long fissure extending upwards in this location. It was one of the first places they explored, gradually expanding it and adding stairs. Eventually the fissure opened to a cave (now 4-51A). Sensing activity nearby, kaliyani miners broke down the wall at 4-39, surprising High Priestess Stephania. After some tense negotiations the two sides struck an alliance. In order to placate the Set cult, the kaliyani developed a snake shrine (4-51A) as a cover.

Secret Door (north): The door is obvious from the south (1 in 2 to detect). It can be opened only by succeeding at a lift gates roll or by breaking it down.

SL9-76: Traveler's Quarters

This chamber is identical to SL9-69, except that instead of refreshing liquid, the basin at the west end of the corridor contains fresh water. As Tsilliv has had trouble attracting visitors, only a small group of derro occupy the area. Most of the time (66%) the derro are found occupying the benches in SL9-74; the rest of the time they are present here.

Inhabitants:

1. Gest Felstapper, derro leader (33% chance): SZ S; AL CE; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 7; HP 47; #AT 1; Dmg 3-8 (military pick +1) or 3-5 (repeating light crossbow with poisoned bolts +2). Possessions: purple worm-hide scale mail +2; repeating light crossbow with 20 poisoned bolts +2; military pick +1; dagger; necklace of harmony (see new magic items).
2. Klip Seamfinder, derro lieutenant (33%): SZ S; AL CE; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 38; #AT 1; Dmg 3-8 (spear +2) or 3-5 (repeating crossbow with poisoned bolts +2). Possessions: lizard-hide scale mail +1; repeating light crossbow with 20 poisoned bolts +2; spear +2; dagger; pouch of capacity (see new magic items); cloak of the dwarves (see new magic items).
3. 4 derro (33%): SZ S; AL CE; AC 7; MV 90'; HD 4, 3(x3); HP 25, 20, 19, 15; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4 (hook fauchard) or 1-6 (hand axe). Possessions: studded leather armor, hook fauchard, hand axe.

Treasure:

In addition to the personal items found on each derro, Klip carries a trapped, locked iron box containing 750 gold pieces and 15 pieces of star rose quartz (50 gp each). The trap is of the poison needle variety. Gest carries a ledger book detailing trading ventures with half a dozen Underearth locations, plus a tightly wrapped piece of parchment hidden in the hollow heel of his left boot. The parchment reads, in Derro: “To the esteemed Gest, of the clan Felstapper. This contract certifies that for each time that you convey to our ears the oral report of our agent dwelling within the so-called Twelfth Consortium of the heretic and traitor Tsilliv, you shall be receive five pieces of star crystal. [Signed] Besstil, chamberlain of the Eleven.” GM Note: this parchment is proof that there is a spy within Tsilliv’s rogue consortium; that agent is one of the soldiers (see SL9-69 and SL9-72).

SL9-77: Consortium Leaders’ Chamber

Magistra Tsilliv, leader of the kaliyani consortium established in Arden Vul, inhabits this chamber with her two lieutenants. All surfaces are densely carved with low-relief images of kaliyani, subterranean animals, and mushroom imagery. Three fingers extend northwards from the main chamber; each has a sleeping niche carved into the east wall and a wooden chest at the north end.

On the south wall of the main chamber is another ouroboros, 10’ in diameter and made of melted silver (200 gp). It surrounds a 5’-tall image of the number 12, also filled with melted silver (150 gp). In the southeast corner is a 10’-diameter, 3’-tall basin filled with kaliyani refreshing liquid (see Arden Vul items). Along the east wall are three sloped standing writing desks, each with a drawer. In the center of the chamber are three curved stone benches in a circular pattern, all surrounding a tripod of heating (see new magic items).

Desk Drawers: Formal kaliyani communication is accomplished by inscribing soft metal rods with a message, so in addition to a sheaf of parchment and quill pens, each desk drawer also holds ten 3” lead rods and some sharp scribing tools.

Kaastir’s drawer holds a folded lizard-hide map showing a sketch of a series of passages leading from an area labeled ‘dead halls’ (9-109) to large cave marked ‘crevasse floor’ (9-1) to some ‘narrow passages’ (9-57, 8-23, 8-24, and 7-34) and finally to ‘ancient home’ (5-125 and environs). Along side the descriptions are rough elevation notes, so area 8-23 has “200 up” by it, 7-34 has “200 up” by it, and 5-125 has “750 up”.

Sveestik’s drawer has an inscribed lead rod with the following message: “To Magistra Lisskiv and the Eleven. You must accept us now, as we have located the ancestral home. Soon the ship will be prepared and we will set forth on the seas of the surface world. [signed] Sveestik, member of the Twelfth.” GM: this is a taunting message, to be sent back to the kaliyani city of Lissak-Tol. It is true that Tsilliv’s people have located area 5-125 and the old rudishva areas, but she has hardly plumbed their secrets, and they are still ignorant about the nature of the Beacon.

Tsilliv’s drawer has several interesting pieces of dried lizard-hide. One holds a detailed floor plan of areas SL9-59 to SL9-79. Another contains a fairly good survey of the floor of the chasm (area 9-1, including 9-2 to 9-11, 9-49 to 9-51, 9-65 to 9-67, 9-71 to 9-76, 9-83 to 9-87, 9-98, 9-99, and 9-108), with major features annotated and described (e.g., ‘mushrooms,’ ‘lake,’ ‘tower,’ ‘river,’ etc.) and the identity of a few species indicated (‘fast small pests’ near 9-4, ‘heqeti’ near 9-76, ‘dead ones’ near 9-98, and ‘flying humans’ near 9-70). A third contains a listing of the Eleven Consortia of Lissak-Tol, with names of the magistra in charge of each; of these, the name Lisskiv, of the 4th Consortium, is circled, and several epithets are scrawled next to it in Semi-glyphik.

Chests: The wooden chests are unlocked. Each contains the following: three sets of blowsy silk magistra tunics suitable for wearing by kaliyani (45 gp each); a fully-charged kaliyani blasting rod (see new technological items); an elaborate jade-and-ivory necklace of office (1,750 gp); and a heavy bag of silver dust (500 gp each). In addition, Tsilliv’s chest contains some strange (to her) artifacts: a moldy and damp Archontean parchment quire containing a description of the chamber of the Beacon (areas SL14-2, SL14-9, and SL14-10), including instructions on how to access it by manipulating the obelisks (AV-5, AV-41, and AV-28) so as to open the doors at AV-34; a finely smithed golden bust of an anonymous Archontean archon (worth 3,500 gp); and orange and platinum rudishva identity plaques (see new technological items)

GM Notes: The three magistra are usually present in this chamber, unless summoned to defend the consortium (in SL9-66 or SL9-72). If there is time to complete a summoning ritual, she will do so with her two lieutenants before joining the fray (with elemental in tow). Tsilliv is completely inimical to humankind; it is hard to fathom the circumstances in which she might negotiate with human or humanoid adventurers. Her goals involve the discovery and restoration of the old kaliyani and rudishva complexes within Arden Vul (especially on Level 5). She has vague notions of the Beacon as the ancestral ship of her people, but is unaware of its real nature. She has contempt for the lizardmen, even as she recognizes the value of using them in the short term. She will eventually make an alliance with the heqeti, but has nothing but antipathy for the varumani, the goblins, and humankind.

Secret Door (north): The door in the middle sleeping ‘finger’ is normal to identify. It is locked, and Tsilliv holds the key. A one-way door leading to SL9-78 lies just beyond the secret door.

Inhabitants:

1. Tsilliv, 12th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters), SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 150’ on six legs, 60’ upright; HD 9; HP 57; #AT 3; Dmg 5-8/5-8/6-24 (dagger +3/dagger+3/blasting rod). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 240. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust, psychic crush. Defense modes: mind blank, thought shield, intellect fortress. Disciplines: cellular adjustment, domination, detect magic; mind barring. Spells: charm person, protection from good, light, detect invisibility; darkness 15’ radius, scare, strength, mirror image; dispel magic, invisibility 10’ radius, slow, suggestion; confusion, monster summoning II; feeblemind, telekinesis. Possessions: bracers of defense (AC 3); kaliyani blasting rod with 7 charges (see new technological items); two serrated daggers +3; a serrated long sword; a rudishva useful palm of temporal flux (see new magic items); 2.5 lb of arcenum (see new magic items); 14 small chrysoprase gems (60 gp each); and keys to SL9-73 and to the one-way door leading from SL9-77 to SL9-78.
2. Kaastir, 9th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 150’ on six legs, 60’ upright; HD 9; HP 50; #AT 3; Dmg 3-6/3-6/6-24 (dagger +1/dagger +1/blasting rod). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 210. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: comprehend languages, light, audible glamor; continual light, invisibility, hypnotic pattern; blink, dispel magic; improved invisibility. Possessions: bracers of defense (AC 5); kaliyani blasting rod with 6 charges (see new technological items); two serrated daggers +1; a serrated long sword; 1.5 lb arcenum (see new magic items); 14 small sard gems (60 gp each).

3. Sveestik, 9th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 9; HP 49; #AT 3; Dmg 6-9/6-9/6-24 (scimitar +1/scimitar +1/blasting rod). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 190. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: charm person, identify, hypnotism; darkness 15' radius, hypnotic pattern, mirror image; blink, invisibility 10' radius, slow; confusion. Possessions: bracers of defense (AC 5); kaliyani blasting rod with 6 charges (see new technological items); two serrated daggers; two serrated scimitars +1; 1.5 lb arcenum (see new magic items); 14 small azurite gems (60 gp each).

Treasure:

See text above

SL9-78: Access Cave

This large cave serves as the transition point between the territory of the Twelfth Consortium and the Underearth. The area is lit with torches, and the smell and sounds of animals is strong.

The entrance to the cave from SL9-79 is blocked by a barricade of stone, rushes, and random bits of wood. One section can be removed to allow ingress to the rest of the cave. Otherwise it takes several rounds to clamber over the barricade.

To the south and east of the barricade is a tripod of heating (see new magic items) around which 3 kaliyani soldiers, 3 scouts, and a sorcerer gather. They are loosely attentive, doubting that serious threats could emerge from SL9-79. The sorcerer wears a spiral horn on a cord around its neck, and is tasked with blowing the horn three times in rapid succession should a threat materialize here. The soldiers at SL9-74 are supposed to react to three blasts of the horn by summoning the rest of the complex to defend area SL9-74. When the rotation of scouts is changed, the sorcerer blows a single blast on his horn; the soldiers at SL9-74 open the portcullis and deploy the ladder found there to let the scouts climb back into the kaliyani pits.

Salamander Pen: The southwestern lobe of the cave has a number of iron chains and collars attached to the wall. Three riding salamanders (see new monsters) are chained to the wall here. Nearby are some tack and saddle-bags, for these creatures are used by Gest Felstapper in trading across the Underearth. The saddle-bags hold dried mushrooms; dried meat; dried fruit imported from the surface; 5 50-lb chunks of arcenum (see new magic items); 10 2-lb gold ingots (100 gp each); and 10 20-lb gold ingots (1,000 gp each). Stealing the derro trade goods provokes eternal animosity on the part of Gest Felstapper (SL9-76) and his friends.

Fresh Water Basin: The northwestern ell of the cave is filled with fresh water. Two buckets sit nearby.

Meat Curing: The southeastern portion of the cave rises 15' above the floor of the main cave. It is palpably colder here, and Tsilliv uses the area to cure meat. The corpses of six lizardmen, two riding salamanders, and two ogres hang from hooks set into the ceiling. The floor is slippery with blood. The one-way door from SL9-77 exits into the rear of this portion of the cave.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 riding salamanders (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 6; MV 60', 90' swimming; HD 6; HP 41, 39, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12.
2. Veeblik, 5th-level kaliyani sorcerer (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 5; HP 25; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Psionic ability: 210. Attack modes: psionic blast, mind thrust. Defense modes mind blank, mental barrier. Disciplines: clairaudience, clairvoyance, invisibility, telepathic projection. Spells: comprehend languages, charm person; scare. Possessions: twin scimitars; four javelins; an asp egg (see new magic items) in the egg of fire format; and a large piece of amber shaped like a turtle (200 gp).
3. 3 5th-level kaliyani scouts (see new monsters), as 5th-level thieves: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 43, 41, 38; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars) or 2-7/2-7 (javelins). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision; DEX 16. Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 40%, HS 31%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; six javelins; a set of silver rings, worked glass and minor gemstones, and repurposed coins worth 200 gp. One has a vial of poison; another has a minor heqeti slime (see new monsters) in a breakable flask; another has a potion of invisibility; and one has a solid gold ouroboros bracelet (175 gp).
4. 3 5th-level kaliyani soldiers (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 150' on six legs, 60' upright; HD 6; HP 44, 39, 37; #AT 2; Dmg 3-8/3-8 (scimitars), 3-8/3-8 (javelins +1). Special defenses: immune to poison and mind-affecting spells. Special: infravision. Possessions: twin serrated scimitars; a sheaf of 4 javelins +1; and an assortment of silver rings, glass baubles, and minor gemstones worth 125 gp each. One of the soldiers also has a potion of heroism, and another has a potion of hill giant strength.

Treasure:

See trade goods above. The sounding horn is non-magical but worth 75 gp.

SL9-79: Tunnel to the Underearth

This broad tunnel leads to the network of tunnels, caves, and strange civilizations that dot the Underearth. The main kaliyani settlement (Lissak-Tol) is a week's journey away via many forks and chambers. The GM should detail these areas as desired.

SUB-LEVEL 10A: THE HOLD OF THE SUN-SCARRED KNIGHTS

This area comprises one half of the domain of the powerful sept of warriors known as the Sun-Scarred Knights (the other half - the Citadel - is found at Sub-Level 10B). This portion of their domain includes the huge cavern in which their citadel (SL10A-14) rests, along with surrounding caves and worked halls. Although the citadel is the most potent and defensible portion of the domain, the worked chambers north of the citadel, known as the Sanctum, are an essential component of the knights' domain. Among those worked areas may be found the cloister of the knights (SL10A-17), their smithy (SL10A-19), the Solar Chapel (SL10A-24), and the private chambers of Master Malachite, leader of the sept (SL10A-32, SL10A-33). Almost all of the infrequent visitors to the domain approach the Hold from the south, via the Entrance Hall (SL10A-2); from there, if they dare, they may approach the citadel across the treacherous sword bridges (SL10A-11). Of course, those with the capacity for flight may skip the bridges to arrive at the front door to the citadel (SL10A-13) or could even bypass the citadel and fly directly to SL10A-15.

Visitors who reach the entrance gate to the citadel (SL10A-13) and attempt negotiation are typically met with silence. If the knights have invited visitors (a rare occurrence), they will be met outside the citadel, in area SL10A-2. In no case are visitors invited within the Citadel. If visitors to the Citadel appear hostile, they are met by missile fire and magic from the defenders (see SL10B introduction for details). If visitors bypass the Citadel and attempt instead to penetrate the inner sanctum (e.g. SL10A-16), they must first deal with the iron doors there, and then the guardian, Ranke. Unless they are exceptionally stealthy and quiet, the noise of combat at SL10A-16 brings all inhabitants of the Sanctum at a run to area SL10A-17 to defend the area; the knights in the Citadel will mount a counter attack across the bridge (SL10A-15) and try to catch intruders in the rear flank. Even the Master is likely (66%) to join in defense of the Sanctum.

Not all of the fourteen knights and fifteen varlets who comprise the order are present in the domain at any given time; indeed, half are usually absent, performing missions for the master or for themselves. As a result, assaults on any portion of the domain are usually met by a force that includes 7-8 knights, 7-8 varlets, Ricchar Wither-Hand, Jolene the apprentice, and possibly the Master himself (33%).

In the present, the order is composed of fourteen knights plus the Master. All matters of importance are debated in regular meetings known as Convocation, and decisions are made through a ritual vote. Despite the collective ethos of the order, it is also clear that Master Malachite (aka Melok-Ri) is the first among equals. His opinions are typically accorded greater weight, and his approval or disapproval of a course of action is enough to be decisive. Junior members of the order are known as varlets and are assigned to the service of a specific knight. Given his age and unusual combination of cultural and genetic impulses, Melok-Ri has become less engaged in the day-to-day operations of the order; he prefers to ruminate on the past and plan long-term strategy from the comfort of his sanctum. The senior knight, Sir Ennius, therefore exercises quite a bit of influence in Malachite's absence. The order has also traditionally recruited a young magic user to serve as the order's expert in magical affairs (and creator of magical items); this wizard is also allowed to take an apprentice. The only other living creatures allowed within the citadel are a pair of cooks, usually taken from the goblin clans.

Upon joining the order, each knight takes a new name and swears to abandon his/her previous identity. The name may honor some previous knight or impressive ancient hero (e.g., Sir Ennius, Sir Larel, etc.), it may represent an allegorical quality (e.g., Sir Sorrow, Sir Spes, Sir Discord), or it may be cryptic (e.g., Sir Sixth, Sir Vambrace, or Sir Calculator). The communities of Arden Vul assume that a knight keeps his/her name for his/her lifetime, but there is no way to be sure that knights do not change their names as it suits them. Although many attempts have been made to explain the choice of a knight's name by the character of his/her actions, this has always proven fruitless, for knights do not consistently practice heroism or asceticism, nor do they insist on particular behavior in others.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Rudishva areas: SL10A-30 to SL10A-33

Archontean-style areas: all other worked areas

ICONIC AREAS

The Citadel of the Knights (SL10A-14), although almost no one has visited it and little is known of it

IMPORTANT NPCs

Sir Hazel, a Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10A-18)

Sir Ennius, a Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10A-21)

Sir Hegemon, a Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10A-21)

Sir Larel, a Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10A-22)

Sir Spes, a Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10A-24)

Master Malachite, leader of the Sun-Scarred Knights (SL10A-32)

SIGNIFICANT REGIONS OF SUB-LEVEL 10A

1. The Great Cavern and Entrance Halls (SL10A1 to SL10A-13, SL10A-15)

Most of the time this region is notably empty of sentient creatures. The entrance halls (SL10A-1 to SL10A-6) are typically empty, except for the rare occasions on which a postulant for the varlety is undergoing the Tests. The great cavern (SL10A-7) is filled with mushrooms, and is home to insects, bats, and a band of achaierai. An unusual and clearly-evident feature of the region is the shaft of pure sunlight that streams from a hole in the roof to bathe area SL10A-12 in sunlight.

Factions: The region is dominated by the Sun-Scarred Knights.

Construction: The worked halls are the product of the early generations of Archontean Knights; as a result the architecture is basically Archontean.

Environment: The cavern is warm and humid. The entrance halls are cooler and drier.

2. The Sanctum of the Knights (SL10A-16 to SL10A-34)

The northern, worked chambers of the sub-level form the Sanctum of the knights, where several of their most important social and recreational facilities are located. The Sanctum is guarded by a pair of iron doors and an ancient rudishva military-grade security construct, Ranke (SL10A-16). Within is the cloister of the knights (SL10A-17), the smithy (SL10A-19), the library (SL10A-22), the solar chapel (SL10A-24), and more. Those knights who are not out on a mission can be found here, or in the citadel itself (SL10A-14).

Factions: The region is fully controlled by the Sun-Scarred Knights.

Construction: The worked areas are Archontean in origin, with the exception of areas SL10A-30 to SL10A-33, which are rudishva.

Environment: The Sanctum is cool and dry.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Level 8: stairs at SL10A-1, leading down to 8-56

To Level 8: tunnel at SL10A-9, leading down to 8-82

To Level 9: tunnel at SL10A-8, leading down to 9-99A

To Sub-Level 10B: door to the Citadel at SL10A-13, leading to SL10B-1

To Sub-Level 10B: portcullis at SL10A-15, leading to SL10B-24

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

1. Areas with No Random Encounters

SL10A-12 to SL10A-15, SL10A-26 to SL10A-34

2. Entrance Halls and the Great Cavern (SL10A-1 to SL10A-7)

Checks should be made every 5 turns, with a 1 in 6 chance for an encounter.

D12	Encounter
1-4	1-2 achaierai: SZ L; AL CE; AC body 8, legs -1; HD 9 (beak) or 4 (claws); HP 40 (body), 15(x4) (legs); #AT 3; Dmg 1-8/1-8/1-10; MR 35%. Special defenses: toxic smoke; regenerate damage to legs in 2 days

3-5	4-6 lost giant bees (from 8-69). If 6 are determined, the sixth will be a soldier. Otherwise, all five are workers. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>4-5 giant worker bees: SZ M; AL N; AC 6; MV 90'; 300' flying (Class D); HD 3+1; 23, 20, 17; #AT 1; Dmg 1-3. Special attacks: sting once; poison.</li> <li>1 giant soldier bee: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 120'; 300' flying (Class C); HD 4+2; HP 29; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4. Special attacks: sting once; poison (-1 to saves)</li> </ol>
9-11	1 basic dragonfly automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 240' flying (Class A); HD 1+2; HP 8; #AT 0 Dmg n.a.; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
12	NPC adventurers. There is a 75% it is one lost, frightened adventurer, and a 25% chance for a full, confident party. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Theophania, 6th-level female Archontean fighter (75%): SZ M; AL NG; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 37 (max 52); #AT 1; Dmg 5-11 (bastard sword +2), 2-5 (sling bullet). Abilities: STR 16, INT 8, WIS 9, DEX 14, CON 15, CHA 13. Possessions: chain mail +1 and a medium shield; bastard sword +2; sling with 20 bullets; a pouch with 113 sp and 21 gp; a potion of healing.</li> <li>Party of NPC adventurers (select from NPC appendix) (25%)</li> </ol>

3. The Sanctum (SL10A-16 to SL10A-24)

The Sanctum is a busy place, with knights and varlets moving about fairly frequently. Checks should be made every turn, with a 1 in 6 chance for an encounter. If an encounter is indicated, it will involve the inhabitants of the nearest chamber. If those inhabitants discover intruders, they will raise the alarm instantly, bringing all other inhabitants of the Sanctum within 1-3 rounds, and eventually the knights and varlets from the Citadel within 7-10 rounds.

LEVEL KEY

SL10A-1: Grand Stairs Down to 8-56

These 20'-wide stairs descend through several landings and changes of direction before debouching at area 8-56.

SL10A-2: Entrance Hall

This broad hall is 25' tall and supported by two rows of 5'-diameter pillars. To the north a ledge overlooks the great cavern (SL10A-7); it is 70' above the cavern floor. While the hall is unlit, the bright light from SL10A-12 is apparent everywhere in the hall. The east and west walls are covered with impressive mosaics depicting figures in the gothic-style armor of the sun-scarred knights. While each knight's equipment is broadly similar, each appears in a slightly different pose, as if demonstrating a form of weapon training. Fifteen knights appear on each wall.

SL10A-3: Empty Meeting Hall

A 15'-long, heavy stone table occupies the center of the room. Sixteen cylindrical stone 'stools' surround it. The chamber is undecorated save for a sunburst motif engraved in the center of the table.

The Sun-Scarred Knights use this chamber on the extremely rare occasions when they agree to meet with those not of their sept.

Three knights, with their varlets, form the negotiating party; they discuss matters here, but do not invite visitors within the Citadel.

SL10A-4: Postulants' Hall

A blazing sunrise image in orange paint covers the east wall of this chamber. Three bunkbeds stand near the sunburst image; they are battered pine, with rough horse-hair mattresses. On either side of the door is a set of heavy shackles for hands and feet, set firmly into the stone of the walls. There is a 25% chance that an unfortunate is languishing in the shackles. If so, it is Lellagonal Begelsson, an elfen adventurer.

GM Note: The knights use this chamber to house postulants whom they hope might pass the tests and become varlets. Failed postulants are shackled, and eventually thrown into the great cavern. Lellagonal Begelsson was thought to be good material for a varlet, as the knights are fascinated by elves and would like to bring more of them into the sept. Lellagonal's morality proved incompatibility with that of the knights, however, and they have shackled him here to await Master Malachite's (SL10A-32) decision about what to do with him.

Inhabitants:

1. Lellagonal Begelsson, 5th-level male elf fighter: SZ M; AL CG; AC 3; MV 60; HD 5; HP 37; #AT 1; Dmg by weapon. Abilities: STR 14, INT 16, WIS 10, DEX 15, CON 11, CHA 16. Possessions: splint mail; purse with six large gold coins (10 gp each); a carved oak ring.

SL10A-5: Test of Justice

This hall is one of the pair of testing chambers in which postulants to the sept of Sun-Scarred Knights undergo basic personality tests. Most of the tests are oral and customary, but the hall also has a fixed, quasi-ceremonial test that postulants must pass.

The floor of this 15'-tall hall is one enormous mosaic, depicting scenes of judging, justice, and execution. A double row of columns surrounds a 10'-tall white marble statue, which faces the east wall. The statue depicts a sun-scarred knight, recognizable in his gothic armor and circlet of command. He sits in a chair holding a huge broadsword horizontally on his lap. At his feet is a marble bowl, 3' in diameter, containing three circular pieces of highly polished red porphyry, each 1' in diameter. The plinth reads: "A knight must dispense justice."

Against the north wall are three stations. Each station is comprised of a 10'x3'x4' stone block with a 6'-tall high relief sculpture. In addition to the sculptural scene, each station carries an inscription in Mithric and boasts a semi-circular indentation 1' in diameter. All three inscriptions are identical: "Is this Justice?"

First Station: the sculpture shows a knight averting his eyes as the starving girl and her child eat an obviously stolen loaf of bread. The gaol is empty, and the baker, who is clamoring in the background, is ignored.

Second Station: the sculpture shows a knight closing a gaol door upon the mother and child while handing a loaf of bread to the baker; the baker smiles in satisfaction.

Third Station: the sculpture shows a knight closing the gaol door upon the mother, while delivering a downcast child and the loaf of bread into the hands of the baker, who is rubbing his hands with pleasure.

The Test of Justice: The test is activated by removing one of the porphyry orbs from the bowl. This causes a permanent magic mouth on the statue's mouth to loudly intone the following in Archontean, Thorcin, Wiskin, Goblin, Elvish, and Dwarvish: "A knight must dispense justice. Consider the following, and make your choice. The young mother had no other family, and she and her toddler were starving. Despite knowing the law, she stole bread from the local baker. What should be her fate?"

Those undergoing the test must then take one of the red porphyry stones and place it in the receptacle of the high-relief sculpture that matches their answer. The correct answer for the Sun-Scarred Knights is the middle choice (jailing the mother and child for their crime). The first station does not represent justice, in the Lawful Neutral eyes of the Order, because the baker has been wronged. The third station, in which the baker is rewarded with the child as apprentice/slave, is also not justice as it reflects excessive punishment.

Passing the Test of Justice causes the eastern Sword Bridge (SL10A-11) to rotate 90-degrees for six turns, allowing easier passage to the Sun Rock (SL10A-12).

Choosing the wrong option causes the magic mouth to intone in the same tongues: "You fail to understand justice. Depart!" The test becomes unavailable for three days.

SL10A-6: Test of Fidelity

Along with SL10A-5, this hall is one of the pair of testing chambers in which postulants to the sept of Sun-Scarred Knights are inspected for their moral and personality suitability for the varlety.

The hall is 15' tall and boasts another impressive mosaic, this time depicting scenes of loyalty. A double row of columns is interrupted by a 10'-tall white marble statue facing the west wall. The statue depicts a Sun-Scarred knight, recognizable in her gothic armor (see new technological items) and circlet of command (see new magic items) kneeling before a standing cloaked figure. The cloaked figure clasps his hands around the palms of the knight, who gazes up into the figure's face. Next to the two figures is a marble bowl, 3' in diameter, containing three circular pieces of highly polished black porphyry, each 1' in diameter. The plinth reads: "A knight must remain faithful."

Against the north wall are three stations. Each station is comprised of a 10'x3'x4' stone block with a 6'-tall high relief sculpture. In addition to the sculptural scene, each station carries an inscription in Mithric and boasts a semi-circular indentation 1' in diameter. All three inscriptions are identical: "Is this fidelity?"

First Station: the sculpture depicts two merchants of equal stature standing together before a circle of Factor leaders. The two present a large bag of coins to the circle as one.

Second Station: the sculpture shows one merchant delivering a large bag of coins to a circle of ceremonially clad factor leaders. The other merchant sits in the gutter outside the factor hall, tearing his hair out.

Third Station: the sculpture has two scenes. In the left scene, one merchant presents a small bag of coins to the second, who is begging for aid. In the right scene, the pair appear before the circle of factor leaders; one stands tall and presents a large bag of coins, while the other kneels and presents a small bag of coins.

The Test of Fidelity: The test is activated by removing one of the porphyry orbs from the marble bowl. This causes a permanent magic mouth placed on the cloaked figure to loudly intone the following in Archontean, Thorcin, Wiskin, Goblin, Elvish, and Dwarvish: “A knight must be faithful. Consider the following, and make your choice. Two merchants in the same factor journey together to a city. One is successful in trading, the other is not. How does the successful merchant act when they return home?”

Those undergoing the test must then take one of the black porphyry stones and place it in the receptacle of the high-relief sculpture that matches their answer. The correct answer for the Sun-Scarred Knights is the first station, in which the solidarity of the group is affirmed when the successful merchant supports the unsuccessful one before their peers.

Passing the Test of Fidelity causes the western Sword Bridge (SL10A-11) to rotate 90-degrees for six turns, allowing easier passage to the Sun Rock (SL10A-12).

Choosing the wrong option causes the magic mouth to intone “You fail to understand fidelity. Depart!” The test becomes unavailable for three days.

SL10A-7: Great Cavern

This huge cavern is 150’ tall, and partially lit from the sunbeam found at SL10A-12. A massive rock pillar in its center (SL10A-14) rises from floor to ceiling; it has been hollowed out in part to provide the citadel of the knights. A lesser rock formation rises only 40’ from the floor (SL10A-12); it is bathed in sunlight from a hole in the ceiling of the cavern. The walls of the cavern are cloaked in creepers, vines, mosses and lichens. The floor is a mushroom forest, with specimens of aqua vitae, cloud cap, eye-opener, orange lamp, and white rib mushrooms (see new flora).

The mushroom forest is filled with insects and small rodents. A flock of achaierai inhabit the forest floor, hunting in packs of 2-4. The knights tolerate the presence of the foul birds because they keep out other large prey. Failed postulants (SL10A-4) that are thrown into the cavern are eagerly hunted by the flock. Due to their familiarity with the forest and their sharp sense of smell, the achaierai have an extra chance to surprise (3 in 6). They also like to drive victims into ambushes by others in the flock.

Tromping around in the mushroom forest is mostly unrewarding, although knocking down the fungi and poking into the muck might produce an item of interest. Searching for 6 turns produces one item from the following list, and each of the items may only be found once:

D10	Item	GM Note
1	A 6” gold plaque incised with an Archon’s head. On the reverse is the legend: “Mercurion the Archon, AEP 1326”	Valued at 325 gp
2	A set of interlocking silver bangle bracelets	35 gp
3	A pair of ivory spheres shaped and painted as eyes, with lapis lazuli eyeballs	275 gp
4	A lost solar ring from a sun-scarred knight (see new magic items)	If this potent item is displayed in the presence of a Sun-Scarred Knight, they demand its immediate return

5	An ivory scroll case, containing a formal letter from Archon Alcibiades the Hunter. It reads: “To the self-proclaimed master of knights, Malachite, from Alcibiades, archon of the great city. You are required to appear in the palace at the first of the month. Bring your knights for defense of the city. Failure to comply will be treated as treason. [dated] 1750 AEP”	Scroll case worth 75 gp; as artifact the letter is worth 500 gp
6	An unused rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items)
7	A fine silver mesh bag, with three marbles and a tightly folded parchment note, reading: “Dearest Drusion, Please abandon your folly, and return to your family! The knights are neither honorable nor right for you. I don’t want to lose you! [signed] Babalwa.”	While the bag is of negligible value (45 gp), the note suggests the familial trauma wrought by a decision to join the Knights
8	A pearl necklace of invisibility (see new magic items), albeit with only 3 pearls remaining
9	A piece of basalt 2’ tall and 18” in diameter, carved to depict two warriors embracing each other	Worth 100 gp
10	A piece of broken crockery, on the inside of which is scrawled a note: “Mother – it was a great mistake. The master has done things, things I do not like. I may never be the same. Your dearest Drusion”	A hint about the scarification ceremony by which knights are formed (SL10A-28)

Inhabitants:

1. 10 achaierai: SZ L; AL CE; AC body 8, legs -1; HD 9 (beak) or 4 (claws); HP 40 (body), 15(x4) (legs); #AT 3; Dmg 1-8/1-8/1-10; MR 35%. Special defenses: toxic smoke; regenerate damage to legs in 2 days.

SL10A-8: Tunnel down to 9-99A

This 5’-wide passage winds downward until it reaches the edge of the great cavern (9-99A). It features occasional steps hewn out of the rock.

SL10A-9: Tunnel down to 8-82

This tunnel corkscrews downward before ending up at area 8-82.

SL10A-10: Side Cave

This side cave is easy to overlook amid the mushroom forest of the cavern floor. Within is the decomposing corpse of an adolescent male human dressed only in a tattered white shift. It is the body of Drusion, a postulant for admission to the Order of Sun-Scarred Knights. A gold ring with an intaglied sardonyx stone hangs from a cord around his neck; the carving shows a dolphin, but the name “Drusion Krakteros” is etched on the inside of the band. The ring is worth 75 gp an object, but might receive up to 2,500 gp from the Krakteros clan in Narsileon, Arcturos or Archontos as proof of the fate of one of its members (see World of Archontos appendix).

GM Note: Drusion was recruited to the Sun-Scarred Knights but couldn't tolerate the discipline; he fled after a beating and died here. For hints about his fate, see the table in SL10A-7

SL10A-11: Sword Bridges

The base state for the two bridges leading to SL10A-12 is a triangular solid made of plasteel, some 5" on a side, with the razor-sharp point of the triangle facing upward. Both bridges descend at a 30-degree slope, making the sharp point of each bridge difficult to traverse (hence the name 'sword bridges'). A PC may attempt to shinny himself/herself down a bridge on hands and knees; doing so requires two successful rolls of 5d6 under DEX, and still inflicts 2-8 HP damage. Falling from the bridge inflicts 3-18 HP damage and is liable to attract the achaierai (see SL10A-7).

Passing one of the moral tests (SL10A-5, SL10A-6), however, causes the relevant bridge to rotate with a low grinding noise, thus presenting one of the flat, 5"-wide faces towards the top. The bridge stays flat for 6 turns before reverting to its base position.

SL10A-12: Sun Rock and Pear Tree

This rock rises 40' above the floor of the great cavern. It is brightly lit with a shaft of sunlight. In the exact center of the rock is a 10' diameter stone ring rising 6' above the floor of the rock. A beautiful pear tree laden with fruit grows from the ring. The tree is carefully pruned by the knights such that it presents a perfect canopy over the rock. The pears are juicy and delicious.

GM Note: The sunlight shining on the tree and rock has been filtered through a series of light shafts and accentuated by polished plasglass panels. This area counts as true sunlight when dealing with undead. Of course there is no sunlight here at night-time. The stone ring is filled with rich loam fertilized by subterranean fungi and nutrients; the loam extends another 20' into the center of the rock, thus allowing the pear tree to take firm root in the dirt.

SL10A-13: Bridge, Ledge and Front Door

A slim (5'-wide) stone bridge connects the Sun Rock (SL10A-12) to an outcropping protruding 5' beyond the southern wall of the citadel (SL10A-14). The outcropping is only 2' thick. Four 6'-tall iron torch-holders are stuck into holes in it.

The door to the Citadel is a massive piece of oak, bound with iron and studded with large rivets. A large knocker occupies the center of the door, its boss appearing as a horned demonic head. The door is barred on the inside by two impressive beams.

A hollow horn from a narwhal-like creature protrudes from the wall next to the door; it presents a 2"-diameter hole that extends inward to SL10B-2. This allows easy communication with supplicants standing on the ledge; it also allows Master Malachite to travel through the wall in gaseous form.

For entrance into the Citadel, see SL10B-1.

SL10A-14: Massive Pillar Containing the Citadel of the Knights

A massive rock pillar, some 90' on a side, rises 150' from the floor of the cavern to its ceiling. Lights glow from holes in the pillar placed about 45' up from the floor (c.f. SL10B-2). The exterior wall has also been clearly flattened and shaped by stone masons. In addition to its fairly straight lines, the exterior is carved with scores of monstrous faces: these vary in size, depth, and monstrousness, but combine to present an intimidating view to those looking at the citadel.

The interior of the pillar has been hollowed out into seven floors of chambers. For these chambers, which constitute the citadel of the Sun-Scarred Knights, see the map and key for SL10B.

SL10A-15: Stone Bridge

This stone bridge soars 80' above the floor of the cavern. It connects the northern entrance to the citadel (SL10B-24) with the Sanctum of the sept (areas SL10A-16 to SL10A-34). The bridge is 8' wide and 2' thick; it completely lacks guard rails.

Access to the Citadel (SL10A-14) is blocked by a heavy iron portcullis that slots into holes in the bridge. The lever to raise the portcullis is found within the Citadel, in the hallway leading from SL10B-24 to SL10B-3.

The door leading into SL10A-16 is made of solid iron and is locked. Each of the knights has a key. The door can be bypassed by those capable of gaseous form, as two 6"-diameter holes lead from SL10A-16 into the great cavern (SL10A-7). Master Malachite (SL10A-32) uses them to travel from the Sanctum to the Citadel.

SL10A-16: Entrance to the Sanctum

This dark hall is sheathed in rudishva-style octagonal slabs of black marble. Unlike true rudishva construction, however, this hall and the Sanctum within contain right angles. A double row of red porphyry columns leads towards the cloister (SL9-17)

Two niches are found part-way up the hall. Each has a silvered-metal floor and a square plate of silvered metal on the wall; a socket allows technological items to be 'plugged into' the wall.

While the eastern niche is empty, the western niche holds an active rudishva military-grade security construct named Ranke (see new monsters). Ranke maintains a resting state until anyone passes her post. She instantly attacks those who fail to clearly state the password ("Sunshine"). Although in a good state of preservation and still lethal, she has lost a few of her original functions. Were it possible to neutralize her and bring her to Kerbog Khan, the wizard might be able to restore her to full functionality (see SL12-28).

The sounds of combat in the entry hall brings those currently in SL10A-18 and SL10A-22 to investigate within 2 rounds.

Inhabitant:

1. Ranke, rudishva military-grade security construct: SZ M; AL N; AC 0, MV 120'; HD 10; HP 50; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12 (monofilament blades) or 3-8/3-8 (fists); MR 50%. Special Attacks: plasma ray. Special Defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; leap unerringly 30'; regeneration 2 HP/round. Note: Ranke is no longer able to attack with fire gougs, nor can she project holographic images. Her armored-alloy torso is charged with electricity; any who touch her suffer 2-8 HP electric damage. Her armored torso and blades are only effective so long as they are powered; a full charge will keep them powered for 28 + d3 hours. Should she be unable to recharge, she loses her powered functions (monofilament blades, plasma, electric charge), her AC drops to 3, and she must attack by fists for 3-8/3-8 damage.

SL10A-17: Cloister

The 40'-tall cloister of the knights presents a stark contrast in light and dark. The center of the cloister is brightly lit with natural sunlight, while the surrounding ambulatory is dark. The ambulatory is formed of octagonal pieces of black marble. The north wall is dominated by three enormous 15' doors made of ebony (see SL10A-26).

The center of the area, or the cloister proper, contains a burbling fountain as well as a riot of lush greenery. The plant life thrives due to the sunlight that streams down from three light shafts cut in the ceiling. A winding path of white stones winds among three cherry trees, four dogwoods, eight blueberry bushes, several planted herbs, and a dozen varieties of annual flowers.

SL10A-18: Training Hall

Carved out of the naked granite, this large hall features a sand floor and bright magical light from a half-dozen continual light rocks attached to the walls. Along the north wall are various racks holding equipment for martial training: four suits of man-sized leather armor, jo- and bo-sticks, a rack of spears, three two-handed swords and a half-dozen broad swords, and 1-6 other miscellaneous weapons.

A rather decrepit rudishva security construct (see new monsters) in the form of a varumani tactical advisor presides over the training hall. The tactical advisor is affectionately called Stink by the knights and varlets for the sharp odor emitted by his slightly rancid biological components. Stink knows three dozen training routines, both with and without weapons, and is one reason for the knights' formidable combat prowess. Stink instantly aids any knight or varlet who calls for his assistance in combat (say, in any general melée that breaks out at SL10A-16), but he is not inherently hostile to non-knights. Should he be encountered without knights or varlets, he offers to 'pump up' the skills of any likely looking warriors. In such circumstances Stink can serve as a trainer for fighters up to the 10th level of experience.

Currently one knight and two varlets are training with Stink.

Inhabitants:

1. Sir Hazel, the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 9th-level male hill dwarf fighter: SZ S; AL LE; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 9; HP 99; #AT 3/2; Dmg 8-13 (war hammer +3) or 4-7 (dagger) or 2-5 (light crossbow with bolts +1). Abilities: STR 18/43, INT 11, WIS 12, DEX 10, CON 17, CHA 13. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); war hammer +3; dagger; light crossbow with 12 bolts +1.

2. Balthild, varlet to Sir Simonet (3-131), and a 5th-level female Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 42; #AT 1; Dmg 4-11 (long sword +2) or 1-6 (short bow). Abilities: STR 17, INT 13, WIS 12, DEX 16, CON 15, CHA 9. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; long sword +2; short bow with 20 arrows; 2 potions of heroism.
3. Guillemin, varlet to Sir Hazel, and a 5th-level female Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 49; #AT 1; Dmg 4-9 (spear +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 16, INT 11, WIS 15, DEX 16, CON 16, CHA 13. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; spear +2; short bow with 5 arrows +1 and 10 normal arrows; 2 potions of heroism.
4. Stink, a varumani tactical advisor form of rudishva security construct (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 51; #AT 2; Dmg by weapon or 2-12/2-12. Special defenses: immune to poison, cold, and mind-affecting spells; regenerate 2 HP/round.

Treasure:

Miscellaneous weaponry and armor (see text).

SL10A-19: Smithy

This side chamber is hot and smoky, as it contains the smithy for the knights. Like the training hall, the smithy is undecorated stone. Here the smith, Astrid the Strong, and her assistant, Georgios, produce the high-quality steel items used by the knights.

The hot forge occupies the ell to the west of the chamber, with a venting shaft that leads to an unmapped series of small caves above. It is an impressive affair, with three bellows and several layers of steel grill on which metal can be heated and shaped. A small fire elemental has been bound to the forge for centuries, and provides the main heat source.

The center of the chamber holds three anvils, two basins with water, three racks with high-quality smithing tools, and molds for all the usual knights' accoutrements (armor, swords, lances, etc.).

Stacked along the east wall are materials: 150 5-lb ingots of steel, 200 5-lb ingots of iron, 50 5-lb ingots of silver, 30 5-lb ingots of gold, 10 5-lb ingots of platinum, 20 5-lb lumps of arcenum (see new magic items), approximately 3 cords of charcoaled wood, etc.

Next to the door are several racks with newly finished equipment, including two complete sets of knights' gothic armor, four broad swords, and three lance heads for the knights' sun lances (see new technological items). None of these has been enchanted yet.

The southernmost section of the chamber is set off by a thick red velvet curtain. Behind the curtain are two beds, two chairs, a table with several packs of playing cards, and a hanging rack with three changes of tunics for each smith.

The Smiths: As with all the others who live within the knights' domain, Astrid was taken as a child and raised within the hold as the apprentice to the former smith. She is a 51-year old Wiskin, with rippling muscles, prematurely grey hair, and an endless store of bad jokes. Georgios was purchased from the Guild of Service (4-2) as a boy explicitly to become Astrid's apprentice. He is 17 years old, with dark black hair and a depressive demeanor. While both are subject to regular suggestions from Master Malachite, they are essentially content with their life.

Inhabitants:

1. Astrid the Strong, female wiskin: SZ M; AL LN; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 1-1; HP 5; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5 (dagger +1). Possessions: a beautiful silver and turquoise necklace (145 gp); a dagger +1.
2. Georgios, male Archontean: SZ M; AL CN; AC 10; MV 120'; HD 1-1; HP 3; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4 (dagger). Possessions: silver neck torc (25 gp); dagger.
3. 1 fire elemental: SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 52; #AT 1; Dmg 3-24. Special attacks: combustion. Special defenses: +2 weapons or better to hit.

Treasure:

The ingots (see text) are valuable. Each iron ingot is worth 5 cp; each steel ingot is worth 5 sp; each silver ingot is worth 250 sp; each gold ingot is worth 250 gp; each platinum ingot is worth 250 pp. The arcenum (see new magic items) is worth 50,000 gp.

SL10A-20: Tech Graveyard

This 15'-tall chamber is crammed with broken and useless pieces of rudishva technology. A narrow path threads through the stacked boxes and broken housings. Alongside generic consoles, view screens, power couplings and other items, those familiar with rudishva technology might recognize the following: a security encoder, a portable medical unit, a portable point defense controller, three point defense arrays, a Nutri-vore 2000 food dispenser, a jet-ski, a hover sled, two GnuCoder 3000 data recorders, a CompositScan 3000 mineral detector, a biohazard suit, and an aquafactor (see new technological items for all). All these items are non-functional. A GM might decide that one with significant experience with rudishva technology and a sufficiently high INT (INT>16) might be able to repair a given piece of equipment; to do so would require quite a bit of cannibalizing of other pieces of equipment and has only a 25% chance of success.

Hidden under the piles of junk is a functional troll chest keyed to Master Malachite; it contains a kaliyani blasting rod, two biometric protection cards, and a battle helmet (see new technological items for all). It takes 5-8 turns of searching to locate the chest.

Also scattered throughout the room are the disassembled pieces of a military-grade security construct, once known as Dronke. She ceased functioning over a millennium ago and many of her electronic systems were repurposed to repair other equipment. Master Malachite and the knights know of no way to rebuild her. Kerbog Khan, however, might be able to do so: see SL12-28 for details.

Finally, hidden in the southwest corner of the room, behind a set of dangling power cords, is a love nest used by varlets and the occasional knight. The 'nest' contains two thick candles, some blankets and pillows, and two bottles of rudishva aquavit (see Arden Vul items). Both the Master and Sir Ennius are aware of the love nest, but tolerate it for purposes of morale.

Treasure:

Troll chest, kaliyani blasting rod, two biometric protection cards, and a battle helmet (see new technological items for all).

SL10A-21: Solar

This well-appointed chamber allows the residents of the citadel to relax in comfort. All surfaces are sheathed in octagonal slabs of black marble, while the floor is covered with four large Archontean carpets (200 gp per carpet). Three leather sofas, six leather chairs, five side tables, three coffee tables, and three tripods of heating (see new magic items) complete the furnishings. A wine rack holds 20 bottles of rudishva aquavit (see Arden Vul items). The southeast corner holds one of the knights' few remaining pieces of operable rudishva machinery, a Nutri-vore 2500 food dispenser (see new technological items). As the knights have a working kitchen in the citadel proper (SL10B-5), they currently use the Nutri-vore solely to synthesize rudishva aquavit.

There is a chance that one or two knights are currently relaxing in the solar.

Secret Door (north): The door is hard to find (1 in 8), mostly because it is simply a regular 3' octagonal panel of black marble hinged on the reverse. Once located it opens easily enough, by pulling the panel into the room. Note: the aperture leading to SL10A-25 is only 3' square.

Inhabitants:

1. Sir Ennius (40%), the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 7th/9th-level female high elf fighter/magic user: SZ M; AL LN; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 9; HP 52; #AT 3/2; Dmg 10-17 (long sword +3), 7-10 (dagger) or 2-5 (light crossbow with bolts +1). Abilities: STR 18/00 (from gauntlets, 16 natural), INT 15, WIS 12, DEX 15, CON 15, CHA 16. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); long sword +3; dagger; light crossbow with 16 bolts +1; gauntlets of ogre power; wand of conjuration (31 charges), wand of paralyzation (43 charges); key to SL10A-23. Memorized spells: charm person, identify, magic missile, shield; continual light, forget, web; dispel magic, fireball, suggestion; charm monster, ice storm; cone of cold. Her spell-book is in her chamber (SL10B-22).

2. Sir Hegemon (50%), the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 12th-level female Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL N; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 12; HP 98; #AT 3/2; Dmg 5-10 (spear +3), 2-5 (dagger), or 3-6 (light crossbow with bolts +2). Abilities: STR 17, INT 11, WIS 15, DEX 12, CON 16, CHA 13. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); spear +3; dagger, light crossbow with 18 bolts +2.

SL10A-22: Library

This long chamber is 20' tall and features octagonal black marble sheathing with rounded edges in the original rudishva style. Ten wooden bookshelves stand against the flat sections of the walls. The center of the library holds three large tables, each 15' long and 5' wide, and a dozen heavy oak chairs. A pair of floor-standing globes made of copper, with colored glass inserts to represent features, stand at either end of the column of tables. One of the globes depicts Magae (the world of Archontos); it would be of intense interest to Archontean officials in any of the big cities (10,000 gp) as it shows parts of the globe with which the empire is unfamiliar. The other globe depicts the rudishva homeworld.

The library stacks are filled with hundreds of volumes that the knights either appropriated, copied, or were gifted over the centuries. Among the riches are copies of every work listed in the Arden Vul books appendix (except those that are autograph originals, e.g. Kel Bormol's Chess Diary) and many others at the GM's discretion.

Inhabitants:

1. Sir Larel, the Sun-Scarred Knight, 13th-level male Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 13; HP 103; #AT 2/1; Dmg 8-14 (broad sword +3), 6-9 (dagger +2), or 1-4 (light crossbow). Abilities: STR 18/23, INT 15, WIS 9, DEX 11, CON 16, CHA 14. Possessions: gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); broad sword +3; dagger +2, light crossbow, 16 bolts +3.
2. Charity, varlet to Sir Spes (SL10A-24), 4th-level male elf fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 4; HP 31; #AT 1; Dmg 3-10 (long sword +1) or 1-6 (short bow). Abilities: STR 17, INT 16, WIS 14, DEX 16, CON 11, CHA 14. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; long sword +1; short bow with 20 arrows; 2 potions of heroism.

SL10A-23: Inner Reading Room

The door to this room is locked; keys are held only by Master Malachite (SL10A-32) and Sir Ennius (SL10A-21).

The chamber is undecorated granite. It contains a simple wooden work desk with a wooden chair, but also an incredible treasure: a fully operational rudishva GnuCoder 5000 full-immersion sensory experience and four greater rudishva power supplies (see new technological items). Next to the GnuCoder is a chest with a score of data crystals (see new technological items). These data crystals comprise a linear history of the Sun-Scarred Knights, from their formation during the last years of the rudishva hegemony, to their hidden existence for most of the Archontean period, to their return as arbiters of a certain kind of status quo in the past eight centuries. The most useful crystal is entitled The Formation of the Harmonious Brotherhood (see Arden Vul books).

SL10A-24: Solar Chapel

The chapel is perfectly proportioned, with a 30' ceiling, octagonal black-marble sheathing on the walls and ceiling, and checkerboard black-and-white octagonal marble sheathing on the floor.

A shaft of sunlight emerges from a set of light wells in the ceiling to illuminate a simple red porphyry altar at the north end of the chamber. On the altar is a bonzai garden, with a 3' shaped pine and an assortment of polished river stones in various colors. By the garden is a pair of shears and a small watering can.

In front of the altar are six 10'-long wooden benches in two columns. Behind them is a 20'x20' carpet featuring a blazing sun (450 gp).

The altar can be moved if a successful bend bars roll is made. It reveals a sloping natural passageway heading north. None of the knights are aware of this tunnel.

GM Note: Although called the solar 'chapel', no deity is associated with this chamber and it is not actually 'holy' in any sense. Master Malachite intended it to provide a non-denominational spiritual focus for his order. It is rarely used, however, except by those knights who require some space for meditation. Sir Spes, the beastman knight, frequently comes here to meditate and practice a series of poses that resemble tai-chi. A few other knights, both past and present, have secretly used the chapel to worship solar deities from 'real' pantheons (e.g. Horus and Seker in the old days, and Mitra and Atashak in the present). Of the current knights, only Sir Hegemon (SL10B-19) harbors any such religious beliefs.

Secret Doors (south): The door is hard to find (1 in 8), and only Master Malachite knows of its existence. It opens by inserting a 1" rod-shaped item into a hole 12' up the face of the south wall. The corridor leading south is 5' wide and rough carved. The secret door into SL10A-25 is obvious (1 in 3), and opens by releasing a catch on the wall.

Inhabitants:

1. Sir Spes, the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 9th-level female beastman fighter: SZ S; AL LN; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 9; HP 82; #AT 3/2; Dmg 5-10 (short sword +3), 2-5 (dagger), or 4-7 (light crossbow with bolts +3). Abilities: STR 17, INT 15, WIS 14, DEX 11, CON 15, CHA 8. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); short sword +3; dagger; light crossbow with 12 bolts +3.

SL10A-25: Secret Chamber

This chamber is undecorated, with unfinished surfaces. A battered wooden bench and three 3'x4'x3' chests comprise its contents. The chests contain coins: 17,931 cp, 11,459 sp, and 4,182 gp respectively.

Originally conceived as a hidden treasury, the knights have ceased to use it for this function since the citadel seems impregnable and this chamber is difficult to access from the solar. Although known to most knights, few visit it. Malachite (SL10A-32) might use it as a refuge if hard-pressed.

Secret Door (north): The door is difficult to find (1 in 8), and can only be opened from this side by exerting force to pull it open (open doors check).

Secret Door (south): The door is normal to find from this side. It opens by pulling open the hidden panel; doing so reveals a 3'-square tunnel leading to the solar (SL10A-21).

Treasure:

17,931 cp, 11,459 sp, and 4,182 gp.

SL10A-26: Triple Doors

Three 15' doors made of carved ebony lead from the cloister to the inner sanctum. The doors are not locked, but are heavy (open doors check with a bonus of 1). They are also carved in floral patterns, aside from a leering, horned, devilish face in the center of each one. The carved faces having gaping mouths, which serve as (harmless) door handles.

The short hallway within is sheathed in octagonal slabs of white marble.

SL10A-27: Burial Cavern of the Knights

This cavern is tall and shows signs of being worked on most sides. It rises 100' from floor to ceiling. The entrance corridor (SL10A-26) and the master's ledge (SL10A-30) are located 20' below the ceiling. The scarification platform (SL10A-28) is 50' below the ceiling. The north wall has been flattened, and the east and west walls have been shaped and flattened. The home of the master lies to the north, while the simple tombs of previous knights line the side walls.

The cavern is deathly quiet and bereft of almost all life. The floor of the cavern is covered in 15' of cold, clear water. Growing amid the water are three-score weird columnar formations of multicolored matter; the formations sway in the water, while their tops just protrude from the water (by about 6"). The formulations are chemoautotrophs, and thrive on the carbon dioxide that slowly bubbles up from the floor of this chamber. The formations are a mixture of yellow, green, and pale blue, and are spongy to the touch. Fortunately they are harmless, although spelunkers may worry that they are some form of slime. Amid the columns are scores of broken rudishva weapons, some discarded when they ceased functioning but others purposefully smashed. None of the debris is usable.

Set into the walls are the simple tombs of those knights who have served the sept over the centuries. There are 250 tombs, of which 219 are occupied (there have actually been 257 knights, but the corpses of 38 were never recovered). In keeping with the collective ethos of the sept, tombs are unmarked, and nearly bereft of grave goods. Each tomb holds a well-preserved (but not mummified) body wrapped in white linen. A copper amulet in the form of a sunburst lies on each corpse (10 sp each).

SL10A-28: Scarification Platform

Atop a slender (10'-diameter) column of rock rising 50' from the floor of the cavern sits the central ritual site for the knights. Atop the platform is a stone table about 4.5' tall, a copper knife, and a copper basin. At one end of the table's top is a slot 3" long, ½" wide, and 6" deep. At the other end of the table is a semi-circular indentation about 1" in diameter; the interior is carved to resemble a beetle.

Inserting a metal object of appropriate size (e.g., a dagger or rapier blade, or the nearby copper knife) into the slot activates a mechanism that causes a triangular, telescoping, plasteel bridge (similar to those at SL10A-11) to extend from the platform towards area SL10A-30. Given the differences in height between the two ledges, the plasteel bridge is quite steep. Fortunately the flat side of the triangle (and not a sharp side) is upward. So long as the object is in the slot, the bridge remains in place; when it is removed, the bridge retracts.

The indentation is designed for the solar rings (see new magic items) worn by all of the knights (with their scarab beetle stones). Pressing such a ring into the indentation for 10 seconds causes a metal door to open in the roof of the cavern, allowing a 20'-diameter shaft of sunlight to bathe the center of the platform.

Known as the scarification platform, it is where varlets are ritually transformed into Sun-Scarred Knights. The ritual involves several steps.

1. All existing knights join Master Malachite on the platform, surrounding the candidate, who lies on the stone table. They greet him and ask him/her if he is ready to join the brotherhood. He or she agrees, and utters an oath of fidelity to the Master and the other brothers.
2. Master Malachite opens a vein on his arm with the copper knife, and collects his blood in the copper basin
3. Two of the senior knights carves ritual marks into the face and forehead of the new knight, while the rest of the sept chants the knights' credo
4. The most senior knight presses his/her solar ring into the indentation, causing the platform to be bathed in sunlight.
5. Master Malachite steps into the sunlight, his flesh smoking, and pours his blood onto the ritual marks
6. Thanks to the sunlight, the blood sears into the flesh of the new knight, permanently scarring him/her.

SL10A-29: Cave, with Tunnel to 6-39H

Within the last few months a strange and unique heqeti slime (see new monsters) has eaten its way through a vein of granite boasting a specific and very narrow range of hardness on the moh scale. It followed that vein from Level 6 to this location, where it discovered that the corpses of long-dead knights are also digestible. It may currently be found here, devouring the remains of three knights. If unchecked, it will proceed to devour more remains at the rate of one per week; within 6 months it will have eaten its way into the Master's sanctum, but will then be destroyed by the Master. Until then it is quite dangerous.

Inhabitant:

1. 1 unique plum-colored heqeti slime (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 6; MV 10'; HD 6; HP 33; #AT 1; Dmg special; MR 15%. Special attacks: stone-eating; flesh-eating for 4-7 rounds; corrosive to metal. Special defenses: healed by electricity or lasers; slowed by cold.

SL10A-30: Master's Sanctum: Entrance

The entrance to the sanctum, or lair, of Master Malachite is an unassuming ledge on the north wall of the cavern (SL10A-27). The ledge is positioned 20' from the ceiling and 80' above the floor of the cavern. It leads to an iron door on which is painted a sunburst in yellow paint. The door has a dozen 1"-holes drilled through it; it is unlocked. Note: the ledge is accessible from the scarification platform if the bridge has been activated; see SL10A-28 for details.

SL10A-31: Master's Sanctum: Antechamber

This chamber is sheathed in octagonal slabs of black marble on all surfaces save the north wall; its corners are all rounded. The east and west walls have been whitewashed, however, and frescoes are painted atop the white paint. In the center of the chamber is a wooden tripod supporting a bronze bell; a copper striker is attached to the frame by a cord. Next to the tripod is an open chest filled with rudishva jumpsuits of various colors.

The fresco on the east wall is in an ancient Archontean style and shows seven rudishva in black tactical suits standing in a chamber; they all gesture with their right hands towards a tunnel that leads to the outside, where a bright sun is shining. Each rudishva was originally named, in Mithric, but the names of six have been erased: the only remaining name is that of Melok-Ri.

The fresco on the west wall shows a rudishva in his tactical suit surrounded by hundreds of humans and demi-humans, all of whom are clad in the gothic armor of the knights. In fact the fresco is an enormous 'group portrait' of all the generations of the knights, with 257 separate companions. Some of the figures are faded, as they were first painted (and retouched) centuries ago; the current knights are smaller (in the background) and in more vibrant colors.

The north wall is native granite that has been polished to a reflective sheen. Three 3"-diameter holes lead from the wall to area SL10A-32; these allow Master Malachite to pass through the intervening rock in gaseous form. Sixteen copper pins have been inserted into the granite; from each dangles a black silk ribbon. Four of the ribbons are tied around pieces of rolled parchment.

The slips of parchment are petitions submitted by four of the knights to the Master, following ancient ritual. A knight can offer a petition at any time. Once per week the Master collects them all, reads them, and renders a decision. If the decision requires immediate action, the Master emerges and rings the bell five times; the knights know that this means that all available knights and varlets are expected to report to area SL10B-30 for convocation. If the decision does not require immediate action, the Master rings the bell once and leaves a hand-written answer by the bell.

Should the PCs somehow access area SL10A-31 without first neutralizing the denizens of the citadel proper (SL10B), and should they ring the bell multiple times, the knights will assume it means a convocation, and will gather in SL10B; the failure of the Master to appear serves to alert to the presence of intruders in the Sanctum. Should the bell be rung only once, one of the knights (at random) will appear within 3-6 turns to collect the master's reply; when it is not to be found, he/she will immediately raise the alarm.

The current petitions attached to the wall are these:

1. "Master, allow me to search for Sixth. His return is badly overdue. [signed] Spes." GM: Sir Sixth is currently senseless and lost in area 6-39; Sir Spes requests permission to locate and aid him.
2. "Master, I am concerned at the paucity of postulants. Allow me to take several goblins, humans or halflings from the upper levels and subject them to the trials. [signed] Calculor." GM: Sir Calculor is currently away on a short mission; he hopes his request will be addressed before his return.
3. "Master, [the GM should write a short note describing a recent adventure/action taken by the PCs within Arden Vul.] This group is dangerous and needs watching ... or elimination. Give me the honor of seeing to it. [signed] Discord." GM: the point is to convey to PCs that their actions have been observed by the knights, and that one – Discord – would like to take proscriptive action against them. Discord is currently located at 8-116.

4. "Master, the new group of human mages has mustered a large expedition into the old heqeti areas at the foot of the chasm. They are well-organized and extremely dangerous. I fear that, if left unchecked, they will disturb the balance of power we have so carefully worked to achieve. Their strength is such that a combined assault may be necessary to eliminate them. Your wisdom in this matter is desired. [signed] Ennius." GM: Sir Ennius (SL10B-29) is referring to the Priscian encampment at 9-31.

SL10A-32: Master's Sanctum: Master's Chamber

This richly appointed chamber is the private residence of Master Malachite, leader of the Sun-Scarred Knights. Malachite was originally known as Melok-Ri, a rudishva member of the crew of the Beacon. An incredibly ancient being, Malachite is content these days to spend most of his time here, in contemplation. The chamber is sheathed entirely in octagonal slabs of black marble, complete with rounded corners. Eight rudishva light globes (see new technological items) protrude from steel rods inserted horizontally into the walls; they provide bright light to the chamber. The room is subdivided into three areas.

To the east is Malachite's private relaxation area. A 20'x20' plush Archontean carpet featuring dragons lines the floor (1,500 gp). Malachite also has an uncomfortable-looking, orange plasteel, rudishva-style bed salvaged from elsewhere in the halls, plus two armchairs, one an orange rudishva seat and the other a plush leather club chair. The area also holds a small bookshelf and a wine rack. The bookshelf is close to empty, as Malachite has given up reading over the past few centuries. It contains the following items: Prosperity in the Eternal Now, by Redip-Beg; On the Terrible Old Gods, by Sarquin of Archontos; The Politics, by Teracleon; On Friends and Enemies, by Teracleon; Properties of Arcanum; True Tales of Larel One-Eyed; Harmony through Brotherhood, by Isok-Crix; Words and Symbols: an attempt to understand the symbols of the Old Ones, by Hanon the Scribe; and Poetic Interludes, by Nerix-Vaj. The wine rack has a dozen bottles of good recent Archontean wine (40-120 gp per bottle), three bottles of truly excellent vintage wine (250 gp per bottle), and three plasteel 'bottles' containing incredibly ancient rudishva aquavit (see Arden Vul items – 300 gp per bottle).

To the west is Malachite's working area. The floor here is also covered in a plush, 20'x20' carpet showing scenes from the tales of Larel One-Eye (350 gp). Atop the carpet is a blue leather settee, a desk made entirely of ivory, and a troll chest keyed to Malchite (see new technological items). The wall above the desk has a corkboard to which is pinned a parchment map of the floor of the Great Chasm (Level 9), with most geographic features indicated and some temporary additions in pencil. These additions include 'strange hunters' at area 9-50; 'mushrooms' at 9-6; and next to the feature marked 'ancient bridge', an arrow and text reading 'powerful magicians' (i.e., 9-31). The desk is valuable (4,250 gp) but must be disassembled for travel (successful roll of 4d6 under INT to disassemble). It contains various notes about Malachite's current goals (see below). The troll chest contains a full set of glass activation squares (see Thothian teleportation rings in new magic items); a parchment quire with addresses to all Thothian teleportation rings; and maps of all of the Archontean areas of Arden Vul (Levels 1, 2, 3, 4, and parts of 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9). On the maps secret doors/rooms have only a 20% of being indicated, and natural tunnels and cave systems have a 25-75% chance of being indicated (depending on the logical prominence of the tunnel/cave to the neighboring worked areas).

In the northern niche hangs a 6'-tall, egg-shaped object formed of bright yellow plasteel. It is one of only two rudishva portable medical units (see new technological items) that remains operative (the other is located at 6-85). This device has helped to ensure Malachite's longevity and continued health in the long millennia since the collapse of the rudishva hegemony. His vampirism, however, rendered use of the medical unit less imperative (and, strangely, the unit was unable to 'cure' Malachite of this condition). For this reason his memories are sharper than those of the Lord of Arena (6-85), whose use of a similar device has slowly eroded his memories over the years.

Beneath the medical unit is a 3'x6'x4' block of yellow plasteel pierced with holes of various size and direction (it was a piece of rudishva art, but may look to humans like Swiss cheese). The block serves as a display table for some of Malachite's treasured items. Beneath the block (which can be moved by succeeding at an open doors check) is a hole in the floor, which drops 15' to a tunnel leading to SL10A-33. On the table are the following: a crew-tag from the Beacon, in yellow plasteel, that reads 'Melok-Ri' in Glyphik; rust, brown, sky blue, silver, and platinum rudishva identity plaques (see new technological items); two 6"-cubes of plastic containing 'moving pictures' (holographs), one of two rudishva in flowing robes (his parents) and one of seven rudishva in official military gear (Melok-Ri and his friends); a slim piece of orange plasteel on which are numerous Rudishva glyphs (GM: the initial compact forming the Harmonious Brotherhood, the predecessors of the Knights); and a porcelain tea service of exquisite quality (225 gp).

Malachite's Actions

Malchite rarely leaves his sanctum these days. Indeed, there is only a 33% chance that he responds to a general alarm in the Citadel (see SL10B-2). Still, he is a formidable opponent. Should he be surprised in his sanctum, where he has few weapons or defenses, he immediately reverts to gaseous form, and flees down the tunnel to SL10A-33. There he equips himself and proceeds to SL10A-34, where he takes stock of the situation. If he is being pursued, he retreats to SL10A-24 and then attempts to retreat to the Citadel (SL10B) to rally any remaining allies. If he is not being pursued, he may wait in SL10A-34 until foes depart (66%) or he may attempt to surprise and confront those who have invaded his sanctum (33%). Although as a vampire he is capable of using energy drain, Malachite has sworn a vow not to create any new vampires; he uses his energy drain only in extremis.

Inhabitants:

1. Master Malachite, aka Melok-Ri, rudishva vampire: SZ L; AL LN; AC 1; MV 120' or 180' flying (Class B); HD 15; HP 88; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10 (claw). He uses combat and saving throw tables as a 15th-level fighter. Special attacks: energy drain; charm gaze (-2 to saves). Special defenses: shape change (bat); assume gaseous form; summon 10-100 rats or bats; immune to charm, hold, sleep; +1 or better weapons to hit. Abilities: STR 18/76, INT 18, WIS 18, DEX 12, CON 14, CHA 17. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, rudishva jumpsuit; solar ring (see new magic items); circlet of command (see new magic items); command bracelet (see new technological items); and keys to SL10A-23, SL10A-30. For Malachite's stats when ready for battle, see SL10A-33.

SL10A-33: Master's Retreat

This chamber is similar to the master's sanctum in its broad features: octagonal slabs of marble sheathing, no right angles, and four rudishva light globes (see new technological items). It is empty save for several racks holding a veritable arsenal of weapons and armor, most of which are rudishva in origin and thus incredibly deadly: a rudishva tactical suit, a personal defense array, a rudishva dart thrower with two clips of each type of dart, a battle helmet, a web sling with 3 of each type of rudishva grenade, a laser pistol, a laser rifle, five unused lesser power supplies, and a sun lance (see new technological items for all). In addition to the technology, the chamber holds a suit of beautiful gilded chain mail +5, a vorpal long sword, ten torches, and a continual light rock held in a velvet pouch.

Secret Door (south): The door is normal to find from the chamber side, and opens merely by pushing it inward. From the tunnel side it is easy to find.

Inhabitants:

Battle-ready Master Malachite, aka Melok-Ri, rudishva vampire, equipped with armor and weapons: SZ L; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120' or 180' flying (Class B); HD 15; HP 88; #AT 1 or 2/1; Dmg 5-10 (claw) or 8-15/8-15 (vorpal long sword). He uses combat and saving throw tables as a 15th-level fighter. Special attacks: energy drain; charm gaze (-2 to saves). Special defenses: shape change (bat); assume gaseous form; summon 10-100 rats or bats; immune to charm, hold, sleep; +1 or better weapons to hit. Abilities: STR 18/76, INT 18, WIS 18, DEX 12, CON 14, CHA 17. Possessions: rudishva tactical suit; rudishva battle helmet; 9 rudishva grenades (3 of each kinds); laser pistol; personal defense array (see new technological items for all these); a solar ring and a circlet of command (see new magic items for both); a sun lance (see new technological items); the vorpal long sword; and keys to SL10A-23, SL10A-30.

Treasure:

See text.

SL10A-34: Master's Second Retreat

This rough-hewn chamber is dark and only 8' tall. A 5'x2' mirror leans against the north wall, and a simple wooden stool sits before it. The mirror is a treasure of incalculable value, a mirror of mental prowess that Master Malachite uses to observe the goings-on within the knights' hold (and beyond). If driven here from his sanctum (SL10A-32), he uses the mirror to determine where his enemies and allies are before deciding how to act.

Secret Door (east): The door is difficult to spot from within SL10A-34 (1 in 8), and opens by depressing a knob of rock on the floor. From the tunnel leading from SL10A-33 it is easy to spot (1 in 4), and opens by releasing a fairly obvious spring-catch.

Treasure:

Mirror of mental prowess.

SUB-LEVEL 10B: THE CITADEL OF THE SUN-SCARRED KNIGHTS

This area defines one half of the domain of the powerful sept of warriors known as the Sun-Scarred Knights (the other half - the Hold - is found at Sub-Level 10A). The Citadel is comprised of seven floors of chambers hollowed out of the 150'-tall pillar (SL10A-14) that stands in the great cavern (SL10A-7). The Citadel was the original home of the Sun-Scarred Knights, before they delved the extra chambers known as the Sanctum (SL10A-16 to SL10A-34). It remains the residence for the knights and varlets, even if many of the knights prefer the greater comfort of the Sanctum for their leisure time. The Citadel is also home to the Chapter House (SL10B-30), where the entire Order meets to consider its collective business. The exterior walls of the citadel are 10' thick, and are punctured only in a few places:

- 1) The southern entrance (SL10B-1; see also SL10A-13), which is 40' from the cavern floor and obtained by the bridge from SL10A-12;
- 2) A series of arrow slits cut into the outer wall, also at a height of 40-50' from the cavern floor;
- 3) The northern entrance (SL10B-24), at a height 80' above the floor and connected to the bridge at SL10A-15;
- 4) A pair of arrow slits on the north wall, also at a height of 80' from the cavern floor.
- 5) A pair of 1"-diameter holes in the north wall, leading to SL10B-30. These are used by Master Malachite when he travels by gaseous form from SL10A-32 to lead the infrequent sessions of the Chapter of the Knights.

If visitors to the Citadel appear hostile, they are met by missile fire and magic from the defenders (see SL10B introduction for details). All knights currently in the Citadel rally either to the 3rd floor (SL10B-2), 5th floor (SL10B-23 and SL10B-25), or 6th floor (SL10B-28) of the citadel to repel invaders. They are joined by Ricchar Wither-Hand and his apprentice, Jolene (see SL10B-26), who use their magic in defense of the citadel. If possible, the knights and varlets currently found in the inner sanctum (SL10A-16 to SL10A-26) will rush across the bridge (SL10A-15) to join the defense. Master Malachite (SL10A-32) is unlikely (33%) to join the defense of the citadel.

For information about the Order of Sun-Scarred Knights, including their number, organization, and leadership, see the introduction to Sub-level 10A.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Archontean areas: SL10B-1 to SL10B-30

IMPORTANT NPCs

Sir Philautia (SL10B-2)

Sir Vambrace (SL10B-2)

Ricchar Wither-Hand (SL10B-26)

FACTIONS

The entire sub-level is under the full control of the Sun-Scarred Knights

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Sub-Level 10A: door at SL10B-1, leading to SL10A-13

To Sub-Level 10A: portcullis and bridge at SL10B-24, leading to SL10A-15

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

The inhabitants move throughout the Citadel regularly. For every 3 turns the PCs are undetected in the Citadel (if that is even possible), there is a 1 in 4 chance for an encounter. The encounter will be the residents of the nearest occupied chamber (50%), or one of the knights or varlets currently found in the Sanctum (50%). For the latter, the GM should choose the current occupants of SL10A-16 to SL10A-24. With any encounter, those discovering the PCs will attempt to raise the alarm before engaging in combat.

LEVEL KEY

SL10B-1: Entrance Hall

The front door (see SL10A-13) leads to an undecorated chamber and a second door, identical in all respects to the outer door except that it lacks the knocker. The second door is barred on the inside with two heavy beams. A 3'-tall urn in the entrance hall contains water and a sponge; a sign in Archontean on the wall above it reads "Please rinse all bloodstains from walls before exiting."

Observant visitors or attackers may notice murder holes in the ceiling (SL10B-12).

SL10B-2: Knights' Hall

The third floor of the citadel is one big open chamber supported by five massive columns. The outer walls are pierced by regular arrow slits. Each slit is normally closed off by a wooden shutter latched on the inside of the wall. The southeast corner lacks an arrow slit, but has a fireplace that connects to the flue running up this part of the wall. A speaking tube in the arrow slit to the left of the door leads to area SL10A-13.

The hall is lit by a five continual light stones hung on the walls. A bronze bell hangs from a nook attached to the outside of the stairwell. Eight settees, a dozen leather chairs, two gaming tables, ten side tables, a cloak rack, two weapon racks, and three barrels of arrows comprise the furnishings; all are made of sturdy wood carved with the occasional gargoyle and gremlin. Two impressive, life-sized bronze statues – one of a pouncing panther, the other of a springing antelope – stand in the northern half of the chamber (worth 18,000 gp each).

Two heavy, wool, ankle-length black cloaks hang on the rack, while the weapons racks hold eight short bows (two of which are short bows +2) and a score of javelins (six of which are javelins +2). The gaming tables store two sets of draughts made of ivory (150 gp per set); a score of ivory dice (50 gp for all); a fine set of Archontean chess pieces made of ebony and ivory (250 gp); a simple set of chess pieces made of wood (25 sp); and a set of silver knucklebones (75 sp). In addition to these items, two kegs of weak beer (15 sp each) provide sustenance for the inhabitants.

Unless the knights are anticipating trouble, only two knights and two varlets will be found here. Presently, Sir Philautia, Sir Vambrace, and their varlets, Hogier and Boniface, are present, conversing idly and playing games of chance. The varlets take a circuit of the arrow slits every 3 turns, looking for lights and listening for noise in the chasm. If they are alarmed by something, or if visitors knock on the outer door (SL10B-1), they immediately ring the bell vigorously, bringing assistance from other floors of the Citadel and Sanctum within 3-6 rounds (but Master Malachite has only a 33% chance of responding – see SL10A-32). Sir Philautia then uses the speaking tube to warn off visitors. Visitors typically have only a few moments to either retreat or convince the knights that their mission/question is worth discussion before the inhabitants of the hall resort to defensive missile fire.

Inhabitants:

1. Sir Philautia, the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 13th-level female Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL CN; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 13; HP 93; #AT 2/1; Dmg 7-14/7-14 (long sword +3), or 4-7/4-7 (dagger). Abilities: STR 18/73, INT 11, WIS 12, DEX 14, CON 15, CHA 18. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); long sword +3; dagger.
2. Sir Vambrace, the Sun-Scarred Knight (see new monsters), 11th-level male Wisikin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC -2; MV 120'; HD 11; HP 100; #AT 3/2; Dmg 5-12 (battle axe +3), or 2-5 (dagger). Abilities: STR 17, INT 9, WIS 10, DEX 11, CON 16, CHA 14. Possessions: key to SL10A-16, gothic armor and sun lance (see new technological items); solar ring; circlet of command; backpack of capacity (see new magic items for all three); battle axe +3; dagger.
3. Hogier, varlet to Sir Philautia, 6th-level male Wisikin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 65; #AT 1; Dmg 5-11 (hand axe +2), or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 18/33, INT 10, WIS 12, DEX 12, CON 17, CHA 12. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; two hand axes +2; short bow and 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.
4. Boniface, varlet to Sir Vambrace, 5th-level male Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 43; #AT 1; Dmg 4-11 (long sword +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 17, INT 13, WIS 12, DEX 16, CON 15, CHA 9. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; long sword +2; short bow and 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.

Treasure:

Large bronze statues; magic weapons; gaming items (see above).

SL10B-3: Grand Staircase

This 10'-wide circular staircase winds through all seven levels of the citadel. Steps are steep and narrow. Continual light stones are posted at each floor.

Two features of the staircase are unusual. First, the height of the risers and width of the treads is variable, making it difficult for those unfamiliar with the stairs to move quickly up and down it or to fight on it. Movement on the stairs is halved, and those fighting on the stairs suffer a -1 penalty to 'to hit' rolls and find their effective AC worsened by 1. The second feature is a trap.

Trap (partly illusory stairs): The 4' of the staircase closest to the outer wall is actually a permanent illusion meant to look like stairs. In fact, there is nothing there, and those who hug the outside wall of the stair will fall all the way to the cellar, taking appropriate damage: each level is 20' apart, making the floor of level 7 (SL10B-30) 120' above the floor of the cellar (SL10B-7). The landings at each level of the citadel are, however, fully intact.

SL10B-4: Lower Solar

This lounge contains six heavy wooden chairs with leather seats, three side tables, and, along the north wall, a storage cabinet containing linens. There's a 50% chance that the cooks are relaxing here (see SL10B-5).

Inhabitants:

1. Fogduster (50%): see stats at SL10B-5
2. Hemptwister (50%): see stats at SL10B-5

SL10B-5: Kitchen

The kitchen contains two heavy wooden prep tables, scores of pots and pans hanging from the ceiling, an impressive array of knives, and a walk-in pantry to the northeast. A large fireplace, with attached oven, sits in the southeast corner; the flue extends up to the knight's hall (SL10B-2).

Fogduster, the goblin cook, rules the kitchen with an iron hand. He is accompanied by his assistant, Hemptwister. While Fogduster runs the show, Hemptwister is the genius at devising new recipes with limited supplies. The pair are to be found either at work in the kitchen (50%) or relaxing in the nearby solar (50%). They are loyal to the knights, and enjoy what they consider to be exalted positions.

The knives are serviceable but not valuable. The pantry contains lots of dried mushrooms, dried meat, dried fruit, and preserves; smaller amounts of flour, sugar, oil, and fresh fruit are also present.

Inhabitants:

1. Fogduster, goblin (50%): SZ S; AL LE; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 1-1; HP 4; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6.
2. Hemptwister, goblin (50%): SZ S; AL LE; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 1-1; HP 3; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6.

SL10B-6: Dining Room

A 30'-long trestle table dominates the dining room. Built-in cupboards along the west wall hold simple plates, bowls, cups and utensils in a wide variety of styles. A huge sunburst motif has been painted on the southwest wall in yellow paint.

Lump, the varlet of Sir Calculator, is present here, gnawing on some old bones and picking at some pickled beets. He moves quickly to the knights' hall (SL10B-2) if the alarm bell is sounded.

Inhabitants:

1. Lump, varlet of Sir Calculator (see Level 5, Random Encounters), 5th-level male Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 43; #AT 1; Dmg 4-11 (battle axe +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1); STR 17, INT 8, WIS 12, DEX 16, CON 15, CHA 9. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; battle axe +2; short bow and 15 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.

SL10B-7: Cellar

The bottom floor of the citadel is 20' tall and supported by four large pillars.

A deep well is set between the two southern pillars; it extends downwards to the aquifer. Next to the well is a bathtub and privy hole. The bathtub is carved from a single block of marble, and features impressive relief carvings of Archontean legionaries marching in triumph (250 gp). The tub has a cork stopper which opens to a tunnel leading to the privy. The privy shaft leads down 50' to an unmapped and very smelly cavern with no other exits. Attached to the southernmost pillar is a mirror and a basin.

The rest of the cellar is packed with stored goods. Closest to the spiral stairs are food items: more dried mushrooms, meat, and fruit. To the north are racks and cases of wines and brandies, some quite old (perhaps 250 bottles, with most worth 5-50 gp, but with 25 worth 25xd100 gp). To the southwest are raw materials used throughout the citadel: iron and steel ingots; coils of rope; bolts of linen; unfletched arrows; torches; cookware; a barrel of lamp oil; and other mundane items.

To the east, behind the staircase, are the less frequently used items, and some curiosities: a head of Thoht under a blanket (Vipsania Torquil – see new magic items); a large bronze spear and shield taken from a colossus (100 gp each); a drapery depicting the third mystery of Set (see 4-111; 350 gp); a bocce set cast in solid bronze (125 gp); several fine examples of the taxidermist's art, in the form of a badger, a greyhound, and a porcupine (75 gp each); a travel trunk with five silk capes of different sizes and colors (80 gp for the lot); a ventriloquist's dummy in the form of a halfling (275 gp); and a set of five painted marble portrait busts in the old Archontean style (worth 250 gp each or 2,500 gp for the set).

Secret Door (north): The door is built into the wine racks and is normal to find. It opens by pushing a wine bottle against a concealed button.

SL10B-8: Secret Treasury

The knights keep their stocks of coin in this cramped, 5'-tall chamber. Four large stone bins hold the loot. One has 23,894 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) and 5,711 sp; another holds 47,153 cp (mixed ancient and modern); a third holds 9,879 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) and 3,973 gp; the last holds 572 ancient octagonal platinum coins (see Arden Vul items).

SL10B-9: Chamber of Sir Simonet

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Simonet has two salvaged Archontean frescoes mounted on the wall, one showing a procession of priests of Set and the other showing a formal audience of an archon. In his chest is a beautiful ivory necklace carved to resemble cowrie shells (1,500 gp). He also possesses four books: the Litany of Light, a secretly-made copy of Alexandros's On the Location of Priscus Pulcher, the Dogmatics of Father Set, and a Lexicon of Mithric (see Arden Vul books for all).

Inhabitants:

Sir Simonet is currently absent from the citadel. He may be found at 3-131.

SL10B-10: Chamber of Sir Calculator

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: The desk holds a portfolio of watercolors made with a yellow wash, including images of a chasm cephalopod, a giant four-armed baboon, a flensing demon, a fungal forester, and Gimon (see new monsters for all). Notes on the back of the watercolors indicate where they were spotted and 1-2 actual abilities of the creature in question. An unbound quire also holds Calculator's notes about Rimmaq-Isfet, including speculation about the ichor of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new monsters). The chest holds a pouch with three black sapphires (5,000 gp each).

Inhabitants: Sir Calculator is away on a mission; he may be encountered in various random encounter tables on Levels 4, 5 and 6 and Sub-Level 6.

SL10B-11: Chamber of Sir Sixth

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: The desk holds a parchment chart showing a language tree from Mithric to Archontean, Thorcin, Beastman, etc.; a quire showing 25 Rudishva glyphs with Archontean equivalents; two large (3') gypsum rods (250 gp each); another quire entitled 'On vampirism', with a list of true and reputed abilities of vampires. On the final folio is written "Master Malachite?????" [GM: a hint as to Master Malachite's nature; see SL10A-32]

GM Note: The Rudishva glyphs should provide assistance to PCs attempting to use rudishva devices or interpret rudishva writing elsewhere in the Halls. With possession of this quire, PCs are automatically able to decipher the next 5-10 pieces of rudishva writing that they encounter.

Inhabitants: Sir Sixth is currently at 6-39, where he has been rendered insane by a heqeti slime. He had been tasked with locating the weapons module of the Beacon (6-27).

SL10B-12: Murder Holes

A series of funneled murder holes are set into the floor here. To the south of the holes is a stone basin filled with caustic acid, as well as three stone ewers that may be used to scoop up the acid. Acid poured through the holes automatically showers anyone in the entrance hall (SL10B-1) with acid, doing 3-12 HP damage the first round and an additional 1-4 for two more rounds.

SL10B-13: Chamber of Sir Prudence

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Prudence has a taxidermied head of a varumani, plus two exaggerated (and incorrect) exploded views of varumani bodies, with the parts labeled. He also has a 4'x4' frame into which sixteen 1'-square pieces of tanned 'hide' have been set (hides include human, varumani, beastman, goblin, demon, etc.). The desk drawer contains six sets of dice, two sets of which are loaded. Finally, he has a platinum crossbow bolt mounted to his bed frame (200 gp), a trophy given to a long-forgotten legionary in ages past.

Inhabitants: Sir Prudence is currently at the court of the troll thegn (7-75, 7-76A), where he is tasked with undermining Varboka's moves against the goblins.

SL10B-14: Chamber of Sir Mendacity

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: In her room Mendacity has several obscure treatises: Why All So-Called Gods are Merely Avatars of the One Deity by Loricar the Unread; Divine Power is a Manifestation of Collective Will, by the Unknown Areopagite; How Divine Gifts of Power Differ from Demonic or Diabolic Influence, by Geradreon; and The Genealogy of the Deities of Archontos by Velok the Scholar. She also has a keg of Hak's mushroom ale (see 7-94). On her bed are three 'stuffed animals' made of leather, fur, and horsehair.

Inhabitants: Mendacity is currently out of the citadel, on a mission to locate the heqeti stronghold on Level 7. She succeeded, but was taken captive in the process. She currently languishes at 7-81.

SL10B-15: Chamber of Sir Sorrow

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Hanging on the walls are four oil portraits of Sorrow herself, each one depicting a different stage of grief (250 gp each). On the desk is an 'org-chart' for Deino and the Beastmen, showing each of the konturbia with leaders' names, as well as the names of the various counts; Sorrow has written "Where are the women?" on the side of the chart. Tucked into her chest are two cones of incense of attraction (see new magic items).

Inhabitants: Sir Sorrow is currently on a mission to the court of the goblin king (SL4-19), where she is attempting to prop up King Weskenim through subtlety and manipulation. See stats at SL4-19.

SL10B-16: Chamber of Sir Discord

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Discord has five sharpened and poisoned daggers hidden around his room ('because you're most vulnerable in your bedroom'): one in the desk, one attached to the underside of the mattress, one under the pillow, one in the wardrobe, and one underneath the gothic chair's seat (35 gp each). Mounted to the wall are some exotic weapons: a heqeti stone spear; a broken rudishva laser rifle; a usable man-catcher; two Wiskin two-handed swords; and a wiskin short bow, which, unbeknownst to him, is Freki's bow (see new magic items). On the desk is a quire of 24 folios, each with a separate Wiskinga battle chant glossed and translated in Archontean. Next to the quire are two single sheets of parchment with Discord's servicable attempts to write his own Wiskinga chants.

Inhabitants: Discord is currently on a mission to locate the scepter of the goblins (8-69). He and his varlet, Rorgo, have tracked it to Level 8, and are currently stymied; they are holed up in the knights' rest (8-116), planning their next move.

SL10B-17: Chamber of Sir Spes

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Spes has an original phlamoulon (triangular battle standard) from the 4th cohort of the II Legion (Sheepshead Rangers), who were slain to a man in Adrienic's ill-fated expedition versus the troll thegn (7-76); the phlamoulon is worth 10,000 gp to a current officer in the Imperial infantry. She also has a collection of helmets mounted on the wall, including a ratty beastman helmet, several archontean legionary helmets, a fine varumani helmet, and an ornate helmet from the Knights of the Azure Shield (see AK-1). All her bedclothes are in a particular shade of sky blue, and a worn, sky blue carpet sits on the floor. Atop her desk are three glass flasks sealed with corks. Each has a different heqeti slime (see new monsters) in it. These are: 1) purple, oily, fast-creeping spore-thrasher; 2) electric blue, gelatin-like, pseudopod-traveling, blocker; 3) blue-black, gluey, motile-in-liquid, mild mind-altering.

Inhabitants:

1. Spes is currently in the solar chapel (SL10A-24). See her stats at SL10A-24.
2. 1 purple, oily and thick heqeti slime (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 6; MV 10' creeping; HD 2; HP 14; #AT 1; Dmg special; MR 15%. Special attacks: spores kill in 3-18 days. Special defenses: healed by electricity or lasers; slowed by cold.
3. 1 electric blue, gelatin-like heqeti slime (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 6; MV 20' pseudopod; HD 2; HP 11; #AT 1; Dmg special; MR 15%. Special attacks: forms impenetrable seal over a 2' area (possibly nose and mouth). Special defenses: healed by electricity or lasers; slowed by cold.
4. 1 blue-black, gluey heqeti slime (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 6; MV 20' on liquids; HD 2; HP 12; #AT 1; Dmg special; MR 15%. Special attacks: hallucinations for 7-12 hours. Special defenses: healed by electricity or lasers; slowed by cold.

SL10B-18: Chamber of Sir Larel

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Larel has a collection of simple, but effective joke toys: a glass eyeball whose pupil pops out; a fart bag made of animal bladders; a 'giant' black widow spider (8" across) made of metal, fabric, and glass; and a pair of mummified human fingers. He has deluxe personal copies of the Tales of Larel One-Eye and the Song of Jacinth the Rose (see Arden Vul books). Larel also has a wooden specimen box with 24 compartments, each carefully labelled and holding a dried specimen of exotic mushroom (including each of those in the new flora appendix). Finally, Larel has also begun a sketchbook featuring chasm cephalopods, including several exploded views of their anatomy, complete with annotations showing features and abilities. Anyone spending an hour with his notes will have a good understanding of them and will gain a permanent +1 to hit versus chasm cephalopods. The sketchbook also offers a theory on the origin of chasm cephalopods, suggesting they were released by 'the travelers from the Beacon.'

Inhabitants: Sir Larel is currently in the library (SL10A-22). See his stats at that location.

SL10B-19: Chamber of Sir Hegemon

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: Hegemon is interested in domination and oppression, both in an academic and in a practical way. She is the only current knights who harbors some (secret) religious belief, primarily in solar deities. She has two rare artifacts of the insane emperor Arthuinus the Mighty, who is remembered for oppression of the Archontean nobility: a gold fibula with the head of Arthuinus (750 gp), and a baculus in ivory with silver tips (500 gp). She has also penned a short treatise entitled, The Manipulation of Lesser Peoples, or My Time Among the Beastmen, which describes ways of using fear, love, and intimidation to produce desired outcomes. Nailed to the wall is a glass-fronted wooden cabinet containing an early copy of the Compact of Ennius (2,500 gp; see World of Archontos appendix). On her desk are a variety of artifacts from the cult of Horus, including a silver holy symbol (10 gp), a golden ankh clutched in the talons of a hawk (150 gp), and a cryptic note inscribed on a bronze plaque suggesting that the priesthood of Horus will return once their lord has woken from his slumber.

Inhabitants:

Sir Hegemon is either in her chamber (50%) or in the solar (50% - see SL10A-21). For her stats, see SL10A-21.

SL10B-20: Chamber of Sir Hazel

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: The reverse of the door to Hazel's chamber has a dart-board on which has been pinned a crude painting of the face of Sir

Ennius. Hazel has a beautiful matched pair of dueling rapiers with camel-skin grips and blades incised with Khumus picture-runes (1,500 gp for the pair). He has hung a silk banner over his bed on which is an insipid motivational phrase (“Fight Some of the Bad Days to Earn Some of the Good Days”), albeit in a beautiful formal Archontean calligraphic style. He has the tips of four stalactites on his desk, ranging in size from 6” to 2’ and in hue from pure white to creamy yellow in color. A drawer of his desk contains a set of wooden racks containing a fine example of a silver penny from each of the last 117 imperial reigns (worth 50 gp as a collection). Tossed on his bed is the scurrilous ancient tract, Elves are the Enemy, by Holger of Archontos.

Inhabitants:

Sir Hazel is currently in the raining pit (SL10A-19). For his stats, see that location.

SL10B-21: Chamber of Sir Philautia

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall ‘gothic’ chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot. There are six large mirrors on the walls of her chamber.

Specific: A speaker’s rostrum adds clutter to the furnishings. Under her bed are sixteen pairs of shoes in a variety of unusual styles, ranging from platform shoes to thigh boots to jester-style pointed shoes that tie to the knee (eleven valued at 5-30 gp each, five valued at 20-200 gp each). The rostrum holds notes about proper speaking habits. Atop the desk are several Sortian artifacts, including a Sortian baculus and a complete set of Sortian eyes, as well as two cones of incense of attraction (see new magic items for all). Inside the chest, along with her clothing, are three valuable tomes: the Canticle of Arcane Knowledge, the Codex Priscii, and the Gesta Isadorae (see Arden Vul books).

Inhabitants:

Sir Philautia is currently on duty in the knights’ hall (SL10B-2). For her stats, see that location.

SL10B-22: Chamber of Sir Ennius

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall ‘gothic’ chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: As the oldest, most feared, and most respected of the knights, Ennius has acquired a fair amount of stuff: a werewolf pelt (75 gp); a white panther pelt (50 gp); a taxidermied elephant head (40 gp); a set of six pieces of ironwood smoothed into abstract shapes (10 gp for the set); a human skull marked up with phrenological symbols and sectors (25 gp); a varumani skull marked similarly with phrenological symbols (30 gp); a bronze starburst medal with the name “Sir Second” inscribed on the reverse; a laquered recurved bow in the Khumus style (see World of Archontos appendix) (75 gp); a chipped orange plastic chalice with twelve glyphs inscribed on it (the original oath-chalice of the Harmonious Brotherhood – see SL10A-32) (25 gp); a set of six stoppered glass vials, each with a different sample of blood (labeled human, varumani, elf, goblin, beastman, vampire); a beautiful ceremonial belt in leather, gold and silver, with the name “Ennius” picked out in small topazes (3,300 gp); and a mace +3 that she has nicknamed “Ender of Arguments”.

She possesses three codices, namely My Ancestors, by Pellador Half-Elven; the rare tome, A True Account of the Embassy of Gilleshorn Ellagelsson to Archontos; and the treatise Great Vampire Lords and their Demise, by Usuon of Agoreon (see Arden Vul books). Her spell book is also found among her possessions.

Although a potent magic user, Ennius does not offer her services as a caster to her fellow knights very often, as she (correctly) considers this to be the preserve of Ricchar Wither-Hand (SL10B-26).

Inhabitants:

Sir Ennius is present within the complex, either here (60%) or in the solar (SL10A-21) (40%). For her stats, see SL10A-21.

Sir Ennius’s Spell Book: Burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, erase, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, message, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, floating disk; continual light, darkness 15’ radius, detect invisibility, forget, invisibility, knock, levitate, pyrotechnics, scare, strength, web, wizard lock; dispel magic, fireball, hold person, phantasmal force, slow, suggestion, tongues; charm monster, dimension door, fire shield, ice storm, polymorph other, remove curse, wall of ice; conjure elemental, cone of cold, hold monster, stone shape, transmute rock to mud.

SL10B-23: Chamber of Sir Vambrace

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall ‘gothic’ chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot.

Specific: As Vambrace is obsessed with unusual armor, the walls of his chamber have some interesting pieces mounted on it: a Norman-style helm sized for a giant (60 gp); a shield with the markings of the Knights of the Azure Shield (10 gp – see AK-1); a pair of red greaves from a set of Set armor (10 gp each – see Arden Vul items); a breastplate designed for a female warrior, but made of copper (45 gp); and two gauntlets from a suit of imperial field plate (see Arden Vul items). Atop his desk are three glass vials with rock dust of different colors (yellow-ish, dark grey, and rust) and a copy of Planar Dwellers and their Powers, by Nominus Obscurus (see Arden Vul books).

Inhabitants:

Sir Vambrace is currently on duty in the knights’ hall (SL10B-2). For his stats, see that location.

SL10B-24: Rear Door and Portcullis

An iron portcullis separates the citadel from the bridge to the Sanctum (see SL10A-15). The portcullis is heavy and slides into holes in the floor. Its weight makes attempting a lift gates more difficult (-5% to such rolls). The inner door is solid oak bound with iron; it is barred from the inside (the citadel side). The winch for the portcullis is found in the hallway to the south of the inner door.

SL10B-25: Spare Chamber

General: The fourth and fifth floors of the citadel hold the chambers of the individual knights. Each chamber has the same furnishings in heavy oak: a bed, a wardrobe, an armor and weapons rack, a tall 'gothic' chair, a one-drawer desk, and a locked chest. The basic contents are also similar: each has linen sheets, a pair of towels, linen underclothes, wool hose, two linen and one silk tunic, leather slippers, a stock of parchment and ink, and a ceramic chamber pot. This chamber is currently unoccupied.

SL10B-26: Ricchar Wither-Hand

The resident magic user of the citadel, Ricchar Wither-Hand, dwells in this large chamber with his apprentice, Jolene. The room is divided into thirds by two heavy floor-to-ceiling drapes. The western third is Ricchar's private area, while the eastern third is for storage and Jolene's cot. The center is where the pair work on magical experiments.

Ricchar's Private Area Ricchar has a heavy wooden bed piled high with comfortable silk sheets and pillows, plus a wardrobe, his 'thinking chair', and a chess table. Within the wardrobe is a fine selection of high quality fashionable clothing, only 20 years out of date (275 gp the lot). The chess pieces are solid copper and worth 55 gp. His spell book is always by the table.

Storage and Jolene's Cot The eastern end of the chamber holds a variety of magical supplies in floor-to-ceiling shelving. There's a 75% chance that any material component for standard spells may be found here within 1-3 turns of searching. The entire lot of components is worth 15,000 gp. In addition, the shelves hold 400 sp worth of silver thread; twenty bloodstones (50 gp each); thirteen vials of oil; and two flasks of holy water. The GM may wish to further specify individual items. At the far side, against the outer wall of the keep, is a built-in cupboard that serves as Jolene's bed. In the drawers beneath the bed proper she has collected some personal items, including a pair of platinum earrings (325 gp), a greater salt lamp of protection, a potion of truthfulness and a potion of singing birds (see new magic items for all).

Central Area: Against the back wall are numerous bulls-eye targets, all scorched with energy blasts. Two manikins made of cloth also show signs of charring. A third figure is a flesh golem, nicknamed Speedy, who is tasked with protecting this area. Work tables flank the entrance, one with an alchemical apparatus and the other with general magic user gear. The laboratory materials are worth 10,000 gp. On the general bench is a wand of conjuration that Ricchar has recently recharged (100 charges). Hanging from the ceiling are the cleaned skeletons of a human, a heqeti hopper, and a rudishva.

GM Notes: The knights always have a resident wizard to help protect the keep and assist them with magical needs. The process of selecting a suitable apprentice to the current magician is a rigorous one, as temperament is as important as magical talent – for the wizards rarely leave the keep and must then be content with a relatively circumscribed life. The current wizard, Ricchar, is a spry Wiskin in his late 60s; he has lived in the Keep since he was 15 and is entirely content with his life. He is not an innovator, being content to perfect his techniques and live a good life rather than develop new spells. His nickname, "Wither-Hand", is the product of an accident that renders one hand charred and blackened (although still capable of grasping wands). The current apprentice, Jolene, is a 32-year old female who is chafing a bit at her subordinate role. While loyal to the knights, she would like to see Ricchar retire (or even die) so that she could implement some greater magic innovation, including new spells and new items.

Ricchar knows of Sir Ennius's training, and the two are close allies. Despite Ennius's skill at magic, Ricchar is the designated 'court wizard', and he is the one to whom the rest of the knights turn when in need of magical consultation.

Inhabitants:

1. Ricchar Wither-Hand, 14th-level male Wiskin magic user: SZ M; AL LN; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 14; HP 34; #AT 1; Dmg 3-6 (dagger +2) or 3-8 (staff of power); MR 5%. Abilities: STR 9, INT 18, WIS 15, DEX 12, CON 11, CHA 8. Possessions: dagger +2; robe of the archmagi (grey); wand of lightning (75 charges); staff of power (22 charges). Spells memorized: burning hands, charm person, jump, magic missile, shocking grasp; audible glamer, ESP, mirror image, stinking cloud, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball, haste, monster summoning I; confusion, fear, polymorph other, wall of fire; cloudkill, conjure elemental, feeblemind, teleport; death spell, monster summoning IV; monster summoning V.

- Jolene the apprentice, 7th-level female Archontean magic user: SZ M; AL LE; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 7; HP 20; #AT 1; Dmg 4-7 (sling +1 with bullets +1). Abilities: STR 11, INT 17, WIS 16, DEX 16, CON 8, CHA 9. Possessions: sling +1 and 20 bullets +1. wand of cold (80 charges); ring of protection +2; Memorized spells: dancing lights, friends, magic missile, shield; continual light, levitate, web; fireball, fly; ice storm.
- Speedy, flesh golem: SZ L; AL N; AC 9; MV 80'; HD 9, HP 40; #AT 2; Dmg 2-16/2-16. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to most spells, although fire and cold spells slow them.

Treasure:
See text.

Ricchar's Spell Book: Armor, burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, dancing lights, detect magic, enlarge, erase, feather fall, friends, hold portal, identify, jump, light, magic missile, message, protection from evil, push, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant, write; audible glamer, continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, detect invisibility, ESP, forget, invisibility, knock, locate object, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, scare, stinking cloud, strength, web; blink, clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball, fly, haste, hold person, lightning bolt, monster summoning, I slow, suggestion, tongues; charm monster, confusion, extension I, fear, fumble, polymorph other, polymorph self, remove curse, wall of fire, wizard eye; cloudkill, conjure elemental, contact other plane, distance distortion, feeblemind, monster summoning III, stone shape, teleport, wall of force; anti-magic shell, death spell, enchant an item, extension III, forceful hand, legend lore, monster summoning IV, reincarnation; Kentillian's abyssal ice (see new spells), mass invisibility, monster summoning V, power word, stun.

Jolene's Spell Book: Alarm, charm person, dancing lights, detect magic, feather fall, friends, hold portal, identify, jump, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb; continual light, detect evil, detect invisibility, invisibility, levitate, magic mouth, rope trick, scare, strength, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball, fly, hold person, invisibility 10' radius, lightning bolt; dig, dimension door, ice storm, magic mirror, plant growth.

SL10B-27: Varlets' Chamber

General Information: Eight of the knights' varlets call this chamber home. Each varlet possesses a comfortable bed and locked chest. The beds are separated from each other by hanging drapes, such that the chamber has a narrow central 'corridor' flanked on all sides by drapery-enclosed closets. The varlets typically have little in the way of valuables beyond what they carry on their persons. Each chest thus contains mostly clothing, plus 5-100 gp and 10-

200 sp. For each chest there is a 5% chance of a piece of jewelry worth 400-2,400 gp.

The varlets are chosen from postulants who voluntarily seek admission to the order or who are identified by the knights as likely subjects. The knights prefer to take varlets as adolescents, although this has proven harder to accomplish since the Archontean withdrawal from Arden Vul. For a long time only humans and demi-humans were taken as varlets, but recently the first beastman has passed the tests. Some of the knights predict that a goblin varlet will be next. Varlets train alongside a specific knight, both serving that knight but also learning from him/her. They are assigned a name by their knight. When their knight dies or 'joins the master' (see SL10A-32), the varlet takes his/her place as a knight, adopting a new name and, quickly, searching for his/her own varlet. It is customary for a knight to be served by a single varlet, although for complex reasons Sir Sixth has recently had two.

Specifics: The current residents of this chamber are listed in the following table, along with the current location of each varlet. Only one of the varlets is currently present in this chamber at the moment, asleep in his cubicle.

Varlet	Master	Location
Lump (M)	Sir Calculator	SL10B-6
Beuvon (M)	Sir Prudence	7-75/7-76A
Jaxen (M)	Sir Sixth	Dead; body at 6-39
Georgios (M)	Sir Sixth	Dead; body at 6-39
Rorgo (M)	Sir Discord	8-116
Jacinth (M)	Sir Larel	SL10B-27
Hogier (M)	Sir Philautia	SL10B-2
Boniface (M)	Sir Vambrace	SL10B-2

Inhabitants:

- Jacinth, varlet to Sir Larel (SL10A-22), 6th-level male Archontean fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 62; #AT 1; Dmg 4-11 (long sword +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 17, INT 15, WIS 10, DEX 11, CON 17, CHA 13. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; long sword +2; short bow with 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.

SL10B-28: Varlets' Solar

The varlets have been granted this open area north of the staircase for their own. It contains nine leather chairs in varying states of disrepair, three game tables, two kegs of Hak's ale (see 7-94), and a sideboard with heavy, leaded glassware.

To the north are a set of murder holes that overlook SL10B-24; these are identical to those at SL10B-12.

Inhabitants:

- Veracity, varlet to Sir Mendacity (7-81), 6th-level female Wiskin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 55; #AT 1; Dmg 5-8 (war hammer +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 16, INT 11, WIS 15, DEX 16, CON 15, CHA 11. Possessions: chain mail +2; medium shield; war hammer +2; short bow with 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.
- Mollop, varlet to Sir Hegemon (SL10B-19), 6th-level female Thorcin fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 1; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 43;

#AT 1; Dmg 3-9 (spear +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 16, INT 10, WIS 10, DEX 15, CON 15, CHA 15. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; spear +2; short bow with 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.

Treasure:

One set of draughts on a game table is made of silver (10 gp).

SL10B-29: Varlets' Chamber

General Information: Eight of the knights' varlets call this chamber home. Each varlet possesses a comfortable bed and locked chest. The beds are separated from each other by hanging drapes, such that the chamber has a narrow central 'corridor' flanked on all sides by drapery-enclosed closets. The varlets typically have little in the way of valuables beyond what they carry on their persons. Each chest thus contains mostly clothing, plus 5-100 gp and 10-200 sp. For each chest there is a 5% chance of a piece of jewelry worth 400-2,400 gp.

The varlets are chosen from postulants who voluntarily seek admission to the order or who are identified by the knights as likely subjects. The knights prefer to take varlets as adolescents, although this has proven harder to accomplish since the Archontean withdrawal from Arden Vul. For a long time only humans and demi-humans were taken as varlets, but recently the first beastman has passed the tests. Some of the knights predict that a goblin varlet will be next. Varlets train alongside a specific knight, both serving that knight but also learning from him/her. They are assigned a name by their knight. When their knight dies or 'joins the master' (see SL10A-32), the varlet takes his/her place as a knight, adopting a new name and, quickly, searching for his/her own varlet. It is customary for a knight to be served by a single varlet, although for complex reasons Sir Sixth has recently had two.

Specific: Only seven of the cubicles are currently occupied. Their owners are listed in the following table, along with the current location of each varlet who resides here. Of the seven, only one is resting at the moment.

Varlet	Master	Location
Balthild (F)	Sir Simonet	SL10A-18
Veracity (F)	Sir Mendacity	SL10B-28
Huguette (F)	Sir Sorrow	SL4-19
Charity (M)	Sir Spes	SL10A-22
Sycadora (F)	Sir Ennius	SL10B-29
Mollop (F)	Sir Hegemon	SL10B-28
Guillemin (F)	Sir Hazel	SL10A-18

Inhabitants:

1. Sycadora, varlet to Sir Ennius, 6th-level female half-elf fighter: SZ M; AL LN; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 59; #AT 1; Dmg 6-13 (long sword +2) or 2-7 (short bow with arrows +1). Abilities: STR 18/21, INT 10, WIS 15, DEX 11, CON 16, CHA 11. Possessions: chain mail +2 and medium shield; long sword +2; short bow and 20 arrows +1; 2 potions of heroism.

SL10B-30: Chapter House

This chamber, which occupies the entire seventh floor of the keep, is the formal center of the order of the Sun-Scarred Knights, for it is where the entire order meets on a semi-regular basis to conduct business, approve new postulants, and anoint new knights. The focal points of the chamber are the Knights' font, the Master's seat, and a large silver mirror, all of which proceed in a line from the staircase to the south wall. The Master's seat is set on a semi-circular dais of wood that rises 3' above the floor; two similar daises abut the east and west walls. The seats of the knights are in four rows flanking the fonts; two rows are on the daises, allowing their occupants to see over the first row of seats. The varlets' simple benches are diagonally placed in the northwest and northeast corners of the chambers. The room is lit by four solid gold floor-standing candelabra (250 gp each) on each of which has been cast continual light.

Two 3"-diameter holes are drilled through the north wall. On occasions of extreme danger for the sept, Master Malachite (SL10A-32) uses the holes to enter the Chapter House in gaseous form. He then dons the spare suit of gothic armor and takes up a set of knights' weapons, all of which hang on racks standing against the north wall.

The Knights' Font: A giant oyster shell (4' in diameter) is mounted atop a marble pedestal. The font is filled with a pink, viscous liquid. A copper ladle is attached to the shell by a silver chain. The pinkish liquid is Master Malachite's special formulation, known to the knights as the draught of fidelity (see new magic items). The draught is, in fact, a magical potion that conveys longevity on the drinker while making him/her more susceptible to suggestion and charm person (-4 to saves versus each). The entire chapter drinks from the basin whenever it convenes.

The Master's Seat and Mirror: The seat of Malachite, master of the order, is an impressive gothic affair carved out of a single block of oak. The back is 7' tall, and the sides are 5' tall. Carved on each side is the same scene: seven tall bipeds with small horns dressed in elaborate armor, standing together around a basin. GM: these are the original seven rudishva members of the Sun-Scarred Knights.

Mounted on the wall above the master's chair is a sheet of polished silver that serves as a mirror of sorts. As the mirror is mounted in an oak frame, it is quite heavy (60 lb) and fairly valuable (175 gp).

The Knights' Seats: Four rows of cell-like seats flank the Master's seat. Two rows are set on 3'-tall daises that abut the east and west walls. Each row of seats is made of oak and stands about 5' tall. Individual seats in a row have back rests, arm rests, and cubbies underneath the seat proper. Most of the cubbies are empty. Two, however, have objects: one holds a small sack with three apples; a second holds a purse with 479 sp; and a third has a leather pouch with a collection of polished teeth from a wide variety of races (79 teeth, worth 45 gp)

Treasure:

4 golden candelabra (250 gp each); 20 doses of the draught of fidelity (see new magic items); a polished silver mirror (175 gp); a purse with 479 sp; a set of polished teeth (45 gp). On racks against the north wall: a broadsword +3; a suit of gothic armor and a sun lance (see new technological items for both); and circlet of command (see new magic items).

SUB-LEVEL 11: THE TOMB OF ISADORA

This small sub-level hides the deepest secrets concerning the Sortians, including those concerning Priscus Pulcher, Priscus's relationship with the mysterious Isadora, and the very nature of Isadora. "Isadora" was actually Yasidoranicil, an ancient, huge gold dragon who spent most of her time in human form. Isadora passed for decades as an Archontean noblewoman (or her daughter, or grand-daughter) of exceptional beauty, with gold eyes, waist-length raven hair, and surpassing taste. Her villa outside the walls of Arden Vul was a hub of social and intellectual activity during the final years of the city's greatness. Of course, Isadora's true nature was known only to a tiny circle of Priscus's closest Sortian friends and allies .

The core of the sub-level is a 150'-tall octagonal chamber (SL11-12) located deep beneath the cellars of Isadora's extramural villa. This sanctum was designed by Isadora as a private retreat for herself and a handful of her friends (increasingly this meant only Priscus Pulcher). It also came to be the site where she chose to conceal her substantial hoard of treasure. Eventually, as she foresaw the inevitable destruction wrought by the War of the Sortians and Theosophs (see World of Archontos appendix) and the demise of her lover Priscus, she also chose this site as the place where she, too, would end her days. After Priscus surrendered himself to the imperial authorities in Narsoleon for trial, torture, and execution, she recovered his battered remains and brought them here (SL11-24). When the vengeance of the Sortians and their magical allies fell upon Arden Vul, she retreated in sorrow to her sanctum and 'took to the stone' (i.e., she slowly died, and reverted to the mineral state closest to her nature – gold).

Isadora's sanctum and eventual tomb was extremely well-hidden. She naturally chose to hide herself and her lover's relics directly under the nose of their fiercest enemies, that is, close beside the subterranean complexes built by the great temples that had so opposed the work of Priscus and the other Sortians. She accomplished this task with the complicity of several Sortian sympathizers highly-placed in the hierarchies of the temples of Thoth, Set and Horus, and through the expenditure of considerable magical energy. To protect the site, Isadora and her architects limited the number of routes by which the complex could be accessed to two and ensured that one of the two access routes was protected with numerous traps (areas SL11-2 to SL11-11). The result is a complex that has been almost completely hidden for more than 1,200 years, a complex that contains substantial treasures but deadly dangers.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Archontean areas: all areas are Archontean

MAGICAL RESTRICTIONS

The crystal cavern (SL11-12) and its neighboring chambers (SL11-13 to SL11-24) are protected by a permanent zone of anti-scraying and anti-summoning magic. Isadora called in favors from her Sortian friends to accomplish this impressive feat, hoping thereby to add a layer of protection to her chosen sanctum. The effect means that clairaudience, clairvoyance, divination, commune, all monster summoning spells, gate, and any other similar spells or magical effects (including from magical items and innate abilities) are ineffective in these areas.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Surface: stairs at SL11-18, leading up to AV-20

To Level 2: corridor at SL11-1, leading to 2-50

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

There are no random encounters in this sub-level.

LEVEL KEY

SL11-1: Corridor to Level 2 (2-50)

This corridor runs some 150' to the west before climbing 50' of stairs to connect to the door at area 2-50. The corridor is coated with a thin layer of dust; no footprints disturb it.

SL11-2: Hall of Foreboding

This octagonal hall is a good 20' tall and covered in a thin layer of dust. It is dominated by a 13'-tall, basalt statue standing on a 2' plinth. The statue faces west and depicts a helmeted archon with both arms outstretched and palms raised (indicating 'stop'). The statue's clothing and equipment is brightly polychromed in blues, greens, and yellows. A garrulous mouth spell (see new spells) has been cast on the statue (12 remaining iterations): those approaching from the west hear the statue say, in Mithric, "Woe! Dread! Retreat! You are not welcome!" The spell repeats this three times per iteration.

The wrists of the statue rotate on a pin, allowing the fingers of the palm to face south, face upwards (the default position), or face north. In addition, the eyes of the statue may be depressed (as buttons). These features are only apparent to those who closely search the statue.

The chamber has three secret doors, each of which may be detected normally. When the statue is manipulated properly, a mechanism retracts three iron bars that slide from the wall into the stone of each side of each secret door. These mechanical precautions mean that knock and other magical means of opening (chimes of opening) do not function here. While the doors can be broken down, they are quite sturdy (defensive point value of 12).

Secret Door (north): The stone door is normal to find. It resists every effort (short of destruction) to open it until both of the statues' wrists are twisted so that the fingers are pointing to the north.

Secret Door (south): The stone door is normal to find. It resists every effort (short of destruction) to open it until both of the statues' wrists are twisted so that the fingers are pointing to the south.

Secret Door (east): The stone door is normal to discover. It can only be opened by depressing both of the eyeballs on the statue; doing so causes the door to click open.

SL11-3: Secret Passage

This 5'-wide corridor twists around three corners before ending at a one-way door leading into SL11-4.

Thirteen letters, each 2' tall, are inset into the floor in blue lapis (20 gp per letter). The letters are sequential, starting with 'D' closest to SL11-2 and ending with 'Y' near SL11-4: D-E-N-R-A-W-E-R-E-W-O-U-Y. Of course, if one reverses the letters (or reads them from south to north) they say "You were warned" in Mithric.

One-Way Door: The stone door to SL11-4 appears normal from this side: a handle is turned, releasing an inner bar and opening the door. The door shuts automatically one turn after being opened (unless it is spiked open, of course) and the inner bar slides back into place. Once shut, it is invisible from SL11-4. It cannot be opened by a knock spell due the inner bar.

SL11-4: Trap: Endless Corridors

This area is nothing more than a nasty trap designed to prevent tomb robbers from locating the sanctum of Isadora (areas SL11-19 to SL11-24). Reminder: the door from SL11-3 is a one-way door, and is invisible from this side once it closes.

The area is defined by four 50'-long corridors, each ending in a normal-appearing wooden door. The doors are magical teleportation devices, however. Opening any door instantly teleports all within 20' to the analogous section of corridor in front of the diametrically opposite door. So, those facing door A are teleported to a point just inside door B; those facing door C are teleported to a point just inside door D; and so forth. At least initially, those teleported may well believe that they have merely entered a new section of similar corridors and doors. It may take some experimentation to realize that the party is being teleported within the same limited complex.

Unfortunately there is no easy escape from this deadly trap. Unless parties possess powerful transportation magic (teleport, passwall, wish, etc.) those trapped here are likely to die of thirst.

SL11-5: Long Natural Tunnel

After 20' of worked stairs, this corridor transforms into a long, 6'-tall, unworked tunnel that twists and turns, climbing up and down over small lumps of harder rock, for 150'. Eventually it connects to a short section of worked stone stairs that descend 20' to the Hall of Guardians (SL11-6).

SL11-6: Hall of Guardians

This 20'-tall hall has two balconies on either end that lead down short (5') staircases to the main floor. Two imposing rows of 8'-tall stone statues flank the central path through the hall. A heavy iron portcullis blocks egress or ingress on the eastern side of the hall.

The statues are inert until the exact center of the hall is reached, at which point they animate and seek to destroy intruders. The animated statues can be avoided in two ways: by flying through the chamber (thus never touching the center of the hall) or by displaying a sapphire Sortian eye (see new magic items). Each person crossing the hall must display an eye, however; possessing a single eye among multiple PCs will not prevent the animation of the statues.

Statues: All ten statues look identical. They depict a man of late middle age dressed in the formal toga of an archaic Archontean aristocrat. The man's face is lined and wrinkled, with crow's feet and thinly pursed lips. The left arm rests by his side, clutching a long scroll case, while the right is raised above his head with a clenched fist. The clenched fist is the standard gesture of anger in formal Archontean rhetoric. GM Note: Those familiar with Sortian iconography will realize instantly that the statues, like Sortian faces (see new magic items), are meant to depict the generic image of the Philosopher.

Despite appearing identical, the statues are slightly different once animated. Six are standard animated orators, while two are hasted, and two are 'shell' orators whose 'bodies' contain poison dust. The hasted orators move to attack 'those wearing robes', while the poison-filled orators attack 'those with armor' and the regular orators attack at will.

If combat lasts for five rounds in this hall, the portcullis separating the hall from area SL11-7 slides open, releasing the denizens of SL11-7, who join the combat immediately.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 Archontean animated constructs - animated orators (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; HD 7; HP 52, 50, 49, 47, 43, 39; #AT 1; Dmg 3-12. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells.
2. 2 hasted Archontean animated constructs - animated orators (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 7; HP 46, 42; #AT 2; Dmg 3-12/3-12. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells.
3. 2 'shell' versions of Archontean animated constructs - animated orators (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 12, 9; #AT 1; Dmg 3-12. Special attacks: poison cloud. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells.

SL11-7: Imperial Stone Guardians

A heavy iron portcullis blocks access from this chamber to area SL11-6.

Two imperial stone guardians (see new monsters) stand on either side of the door in the east wall. The stone guardians activate if combat endures for five rounds or longer in area SL11-6 or if the portcullis is raised or broken. The stone guardians pursue intruders into all areas of the sub-level that are accessible to them (they cannot easily fit into 5'-wide corridors, so SL11-3 is safe).

Secret Door (north): The door is normal to find. It can be opened merely by pushing the door panel inward.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 imperial stone guardians (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 8+3; HP 60, 60; #AT 2; Dmg 3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

SL11-8: Pit Trap and Chest

The corridor is empty save for a locked wooden chest at the far end. The corridor is, however, trapped. The chest contains a great pile of ancient silver pennies – 10,149, to be exact (see Arden Vul items). Mixed into the pennies are five cursed pennies (see new magic items).

Trap (pit): The pit is triggered by a pressure plate on the solid floor of the eastern part of the corridor (just before the chest). This means that it is safe to cross the pit from west to east until one steps off the pit lid on the eastern side; at that point the pit cover slams open, dropping those who fail to roll 4d6 under DEX into the pit. The pit is 40' deep (4-24 HP damage). The lid automatically closes after a turn.

Treasure:

See text.

SL11-9: Octagonal Chamber of Sorrow

The wooden door to this chamber from SL11-2 is locked and its key is long gone; it must be picked or destroyed.

The 15'-tall chamber has normal doors on three more of its eight walls. The four walls without doors are decorated with still-vibrant frescoes depicting Priscus Pulcher in various of his endeavors. In the center of the chamber is a 4'-tall circular basin filled with murky water.

Frescoes: The frescoes are a cycle designed to celebrate the main aspects of Priscus Pulcher's public life. In one he is lecturing to students; in a second he is presenting a petition to the emperor; in the third he is disputing with a group of figures wearing the distinctive orange robes and cylindrical hats of the priesthood of Thoth; and in the fourth and final he is standing next to an enormous gold dragon.

Doors: The three doors on the north, east and west walls are false doors. Each opens normally, but reveals only a shallow indentation on which hangs a mirror of life trapping. The person to open the door is thus confronted by the mirror and must save or be sucked into it; the GM should adjudicate whether others nearby also see their reflection in the mirror and must therefore also make a save.

Each mirror of life trapping is unoccupied. The east mirror has thirteen cells, the west mirror has eighteen cells, and the north mirror has fourteen cells. Isadora was the owner of the mirrors. The command word for them is the same: Pulcher.

Basin: Murky, still water fills the basin. It has no special properties, but is stale and unappetizing. The water, however, conceals a 4'-diameter secret panel on the floor of the basin. If opened, the panel reveals a 20'-deep hole that drops down to area SL11-10.

Secret Panel (basin): Only those carefully searching the water of the basin are likely to find the secret panel. Casual detection is thus difficult (1 in 8 chance). The panel is sealed with gum to prevent water from leaking through it. The panel must be pried from the floor of the basin to allow access to area SL11-10. Doing so is the equivalent of a lift bars roll so long as the basin is filled with water; should the water be drained, the panel can be pried loose by making an open doors check.

SL11-10: Long Natural Tunnel

This 5'-tall natural tunnel extends 150' from the hole under SL11-9 over numerous humps, bumps, and dips until it turns into a standard Archontean-worked corridor and climbs 20' of stairs towards SL11-11.

SL11-11: Hall of Confusion and Illusion

This large hall is 20' tall with a barrel-vaulted ceiling. The walls are covered with frescoes of dragons flying amid clouds. Three large statues stand in a row in the center of the chamber, each mounted on a 2' plinth. Two substantial sections of the floor are illusory, and cover pits that are 60' deep. Those approaching the statues who fail to notice the illusion will plunge into the pits, taking 6-36 HP damage. Five rounds after the first living being sets foot on the solid ground in the center of the hall, all three statues animate. The statues act as modified stone golems (see below); they attempt to use their special confusion attacks to disorient attackers and then push them into the pits that flank the central area. In addition to their usual vulnerabilities, the golems can be halted if their eyes are removed or destroyed. The golems are unable to leave the central portion of this chamber.

Statue (center): This 15'-tall statue carved of black basalt depicts Priscus Pulcher in the robes of a traditional Archontean wizard. He appears as an extremely handsome young man with close-cropped hair, a trim beard, a gentle smile, and laughing eyes. Unlike most depictions of Pulcher, this statue has eyes formed of huge sapphires (2,500 gp each)

Statue (north): This 12'-tall statue is white marble and depicts a human female with waist-length hair and a staff gripped in both hands. It depicts Isadora in human form (for more on Isadora, see SL11-19A). Her eyes are huge black opals with golden flecks (2,000 gp each).

Statue (south): This 12'-tall statue is carved of gold-flecked marble and depicts a sinuous dragon with lower body coiled and upper torso rising up to face the chamber. Its eyes are also huge black opals with golden flecks (2,000 gp each).

Inhabitants:

1. 3 modified stone golems: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 60'; HD 14; HP 60(x3); #AT 1; Dmg 3-24. Special attacks: confusion (instead of slow) once every other round. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to most magic.

SL11-12: Crystal Cavern

This entry provides a general overview and description of the cavern; it is used for first impressions of the space, for those inspecting the walls, and/or for those traveling up or down between the various components of the cavern (e.g., the floor at area SL11-19, the mid-level balconies at areas SL11-13 to SL11-16, and the secret chamber in the ceiling at area SL11-17).

An enormous cave rises some 110' above its sandy floor. Its walls and ceiling are studded with impressive columnar quartz formations. Although the cavern is dark, light introduced from any external source (torches, spells, etc.) causes an array of multicolored beams and projections to bounce crazily across the call. The cavern is silent.

The cavern can be accessed either from the western passages (via SL11-7 or SL11-11), or from above (via SL11-17). As a result, there are effectively three 'levels' to the chamber: the upper (area SL11-17), the middle (areas SL11-13 to SL11-16), and the floor (SL11-19). The upper area is 110' above the floor, while the balconies of the middle level are 70' above the floor.

Those entering from the western passages might notice an octagonal area of worked stone some 20' across in the center of the ceiling. Parties with light sources have a 2 in 6 chance of noticing this patch of stone, since it lacks the reflecting crystal columns that cover the rest of the walls; those relying on infravision have a 1 in 6 chance (of course, those flying around the cavern have a better chance to detect the worked stone). The patch of worked stone is, however, a permanent illusion that masks an aperture leading from the crystal cavern into the upper level (SL11-17).

Areas SL11-13 to SL11-16: Balconies with Statues

These four niches are located at a middle level of the crystal cavern (SL11-12), namely 70' above the floor. Each niche features worked stone and is connected to the other three via a 5'-wide ledge that hugs the walls of the cavern. Each niche also contains an exquisitely-carved, 8'-tall statue formed of marble (clothing) and ebony (flesh); each statue is worth 10,000 gp. Those who minutely examine the statues find that the head of each statue rests on a 1"-diameter iron pin set into the statue's body; a head may easily be rotated on its pin or even removed from its current pin. Each head weighs about 15 lbs.. All four statues detect of magic.

Puzzle: The clever may notice that when these areas are first accessed, the heads and bodies of the four statues have been mixed up, such that the wrong head sits atop the wrong body. Only close observation will make this fact apparent; the expression of the heads, the posture of the bodies, and the Mithric inscriptions on the plinths are the clues necessary to determine, firstly, that a given body hosts an incorrect head, and, secondly, which head ought to be restored to which body. Correctly restoring the proper head to its proper body is the only way to unlock the mechanism at SL11-19A allowing access to the hidden sanctum of Isadora (SL11-24).

The following chart identifies each statue and the current location of its proper head:

Name	Body	Head
Livia Cuspianus the Lictor (F)	SL11-13	SL11-16
Hortensius Greywand (M)	SL11-14	SL11-15
Macrinus Furiosus (M)	SL11-15	SL11-13
Placida Gorgitrex, the Judge (F)	SL11-16	SL11-14

When any single head is returned to its proper body, an audible 'click' may be heard throughout the crystal cavern; at that point only dispel magic allows the head to be removed from its rightful body. After all four heads are correctly installed, a loud sigh is audible, as if gas under pressure has been released, and the mechanism at SL11-19A that leads to SL11-24 becomes operable.

SL11-13: North Balcony with Statue

See the general description of the four middle-level niches for details about the statue and its role in the puzzle at SL11-19A.

Statue's Body: The statue depicts a female human in the toga appropriate to members of the imperial bureaucracy. A set of sticks wrapped in cloth with a javelin protruding lies at her feet (the bundle comprises the fasces carried by lictors). Her pose reflects the classical Archontean rhetorical gesture for supplication: both hands raised neck-high and held slightly apart, with palms cupped towards each other. Only those characters with substantial education and/or knowledge of ancient history (or rhetoric) will instantly recognize this pose, although a roll of 5d6 under WIS might intuit that information.

Head: The face shows a rather severe looking man of advanced age with a roman nose and a scar running along his left cheek. His mouth is twisted in an expression of anger. GM Note: the head is that of Macrinus Furiosus (see SL11-15 for his body).

Inscription: The plinth reads in Mithric "Livia the Lictor, whose efforts to placate the implacable tyrants served as an inspiration to Priscus."

Clues to the Puzzle: The clues here are as follows: 1) Livia is a female name, and the head is clearly male; 2) the inscription and the torso's pose suggest that the proper face should reflect 'placation' or 'supplication', and not 'anger'. Livia's head may be found at SL11-16.

GM Note: Livia Cuspianus was one of the great Sortian heroes from the from the War between the Sortians and Theosophs (see World of Archontos appendix). She had been trained in the Order of Thoth (the sole school for magic users at the time), but was sympathetic to Priscus Pulcher's call for democratization of magical training. As an imperial official (lictor) she worked hard as a mediator between the discontented Sortians and the powerful, entrenched temples (the Theosophs).

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find, but no mechanism exists to open it from this side. It must be broken down.

SL11-14: East Balcony with Statue

See the general description of the four middle-level niches for details about the statue and its role in the puzzle at SL11-19A.

Statue's Body: The statue depicts a male magic user in the archaic formal attire of the ancient Order of Thoth (see World of Archontos appendix): starched, heavy robes, wooden clogs, with a staff leaning against his chest. His pose reflects the classical rhetorical gesture for approval or applause: hands held before him in 'clapping' mode. Only those with substantial education and/or knowledge of ancient history (or rhetoric) will instantly recognize this pose, although a roll of 5d6 under WIS might intuit that information.

Head: The head depicts a middle-aged woman wearing a striped hood to cover her hair [GM: the back of her toga pulled up over her head]. Her eyes show laugh-lines, but her mouth is set in a neutral line. GM: the head is that of Placida Gorgitrex, the Judge (for whose body see SL11-16).

Inscription: The inscription reads: in Mithric “Hortensius Greywand, third proctor of the Order of Thoth, who approved Pulcher’s ideas publicly and privately.”

Clues to the Puzzle: It should be clear that 1) the gender of the head and body do not match; 2) the inscription and posture of the body require a face that is marked by approval (e.g., smiling). Hortensius’s head may be found at SL11-15.

GM Note: Hortensius Greywand was one of the ruling council of the Order of Thoth at the time when Priscus Pulcher and the other radicals pressed for opening the study of magic to all those who showed the talent. Alone among the seven proctors, Hortensius signaled his approval of the Sortians’ plans; his support ensured that the Order would not unanimously move against the Sortians.

SL11-15: South Balcony with Statue

See the general description of the four middle-level niches for details about the statue and its role in the puzzle at SL11-19A.

Statue’s Body: The statue depicts a male magic user in the traveling attire appropriate to antiquity: puttees, breeches, a loose tunic, and a haversack slung diagonally across his chest. His left hand holds a wand close to his body, ready for action. His pose reflects the classical rhetorical gesture for threat or anger: right hand held up with clenched fist. Only those with substantial education and/or knowledge of ancient history (or rhetoric) will instantly recognize this pose, although a roll of 3d6 under WIS might intuit that information.

Head: The head depicts an older man wearing the starched, five-cornered hat of the proctors of the Order of Thoth. His eyes are crinkled with laughter, and his mouth is smiling and wide. GM: this is the head of Hortensius Greywand (for whose body see SL11-14).

Inscription: The plinth reads in Mithric “Macrinus Furiosus, whose ferocity brought low the Theosophs and forced them to negotiate.”

Clues to the Puzzle: 1) the distinctive starched headgear of the provosts of the Order of Thoth might still be recognizable to modern magic users (roll 4d6 under INT); at the very least its formality contrasts with the loose clothing of the body; 2) the inscription and posture of the body require a face that depicts equally strong, angry emotions. The head of Macrinus Furiosus may be found at SL11-13.

GM Note: Macrinus was a young companion of Priscus Pulcher who ended up as a leader of the hotheads among the Sortians. Eschewing Priscus’s attempts to obtain their ends through peaceful means, Macrinus and his friends engaged in hit-and-run attacks on prominent Theosophs. Eventually, thanks to their victory at the Battle of the Burning Sands, the temples and emperor finally agreed to a truce.

SL11-16: West Balcony with Statue

See the general description of the four middle-level niches for details about the statue and its role in the puzzle at SL11-19A.

Statue’s Body: The statue depicts a female figure dressed in the vertically striped toga of a krites [judge]. The sculptor has clearly indicated the stripes in the marble. Her pose reflects the classical Archontean rhetorical gesture for protection: both hands are extended, palms facing outward. Only those with substantial education and/or knowledge of ancient history (or rhetoric) will instantly recognize this pose, although a roll of 5d6 under WIS might intuit that information. Modern Archontean will have a much easier time recognizing the striped toga, as current kritai continue to wear it; such individuals who succeed at a roll of 4d6 under INT will also recall that kritai wear their toga as a hood when rendering decisions.

Head: The head depicts a young woman with a page-boy haircut. She possesses lively eyes, and her mouth is open, as if she is speaking. GM: this is the head of Livia the lictor (for whose body, see SL11-13).

Inscription: The plinth reads in Mithric: “Placida Gorgitrex, the wise and neutral judge, whose proper interpretation of the Ennian Code offered legal protection from proscription to the Sortians.”

Clues to the Puzzle: 1) the clothing of modern Archontean kritai (judges) is distinctive: judges wear a vertically-striped toga with its back pulled over the head in a hood. So clever viewers might recognize the stripes on this statue and recognize that a hooded head is necessary; 2) the inscription names Placida Gorgitrex as a judge and cites her neutrality, while the pose mentions protection; clever PCs might look for a head whose head implies legal calm, reason, and neutrality. The head of Placida Gorgitrex may be found at SL11-14.

GM Note: Placida Gorgitrex was a krites at the time when the conflict between the Theosophs and Sortians reached a head. When pressed to rule that the Sortians had broken the ancient Archontean legal code (The Ennian Code), she refused, noting that they were protected by their status as citizens. Privately she held Priscus and his friends in contempt, but as a judge she proved an important ally.

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find, but lacks a mechanism for opening it from this side. It must be destroyed to open it.

SL11-17: Cellar with Illusory Floor

Those accessing this area from SL11-18 see an octagonal chamber that resembles a storage cellar, as boxes and barrels line the walls. In what might be thought an anomaly for a cellar, however, the center of the chamber contains no clutter but instead features an impressive and detailed mosaic (20’ from side to side). The mosaic shows a man and a woman standing next to each other, surrounded by an inscription. The inscription reads in Mithric: “Priscus and Isadora stood together against adversity. Their eyes revealed more than would have been thought possible.” The mosaic is a trap.

Those entering the chamber from below, through the opening from SL11-12, obviously do not see the mosaic.

The boxes and barrels contain long-spoiled foodstuffs and beverages: grain, dried fruits, nuts, dried vegetables, wine, brandy, and so forth. It is possible to find a bag of silver dust (5 gp) and two moonstones (50 gp each) by rooting around in the smelly remains for 2-8 turns.

Trap (illusory floor): The mosaic is a permanent illusion that covers an open hole in the floor. The hole connects to the crystal cavern (SL11-12). Those standing on the 'mosaic' fall 110' to the floor of the cavern (SL11-19), taking 11-66 HP damage along the way. The GM should try to determine (without asking) whether those inspecting the mosaic are standing on it or beside it; this might be accomplished by a random roll. The inscription on the 'mosaic' is purposefully designed to entrap greedy tomb robbers by suggesting that manipulation of the eyes of the figures in the mosaic might produce some beneficial result; in fact it is meant to lure viewers onto the mosaic proper.

Secret Door (west): The door is normal to find from this side. It opens by inserting an appropriate object into a 1"-diameter hole set in the floor to the left of the door.

SL11-18: Spiral Staircase to the Ruined City (AV-20)

A set of rough, circular, granite stairs, with a rise to run ratio too large for human feet, climbs 150' to the basement of area AV-20.

Secret Door (east): The door is easy to find (1 in 4 chance) from this side, and opens by pulling the door inwards.

SL11-19: Floor of the Crystal Cavern

The floor level of the cavern takes the form of an octagonal chamber of worked stone. The smooth stonework extends 15' up the walls before transitioning into crystals. The floor is rough, and covered with a 3' layer of sand. Worked stone plinths rising 5' above the sand line the north and south walls, while the center of cavern is dominated by a 5'-tall plinth holding a glimmering, gilded life-sized statue of a huge, ancient gold dragon (see SL11-19A). The statue is 20' tall and is protected by a delicate semi-circular canopy of stone supported by four 25'-tall basalt columns (those falling from SL11-17 will bounce off the canopy and then onto the sandy floor to one side).

Four of the plinths are semi-circular, and contain statues. The other two plinths are trapezoidal and contain regular doors. The four statues on the plinths are Archontean animated constructs (orators – see new monsters). GM Note: the corridors that lead to SL11-22 and SL11-23 are covered by the same 3' of sand as the floor of the chamber.

A 15'-long, 8'-wide, and 7'-deep pit exists between the dragon statue (SL11-19A) and the doors to SL11-22. The pit has a wooden lid, but is covered by the sand floor of the chamber. Within the pit is a formidable iron golem that is tasked with defending the chambers of Isadora.

Touching the gilded statue of the dragon or attempting to open any of the four doors without the proper key causes all four constructs to animate, and causes the iron golem to wake from its rest. While the constructs move immediately into combat, the golem takes 2 rounds to batter and climb its way out of the pit.

Four corpses of tomb robbers lie in unnatural positions around the central statue. Their injuries and the state of their equipment indicate that they fell from a great height.

GM Note: The tomb robbers were tricked by the illusionary floor at SL11-17 and fell to their deaths.

Inhabitants:

- 1 iron golem: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 18; HP 80; #AT 1; Dmg 4-40. Special attacks: poison gas. Special defenses: +3 or better weapons to hit; immune to all magic except electricity, which slows it; healed by fire.
- 2 4 hasted Archontean animated constructs - animated orators (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 7; HP 48, 46, 42, 40; #AT 2; Dmg 3-12/3-12. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells.

Treasure:

In several purses, a total of 27 sp, 41 gp, 19 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), and 33 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); seven carnelians (50 gp each); a suit of chain mail +2, a wand of magic detection (29 charges), a scarlet & blue ion stone, a dagger of throwing +3, two coils of elven rope (see new magic items); two crowbars; a block and tackle; a copper statuette of a turtle (35 gp); and a treasure map of the GM's choice.

SL11-19A: Isadora the Gold Dragon

This gilded statue towers over the center of the crystal cavern. It depicts an ancient, huge, gold dragon, with its rear section coiled on the plinth and its fore parts rising up as if it is gazing across the cavern. If stretched out, the dragon would be 53' long with an 8'-diameter head. It sits on a plinth that rises 5' from the sandy floor; the plinth bears a lengthy inscription in Mithric. On the east side of the plinth is a flattened section of stone some 8' wide; it covers a hole leading to SL11-24.

What is unusual about the statue is that it appears to be coated with glittering, untarnished gold. In fact, it is solid gold, and weighs something like 100,000 lb. In terms of sheer value by weight, this is a treasure of immense value, worth in the neighborhood of 5 million gp. As an art object, moreover, the value would probably increase by 25%. Unfortunately, the gold is cursed. While breaking apart the statue does not trigger the curse, pocketing (or placing in a purse, backpack, etc.) even the smallest piece of gold puts the curse into effect. Reminder: touching the golden statue causes the golem and constructs at SL11-19 to animate.

Inscription: "Yasidoranicil, wiser counsellor to the wise mages, whose generosity supported the Sortians in their darkest hour. She loved Priscus with all her great heart, and bore away his earthly remains after his body had hung for three days above the Cemetery Gate in Narsileon."

Curse: The curse on Isadora's gold is twofold. First, the curse marks the victim as an enemy of dragonkind (regardless of alignment); no dragon will negotiate with the victim or treat the victim with mercy. Second, the victim ceases to be able to recognize gold. Instead of gold, the victim may see pyrite, brass, copper or yellow rocks. This includes pieces of Isadora herself, such that as soon as a piece is 'possessed', the possessor 'recognizes' that it is not, in fact, gold at all. These curses are so powerful that they may only be reversed by remove curse cast by a 15th-level caster or by the use of wish.

Puzzle and Secret Door (covering the hole to SL11-24): the plinth on which Isadora's 'body' sits covers a 4'-diameter hole leading down 30' to area SL11-24. The hole has hand- and foot-holds carved into the side to allow climbing up or down. The slab covering the hole detects as a secret door on only a 1 in 12 chance. Even if detected, the slab can only be slid aside when the puzzle involving the statues at areas SL11-13 to SL11-16 is solved. When the heads of those statues are returned to their proper bodies, an audible 'hiss' is heard, and part of the slab slides back an inch into the plinth. At this point, detection of the hole becomes easier (1 in 4 chance), although it may not be immediately apparent to those exchanging statue heads in the upper portions of the cavern. Once detected, the hole becomes accessible by pushing the recessed slab inward.

GM Note: The statue is literally Isadora, or Yasidoranicil, the gold dragon who became the lover of Priscus Pulcher and secret supporter of the Sortians during the War of the Sortians and Theosophs. In the world of Archontos (see World of Archontos appendix), ancient dragons that approach the end of their lives without suffering violent death may elect to transform themselves into a semblance of the material described by their sub-species. So, metallic dragons turn into the metal of their name (copper, gold, bronze, etc.), while chromatic dragons turn into stone of the appropriate color (red porphyry, white marble, black granite, etc.). In the world of Archontos it is also possible, albeit extremely difficult (requiring sages, wishes, and substantial questing), to 'wake' a dragon that has 'taken to the stone'. It is up to the GM to decide if this is appropriate to his/her own campaign.

After Priscus sacrificed himself to the imperial authorities in an effort to end the war, Yasidoranicil gathered up his broken and tortured body and bore it here, to her sanctum. Tired of life, she chose to 'take the stone' and became one with the metal that defined her dragon-type.

Treasure:

The body of Isadora is worth at least 5 million gp (but carries a strong curse).

SL11-20: North Storage Chamber

The door to this chamber is locked; the key is found in SL11-22. Attempting to open the door causes the constructs and golem at SL11-19 to animate to repel intruders.

The chamber is crammed with forty 4'-tall amphorae, each sealed with wax and containing approximately 6 gallons of contents. The amphorae contain the following: oil (x10), good wine (x5), table wine (x5), flour (x5), chickpeas (x5), (spoiled) fish paste (x5), and water (x5). The fish paste is spoiled and causes diarrhea for 2-5 days if ingested.

SL11-21: South Storage Chamber

The door to this chamber is locked; the key is found in SL11-22. Attempting to open the doors causes the constructs and golem at SL11-19 to animate to repel intruders.

The chamber contains: four rolled carpets, each measuring about 5'x8' and depicting scenes from the life of Priscus Pulcher (750 gp each); an ebony escritoire and matching stool (450 gp); six bronze braziers (3 gp each); two tripods of heating (see new magic items); a portable fire pit made of wrought iron (10 gp); a cithara made of ivory and ebony (functions as a cittern intrument of the bards; and three wooden settees covered in red leather (75 gp each).

SL11-22: Chamber of Isadora

The double doors leading to this chamber are stone and locked (the key may be found in SL11-24). Attempting to open the doors without the key causes the constructs and golem at SL11-19 to animate to repel intruders.

Two 8'-tall statues occupy triangular-shaped niches along the corridor. Unlike other statues in this sub-level they do not animate. One depicts Isadora as a beautiful woman of middle age with waist-length hair, black eyes, a wry smile, and holding a staff. The statue is a composite of materials: her face and hands are solid gold (3,500 gp), her eyes are jet (150 gp each), her hair is ebony, her robe is white marble, and her staff is oak. It could be sold for 10,000 gp. The other depicts Priscus Pulcher as a beautiful young man with close-cropped hair and trim beard; his arms are folded across his chest and he is smiling impishly. This statue is simpler, with flesh areas made of ebony and the rest made of white marble (7,000 gp for the statue).

The chamber is initially dark, but four hooded sconces on the walls contain pieces of amber enchanted with continuous light; when the hoods are lifted, they bring light to the chamber.

The chamber is sumptuously decorated. Seven large (8'x10') oriental carpets depicting gold dragons line the floor (300 gp each). A low, circular coffee table made of teak inset with chips of jet, azurite, and citrine (275 gp) sits at its center, surrounded by four red-silk covered settees (50 gp each), four small ebony tables (90 gp each), and four tripods of heating (see new magic items).

The north section of the chamber holds an armoire, a king-sized bed, and a dresser, all made of teak (175 gp for each piece of furniture). The bed is a four-poster, and still boasts yellow silk curtains that could be closed for privacy. The armoire holds four yellow silk kimonos embroidered with coiled dragons (45 gp each) and four pairs of yellow-silk slippers (10 gp each). Atop the dresser are four pieces of silver grooming utensils (40 gp for all four), plus three cameo rings showing a striking woman with long hair (125 gp each), and nine pieces of matched, exquisite gold and pearl jewelry (earrings, a choker, a necklace, three bracelets, two anklets, and a tiara – together worth 14,500 gp); within the dresser are various silk, linen, and cotton items of clothing (15 gp for the lot). The teak furniture might be disassembled by a clever person (roll 4d6 under DEX and another 4d6 under INT) for easier transport.

The west wall hosts a stand-up writing desk made of ivory (500 gp), plus an oak bookcase and an oak scroll case. The desk contains writing materials, plus the keys to SL11-20 and SL11-21. The scroll case holds a scroll of protection from magic, a scroll of protection from petrification, a scroll with blink and haste, a scroll with teleport and dimension door, a scroll with hold person and hold monster, and a scroll with monster summoning II and monster summoning III. The bookshelf contains only a few items: Isadora's spell book; A History of Dragonkind, by Yasidoranicil; The Intelligent User's Guide to the Mystical Properties of Gems, by Keladon the Strong; Irene Bellatrix: on the Wars of this Great Archon, by Egidius of Archontos; Green Are My Lover's Eyes, by Aelia of Perros; On the Wars of the Old Ones with the Trolls, by Clarius; Principles of Comedy, by Teracleon; The Thirty-Seven Quips of Balak the Sage.

To the south are four large stone bins filled with treasure, each about 4'x4'x4'. One contains 24,711 ancient copper bits (see Arden Vul items). A second holds 43,627 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items). The third holds 12,829 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items). The fourth holds forty-three gems, six potions and eighteen pieces of jewelry. The gems are worth a total of 21,500 gp, while the jewelry is worth 9,750 gp. The potions are: philter of love, elixir of life, and potions of longevity, diminution, and human control (x2).

Treasure:
See text.

Isadora's Spell Book: Charm person, light; invisibility, mirror image; fireball, haste; charm monster, polymorph other; feeblemind, hold monster; invisible stalker, stone to flesh.

SL11-23: Chamber of Priscus Pulcher

The double doors leading to this chamber are stone and locked (the key may be found in SL11-24). Attempting to open the doors without the key causes the constructs and golem at SL11-19 to animate to repel intruders.

The statues flanking the entrance hallway are made of carved basalt and depict a male and female Archontean aristocrat dressed in togas. Each figure has its arms held in front of its chests, with wrists bent and hands tucked into the opposite sleeve. The posture is that of 'indulging in leisure' as employed by classical Archontean orators. Each statue is worth 2,000 gp.

This chamber is set up as a mirror image of area SL11-22, although two features are immediately apparent. First, the furniture is of markedly lesser quality (oak, not teak). Second, the chamber feels more like a guest room than a proper dwelling place; the furniture is not marked by use and many containers are empty.

The central portion of the chamber contains a low table, four settees, four small tables, and two tripods of heating (see new magic). The oak furniture is difficult to disassemble, and worth only 150 gp in total.

To the north may be found a single bed, an armoire, and a dresser (75 gp in total for the furniture). The armoire holds three tunics, a toga, a pair of leather boots, and a pristine set of starched, formal robes marking the wearer as a magister in the Order of Thoth (100 gp). The dresser contains a handful of underclothes and dirty tunics. Atop it, however, are a pair of beautiful rings: one is platinum with an engraved amethyst in the form of a clean-shaven Archontean nobleman with droopy eyes and a roman nose, with the initials CP (Crispus Pulcher, Priscus's father); the other is a signet ring in gold, with the familiar visage of Priscus Pulcher himself (see SL11-11). The first ring is worth 650 gp as an artifact of the Pulcher family; the latter is potentially worth 1,500 gp to a collector of notorious Archontean miscellany.

The east side has a writing desk, a bookcase and a scroll case. All of these pieces of furniture are empty, however. To the south are four stone bins, each measuring 4'x4'x4'. All four bins are also empty.

Treasure:
Two rings of Priscus Pulcher (650 and 1,500 gp).

SL11-24: Treasure Chamber with the Remains of Priscus Pulcher

This chamber is accessed via a 5'-diameter hole that descends 30' from area SL11-19A. The hole has hand- and foot-holds carved into the north side.

The octagonal chamber is 12'-tall and boasts well-worked stonework. The floor sparkles, as it is completely covered with coins. Four semi-circular plinths hold 8'-tall statues. Between the statues are stone tables holding a variety of treasures.

Touching any of the treasures summons four invisible stalkers to defend Isadora's dearest possessions. Due to the carpet of loose coins, combat here is quite difficult: -2 to 'to hit' rolls and movement halved.

Statues: The statues are bronze, and depict Isadora in human form. In each she wears a long kimono and sports her famous waist-length hair. The four depict her as 1) a magic user, wielding a staff; 2) an orator, declaiming with outstretched right hand; 3) An Archontean bride, with half-veil and a bouquet of lilies; and 4) an empress, complete with olive wreath and a scepter of authority. Each statue is worth 5,000 gp.

Stone Table #1 (northeast): This table contains a remarkable find: the disaggregated skeleton of Priscus Pulcher himself, along with a rosewood box containing his hair. While not inherently valuable, these remains are of incalculable historical value, especially to the history of the empire and to the history of the collegia. It might also be possible to use them to contact the spirit of Priscus. The modern cult of the Priscians (see 9-60) would offer 50,000 gp for these remains.

Stone Table #2 (southeast): This table holds five items: a ring of three wishes (one wish remaining); a rod of beguiling; a brooch of shielding; slippers of spider climbing; a robe of eyes; and a staff of power (17 charges). These were Priscus Pulcher's favorite items, and were preserved by Isadora in his memory.

Stone Table #3 (southwest): Atop this table are six potions, two scrolls, two dozen pieces of jewelry, and the keys to areas SL11-22 and SL11-23. The jewelry is worth 27,000 gp. One scroll contains forcecage, limited wish, and astral spell; the other contains clone and symbol. The potions are explosive acid, deafening light, frost cage, greek fire, hostile levitation, and singing birds (see new magic items for all six).

Stone Table #4 (northwest): Eight large gems, two porcelain blackware vases (75 gp each), a 10"-tall mirror set in a silver frame (45 gp), and six cones of incense of attraction (see new magic items). The gems are two star rubies (1,000 gp each), two black opals (1,000 gp), and four black sapphires (5,000 gp each).

Inhabitants:

1. 4 invisible stalkers: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 64, 60, 55, 50; #AT 1; Dmg 4-16; MR 30%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-5. Special defenses: invisibility.

Treasure:

In addition to the substantial wealth listed above, the floor is covered with 9,384 large octagonal platinum coins, 7,843 ancient silver pennies, and 6,931 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items for all).

SUB-LEVEL 12: THE WORKSHOPS OF KERBOG KHAN

This small sub-level is home to one of the most powerful and enigmatic of the denizens of Arden Vul, the reclusive techno-sorcerer who calls himself Kerbog Khan. Originally an archmage and member of the Imperial Academy (see 'collegia' in the World of Archontos appendix), Kerbog Khan decamped to Arden Vul, where he discovered by chance an incalculable treasure: the un plundered medical pod of the Beacon (SL12-4). He established a small fortress-like compound next to the wreck, and spent decades plumbing its secrets.

Eventually he found himself able to combine his magical skills with technological knowledge gleaned from the wreckage; these resulted in his creation of a series of automatons, ranging in size and shape from small dragonflies to medium-sized bipeds. The Khan's true innovation came with his discovery of a process by which he can project his own consciousness into the automatons that he has created (provided the automatons carry a bit of his own blood). With the help of these automatons, the Khan has been exploring the Halls, plundering them selectively so as to further his interests in blood magic and automaton-creation. This process has also resulted in the Khan's gradual self-transformation as he has grafted plasteel, metal, microphones, and other devices to his own body, all in an effort to make the 'perfect combination of man and machine'.

The sub-level is based around a small lake, in which the lost medical pod of the Beacon rests. Kerbog Khan's sanctum lies just to the north of the lake. Within that sanctum the Khan practices blood magic and is continually tinkering with his automatons. The rare visitors who locate this area typically end up bargaining with Kerbog Khan through the infamous 'talking grill' (SL12-16). The Khan is fond of bargaining, as it provides him with another means of exploring and acquiring the objects he craves; of course, as he is fond of reminding petitioners, all bargains must be 'sealed in blood'. Due to his strange appearance, however, the Khan typically does not reveal himself to visitors; instead they hear only his strange, amplified voice, complete with its hisses, cracks, and metallic pops. Despite his strangeness and particular interests, the Khan remains an extremely powerful archmage; angering him is inadvisable, as he is a dangerous and intelligent opponent.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Rudishva areas: SL12-4 to SL12-12

Other areas: Kerbog Khan first delved areas SL12-16, SL12-17, SL12-19, SL12-20 to SL12-28 by magic; later he improved them with the aid of his automatons. These halls are plainly worked and finished stone, with 10' ceilings and stone doors.

IMPORTANT NPCs

Kerbog Khan, archmage and eccentric techno-sorcerer (SL12-25)

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Level 3: stairs at SL12-20, leading up to 3-22A

To Level 4: tunnel at SL12-13, leading up to 4-175A

To Level 5: watery tunnel at SL12-1, leading to 5-103

To Level 6: tunnel at SL12-13, leading down to 6-161A

To Level 8: corridor at SL12-21, leading down to 8-54

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

Only the following areas are subject to random encounters: SL12-1 to SL12-3, SL12-13, SL12-18 to SL12-21. Checks should be made every hour, with a 1 in 6 chance of an encounter. If an encounter is indicated, it will be with one of the Khan's automatons (see new monsters); roll on the following table to determine the type of automaton encountered.

D100	Type
1-40	1 basic dragonfly automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 240' flying (Class A); HD 1+2; HP 8; #AT 0 Dmg n.a.; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
41-55	1 poison dragonfly automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 240' flying (Class A); HD 1+2; HP 8; #AT 1; Dmg poison (death, or 1-3 turns paralyzation with 1-4 round slow on save); MR 25%. Special attacks: poison. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
56-80	1 basic exploration automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 150'; HD 4; HP 29; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-4; MR 40%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
81-90	1 bipedal exploration automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-6; MR 40%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
91-96	1 battle automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 0; MV 150'; HD 8; HP 60; #AT 4; Dmg special; MR 50%. Special attacks: laser (3-12 damage); blade (3-12 damage); poison injector (death, or 3-12 damage on save); flamethrower (3-18 damage in arc). Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.
97-98	One of the children automatons of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters), fleeing the Khan: SZ S; AL NG; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 1-2; MR 20%. Special defenses: immune to cold.
99-100	GM's choice, or a unique automaton of the GM's devising.

LEVEL KEY

SL12-1: Watery Tunnel to 5-103

This tunnel is about 15' in diameter and mostly filled with water (only 3' of clearance exists above the water line). It stretches 40' before joining the pool at 5-103.

SL12-2: Kerbog Khan's Pool

Much of this cave is filled with cold, clear water. The cave was formed by the impact of one of the Beacon's pods smashing into the mountainside; that pod is still present here, now almost entirely submerged (see SL12-4). The pool is 50' deep in most places, with another 25' of air between the surface and the cave ceiling (except in the ell labeled SL12-18, where the cave ceiling is 45' above the water). A variety of blind cave fish and crustaceans call the pool home, while the southern and eastern walls are covered with a softly-glowing, green phosphorescent fungus (edible, if unappetizing).

The floor of the pool is littered with dozens of skeletal remains, mostly of humans, but including some goblins, varumani, and others. Remarkably, the remains contain no metal (as Kerbog Khan has carefully salvaged anything he might be able to use).

SL12-3: Beach with Doorkeeper

A rocky beach rises a few feet above the waterline of the adjacent pool. Set in the north wall of the cave is a strange orange wall and door; they are formed of rudishva plasteel. The door is locked (-15% to pick locks chances). Next to the door stands the Doorkeeper, a unique automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters).

The Doorkeeper: When anything 3' or taller comes within 10' of the Doorkeeper, it begins swaying on its column, and its weird 'head' flashes with light. At that point a garrulous mouth spell (see new spells – twelve iterations remain) activates. The garrulous mouth wheezes in the manner familiar to those who have heard Kerbog Khan speak: stuttering, a series of clicks, repeated vowels and consonants, and a generally metallic-sounding tone. The message is as follows: "Greettttingzzz and welcom-m-m-ezzz to [click] the abo-o-o-de of Kerrrrrbog Khan, greaaaaatesssst of wizzzardzz [click]. Vizzzitorrrrs mussst offerrr suitablille someteenggggs of valu-u-u-ue [click] and mussst prepaaare to barrrrgain. Know that barrrgainzz musst be ssealed in blooooood. Deppozittt your offerrringzzz with the Door-oor-oor-keeeeperr." [Text in 'normal' speech: 'Greetings and welcome to the abode of Kerbog Khan, greatest of wizards! Visitors must offer suitable somethings of value and must prepare to bargain. Know that bargains must be sealed in blood. Deposit your offerings with the Doorkeeper'.]

This is an invitation for visitors to place objects of value into the box attached to the cylinder. Kerbog Khan prefers metals of any sort, whether precious (gold, silver, platinum) or mundane (steel scraps, wires), but is also eager to acquire gems, potions, and scrolls. The type and value of the offering affects any future negotiation with Kerbog Khan according to the following chart. Should no offering be made, or should the offering be primarily biological (food, leather items, wood, etc.), the Doorkeeper relapses into silence (and the offerings can be retrieved).

If the offering is suitable, a second garrulous mouth activates and the Doorkeeper extends itself on its flexible columnar base and uses a hand (the star-shaped rod) to unlock the door' leading to SL12-16. The second garrulous mouth is more succinct:

"It izzz accept-ept-ept-abbble" [It is acceptable]. Once the door is unlocked, the offerings in the box tumble into the cylinder and cannot be retrieved without destroying the Doorkeeper.

Offering Type	Offering Value	Modification to Reaction Roll in SL12-16
Rudishva technology	Varies	+30%
Gems	1-100 gp total	+5%
Gems	More than 100 gp total	+10%
Precious metal (gold, silver, platinum)	1-100 gp	+10%
Precious metal (gold, silver, platinum)	100-500 gp	+15%
Precious metal (gold, silver, platinum)	More than 500 gp	+20%
Mundane metal (steel, iron, brass, bronze)	Up to 2 lb	0%
Mundane metal (steel, iron, brass, bronze)	More than 2 lb	+5%
Potions	Variable	+5% per potion up to a max of +25%
Scrolls	Variable	+3% per spell level of spells inscribed on scrolls, up to a max of +20%
Scrolls, protection	Variable	+5% per scroll up to a max of +15%
Other magic items	Variable	+5% per item

Inhabitant:

1. The doorkeeper, a unique automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 6; MV 0'; HD 5; HP 31; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-4; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to cold, fire, and electricity.

Treasure:

There is a 15% chance that items offered by previous visitors have not yet been transferred to Kerbog Khan and thus remain inside the torso of the doorkeeper. If so indicated, these items should be determined randomly.

SL12-4: Medical Pod of the Beacon: Exterior

Resting on a rock projection within the surrounding pool is one of the lost sections of the Beacon, the medical pod. The pod used to comprise a cylinder 120'x80'x30' in size, with an exterior of dull, gray, triple-strength plasteel. The exterior is presently festooned with ribbons of freshwater weeds. The eastern end of the pod was crushed in the crash, a trauma that killed all the crew present in the pod.

The nuclear reactor that powered most of the pod was also destroyed in the crash. The interior is thus dark (no LED lighting), and most powered objects (doors, null-grav shafts, etc.) no longer function. The one exception may be found in area SL12-11. The interior is sheathed in white plasteel (except where noted), and is comprised of an upper level (areas SL12-5 to SL12-9) and a lower level (areas SL12-10 to SL12-15).

GM Note: Because the transponder beacons of the medical pod were destroyed in the crash, the rudishva assumed it to have been utterly destroyed. Kerbog Khan (SL12-25) was the first sentient being in several millennia to locate it.

SL12-4A: Jagged Hole in the Medical Pod

Access to the medical pod was originally through a door on its east end, but that section of the pod was destroyed in the crash. Fortunately for explorers, the crash also tore a hole in the exterior. That jagged hole is about 3'x7' in size and is conveniently located atop the pod, one foot above the waterline of the pool. The hole leads into SL12-5.

SL12-5: Medical Pod, Upper Level: Assistant Medical Officer's Quarters

The rudishva iris door of this chamber has been forced, and stuck in a partly-open position. The chamber within has been stripped of almost all its furnishings. Only some jagged, orange, plasteel stumps protruding from the wall and floors suggest the locations where a bed, desk, closet, chair, and hanging light fixture once stood.

GM Note: Kerbog Khan long ago scavenged every bit of plasteel and technology from this chamber.

SL12-6: Medical Pod, Upper Level: Chief Medical Officer's Quarters

This chamber is identical to SL12-5, down to the partially-opened door and the stripped furnishings. A few exceptions remain. One is the black, wall-mounted monitor (4'x3') that is embedded in the wall opposite the space where the desk once stood. Affixed to the (blank) monitor is a piece of parchment on which the following is scrawled (in Archontean): "Property of Kerbog Khan. Do not touch! This means you!"

The other exceptions are a handful of personal items belonging to the former occupant of this chamber, Haddi Yon, the chief medical officer. The Khan ignored these items because they have no technological use. The items include a tattered, yellow, silk scarf; a plastic name plate reading "Haddi-Yon, Chief Medical Officer, the Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven" [GM: a memento from a conference]; and a laminated note from Haddi-Yon's life-partner, Nean-Ri. The note (in Glyphik) praises Haddi-Yon's service to the rudishva people, applauds his dedication to xenobiology, assures him that he will locate a new species, and warns him not to let his fascination with exotic predators lead him into danger.

SL12-7: Medical Pod, Upper Level: Inoperable Null-Grav Shafts

Two eye-shaped holes (10'x5') in the floor drop down 15' to the lower level of the medical pod (SL12-10). These holes are rimmed with 2" of grey-plasteel so as to prevent accidental entry into the null-grav shafts. Since the medical pod lacks power, the null-grav shafts no longer function.

The eastern exit is blocked by the rock into which the medical pod crashed. By the rock face are the headless, desiccated remains of a rudishva in an emerald green jumpsuit; these are the remains of Haddi-Yon, the chief medical officer of the Beacon.

SL12-8: Medical Pod, Upper Level: Examination Room

The rudishva iris door to this chamber is stuck in a partly open position, with a 6"-diameter aperture; it requires a successful open doors roll to force open.

Two 8'-long, 4'-tall solid plasteel tables stand in the center of the chamber. The walls are lined with built-in cabinets. The floor is scattered with debris, mostly of an organic nature: rotted linen, plastic envelopes that have been torn open, etc. Among the debris are two skeletons, one of a rudishva and the other of a varuda; both are without clothing.

Kerbog Khan visited this chamber in gaseous form and stripped the cabinets of their contents. He missed one drawer set into base of one of the examination tables: it contains six packages of saline solution, three hypodermic needles, two rolls of bandages, two pair of scissors, and a bottle of twenty 'pep' pills (see new technological items).

SL12-9: Medical Pod, Upper Level: Examination Room

The rudishva iris door to this chamber has been broken into bits; access is free and easy.

The chamber is cut almost completely in half by a rock wall, the product of the crash of the Beacon. Aside from this fact, the chamber is identical to SL12-8, complete with debris. No medical supplies are present, however.

SL12-10: Medical Pod, Lower Level: Inoperable Null-Grav Shafts

Two eye-shaped holes (10'x5') are set into the ceiling some 15' above the floor. The holes lead to the upper level of the medical pod (SL12-7). The shafts of the null-grav units are outlined on the floor by eye-shaped, 2"-tall rims of grey plasteel. Since the medical pod lacks power, the null-grav shafts no longer function.

The chamber is almost cut in half by the rock wall, thus preventing access to the east.

SL12-11: Medical Pod, Lower Level: Operating Theater

The rudishva iris door to this chamber is stuck in a partly open position, with a 3'-diameter aperture. The glowing runes of a symbol of fear appear on the door.

The chamber is divided into three areas. Just opposite the doorway is the actual operating theater. To the north and south are sterile recovery suites. Standing at the console by the operating theater is the Giatros, a unique automaton (see new monsters).

To defend his interests in the Medical Pod, the Khan has summoned two invisible stalkers and tasked them with slaying anyone (except him or the medical automaton) who enters the theater.

Operating Theater: The core of the theater is a 10'x4' table of plasteel mounted atop a ball joint connected to a hydraulic pillar. Four articulated surgical arms with various tools on their tips (scalpel, tweezers, clamps, injector) stand around the table. Strapped to the table is a true varumani named Gevorda; she was captured by the Khan, who is using her to explore his interest in anatomy and blood magic. Gevorda is a half-sister of the troll thegn, Varboka (7-30), and her release would win great favor from the thegn.

The surgical table and arms are surrounded by a strange hemisphere of semi-rigid, mutable gel known to the rudishva as medicaderm (see new technological items). The medicaderm shield is pellucid but spongy; one can stand outside it and push it inwards toward the table, allowing one to interact with a patient without compromising the sterile environment within the medicaderm shield. Medicaderm was a major scientific invention, as it could transmit vital signs from patients that it touched to the medical consoles, and could also be used to transfer drugs and treatments directly through the patient's dermis.

To the north of the table and medicaderm shield is a bank of consoles rising 4' from the floor. An operator uses the consoles to manipulate the surgical arms, to adjust the density and activity level of the medicaderm (e.g., to make it permeable so as to allow patients to be placed within the theater), and to administer treatments through the medicaderm. The console also permits the manipulation of the surgical table: it can be raised, lowered (3' into the floor), and tilted.

The operating theater is still operational, thanks to a backup micro-reactor designed to ensure that those in surgery or recovery would not perish in the case of a temporary loss of main power.

Recovery Suites: The northern and southern portions of the room were designated as sterile recovery suites. Each suite is separated from the rest of the area by an opaque plasglass wall, with access provided by a rudishva iris door that opens to a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items). Inside is an antechamber, with console and other equipment for monitoring patients. The antechamber was separated from the actual recovery suite by a second wall formed of medicaderm. Sadly, the medicaderm wall of the northern suite failed in the crash of the Beacon, as its auxiliary power source was destroyed. Kerbog Khan stripped all the equipment and interior furnishings from it years ago. The southern suite, however, is still functional, and still contains a 'patient'. The console that controls the suite is also operative, as Kerbog Khan did not dare to release the patient held within. The patient is actually a huge space squid that had been captured by the Beacon and placed here for study; it has been kept comatose for millennia, but can be released through ill-advised manipulation of the console here, in the southern recovery suite, or of the console by the surgical theater.

Using the Surgical Theater Console: Provided the Khan's defenses are overcome, it is possible for PCs to make use of the surgical theater. Those ignorant of the rudishva written language (Glyphik) will find it almost impossible (1% chance) to decipher the console; such persons should roll randomly on the following table to determine what their manipulations accomplish. Those who do know Glyphik have a 50% chance of successfully using the console to achieve a particular goal; such persons can select what they wish to do from the following table.

GM Note: The theater automatically detects and comprehends the physiology of rudishva, varumani, varuda, kaliyani, and other star-faring races. It takes 1-3 manipulations, each with a 33% chance of provoking a fatal mishap, before the machine is able to recognize a new species (e.g., humans)."

D100	Function	Effect
01-10	Permeability, surgical theater	Allows something or someone to be popped through the medicaderm shield
11-13	Permeability, sterile recovery suite	Allows access or egress through the medicaderm of the southern recovery suite (thus releasing the space squid - see below)
14-19	Sterilizing gas	Sterilizes the interior of the medicaderm shield, but also kills all living beings within
19-25	Anesthetic gas	Puts all living beings within the shield into an indefinite coma
26-30	Surgical 'arm' - scalpel	Operator-controlled cutting of patient
31-35	Surgical 'arm' - tweezers	Operator-controlled use of tweezers on patient
36-40	Surgical 'arm' - clamp	Operator-controlled use of clamp(s) on patient
41-45	Surgical 'arm' - injector	Operator-controlled use of injector on patient. Choice of injectables: 1. Saline 2. Antibiotic liquid 3. Suturing gel 4. Anesthesia
46-55	Surgical table - adjustments	Raises, lowers, and/or tilts the surgical table.
56-60	Automatic surgical procedure - removal	Removes an organ. Organ must be specified (or else should be randomly determined).
61-65	Automatic surgery - grafting	Adds an organ or body part to a patient. Patient species must be known (see above), and organ/part must be present within the medicaderm. If no organ/part is present, the system will modify the existing body (e.g., by taking an organ such as an eye, an ear, a hand, etc. and grafting it to a different location on the same body).
66-70	Automatic surgery - repair	Fixes problems: clogged arteries, cancers, broken limbs, collapsed lungs, etc. Species must be known to the console.
71-75	Medicaderm - pain relief	Causes the medicaderm to touch the patient and deliver a strong narcotic. The narcotic masks pain for 4 hours; a side effect permits characters reduced to 0 or fewer HP to continue fighting until they reach -10 HP. The narcotic is also potentially addictive (20%)
76-85	Medicaderm - diagnostic	Causes the medicaderm to touch the patient and diagnose any diseases or physical ailments

86-90	Medicaderm – healing	Causes the medicaderm to touch the patient and remove all diseases and cure all damage (but not internal organ or bone damage)
91-100	Medicaderm – drug delivery	Medicaderm touches patient and delivers desired drug. Roll d8: 1. Anesthesia (coma for 4 hours) 2. Radioactive tracers used to locate cancers (humans and demi-humans glow with green light for 2-6 days) 3. Localized antibodies (acts as poison on humans and demi-humans; save or die) 4. Blood thinning (provides humans and demi-humans with +2 CON for 1-3 hours) 5. Muscle strengthener (provides humans and demi-humans with +2 STR for 1-3 hours) 6. Neural cleaner (provides humans and demi-humans with temporary psionic ability for 2-4 days; strength and abilities determined randomly) 7. Optical tuning (provides humans with infravision for 1-3 days) 8. Blood coagulant (reduces damage taken by 10% for 1-8 hours, but halves movement)

Using the Southern Recovery Suite Console: This console is like the console governing the surgical theater, with similar restrictions on its use. The following functions can be selected by a trained operator (or randomly initiated by the untrained).

D100	Function	Effect
1-45	Permeability, sterile recovery suite	As above; releases the space squid - see below
46-50	Sterilizing gas	See above
51-60	Anesthetic gas	See above
61-70	Sedative gas	Acts as a slow spell on inhabitant of suite; also reduces DEX by 4.
71-75	Medicaderm – pain relief	See above
76-80	Medicaderm – diagnostic	See above
81-85	Medicaderm – healing	See above
86-100	Medicaderm – drug delivery	See above

Interaction with Inhabitants in this Chamber: When entered, the invisible stalkers move to attack. Initially, the Giatros remains at its post. Each round of combat after the first adds a 20% chance that the Giatros joins the fray. Once the Giatros enters combat, there is an additional 10% chance per round that Kerbog Khan inhabits the Giatros; this has no effect other than the fact that the Khan will begin shouting imprecations at the interlopers.

Impact of Exploration Here: If the Khan inhabits the Giatros during a battle here, he will clearly know that the PCs are responsible for disturbing his special research area; he will intractably refuse to aid the PCs thereafter, and may (25%) choose to send a battle automaton after them at some point in the future. If Kerbog Khan does not inhabit the Giatros, then there is a chance that he will not know of the PCs' culpability; that chance is a base 66%, but should be modified by the GM as appropriate. If the PCs boast of their discoveries in this chamber, of course, the Khan will know the PCs' 'guilt' and will refuse all further interaction.

Inhabitants:

- 2 invisible stalkers: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 60, 50; #AT 1; Dmg 4-16; MR 30%. Special attacks: surprise on 1-5. Special defenses: invisibility.
- The Giatros, a unique automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8+8; HP 61; #AT 4; Dmg 1-2/2-5/2-5/3-12; MR 35%. Special defenses: immune to fire, cold and electricity.
- Gevorda, true varumani (see new monsters): true varumani (see new monsters): SZ L; AL LN; AC 4; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 37 (max 57); #AT 3 or 1; Dmg 3-6/3-6/4-10 or by weapon. Special defenses: surprised only on 1 in 6; save as 8th-level fighter or 8th-level magic user, whichever is better; immune to cold, poison, charm, hold, feeblemind, confusion, and other mind-affecting magic; regenerate 3 HP/rd; infravision. Gevorda attempted to bargain with the Khan. Fascinated with her special biological functions, he decided to abduct her instead. She will aid any attempts to destroy the Khan and end his 'tyranny'.
- 1 space squid (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 20', 120' flying (Class D); HD 16; HP 109; #AT 7; Dmg 1-8(x6)/6-36; MR 35%. Special attacks: stunning attack; consumption of prey (4-24 HP damage). Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.

Treasure:

Two aquamarines (500 gp each) on the Giatros.

SL12-12: Medical Pod, Lower Level: Sick Ward

The north and east walls of this chamber are lined with built-in plasteel bunks, where sick crewmen recovered from minor ailments. There are a total of fifteen bunks in stacks of three. The south wall has built-in cabinets, but Kerbog Khan stripped them of all usable items.

SL12-13: Tunnels leading to 4-175A and to 6-161A

At a point 4' above the floor of the sick ward the external wall of the medical pod has been eaten away by some caustic substance. The hole is 5' in diameter and leads to a perfectly round tunnel that descends in wide spirals to Level 6 (6-161A). The hole was bored by Kerbog Khan's borer automaton (see SL12-19). The slope of the passage is just gentle enough to allow bipeds to traverse it without slipping, although speed is reduced by 30'.

About 20' down beyond the wall of the pod is a 2.5'-wide crack in the tunnel wall. The crack opens into a natural, rough tunnel that is roughly 4' in diameter; this tunnel descends gently over a very long distance before reaching level 4 (4-175A).

SL12-14: Medical Pod, Lower Level: Sick Ward

This room is identical to area SL12-12, except for the fact that skeletal remains of two varuda (see new monsters) are heaped in the center of the chamber.

SL12-15: Medical Pod, Lower Level: Sick Ward

This chamber is currently inaccessible from the rest of the medical pod. Only if holes are knocked through the plasteel walls of either area SL12-14 or area SL12-8 can it be entered. Kerbog Khan does not know it exists; informing him of its existence would win his favor, provided the contents were not looted first. Thanks to its isolation, the chamber is dry.

In terms of general layout, the chamber is identical to areas SL12-12 and SL12-14. The jump-suit clad remains of two rudishva crewmen are dashed against the east wall, their limbs broken in multiple places. Numerous rudishva items may be found here, including rust and brown plastic rudishva identity plaques; three anti-venom kits; a biohazard suit; a communication bracelet; a fire extinguisher; a GnuCoder 1000 image screen; five instant heat sources; six full lesser power supplies; two containers of 'pep' pills, each with 20 pills (see new technology for all); ten Arden Vul cakes; and three bottles of rudishva aquavit (see Arden Vul items for the last two).

SL12-16: Hall of Bargains

Access to this chamber is difficult. From the south the way is barred by the plasteel wall and door. The door can be unlocked by the Doorkeeper (SL12-3), picked by a thief (-15% chance), or beaten down (given the strength of plasteel, the door can be beaten down only by making a lift gates roll at -35%). From the east, a portcullis located near the bridge (SL12-18) bars the way. The lever used to raise the portcullis is found on the south wall of this hall. A lever for raising the portcullis by the entrance to SL12-19 is also located on the south wall.

The chamber is undecorated stone. The focal point of the hall is a steel grill set into the north wall. The grill is 2' wide by 1' tall, and is placed 5' above the floor; it is made of 1" bars of steel that have been welded together. The grill is securely latched on the opposite side (SL12-23), but can be opened to allow objects to be passed through.

Four of Kerbog Khan's automatons stand in the corners of the chamber: two battle automatons (with a 50% chance for a third), an exploration automaton, and a unique automaton, the Nosokoma. All four are quiescent until attacked, or until ordered to take action by Kerbog Khan.

Bargaining With Kerbog Khan: Petitioners whose donations have been accepted by the Doorkeeper (SL12-3) proceed to the grate for conversation and bargaining with Kerbog Khan. Barring any unusual circumstances (i.e., the PCs attack his automatons, or the PCs are known to have intruded into his research lair at SL12-11), the Khan begins any negotiation in a neutral state. That is, he is basically willing to make bargains, provided he gets what he wants and is able to offer something in return. The broad shape of negotiations should be determined by a standard reaction roll, with the following modifiers:

Category	Factor	Modifier to Reaction Roll
Donations	Nature and value of donation	See SL12-3
Information on offer from PCs	High interest to Kerbog Khan	+10%
	Moderate interest to Kerbog Khan	0%
	Low interest to Kerbog Khan	-5%
Additional Items on offer from PCs	Working rudishva technology	+5 to +15%
	Broken rudishva technology	+1 to +8%, depending on size and rarity
	Rudishva plasteel, wiring, springs, etc.	+1%/square foot
	Lesser magic items (potions, scrolls)	+2% each
	Major magic items	+5 to +10% each
Demeanor of PCs	PCs are deferential	+10%
	PCs are respectful but distant	0%
	PCs are mocking or hostile	-20%

Possible Information or Services Offered by Kerbog Khan

The Khan is happy to bargain for information, objects, or services. Two caveats remain. First, the Khan almost never offers objects to petitioners; his side of any bargain is information or services. Second, the Khan always requires that bargains be 'sealed with blood'; this means that the PCs must provide a sample of their own blood, to be collected by his unique automaton (the Nosokoma).

Map Knowledge: The Khan has good knowledge of most of the generally accessible areas of Arden Vul; exceptions include the Midnight Road areas of Level 5, the areas of Level 8 afflicted with bliss pollen, all areas concealed behind secret doors, all of Sub-Level 11, etc. He also is aware of many exits from Arden Vul, especially those on levels 1-6.

Faction Knowledge: The Khan knows the power structures of all the major factions of Arden Vul (goblins, beastmen, varumani, heqeti), and can describe rulers and their general proclivities. He does not know secrets (e.g., he is ignorant of the true nature of the Master of the Sun-Scarred Knights).

Historical Knowledge: The Khan is one of the most knowledgeable beings currently living in Arden Vul. He knows a lot about the rudishva, about the history of the varumani, about the Archontians and their demise, and about many of the inhabitants of the Halls. He also has a chance to know the location of other adventuring parties.

Healing Services: Kerbog Khan has mastered rudishva drugs that will cure most diseases and wounds. Effectively he can offer the technological equivalent of a cure light wounds, cure serious wounds, or a heal spell, as administered by the Nosokoma.

Spell Services: As an archmage, the Khan can (if properly induced) cast most magic user spells.

Teleportation Services: The Khan regularly offers this service, especially to lost or badly wounded parties. The Khan accomplishes teleportation through his automatons; those being teleported must touch the automaton that the Khan is inhabiting before the Khan, through the automaton, casts the spell. Of course the automaton is transported with the party, a fact which may limit the Khan's willingness to teleport parties to certain locations.

General: the Khan is deeply interested in rudishva technology and history, and is eager to acquire information about the rudishva and/or objects produced by them. He is also interested in ancient Archontean constructs, in unusual spells or magic items, and in hitherto-secret information about the denizens of the Halls. The GM must play Kerbog Khan intelligently! Given his network of dragonflies and exploration automatons, he will be unwilling to trade for mundane stuff or information. The GM should consider carefully the quality of what a given group of PCs offers to the Khan; only if it is secret or unusual is he likely to want to acquire it.

Possible Information or Services Desired by Kerbog Khan

The below are only examples, but are indicative of the Khan's various interests.

Information: A route into the Midnight Road (level 5); how to open the Obsidian Gates (5-6D); the location of the archons' regalia (i.e., the bone ring of Jagri-Naz at 5-74, the tablet of the beacon at 9-107, the ebon spear at SL5-13B, and the iron circlet of Ghanor at 3-127A); the nature of Deino (3-158); the nature of Master Malachite of the Sun-Scarred Knights (SL10A-32); the location of any of the pods of the Beacon (SL2-2, 6-27, 6-113, 7-143, SL13-37, and SL14-10); the location of the Tomb of Isadora (SL11) or of the Tombs of Light (SL2); the location of the resting place of the legendary construct, Sulla the Myrmex (SL6-22); how to access the chamber of the Beacon (SL14-10); etc.

Objects: Any rudishva technology; pieces of rudishva construction materials (plasteel, plasglass etc.); loose wiring; gems; jewelry; potions; scrolls; magic items; statues, especially bronze.

Services: Clearing powerful monsters from locations of interest to the Khan; carrying messages to specific sentient inhabitants.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 (or 3) battle automatons of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 0; MV 150'; HD 8; HP 60; #AT 4; Dmg special; MR 50%. Special attacks: laser (3-12 damage); blade (3-12 damage); poison injector (death, or 3-12 damage on save); flamethrower (3-18 damage in arc). Special defenses: immune to cold and fire. There is a 50% chance that a third battle automaton is idling by its companions. If not encountered here, it is elsewhere in the halls on a mission for the Khan.
2. Nosokoma, a unique automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 7+7; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-8; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to fire and cold.
3. 1 bipedal exploration automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 6; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-6; MR 40%. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.

SL12-17: Service and Storage Chamber

The one-way door from the corridor near SL12-23 opens in the north wall of this chamber. It can be detected as a secret door from this side, but cannot be opened. The Khan only uses it to collect objects procured by his automatons, and then only rarely (once every other day or so). Those hoping to ambush him as he emerges will have to be exceptionally clever and lucky.

The chamber holds two large wooden worktables that are covered with clutter: chunks of plasteel, snarls of wiring, springs of various size, crowbars, hammers, mallets, wrenches, nails, carving knives, random pieces of wood, a grindstone, and so forth. Two fine (if tarnished) bronze Archontean statues also are present, awaiting pickup by Kerbog Khan. One is of a young boy holding a ball (750 gp), and the other is of a naked youth stretching for athletics (1,250 gp).

SL12-18: Bridge with Portcullises

A narrow, rickety, 5'-wide bridge formed of wooden planks crosses Kerbog Khan's pool (SL12-2) at this point. It should be noted that the cave ceiling is 45' above the surface of the pool in this ell. The wooden planks are supported by ropes which tie into bolts set in the stone on either end of the bridge. Heavy steel portcullises block the passages on either end of the bridge. These are almost always (90%) in the 'down' position.

The lever for the west portcullis is in SL12-16; levers for the east portcullis may be found at SL12-16 and SL12-19.

SL12-19: Storage and/or Preparations

This chamber exists only as a storage depot for items collected from the Halls by Kerbog Khan. Those items he finds useful are eventually transferred into the workshop area (SL12-28); other plunder may languish here for quite some time.

The chamber is unadorned stone. There is an 80% chance that the borer, one of Kerbog Khan's unique automatons, is present here. The borer activates in order to defend the chamber if the Khan happens to inhabit it while the PCs are exploring it (10% chance).

Low value items present here: six marble column drums; two wooden desktops (minus legs); a 20-lb chunk of steel; a keg of Hak's mushroom ale; six badly-worn marble heads from Archontean-era statues; 20 lb of leather scraps; a 5' section of orange plasteel; a plasteel spool holding 100' of electrical wire.

Higher value items: an onyx statuette of a leaping tiger (150 gp); a 6'-tall bronze statue of an archon, intact save for one leg (650 gp); a 5' marble statue of a calf (250 gp); a wooden coffer filled with 37 plain gold rings (25 gp each), one of which is a good-aligned ring of faerie; a 3'-tall marble sculpture of a brownie (350 gp); 3 fine Archontean carpets, each 8'x12' in size (450 gp each); a harp of charming (see new magic items); a stone chest filled with 32,175 cp and 17,911 sp; a porter's carpet (see new magic items); a rug of instant access (see new magic items), whose partner is stored in a closet of the Azure Keep (see World of Archontos appendix); five 5-lb lumps of arcanum (see new magic items); and a pair of boots of attraction (see new magic items).

Inhabitant:

1. 1 borer automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters) (80%): SZ M; AL N; AC -1; MV 30'; HD 6; HP 43; #AT 1; Dmg 4-24; MR 25%. Special attacks: attacks as 10 HD creature. Special defenses: immune to cold and fire.

SL12-20: Stairs Up to Level 3 (3-22A)

These stairs are uneven and rough; they climb about 200' up through several changes of direction and landings before ending at the secret door located in the catacombs of Thoth (3-22A).

Halfway up the stairs is the corpse of Asrotelion, a mage sent by the Collegium of Cinders (see World of Archontos appendix) to locate Kerbog Khan. Asrotelion was clever enough to use blood magic (Kerbog Khan's specialty) to try to track the Khan, but ran afoul of one of the poison dragonflies on this staircase. He has returned as a wraith, which still haunts the corpse (the wraith does not interfere with the automatons as it does not perceive them as living beings). The wraith hugs the ceiling of the stairwell, granting it a +2 to surprise rolls.

Inhabitant:

1. 1 wraith: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 120; 240' flying (Class B); HD 5+3; HP 36; #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: silver or magic weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.

Treasure:

On the corpse: a platinum signet ring (175 gp); a silver scroll case (10 gp) with scrolls of locate object, invisibility, and locate living being (see new spells); 6 darts; a staff; 3 of Melchior's beads of escape (see new magic items), cued to the collegium of Cinders in Narsileon (see World of Archontos appendix); and Asrotelian's spell book. Tucked into Asrotelian's left boot is a writ with 2 seals: it authorizes Asrotelian to bring "the rogue wizard, Cerbactos, also known as Kerbog Khan" alive or dead to Narsileon to face charges of theft and treason. The seals are those of the Collegium of Cinder and of Keko, thesmothete of the House of Sight (and leader of the Drome).

Asrotelion's Spell Book: Alarm, enlarge, feather fall, grease, identify, magic missile, message, spider climb; audible glamer, ESP, invisibility, knock, locate living being (see new spells), locate object, scare; dispel magic, feign death, hold person, secret page, suggestion, tongues; charm monster.

SL12-21: Tunnel Down to Level 8 (8-54)

This circular tunnel is 5' in diameter and boasts perfectly smooth walls. It takes the form of a spiral, with a slope just gentle enough to allow bipeds to climb without slipping. It descends about 1,050' before exiting on Level 8 (8-54).

The tunnel was bored by one of Kerbog Khan's specialized automatons, the borer (see SL12-19). There is a 20% chance at any given time that the automaton is performing routine scraping maintenance in the tunnel. If encountered in this way, the borer could pose a significant threat to those in the tunnel. Regardless of location from which the explorers have entered the tunnel, there is an even chance for the borer to moving towards or away from the party. If it is moving towards the party, its cutting blades will do an automatic 2-16 HP damage/rd to whomever is directly in front of it. Combat is difficult in the tunnel (-4 to hit), and if the characters are 'below' the borer (i.e., if they are climbing from 8-54 while the borer is descending from SL12-21), then PCs need to roll 3d6 under DEX or risk losing their footing. If they lose their footing, they rocket down the tunnel and take 4-24 HP damage when they emerge at 8-54. If the borer is moving away from the party, then it poses no hazard.

Inhabitant:

Borer automaton of Kerbog Khan (20%): see SL12-19 for stats.

SL12-22: Dragonfly Tunnels

These 1'-diameter tunnels have utterly smooth walls. They lead from the hallway near SL12-25 to both the pool of Kerbog Khan (SL12-2) and to the access tunnels to the upper halls (SL12-20) and nether reaches (SL12-21). The tunnels are designed to provide an egress from the workshops for Kerbog Khan's dragonflies (see SL12-28). For shrunken or gaseous PCs, they also offer a back route into the Khan's sanctum.

SL12-23: Hall of Heads

A marble half-column rises 5' from the floor in the center of this small chamber. Atop it is an ever-alert head (see new magic items) created from the remains of a true varumani. It faces the grill separating the chamber from the Hall of Bargains, and is imbued with the abilities to detect invisibility and detect alignment. The head sounds an alarm whenever visitors appear in the Hall of Bargains; the alarm brings Kerbog Khan within five rounds, ready to bargain.

The walls of the chamber are filled with a hodgepodge of different shelves, all of which are filled with heads. Most (some 30) are taken from ancient Archontean statues made of various materials (granite, marble, bronze), and could be sold for 6-600 gp each. The Khan has also looted five heads of heqeti statues (40-400 gp each). Among the statuary are several magical heads: a head of Thoth, an infernal effigy, an obsidian skull of comprehension, and a shrunken head inside a burlap sack (see new magic items for all).

In a wooden chest under the shelving are thirteen control rods for the eggs found at area 4-85.

GM Note: The head of Thoth contains the personality of Paratus Vitriunius, a logothete; Kerbog Khan has found his information to be of little practical value. The infernal effigy is keyed to the devil Naboremask, a powerful pit-fiend in the service of Asmodeus; the Khan knows its name, but out of caution has only contacted the devil once. The shrunken head talks constantly either about a score of nasty ways to kill people or about the glories of the summer garden of Trendax the Grey, a wizard with a tower near Arcturos (see World of Archontos appendix).

SL12-24: Blood Bank

The door to this chamber is cool to the touch. The chamber within is cold (about 45-degrees) and low-ceilinged (6' tall).

To the south, a wooden table and chair stand atop a bearskin rug, with two sheepskin dusters draped over the chair. Sitting on the table is a crystal ball and a 2'-diameter lump of arcnum (see new magic items). A vial-sized slot has been carved in the arcnum, allowing Kerbog Khan to insert one of his vials of blood into the lump. Possession of a sample of blood from an individual thus allows the Khan perfect scrying (100% chance of locating) with all additional features (clairaudience, ESP, and telepathy).

To the north is Kerbog Khan's blood bank. Here he maintains samples of blood taken from those who bargain with him. Samples are preserved in vials, with the name of the giver recorded on the vial. The vials are stored in wooden boxes stuffed with sawdust. While the GM should determine what blood samples the Khan currently maintains, the following are likely possibilities:

Name on Vial	GM Description
Aelin	6 th -level female half-elf ranger; adventurer
Balthazar (blue)	7 th -level male Archontean magic user; adventurer
Wicktrimmer	9 th -level imperial goblin (see World of Archontos) thief; adventurer
Killik	Goblin sub-chief (5-46)
Gog	Lesser varumani (5-2)
Ashoka	True varumani court sorcerer (7-22)
Trisko (ratman)	Beastman and count of the Long-Range Cavern Patrol (3-154)
Sir Hegemon	Sun-Scarred Knight (SL10B-19). The fact that she gave a sample to the Khan is an embarrassment; she would not want that fact known to the other knights
Brenna Three-Braids	Lesser vampire (7-127). Kerbog Khan is aware of her vampirism, as well as that of Cinna Minux (7-122) and Joshuel the Binder (7-127).
All nine classed members of the Bad Neighbors	An adventuring party; see 6-113 and 6-129.
Kerbog Khan himself	The Khan keeps three samples of his own blood ready at all times so as to be able to effect repairs to his automatons
Others	Undoubtedly the Khan has samples of rank and file beastmen, goblins, true and lesser varumani, etc.

Two volleyball-sized boulders of shaped granite rest on the floor before the blood bank; they are cold rocks (see new magic items), and serve to keep the blood samples fresh and the chamber cold. Although the Khan has expended considerable time and energy in attempting to preserve the blood samples, he has not been able to keep them viable for longer than a decade.

SL12-25: Kerbog Khan's Sanctum

This comfortably appointed bedroom and study serves as Kerbog Khan's sanctum. He has covered every surface (even the ceiling) with beautiful Archontean carpets, most illustrated with scenes of magic and sorcery (seventeen carpets, seven worth 200 gp, five worth 400 gp, four worth 500 gp, and one – showing Thoth's gift of magic to humans – worth 1,000 gp).

To the north are the Khan's sleeping quarters, with a spartan wooden bedframe, an armoire carved with Wisikin scenes (100 gp), and a stand holding four staves and six wands. The armoire contains a dozen sets of robes and other clothing; one of the robes is that of a provost of the Imperial Academy (GM: a hint of Kerbog Khan's past). Of the staves and wands, most are mundane, with the exception of a staff of the magi (15 charges), and wands of conjuration (23 charges) and illumination (55 charges).

To the south is his study. It contains two bookcases, two worktables, a tripod of heating (see new magic items), and a writing desk. The bookcases are crammed with rare tomes, including his spell books and six rare codices stolen from the Imperial Academy in Archontos.

Atop the eastern worktable sits a rudishva Nutri-vore 2500 food dispenser (see new technological items) and seven Arden Vul cakes (see Arden Vul items). Below the table is a chest holding ten full and nineteen empty rudishva lesser power supplies (see new technological items).

The western worktable holds a number of curios that have caught the Khan's eye: a kaliyani asp egg (torment); a collar of servitude; two inert dwarven life-stones bearing the names Beryl Adamantine and Garnet Hornfels (in Dwarven Runic); two stones of passage; an ivory hand carved to resemble a rudishva useful palm (imbued with magic aura, but without actual properties); a silver cup with a tooth of Pol; and a statuette of faithful service (depicting Nestor Plumbatorix) (see new magic items for all).

The writing desk has a drawer full of writing supplies (parchment, quills, inks, etc.), a second drawer with maps of all of the Archontean areas of Arden Vul (generally Levels 1-4 plus portions of Levels 5-7); and a third drawer with two accurate treasure maps (GM's choice).

The bookcases contain the following tomes: Kerbog Khan's spell books, in fifteen large volumes; the six codices stolen from the Imperial Academy, namely Blood is the Key to All, by the Sanguinator, Principles of Magical Attraction, by Herluinus, Animating the Inanimate, by Vaslotus Light-Fingers, Locomotion in Animals and Humanoids, by Spindledor, A Hierarchy of Essential Fluids, by Licinia the Vampire, and Successful Reanimation, by Herbertus Occidentalis; a scroll of protection from demons, a scroll of protection from devils, a scroll of protection from magic, a scroll of stone to flesh, a scroll with limited wish and permanency; a scroll with monster summoning V and monster summoning VI; a scroll with extension I, extension II, and extension III, a scroll with meteor swarm; a scroll with banishment, forcecage, and demand, a scroll with legend lore (x2), a scroll with chain lightning and contingency, a scroll with power word, blind and power word, kill; a scroll with teleport without error (x3); and a number of other codices, including A Complete Decoding of the Old Ones' Glyphs, by Herodian Tiro, The Deeds of Marius Tricotor, by Lucius Cornelius Scriptor, the Fragment, Great Vampire Lords and their Demise, by Usuon of Agoreon, Laelius's Linguistic Primer, or How to Speak the Old Ones' Tongue, compiled by Laelius the Praetor, Pol's Book of Laughs, by the Grinning Mage, On the Wars of the Old Ones with the Trolls, by Clarius, Principles of Comedy, by Teracleon, The Seventeen Uses of a Dead Troll, by Jacobus One-Arm, Summoning from the Beyond, the Value of Mud, by Herodian the Blessed, and twenty other mundane volumes of the GM's choice.

Encountering Kerbog Khan: Kerbog Khan will be encountered most of the time at the bargaining grill separating SL12-16 from SL12-23. See guidelines for making bargains in the text for SL12-16. If PCs attack the Khan in that location, he will retreat to marshal his resources. Unless the PCs seem capable of breaching the grill, he will cautiously wait for them to tire themselves out and leave. If he deems the PCs capable of breaching his inner defenses, he returns with all his resources: i.e., with his staff of the magi, statuette of faithful service, and spell buffs. Although unlikely, it might be possible for PCs to surprise Kerbog Khan here, in his actual sanctum (by sneaking through the dragonfly tunnels); in this case, the Khan will be visibly upset but will still attempt negotiation. If assaulted or if negotiation fails, he will teleport away to area 3-174 to regroup.

Kerbog Khan's Story: Kerbog Khan was born Cerbactos Kalthetos, son of a wealthy spice merchant in Archontos. Once his arcane gift was identified, his father secured a place for him in the Imperial Academy, the most socially prominent of the collegia (see World of Archontos appendix). Cerbactos rose swiftly through the ranks, proving himself an extremely talented wizard. By his early 50s he was an archmage, and one whose advice was occasionally sought by the imperial court itself. One day 57 years ago (in 2936 AEP), however, Cerbactos disappeared, apparently taking with him six rare codices stolen from the library of the Imperial Academy.

Cerbactos ventured into Arden Vul, taking the name Kerbog Khan in the process. He spent over a decade exploring, usually invisibly and secretly. Finally he made an extraordinary discovery: the un-looted medical pod of the Beacon. This pod had remained untouched for millennia, as the rudishva considered it lost and never bothered to look for it. As a result it held significant scientific and technological treasures. The resources of the medical pod dovetailed precisely with Kerbog Khan's own interest in blood-magic, constructs, and techno-sorcery. He delved a small workshop next to the medical pod, and began experimenting. He was successful in part thanks to his own intelligence, interests, and magical talents, but in part also due to the six codices that he had stolen from Archontos. He was able to pioneer new and unsettling fusions of mechanical and biological entities. While other magi may have created constructs, the Khan's great achievement was his ability to 'inhabit' them from afar, so long as a blood connection was maintained (hence the fact that all of his constructs hold a small vial of his blood).

Obsessed with his automatons, with the rudishva technology that partly enabled them, with his own genius, and with a desire to live forever, Kerbog Khan also began experimenting on his own body. He decided that true immortality could be achieved by adding mechanical parts to his own body. His body is now more than 75% mechanical, a pastiche of rudishva plasteel, tempered Archontean steel, wiring, and exotic precious metals. As his transformation proceeded, his empathy, morality and general sense of his own humanity withered; he withdrew increasingly into his workshop, preferring to let his automatons interact with the rest of Arden Vul. He now prefers to interact through the grill at SL12-23, thus shielding petitioners from the sight of his strange body. His voice, as filtered through a rudishva microphone, sounds mechanical, and his speech is punctuated by cracks, pops, whirrs, and stuttered consonants. Despite his strangeness, however, Kerbog Khan is still a formidable magic user.

Inhabitant:

1. Kerbog Khan, 20th-level male Archontean magic user: SZ M; AL NE; AC 1; MV 120'; HD 20; HP 44; #AT 1; Dmg 5-8 (dagger +4); Abilities: STR 9; INT 18; WIS 17; DEX 15; CON 12; CHA 9. Possessions: bracers of defense (AC 2); ring of mind shielding; ring of wizardry (third level spells); dagger +4; staff of the magi (15 charges); wand of conjuration (23 charges); wand of illumination (55 charges); statuette of faithful service (see new magic items); key to SL12-26. Spells memorized: charm person, identify, magic missile, shocking grasp, unseen servant; continual light, ESP, mirror image, stinking cloud, wizard lock; blink, detect illusion, dispel magic (x2), fireball, haste, hold person, protection from normal missiles, slow, suggestion; confusion, curse, ice storm, polymorph other, wall of ice; cloudkill, cone of cold, faithful hound, feeblemind, teleport; anti-magic shell, chain lightning, death spell, geas; grasping hand, power word stun, teleport without error; clenched fist, mind blank, monster summoning VI; prismatic sphere, time stop.

Treasure:

See text for magic items; also see possessions of Kerbog Khan.

Kerbog Khan's Spell Book (in fifteen large volumes): All first through sixth level spells, plus banishment, grasping hand, delayed blast fireball, instant summons, forcecage, monster summoning V, phase door, power word stun, teleport without error, torment, vanish; clenched fist, binding, demand, mass charm, mind blank, monster summoning VI, permanency, spell immunity, symbol, trap the soul; astral spell, crushing hand, gate, monster summoning VII, power word kill, prismatic sphere, time stop.

SL12-26: The Khan's Treasury

The door to this chamber is locked and wizard locked. Within may be found the wealth that Kerbog Khan has looted from Arden Vul over many decades. Five stone bins line the north wall.

Bin #1: 33,512 ancient copper bits (see Arden Vul items), and 2,791 cp

Bin #2: 22,963 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), and 4,725 sp

Bin #3: 11,502 ancient gold solidi and 247 ancient octagonal platinum pieces (see Arden Vul items), as well as 2,921 gp and 1,391 pp

Bin #4: 244 10-gp gems; 139 50-gp gems; 113 100-gp gems; 17 500-gp gems; and 3 1,500-gp gems.

SL12-27: Privy

This chamber smells of excrement. A hole in the floor leads down 30' to an unmapped cave. Every spring, water seeps into that cave, filling it several feet deep. It leeches out over the next month, taking much of the filth with it.

SL12-28: The Workshops of Kerbog Khan

This 15'-tall, rough-hewn chamber is the site of Kerbog Khan's magical and mechanical experimentation. It is brightly lit with continual light spells. Three distinct areas define the chamber.

East (Protective Diagrams): Two 12'-diameter diagrams have been incised into the floor and filled with silver and glass chips; they are a magic circle (for devils) and a pentagram (for other evil creatures). Between the circles is a chest filled with rare unguents, dusts, and other materials used in summoning (total value 325 gp).

Center-East (Automaton Construction): Four large work-benches are set in a square around an open work area. In the work area is a 10'-square, upright scaffold of plasteel from which hangs the incomplete torso of a bipedal exploration automaton (see new monsters). Scattered about the workbenches are piles of plasteel plating, plasteel tubing, lengths of wiring, and a wide array of tools. The tools include ordinary carving knives, screwdrivers, hammers, mallets, chisels, and clamps, as well as several more unusual items: a rudishva soldering iron with a spool of solder, a rudishva industrial stapler, a rudishva portable cutting tool, and a rudishva lesser welding tool (for all, see the 'industrial tools' entry in new technological items appendix).

Center-West (Forge and Materials Storage): Kerbog Khan built a small forge and installed a small summoned fire elemental in it. The Khan is not a talented smith, but he uses the forge for melting metals and forming small parts from steel and iron. Stacked near the forge are 200 board-feet of lumber pillaged from the Halls. Two battered wooden chests hold chunks of steel and iron. Leaning against the south wall are several large (5'x10') sections of plasteel in various colors (orange, grey, etc.). About a dozen kegs and barrels holding wine, water, and ale sit in this location as well.

West (Reading Area and 'Children'): Atop a thick plush carpet depicting a flying dragon (250 gp) sits a comfortable leather chair and a table with a rudishva GnuCoder 1000 image screen and a scattering of rudishva data crystals (see new technological items). Standing quietly by the chair are two of the Khan's most prized automatons, that is, "Children" named Milo and Phoebe (see new monsters). The pair are sentient, and devoted to their 'father' (Kerbog Khan). They are curious to meet new 'friends' of their father, and grow distressed if he is criticized. If convinced that their father is gone for good, they will imprint onto the highest charisma PC and follow that person until they are physically restrained. They importune this lucky PC constantly for attention, love, and favors.

Under the table is a great treasure, the sole surviving rudishva power supply charger from the Beacon (see new technological items); next to it is a greater power supply with 245 hours remaining as well as sixteen freshly-charged lesser power supplies (see new technological items).

The following data crystals (see new technological items) are present here: The Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven: Technical Specifications of this Yort-Class Exploration Vessel, Crew Roster (Medical), Service Manual for Optical Devices produced by

GnuCoder S.A., Voyages of the Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven, Biological Systems: an Owner's Manual, Injury and Disease: Practical Solutions, and Specimen XRF-6013: Notes by Haddi-Yon, Chief Medical Officer (see Arden Vul books for all).

GM Note: Thanks to his facility with automatons and his expansive knowledge of rudishva technology, Kerbog Khan has a chance to repair and reprogram malfunctioning rudisha military-grade security constructs. These include the partially-functioning constructs Gethe (6-16), Haine (6-84), and Ranke (SL10A-16) and the currently inoperative constructs Stiller (6-36) and Dronke (SL10A-20). Repairs require 4-6 months of labor and a significant outlay of supplies, to the tune of 15,000 gp worth of precious metals and gems and 3 cubic feet of rudishva technological detritus (wires, circuit boards, etc.). At the end of such a period, the Khan's base chance to have restored the construct to full operability is 75% for Gethe, Haine and Ranke, and 40% for Stiller and Dronke. The base chance rises by 5% for each construct that the Khan has previously studied (whether or not the repairs were successful) and by 15% for each construct he has successfully restored. For perhaps obvious reasons, Kerbog Khan will be most unwilling to allow restored constructs to leave his own service, regardless of what bargains have been struck with those who bring the malfunctioning constructs to him. The GM should carefully consider the quantity and quality of the Khan's previous interactions with PCs before determining whether the Khan will allow such a valuable (and dangerous) resource to escape his clutches. Some factors that might mitigate in the PCs' favor include: provision of a second (or third) construct to be 'owned' by the Khan; providing directions and access to either the bridge or the shuttle bay of the Beacon (e.g., SL14-10 to SL14-14 and SL13-37); and so forth.

Inhabitants:

1. Milo, one of the children automatons of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL NG; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 1-2; MR 20%. Special defenses: immune to cold.
2. Phoebe, one of the children automatons of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters): SZ S; AL NG; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 2; HP 11; #AT 1; Dmg 1-2; MR 20%. Special defenses: immune to cold.

SUB-LEVEL 13: THE LOST CHAMBERS OF ARDEN

This level comprises two relatively distinct parts, connected only by a small huldugritti-haunted network of tunnels. The first area contains a set of chambers built during the peak of the Archontean rule in Arden Vul by a small but powerful circle of officials obsessed with the deeds and legends of the imperial heroine, Arden. So intense was their devotion that they created these chambers as a sort of shrine to her, thereby helping elevate her to the status of demigod. Their cult, known to members as the Defenders of Arden (a pun, as Arden's nickname was 'the Defender'), was highly restricted in membership, and its chambers were protected by elaborate entry rituals and safeguards (SL13-8). These chambers encompassed several important cultic centers, including the Hall of the Labors (SL13-10), where members of the cult could attempt to emulate the famous Twelve Labors of Arden; the Hall of the Twenty (SL13-20), where statues of the Twenty Worthies are to be found; and the Reliquary of Arden (SL13-22), which contains items thought to be relics of the great Defender. Note might also be made of the grotto of Arden (SL13-2) and its colossal head of the Defender; the grotto is connected to the waterfall's plunge pool (EX-17).

The Defenders of Arden maintained a special pentarch of soldiers, the Guardians of Arden, to watch over the cultic areas. When the archon made the fateful decision to withdraw all imperial forces from Arden Vul, the cult ordered the Guardians to stay put. About half the force mutinied, turning on and killing their officers and engaging in fierce battles with their fellows. The few Guardians who survived the fighting were killed by the special imperial stone guardians (see new monsters) who guarded the reliquary.

Those who discover and navigate this part of the sub-level have the opportunity to follow the Path of Arden. Doing so means undergoing twelve potentially lethal tests meant to emulate the Labors of Arden. In addition to the rewards offered by each Labor, successful completion of the first eleven allows one to proceed to the twelfth, wherein it becomes possible to meet the demi-god Arden herself. In this meeting it is possible to acquire the potent artifact known as the spear of Arden (see new magic items), an item which will provide potent aid to those dedicated to stopping Rimmaq-Isfet or Kauket (10-37).

The second region on this sub-level is smaller, consisting of the shuttle bay pod from the Beacon (SL13-37). Within the pod are two shuttles, one of which (SL13-37B) may be used for interstellar travel (for those GMs who wish to allow this). Readyng the shuttle for such travel, however, requires that enterprising starfarers first acquire other items (see SL13-37B for details). The shuttle, plus the airlock and runway leading to the exterior (SL13-39), were always the last hope of the rudishva for escape from this planet. It took the engineering and science staff a very long time to devise a way to convert the shuttle from atmospheric to interstellar travel. Eventually the team, led by Chemical Engineer Fek-Prail (9-96) and Science Officer Spiv-Kol (SL9-48), reached an innovative solution involving rare minerals from SL9 and the relatively ubiquitous arcanum (see new magic items) rocks. But by the time the solution was announced, the kaliyani had already decided to remain on this planet and had begun to plan betrayal. The triumphant news of the solution was thus the trigger for the revolt of the kaliyani and the swift destruction of the rudishva. Therefore, despite their impressive scientific breakthrough, the rudishva never got a chance to use the shuttle.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Rudishva areas: SL13-37 to SL13-39

Archontean areas: SL13-4 to SL13-27

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Exterior: underwater tunnels at SL13-1, leading to the cliff face and plunge pool at EX-17

To Exterior: runway at SL13-39, leading to cliff face (currently impassable)

To Level 4: stairs at SL13-9, leading up to 4-168

To Level 6: stairs at SL13-27, leading up to 6-144

To Level 7: tunnel at SL13-33, leading up to 7-59

To Level 9: tunnel at SL13-32, leading down to 9-44

To Level 9: rudishva teleporter (T20) at SL13-38, leading to 9-97

To Sub-Level 8: staircase at SL13-29, leading up to SL8-24

To Mithruin in a mine on Mount Juventus (see World of Archontos appendix): tunnel at SL10-10A

To Borealios (see World of Archontos appendix): forest path at SL13-10D

To the Realm of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador (see World of Archontos appendix): tunnel and enchanted door at SL13-10F

To the skies above Agoreon, on the coast of Ostralius (see World of Archontos appendix): portal at SL13-10K

To the snowy mountains north of Arden Vul: a forest cave at SL13-10E

To the Astral Plane: portal at SL13-10C

To the Elemental Plane of Water: portal at SL13-10G

To the Elemental Plane of Fire: lava tubes at SL13-10K

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

Only the following areas have some form of random encounter. All other areas have none.

1. Areas SL13-6, SL13-7, SL13-9 to SL13-12

Checks should be made every three turns, with a 1 in 4 chance for encounter. The only encounter will be Lytta, the insane former woman-at-arms (see SL13-6). She furtively tracks visitors, but never attacks; if cornered and/or apprehended, she has some information to impart.

2. Areas SL13-28 to SL13-36

Checks should be made every three turns, with a 1 in 4 chance for an encounter.

D20	Encounter
1-18	1-2 huldugritti (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 0 or 2; MV 120' or 60'; HD 8+8; HP 56, 48; #AT 2 (in stone form); Dmg 2-16/2-16; MR 25%. Special attacks: hurl boulders (2-8 HP each). Special defenses: meld with stone (cure 3-24 HP); assume spirit form; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire, electricity, and mind-affecting spells. If slain, these creatures should be subtracted from the roster at SL13-34.
19-20	Crinux the Wrinkled and a 5 th -level thief conversus, sent from the Priscian encampment at 9-31 to locate their missing colleagues (see SL13-31). For stats, see 9-31.

LEVEL KEY

SL13-1: Entry Tunnels (leading to EX-17)

Two holes in the plunge pool of the Long Falls (EX-17) lead to the forgotten shrine to Arden the Defender. The western entrance is 35' below the pool's waterline, while the eastern entrance is 40' below the waterline. Each tunnel is completely water-filled and climbs slowly as it extends inward (climbing 5' each). A strong current, produced by the impact of the water dropping from the falls, propels those who find the tunnels down their length. Given this current, as well as the current running through SL13-2, it is extremely difficult to swim back into the plunge pool once a visitor has entered this sub-level.

SL13-2: Watery Grotto

This large cavern is half-filled with water from the plunge pool (EX-17). The tunnels from SL13-1 exit on the floor of the grotto, roughly 30-35' below the surface of the pool. The ceiling of the cavern, covered by a dimly luminescent moss, rises another 50' above the surface of the water. A noticeable current in the pool draws those in the water towards the entrance to SL13-3. Only highly accomplished swimmers (or untrained swimmers who succeed at a bend bars roll) are able to resist the current, let alone swim back up the tunnels (SL13-1) to the plunge pool.

Those entering the grotto from the tunnels are confronted by a colossal bust of Arden the Defender (SL13-5), partly covered by the water of the grotto. The water line reaches Arden's lower lip, rendering her visage stern and foreboding.

To the west is another worked area, a landing that rises 10' above the waterline (SL13-4).

To the south is a ledge rising 5' above the waterline. The corpse of a caveman, mauled by the snapping turtle, rests on the ledge, near the remains of a fire ring.

The pool in the grotto teems with fish and small crayfish. It is also the hunting ground of an ancient and very nasty giant snapping turtle. There is a 33% chance that the turtle is hibernating in area SL13-3 when the grotto is first entered, but movement and especially noise in the grotto are likely (75% chance) to rouse it to investigate. If it is already present in the grotto, then it is able to use its surprise attack on any who emerge from the tunnels (SL13-1). If badly wounded (i.e., if it takes more than 2/3 of its HP in damage), the turtle retreats to area SL13-3.

The worked passages leading north are currently 20' below the surface of the water; as a result the water covers the first 20' of stairs in each corridor. The corridors and stairs are difficult to climb due to the amount of debris – flotsam and jetsam in part, but also bloated, rotted, and decomposed animal and human remains – that have washed up inside them. Those climbing out of the debris into the north-leading corridors have a chance (2 in 6) to hear the sounds of bare feet running near SL13-6.

A fair amount of treasure has been swept onto the floor of the grotto over the years. The treasure items are scattered across the floor of the grotto and are thus difficult to locate. For each turn of conscious searching the grotto floor, there is a 1 in 6 chance to locate one of the items from the treasure list.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 giant snapping turtle: SZ L; AL N; AC 5 (0); MV 30', 20' swimming; HD 10; HP 73; #AT 1; Dmg 6-24. Special attacks: surprise on 1-4.

Treasure:

Brooch of confident action (see new magic items); a water-tight silver scroll case containing a scroll of Kentfillian's airy command (see new spells); a red glass activation square (see Tothian teleportation rings in new magic items); a platinum statuette of a discus-thrower (375 gp); a steel cooking pot filled with 438 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), wrapped tight in a bear skin and bound with rope; a battered but still usable Archontean legionary's short sword; a shield -1, missile attractor; a helm of comprehending languages and reading magic; an ivory coffer carved with scenes of the Fourth Labor of Arden (see World of Archontos appendix; 225 gp) containing two candles of invocation; two tokens of Arden (see Arden Vul items); a pair of rare bottles of Archontean apple brandy protected in a leather carrying case (90 gp each); and a scattering of 329 cp, 75 sp, and 51 gp.

SL13-3: Lair of the Snapping Turtle

The tunnel to this side cave is located 20' below the surface of the pool in SL13-2. Some of the rock at the bottom of this cave is fractured, allowing water to drain regularly from it and the neighboring pool. The drain pulls enough water that careless or weak swimmers in SL13-2 will be pulled into SL13-3 and towards the drain. For this reason, the snapping turtle likes to lie in wait here, near the drain; there is a 33% chance that turtle is lurking in the muck near the drain when visitors first arrive in SL13-2. The turtle may also retreat to this cave if badly wounded.

SL13-4: Landing

A set of stairs rises 10' from the water of the grotto to this worked landing. Empty torch sconces are visible along the walls. The west wall bears an inscription carved in 2'-tall letters in Mithric. It reads: "Let all persons honor the sacrifice of Arden, founder of this site and defender of her people." In smaller (6") letters, below the main inscription, is carved: "Lucullus Axia had this made as thanks to Lady Arden for rescuing him." Beneath the inscriptions are two clay lamps (unlit) and three tarnished ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items).

SL13-5: Colossal Bust of Arden the Defender

Looming over the grotto (SL13-2) is a colossal sculpture of the head and shoulders of Arden the Defender. Rising 45' from the base of the grotto almost to its ceiling, the sculpture depicts a solemn Arden in neo-realist Archontean style, wearing a legionary helm and with long warrior braids.

The water level in the grotto has risen over time such that the waterline is just at Arden's lower lip, making it look as if she is peering across the surface of the water or just emerging from it. Adding to the eerie effect are darkened streaks of stone under her eyes from dripping water.

A hidden tunnel exists within the nostrils of the colossal head, allowing one to clamber upwards through a 3'-wide passageway to area SL13-10. The nostrils are 10' above the water line, and the passageway climbs 30' upward at a steep pitch before ending at a secret door.

Secret Door (north): The door is normal to find from the south, and opens by locating a 1" hole in the roof of the tunnel and pushing an appropriate implement into that hole.

SL13-6: Lytta the Survivor

This former gathering hall and cloakroom is now the home of a madwoman named Lytta. A strong reek emanates from the door of the chamber, alerting visitors to the presence of feces and rot long before they reach its broken door.

Within is a disgusting sight. The frescoes on the walls, which once depicted upper-class Archontean dressed in traditional tunics, have been defaced: the heads of all fifty persons have been scratched out. Furthermore, the walls are smeared with filth and covered with scribbled names. Two seem to be repeated: "Vesania" in a stable hand, and "Lytta" in a more uneven, shaky Archontean script. A large wooden table occupies the center part of the chamber, but no chairs are in sight (Lytta burned them all years ago). Piles of broken equipment, skeletonized corpses of humans and animals, and mounds of excrement litter the sides and rear of the chamber.

If not encountered previously, Lytta will be found here, crouching atop the table and muttering to herself. Her hair is long and matted, she wears a tattered tunic, and she smells rank. She is clearly insane. She resists contact with explorers, shrieking, kicking, and scratching until physically held down. At that point she can be questioned, although her answers are difficult to decipher. She gives her name as Lytta, although if pressed will agree that once she was Versania. She is desperately afraid of 'it', the demon of the waters (i.e., the giant snapping turtle). She cannot remember how long she has existed here (12 years). Once upon a time she carried a spear (she was a man-at-arms). She has encountered nobody in a long time, except the 'nice corpses'. She is afraid of the Hall of the Labors (SL13-10), since 'spirits occupy it' (the only other living occupant of this portion of the sub-level died there attempting to overcome one of the labors). The areas to the north (e.g., SL13-13 and beyond) are 'filled with the dead' and 'lack all food'. It seems clear that she has existed on raw fish and the flesh of dead creatures swept into the grotto by the falls. If allowed to run free, Lytta will flee towards SL13-2; there she will risk the snapping turtle and attempt to hide out on one of the ledges. Thereafter, so long as the party is present in this sub-level she will shadow the party, muttering softly and acting bizarrely.

Although creepy, Lytta is harmless. She cannot be cured short of a heal spell. She has a makeshift fishing line, a dagger, and a belt of dwarvenkind that she calls her "seeing belt" that was taken years ago from one of the corpses.

GM Note: A dozen years ago Versania accompanied an expedition to the ruined city. While horsing around with her fellow men-at-arms, she fell into the plunge pool and was swept into area SL13-2. She barely escaped the snapping turtle and has existed here ever since, long bereft of her senses.

Inhabitants:

1. Lytta, insane Archontean woman: SZ M; AL N; AC 9; MV 120'; HD 1-1; HP 3; #AT 1; Dmg 1-4 (dagger). Possessions: dagger, fishing line, belt of dwarvenkind.

SL13-7: Antechamber

The northern door is broken and swings crazily on its hinges; the southern door is intact and locked. The walls are bare. Above the archway leading to SL13-10 is the Mithric inscription "She was immovable and steadfast."

Within are the corpses of five long dead Archontean; they show signs of having slain each other with swords and spears. It is possible to locate 2 usable short-swords and 2 spears among the detritus.

SL13-8: Faces of Arden

This 15'-tall room was built to prevent those not initiated into the cult of Arden from entering the chambers to the south. A dozen battered and broken corpses lie on the floor. The corpses are a mix of ancient and modern, and include eight ancient Archontean legionaries, two lizardmen, a basic exploration automaton of Kerbog Khan (see new monsters), and a human adventurer. Returning the automaton's remains to the Khan might fetch 500-1,000 gp and/or several pieces of valuable information.

The east and west walls of the chamber feature 10'-tall carvings of the stylized face of Arden familiar from the colossi (EX-6) and from the watery grotto (SL13-5). That is, huge faces in a socialist-realist style: Arden wears a legionary helm and warrior braids, and looks into the middle of the chamber. An inscription in 2'-tall, silver-filled, Mithric letters occupies the north wall next to the door: "Only those worthy of the loyalty of Arden may proceed further. Be warned!"

In the center of the chamber is a 10'-tall, specially designed imperial stone guardian (see new monsters) carved to look like Arden herself. The guardian wears legionary gear, but instead of Arden's spears, it carries hammers. The guardian is programmed to activate when the southern door is manipulated incorrectly.

The door to the south is not a normal door. It is stone, and carved like another face of Arden, similar to the others in the chamber. A permanent magic mouth exists on the face; those coming within 3' of the mouth hear the following in Mithric: "Present signs of your fidelity, and you shall pass." At close range it is apparent that there are slots in the eyes of the door's face. To open the door, one must do one of two things: 1) insert the stone of a ring of Arden (see Arden Vul items) into either of the two holes, or 2) insert a token of Arden (see Arden Vul items) into either hole. Any other manipulation of the door, physical or magical, causes the magic mouth to intone in Mithric: "You are found wanting."

At that point, the stone guardian activates and attempts to destroy any who remain in the chamber. The guardian does not pursue up the stairs.

Inhabitants:

1. Enhanced imperial stone guardian (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 9+3; HP 71; #AT 2; Dmg 3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: hit only by +2 weapons; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

Treasure:

Among the battered corpses are two ancient Archontean shields, three Archontean short swords, a scroll of protection from magic, a scattering of 37 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), 29 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items), 55 sp, and 39 gp, a platinum band (200 gp), and a cap of serenity (see new magic items).

SL13-9: Stairs Up to 4-168

These stairs wend upwards for at least 700' before exiting at area 4-168.

SL13-10: Hall of the Labors

This long hall is 20' tall, brightly lit with continual light, and supported by twelve pillars, six on the east side of a central sunken area and six on the west side. The chamber is perhaps the most important site in the sub-level, and one which might provide canny PCs with important, even crucial, assistance if they choose to fight Kauket (see 10-37).

The north and south walls features elaborate and surprisingly well-preserved frescoes illustrating iconic moments from each of the twelve labors of Arden. An inscription in giant 2'-tall, silver-filled, Mithric letters (75 gp for the silver) occupies the central portion of the north wall, above the sunken area. It reads: "Only the worthy should seek to emulate the deeds of the Great Defender. Choose wisely."

Pillars: Eleven of the twelve pillars are carved in a spiral manner so as to tell the story of one of the twelve labors. At eye height on the outer face of each pillar is carved an Archontean numeral, from I to XI, around which the narrative scenes flow. The twelfth pillar has the numeral XII, but no additional carved images, since the Archontean believe that Arden's twelfth labor is still to come. A kind GM might rule that a thief or dwarf who inspects the pillars might notice that the numerals seem to be unusual and/or magical, and that pressing them causes something to happen.

In fact, touching any of the numeral plaques triggers a series of powerful permanent magical effects. First, a deep voice speaks in Mithric: "You have chosen to attempt the [First, e.g.] Labor of Arden! Pass through the portal if you dare. Return with proof of your success." Next, a shimmering, colored, portal some 15' in diameter opens in the sunken area in the center of the hall. The color of the portal varies by the Labor to be attempted. Each portal allows access to a demi-plane upon which the labor may be attempted. Portals remain open for two turns before closing. A given portal can only be opened once per week. This means that once within a demi-plane, an individual or party must succeed in the pertinent Labor or else be stranded (or die).

Each pillar, along with its portal and associated labor, is given its own separate description (see areas SL13-10A to SL13-10L).

Central Sunken Area: In the center of the chamber is a 20'-diameter circular 'arena' set 5' below the surface of the floor. The relatively recent corpse of a Knight of the Azure Shield lies in the sunken area. It shows signs that the knight was mauled by claws. Portals to the demi-planes wherein the Labors of Arden may be replicated open here.

The Labors of Arden: The Cult of Arden that created this area wished to test its members by allowing them, when ready, to replicate any or all of the famous Labors of Arden. Through works of great sorcery (in which Kentillian the archmage was involved), expenditure of much treasure, and many years of plane-walking, the cult located eleven demi-planes that either already duplicated features of one of the labors or that could be 'seeded' to the cult's instructions. The cult imagined that members would proceed through the labors, from easier (1st and 2nd) to more difficult (10th and 11th). As will be made clear below, replication of the 'labors' is possible in most cases. While each labor offers the chance (or occasionally the requirement) of difficult combat, many of the Labors provide alternatives to simple hack and slash. A clever party can, in most cases, secure the appropriate symbol of victory without necessarily slaughtering every being within sight. Indeed, in some cases it is entirely advisable to use stealth and guile rather than brute force.

Completing the first eleven labors, moreover, allows successful parties to meet Arden the Defender herself (see SL13-10L). Arden, now a demi-god, bestows a powerful artifact, the spear of Arden Ascended (see new magic items) on good-aligned parties who survive the labors. Her spear is invaluable to those seeking to battle Kauket (see area 10-37).

GM Note: Knowledge of the Labors of Arden was ubiquitous during the peak of the Archontean empire, as they were used as educational and patriotic tales by schoolmasters for centuries. Any modern Archontean should know something about the Labors, even if the details may be obscure. A party composed entirely of non-Archontean, however, will be at a loss. While the carvings on the pillars reveal something of the narrative of each Labor, only an illustrated copy of the Labors of Arden such as that found on the corpse in SL13-11 provides the full narrative (see the Twelve Labors of Arden in Arden Vul books).

Secret Door (south): The door is difficult to locate (1 in 8 chance) and has no easy mechanism for opening from this side. It must be pried and broken open (inflicting 50 HP damage, plus a successful open doors roll).

Treasure:

The corpse of the knight has a usable suit of banded mail +1, a two-handed sword +2 (INT 13; empathy, Neutral Good, detect evil in a 10' radius, detect invisible objects in a 10' radius; ego 4), and a purse with twenty-five rhodochrosites (10 gp each).

SL13-10A: The First Labor: the Owlbears of Mount Juventus

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden spears an owlbear.

Pillar: Arden receives a commission from the Emperor, travels through villages, talks to goblin elders dressed in the flamboyant goblin style, climbs the mountain, enters a cave, and slays four owlbears with her spear.

Portal: A pale yellow portal, leading to a stone column painted pale yellow on the demi-plane.

Demi-plane: The plane consists of a narrow valley surrounded by steep mountain slopes. A small village of 30 goblin miners is found in the valley floor, with their sheep and vegetable gardens. The mountainsides are riddled with mines and caves. The goblins, who speak a debased form of Archontean, mine the mountain for iron. The owl-bear cave is near the top of the mountain, and consists of a large (40'-diameter) cave with five protruding tunnels that connect to varying layers of the mines. The goblins happily point visitors towards the source of the problem, and will reward their saviors with as many iron ingots as they can carry. The goblins refuse to depart, citing their obligation to mine ore for their masters.

Labor: Kill all four owlbears.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Bringing an owl-bear feather and an owl-bear fang to the pale yellow stone column causes the portal to re-open. PCs can step through back to Arden Vul. One of the distant mine tunnels leads to a forgotten mine on the actual Mount Juventus, on Mithruin (see World of Archontos Appendix).

Repeating the Labor: Owlbear eggs are hidden all over the mountain. By the time that a week has passed on the Prime Material Plane another group of owlbears will have been born on the demi-plane. If only a week has passed, the new owlbears will have only 2HD and do 1-2/1-2/1-6 damage; they will be fully mature after a month.

Inhabitants:

1. 4 owlbears: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 5+2; HP 39, 33, 32, 29; #AT 3; Dmg 1-6/1-6/2-12. Special attacks: hug.

Treasure: A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items), plus a set of ebony and silver ninepins (575 gp), and a heavy silver soup tureen carved with images of heroic halfling warriors (225 gp).

SL13-10B: The Second Labor: the Troll of Pelousia

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden stands over a dismembered troll, brandishing her spear and gladius

Pillar: Trolls pillage, murder, and rape human villagers; the villagers beseech an archon for aid; a logothete hands Arden orders; Arden speaks to a troll of unusual size, while surrounded by other menacing trolls; Arden fights a duel with the large troll; she dismembers it with her gladius; the trolls depart carrying the pieces of their leader.

Portal: A lemon yellow portal leading to a stone circle painted lemon yellow within the demi-plane.

Demi-plane: The plane consists of a 3-mile long canyon with steep, cave-lined walls. The top of the canyon is forested, and home to woodland creatures. A deep but narrow lake occupies the center of the canyon; it is filled with fish. Thirty bands of trolls make their homes along the canyon walls; they fight each other constantly, and subsist on fish, rabbits and other small game. They are ruled by one larger troll named Edda, who wears a silver collar of office.

Labor: Defeat Edda and take his silver collar. The crude approach would be to attempt to slay all 150 trolls that inhabit the plane. The smarter approach is to emulate Arden, and negotiate with Edda. Demanding to speak to the troll chief will prevent an immediate assault, and Edda is too proud to ignore a challenge. One PC will need to duel Edda to the death, or to dismemberment. If Edda is brought to negative hit points, he can be decapitated and the collar obtained. The trolls consider this to be fair and will let the victor and his/her friends depart in peace. Should the victor attempt to burn Edda after he has been defeated and decapitated, the other trolls will shout insults and grow menacing; within a turn they will attack. In this case, the visitors had better make swift tracks (with the collar) to the exit point before being overwhelmed. If the visitors' champion is defeated by Edda, the trolls will enslave the rest of the party for a decade (50%) or kill and eat them (50%).

Exiting the Demi-plane: Bringing the silver collar to the yellow stone circle causes the portal to open; the holder of the collar and any in a 10' radius (including trolls) may pass the portal. No other exits are known.

Repeating the Labor: If Edda has not been harmed with fire, he regenerates quickly and retains his office. If he has been permanently killed, the trolls elect a new chieftain within a few days. It takes them a week to construct a new silver collar of office.

Inhabitants:

1. Edda the troll: SZ L; AL CE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 6+6; HP 40; #AT 3; Dmg 5-8/5-8/2-12. Special defenses: regenerate.

2. 149 trolls: SZ L; AL CE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 6+6; HP as needed; #AT 3; Dmg 5-8/5-8/2-12. Special defenses: regenerate.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items); silver collar (50 gp).

SL13-10C: The Third Labor: the Laughing Lord of the Grain Isles

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden tosses a medium-sized metal box, within which is a twisted and contorted bipedal figure with tusks, into the waters.

Pillar: Three figures in baggy pants and tunics fly above many halflings; the figures stand in the door of a pagoda-like tower, while halflings pile tribute at their feet; halfling leaders consult with Arden; Arden has dinner with the figures, who are seen to have tusks; the tusked figures drink much wine, while Arden pours hers into a potted plant; Arden shows one of the figures an open box; Arden pushes him into it; Arden seals it with candle wax; the other two figures flee; Arden drops the box into water.

Portal: An orange portal leads to an orange calcite rock, next to which is a locked stone chest. Within the chest is a lead box of trapping (see new magic items).

Demi-plane: A 6-square mile plain, in the center of which is a pagoda of five stories. The plain is planted with grapes, which are tended by 25 charmed halflings. If the grapes are molested, the halflings attack. Dispel magic ends a halfling's ensorcelment. A band of ogre magi inhabits the pagoda; every hour one of them flies forth from the upper level to inspect the halflings' work. If offered a gift, the ogre magi invite the visitors to dine. The wine is enchanted, and causes the imbiber to be susceptible to the ogre magi's charm spells (-3 to save). The bottom two floors of the pagoda are given over to a wine press and wine storage. The next two provide luxurious living quarters for the ogre magi. The top floor provides egress to the open air, and also a portal to the Astral Plane.

Labor: The party must get an ogre magi body into the lead box of trapping and return it to the stone chest next to the orange calcite rock. The task may be accomplished either by force or by guile. In the case of force, the ogre magic and their servants must be defeated in combat. In the case of a guile, an ogre mage might be tricked to look into the box of trapping. The base chance of doing so is 25%, provided the PC provides a reasonably clever rationale to the ogre mage. The chance can be increased by 10% for every flagon of wine beyond two that the ogre mage drinks while the PC does not (that is, only if the ogre mage becomes drunker does the modifier accrue), by a flat 10% if the PC doing the tricking has at least CHA 15, and by a flat 5-15% at the GM's judgment if the GM feels the PCs have been exceptionally clever. Encouraging the ogre magi to get drunk is a role-playing maneuver to be adjudicated by the GM. If the PCs entrap an ogre mage, the others will flee in dismay, and the halflings will be free of their charm.

Exiting the Demi-plane: The lead box of trapping must have an ogre mage (alive or dead) within it, and must be replaced in the stone chest. The portal to Arden Vul reopens. There is also a portal to the Astral Plane in the ogre magi's pagoda.

Repeating the Labor: A new band of ogre magi occupy the pagoda and the demi plane within 1-6 weeks. It takes them an additional 3-6 months to acquire suitable halfling slaves.

Inhabitants:

1. 25 charmed halfling vinicultivators: SZ S; AL NG; AC 7; MV 90'; HD 1-6 HP; HP 6(x4), 5(x4), 4(x6), 3(x6), 2(x2), 1(x2); #AT 1; Dmg by weapon (sling, spear, dagger).
2. 3-6 ogre magi (depending on party size and strength): SZ L; AL CE; AC 4; MV 90', 150' flying (Class B); HD 5+2; HP 39, 37, 36, 35, 34, 30; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12 or by weapon. Special attacks: charm person 1/day; sleep 1/day; ray of cold 1/day. Special defenses: fly (12 turns); become invisible; darkness 10' radius; polymorph to human form; regenerate 1 HP/rd; assume gaseous form.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items); 3,412 gp in newly minted imperial coins; a set of six masks for a masked ball made of platinum and depicting birds (1,500 pp each); a set of silver and jet jewelry in six pieces (490 gp the set); potions of diminution, human control (x4), polymorph self, speed; a scroll of protection from magic; and a pouch of capacity, a returning javelin, and a rod of turning (see new magic items for all three).

SL13-10D: The Fourth Labor: the Three Berserkers of Westholm

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden holds a necklace of bear-claws on the tip of her spear; she stands over the corpses of three barefoot, mail-clad Wiskin warriors

Pillar: An imperial emissary arrives at a Wiskin hall, carrying the fasces of authority; the jarl, who wears a necklace of bear-claws, refuses the emissary entrance to his hall; three barefoot Wiskinga, dressed in mail and furs, bite their shields and roll their eyes; they impale the emissary on their spears; Arden arrives; she dines in the jarl's hall; she drinks horns of ale with a Wiskin; she arm-wrestles another Wiskin; she beats a third Wiskin in a foot race; the three barefoot Wiskinga appear again, biting their shields; the jarl folds his arms; Arden fights and slays the berserkers; the jarl bows his head and presents his bear-claw necklace.

Portal: A cherry red portal conveys the PCs to a wintry forest, where a red-painted standing stone marks the spot.

Demi-plane: The plane is one of constant winter, with snow and wind. A faint track leads from the standing stone through the forest; after two miles it leads to a clearing, where two Wiskin structures sit. Several packs of winter wolves roam the forests; for every hour spent in the forest, there is a 2 in 6 chance to attract a pack. Once in the Wiskin clearing, though, visitors are safe from wolves. Of the structures, one is a sunken long hall, some 75' long and 20' wide. The other is a stable of sorts, 30' long by 15' wide. The stable holds reindeer. The long hall is brightly lit, with wood smoke coming from its central fire hole. Those seeking hospitality are greeted in a surly manner, but eventually allowed to enter the hall. Within Jarl Bjorn Bear-brother holds court among his thirty-six Wiskin warriors. The jarl is a huge man, some 6'6" tall, and built like a bear. His supporters are lean and tough, and seem more like foresters than farmers or servants. The jarl offers hospitality for four nights.

Labor: The visitors can either fight all of the Wiskinga, or attempt to complete four contests, one during each of the four nights allotted by the jarl. Days are spent drinking, jesting, and playing games. At night, the contests occur.

The first night, a huge Wiskin named Thorir challenges the party to a drinking contest. Any or all of the PCs may join in the contest, drinking horns of ale. Anyone engaged in the contest can drink CON/3 horns without problems; any horn beyond this requires a successful roll against CON to see if the player can stomach the strong ale, or else vomit it up and pass out. The checks start at 4d6 under CON, and increase by 1d6 for every two horns (thus, no checks for CON/3 horns; checks at 4d6 under CON for the next two, checks at 5d6 under CON for the next two, checks at 6d6 under CON for the next two, etc.). Thorir has CON 18.

The second night, another large Wiskin named Croul challenges the PCs to an arm-wrestling match. The match is best of 3 contests, with contests decided by each contestant rolling 3d6 and adding twice his/her to hit bonus from STR. High roll wins. Croul has an 18/93 STR (+4 to rolls).

The third night sees a slim Wiskin warrior maiden named Helga challenge the PCs to a footrace. The race requires contestants to race four times around the long house. A contestant's time in minutes is measured by the following formula: a roll of d6+6 minus the sum of a contestant's DEX adjustment to AC and CON adjustment to HP. So a contestant with DEX 16 and Con 16 would roll (D6+6)-(2+2), or (D6+6) - 4. A contestant with DEX 6 and CON 15 would roll (D6+6) - (-1+1), or (D6+6)-0. If results are tied, the race is re-run. Helga has DEX 17 and CON 16 (D6+1).

On the fourth night, several crazed berserkers arrive and attempt to kill the PCs. The number of berserkers starts at seven, with one fewer berserker for each contest won by one of the PCs. So, if the PCs won all three of the previous contests, only four berserkers arrive. Jarl Bjorn refuses all requests for aid against the berserkers. The visitors must prevail or be killed. If the visitors defeat the berserkers, the jarl voluntarily gives up his necklace to the victors.

Exiting the Demi-plane: To reactivate the portal to Arden Vul, one must bring the jarl's bear-claw necklace to the red-painted standing stone. One of the forest paths leads to the most remote mountain forests of Borelios (see World of Archontos appendix). The jarl's stables include eight reindeer and two sledges.

Repeating the Labor: The jarl creates a new bear-claw necklace within 1-3 weeks. If he has been slain, a new jarl occupies the hall in 2-4 months.

Inhabitants:

1. 4-7 bear-brother berserkers, as 7th-level Wisikin fighters (5 male, 2 female): SZ M; AL CN; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 7; HP 55, 50, 47, 44, 42, 39, 33; #AT 3/2; Dmg 6-13 (battle axe +2). Possessions: chain mail +1; battle axe +2. Due to their berserk state, the berserker fight until they reach -5 HP and are immune to mind-affecting spells. They have +1 to hit and +3 to damage from STR.
2. Jarl Bjorn Bear-brother, as 10th-level male Wisikin fighter, SZ M; AL CN; AC 0; MV 120'; HD 9+3; HP 90; #AT 3/2; Dmg 7-16 (two-handed sword +2). Abilities: STR 18/76, INT 10, WIS 9, DEX 16, CON 16, CHA 12. Possessions: two handed sword +2; chain mail +3.
3. 36 bear-brothers, as 3rd-level Wisikin fighters (18 male, 18 female); SZ M; AL CN; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 3; HP 30, 30, 28(x4), 27, 26(x4), 25, 25, 24(x4), 23(x4), 22, 21(x3), 20(x5); #AT 1; Dmg 2-9 (battle axe), or 2-7 (spear) or 2-9 (long sword). Possessions: scale mail; battle axe (x12); spear (x12); long sword (x12). They have +1 to hit and damage from STR.
4. 4-6 winter wolves: SZ L; AL N(E); AC 5; MV 180'; HD 6; HP 44, 41, 40, 38, 37, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: frost blast. Special defenses: immune to cold.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items); the bear claw necklace, which functions as an amulet of proof against detection and location. If all the Wiskinga are slain, a chest with 23,924 cp, 11,299 sp, sixteen heavy gold arm rings (100 gp each), and three potions of invulnerability may also be looted.

SL13-10E: The Fifth Labor: the Greedy Jarl

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: A yellow-haired, white-skinned giant prostrates itself before Arden, who carries her spear and torch. The corpses of two white wolves are nearby.

Pillar: A trio of giants, accompanied by huge wolves, stride towards a village; villagers empty coins and food into their sacks; the giants visit another village; Arden and Vul appear at the giants' hall; Arden slays both wolves; Arden kills two giants with spear and flame, while Vul blasts another with magic; they present the giants' heads to the emperor on a round platter.

Portal: A burgundy portal leads to a snow-swept forest and a horizontally-mounted, wooden, wagon-wheel painted burgundy.

Demi-plane: The plane consists of a wide broken countryside of pine forests, ravines, and gullies, all covered with a foot of snow. A simple log-and-daub fort, some 100'x75'x20' in size, is found on the spine of a ridge two miles from the portal. The fort contains a main hall, with fire pit, kitchen and long benches, plus three chambers and a pair of storerooms. Three frost giants and their six winter wolf pets call the hall home.

Labor: The visitors must slay at least one of the frost giants. If the PCs are lucky, they may catch one of the giants visiting the latrine outside the fort. Otherwise (and even in this case, if the target is able to alert the others), a battle royale will ensue. The winter wolves attempt to flank the PCs, while the giants wade in with massive swords.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Placing a giant's head on the painted wheel reopens the portal to Arden Vul. A cave located deep within the forest leads to an alternate exit, namely a hidden cave in the snowy mountains many miles north of Arden Vul.

Repeating the Labor: The giants' hall will be reoccupied within 1-3 months.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 frost giants: SZ L; AL CE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 10+1-4; HP 72, 70, 68; #AT 1; Dmg 4-24. Special attacks: hurl rocks (2-20 dmg). Special defenses: immune to cold.
2. 6 winter wolves: SZ L; AL N(E); AC 5; MV 180'; HD 6; HP 44, 41, 40, 38, 37, 35; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8. Special attacks: frost blast. Special defenses: immune to cold.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items). The giants have a total of 5,907 gp, 769 pp, three huge silver candlesticks (25 gp each), a golden crown that one giant wears as a ring (75 gp), and a dagger +3. The pelts of the winter wolves are worth 5,000 gp each.

SL13-10F: The Sixth Labor: the Lost Legion

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: The kneeling heroes, Arden, Vul, and Lucius Minux (see SL4-24), present two items to the emperor, a triangular phlamoulon (standard) and a grapefruit-sized acorn.

Pillar: A unit of heavy cavalry (kataphracts) rides forth carrying a phlamoulon bearing the numeral V; they ride through a canyon; a tunic-clad man greets the polemarch at the head of the column; the man stabs the polemarch; and barbarians ambush the troopers with arrows from the canyon heights; the tunic-clad man takes the phlamoulon; Arden, Vul, and a companion view the dead legionaries; the trio visit a Thorcin longhouse; they question several Thorcinga; they travel into the forest; they enter a clearing with several huts and a decrepit stone building; the heroes fight the man in the tunic, as well as several priests; they find the phlamoulon and two enormous acorns within the stone building; they present the phlamoulon and an acorn to the emperor.

Portal: A sky blue portal leading to a massive beech tree. Nailed to the tree is a board with the words "Danger" painted in blue paint.

Demi-plane: A vast, old-growth forest of huge beeches, oaks, and maples, studded with clear brooks and streams. It extends for scores of miles in every direction. The demi-plane is holy to Fenth, the harsh Thorcin lord of tree and forest, and a shrine to this deity lies at the center of the forest. The shrine to Fenth consists of a crumbling, vine-encased, roofless stone building about 20'x40'. Nearby are two sturdy huts made of fallen tree limbs. A necromantic 'priest' of Fenth lives in one hut, while his two assistants live in the other. Within the shrine is a blood-soaked stone altar surrounded by rose bushes. Hanging on the wall behind the altar is an Archontean phlamoulon (of the XV velites); atop the altar are two grape-fruit sized acorns of Fenth (see new magic items).

Labor: The visitors must locate the shrine of Fenth and recover either the phlamoulon or one of the acorns. Doing so requires defeating the priest, his assistants, and some summoned monsters. Without a tracker, it takes 2-12 days to stumble upon the shrine to Fenth; a ranger can manage this feat in 3-24 hours. Random encounters in the forest, with all manner of predator and prey, are possible if the GM wishes. There is a 75% chance that the priest is making a sacrifice when the PCs arrive; if not, he is in his hut. The assistants attack immediately. The priest first raises eight Fenth zombies (see new monsters) from the turf around the shrine, and then summons two harvest lords (see new monsters). Only then does he enter combat in support of his minions.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Bringing either the phlamoulon or the acorn of Fenth (or both) to the entry beech tree reopens the portal and causes a token of Arden to appear (see Arden Vul items). In addition, a trap door in the floor of the priest's hut drops down 10' to a 3'-diameter tunnel that, after many thousands of feet, ends in an elaborately carved wooden door detecting strongly of magic. Those exiting the door find themselves tumbling 5' from a doorway carved into a living mallorn tree located in the heart of the elven realm of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador (see World of Archontos appendix).

Repeating the Labor: A new priest of Fenth will be called to serve the god within 1-4 weeks. The priest will be a magic user (33%), druid (33%), or cleric (33%).

Inhabitants:

1. High priest of Fenth (formerly Bastolf of Narsileon), 8th-level male Thorcin magic user: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 120'; HD 8; HP 26; #AT 1; Dmg 2-7 (staff of Fenth). Abilities: STR 12, INT 17, WIS 11, DEX 16, CON 9, CHA 14. Possessions: bracers of defense (AC 4); staff of Fenth (see new magic items); amulet of spell turning (18 spells levels left); two potions of invisibility; eyes of Fenth (see new magic items). Spells: magic missile (x2), jump, shield; darkness 15'; invisibility, levitate; gust of wind, suggestion; ice storm.

2. Assistants, as 6th-level male Thorcin fighters: SZ M; AL LE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 5; HP 52, 48; #AT 1; Dmg 5-12 (long sword +1). Possessions: long sword +1; chain mail and shield +1. They have +1 to hit and +3 to damage from STR.
3. 8 Fenth zombies (see new monsters): SZ M; AL NE; AC 8; MV 90'; HD 4; HP 25(x8); #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/2-8; MR 25%. They cannot be turned while near the shrine.
4. 2 harvest lords (see new monsters): SZ M; AL NE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 6+6; HP 43, 39; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: ignite flammables (10%).

Treasure:

Buried under the stone floor of the fane are eight copper pots: 4 pots have 6,000 cp each; 2 have 4,000 sp each, and 2 have 2,000 gp. A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items) is a reward for completion.

SL13-10G: The Seventh Labor: the River God

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden and Vul are standing in a river; Vul holds a giant triton shell triumphantly in one hand, while Arden spears the water.

Pillar: Arden and Vul climb a massive cliff, down which pours a waterfall; they attempt to cross the river to an island in its midst, but their pack horse is swept away by the river; Vul waves his arms in a spell; the water forms into a shape and attacks the pair; Arden uses her spear to attack the water creature; the pair rest; a second creature attacks them; Vul spies a giant triton shell lodged in a rock near the island and beneath the waves; Arden swims into the river to recover the shell; she is attacked by the water creature; while she fends it off, Vul smashes the shell on a rock.

Portal: A navy blue portal leads to a 10'-diameter cave with a ledge that overlooks a massive saltwater grotto. On the floor of the entrance cave is incised a crude image of a triton shell.

Demi-plane: The demi-plane consists solely of the grotto, which is linked to the Elemental Plane of Water. The grotto is a used by elemental lords of water to farm giant tritons, whose shells are used as symbols of authority. The grotto is ringed on all sides by stone; the drop from the cave to the water surface is 30'. The grotto is 75' deep and five miles in diameter, and strong currents run through the seawater. The floor of the lake is covered with coral and coral-dwelling creatures, including large sea stars, sea cucumbers, and ten giant tritons (see new monsters).

Labor: The visitors must procure one of the giant triton shells and smash it on the floor of the cave. In addition to fighting one of the giant tritons beneath the surface of the water, the party must repel the large water elemental that defends the grotto. While it is relatively easy to target a single triton from the surface of the water, extended combat in one location has a 33% chance of drawing 1-2 more giant tritons within 3-6 rounds.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Smashing a giant triton shell on the floor of the entry cave reopens the portal, and causes a token of Arden to appear. If tracked, the current in the grotto leads to a second portal opening directly on to the Elemental Plane of Water.

Repeating the Labor: There are 10 giant tritons in the grotto. If all are slain, it takes the lords of elemental water 3-6 months to replace the stock. Slain water elementals are replaced in 2 days.

Inhabitants:

1. 10 giant sea tritons (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC 0 (shell) or 4 (body); MV 30'; HD 12; HP 88, 86, 84, 83, 80, 79, 78, 76, 75, 73; #AT 1; Dmg 6-24. Special attacks: paralysis; swallow prey.
2. 1 water elemental: SZ L; AL N; AC 2; MV 60'; 180' in water; HD 16; HP 103; #AT 1; Dmg 5-30. Special attacks: affect boats. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items); up to nine giant triton shells (the tenth must be destroyed to exit the demi-plane), each worth 1,500 gp.

SL13-10H: The Eighth Labor: the Hidden Priest

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden and Vul stand over a dead priest, holding up a torc from which depends a quarter-moon.

Pillar: A village headman and his daughter consult a chartouarios seated behind his desk; the chartouarios sends them away with a beating; priests of each of the Twelve gather in conclave; the chartouarios consults with the priests; the headman is found dead; the daughter bows before Arden and Vul; Vul stands in the temple of Osiris, while the Osiris priests surreptitiously steal from the faithful; Arden stands in the temple of Isis; Arden knocks the headdress from the priestess of Isis, revealing a torc with a pendant quarter-moon; Arden and Vul find a hidden shrine, with a quarter-moon-shaped altar; they destroy it; they deliver the torc to the chartouarios.

Portal: A turquoise portal leads to a set of stone flagstones set in a 20'-diameter circle; a 2'-wide hole in the center of the circle is pitch black, and is in fact a fixed sphere of annihilation.

Demi-plane: The demi-plane is a barren rock plateau one mile in diameter with a 100'-tall, 100'-wide mesa in its center. The view from the portal is thus a towering rock face about 2/3 mile away. Set into the rock face are eleven shrines, one to each of the 'the Twelve' except Jael (see World of Archontos appendix). The deities represented are: Anubis, Besa, Horus, Isis, Osiris, Ptah, Seker, Set, Thoth, Tiamat, and Wadjet. Each shrine consists of a 5'-deep hollow in the rock face; within each niche is a marble statue of the relevant deity, facing forward in the traditional pose. While each statue is carved so as to reflect the traditional iconography of its deity, each statue also bears a less traditional silver-and-jade torc. The torcs are made of high quality silver, and two pendants dangle from each: one of the pendants represents the main symbol of the deity, while the other pendant is the same for each torc and depicts a quarter-moon.

The top of the plateau is littered with broken skeletons and broken equipment. A deadly iron golem constructed to resemble a priestess of Isis guards the top, attacking those who ascend from either direction.

The rock face on the far side of the plateau appears at first glance to be void of interest. A secret door, however, leads to a twelfth shrine, that of Jael. There may be found a statue of the goddess, in the form of a cloaked night traveler; the statue is draped with sixty-three silver torcs with quarter-moon pendants.

Labor: The visitors must locate the shrine of Jael and recover one of the true torcs, ignoring the tempting but incorrect torcs hanging from the statues of the visible eleven shrines. Those climbing the plateau are confronted by the iron golem and must avoid it or defeat it. The golem is likely (66%) to hear those climbing either rock face, and will attempt to dislodge climbers as they near the top. The golem is slow, so it might be possible to avoid it once the plateau has been reached.

Only those with good historical knowledge are likely to know details about the ancient Archontean pantheon, although a cleric of Banion, Ellion, Lyncion, or Tychias has a better chance of recognizing the signs of the progenitor of his/her own deity (successful roll of 4d6 under INT to know some things about Jael).

Exiting the Demi-plane: Throwing a true torc of Jael (any of those found in the secret shrine on the far side of the plateau) into the sphere of annihilation found amid the entrance flagstones reopens the portal and causes a token of Arden to appear (see Arden Vul items). Destroying any of the false torcs triggers a blast of divine fire that inflicts 6-36 HP damage on those standing on the stone circle.

Repeating the Labor: There are a fixed number of true torcs, so if visitors remove or destroy all of them, all subsequent visitors will be stranded.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 iron golem: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 18; HP 80; #AT 1; Dmg 4-40. Special attacks: poison gas. Special defenses: +3 or better weapons to hit; immune to all magic except electricity, which slows it; healed by fire.

Treasure:

A token of Arden (see Arden Vul items); 11 silver torcs with pendants (50 gp each); 63 silver torcs of Jael, with platinum pendants (250 gp each).

SL13-10I: The Ninth Labor: Singing the Dead to Sleep

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden and Vul stand inside a cemetery, with dead legionaries sleeping quietly within their stone sarcophagi. Arden holds her spear in two hands, but has a legionary's trumpet hanging from a cord around her neck. Vul appears in his classic pose, arms crossed with each holding a wand; a lute is strapped to his back.

Pillar: Dead legionaries clamber from their crypts and tombs; the dead wander among a village; villagers flee and shutter their windows; Arden and Vul appear; Arden skewers many of the dead with her spear, Vul uses his wands, and a priest of Thoth (Ristus, aka Ptoh-Ristus – see 3-66) presents a holy symbol; the dead return; the trio fight again; an aulos-playing dead man appears; Arden blows a ram's horn and Vul strums a lute; the aulos player drops his instrument; the other dead legionaries return to their graves.

Portal: a pale green portal leads to a marble pedestal 15' in diameter that stands 15' above the floor of a vast crypt.

Demi-plane: The demi-plane consists entirely of a 300'x300' x50' space carved out of rock. A breeze blows from vents in all four sides. The entry pedestal is in the center of the chamber. Surrounding it and occupying the rest of the crypt are endless rows of sarcophagi. The sarcophagi are about 6'x3'x5' and lack lids; there are 1,238 sarcophagi in total. Each sarcophagus contains a partially embalmed but quite decrepit human form (once a legionary). Four of the sarcophagi are different: these four are placed in the four corners of the chamber (some 210' diagonally from the center), and are made of well-carved white marble. When the plane is entered, the haunting sound of a lone aulos playing a military march fills the crypt, and the legionaries begin to rise as ghosts. Forty ghosts are active at all times, so as ghosts are slain or turned, more rise from their crypts.

Labor: One must quiet the dead, either through prodigious feats of arms (1,234 ghosts!) or by cleverness. The ghosts can be turned, but those not turned attempt to overwhelm visitors and tear them apart. The ghosts even clamber atop each other so as to reach top of the central pedestal.

The most sensible solution is to quiet the dead by defeating the aulos-playing legionary. The aulos player rises from the marble crypt in the northeast corner, and remains by his crypt, playing his haunting melodies. PCs can attempt to slay him, but he is revealed to be a type of groaning spirit, and resists with keening voice and claws. PCs can also locate other musical instruments in the marble sarcophagi in the other three corners (northwest, southeast, southwest); each contains a lute, a trumpet, a cithara, and a pair of hand drums. Should two PCs play any two of the instruments within 40' of the aulos player, he will be defeated: he retreats to his sarcophagus, and the ghosts return to their sarcophagi.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Bringing one of the enchanted musical instruments back to the raised pedestal causes the portal to reopen.

Repeating the Labor: Four sets of musical instruments exist, one set in each of the marble sarcophagi. When all the instruments have been taken away, the magic of the demi-plane ceases to work; the portal will never open again.

Inhabitants:

1. 1,234 ghosts: SZ M; AL CE; AC 4; MV 150'; HD 4; HP 30, 25, 23, 21, and as needed; #AT 3; Dmg 1-4/1-4/1-8. Special attacks: stench; paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm.
2. Groaning spirit (modified): SZ M; AL CE; AC 0; MV 150'; HD 7; HP 47; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8; MR 50%. Special attacks: wail. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to charm, sleep, hold, cold, and electricity.

Treasure:

Four lutes, four trumpets, four cithara, and four pairs of hand drums. The instruments are all finely made, and could be sold for 100 gp each. The aulos is an aulos of undead command (see new magic items).

SL13-10J: The Tenth Labor: the Fallen Mage

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden and Vul stand outside a crypt (identifiable by the skulls within it); Arden holds a round emblem embossed with an image of a heron eating a fish.

Pillar: A mage advises the emperor; the mage is wearing a large brooch featuring a heron eating a fish; the same mage lies down in a crypt; the mage rises from the crypt, his flesh drawn and gaunt as if long embalmed; the undead mage points his finger at a courtier, who drops; the undead mage collects books from the dead courtier's library; Arden and Vul enter a house with the heron-and-fish symbol; they defeat skeletons and ghouls; they enter a crypt, and defeat constructs made of clay or flesh; they face off against the undead mage; the undead mage presents the pair with a talisman with the heron eating a fish and returns to his crypt; Arden offers the talisman to the emperor.

Portal: An emerald green portal leads to a dusty corridor, where a faded emerald green image of Arden has been painted on the stone wall.

Demi-plane: The demi-plane is actually the deadly crypt of the ancient archmage-turned-lich, Apollonius of Archontos. Apollonius is more than 2,300 years old. He prepared this demi-plane as the site for his lichdom, a place whence he could travel the planes and acquire further magical power. Apollonius is incredibly powerful and nigh invulnerable in his crypt, since he has stored pieces of his phylactery in three other small demi-planes. Most of the time Apollonius spends his time in semi-slumber, while his mind pursues important magical threads through the Astral and other planes. His consciousness can return to his crypt, however, at which point his might and anger are formidable.

The crypt involves a long central chamber surrounded by an ambulatory corridor, from which radiate storerooms, libraries, a laboratory, and the crypts of his apprentices and minions.

Labor: One must acquire one of Apollonius's talismans and escape before Apollonius turns the full might of his attention towards the intruders.

Apollonius resides in the central chamber of the crypt, in one of six identical thrones; the other five are occupied by his close advisors, who include a skeleton warrior, several ghoulish lords, and three bound rending demons (see new monsters). Other powerful undead flit about the chamber. More minions guard and occupy the radiating storerooms and lesser crypts. Six flesh golems, each wearing a talisman bearing Apollonius's symbol (a heron with a fish in its mouth), patrol the ambulatory corridor. It is possible – and recommended – for those completing the labor to fight the flesh golems, take one of the talismans, and thus avoid the more deadly denizens of Apollonius's lair.

PCs should encounter a flesh golem within 2 rounds of exiting the portal, before much of the complex can be explored. At this time there is a 50% chance that Apollonius's consciousness is present in his crypt; if so, his thin, reedy, menacing voice booms from the mouths of golems, inviting thieves to enter his sanctum and there meet their doom. Doing so is foolhardy, and recommended only for very high level parties. A kind GM should drop further hints about the dangers of the crypt via Apollonius's taunts. If Apollonius's consciousness is not present (50%), then the complex will be under guards and wards, the doors to the central chamber will be barred and wizard locked (at 25th level), and Apollonius's voice will not be present. Only if intruders spend more than 2 turns in his complex will Apollonius return to deal with the intruders. Defeating one of the flesh golems and taking its talisman is thus sufficient to accomplish the labor.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Unlike most other portals connected to the labors of Arden, this portal may be reopened simply by touching the emerald-green sketch of Arden on the corridor wall, even if one has not acquired one of the astral talismans.

Repeating the Labor: Each of the six flesh golems wears one of Apollonius's talismans. If somehow all six flesh golems are killed and all six talismans taken, Apollonius will replace the golems and talismans at a rate of one per month. If Apollonius himself is killed, then no new talismans may be created.

Inhabitants:

1. Apollonius of Archontos, lich, as a 25th-level magic user: SZ M; AL N(E); AC 0; MV 60'; HD 11+14; HP 91; #AT 1; Dmg 1-10. Special attacks: fear; paralysis; magic use. Special defenses: +1 or better weapon to hit; immunity to charm, sleep, enfeeblement, polymorph, cold, electricity, insanity and death spells/symbols. Possessions: ring of spell turning; ring of protection +3; wand of enemy detection (54 charges); wand of conjuration (23 charges); amulet of the planes; brooch of shielding (67 HP left); platinum circlet set with carnelians (containing the soul of Ancharius the skeleton warrior). Spells prepared: charm person, magic missile (x3), shocking grasp; continual light, invisibility (x2), mirror image, web; dispel magic, fireball, fly, lightning bolt, suggestion; confusion, ice storm, polymorph other (x2), bestow curse; cloudkill, cone of cold, hold monster, teleport (x2); forceful hand, death spell, disintegrate, project image, flesh to stone; grasping hand, phase door, power word, stun (x2), vanish; clenched fist, mass charm, irresistible dance, power word, blind, trap the soul; crushing hand, gate, power word, kill, prismatic sphere, time stop.
2. 6 flesh golems: SZ L; AL N; AC 9; MV 80'; HD 9, HP 40(x6); #AT 2; Dmg 2-16/2-16. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to most spells, although fire and cold spells slow them.
3. Ancharius, skeleton warrior (formerly 15th-level fighter): SZ M; AL N(E); AC 2; MV 60'; HD 9+2; HP 66; #AT 1; Dmg 4-13 (two-handed sword +3, flame tongue); MR 90%. Special attacks: +3 to hit; cause fear. Special defenses: cannot be turned. Possession: two-handed sword +3, flame tongue.
4. 3 ghoulish lords (as enhanced ghouls): SZ M; AL CE; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 6+6; HP 48, 44, 37; #AT 3; Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-10; MR

40%. Special attacks: paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm; turned as spectres, but unturnable when near Apollonius.

5. 3 rending demons (see new monsters): SZ L; AL CE; AC 0; MV 120', 60' climbing; HD 7+7; HP 50, 44, 42; #AT 4; Dmg 2-7/2-7/2-7/2-7; MR 40%. Constant abilities: infravision. Special attacks: surprise on 4 in 6; rend if three claws hit; cone of cold (1/day); darkness 10' radius. Special defenses: 90% undetectable; +2 or better weapons to hit. Special: levitation; dispel magic; detect illusion; detect invisible; teleport without error; gate (33% chance).
6. 5 spectres: SZ M; AL LE; AC 2; MV 150', 300' flying (Class B); HD 7+3; HP 55, 51, 47, 45, 40; #AT 1; Dmg 1-8. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis. They cannot be turned when Apollonius is within 50'.
7. 3 vampires: SZ M; AL CE; AC 1; MV 120', 180' flying (Class B); HD 8+3; HP 61, 55, 52; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10. Special attacks: energy drain; charm gaze (-2 to saves). Special defenses: shape change (bat); assume gaseous form; summon 10-100 rats or bats; immune to charm, hold, sleep; +1 or better weapons to hit. They cannot be turned when Apollonius is within 50'.
8. 18 ghouls: SZ M; AL CE; AC 6; MV 90'; HD 2; HP 14(x4), 12(x4), 11x 4, 10(x4), 8x2; #AT 3; Dmg 1-3/1-3/1-6. Special attacks: paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm; turned as ghosts while in the domain of Apollonius.

Treasure:

Up to six talismans with the symbol of Apollonius on them (a heron with a fish on them), taken from one of the six flesh golems. Each talisman is worth 500 gp. Apollonius's lair is crammed with tens of thousands of gold pieces worth of art, antiquities, and other treasure, as well as scores of important magic items. Should the PCs be foolish enough to go exploring, it is up to the GM to map Apollonius's lair and detail these treasures.

SL13-10K: The Eleventh Labor: the Dragon's Egg

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: Arden and Vul stand in front of an enormous, glowering red dragon; each of the heroes is holding a dragon's egg.

Pillar: A dragon breathes fire on Archontes in a settlement by a river; Arden and Vul arrive; they follow the dragon to its lair atop a mountain peak; they fight the dragon with spear and spell; Arden slips past the dragon and inspects three eggs; Arden and Vul speak and gesture to the dragon; the dragon departs; the heroes take one egg and present it to the emperor.

Portal: A forest green portal opens atop a stone circle set in the turf of a vast plain.

Demi-plane: The demi-plane consists of a classic plain of undulating native grasses, through which runs a wide river. The only break in the plain is a cinder cone that rises thousands of feet into the sky; the cinder cone is 12 miles from the entry point. The plain is home to large herds of buffalo and is theoretically endless. A pair of huge ancient red dragons have their lair in a ruined building's basement at the top of the cinder cone. The reds hunt buffalo and occasionally use a second portal to visit the Prime Material Plane (see "exiting the demi-plane", below).

Labor: The visitors must secure a dragon egg from the lair of the red dragons. Currently there are three eggs. The eggs can be obtained by force, that is, by killing the adults and taking the eggs and treasure. They can also be obtained by stealth, if the PCs are very clever. The dragons nest in a caldera atop the cinder cone; the caldera has a lake and, of course, the dragons' vast mound of treasure. Since dragons are adept at detecting even the invisible, the stealth route require locating some lava tubes within the cinder cone, and using them to traverse the cone until one emerges at the caldera. The dragons aren't aware of the tunnels. In the tunnels there is a 50% chance that PCs will encounter a troop of salamanders.

Once even one egg is in the hands of the PCs, the adults (if still alive) will negotiate, fearing to harm their progeny. Their response depends on the number of eggs taken (or claimed) by the PCs. If one egg is taken, Malliastorin bows her head and intones the following in Mithric: "So, the Compact is maintained even in these young days? Depart in peace." If two eggs are taken, Malliastorin responds: "You dare breach the compact? So be it. We have marked your scent, humans [or whatever], and will hunt you if we can." If three eggs are taken, Malliastorin snarls "Beware, thieves. Our wrath will follow you across the planes." GM Note: the dragons are referring to the ancient Compact of Ennius, by which the Archontean Empire struck an alliance with dragonkind and surrendered some eggs to the service of the Emperor (see World of Archontos appendix). Malliastorin is aware that the Compact was breached prior to the war of Sortians and Theosophs, but assumes the PCs wish to re-invoke it.

Exiting the Demi-plane: Bringing a dragon egg to the stone circle reopens the portal. Two other exits exist: the lowest lava tubes lead to the Elemental Plane of Fire, while a silver portal in the sky leads to a similar portal 100' above the ruins of Agoreon on the coast of Ostraios (see World of Archontos appendix).

Repeating the Labor: If only one egg is taken, the other two are still available for 6-18 months, at which point they hatch into baby red dragons. If all three are taken, it takes 18 months for the adults to produce a new egg.

Inhabitants:

1. Malliastorin, female huge ancient red dragon: SZ L; AL CE; AC -1; MV 90; 240' flying (Class E); HD 11; HP 88; #AT 3; Dmg 1-8/1-8/3-30. Continual abilities: infravision; detect hidden or invisible (80'); talking (Mithric, Archontean, Elvish, Thorcin). Special attacks: breath weapon (fire); fear aura. Special defenses: saves as a 22 HD monster. Spells: shield, comprehend languages; darkness 15' radius, ESP; dispel magic, gust of wind; polymorph other, wall of fire.
2. Kerrakistorac, male huge very old red dragon: SZ L; AL CE; AC -1; MV 90; 240' flying (Class E); HD 11; HP 77; #AT 3; Dmg 1-8/1-8/3-30. Continual abilities: infravision; detect hidden or invisible (70'); talking (Mithric, Elvish). Special attacks: breath weapon (fire); fear aura (+1 to saves). Special defenses: saves as a 19 HD monster.
3. 5-7 salamanders: SZ M; AL CE; AC 5/3; MV 90'; HD 7+7; HP 60, 55, 53, 50, 49, 48, 45; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12 (spear/tail). Special attacks: heat damage. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire, sleep, charm, hold.

Treasure:

Up to three red dragon eggs, each worth 15,000 gp. The hoard of the two dragons is substantial: 23,192 cp; 6,873 sp; 88,135 gp; 85 gems; 10 pieces of jewelry; potions of climbing, diminution, fire resistance, growth, and levitation; a scroll of anti-magic shell and geas; a scroll of phase door and reverse gravity; a scroll of trap the soul; a scroll of monster summoning I and monster summoning II; a scroll of comprehend languages and tongues; a scroll of feeblemind, hold monster and stone shape; a scroll of reincarnate; and a scroll of resurrection; a long sword +2, giant slayer; a suit of splint mail +3; a chime of opening, and a bag of holding (of largest capacity).

SL13-10L: The Twelfth Labor: the Unknown

Labor

See SL13-10 for general principles underlying the pillars, portals, and labors.

Fresco: There is no fresco; the wall is blank.

Pillar: The pillar is uncarved; only the numeral plaque is evident.

Portal: A white portal opens in an eerie landscape in which white fog rises three feet above a barren plain.

Demi-plane: The plane is apparently endless and featureless, except for a 50'-diameter circle of marble pillars a mile away. In the center of the circle is a mosaic depicting an ancient legionary, next to which is a single word in Mithric: "Arden". The demi-plane is empty, unless the other eleven labors have been completed. If the labors have been completed, Arden the Defender awaits the heroes within the circle of pillars; she is dressed in ancient legionary equipment, and stands, resting wearily on her famous spear.

Labor: One must complete all of the previous eleven labors (SL13-10A through SL13-10J). If one has done so, then an avatar of the demi-god, Arden the Defender, awaits the triumphant heroes.

Arden speaks slowly in Mithric. She congratulates good-aligned PCs on being true heroes, upon whose steadfastness and courage the empire's foundations rest. She thanks them for defending the 'sacred location' that she and her partner, Vul, discovered and developed.

She tasks them with defeating 'the ancient, amphibian evil that is rising in the depths' (GM: she refers to the heqeti, to Kauket, and to Rimmaq-Isfet; see Level 10 in general and 10-37 in particular). To aid them in that righteous task, and to reward them for their obvious sacrifices, she bestows upon them the spear of Arden Ascended (see new magic items). While the actual spear wielded by Arden in life (the ebony spear - see new magic items) is located at area SL5-13A, the spear that the demi-god provides to heroes is a divine weapon, with significantly greater powers. Its use is also contingent on the mortal wielder's morality and intentions; the spear will return to Arden if passed to an evil character, or even if a good wielder does not pursue the path set by Arden. Arden will not permanently alienate her spear, and will thus appear on the prime material plane at some point to repossess it.

PCs to whom she has gifted the spear have six months before she materializes and demands to know their progress. If the PCs can convince her that they are still actively working to defeat Kauket, then she allows them to retain the spear for an additional 2-4 months (or more). If she is unconvinced, the spear flies back to her hand and she teleports away.

Should the PCs defeat Kauket with the help of her spear, Arden appears within 4-7 days to thank the victors and reclaim her spear. It might be possible to convince her at that point that the spear is needed for another grave task; doing so would take tremendous diplomacy and tact on the part of PCs, and should require some serious role playing. Only if specific and conclusive evidence of a great evil threat can be produced will Arden be willing to grant the PCs another six-month term as wielders of her spear.

Arden is fairly tolerant regarding the alignment of parties who have completed her labors. Only if a party is obviously evil, governed by selfishness and greed, does she withhold her favors. In such cases she slowly sizes up the PCs and then contemptuously notes "You are not heroes." She then teleports away.

Casual conversation with Arden is possible once the bona fides of the visitors have been established. Although the mortal Arden died long before the glory days of Archontean rule in Arden Vul, Arden the demi-god possesses complete knowledge of the current layout of the complex, along with accurate information about inhabitants and their capabilities. She is willing to spend 3-6 hours conversing with good-aligned heroes, and can, at the GM's will, impart information about the Halls, about the Empire, and/or about any other subject of interest to the PCs.

Exiting the Demi-plane: The portal remains open so long as parties are visiting the demi-plane, regardless of whether Arden is present or not.

Repeating the Labor: The spear is unique.

Treasure:

The spear of Arden Ascended (see new magic items).

SL13-11: Damaged Antechamber

The northern wall caved in centuries ago, blocking all passage. The corpse of an Archontean dekarch lies slumped against the west wall holding a short sword and shield, his torso filled with crossbow bolts and broken spear shafts. Near him lie the corpses of three legionaries, killed by short-sword thrusts. The dekarch's purse is gone, but a leather book satchel remains, in which is his deluxe, illustrated copy of the Twelve Labors of Arden (see Arden Vul books).

Over the arch leading to the stairs to SL13-10 is the inscription, in Mithric: "Fidelity was her guiding light." The walls are otherwise bare of ornamentation.

Treasure:

The dekarch's blade is a short sword +1, luckblade (but without any wishes); a deluxe copy of the Twelve Labors of Arden (see Arden Vul books); 15 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items) concealed in a boot.

SL13-12: Shrine and Preparation Chamber

The door to this chamber has been broken down; it hangs in tatters on its hinges.

A long stone bench parallels each of the diagonal walls. In the center is a 10'-diameter pool of clear liquid. To the east of the pool is a shrine to Arden. The east wall is taken up with two 15'-tall frescoes of Arden surrounding an inscription in Mithric. The left image shows her as a spatharios, or simple legionary, while the right shows her in the toga of a decurion. The inscription reads, in Mithric: "Those who would take up the labors of the Great Defender must purify themselves."

The pool is magical. Anyone who strips and bathes in the pool receives the benefit of cure disease and remove curse. An individual may only receive the benefits once per year.

The shrine is a piece of red granite 8' tall, with eleven niches carved into the side facing west. Within the niches are two 18" ivory statuettes of Arden as spearwoman (100 gp each), a cracked leather packet containing human hair, a decrepit leather thong strung through seventeen ancient copper bits (see Arden Vul items), and a small vial of evaporated perfume.

GM Note: In antiquity those seeking to perform one of the labors (SL13-10) spent a day and a night here in meditation.

SL13-13: Barricade and Corpses

A crude barricade of barrels, spears, and links of ancient chain bisects this former guard point. The time-rotted corpses of seven ancient legionaries lie east of the barricade; four more equally-decrepit corpses are found slumped atop the barricade, as if they were trying to climb it. The south wall has a peeling fresco of Arden the Defender striding among legionaries.

GM Note: The pentarch of the Guardians of Arden (see SL13-23) ordered his men to stay at their posts when the order came to evacuate the city and subterranean halls. Half the legionaries revolted, and a desperate internecine struggle ensued; the corpses here are a sign of that fratricide.

Treasure:

Among the corpses are 57 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items) and 19 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items). The equipment is rusted and unusable.

SL13-14: Chapter House

The chamber is 20' tall with a fine ribbed vault. Set into the walls are twenty stone stalls, one for each member of the Defenders of Arden. Each stall is set 2' into the wall, and has a hinged wooden seat such that, when not sitting on it, one can pull up the seat to reveal a cupboard beneath it. All of the cupboards are empty. Above each stall is carved a unique image of an Archontean hero (one of the Twenty Worthies – see SL13-20). Each seat can thus be identified by the Worthy above it. The seats named for Arden and Vul are directly opposite the entrance doors.

The center of the chamber contains a fire pit, with long-cold ashes, and a rostrum facing west, towards the seats.

The chamber is empty of life, although a toga-clad, desiccated, corpse is sprawled across the seat of Vul. It has been stabbed with spears, one of which is still present in its throat. A huge codex bound in red leather, the Red Book of the Defenders of Arden (see Arden Vul Books) has fallen from the corpse's hand.

A ghostly spirit lingers near the corpse, whispering imprecations and blandishments in Mithric. These are difficult to make out, but include phrases such as "Protect the relics," "Do not let them take the relics," "Duty is honor," "Honor is duty," "We must remain until summoned," and so forth.

The spirit is benign unless one of several circumstances transpire, at which point it activates as an enhanced vengeful spirit (see new monsters). The potential triggers are 1) taking either ring of Arden from the hidden compartments (see below); 2) removing anything from the treasury (SL13-15); and 3) disturbing any of the relics of Arden (see SL13-22). In the latter case, the spirit (of Justus – see below) comes flying up the corridor to confront the desecrators, arriving in 2-5 rounds. Note that the spirit is not troubled by examination of The Red Book.

GM Note: The leadership of the cult of Arden met here. The corpse is that of the last pentarch of the Guardians, one Justus Faselton, who was killed by his mutinous men after he refused to let them abandon their posts. The Red Book is a hint about the Labors of Arden (see SL13-10).

Secret Compartments: The stalls of Arden and Vul contain secret compartments. The compartment in Arden's stall is opened by depressing the left eye of her image; it causes the compartment to pop open. The compartment in Vul's stall is opened by twisting the entire face of Vul 90-degrees to the left. Each compartment is only 4" square, and each contains a ring of Arden (see Arden Vul items). Vul's also contains a scroll with the Liturgy of the Strong (see Arden Vul books). Removing either ring causes the spirit of Justus to activate and attack.

Secret Door (north): The stall of Phocion the Builder contains a secret door. It is normal to locate, but difficult to open. Opening it requires locating a catch under Phocion's seat and pressing it. This causes the door to spring inward, revealing a short corridor to the treasury.

Inhabitants:

1. Justus, an enhanced vengeful spirit (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 1; MV 120'; HD 9; HP 60; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire; reform in 1-6 hours so long as his bones remain unburied. Justus cannot be turned while he remains on SL13.

Treasure:

The Red Book of the Defenders of Arden (see Arden Vul Books). Two rings of Arden (see Arden Vul items); a copy of the Liturgy of the Strong (see Arden Vul books).

SL13-15: Treasury of the Defenders of Arden

This small chamber housed the treasures accumulated by the cult of Arden. Removing any of the valuables from the treasury causes Justus to transform into a vengeful spirit (see SL13-14).

Treasure:

- A 6'-tall blackware porcelain vase featuring scenes from the 4th Labor of Arden; the vase is filled with 15,000 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items).
- A 5'-tall vase of ebony and ivory (worth 5,000 gp).
- A pair of painted steel novelty andirons depicting Arden and Vul (250 gp).
- A battered bronze cauldron holding 35,000 ancient copper bits (see Arden Vul items).
- Sixteen 30-lb bars of smelted imperial gold piled into a pyramid (1,500 gp each).
- Two valuable 'oriental'-style carpets, one depicting Arden's 7th Labor and the other depicting the Emperor bestowing arms on Arden and Vul. Each is worth 750 gp.
- A large-sized Archontean chess set, containing 32 solid ivory pieces that are 2' tall; the pieces represent Arden, Vul, other figures from the Twenty, and legionaries. Each piece is worth 750 gp, but is heavy and bulky.
- A silk pouch containing four tokens of Arden and two rings of Arden (see Arden Vul items).
- A basket of woven reeds containing 150 small gemstones worth 10-20 gp each; the basket, however, is worth 1,500 gp to a collector of early imperial housewares.
- A wooden box holding six lb of incense (50 gp/lb)
- Ten doses of Gethite lotus powder (see new flora).

SL13-16: Barracks

The furnishings of this 15'-tall barracks are in relatively good shape. Eight triple bunks made of iron-reinforced wood line the south wall. Twenty chests are scattered among the bunks, their lids open and contents gone; only a few bits of decrepit linen and wool clothing remain, along with some personal items, including a razor, a mortar and pestle, a set of draughts made of wood, and a pack of playing cards made out of parchment.

To either side of the door are weapon and armor racks: two suits of ancient legionary armor (AC 4), six spears, three gladii, three war-hammers, and fifteen tower shields are still present and usable (one is a shield +1).

The corpses of three ancient legionaries lie in moldering lumps near the door. Their bodies display sword and spear wounds.

Treasure:

Weapons and personal items (see above).

SL13-17: Vandalized Guest Chamber

A rather spartan guest chamber, with bed, wardrobe and writing table, has been utterly vandalized, with all furniture smashed to bits. The corpse of an orange-robed priest (of Thoth) lies in the northwest corner, the victim of multiple gladius thrusts.

Treasure:

Two sets of robes of a priest of Thoth (20 gp, or 75 if mended); a gold holy symbol of Thoth (45 gp).

SL13-18: Guest Chamber

This guest chamber is intact, with dust-covered bed, wardrobe, and stand-up writing desk. There is nothing of value here.

SL13-19: Vandalized Guest Chamber

The furnishings of this third guest chamber have also been destroyed. Signs that it was occupied prior to its destruction are evident, however, with silk undergarments and several fine tunics strewn about the debris. The surface of the smashed writing table has two objects pinned to it with daggers: one is a desiccated human finger; the other is a scrap of parchment that reads in Mithric: "the key is the Builder."

GM Note: The note refers to the secret door to the treasury, found in area SL13-14 in the stall under the carving of Phocion the Builder. The mutinous legionaries, however, thought that the note referred to the statue of Phocion in the Hall of the Twenty. They tortured the occupant of this chamber for more information before dragging her to area SL13-20.

SL13-20: Hall of the Twenty

This grand hall is 25' tall and features beautiful rib vaulting and exquisite teak wainscoting (extending 10' up the walls).

Twenty painted statues of the famous Archontean Worthies (see World of Archontos appendix) once stood in the chamber. Nineteen remain, with one smashed. The desiccated corpse of a woman lies near the smashed statue.

The corpse is dressed in a fine, but blood-stained, silken tunic; she is missing one of the fingers of her left hand and has had her throat cut.

Statues of the Twenty Worthies: Each statue is 8' tall and is a composite of well-chosen stone; typically the flesh of the subjects is white marble or black obsidian, while their clothing is in granite. While faded, the vibrant colors in which the statues were painted is still evident. Truly, these are examples of a master sculptor's work.

The nineteen remaining statues of the Twenty found here include: Vul the Sorcerer; Arden the Swordswoman; Licinia the Seer; Thrygga the Mighty; Plotinus Quartus Claudino; Yeth, He-Who-Sought-to-Bring-Law-to-Chaos; Horatius Interfector, sorcerer; Marius Tricotor, also called Marius Invictus; Crinius the Rector; Amalasantha of Narsileon; Felix Minucius; Jixon of Archontos; Kalea the Theosoph; Pol, the Grinning Mage; Taticus and Thekla, the Twins; Ennius, the First Lord; Halduin the Citharist; and Terentius Borsa.

The savage destruction of the twentieth statue makes it difficult to identify. Still, those familiar with the Twenty might recognize a set of dividers in the rubble and thus conclude that the rubble represents Phocion the Builder (see also 8-143). A successful roll of 4d6 under INT for one with legitimate knowledge of ancient history allows this identification.

GM Note: The corpse is that of an important visitor to the cult of Arden who had the misfortune to visit during the mutiny of the area's legionary guards. She was tortured in her chamber (see SL13-19) by the guards, who believed she knew where the cult's treasury was kept; then she was dragged here, as the legionaries misinterpreted her comments about "the Key is the Builder" as referring to the statue here (instead of the stall in the chapter house).

Tunnel on the South Wall: 20' up the south wall is a small hole in the wall, only 3' in diameter. The hole widens a bit into a 5' tunnel leading south. It is easy for PCs to miss this feature unless they are explicitly looking at the ceiling and upper walls.

Treasure:

The statues are valuable works of art, and could bring a minimum of 10,000 gp each on the market in Archontos (and might go for up to 25,000 gp each). They are, of course, very heavy and difficult to move. The teak wainscoting is also valuable: 2,000 gp for the lot.

SL13-21: Antechamber

This antechamber is 15' tall. The pillar between the two entrances to SL13-22 is carved to resemble a 12'-tall Arden, in legionary attire and carrying her spear pressed against her body. The corpses of eight legionaries lie scattered in various pieces across the flagstones of the antechamber. While their weapons and armor have been destroyed by powerful blows, a few smaller items have escaped the carnage. The corpses are those of the mutinous Guardians, who met their fate at the hands of the stone guardians.

Two 9'-tall statues depicting Arden and Vul stand in the southwest and southeast corners. The 'statues' are actually enhanced imperial stone guardians (larger and slightly more powerful version of the regular variety) who rumble to life whenever anyone disturbs the artifacts of the reliquary (SL13-22). N.B.: disturbing items from the reliquary also summons the vengeful spirit (see new monsters) of Justus the pentarch (SL13-14).

Inhabitants:

1. 2 enhanced imperial stone guardians (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 9+3; HP 69, 64; #AT 2; Dmg

3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

Treasure:

Among the legionaries' corpses are 73 ancient silver pennies and 31 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); two simple gold rings (15 gp each); three copper pectorals showing Arden the defender (5 gp each); and a dagger +1.

SL13-22: Reliquary of Arden the Defender

This large hall houses the objects believed by the cult of Arden to be the true relics of the great heroine.

The hall is completely sheathed with oak; this includes striking barrel vaulting, floor-to-ceiling carved paneling, and interlocking flooring. Three stations in the hall contain the 'relics' of Arden.

Paneling: The paneling tells the story of the life of Arden, including scenes of her youth as a small girl living among the legionaries in the cantonments, her oath before the magistrates making her 'sola' (a woman legally free of male authority), her military career as spatharios, dekarch, kentarch and polemarch, each of the twelve labors (for which see SL13-10), and her triumphal procession through Archontos to meet the emperor. The paneling is valuable, but difficult to disassemble and transport: all told it would bring 30,000 gp to appropriate buyers.

Arden the Swordsman: The station to the left of the entrance holds artifacts from Arden's career in the legion of the XIV Scutarii. A 20'-long, 4'-tall stone block holds the following: a battered legionary's tower shield +2; a short sword of sharpness; a badly-worn phlamoulon of the XIVth, bearing the broken slave-collar insignia of that legion; an actual broken slave collar; and a gold ceremonial polemarch's helmet (500 gp, but now useless in combat). The only one of these items actually connected to Arden is the slave collar, which Arden struck from her mother's neck when she earned enough solidi to make her mother a freedwoman.

Arden and the Labors: The station to the right holds relics of the Twelve Labors (for which see SL13-10). A 20'-long, 4'-tall stone block holds the following: a necklace of bear claws strung on a silver chain (the 4th labor); a shell of a giant triton (250 gp; the 7th labor); a circle of sardonyx, intaglioed with the image of a heron eating a fish (125 gp; the 10th labor); a 3'-long tarnished brass trumpet (30 gp; the 9th labor); two vials of dried troll blood (the 2nd labor); and a pair of ogre mage tusks (the 3rd labor). Of these, only the bear-claw necklace is original to Arden; it is also a unique magic item, the necklace of the berserker (see new magic items).

Arden the Defender: The third station is directly opposite the entrance at the far end of the hall. It consists of a 10'-tall statue of Arden draped with important personal objects. The statue is mostly onyx, with ivory for face, hands, and other skin, and would fetch 30,000 gp in a large city. It shows Arden as a weary soldier leaning on her spear. Her helmet, armor, and spear, however, are real (not part of the statue). The armor is imperial field plate +3 (see Arden Vul items); the spear, although believed in antiquity to be the spear of Arden (see new magic items), is in fact 'only' a spear +4 of life stealing. The statue also bears a legionary helmet that functions as a guard cap (see new magic items); a girdle of frost giant strength; and a gold signet ring, featuring a stylized female legionary over the letter 'A' (375 gp). None of these items was ever possessed by the real Arden. It is possible to remove the armor without damaging the statue.

Secret Compartment: A hidden compartment in the left station holds three tokens of Arden and a ring of Arden (see Arden Vul items for both). The compartment is difficult to locate (1 in 8), and must be pried open by force.

GM Note: Removing any of the relics from the reliquary causes the enhanced imperial stone guardians (SL13-21) to attack, and brings the spirit of Justus (SL13-14), now transformed into a vengeful spirit (see new monsters), flying to confront the desecrators within 2-5 rounds.

SL13-23: Dekarchs' Quarters

Two dekarchs, or junior officers, dwelled here. Two beds, two wardrobes, two wooden chests and two racks for armor and weapons comprise the furnishings. The corpse of one of the dekarchs still lies in his bed; he was killed there while he slept. Both wardrobes and chests have been ransacked, and their contents strewn across the chamber. It is possible to find the following among the debris (1 per turn of searching): a silver locket with a cameo of an Archontean woman (200 gp); a pair of jade earrings (100 gp); a high-quality box of writing styluses (50 gp); a dose of incense of attraction (see new magic items); a diptych of wax writing tablets with ivory covers carved with fantastic beasts (185 gp); and three 8" jesters carved of maple (35 gp).

Equipment racks by the door contain a set of legionary armor (AC 4); a short sword +1; and several pairs of boots.

SL13-24: Lounge

This chamber is intact, and suffered no damage during the mutiny. It is 10' tall with frescoes showing legionaries fighting, drinking, marching, and relaxing.

Ten simple wooden stools are scattered about, as are four 4'-diameter wooden tables. A bar in the southwest corner still holds wooden cups and a few bottles of liquor. Three dart boards are mounted on the west wall.

Treasure:

Three bottles of ancient Archontean brandy (85 gp each).

SL13-25: Barracks

This chamber is 15' tall, and painted with flaking yellow paint. Eight triple bunks made of iron-reinforced wood line the south wall. Twenty chests are scattered among the bunks, their lids open and contents gone. Only a few personal items, including a bottle of hair dye (dried out), a stone canister with fiery hot seeds in it, a crude set of Archontean chessmen carved of wood (30 sp), a whetstone, a flint, and a small teakwood box filled with narcotic powder (75 gp).

To either side of the door are weapon and armor racks: three suits of ancient legionary armor (AC 4), six spears, a gladius, two javelins, and fourteen tower shields are still present and usable.

Treasure:

Weapons and personal items (see above).

SL13-26: Pentarch's Quarters

The door to this chamber has been broken down, and its contents thoroughly vandalized. There are even a few holes in the granite walls, as if someone were swinging heavy objects at the wall.

A pastoral mural occupies the east wall, it shows an allegorical representation of good government: figures in the tunics of kritai, chartoularii and other imperial offices collect taxes, direct public works and issue judgments; the prosperity of their government is seen in verdant landscapes, with abundant harvests and ripe orchards. Across this faded image is written, in huge Mithric letters: "May the pentarch suffer in the pits of the Abyss for his stubbornness! His honor has gotten us all killed!"

Most of the furnishings (a bed, a wardrobe, a desk, some easy chairs, a low table, and several display racks) have been smashed to bits, as if the vandals were looking for valuables. The only actual item of value left among the debris of wood, linen, and silk is a fragment of a painted teak folding screen that once separated the room in halves: one panel – depicting a severe-looking, bald Archontean aristocrat – is in salvageable state and is worth 200 gp to a modern art collector.

A careful search also reveals an imperial rescript from Archon Pellas of Arden Vul to "Justus Faselton, pentarch of the Cohort of Arden" and dated AEP 1803. It reads: "Guard the sacred relics of Arden the Defender until your last breath. We are sending assistance and supplies. Good luck." Scrawled across this is the word "Lies!"

GM Note: Justus, whose body lies at SL13-14, was the pentarch or commander of a special cohort of legionaries tasked with guarding the shrine of Arden. He tried to enforce the terms of the rescript sent him by Archon Pellas the Last during the final weeks of Archontean habitation in Arden Vul. Half his men mutinied, and he and his dekarches were slain. The mutineers could not get out through SL9-08, however, nor could they locate the secret door whose existence they suspected. Eventually they were killed by the imperial stone guardians.

Secret Door (north): The door is difficult to find (1 in 8). It opens by inserting the face of a ring of Arden (see Arden Vul items) into a depression located on the west wall.

SL13-27: Narrow Stairs Leading Up to 6-144

The 4'-wide staircase climbs steeply for 350' before ending at a secret door (see 6-144 and 6-142). It should be noted that unless area 6-142 has previously been thawed, it will be impossible to open the secret door leading to 6-142. Those descending from Level 6 find that the secret door leading to SL13-27 is obvious (1 in 3) and opens by releasing a latch near the ceiling.

SL13-28: Unfinished Set Chamber

Only the western portion of this chamber is worked, and there only roughly. Hammered into the west wall is a sconce, from which hangs a silver holy symbol of Set (10 gp).

The tunnel leading north (towards SL13-20) is hidden behind a rockfall; it should be considered a concealed passage. The other tunnels are narrow tubes, some 5' in diameter.

SL13-29: Stairs Leading Up to SL8-24

The stairs are narrow and choked with cobwebs. They lead up to SL8-24.

SL13-30: Stalagmite Cave

This cave is filled with stalagmites and stalactites, making movement slow and ponderous. The gleam of ore among the rock formations suggests the possibility of iron or silver mining here.

There is a 15% chance per turn spent in this cave that one of the huldugritti (see new monsters) from SL13-34 visits this cave. If it does so, it either attacks (33%) or retreats to tell its comrades and to plan an ambush (66%).

Inhabitants:

1. 1 huldugritti (15%/turn): for stats, see SL13-34

SL13-31: Damaged Cave

Once filled with stalactites and stalagmites like SL-13-30, most of the rock formations seem to have been recently shattered. Among the rock debris are the corpses of two Priscian conversi (see new monsters), who scouted this area from 9-44 (via SL13-32) but were slain by the huldugritti (see new monsters) that inhabit these caves (see SL13-34). The Priscians were killed by massive blows to the torso and head; most of their equipment is destroyed.

Spending more than two turns in this cave has a 50% chance of attracting two of the huldugritti to defend their territory. If combat breaks out, the remainder of the huldugritti arrive in 1-3 rounds.

Inhabitants:

1. 2 huldugritti (50%): for stats, see SL13-34

Treasure:

On the corpses: dagger +1, short sword, sling; a pouch with 15 sardonyx gems (50 gp each) and 73 gp; a potion of invisibility.

SL13-32: Tunnel Leading Down to 9-44

This tunnel corkscrews downward before reaching 9-44.

SL13-33: Tunnel Leading Up to 7-59

Snaking upward at a steep pitch for 150', this tunnel emerges at 7-59.

SL13-34: Huldugritti

Six huldugritti have been feeding on the rich ores left here by the explosion that damaged SL13-36 and its environs in antiquity. The cave is 25' tall and filled with spectacular stalagmites and stalactites. The huldugritti are protective of the surrounding areas (SL13-28, SL13-30, SL13-31) and are unusually aggressive in seeking to expel intruders. If alerted (see SL13-31) they may prepare an ambush here: they lurk within the rock walls, only to emerge with fists swinging when the intruders present themselves.

Inhabitants:

1. 6 huldugritti (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC 0 or 2; MV 120' or 60'; HD 8+8; HP 63, 61, 53, 51, 48, 44; #AT 2 (in stone form); Dmg 2-16/2-16; MR 25%. Special attacks: hurl boulders (2-8 HP each). Special defenses: meld with stone (cure 3-24 HP); assume spirit form; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire, electricity, and mind-affecting spells.

SL13-35: Water-Filled Cave

Although the walls and ceiling of this area make it seem comparable to the neighboring caves, this area is actually a 60'-deep sinkhole filled with water. Unwary explorers have a chance of turning the corner and stepping into the water. Those with heavy equipment may sink like a stone.

At the bottom of the sinkhole is the rotted corpse of a rudishva still in his orange jumpsuit. This technician was killed in the blast that damaged area SL13-36, and her body was dragged by animals here, where it was gradually covered by the water of the hole. The corpse carries a rust rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items).

SL13-36: Damaged Plasteel Corridor and Door

A section of the white plasteel corridor that led to the shuttle bay in antiquity is still extant. The northern edge of the corridor has clearly seen a catastrophic event, as the plasteel is blackened, twisted, and scorched. At the south end of the corridor is a rudishva iris door. The door is of the usual kind, whereby presentation of a silver or yellow rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) causes the iris to dilate open.

Trap (explosion): Two rudishva anti-personnel mines have been attached to the corridor walls 10' from the door. They are triggered by proximity: those approaching within 5' cause them to explode, filling the corridor with shrapnel and inflicting 5-40 HP damage (save for half damage) for each mine. The mines appear as grey plasteel hexagons. If explorers have previously discovered and examined such mines (cf. 5-118), they will know instantly what the hexagons are; in such cases someone experienced with rudishva technology has a chance to disarm the mines. It is also possible to trigger them from the small tunnel to the north, by sending summoned creatures towards the mines, for instance. Since the mines have biometric scanners, simply rolling inert objects towards them will not trigger them.

SL13-37: Rudishva Shuttle Bay

The shuttle bay pod from the Beacon lies in this cave. The rudishva expended substantial effort in moving it from its initial crash site to this location, all in the hopes that they could someday activate one or both of the shuttles and return to the stars.

The shuttle bay is a dome 25' tall at its center point, and built of white plasteel; all corners are rounded in the usual rudishva style. Bright LED lights turn on as soon as a life-form is detected within the bay. The corpse of Lieutenant Svar-Loj, riddled with projectile holes, lies just inside the door from SL13-36. The bay contains two shuttles (SL13-37A and SL13-37B) plus a maze of high-technology equipment. It is also guarded by a rudishva battle robot (see new monsters). Unfortunately for those hoping that possession of a plastic (microchipped) rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) will render them immune to the robot's gauss gun, this robot's programming has failed slightly; it attacks instantly and without hesitation all those who enter the shuttle bay.

Machinery and Equipment: The east side of the bay is loaded with impressive and complicated machinery, most connected via thick cables to outlets in the floor of the bay. Among the technological items are a rudishva jet ski; a rudishva hover sled; eight greater rudishva power supplies; a GnuCoder 3000 data recorder; and a GnuCoder 5000 Full-Immersion Sensory Experience (see new technological items). Other items include three centrifuges, a high-heat centrifuge, four massive cylinders of rocket fuel, several console computers, a refrigerated storage unit, an impressive amount of glass-steel chemical equipment, a dozen oval chemical storage 'eggs', 150 lb of crushed arcenum (see new magic items), 10 lb of rare minerals distilled from the mud flats of SL9, and a variety of other chemicals.

The machinery is difficult to operate without thorough comprehension of the concepts of advanced science. Even the most intelligent 'ordinary' fantasy humans or humanoids are unlikely to be able to use the equipment with facility.

The reason why PCs might wish to experiment with the equipment is to create sufficient fuel to allow the operative shuttle (SL13-37B) to leave the solar system. Still, enough pre-made fuel to make a single FTL jump to an inhabited interstellar location may be found in area 9-96. It is up to the GM to decide whether she believes the PCs to be capable of creating more fuel. If this is desired, the data crystals (see new technological items) found in areas 9-94 (Solutions to the Propulsion Problem) and SL9-48 (Creating D-3He Reactions from Native Minerals) might permit highly intelligent characters to use the centrifuges and other equipment to create sufficient fuel for another 3-6 jumps. Of course, the PCs must also procure the drive rod (7-143) and astrogation crystals (SL14-10) to permit the shuttle to fly. Operation of the shuttle may also be eased by reading the appropriate sections of the technical manual found at 9-90 or SL12-28 (The Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven: Technical Specifications of this Yort-Class Exploration Vessel).

Airlock Doors: Huge plasteel airlock doors lie directly to the south of the operative shuttle. These can be opened from the consoles amid the machinery of the shuttle bay, or from the pilot's chair in the shuttle (SL13-37B). It takes 1-2 hours of study and a successful roll of 4d6 under INT to figure out how to open the airlock doors.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 rudishva battle robot (see new monsters): SZ M; AL N; AC -2; MV 90' flying (Class A); HD 8; HP 55; #AT 4; Dmg 3-9/3-9/3-12/3-18 (laser/laser/explosive pellet/gauss gun). Special attacks: attacks and saves as a 10th-level fighter; gauss gun strikes all targets within range each round. Special defenses: immune to fire, cold, electricity, and poison; immune to mind-affecting spells. Special: 56 explosive pellets remain.

This battle robot's programming has failed slightly. Possession of a plastic rudishva identity plaque or a rudishva command bracelet (see new technological items) does not render the bearer immune from the robot; it cannot be controlled or quieted. This robot has extra ammunition, allowing its gauss gun to fire for ten rounds instead of the usual five.

SL13-37A: Dismantled Shuttle

This shuttle (designated LOAV-290) has been cannibalized for parts to enable the other shuttle to be ready to fly (for a description, see SL13-37B). The airlock has been removed, and access to the interior is untrammelled. The piloting and navigational stations are intact, but all of the propulsion systems (including fuel tanks) have been ripped out, as well as a lot of wiring and microchips. It is pretty obvious to even non-technological explorers that this vehicle is not usable. The central crew area is fairly comfortable, though, and could be used as a campsite.

SL13-37B: Intact Shuttle

The second shuttle faces the airlock doors and is fully intact. Its formal designation in the RISEA (Rudishva Interstellar Exploration Agency) is LOAV-291, for Low-Occupancy Atmospheric Vehicle (or shuttle). The LOAV series was designed to resemble a creature from rudishva mythology, the Chamundi, which is superficially similar to an oriental dragon. It is 20' wide, 50' long and 20' tall, with plasteel decorations along the roof that resemble the Chamundi's horns and flowing whiskers, and with the viewscreen in the place of the creature's gritted teeth. It is painted in vibrant colors. It has wings for use in atmospheric flying; these can be retracted for deep space flight as well as for maneuvering in tight spaces (such as the shuttle bay).

Shuttle Description: Access is via the square-ish rear of the shuttle. One must present a pale green, pink, orange, silver or yellow rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) to open the airlock. Beyond the airlock a narrow 10'-long and 5'-wide corridor leads to the two crew areas.

The first is the engineering and science station, with four crew seats. This section has been clearly modified, with most of the consoles ripped out and new equipment jury-rigged into the area. One of the new components is a set of two large fuel tanks; they proudly bear the Rudishva glyphs for 'star' and 'fuel.' A second new component is a pair of cylindrical holes, into which canisters can be inserted: the runes beneath them read 'orange,' 'rock,' and 'compound.' The third new component is a 5' cylinder with a cylindrical slot at one end.

The second area is the astrogation and command section, with six stations for crewmembers. One station is the pilot's chair, while the other five are for communications, astrogation (2 stations), and tactical systems (2 stations). Each station has a console, with slides, knobs, buttons, and viewscreens. The pilot's seat also has slots into which astrogation crystals can be inserted. Using the stations is difficult, but some trial by error is likely to produce results; it takes 6-8 hours of experimentation to learn the systems, with 1% chance (cumulative) per hour of causing some fatal systems overload that destroys the shuttle in a burst of energy (inflicting 60-360 HP damage on all within the bay).

Assistance in operating the shuttle can be gained by reading and mastering the following data crystal (see new technological items), which may be found in areas 9-90 and SL12-28: The Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven: Technical Specifications of this Yort-Class Exploration Vessel. Alternatively, the AI known as AKL-600 (or, Akla-Chah) can explain what is needed to bring the shuttle into readiness for interstellar travel (see SL14-13); in return for this information, Akla-Chah requests that PCs download her personality and memory into a large crystal and bring her with them on the shuttle.

Activating the Shuttle

It is possible to fly the shuttle out of the cliff face and into the stars, provided that the following checklist is completed.

1. A drive rod from the main engine room must be inserted into the cylindrical slot in the equipment in the engineering station of the shuttle. A drive rod can be procured from area 7-143.
2. Appropriate fuel must be added to the fuel tanks in the shuttle; this fuel can be found in the tanks in the shuttle bay.
3. Canisters of the special formula of arcanum-enriched deuterium must be added to the appropriate spot in the shuttle's engineering area. Enough of this formula to allow for one FTL jump is found in area 9-96. To make more than one jump, it will be necessary to synthesize more of the formula. See instructions at SL13-37.
4. One or more astrogation crystals (from SL14-10) must be inserted into the receptacles in the astrogation station.
5. The inner door to the airlock must be opened (SL13-39), either from the cockpit of the shuttle or from the machinery. The shuttle's wings must be retracted so it can proceed down the runway.

Locations to Which the LOAV May Fly: This product does not detail the mechanics of interstellar travel or the specifics of interstellar locations. The GM should select appropriate rules for space travel and design his/her own worlds and/or space stations.

SL13-38: Rudishva Teleporter

The corridor is sheathed in spotless white marble and lacks right angles. It ends in three semi-circular niches. The western niche contains a 5'-diameter circle of silvery material inset into the floor, with a 10"x10" square of the same material affixed to the wall. The silvery square has a rune etched into the silvery material. The other two niches are empty.

The rudishva built these niches to be part of their teleportation network. To activate it, one stands on a silvery circle and touches the adjacent silvery square; teleportation to the appropriate location is instantaneous.

Teleport Node:

T20: access to 9-97

SL13-39: Airlock and Runway

The rudishva built this area in the anticipation that they would eventually be able to refit the shuttle for interstellar travel. The airlock door leading to SL13-38 is a massive, dilating piece of reinforced plasteel. It leads to a 'runway' some 30' wide and 30' tall, and also formed of reinforced plasteel. The southern door leading to the exterior of Arden Vul was concealed behind the natural rock face. The Archontians never discovered the runway or its exit, and thus the colossus of Arden the Defender was built over the exit. The area is designed such that as the shuttle accelerates down the runway, explosive charges detonate at the southern end, blowing the rock shield outward and allowing the shuttle to swoop out into the valley. This feature is automatic. The exit is located about 100' above the floor of the valley, which corresponds roughly to the ankles of the colossus.

SUB-LEVEL 14: THE CHAMBER OF THE BEACON

This sub-level is small, but extremely significant. It is comprised almost entirely of the bridge module of the Beacon, with a few later Archontean areas built on to it. Although naturally a vital part of the Beacon, the bridge played a decreasingly important role during the long years of the rudishva exile on Magae. As it became obvious that the Beacon itself would never fly again, the rudishva efforts to effect an escape turned to the shuttles (SL13-37) and to engineering a means of modifying them for interstellar flight. As a result, the focus of the rudishva efforts shifted from the surface and the bridge to other areas (level 5, level 7, level 9, sub-level 9, etc.).

When the Archontean arrived centuries after the rudishva collapse and gradually came to comprehend the power and otherness of those they called the 'Old Ones', the bridge was one of the first (and only) rudishva areas that the Archontean managed to open to study. As the city of Arden Vul grew, the complicated entry mechanism (AV-5, AV-41, and AV-28, leading to AV-34 and SL14-1) was created. All the while, Archontean sages and magic users were cautiously exploring the bridge, which they called 'the Chamber of the Beacon.' Most of what they came to understand about the rudishva came from their study of the various stations of the bridge (SL14-10A to SL14-10E) and to conversation with the AI, Akla-Chah, aka AKL-600 (SL14-13). The latter never warmed to the Archontean, who treated her like a slave; as a result, she was stingy with the information she passed to them.

In its current state the Bridge is a valuable location in which enterprising PCs could learn deeper secrets about the rudishva in general and about the possibility of achieving interstellar travel in particular. Few monsters or foes exist, saving the imperial stone guardians who still guard the Archontean study chambers. Likewise, there is little in the way of tangible valuables; rather, much of the 'treasure' to be obtained on this sub-level is the information available to the clever and cautious. Two exceptions in terms of tangible valuables are the astrogation crystals (SL14-10C) which are absolutely necessary to allow the remaining shuttle to fly (see SL13-37), as well as a hidden Archontean-era cache of ancient rudishva technology (SL14-5). It should also be noted that many of the most useful functions that can be produced on the bridge require possession of one of the two command tablets (see new technological items); the Archontean knew of one of these items, which they called the 'tablet of the Beacon.' The two tablets are to be found at 9-94 and 9-107.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Rudishva areas: SL14-6 to SL14-14

Archontean areas: SL14-1 to SL14-5

IMPORTANT NPCs

Akla-Chah, aka AKL-600, a rudishva AI (SL14-13)

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Ruined City: stairs at SL14-1, leading up to AV-34

To Level 5: rudishva teleporter (T25) at SL14-8, leading to 5-95A

To Level 9: rudishva teleporter (T24) at SL14-7, leading to 9-97

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

There are no random encounters in this sub-level.

LEVEL KEY

SL14-1: Entrance Stairs

Successfully opening the bulkhead doors at AV-34 reveals a 15'-wide granite staircase leading into the earth. The stairs descend 40' to a set of bronze double-doors. The walls of the stairwell are brightly painted, and depict imperial magistrates, military officers, and the archon himself carrying symbolic objects and gifts towards the doors.

Bronze Doors: The 10'-tall doors are sculpted with high relief images of Thoth, Horus, Anubis, and Set, all holding their right hands palm-forward in the universal symbol of 'stop'. Across the top of the doors is the inscription in Mithric: "Chamber of the Beacon. Enter only with Permission of the Archon. Speak the password to open." The doors have no apparent keyholes or handles; they are magically enchanted to only open when the proper password is spoken in Mithric. The password is the infinitive of the verb 'open', that is 'to open'.

SL14-2: Archontean Entry Chamber

This chamber is 15' tall and covered with brilliantly-colored frescoes, all in pristine condition. The frescoes on the west wall depict civil scenes, particularly of the archon leading a line of administrators, officials, and military officers towards a pair of bronze double doors (SL14-1). The frescoes on the east wall depict priests of Thoth (in orange robes), Set (in red robes), and Horus (in yellow robes) inspecting strange artifacts (rudishva technology).

Two enhanced imperial stone guardians stand in the northwest and northeast corners. They activate when the chamber is entered, and move to smite intruders; only those wearing appropriate-colored priestly robes (i.e., orange, red, or yellow) are exempt from their attacks.

The door leading to area SL14-6 is stone and locked; the key was lost 1,200 years ago.

Inhabitants:

- 2 enhanced imperial stone guardians (see new monsters): SZ L; AL N; AC -2; MV 90'; HD 9+3; HP 69, 65; #AT 2; Dmg 3-18/3-18; MR 50%. Special defenses: +2 or better weapons to hit; immune to missiles (including magic missile), fire, cold, mind-affecting spells (e.g. charm), and most immobilizing spells (immune to entangle, hold monster, web).

SL14-3: Archontean Work Room

The walls of this 10'-tall stone chamber are scorched with blasts of energy. Two heavy work-tables stand in its center, while a slate board mounted in a wheeled wooden frame stands behind them. The north and south walls are lined with shelves. Scattered across the table and lining the shelves are scores of bits of broken and partly-disassembled rudishva technology. These include lesser power supplies with their casings pried open, laser pistols and rifles that have been stripped down to parts, a Nutri-vore 2000 with two crossbow bolts impaling it, and so forth.

Among the debris are two 3-liter containers of neuroderm and several items that appear to be intact, a laser rifle, a laser deflector shield, a fire extinguisher, and a personal defense array (see new technological items for all). Unfortunately, the Archontean sages who had been experimenting with these items managed to damage all of them. The following table lists the negative consequences for using each of these ‘modified’ items:

Item	Bad Consequences
Laser rifle	Rifle fires one shot normally, but on next shot explodes for 6-36 HP damage in a 10’ radius
Laser deflector shield	Instead of deflecting laser energy, the shield intensifies it. User takes double damage from laser attacks
Fire extinguisher	Extinguisher explodes, inflicting 3-12 HP damage on all in a 5’ radius. In addition, those within 10’ must save or be blinded for 2-5 rounds
Personal defense array	The array no longer allows the wearer to breathe freely; wearer suffocates in 2-4 rounds

Those who have previously used one of the four damaged items have a chance to notice something is off: that chance is 3% per point of INT (a PC with INT 10 has a 30% chance to detect the flaw).

SL14-4: Archontean Scholars’ Chamber

With brightly painted frescoes, comfortable leather chairs and other furniture, and a well-stocked book-case, this chamber stands as the epitome of tranquil scholarly retreat. The frescoes depict the ‘big three’ of ancient Archontean deities: Thoth imagery on the north wall, Horus on the east, and Set on the south. A dozen comfortable leather chairs, eight side tables, three leather-covered settees, and a wide bookcase complete the furnishings (the quality of the furniture is heavy and functional – 25 gp per piece).

The real treasure here is found on the bookshelves. In addition to some rare Archontean texts, the shelves contain two almost-unique manuscripts: Laelius’s Linguistic Primer, or How to Speak the Old Ones’ Tongue, and A Complete Decoding of the Old Ones’ Glyphs, by Herodian Tiro (see Arden Vul books). The other volumes include: Arden Speaks, by Marcellinus Septimus; the Art of Becoming, by Varix the archmage; Notes on the Rudishva Spirits, by Berricus Greybeard and Holger Risus; On the Wars of the Old Ones with the Trolls, by Clarius; Practical Animal Magic, by Licinius Monad; Rudishva Devices, by Junius Zofer; Thirty Uses for Arcanum, by Ygred the Mad; and Sorcerous Properties of Gems, by Sardonyx Peridot (see Arden Vul books for all). A handful of rudishva identity plaques (see new technological items) are found among the codices, used as bookmarks: 3 copper, 2 bronze, 2 rust, and one each of platinum, brown, sky blue, and pale green.

Secret Door (north): The door is stone and shaped as one of the 5’-tall painted ibises that appear as part of the frescoes of Thoth on the north wall. It is normal to detect, but can only be opened by inserting any rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) into a slot concealed in the paint of the ibis fresco. GM Note: the door is mechanical, not technological; any object sharing the shape of a rudishva identity plaque serves to open it.

SL14-5: Archontean Secret Hoard

This small closet contains a great number of still-operative rudishva technological items collected by the Archonteans: two laser rifles, three laser pistols, eleven lesser power supplies, one greater power supply, a battle helmet, a repicube, a plasteel shield, a sonic fence, five grenades (two stun, one fragmentation, and two gas), a dart thrower, seven clips for the dart thrower (three ordinary, two explosive, one immobilizing, one narcotic gas), and two anti-venom kits (see new technological items for all).

SL14-6: Rudishva Chamber

The stone door on the south wall is locked, and the key is lost. The chamber within is 12’ tall and sheathed entirely in white marble, with all corners rounded such that no 90-degree angles are present. Three rudishva iris doors lead from it (for operation, see SL14-7, SL14-8, and SL14-9).

In the center of the chamber is a chalkboard in a portable wooden frame, surrounded by wooden stools. The chalkboard is covered with notes, formulae, and symbols – all in Mithric. Among the academic clutter can be found the following words and phrases: “Beacon=Vehicle – but how does it move?”, “Fuel is needed”, “Arcanum – for what?”, “Stars [under the appropriate rudishva glyph]”, and several lists of letters and numbers (incorrect chemical formulae for fuels – for the correct formula, see 9-94). A frustrated comment is also apparent: ‘Survivors appear to be imbeciles. They cannot help with locomotion details. They claim the vehicle cannot be moved. Do they lie?’

GM Note: These fragments represent the efforts of the top scholars and mages of the ancient Archontean empire to figure out the mysteries of the Beacon. They reveal that the Archonteans realized that the Beacon was a vehicle, and perhaps a vehicle for traveling to the stars, but also that they had no idea how to make it function, or even exactly how the ‘chamber of the Beacon’ (the Bridge, i.e. SL14-10) was supposed to be a vehicle. The Archonteans’ confusion in this regard was largely a product of the fact that they were ignorant of the existence of the shuttles (SL13-37).

Aside from these tantalizing but unhelpful notes, the information that might prove of greatest use to modern explorers is the chart on the reverse of the blackboard. Entitled “Survivors,” this chart lists the names of the known rudishva survivors of the Beacon’s crew, along with some brief comments about their utility to the Archonteans.

Name	Archontean Notes	GM Notes
Crallicarus	Utterly useless. Some kind of actor or worse. Now organizing dramatic readings in the old hopper coliseum near the tomb of Marius.	Crellik-Var, better known as the Lord of the Arena, 6-85
Salorikus	Agreeable and helpful, but neither a leader nor a sage. Possibly a surgical assistant? Has bizarre theories about compatibility of human and rudishva fluids.	Psalor-Ki, insane vivisectionist at 5-74
Ravatorus	A sage of sorts, with deep knowledge of subterranean and piscine life forms. Has offered assistance in identifying rare creatures and helping determine their abilities.	Reiv-Tor, insane and fish-obsessed, at SL7-23
Isocrates	Able warrior, and loyal servant of the empire. Co-founded Order of the Subterranean Knights but fell out with Melacorius. Now permanent advisor to the Under-Archon on tactical matters.	Isok-Crix, now known as Isocorax, prisoner of Thegan at 6-20

Melacorius	Strong warrior, but of suspect loyalty. Co-created Order of Subterranean Knights. Motives opaque. Has a hidden base. Archon wishes to bring him to heel.	Melok-Ri, known as Master Malachite, the master of the Sun-Scarred Knights, SL10A-32
Nacalorus	Rudishva legionary, servant of Melacorius	Naik-Lir, was tortured and killed by Reiv-Tor after the Archontean collapse. Now a giant rudishva skeleton at SL7-13

SL14-7: Special Rudishva Teleport Node

The door to this niche is a rudishva iris door, one that requires a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) to open.

The semi-circular niche within contains a special type of rudishva teleport node. The traditional 5'-diameter circle of silvery material is inset into the floor, but the 10"x10" square affixed to the wall is made of golden metal.

Unlike other nodes in the rudishva teleportation network which activate at the touch of any warm-blooded hand, this node can only be activated by placing one of the two special yellow rudishva identity plaque against the golden square. Teleportation is instantaneous once the plaque is presented.

GM Note: The Archontean opened the door, but were stymied by the teleport node.

Teleport Node:

T24: access to 9-97

SL14-8: Second Rudishva Teleport Node

This niche is identical to SL14-7 in every way, including the special requirements that its door can only be opened with a sky blue or better rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) and that the teleport node within requires a yellow rudishva identity plaque to activate. The Archontean also never figured out how to operate the teleport node.

Teleport Node:

T25: access to 5-95A

SL14-9: Rudishva Plasteel Corridor

The door from SL14-6 is a rudishva iris door that opens to a pale green, pink, orange, silver or yellow rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items). Beyond it is a fragment of grey plasteel corridor (that once connected to the bridge of the Beacon to the rest of the starship). The door to the bridge (SL14-10) is also a rudishva iris door that opens only when a pale green, pink, orange, silver or yellow rudishva identity plaque (see new technological items) is presented.

Two wooden benches sit in the fragment. Above them, an arrow is painted on the wall, pointing to the door to SL14-10. Next to the arrow, painted in fine Mithric calligraphy, are the words "The Beacon – Source of the Old Ones' Power."

SL14-10: Chamber of the Beacon (Bridge, Top Level)

This large, 20'-tall area was the bridge of the rudishva starship, the Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven. Since the dedicated nuclear reactor for the bridge is still functioning (see SL14-14), the entire area remains powered. Entering the chamber thus causes the strips of LED lighting that crisscross the ceiling to activate instantly.

In addition, entering the bridge causes all the once-dormant consoles to begin blinking with colored lights. The bridge is best understood as comprising four areas: the captain's station, the astrogation station, the communications station, and the security station. The captain's platform is 6' above the rest of the bridge. Unless otherwise indicated, the structural elements are comprised of off-white, triple-strength plasteel, while the furnishings are of ordinary plasteel in various colors. As with other rudishva areas, all corners are rounded; no right angles exist here. The bridge is uninhabited, as no one has visited it in more than 1,200 years.

SL14-10A: Captain's Station

Rising 6' above the main deck of the bridge, this area holds the command chair and the null-grav shaft leading to the lower level of the bridge. The shaft is oval; one simply steps into the hole, gives oneself a shove, and levitates downward to emerge at SL14-11 one segment later.

Command Chair: This 8'-wide chair is made of yellow plasteel. As it swivels on a plasteel pin, it allows the commander to easily survey the activities at the important systems consoles below. Each armrest of the chair contains an oval indentation some 12"x9" in size. A LED light within each indentation currently blinks red.

The indentations are where a command tablet (see new technological items) must be placed in order to activate certain systems. Unsurprisingly, neither of the two tablets are present here; one is currently found in the captain's quarters at 9-94, while the other is found at 9-107. The Archontean, who knew of only one of the two, called these objects 'the tablet of the Beacon' (see new technological items).

Actions Possible without the Command Tablet: Without the command tablet, one can only query the Beacon's computer. The computer responds with a visual representation that appears on the large screen in the astrogation station, taking the form of a speaking nataraja. The computer only responds to commands in the rudishva, kaliyani, varumani or varuda languages. The computer has not 'learned' anything since the collapse of the rudishva hegemony. This means it can answer any question about the hegemony (history, politics, philosophy, technology, science, etc.), and can give the locations within Arden Vul of those pods used by the rudishva after the crash (e.g., SL2-2, 6-27, 6-113, 7-143, SL13-37, and SL14-10, but not SL12-4). It knows nothing about the Archontean or 'modern' events or history, however. If queried about technology, it provides schematics and highly technical instructions – information that is largely incomprehensible to those without prior knowledge of high technology (it did not help the Archontean).

The computer holds a vast amount of information about xenobiology, including all of the races and creatures that arrived with the Beacon: varumani, varuda, rudishva, kaliyani, baindara, etc. It also contains good data about life-forms encountered after the crash, including heqeti, humans, and demi-humans. Careful use of the computer could give the user full information about these creatures' strengths and weaknesses.

Actions Possible with the Command Tablet: Two additional actions are available to those with a command tablet. One can give commands to any of the Beacon's AIs, and one activate the advanced functions at the other three command stations (see below). The only remaining AIs are RAJ-750 (6-27) and AKL-600 (SL14-13). While the latter obeys any command from the Bridge, RAJ-750 has a 20% chance of ignoring a command due to its insanity.

SL14-10B: Intermediary Podiums

Between the navigator's chair and the captain's platform stand two 5'-tall podiums made of yellow plasteel. These podiums were the stations for the First Officer and Chief Science Officer respectively.

Each of the podiums has a small (18"x18") screen, with several buttons, levers, and dials; these officers can mirror any of the other stations in the bridge (thus allowing a degree of redundancy in the case of emergency).

SL14-10C: Astrogation Station

This area of the bridge contains a huge (30'x20') curved screen, the navigator's chair, and a related console. All the furnishings are constructed of pale blue plasteel, with the exception of the viewscreen, which occupies the entire northwest wall and is black and featureless. Only after the astrogator selects an astrogation crystal and, using the console, calculates his/her destination does the screen light up, displaying a star map with selected jumps indicated by yellow lines. The console contains the usual buttons, track pads, dials, and levers, all of which are used to calculate potential jump routes from one star system to the next.

Despite its mostly moot value as an astrogation computer (as the Beacon will not fly again), the console contains the potentially most valuable objects in the entire sub-level: a set of 55 astrogation crystals. These crystals are about 6" long and shaped like octagonal columns; they are stored in a specially designed trays that slide in and out of the console. Forty-five of the crystals already have destinations imprinted on them, while the other ten are 'blank'. The forty-five 'filled' crystals are necessary items should the PCs wish to use the LOAV-291 shuttle (see SL13-37B) to travel between the stars. The destinations of the 'filled' crystals are not detailed here, as individual GMs should select star systems that are appropriate for their own campaigns. The ten 'empty' crystals can have new destinations imprinted on them using the astrogation console.

It takes high intelligence and knowledge of Rudishva glyphs to operate the astrogation console. Without linguistic knowledge, operation will fail as a matter of course. Even with knowledge of Rudishva glyphs, operators have only a 4% chance per point of INT to correctly manipulate the console. Failure causes a temporary shorting of the system: the console flashes red, an ominous voice intones in rudishva 'System failure! System Failure! Report to Captain or Security!'. Accompanying these audiovisual cues is an electrical discharge that strikes the operator for 6-24 HP damage. The system reboots in 2 turns.

Actions Possible without Command Tablet

1. Call up a star chart from any one of a score of sectors.
2. Plot routes between stars, using the astrogation computer.
3. Review destinations and routes imprinted on already filled astrogation crystals; the operator can also use those crystals to set a destination for the Beacon.
4. Switch to communications mode (see communications station)
5. Open trays containing astrogation crystals; remove crystals; insert them into the astrogation console.

Actions Only Possible With Command Tablet

1. Imprint a new star destination on a 'blank' astrogation crystal.
2. Initiate interstellar travel, using destination and routes previously plotted [this function is no longer available as the Beacon is in pieces and is no longer capable of flight].

SL14-10D: Security Station

The security station lies to the right of the captain's platform; its furnishings are made of red plasteel. It consists of two swiveling chairs plus a bank of screens, dials, buttons, track-pads, and levers. Here the security officers could activate the Beacon's formidable weapons systems and monitor its shields. As those systems (weapons and shields) were destroyed in the crash of the Beacon, the station currently offers limited functionality.

Actions Possible without Command Tablet

1. Display live video feeds of any still-powered pod of the Beacon (areas SL2-2, 6-27, 6-113, 7-143, SL13-37, and SL14-10).
2. Display inventory of each armory (5-118 and 6-27).

Actions Only Possible with Command Tablet

1. Deactivate all rudishva security constructs and battle robots. This includes those found at areas 5-118, 6-16, 6-30, 6-84, SL2-4, SL10A-16, SL10A-18, and SL13-37. The constructs and robots will become inert for 8 hours at which point they reboot.
2. Flood any still-powered pod of the Beacon with a nerve gas that causes all respiring creatures (not, for example, the sumuksu in 6-121) to fall unconscious for 4-7 hours.
3. Fire starship weapons [function is no longer available, as weapons were destroyed in the crash].
4. Raise, lower, and modify defensive screens [function no longer available].

SL14-10E: Communications Station

The communications station is to the left of the captain's platform; it's made of emerald green plasteel. The station consists of two swiveling chairs plus a bank of screens, dials, buttons, track-pads, and levers. Here a team of communications officers monitored incoming transmission from other starships and bases, tracked other interstellar bodies, sent communications from the command team, and monitored intra-Beacon communications. The interstellar functions are no longer operative, as the arrays needed for them were destroyed in the crash. Limited functions thus remain.

Actions Possible without Command Tablet

1. Project image and voice of whoever is sitting in captain's chair onto any of the screens in any of the pods of the Beacon.
2. Open two-way communications to any chamber in a still-powered pod of the Beacon. These include 5-92, 6-27, 6-112, 7-143, 9-89 to 9-97, SL2-2, SL13-37, and SL14-10.
3. Universal translation: translate anything spoken at any of the four stations on the bridge into any one of a hundred languages. Clearly any modern language (Archontean) can be translated into any of the starfaring languages; but, also, rudishva can be translated into Archontean provided that an Archontean speaker spends 6 turns speaking on the bridge.

Actions Only Possible with Command Tablet

1. Initiate interstellar communications [this function no longer works, as the necessary equipment was destroyed in the crash].
2. Eavesdrop on any chamber in a still-powered pod of the Beacon.
3. Detect incoming interstellar transmissions. Although the Beacon's crew could not transmit their own messages after the crash, they could still receive them. An operator has a 2% chance per hour of detecting a transmission (which is then automatically translated). The GM should make up whatever interesting-sounding space conversations he/she desires.

SL14-11: Bridge, Lower Level: Null-Grav Shaft

An eye shaped hole in the ceiling leads up to the Captain's Station (SL14-10A). The shaft of the null-grav tube is marked on the floor by a comparable eye-shaped, 2"-tall rim of grey plasteel. To use the null-grav shaft, one simply enters the null-grav field, kicks off, and arrives at SL14-10A one segment later.

SL14-12: Bridge, Lower Level: Conference Room

The rudishva iris door to this chamber does not require an identity plaque; it is motion activated and dilates open whenever someone approaches within 5'. Within is a wide chamber that served as a conference room for the bridge crew. A white plasteel elongated oval table occupies the center of the chamber; it is surrounded by two plasteel arm-chairs and ten plasteel stools. Atop the table are three large sheets of parchment (3'x4'). One has a careful, accurate floor plan of both levels of the bridge inscribed on it (areas SL14-10 to SL14-14). An Archontean hand has added notations describing the functions of each area: 'command' (SL14-10A), 'talking' (SL14-10E), 'power' (SL14-14), 'strange ghost' (SL14-13), 'weapons' (SL14-10D), etc. A second sheet of parchment contains similarly accurate depictions of both levels of the crew pod (6-112); other than the description 'Barracks of the Old Ones', it lacks annotations. The third piece of parchment has a treasure map to the tomb of Liskon the Mad (8-133).

SL14-13: Bridge, Lower Level: Observation Lounge

The rudishva iris door to this chamber also opens automatically whenever anyone approaches within 5'. This chamber served as a lounge and observation chamber for the officers of the Beacon. Its three exterior walls are all formed of black view-screens mounted on plasteel. Against the interior wall are two low consoles, each containing a Nutri-vore 2500 food and aquavit dispenser. Seven circular tables, each with a trio of stools, dot the chamber.

When the lounge is entered, low ambient lighting is activated and a hologram of a rudishva dressed in traditional rudishva garb appears, welcoming the guests. The hologram is the visual manifestation of the second artificial intelligence that journeyed with the Beacon, an entity formally designated as AKL-600 but known to the crew (and to herself) as Akla-Chah. Unlike her compatriot, RAJ-750 (6-27), Akla-Chah has not drifted into insanity; she is still as cheerful, curious, and eager to please as she was when the Beacon crashed millennia ago.

Akla-Chah was designed to provide psychological reinforcement to the officers of the Beacon. She solicitously asks after the health and well-being of all visitors, asking them rather direct questions about their actions and how they felt in taking those actions. She does not simply pose 'solutions' but tells folksy stories (using examples from the Hegemony) as a way of suggesting ways in which her interlocutor might act (or might alternately have acted) with honor and morality. In game terms, she is lawful good, and tries to steer interlocutors to act in comparable ways.

While her public demeanor might seem less than useful, Akla-Chah is a repository of important information. She knows the layout of all of the rudishva areas within Arden Vul, she knows quite a bit about the layout of the Archontean areas and about Archontean history, and so forth. Still, she does not impart her knowledge casually; she only reveals information to those whom she feels have demonstrated honorable intentions and a moral outlook on life. For this reason she was cagey with the Archontean, whose general motives she distrusted. She speaks all languages of the Rudishva Hegemony, as well as Mithric.

Provided the PCs meet her morality protocols, the following represents some specific pieces of information she could impart:

1. Deck plans for all modules of the Beacon
2. Floor plans for all rudishva-built areas of the Halls
3. Psychological profiles of the Beacon's crew, including those dead (i.e., the Captain) and those who survive (e.g., Psalor-Ki). She does not know what the survivors have been up to in the past millennium, but can accurately predict their interests (for Psalor-Ki, bodies and surgery) and general level of trustworthiness.
4. The existence of another AI, namely RAJ-750 (6-27). She was in communication with RAJ until a few centuries ago, as they would play chess with each other. She broke off contact when it appeared obvious that he had become insane. She can and will warn friendly interlocutors about the dangers of interacting with RAJ.
5. The broad outlines of the Beacon crew's plan to finally escape Arden Vul and Magae. She knows of the existence of a modified shuttle (SL13-37B) ready for 'travel between the stars'. She can also list the items that the crew believed were necessary to achieve interstellar flight (a drive rod from 7-143, fuel, arcanum-enriched deuterium – see SL13-37, and astrogation crystals), although she does not know the exact formulae for the deuterium hybrid. She has a good idea where three of these items might be obtained: the engine pod for the drive-rod (7-143), the shuttle bay for fuel (SL13-37), and the bridge for the astrogation crystals (SL14-10). She knows that Captain Leil-Jor and the chemical engineer, Fek-Prail, were in intense and secretive conversation just before the rudishva collapse, and she speculates that Fek-Prail might have solved the deuterium problem. She suggests looking in the captain's chamber or in the secret science installation (see areas 9-94, 9-96 and SL9-48).

6. Complete biological profiles of all the races present on the Beacon. In other words, she knows about special abilities and weaknesses of the varumani, kaliyani, varuda and rudishva.
7. Confirmation that the rudishva took a powerful horn from the heqeti ziggurat (area 10-37) and stored it in the secure vault (5-95A). Explanation of the process for accessing the vault, i.e., use of the special yellow identity plaques (the captain's cards) to access area SL14-8.

Finally, in return for helping PCs with information, Akla-Chah asks but one thing: she would like the PCs to bring her with them if and when they use the shuttle to travel to the stars. She explains how her consciousness and memory can be downloaded into a large crystal in area SL14-14, and requests that this crystal be brought aboard the shuttle (SL13-37B) so that she, too, can escape to her 'home'.

GM Note:: Her hologram cannot be damaged. Attacks against it pass through it without harm. She laughs off initial attacks as the result of fear, but if PCs continue to act in a hostile manner towards her hologram, she is unlikely to offer any help.

Inhabitant:

1. AKL-600, aka Akla-Chah, holographic projection of an AI: no physical stats, no damage, no attacks.

SL14-14: Bridge, Lower Level: Mechanical

The rudishva iris door to this chamber also opens automatically, whenever anyone approaches within 5'. The chamber is filled with humming machinery and blinking red, yellow, and green LED lights. Although it will look like an undifferentiated mass of rudishva technology to most visitors, the machinery can be considered as forming two inter-related but distinct areas. The larger area is the nuclear reactor that provides power to the bridge. The smaller area is the interface and memory crystals of the AI, AKL-600 (See SL14-13). It is possible to destroy the machinery, but it takes several lightning bolts or a meteor swarm to do so. Shutting down the reactor also has a 20% chance of causing an explosion; in that case, damage is extensive (15-90 HP to all beings within 100' and obliteration of the bridge). It is possible to interact with Akla-Chah here, although such interaction must be through typed questions; after 10 minutes of this, she suggests that interlocutors visit her in the observation lounge, where communication is faster. Finally, it is possible to download Akla-Chah's personality and memories onto one of five slim, elongated crystalline rods that project from the machinery. In almost all cases, Akla-Chah will explain how to accomplish this process, and will do the downloading on her own. Those with exceptional intelligence (INT of 18 or more) have a 10% chance to figure out how to do this on their own. Akla-Chah only encourages downloading herself onto a crystal when/if the PCs are ready and capable of using the remaining shuttle (SL13-37B) to travel to the stars.

SUB-LEVEL 15: DRUID'S RETREAT

A set of wide-ranging natural tunnels threads through the stone and earth to the northwest of the ruined city of Arden Vul. Although the tunnels were begun by burrowing creatures in the distant past, many of the tunnels were expanded and widened by a band of corrupt legionaries during the final years of the Archontean presence in the city of Arden Vul. This group of criminals (see SL15-4) took the opportunity provided by the War of the Sortians and Theosophs (see World of Archontos Appendix) to abscond with a number of valuables from the city. Operating out of the donjon of Arden Vul, they siphoned the stolen goods into the tunnels they located beneath the Ghost Tower (AV-27), and slowly moved the goods north and west, periodically storing them in caves along the way (e.g. SL15-20). The criminals managed to 'liberate' a fair number of valuables, but their rear guard fell prey to a periapt of discord (see new magic items) and turned on and slew each other (SL15-20). Some of their valuables are still to be found among the tunnels.

More recently, the druid Gerrilad the Grey (see 2-69), who rules over the baboons on Level 2, discovered the tunnel network, and found it a perfect means by which he could secretly enter and exit the dungeons of Arden Vul in order to collect mistletoe and holly. He periodically ventures from 2-33 to SL15-1, SL15-2, SL15-5, SL15-11, SL15-17, SL15-19, and finally to SL15-21. His druid skills have allowed him to befriend or at least pacify many of the animals (e.g. the cave bear in SL15-21) that frequent the tunnels.

The tunnel network also connects to several cellars, sub-basements, crypts, and vaults, some lying within the walls of the ruined city and some without. If a few of these basements are relatively innocuous (e.g., SL15-17), others contain formidable guardians and tempting treasure (e.g., SL15-7 and SL15-13). Finally, it should be noted that the longest-lived inhabitant of the tunnels is the nymph, Phryne, who inhabits the crystalline grotto at SL15-16. Phryne is bored and would like companionship; unfortunately, she is currently engaged in a fierce conflict with a marid named Asim.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION NOTES

Archontean areas: SL15-4, SL15-7 to SL15-10, SL15-13, SL15-17.

These are all the basements or sub-cellars of buildings found within the city (or just without).

Natural tunnels: Unless otherwise indicated, the tunnels are about 8-12' wide and 9-12' tall.

IMPORTANT NPCs

Gerrilad the Grey (2-69). Normally found on Level 2, there is a chance to encounter Gerrilad here as a random encounter.

Phryne the nymph (SL15-16)

ENVIRONMENT

The natural tunnels are relatively moist and humid. Numerous small insects and rodents may be detected scampering or fluttering just out of sight.

ACCESS AND EGRESS

To Ruined City: trap door in SL15-4, leading up to the basement of the Ghost Tower in AV-27

To Ruined City: trap-door at SL15-9, leading up to AV-44

To Ruined City: stairs at SL15-10, leading up to AV-45

To Ruined City: cave at SL15-21, leading to ruined city at AV-46

To Level 2: tunnel at SL15-1, leading down to 2-33

To Level 8: tunnel at SL15-12, leading down to 8-60

RANDOM ENCOUNTERS

Checks should be made every three turns, with a 1 in 6 chance for an encounter.

D100	Encounter
1-10	2 gray oozes: SZ L; AL N; AC 8; MV 10'; HD 3+3; HP 23, 18; #AT 1; Dmg 2-16. Special attacks: corrode metal. Special defenses: impervious to spells; immune to heat and cold.
11-25	1-2 minotaurs: SZ L; AL CE; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 6+3; HP 43, 40; #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/1-4 or 1-10 (huge axe). Special attacks: track by scent. Special defenses: surprised only on 1 in 6. Possessions: huge axes. A total of three minotaurs can be encountered as wandering monsters.
26-40	2-5 shadows: SZ M; AL CE; AC 7; MV 120; HD 3+3; HP 21, 20, 18, 17, 15; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: 90% undetectable; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold
41-55	1-3 boring beetles: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 5; HP 33, 31, 23; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20
56-65	9-12 fire beetles: SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 120'; HD 1+2; HP 10, 9, 8(x3), 7(x3), 6, 6, 5, 4; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8
66-75	2-4 carcass creepers: SZ L; AL N; AC 3 (head) or 7 (body); MV 120'; HD 3+1; HP 20, 19, 18, 15; #AT 8; Dmg nil. Special attacks: paralysis
76-85	16-25 giant rats: SZ S; AL N(E); AC 7; MV 120'; HD 1-4 HP; HP 4(x6), 3(x7), 2(x6), 1(x6); #At 1; Dmg 1-3. Special attacks: 5% chance of disease
86-92	1-12 huge spiders: SZ M; AL N; AC 6; MV 180'; HD 2+2; HP 15(x3), 15(x3), 13(x3), 11(x3); #AT 1; Dmg 1-6. Special attacks: surprise 1-5; poison (+1 to saves); can leap up to 30'.
93-97	9-12 giant centipedes: SZ S; AL N; AC 9; MV 150'; HD 1 or 2 HP; HP 2(x6), 1(x6); #AT 1; Dmg n.a. Special attacks: poison (+4 to save)
99-100	Gerrilad the Grey (for stats see 2-69). If encountered and slain here, he obviously cannot be encountered on Level 2.

LEVEL KEY

SL15-1: Tunnel and Slope up to Level 2 (2-33)

A scree of collapsed stone and rubble leads sharply upward towards a hole in the floor of one of the cult of Thoth's robing rooms (2-33). The tunnel leading to the scree is narrow (5' wide), low (5' tall), and dripping with moisture.

SL15-2: Deserted Cave

This large cave is marked by some beautiful flowstone that forms irregular ledges leading into the northwestern tunnel. A ranger might be able to detect signs of recent human traffic from area SL15-5 towards SL15-1.

A 4'-tall marble statue of a whippet, and a 5'-tall bronze statue of Ptah lean against the wall by the tunnel to SL15-3. Both shows signs of moisture and tarnish. At their feet are the decomposed remains of a wooden crate; amid the mostly decayed detritus are five ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items). All the objects were part of the plunder that the corrupt legionaries were smuggling out of the Ghost Tower (AV-27) during the last days of Archontean rule in Arden Vul (see SL15-4 for more information). Since Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) is uninterested in statuary, he has not bothered to collect them.

Treasure:

4'-tall marble statue of a sitting whippet (200 gp); 5'-tall bronze statue of Ptah (450 gp); 5 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items).

SL15-3: Dead End Corridor

After rising close to 150', the tunnel ends in a wide gallery. The gallery and the approach tunnel are marked by some impressive flowstone. At the end of the gallery are the scorched remains of three adventurers, all of whom show signs of having been burned by fire. Although the corpses are not ancient, they have no valuables, as Gerrilad the Grey (see 2-69) stripped all the valuables from these, his former comrades.

Trap (explosive runes): The secret door has three glyphs of warding (26 HP of fire damage) inscribed on it. Speaking 'fire' in Mithric will allow passage.

Secret Door (west): The secret door is normal to find. It opens by releasing a hidden catch, and then rotating it on a horizontal pin. Listening at the door has a good chance (+5%) to hear wordless moaning and cries (the vengeful spirit in SL15-4).

SL15-4: Haunted Sub-Basement, with access to AV-27

This 40'-diameter sub-basement has a relatively low ceiling (7'), and is packed with crates and barrels. Most of the supplies are spoiled foodstuffs, but 2-4 turns of investigation turns up quantities of thread, twine, copper wire (5 gp), twenty 5-lb iron ingots (5 cp each), twenty 5-lb steel ingots (5 sp each), a dozen bulls-eye lanterns, 2 dozen wax candles, 2 coils of silk rope, 3 cords of firewood, and a set of surveyor's tools. A 10'-square trap door leads up to the basement of the Ghost Tower in the donjon of Arden Vul (AV-27).

A 5'-diameter space near the east side of the sub-basement has been cleared of clutter. There the corpses of two Archontean military officials lie on the floor. Both have daggers of venom (3 doses remaining in each) in their necks. The souls of the murdered dekarchs haunt the sub-basement and the rest of the Ghost Tower as vengeful spirits (see new monsters). One vengeful spirit will be encountered here, in the sub-basement, while the other is 90% likely to be wandering the Ghost Tower. Combat in the sub-basement likely to draw the other vengeful spirit (20% cumulative chance per round). It should be noted that combat is difficult due to the cramped conditions (-2 to hit and damage). Either or both of the spirits will pursue PCs as far as SL15-2.

Due to the foul manner in which the officers were betrayed, their spirits are particularly hard to banish. Until their remains are removed and given a proper burial, they will continue to reform even if defeated; it takes them 1-6 hours to reform.

Secret Door (east): The door is normal to find and opens by locating a catch and rotating the door on a horizontal pivot.

GM Note: During the chaos of the imperial retraction, the two dekarchs discovered that some of their legionaries had been smuggling imperial supplies into the tunnels under the Ghost Tower. When the officers started to investigate, their men lured them to the basement and slew them treacherously.

Inhabitants:

1. Poulos Tissel and Mekos Gadril, vengeful spirits (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 1; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 41, 36; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12; MR 25%. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to fire; turned as vampires; reform in 1-6 hours so long as their bones remain unburied.

SL15-5: Covered Pit Traps

At this wide space in the corridor, the druid Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) has constructed a pair of pit traps that almost completely block the tunnel.

Traps (covered pits): The pits are 15'x15' and cover the entire passage except for a narrow, 3'-wide ledge along the northeast wall. They are covered with canvas painted to resemble stone, with bits of rock dust and sand sprinkled on top. The pits are also next to each other, so that those attempting to leap across one will fall into the other. The pits are both 15' deep; those falling into one of them take 2-9 HP damage.

SL15-6: Rat Nest

A swarm of giant rats makes its nest in this isolated nook. Although the swarm includes 40 rats, only 24 will be found here at any given time. The rats present in the nest fight fiercely to defend it.

Inhabitants:

1. 24 giant rats: SZ S; AL N(E); AC 7; MV 120'; HD 1-4 HP; HP 4(x6), 3(x6), 2(x6), 1(x6); #At 1; Dmg 1-3. Special attacks: 5% chance of disease.

Treasure:

Within the nest are 37 ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items), three zircon gems (50 gp each), and a potion of cloud giant strength.

Lost Vaults of the Sodality of Plenty

Vault	Lock	Trap	Contents
1	Hard (-10%)	Poison needle (-5% to detect). Save or die.	Three 10'x15' carpets (300 gp each); a teak and ivory desk and chair (300 gp); two floor-length candlesticks made of enormous ivory tusks (300 gp each); a 15'-diameter pendant of a sunburst, made of bronze with gold accents (200 gp); and six rare tomes. The books include a deluxe, 2 volume, illustrated copy of the Tales of Larel One-Eye ; the Properties of Blood ; the Codex Legionariorum ; the Book of Night Maneuvers ; On Profit , by Fulvius the Factor, with coded blackmail in the margins; and On the Terrible Old Gods .
2	Normal	Poison needle (+5% to detect). Save or die.	Ten marble statues of Archontean subjects, nine of which are worth 100-1,000 gp each, and one of which is worth 1,500 gp.
3	Easy (+10%)	None	Fifty 5-lb bars of silver (250 sp each); fifty 5-lb bars of gold (250 gp each); 10 5-lb bars of platinum (1,250 gp each).
4	Very Hard (-15%)	Symbol of fireball inside the lock; all within 20' take 8-48 HP damage (save for half damage)	A chest with 15,000 ancient silver pennies; two treasure maps; a suit of imperial field plate +1 (see Arden Vul items); a two handed sword +2, dragon-slayer ; and a chest filled with family papers (relating to the Xenarcheon clan – possible blackmail value)
5	Very Easy (+15%)	Poison gas (+10% to detect). All within 20' must save (bonus of +2 on saves) or die.	Nothing
6	Normal	Green slime coated on inside of lock and coating inside of door frame	A collection of 50 mixed volumes of erotica and children's tales, worth 10-60 gp per volume.

SL15-7: Lost Vault of the Sodality of Plenty

A narrow crack (2' wide, 4' tall) leads from the tunnel into this large vault. The vault is 100'x50'x15' in size. At the west end is a 10'-wide staircase that once led up to the basement of the Sodality's base in Arden Vul; the top of the staircase is covered in tons of rubble, however. The vault proper is divided into a series of eighteen stone storage cubes. Each cube is 10' high, 20' deep, and 10' tall, and is accessed via a locked stone door. A 10'-wide corridor runs between the two rows of cubes. The doors of twelve of the vaults swing open, as their contents were removed before the fall of the city. The other six are still locked shut (see above table for contents). The Sodality's ancient vault guardian – an insane clay golem – remains vigilant to this day.

GM Note: The Sodality of Plenty was the precursor to the Golden Band; that is, it was one of the early merchant guilds-cum-banks, serving wealthy Archontes across the empire (see Factors, World of Archontos appendix). There is a 50% chance that the modern Golden Band still has a record of any of the recognizable items found here; attempts to sell that item might bring enmity and/or legal action from the Golden Band.

Inhabitant:

1. 1 clay golem: SZ L; AL N; AC 7; MV 70'; HD 11; HP 50; #AT 1; Dmg 3-30. Special attacks: haste 1x/day; damage from clay golem only repairable by means of a heal spell by a 17th-level cleric. Special defenses: hit only by blunt magical weapons; immune to all spells except move earth, disintegrate, or earthquake.

SL15-8: Minotaurs

This large basement provides a lair for a pack of six minotaurs. While the voracious monsters can be encountered anywhere within the sub-level as wandering monsters, three of the beasts are always be present here.

A stone staircase in the southwest corner once linked the basement to a residence in the city above. The residence is completely destroyed, however, and tons of rubble block the exit. It would take several days of serious digging to render the stairs usable again.

Although the basement smells rank, it contains a number of large pieces of art and other treasure collected by the ring of corrupt ancient legionaries (see SL15-4). These include two large area carpets (350 gp and 475 gp respectively), a gold-plated torchiere (75 gp), an exotic bronze bell hung in a tripod of carved ebony (275 gp), a rosewood chest carved with domestic scenes (150 gp), a carefully-wrapped packet of seven 5-lb bars of platinum (125 gp each), a 2' marble statue of a snake swallowing a cat (225 gp), a 4'-tall marble statue of a young girl as a dancer (275 gp), and a 5'-tall bronze statue of a javelin thrower (450 gp).

Inhabitants:

1. 3 minotaurs: SZ L; AL CE; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 6+3; HP 45, 40, 38; #AT 2; Dmg 2-8/1-4 or 1-10 (huge axe). Special attacks: track by scent. Special defenses: surprised only on 1 in 6. Possessions: huge axes. A total of three minotaurs can be encountered as wandering monsters.

Treasure:

See above.

SL15-9: Sub-Basement of Westgate, with access to AV-44

The sub-basement is filled with debris, mostly crates and barrels that have been smashed open and their contents torn up and dispersed. Holes in the sub-basement walls appear to have been formed by picks and sledges; the north hole was created from the outside, while the south hole seems to have been dug from within the sub-basement.

For every turn spent poking around in the debris, there is a cumulative 10% chance of attracting the minotaurs from SL15-8.

Trap Door (ceiling): In the ceiling is a trap door that leads up to the lowest floor of the Westgate gatehouse (AV-44). Forcing open the trap door requires a successful open doors roll.

SL15-10: Basement with Bones and Lizards, with access to AV-45

The tunnel from the north narrows to only 3' wide and 4' tall just before climbing steeply to a hole in a worked stone floor. The hole leads to the basement of the residential wing of an ancient gladiatorial school (AV-45) that was located outside the city walls of Arden Vul. The basement smells foully of animals, and is covered with the bones of small- and medium-sized prey. It is the lair of a pack of five subterranean lizards. Three of the lizards are present at any one time.

Among the stench and bones is the long-forgotten stash of the school's owner. The stash is concealed behind pair of loose bricks in the basement wall (detect as secret door).

Inhabitants:

1. 5 subterranean lizards: SZ L; AL N; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 6; HP 47, 44, 41, 36, 33; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12. Special attacks: double damage on a natural roll to hit of 20.

Treasure:

6,161 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items); a gold collar set with garnets (6,000 gp); a platinum necklace with depending emeralds (9,000 gp); a pair of matching platinum and emerald earrings (4,000 gp); a silver brooch set with topaz (5,000 gp); a potion of animal control (all), a potion of hill giant strength, and a potion of vitality.

SL15-11: Crossroads

Several tunnels converge in this broad cave. Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) has painted a large (3'-tall) red letter from the Archontean alphabet next to each of the tunnel mouths: in a clockwise direction these are 'E' (north tunnel), 'W' (southeast tunnel) and 'N' (southwest tunnel). For Gerrilad, these stand for 'Exit', 'Workplace', and 'No' respectively, although he also designed them to deceive potential intruders about cardinal directions. Given the central location of the cave, a check for random encounters should be made for every turn that PCs are present here.

SL15-12: Tunnel Descending to Level 8 (8-60)

This tunnel descends for over half a mile, becoming progressively drier in the process, before joining area 8-60.

SL15-13: Crypt of the Everlasting Brotherhood

This large space (100'x100'x20') is filled with granite sarcophagi pushed so close together that it is almost impossible to move between them. Scattered among the nearly 350 sarcophagi are ten mausoleums, each measuring on average about 10'x6'x10'. Although a staircase along the south wall once led up to the basement of the Brotherhood's extramural headquarters, the upper levels have collapsed and are inaccessible. Access to the crypt is currently available only via a crack in the east wall some 2' wide by 5' high (a curious minotaur from SL15-8 widened the crack in its endless search for food).

Sarcophagi: The sarcophagi are not particularly fancy, being rough-hewn from granite. About 20% (some 70 of the total) have lids carved as gisants, with images of the inhabitant and (sometimes) a short inscription in Mithric. Inscriptions are all the same: an Archontean name, with the word 'Brother' after it.

D100	Inscription	Inhabitant	Treasure
1-40	No	Inert mummy	1-20 ancient silver pennies and 1-8 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items)
41-50	No	Ghoul	1-20 ancient silver pennies, 1-8 ancient gold solidi and 10% chance for a 50 gp gem
51-60	No	Ghoul	1-20 ancient silver pennies, 1-8 ancient gold solidi and 15% chance for a 50 gp gem
61-75	No	Wight	2-40 ancient silver pennies, 2-12 ancient gold solidi and 20% chance for a 50 gp gem
76-80	No	Shadow	1-30 ancient silver pennies, 1-10 ancient gold solidi and 20% chance for a 50 gp gem
81-90	Yes	Inert mummy	1-20 ancient silver pennies and 1-8 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items)
91-100	Yes	Undead: 1-3: Ghoul 4-6: Shadow 7-9: Wight 10: Mummy	1-20 ancient silver pennies, 1-8 ancient gold solidi, 10% chance for a 50 gp gem, 5% chance for a potion, 5% chance for a scroll

GM Note: There are a total of 349 sarcophagi. Of these, 175 have inert mummies within them. The remaining 174 contain undead, in this proportion: 80 ghouls, 62 wights, 28 shadows, 4 mummies.

Mausoleums: The mausoleums are formed of white marble, in the style of a classical temple (with pediment, hip roof, etc.). Each has a narrow door (3' wide) leading to a raised table on which are placed the remains of the inhabitant. Roll on the following table to determine the contents of a mausoleum once it has been opened:

D10	Inhabitant	Treasure
1	Cassius Dio. Inert mummy	1-100 ancient silver pennies, 1-20 ancient gold solidi, 20% chance for 1-3 100 gp gems, 10% chance for a potion, 15% chance for a scroll
2	Hecubus Varus. Inert mummy	1-100 ancient silver pennies, 1-20 ancient gold solidi, 20% chance for 1-3 100 gp gems, 10% chance for a potion, 15% chance for a scroll
3	Kelallin Nerus. Inert mummy	1-100 ancient silver pennies, 1-20 ancient gold solidi, 20% chance for 1-3 100 gp gems, 10% chance for a potion, 15% chance for a scroll
4	Lucurus Trask. Inert mummy	1-100 ancient silver pennies, 1-20 ancient gold solidi, 20% chance for 1-3 100 gp gems, 10% chance for a potion, 15% chance for a scroll
5	Hereppon Nerus. Wight	2-200 ancient silver pennies, 2-40 ancient gold solidi, 25% chance for 1-3 pieces of jewelry worth 100-400 gp each, 25% chance for 1-3 potions
6	Quintus Gnaeus. Wight	2-200 ancient silver pennies, 2-40 ancient gold solidi, 25% chance for a piece of jewelry worth 100-400 gp, 25% chance for 1-2 potions
7	Junius Belleron. Wight	2-200 ancient silver pennies, 2-40 ancient gold solidi, 25% chance for a piece of jewelry worth 100-400 gp, 25% chance for 1-2 potions
8	Crascus the Aged. Mummy	4-400 ancient silver pennies, 5-100 ancient gold solidi, 25% chance for 1-4 pieces of jewelry worth 100-600 gp each, 25% chance for 1-4 potions
9	Mallarus Asdrion. Mummy	4-400 ancient silver pennies, 5-100 ancient gold solidi, 25% chance for 1-4 pieces of jewelry worth 100-600 gp each, 25% chance for 1-4 potions
10	Pannius the Discordant. Greater mummy (see new monsters)	4-400 ancient silver pennies, 5-100 ancient gold solidi, 1-4 pieces of jewelry worth 100-800 gp each, 1-4 potions, 1-4 scrolls

Disturbing the Brotherhood: The members of the Brotherhood rest peacefully (even the undead) until their sarcophagi or mausoleums are disturbed. Opening random sarcophagi is relatively safe; tomb robbers can do so without fear of other undead waking. But disturbing the mausoleums can provoke deadly results. Each mausoleum that is opened has a 10% cumulative chance of causing the undead inhabitants of the remaining mausoleums to wake and step forth to combat the desecrators. Furthermore, once any of the mummies has been awakened, all remaining undead resting within mausoleums rise within their mausoleums and step forth to combat the desecrators. Finally, once combat with Pannius the Discordant has begun, all the undead both from the mausoleums and from the sarcophagi begin to rise to assist their master: each round there is a 50% chance for 1-2 ghouls and a 25% chance for a wight to throw off the lids of their sarcophagi to aid Pannius. In other words, the undead menace gradually escalates.

Secret Door (mausoleum of Pannius the Discordant): The solid stone block on which Pannius rests can be shifted backwards 5'; this is only possible if the neighboring sarcophagus is first lifted out of its place. Once the mausoleum has been moved, it reveals a rough stone staircase leading downwards. The stairs lead to an unmapped cultic area, which contains sixteen sets of remarkably well-preserved cult robes (sickly yellow, with a black glove embroidered on the back), a dozen flails (one is a flail +1), and ritual accoutrements (copper knives, copper basins, a gold ewer, and silver eye spoons) worth a total of 400 gp.

Expansion Possibilities: The secret chamber provides the GM with a location to develop as an expansion to Arden Vul. The cultic area might lead to additional ritual chambers, including a shrine to Thanatos; it should contain additional undead and information about the cult of Thanatos. It might also lead to a sub-level that eventually connects to one of the main dungeon levels.

GM Background: The Everlasting Brotherhood was an ancient Archontean cult of wealthy followers of the proscribed death god, Thanatos. Its members sought eternity through unlife, and committed themselves and their fortunes to the pursuit of these goals. The Brotherhood had an extramural estate at which it pursued its mysteries. Over the centuries, the crypt in which brothers were interred grew in size, reaching its current state in the last decades before the Archontean collapse.

Inhabitants:

- 80 ghouls: SZ M; AL CE; AC 6; MV 90'; HD 2; HP 17(x10), 16(x10), 15(x10), 14(x10), 13(x10), 12(x10), 11(x10), 10(x10); #AT 3; Dmg 1-3/1-3/1-6. Special attacks: paralysis. Special defenses: immune to sleep and charm.
- 62 wights: SZ M; AL LE; AC 5; MV 120'; HD 4+3; HP 35, 34, 33(x3), 32(x3), 31(x4), 30(x10), 29(x10), 28(x10), 27(x10), 26(x10); #AT 1; Dmg 1-4. Special attacks: energy drain. Special defenses: silver or magic needed to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.
- 28 shadows: SZ M; AL CE; AC 7; MV 120; HD 3+3; HP 25, 24, 24, 23, 23, 22(x3), 21(x3), 20(x4), 19(x4), 18(x4), 17, 17, 16, 15, 15; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: 90% undetectable; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold.
- 6 mummies (4 in sarcophagi, 2 in mausoleums): SZ M; AL LE; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 6+3; HP 49, 45, 44, 40, 39, 38; #AT 1; Dmg 1-12. Special attacks: fear; rotting disease. Special defenses: +1 or better weapons to hit; half damage from magic weapons; immune to sleep, charm, hold, cold, poison, and paralysis.
- Pannius the Discordant, greater mummy (see new monsters): SZ M; AL LE; AC 0; MV 90'; HD 10+3; HP 67; #AT 1; Dmg 2-12; MR 50%. Special attacks: aura of despair (saves at -3); mummy rot; command other undead. Special defenses: magic weapons to hit (+1 does 1 HP damage; +2 does half damage; +3 does full damage); immune to cold; takes half damage from non-magical fire; turned as a ghost. Possessions: amulet of fire resistance, brooch of the Everlasting Brotherhood (see new magic items for both). Spells as 10th-level cleric with 18 WIS (6/6/4/4/2): command (x2), protection from good, darkness, curse, cause light wounds; hold person (x2), silence 15' radius (x2), resist fire, chant; dispel magic, bestow curse, blindness, animate dead; protection from good 10' radius, cure serious wounds (x2), cause serious wounds; flame strike, insect plague.

Treasure:

See tables above. Pannius the Discordant has the following additional items on his person: amulet of fire resistance and brooch of the Everlasting Brotherhood (see new magic items for both). The secret chamber has a flail +1 and goods worth 400 gp, plus ritual clothing that might be useful in the present.

SL15-14: Dead End Tunnel

After sloping down sharply for a while, this tunnel ends abruptly. A trio of boring beetles are munching on the corpse of a minotaur.

GM Note: If so desired, the tunnel could be used to expand upon Arden Vul.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 giant boring beetles: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 5; HP 38, 25, 19; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20.

SL15-15: Another Crossroads Cave

Like SL15-11, several tunnels intersect in this broad cave. Also like that location, Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) has painted 3' red letters in the Archontean alphabet by each of the tunnel mouths: 'EW' (southeastern tunnel); 'N' by the northern tunnel; and 'S' by the western tunnel. To Gerrilad these letters stand for 'exit and workplace', 'No!', and 'Scary' respectively; but he is aware that they may confuse others who wish to see them as cardinal directions.

A troupe of large spiders have taken advantage of the fact that this cave is taller (20' tall) than the surrounding tunnels to make their web across the top of it. Always hungry, they seek to poison and devour whatever prey they can find.

Inhabitants:

1. 15 large spiders: SZ S; AL N; AC 8; MV 60'; 150' in web; HD 1+1; HP 9, 8(x3), 7(x4), 6(x3), 5(x3), 4; #AT 1; Dmg 1. Special attacks: poison (+2 to saves).

Treasure:

A pouch with 73 sp and 29 gp is caught up in the spiders' web.

SL15-16: Crystalline Grotto

A broad lake surrounded by a lichen-encrusted shelf stands at the heart of this huge, 70' tall cave. The lichen emits a low green phosphorescence, which is amplified by the crystals that stud the walls. As a result the entire grotto is softly lit by green light. The lake itself is home to numerous pale white crayfish, blind white cave perch, and strands of whitish lake-weed. In the center of the lake is an island about 50' in diameter. Two features distinguish the island. One is the broken stump of a slender, marble circular staircase that once led to a hole in the ceiling of the cave; alas, the last 20' of the staircase are smashed, and the hole itself has been clogged with debris. The second feature is an unusual, 50'-tall, white-barked tree that grows in the exact center of the island. Scores of small cave crickets perch in the tree branches, emitting a beautiful and harmonious chirping.

Three men in exotic chain mail and turbans have their backs to the tree and are brandishing large scimitars towards a towering, 18'-tall magical being that floats in midair above the lake. The huge creature (a marid named Asim) is shouting in its own language at the three (jannee): "Submit to your proper master! Do not shelter the thief! Make her come forth, and deliver to me the ewer!"

The grotto is current the site of a stalemated conflict between Phryne the nymph and an angry marid named Asim. Phryne is currently hiding within the magical silverwood tree (using her plant door spell), while Asim bellows and threatens. She has summoned three jannee to defend herself and her grotto, using a rare magic item called the ewer of Fadil the Clear (see new magic items). The summoned jannee are unhappy at having to defend her against a powerful marid, but are compelled by the magic to do so. At the moment the parties are at a standoff.

Possible PC Actions:

1. Attacking Asim Immediately: If the PCs attack Asim, the marid defends himself vigorously. The jannee will shout angrily at the PCs ("Don't anger him!"), but won't intervene. Asim is a formidable foe, who torments the PCs for 4-6 rounds before retreating to the Astral Plane, threatening death and misfortune on all.
2. Attacking the Jannee Immediately: While the jannee actively defend themselves, calling for the PCs to cease their foolish behavior, Asim shouts encouragement to the intruders (he is happy to have his goals accomplished without dirtying his own hands). Asim also shouts for the PCs to 'look for the wretched faery' and to 'bring me the ewer!'
3. Negotiating with Asim: The marid is arrogant, haughty, and entirely egotistical. If the PCs are suitably humble and flatter his enormous ego, he deigns to hear their requests. Asim offers great riches (10,000 gp) to each PC if their group should procure the ewer of Fadil the Clear for him. If the PCs balk, he sweetens the deal by promising them a wish (to be fulfilled by an efreeti who owes Asim a gambling debt). If the PCs agree but renege, Asim attacks for 4-6 rounds before departing, promising dire punishments to the PCs 'and all their offspring.' If the PCs fulfill the bargain, Asim provides the wealth (and the wish) within a week, at whatever place the PCs have specified.
4. Negotiating with the Jannee: The jannee are clearly uncomfortable, and beg the PCs to seek a solution between "Lady Phryne" and the "great lord, Asim". They are cagey about who/where Phryne is, noting merely that PCs should 'talk to the tree.' Whining that they possess no authority, and are merely 'caught between the wind and the rain, they beseech the PCs to end the conflict. If attacked, they defend themselves.

5. Negotiating with Phryne, or 'the tree': PCs may not realize that they are talking to a nymph, even as the 'tree' responds to them. Phryne claims to be a helpless creature who has never hurt anyone, one who is being bullied by the 'mean genie'. She urges PCs not to trust the 'honeyed words and dire threats' of the genie (Asim), as he is merely a thief trying to drive her from the grotto she has occupied for centuries. In return for slaying Asim or driving him away, she offers her love and friendship, her wisdom, and a 'few baubles' from her meager stores. Once this is accomplished, Phryne will forever aid the PCs with spells and information about the Archontean period of Arden Vul (as she had many lovers during this time); she also provides each PC with a valuable piece of jewelry (5,000 gp each). If the tree is attacked, it is AC 4, HP 120, with no attacks; the tree 'bleeds' a white sap. Attacks upon it cause the crickets to commence a dirge-like chirping, and the luminescent lichen to flash in a strobe-like way. Phryne only emerges from the tree when it is close to being destroyed, and then with her ring of change self (see new magic items) activated; this allows her to appear as beautiful and pitiful, but prevents her from instantly blinding those who view her. She spends one round pleading for mercy. If unsuccessful, she drops the illusory form as well as her clothes, hoping to slay her persecutors. If the PCs successfully resist and/or won't negotiate, she reluctantly offers the ewer to 'tree cutters' and urges them to depart and never return; she will never aid the PCs in the future. If/when Asim is driven away without the PCs attacking her tree, Phryne emerges from the tree in her illusory form (using her ring) so as to prevent her from blinding the PCs. She then converses happily with her saviors (although she might still attempt to charm any males with CHA 17-18).

Playing Phryne the Nymph: Phryne (pron. 'Fry-knee') is ancient and very wise. With newcomers, however, she adopts a coy, girlish demeanor, one that suggests less wisdom and experience. She is bound to the crystal grotto, and derives her life force from the grotto; only when the tree is felled will she be truly destroyed. She is rather bored, as companionship over the last twelve centuries has been limited; indeed, she has been forced to summon jannee for conversation and companionship. As a result she is rather talkative, and will make every effort (including potentially acting to charm handsome males) to encourage the party to stay and keep her company. She is anxious for news of the outside world, and is happy to trade her ancient historical knowledge for information about current events. She'd like nothing more to brew herbal tea for new friends, provided those friends were willing to stay with her for ... well, for a while. She is adept at using her ring of change self to prevent blindness in those with whom she wishes to converse.

Playing Asim the Marid: The marid is a formidable foe, and may be too powerful for most parties to easily defeat. If angered, he makes full use of his magical powers (including manipulating the water in Phryne's lake). Fortunately he is arrogant and considers the PCs nothing but flies; he is not invested in immediately killing them, but is content to depart after promising to make them pay. Asim in this way could become a recurring thorn in the PCs' sides. If however, the PCs aid Asim, by defeating the jannee, felling the tree or otherwise forcing Phryne to surrender the ewer, the marid fulfills his obligations and guarantees the PCs a friendly reception at the court of the Padisha if ever they find themselves on the elemental plane of water.

GM Note: The corrupt legionaries (SL15-4 and SL15-18) stole the fabled ewer of Fadil the Clear (see new magic items) from an imperial wizard just before the collapse of Archontean rule (1,200 years ago); when they encountered Phryne in these tunnels, they were instantly besotted and offered her the ewer as a gift. Over the years Phryne has periodically used the ewer to summon jannee to provide her with companionship. Yet after the last jann was released from its century of service, that jann complained to his master, the marid, Asim. Asim decided to track down the cup and remove it from 'frivolous hands'.

Inhabitants:

1. Phryne the nymph: SZ M; AL N; AC 9; MV 120'; HD 3; HP 21; #AT 0; Dmg nil; MR 50%. Special attacks: cause blindness; nude body slays onlookers. Special defenses: dimension door 1/day. Possessions: ring of change self (see new magic items). Druid spells: animal friendship, entangle, faerie fire, speak with animals, charm person or mammal, feign death, hold animal, tree, plant door.
2. Asim the marid: SZ L; AL C; AC 0; MV 90', 150' swimming, 240' flying (Class B); HD 13; HP 89; #AT 1; Dmg 8-32; MR 25%. Special defenses: immune to water-based spells; +2 to saves versus cold; immune to steam. Continual abilities: ultravision; infravision. Powers usable twice per day: detect evil/good, detect invisible, detect magic, become invisible, assume liquid form, polymorph self, purify water. Powers usable seven times per day: gaseous form, lower water, part water, wall of fog, water breathing on others. Powers of unlimited use: create water, water walk. Powers usable once per year: alter reality. Possessions: a pair of platinum bracelets (500 gp each).
3. 3 jannee: SZ M; AL N(G); AC 2; MV 120', 300' flying (Class A); HD 6+2; HP 45, 41, 36; #AT 1; Dmg 6-14 (big scimitar) or 4-9 (composite bow); MR 20%. Possessions: chain mail; large scimitars; composite bows. Special defenses: invisibility 3/day. Special: growth/reduction 2/day; create food and water 1/day (as 7th-level cleric); etherealness 1 hr/day; dwell in elemental air, water, fire, earth for up to 48 hrs.

Treasure:

Phryne's stash is buried among the roots of the silverwood tree: 10 pieces of jewelry, 5 worth 500 gp each, 4 worth 5,000 gp each, and 1 worth 10,000 gp; the ewer of Fadil the Clear (see new magic items); 3 cones of incense of attraction (see new magic items); a black glass activation square (see Thothian teleportation rings in new magic items); and a potion of extra healing.

SL15-17: Secluded Basement

Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) has established this square sub-basement as a temporary refuge and bolt-hole. He has marked the exits with 3'-tall, painted letters in Archontean: 'E' by the northern tunnel, 'W' by the eastern tunnel, and 'S' by the southern tunnel. To Gerrilad, these stand for 'Exit', 'Workplace', and 'Scary', respectively, although visitors might mistake them for cardinal compass directions.

The basement contains a staircase along its west wall that originally led to a now-inaccessible suburban estate. Gerrilad keeps a locked chest with several items at the top of the broken staircase; a poison needle trap guards the chest's lock. In addition, he has created two screens woven from pieces of vine and sticks; these stand against the wall except when he is using the basement (at which point he casts fire trap on them and uses them to block the exits to the north and east).

Trap (poison needle): A poison needle trap is set the chest's lock. It kills unless a saving throw versus poison is made.

Treasure:

The chest contains a bedroll; three weeks' worth of iron rations; a packet of mistletoe and holly; a silver sickle (10 gp); two blocks of incense of meditation; a spare set of robes; and an emergency pouch with 200 sp and two pieces of amber (100 gp each).

SL15-18: Haunted Cave

The ancient remains of three Archontean legionaries may be found in this cave. It is easy to miss the cave mouth, as it lies 8' up the side of the tunnel wall and is quite narrow, before opening into a broader, low-ceilinged space (5' tall). The cave is haunted by three shadows, formed by the evil of the legionaries who died here.

The legionaries were the ringleaders of the smuggling ring that was pilfering valuables during the Archontean retreat (see SL15-4). They deserted their posts and headed here to wait until the coast was clear. Unfortunately, they had acquired a peript of discord (see new magic items), which led them to quarrel with and then attack each other.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 shadows: SZ M; AL CE; AC 7; MV 120; HD 3+3; HP 24, 20, 17; #AT 1; Dmg 2-5. Special attacks: STR drain. Special defenses: 90% undetectable; +1 or better weapons to hit; immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold.

Treasure:

Peript of discord (see new magic items); 128 ancient silver pennies and 87 ancient gold solidi (see Arden Vul items for coins); 2 short swords; and a short sword +1 (INT 13, empathy, NG, SA detect magic 10' radius, strength 1/day wielder only, EGO 4).

SL15-19: Crossroads

This 35'-tall cave is a major crossroads, with no less than five tunnels leading from it. The tunnel to SL15-21 is located 25' above the floor, while the tunnel that leads to SL15-17 is 20' above the floor. Gerrilad the Grey (2-69) has carved hand- and foot-holds in both of the cliffs, making the climb relatively easy. The other three tunnel mouths are located at floor level.

SL15-20: Storage Cave

The smell of decay is strong here. The cave was once stacked with crates, the product both of ancient corruption (see SL15-4) and Gerrilad the Grey's fellow adventurers. The wood has attracted a group of boring beetles, which are feasting on the decay. While the recent crates contained foodstuffs, which have also been eaten by the beetles, the older crates contained a few items of value.

Inhabitants:

1. 3 giant boring beetles: SZ L; AL N; AC 3; MV 60'; HD 5; HP 36, 30, 25; #AT 1; Dmg 5-20.

Treasure:

Several jugs containing lamp oil (enough for 20 flasks); 2 complete pewter table services (10 gp per set); a set of silver plates, platters, dishes and serving boats, all stamped with the image of the 5th Velites legion (50 gp in metal, 250 gp to a collector); 20 bottles of fine wine (10 gp each); and 15 large red dragon scales (50 gp each).

SL15-21: Cave Bear, and Exit to AV-46

The narrow tunnel from SL15-19 leads to a large cave inhabited by a cave bear. The strong smell of a large carnivore is evident as one approaches from either direction. The cave mouth is set into a low hill in a clearing in the forest about two-thirds of a mile northwest of the city of Arden Vul.

The floor of the cave is littered with a thin carpet of crunched and mangled bones. Careful inspection by a ranger might reveal human tracks leading into the cave. Gerrilad the Grey exits the dungeons of Arden Vul here in order to gather mistletoe and holly. He has become fast friends with the cave bear.

Inhabitants:

1. 1 cave bear: SZ L; AL N; AC 6; MV 120'; HD 6+6; HP 52; #AT 3; Dmg 1-8/1-8/1-12. Special attacks: hug.

ARDEN VUL TABLE OF CONTENTS

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

A Brief History of Arden Vul.....	V. 1 P. 7
Design Principles .....	V. 1 P. 10
Note on Designation of Keyed Locations .....	V. 1 P. 11
Starting Levels for PCs .....	V. 1 P. 11
General Construction Features .....	V. 1 P. 12
Iconic Locations of Arden Vul .....	V. 1 P. 14
Rumors .....	V. 1 P. 18
Factions of Arden Vul .....	V. 1 P. 30
Adventure Hooks .....	V. 1 P. 48
Customizing Arden Vul .....	V. 1 P. 58

EXTERIOR ADVENTURE LOCATIONS

Burdock's Valley, The Azure Keep, and Gosterwick (AK)...	V. 1 P. 61
Exterior: the Long Falls and the Long Stair (EX).....	V. 1 P. 75
The Ruined City of Arden Vul (AV) .....	V. 1 P. 81
The Pyramid of Thoth (UP).....	V. 1 P. 107
The Tower of Scrutiny (TS).....	V. 1 P. 112

THE HALLS OF ARDEN VUL

Level 1: The Basement .....	V. 1 P. 117
Level 2: The Howling Caves and the Well of Light .....	V. 1 P. 123
Level 3: The Halls of Thoth .....	V. 1 P. 153
Level 4: The Forum of Set .....	V. 1 P. 239
Level 5: The Obsidian Gates and the Midnight Road .....	V. 2 P. 3
Level 6: The Troll Lifts and the Arena .....	V. 2 P. 65
Level 7: The Court of the Troll Thegn .....	V. 2 P. 135
Level 8: The Nether Reaches .....	V. 2 P. 201
Level 9: The Floor of the Great Chasm .....	V. 2 P. 261
Level 10: The Ziggurat of Kauket .....	V. 2 P. 317

Sub-Level 1: The Tombs of Light .....	V. 3 P. 3
Sub-Level 2: The Hall of Shrines .....	V. 3 P. 11
Sub-Level 3: The Lesser Baboon Caves .....	V. 3 P. 23
Sub-Level 4: The Goblin Warrens .....	V. 3 P. 33
Sub-Level 5: The Lizardman Caves .....	V. 3 P. 57
Sub-Level 6: The Drowned Canyon .....	V. 3 P. 73
Sub-Level 7: The Flooded Vaults .....	V. 3 P. 117
Sub-Level 8: The Caves Behind the Falls .....	V. 3 P. 125
Sub-Level 9: The Kaliyani Pits .....	V. 3 P. 131
Sub-Level 10A: The Hold of the Sun-Scarred Knights .....	V. 3 P. 153
Sub-Level 10B: The Citadel of the Sun-Scarred Knights .....	V. 3 P. 167
Sub-Level 11: The Tomb of Isadora .....	V. 3 P. 177
Sub-Level 12: The Workshops of Kerbog Khan .....	V. 3 P. 187
Sub-Level 13: The Lost Chambers of Arden .....	V. 3 P. 199
Sub-Level 14: The Chamber of the Beacon .....	V. 3 P. 219
Sub-Level 15: The Druid's Retreat .....	V. 3 P. 225

APPENDICES

New Monsters .....	V. 4 P. 2
New Magic Items .....	V. 4 P. 71
New Technological Items .....	V. 4 P. 116
Arden Vul Items .....	V. 4 P. 126
New Flora .....	V. 4 P. 129
New Spells .....	V. 4 P. 132
Arden Vul Books .....	V. 4 P. 141
World of Archontos .....	V. 4 P. 171
NPC Appendix .....	V. 4 P. 191
Index of Proper Names.....	V. 4 P. 227
OGL .....	V. 4 P.234

NEW MONSTERS

AERODIS (air-OH-dees)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3

SIZE: M

MOVE: 350' flying (or 280' in very humid conditions) (Class A)

AC: 0 or 6

HD: 6

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 3-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 5%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: N

LEVEL/XP: 5 / 540 + 6/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 8-147A, 8-147E

An aerodis (plural: aerodes) is a creature formed of sound waves that both emits and consumes sound. Aerodes can be summoned via magically enhanced melodies, as the Thothian cantor, Eustachius (8-148) first discovered.

When summoned (or, perhaps more properly, 'manifested'), aerodes appear as blurry ripples in the regular air; those blurry forms may appear to a viewer as butterfly-like, although they are in fact merely temporary concentrations of sound waves and have no fixed shape. Aerodes are able to move swiftly through normal air, as does sound, but are slowed by extremely humid conditions. The majority of aerodes are peaceful, content to derive nourishment from the beautiful music that summoned them. If attacked, however, aerodes will defend themselves; it is also the case that 25% of aerodes are inherently hostile.

Peaceful aerodes typically float in the air, enjoying the music that summoned them. At some point they will contribute to the music by rearranging their 'bodies' to produce complex, six-part harmonic melodies of surpassing beauty. Some of those emanations (see below) can affect listeners in profound ways. When encountered, a peaceful aerodis will typically sing one of the 'good' songs listed below before departing, although there is a 20% chance they will change their tune mid-course and sing a second 'good' melody.

Hostile aerodes can, of course, produce the same beautiful melodies as their peaceful counterparts, but can also emit equally complex, six-part harmonies in unsettling, discordant 'keys'; these 'songs' (see below) can prove harmful to listeners. Hostile aerodes can employ one of four detrimental songs, once every other round.

Soaring Majesty: A category of beautiful song that invigorates and heartens its human listeners. In addition to a general feeling of excellent well-being, such songs render listeners immune to fear for 4 hours.

Pleasant Surprise: A category of inventive, unusual song that delights and amuses listeners. Such songs typically make listeners laugh or cry with pleasure, and also provide a 'luck bonus' of +1 to all rolls for 4 hours.

Soul Nourishing: A profound, piercing lament of wonder and beauty. May cause weeping and introspection, but also restores 1-10 HP and any lost life levels.

Mind Clearing: A pleasant jaunty tune, that serves to distract and entertain. Listeners may smile and tap along, but the songs also remove negative effects like fatigue, thirst, and hunger.

Crushing Despair: A bleak melody that forces listeners to save versus death or sit in stunned dejection for 2-5 rounds.

Blinding Hatred: An aggressive melody that ignites hatred. Listeners must save vs death or begin quarreling loudly with a neighbor about some minor slight for 2-5 rounds. A second save is necessary to prevent that quarrel from turning into combat.

Sonic Overload: A discordant melody that becomes louder and louder, until it punishes the listener with a blast of sound. Listeners take 3-18 damage.

Piercing Shriek: A series of short but jagged and sharp musical bursts, uttered at a pitch that causes literal pain to human and humanoid listeners. Listeners take 1-8 damage and must save vs death or go deaf.

Aerodes are dangerous adversaries. As emanations of sound waves they are difficult to hit in general (AC 0), but are more susceptible to those who are able to act ethereally (AC 6). On the Prime Material Plane they may only be hit by +2 or better weapons. In addition to their song attacks, which may be employed every other round, Aerodes can also buffet foes with sound waves, doing 3-12 damage per attack.

Aerodes are terribly susceptible to silence spells, taking 3-24 damage from silence and generally being forced to flee (they must save vs spells or retreat for 1-2 rounds). They take normal damage from lightning, and double damage from cold, but are healed by the 'music' of fire (½ any indicated damage is added to their HP total, although they cannot surpass the starting value). They are not affected by magic missiles, nor by charm, confusion, hold, or other mind-affecting spells. They keep no treasure.

Eustachius and his circle of musically-minded friends could never decide upon the origin of these creatures. One line of thought held that aerodes were summoned from a pure realm of sound, while another maintained that aerodes were omnipresent in the air of the earth, and only 'manifested' when properly enticed by music.

ANIMATED CONSTRUCTS, ARCHONTEAN

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6

SIZE: S, M or L

MOVE: 60'

AC: 2

HD: 6, unless otherwise indicated

ATTACKS: Varies

DAMAGE: Varies

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Varies
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: VARIES (see below)
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: See below

The Archontean enchanted many of their statues as guardians. While the shape of these statues varies, most share some basic features. In general these are animated stone statues, and are thus immune to elemental magic, poison, and mind-affecting spells. They are only affected by +1 weapons or better. Most of the varieties are listed below, although two special types (imperial stone guardians and the Myrmex) have their own entries.

Animated Bipedal Boars (4-24): These constructs appear as 12'-tall, boar-headed bipeds. Typically they possess alabaster heads with begemmed eyes, over granite bodies. They attack twice per round with their fists, doing 2-8/2-8 HP damage. They are large in size. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 540 + 6/hp

Animated Chessmen (3-36D): These 4'-tall (size S) constructs take the form of the High Priest from Archontean chess sets. They attack once per round using their stone rod of office, doing 4-11 HP damage per hit. LEVEL/XP: 5 / 470 + 6/hp

Animated Ibises (2-44): Aside from appearing as a ibis-headed biped (instead of an boar-headed one), these constructs are identical to animated bipedal boars (see above). LEVEL/XP: 6 / 540 + 6/hp

Animated Orators (SL11-6): These constructs are 8' tall, and depict a classical Archontean orator wearing a toga and carrying a scroll case. They attack once per round, using the scroll case as a club (3-12 HP). Some are permanently hasted (MV 120'; 2 attacks per round). While appearing identical to the base orators, a few others are AC 8 and have only 2 HD; these 'shell' orators are hollowed out, and contain poison dust that sprays a 15'-radius area once the orator is broken apart. Those breathing the dust must save vs poison or die; even those succeeding in their save take 2-5 HP damage from the caustic burning in their lungs. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 540 + 6/hp; Hasted 6 / 680 + 6/hp; Shell 4 / 160 + 1/hp

Animated Sekhmet Lions (3-45): Appearing as a lion, this specialized construct is animated by Thoth himself as a part of the Hall of Mysteries. The sekhmet lion is of large size, and strikes three times per round for 1-6/1-6/1-10 HP of damage. As part of its animation sequence, Thoth fixes its HD at 2 less than its opponent (see 3-45), with a minimum of 3 HD and a maximum of 8 HD. LEVEL/XP: Varies

Animated Shabti Warriors (5-58, 5-59, 5-60): These Archontean constructs are small, and take the form of the figures (i.e., shabti) included in the burial tombs of important officials. Some appear as warriors, some farmers; some are bureaucrats, and some beggars. The animated shabti warriors are typically weaker than other animated Archontean constructs: they are AC 6, have only 2 HD, and take double-damage from any successful hit by a crushing weapon. They attack once per round and do 3-8 HP damage per successful hit. Level/XP: 3 / 150 + 1/hp

Animated Spearmen (2-23, 3-168, 6-155, 8-107, SL6-45, SL7-6): Appearing as 7'-tall humans clad in kilts and cylindrical headdresses, these constructs typically carry stone spears. Occasionally one may employ an enchanted black iron spear (see new magical items, spear +1, +2 vs. humanoids). Animated spearmen attack once, for 5-10 damage per hit. They are medium in size. A few animated spearmen have more HD (SL7-29 and 9-134). LEVEL/XP: 5 / 470 + 6/hp

ANIMATED CONSTRUCTS, RUDISHVA

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L
MOVE: 60' or 90'
AC: 0 or 2
HD: 8 to 10
ATTACKS: Varies
DAMAGE: Varies
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Varies
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: Varies (see below)
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: See below

Thanks to kaliyani techno-sorcery, the rudishva were able to animate numerous stone guardians. While the shape, size and abilities of these constructs could and did vary, all shared certain features: they were immune to cold, fire, electricity, poison and mind-affecting spells, and could only be hit by +1 or better weapons. The three main varieties are listed below, with their statistical peculiarities indicated after the descriptions:

Stone Nataraja (5-92, 7-143, 8-47, 9-93, SL9-46): These constructs are carved in the form of the four-armed dancer. Each balances on one leg with its four arms arrayed in a nimbus around its body; one arm holds a scimitar, one holds a small drum, one a fire pot, and the fourth is empty. The head is carved in a rictus of a grin, with almond-shaped eyes, pointed ears, two small horns, and a round pillbox cap. They move by hopping from one foot to another.

Their main attack is via their stone scimitar (4-11 HP), but every round they also can use their empty hand to either beat their small drum or toss a small fireball from their fire pot. The drum resounds with a sharp, bass retort that radiates outward in a 10' radius; any caught within the range must save versus spells or stumble from the shock, thereby losing their action for the round. The fire pot provides an endless supply of small balls of fire that the nataraja can throw up to 60'. Each ball of fire does 4-24 damage to a single target; if the target saves versus breath weapons it takes ½ damage. If the nataraja is brought to 0 or fewer HP, it collapses into a pile of rubble; the objects it carries all crumble as well, save for the pillbox cap (which may be used as a cap).

Stats: SZ L (8' tall); AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8; #AT 1 plus special; Dmg 4-11; sonic or fire attack; MR 25%, hit only by +1 weapons. LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,250 + 10/hp

Stone Varuda (5-71): Appearing as idealized statues of varuda, with cocked wings and a fierce visage, these entities were tasked with guarding selected portions of the rudishva domain. They attack three times per round with claws and beak.

Stats: SZ L (8' tall); AC 0; MV 90'; HD 8; #AT 3; Dmg 1-6/1-6/1-12; MR 10%, hit only by +1 weapons. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 950 + 10/hp Varuda Guardian (5-107): This enormous animated statue takes the form of a huge varuda with cocked wings. It was (and remains) powered by an enormous chunk of arcanum buried within its chest. The varuda guardian strikes with twice per round with its wings for 2-12 damage each. Once every three rounds it can utter a piercing cry that accomplishes one of the following: 1) paralyze those who fail a save vs paralyzation for 2-3 rounds, or 2) cause 2-12 damage (save vs spells for half) to those in a cone extending 60' from its mouth. It can only be hit by +2 weapons (or better).

Stats: SZ L (20' tall); AC 0; MV 60'; HD 10; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12 plus special; cry (paralysis or damage); MR 25%, hit only by +2 weapons. LEVEL/XP: 8 / 2,200 + 14/hp

ANIMATED SKULL

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
 SIZE: S
 MOVE: 30' flying (Class A)
 AC: 0
 HD: 4
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: 1-2
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
 LAIR PROBABILITY: None
 INTELLIGENCE: Semi
 ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
 LEVEL/XP: 4 / 205 + 3/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 2-47

Created in antiquity via a process known only to a tiny sect of the priesthood of Osiris, these skulls were enchanted to act as guardians for important cult centers and treasures. A few were shared with the other priesthoods. The process involved taking the soul of a recently deceased sorcerous priest of Osiris and binding it to a skull; the resulting entity was partly sentient, capable of recognizing motion, speech, light, and so forth. Skulls were 'charged' with a set of offensive spells that they could 'cast' on a regular basis. A typical array of spell-like abilities is: magic missile (2 missiles) (unlimited), cone of cold (1/day), dispel magic (3/day), teleport (3/day), mirror image (3/day), ray of enfeeblement (3/day), sleep (3/day), and fireball (3/day). In a pinch, the skull can bite for 1-2 damage. Skulls are hardy (AC 0) and possess fairly good magic resistance (25%). They are immune to spells that affect the mind, and are highly resistant to fire and cold (bonus of +3 to saves versus cold and fire). They are not technically undead, and cannot be turned.

ASSASSIN VINE

FREQUENCY: Rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
 SIZE: S (effective)
 MOVE: 5'
 AC: 8 (main plant); 4 (tendrils)
 HD: 2, 4, 6, or 8 HD for the main plant; 5 HP per tendril
 ATTACKS: 3 tendrils per HD of main plant
 DAMAGE: Special
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: Drag, strangulation, digestion
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
 LAIR PROBABILITY: None
 INTELLIGENCE: Semi
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP:
 2 HD: 2 / 50 + 1/hp
 4 HD: 4 / 135 + 3/hp
 6 HD: 5 / 300 + 6/hp
 8 HD: 6 / 750 + 10/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: AV-29, 3-174, 5-94, 7-4

The so-called assassin vine is an aggressive species of carnivorous plant. The plant has a low, pitcher-shaped central 'flower' which it uses to digest its prey, and a number of thin, whip-like tendrils which it uses to ensnare and drag prey towards the central flower. The main flower is usually about 3' tall and 3' wide, while the tendrils can be as long as 15'. An assassin vine has three tendrils per HD (e.g., a 4-HD specimen has 12 tendrils), and each tendril can withstand 5 HP before being severed. Tendrils roll to hit normally, but must determine hit location as follows:

D20	Location	Effect
1-3	Right arm	Loss of weapon (save vs spells), drag
4-6	Left arm	Loss of weapon (save vs spells), drag
7-10	Torso	Drag
11-14	Right leg	Fall over, drag
15-18	Left leg	Fall over, drag
19-20	Neck	Strangulation

Tendrils which strike an arm have a chance to knock away a weapon (save vs spells to avoid); those which hit legs knock their victim over, making the victim more susceptible to attacks by other tendrils (+2 to hit). A subject who is being dragged moves 5' per round towards the main plant. Strangulation begins on the round after a successful hit to the neck, and will cause death in 2-4 rounds. Once the tendrils have dragged a victim into the main flower, the digestive sap found in the pitcher starts to inflict 2-12 damage per round on the victim (so long as the victim is held by one or more tendrils).

Those attempting to aid someone grappled by tendrils can try to do so with weapons, but any such effort requires two rolls to hit, one to see if the tendril is struck, and a second to see if the victim is struck (note that a person can thus plausibly hit both the tendril and his/her friend in the same round!). A successful open doors roll by a third party will also release a victim from the grip of a tendril; a successful roll of 3d8 under STR by a grappled victim also breaks the grip of that tendril.

Magical fire is particularly devastating to assassin vines, and does an additional point of damage per die. Magical cold spells do only 2 points of damage per die, but they slow an assassin vine for 1 round per point of damage.

AUSCULATORIS, CALDORNIA'S

(aus-coo-lah-TOR-ees)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: S (6")

MOVE: 60'

AC: -1

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 3/2 (as 7th-level fighters)

DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Silence, spell immunities

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 0%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral

LEVEL/XP: 4 / 245 + 2/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 8-84

The invention of the sorcerous empress Caldornia the Wise, only a limited number of these strange entities were created. In essence they combine the soul of a human being with a miniature stone construct. The body of the ausculator is only 6" tall, but finely carved with details appropriate to a person of action: light armor, small weapons, bodily features, etc. The body is fully articulated, and can move swiftly and quietly as needed. The impressive – and disturbing – part was Caldornia's success in ripping the soul out of a living fleshly body and embedding it in the miniature stone body.

Originally Caldornia justified creating the ausculatoris as a means of allowing useful servants who were dying or very sick to prolong their existence, but she became alarmed by the abuse of the process by her military advisors (who compelled 'volunteers' to undergo transformation), and the procedure was abandoned, records of the ausculator program destroyed, and the formulae for their creation (allegedly) burned. A few of the ausculatoris still exist, some inert (without souls) but some still active: glowing yellow-green eyes the size of a pea indicate an active ausculator.

The function of the ausculatoris was spying and scouting. Given their small size and the enchantments imposed on their stone bodies, the imperial wizards believed the ausculatoris to be the ideal scout. They have rapid movement, have permanent silence cast on them which they can turn on or off at will, and – thanks to the existence of a human soul – can process and assess threats, enemy capabilities, and other tactical and strategic objectives.

Ausculatoris were under the direct command of the emperor/empress, although for obvious reasons he/she deputed tactical usage to a small set of officers with the rank of proedros. Any surviving ausculatoris will, therefore, seek to locate a proper proedros and/or the emperor. Since proedroi are rare in the present, and the emperor is isolated in Archontos, ausculatoris discovered in the course of adventuring are likely to see their 'rescuers' with jaded eyes. They may agree to aid their rescuers in the short term, but will always seek to return to Archontos, to the extent of abandoning their current 'friends' in ways that may appear treacherous but are, in fact, perfectly logical.

A small subset of existing ausculatoris – perhaps 10% - have been driven insane by the long centuries of their 'imprisonment'; these rogue ausculatoris may feign friendship, but seek to destroy any newfound allies ... typically by stabbing their 'friends' in the eyes while they sleep.

Ausculatoris have good AC, but few HP. They move quickly, make no sound, have some magic resistance, and are immune to elemental effects (fire, cold, lightning), hold spells, charm spells, and other mind-affecting spells. They attack as 7th-level fighters, but do little damage; their true value lies in scouting and spying.

AUTOMATON OF KERBOG KHAN

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: Varies

MOVE: Varies

AC: Varies

HD: Varies

ATTACKS: See individual types

DAMAGE: Varies

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Varies

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Varies

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Varies

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

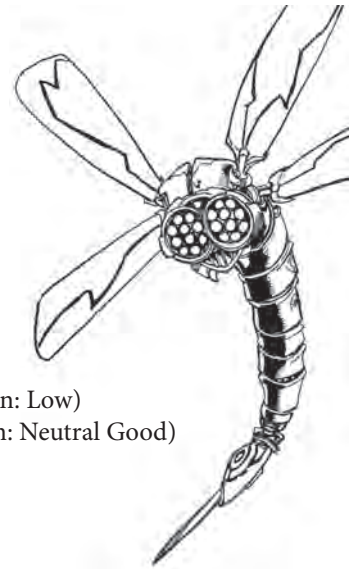

INTELLIGENCE: None (Children: Low)

ALIGNMENT: Neutral (Children: Neutral Good)

LEVEL/XP: Varies (see below)

TREASURE: Special (see below)

LOCATION: See below

Kerbog Khan (SL12-25) has developed several types of automaton, which he uses to explore Arden Vul, to collect samples of useful minerals and ingredients, and to check up on the other factions. All are products of techno-sorcery, that is, a combination of Archontean arcane magic with rudishva micro-electronics and power sources. The source of the technology that helps fuel the automatons is primarily the ruined medical pod (SL12-4), although the Khan supplements this source with materials scavenged or purchased elsewhere in the halls.

Although constructs are not unknown to Archontean magic users, Kerbog Khan has made a significant advance by being able to project his own senses into his automatons, allowing him to see, smell, hear, and speak through them as he desires. He can also cast spells through any automaton, although the design of certain models limits him to casting spells with verbal-only components. The secret to this breakthrough is blood magic. For this reason, all of his constructs carry a small amount of his own blood. The blood-magic connection not only allows him to inhabit the construct, but also allows him to cast spells through that construct (provided the construct's appearance – including limbs for somatic components – permits such actions).

All automatons are, as the name suggests, autonomous, at least to a degree. The Khan can set them on a task ("Explore", "Collect samples of X", "Travel to X destination", etc.) and then withdraw from active control. At any point, however, he can 'inhabit' one of his automatons in order to direct its actions more purposefully or to change its task. The types of automaton follow:

Battle (7-143, 8-62, SL12-16): The Khan designed these nasty constructs for one purpose: killing. Typically he keeps them close at hand for defense of the workshops, although he can and will deploy them into the Halls if he wishes to secure a location until exploration automatons are able to arrive. Battle automatons resemble the basic exploration model: a spider-like creature, with eight legs and a 4'-diameter central 'body'. They differ in that they are constructed of tougher, heavier materials (armor), in that they possess a small, rotating 'hat box'-like 'head', and in that four of the arms are equipped with weapons (the other four legs are equipped with sticky pads for traversing surfaces). The 'head' is attached to the body by gyros and gears, and can rotate to target sound and motion; it boasts eight chrysoberyls (100 gp each) for 'sensory' purposes. Weapons include the following: a laser (3-12 damage, as a rudishva laser pistol – see new technological items); a dremel-like, circular, spinning cutting blade (inflicting 3-12 damage); a poison injector (causes death, or 3-12 HP damage if save is made); and a flamethrower (3-18 HP in a 5'-wide, 15'-long arc). The interior of the body carries 1-3 rudishva lesser power supplies (see new technological items), the equivalent of 6 flasks of combustible oil, and 2 potions of poison. At the moment the Khan has five battle automatons; he keeps 2-3 on Sub-Level 12, and sends the rest out on missions. The Khan can cast spells requiring verbal and/or somatic components through this type of automaton.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 0; MV 150'; HD 8; #AT 4; Dmg special; MR 50%, immune to cold and fire. LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,050 + 10/hp

Borer (SL12-19): One of Kerbog Khan's unique automatons, the borer resembles a 5'-diameter cylinder with a spinning diamond cutter on its front end. Pulverized rock is pushed through the cylinder, and is there ionized into dust and extruded through the rear. Locomotion is afforded by subtle fins along the cylinder, which cause the borer to spin. A 500gp peridot set in the center of the diamond cutter serves as the 'eye' through which Kerbog Khan can inhabit the borer. The borer is perhaps the least independent of the Khan's automatons, typically cutting rock only when and where commanded by the Khan. It is not particularly aggressive, but those who find themselves facing the diamond cutter are in for a world of hurt. The Khan can only cast spells with verbal only components through this automaton.

Stats: SZ M; AL N; AC -1; MV 30'; HD 6; HP 43; #AT 1; Dmg 4-24; MR 25%, immune to fire and cold. The borer attacks as a 10 HD creature. LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,028

Children (aka 'dolls') (4-176, 9-62): The rarest of Kerbog Khan's automatons are crafted by hand to resemble small humans. The Khan uses wood, metal strips and joints, and bone to create the basic body. The heads are thus wood, although with peridots for eyes (500 gp each), real human hair, and painted features. Most impressively (or disturbingly), the Khan has also implanted actual brains of sentient beings into the hollow of the wooden skulls; while these are not living in a biological sense, his sorcery has preserved them and allowed them to provide their carrier with a degree of sentience. As a result, while the Khan can inhabit the 'children' as he can his other automatons, the children also have a degree of independence. In fact, two of the children became sufficiently aware of their state that they tried to flee from the Khan's workshops; these are Corbel and Cobban. The pair fled to SL12-13 and discovered the crack in the tunnel, which led them to Level 4 (4-176). The process of making 'children' is time-consuming and costly in terms of the Khan's fragile humanity. As a result, only two other 'children' remain on Sub-Level 12. The Khan can theoretically cast spells of any sort through these automatons, although the children typically do not carry material components.

Stats: SZ S; AL NG; AC 6; MV 60'; HD 2; #AT 1; Dmg 1-2; MR 20%, immune to cold. LEVEL/XP: 3 / 80 + 1/hp

The Doorkeeper (SL12-3): The Doorkeeper is one of the Khan's unique creations. It is formed from a combination of parts, some rudishva, some Archontean, and some just bizarre. A cylinder of smoked plasglass (4' tall, 2.5' in diameter) is attached to a flexible plasteel column. Mounted to the top of the cylinder is a vaguely humanoid 'head' formed of brass, silver, seashells, and other found objects. Attached to the front of the cylinder is an iron box 2'x1'x1', the lid of which can be easily opened. Two 'arms' formed of telescoping cylinders of beaten iron protrude from the side of the cylinder; one arm has a star-shaped rod for its 'hand', while the other ends in a mechanical grasping claw. Since it is immobile, the doorkeeper is not a particularly dangerous combatant. Still, it protects itself by swaying, and is able to inflict puncture and claw attacks with its arms. The Khan can theoretically cast spells of any sort through the Doorkeeper, although it typically does not carry material components.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 6; MV 0'; HD 5; HP 31; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-4; MR 25%, immune to cold, fire, and electricity. LEVEL/XP: 4 / 214

Dragonfly, basic (found in various random encounter tables): Shaped like 8"-long metallic dragonflies, these are the most common type of the Khan's creations. At any moment there are about 20 present in Arden Vul. Although the dragonflies have wings, which move up and down, any observer will quickly realize that the wings do not actually power the construct; instead they locomote via modified levitation and fly spells. Their large, blue compound eyes are formed from azurite gems (20 gp each). Their bodies contain a tiny vial of Kerbog Khan's blood, as well as a small microphone through which he can speak (if needed). The dragonflies are mainly used for scouting and observation. The Khan can only cast spells with verbal-only components through this automaton.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 240' flying (Class A); HD 1+2; #AT 0; Dmg n.a.; MR 25%, immune to cold and fire. LEVEL/XP: 2 / 30 + 1/hp

Dragonfly, poison (found in various random encounter tables): These dragonflies are identical in every way to the basic model, with one exception: they carry a small vial of poison that can be injected via a needle embedded in the dragonfly's tail. Kerbog Khan typically employs two types of poison: a) lethal (save or die; take 3-12 damage even on a successful save); b) incapacitating (victim is paralyzed for 1-3 turns unless a save is made; victim is slowed for 1-4 rounds on successful save). At present, the Khan operates 7 poison dragonflies. The Khan can only cast spells with verbal-only components through this automaton.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 4; MV 240' flying (Class A); HD 1+2; #AT 1; Dmg poison; MR 25%, immune to cold and fire. LEVEL/XP: 3 / 80 + 1/hp

Exploration, basic (found in various random encounter tables): These automatons are shaped a bit like mechanical spiders, with a spherical 'body' some 4' in diameter and eight mechanical legs. Four of the legs are equipped with 'sticky' pads that allow the explorers to traverse vertical surfaces. Two more have pinchers that allow the explorer to pick up objects or defend itself. The body has a hinged lid and an empty central cavity where specimens can be deposited. A faceted moonstone attached to the top of the body allows the Khan to see the automaton's surroundings when he so chooses. The Khan currently operates eight basic exploration automatons. The Khan can cast spells of any sort through these automatons. Typically he stores selected material components for spells he anticipates using 'out in the wilds' in the central cavity of the exploration automaton.

When encountered, there is a 25% chance that an exploration automaton has already collected d3 specimens. These will be one of the following (roll d10): 1-3: piece of arcanam; 4-6: assorted precious metals worth 1-100 gp; 7-8: piece of rudishva plasteel, plasglass, wiring, or other inert debris; 9: gem or piece of jewelry worth 100-400 gp; 10: specific piece of rudishva technology (but only 20% chance it is still usable). In addition, 2-5 sets of material spell components will be found within the cavity.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 150'; HD 4; #AT 2; Dmg 1-4/1-4; MR 40%, immune to cold and fire. LEVEL/XP: 3 / 145 + 1/hp

Exploration, bipedal (SL12-15, found in various random encounter tables): Although their purpose is similar to the basic exploration model (i.e., to collect samples, debris, and 'treasure'), these automatons look very different. They appear as small, bipedal robots about 3.5' tall, with skinny, segmented plasteel legs and arms, and a bulbous belly/body (for holding specimens). The head is typically taken from a bronze statue scavenged from the Halls, augmented with faceted aquamarines (500 gp each) for eyes. The arms are capable of picking up specimens and interesting objects and storing them in the belly. These automatons are more difficult and more costly to construct; as a result, there are currently only four scouring the Halls. Since each head is, obviously, different, the denizens of the Halls have come to give them nick-names based on the appearance of their heads: "Frowner", "Smiling Khan", "Old Beardless", and "Warty". Due to their bipedal nature, they are limited to surfaces on which bipeds can move with ease. Still, as they seem more familiar to the sentient factions, they are the automatons typically sent to barter with the goblins, varumani, beastmen, and such. The Khan can cast spells of any sort through these automatons. Typically he stores selected material components for spells he anticipates using 'out in the wilds' in the central cavity of the exploration automaton.

There is a chance (25%) that a bipedal automaton will be carrying 3d3 specimens when encountered (determine from the list above), as well as 2-5 sets of material spell components.

Stats: SZ S; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 6; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-6; MR 40%, immune to cold and fire. LEVEL/XP: 5 / 280 + 6/hp

Giatros (the doctor) (SL12-10): Another of the Khan's unique automatons, the Giatros has a cylindrical lower body and torso set atop a set of tracks. Atop the torso is a varumani skull set with aquamarines for eyes; when he inhabits this automaton, Kerbog Khan 'sees' through this strange 'head'. Four articulated arms are attached to the torso: one has a carved ivory hand with extended index finger (for operating the console), two have claw-like articulated hands (for interacting with patients through the medicaderm), and one ends in a circular saw blade. Although intended for medical work, the Giatros is one of the Khan's most dangerous constructs, thanks to its mobility, its multiple attacks, and its sheer toughness. The Khan can theoretically cast spells of any sort through the Giatros, although he usually does not supply it with material components.

Stats: SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8+8; HP 61; #AT 4; Dmg 1-2/2-5/2-5/3-12; MR 35%, immune to cold, fire, and electricity. LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,032

Nosokoma (the nurse) (SL12-16): This unique automaton serves as Kerbog Khan's medical assistant when dealing with those who make bargains with him. The Nosokoma appears as a large bipedal exploration automaton (7' tall), with the usual segmented arms and legs. She is unusual, however, in her hands and head. Her head is an exceptionally fine piece of bronze working that represents the goddess Besa, one of the Twelve (see World of Archontos appendix). One of her hands is formed from exceptionally carved and articulated ivory, allowing her to grasp objects almost like a real human. The other 'hand' is merely a hypodermic needle connected to five removable vials. Kerbog Khan primarily uses the Nosokoma to draw blood from those who are willing to bargain with her; she inserts the needle into a victim's vein and fills the relevant vial. She can also cure the injured or diseased by injecting pre-prepared healing vials into a patient. She wears a bandolier of vials: fifteen are empty (for blood samples), five act as cure disease spells, five act as cure light wounds spells, five act as cure serious wounds spells, and two act as heal spells. These curative functions are only dispensed as part of a bargain negotiated by the Khan himself. If the Khan's sanctum is breached, the Nosokoma defends herself and her master with fist and needle. The Khan can theoretically cast spells of any sort through the Nosokoma, although he usually does not supply it with material components.

Stats: SZ M; AL N; AC 2; MV 90'; HD 7+7; HP 43; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-8; MR 25%, immune to heat and cold; takes double damage from electricity. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 1,080

Randomizing Automatons:

Most of the automatons encountered elsewhere in Arden Vul are of the dragonfly or exploration type. Still, if a GM wishes to provide a chance that other automatons might be encountered, the following table should be used:

D100	Type
1-40	Dragonfly, basic
41-55	Dragonfly, poison
56-80	Exploration, basic
81-90	Exploration, bipedal
91-96	Battle
97-98	One of the children, fleeing the Khan
99-100	GM's choice, or a unique automaton of the GM's devising

BABOON, LARGE ALBINO

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-8 or 30-300

SIZE: M (5-6')

MOVE: 120'

AC: 6

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Pack attack

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Animal

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 3 / 65 + 2/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: AV-9, Level 2, 4-2, 6-58, 6-70

A species of albino white baboons of large size inhabits the Halls of Arden Vul and surrounding areas. The main baboon caves, known as the Howling Caves, are found in dungeon Level 2. Originally bred as guardians for the cult of Thoth, the baboons have endured long after the priests departed. Albino baboons like to swarm their opponents. Should two or more baboons attack one individual, each baboon receives +1 to hit and +1 to damage (for each attack).

BABOON, GIANT INTELLIGENT

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4

SIZE: L (8')

MOVE: 120'

AC: 5

HD: 6-10

ATTACKS: 5

DAMAGE: 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-10

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Rend

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 15%

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil

LEVEL/XP:

6 HD: 5 / 280 + 6/hp

7 HD: 5 / 425 + 8/hp

8 HD: 6 / 650 + 10/hp

9 HD: 6 / 1,000 + 12/hp

10 HD: 7 / 1,200 + 13/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: AV-9, 2-29, 2-32, 2-56, 2-60, 2-61, 6-58, 6-70, SL3-16, SL3-25

These fearsome four-armed giant baboons were bred by the priests of Thoth for special guardian duties. A giant intelligent baboon can fight 3 different opponents at once. Through processes unpleasant to contemplate they have acquired rudimentary sentience, and are capable of directing ordinary large baboons and plotting simple but cunning strategies. They have no great interest in treasure, but do occasionally collect pretty rocks (gems) and metals (mostly jewelry). They tend towards albinism as well, although an occasional brown-furred specimen will survive to adulthood. They mate with all manner of bipedal creatures. If two claws hit the same opponent, the giant baboon will do an additional 2-8 hit points of rending damage.

BAINDARA (bane-DAR-a)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 5-30

SIZE: S (2' tall)

MOVE: 150'/150' glide (Class E)

AC: 8

HD: 1-1

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 1-2

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Animal

ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 1 / 10 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 7-4, 7-38, 8-89, 9-4, 9-9, 9-83

Relics of the rudishva homeworld, these monkey-like beings came to Arden Vul as pets on the Beacon. After the rudishva collapse, they established a feral colony on the floating island (7-4). Their original name is forgotten by modern denizens of the halls, such that the varumani fondly refer to them as “the Little Brother.” The bairndara are about 2’ tall and have grey fur, except around the eyes, where the fur is blue. They have two horns growing from their head and surprisingly large canines. They also have flaps of skin between their torsos and arms that allow them to glide short distances through the air.

Although the bairndara chatter angrily and hurl nuts and fruit if disturbed, they are actually cowardly and flee to their nest if threatened. They only fight if cornered. Their nest is found on the underside of the floating island (7-4), woven together out of dense pockets of twisted creepers and vines; its inaccessibility protects them from the pedipalpi and any wandering chasm cephalopods. Bairndara may be trapped and sold as curiosities in Narsileon, bringing 150 gp per specimen.

BATTLE ROBOT, RUDISHVA

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M (5’ diameter)
MOVE: 90’ flying (Class A)
AC: -2
HD: 8
ATTACKS: 4
DAMAGE: 3-18 (gauss gun), 3-12 (fire pellets), 3-9 (x2 lasers)
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Semi
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP:
Standard: 7 / 1,250 + 10/hp
With Personal Defense Array: 7 / 1,550 + 10/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL2-4, SL13-37

These deadly military robots appears as a floating sphere about 5’ in diameter. Locomotion is achieved by a levitation beam in the base of the sphere, which allows the robot to move swiftly in the horizontal plane and to levitate up to 30’ above a hard surface. Four 8”-diameter oval sensors dot the sides of the robot, allowing it to collect visual, auditory, and electronic data from its surroundings out to 240’.

Ordinarily, anyone holding a chipped rudishva identity plaque (that is, a plastic one - see new technological items) within the sensory radius of one of the robots will not be targeted; robots are programmed to recognize the chips and adjust their firing accordingly. In the heat of combat, however, holders of the plaques may not recognize the source of their good fortune.

Protruding from the top of the sphere is a disc-shaped gauss gun capable of firing solid rounds at a rapid clip; the gun also rotates in 360-degrees, allowing the robot to fire nearly continuously in all directions. The gauss gun hits as a 10th-level fighter and does 3-18 damage per hit. Effectively this means that the gauss gun can target all opponents in a 30’ radius in the same round. Of course the robot has a finite amount of ammunition: typically its magazine is exhausted after five rounds of continual use. The battle robot can create a full clip of new gauss gun rounds within 24 hours provided a nearby source of ferromagnetic metal. In addition to the gauss gun, the robot can extend two laser weapons from compartments in the side of its cylinder. These weapons effectively have unlimited use so long as the robot is operable and inflict 4-9 HP damage per hit. Finally, the robot can also fire explosive pellets (up to 100) from a hole placed between the two laser weapons; the pellets have a range of 50’ and explode on contact, dealing 3-12 damage to all within 10’. Once used, the pellets cannot be replaced.

One of the Beacon’s two battle robots was also fitted with a personal defense array (see new technological items), allowing it to absorb 60 HP of damage before the robot itself began to take damage. While battle robots have impressive electronic ‘brains’, allowing them to make intelligent tactical decisions, they are not technically sentient and have little ability to communicate with non-rudishva. Indeed, they were programmed wirelessly by a base crew. Surviving robots are thus likely to follow relatively a relatively circumscribed range of actions (‘defend the rudishva’, ‘interdict non-rudishva’, ‘protect the shuttle bay’, etc.). Battle robots are immune to fire, cold, electricity, and poison, and are unaffected by spells that targets minds (sleep, hold, charm, etc.).

BEASTMEN (or Children of Deino)

Beastmen are the creations of Deino (3-158), a powerful witch who combined human stock (lost soldiers of the Third Cohort of the Imperial Tagmata) with animals to create a viable race of bipeds with human and animal features. Because of their descent from a kentarchia of the 3rd Cohort, the Beastmen value military discipline and skill, and their society in Arden Vul is thus highly militaristic and well-organized. They have retained their high level of unit cohesion and discipline as well as their smithing skills. Most troopers wear individually-sized ring mail and carry well-balanced spears, shields, and stabbing short swords (so as to fight in a shield wall formation); some sections, however, are equipped with short bows. The sergeants and counts wield spears and maces, flails, or war hammers. Counts are the senior military leaders, who have demonstrated their tactical skills and diplomatic finesse over years of sorties and exploration. Counts wear fancier armor and carry better weapons; they may also carry a magic item or two, as may witch doctors.

While Deino continues to occasionally create new beastmen through her magic, it is more common for the beastmen to propagate through normal biological means (strangely, the sub-species of the parent does not determine that of their offspring).

Military Organization: The basic unit of all beastman society is the konturbs (company), which is divided into several patrols (banda; singular ‘bandon’). Konturbia are named for one of the varieties of beastman, but are open to all variants (that is, Pig company can have dog-brothers in it). To avoid stagnation, the konturbia are organized in terms of seniority and merit. That means that bright troopers of whatever sub-species can hope to advance to Dog-Company (the elite) by virtue of their merit; those who are slackers will conversely remain in the lower-ranked konturbia for years on end. Above the level of the company are the staff sergeants, the witch doctors, and the four counts (Georgik, Skleros, Nikeos, and Trisko the Natty). Outside of their district, the beastmen are most commonly encountered in units called patrols, which consist generally of a bandon (4-6 troopers) and a sergeant (50%). Counts, staff sergeants, and witch doctors are never encountered on patrols.

Tactics: The beastmen instructors drill their troopers in military formations. They particularly like to use a slowly marching shield wall (which they call 'the Tide'). In this formation they are difficult to flank, and add +1 AC to each member of the formation. If the wall is broken, or consists of only 2 members, then the bonus is lost. When their numbers permit it, they also like to use a flanking tactic known as 'the Bull,' in this formation at least one bandon confronts an enemy head-on, while two more banda extend out on either side to envelop and (hopefully) destroy that enemy. The GM is free to develop other formations for the beastmen.

Witch Doctors: Some beastmen have developed a limited capacity to use spells. Like goblins, beastmen witch doctors can rise to a maximum of 7th level for determining cleric spells and 4th level for determining magic user spells. For each level beyond the first, witch doctors gain 2-5 HP (although if they proceed in cleric levels beyond level 4, each additional cleric level adds only 1-4 HP). For every two levels beyond the first, they fight as a creature of one HD better. For example, Thirk (3-144) is a 7th/4th-level witch doctor. He gets 1+1 HD to begin, plus 2-5 HP for each of levels 2/2, 3/3 and 4/4, plus 1-4 HP for cleric levels 5, 6, and 7, for a total of (2-9)+(6-15)+(3-12). He fights as a 4th level monster.

Although called 'witch doctors', these beastmen are not primitive, but are literate, articulate, and likely to possess some specialized erudition about the history or one or two regions of the Halls of Arden Vul (50%). Witch doctors can come from any of the beastmen sub-species, although it is more common for pig-men and rat-men to demonstrate the talent for sorcery.

Beastman Varieties: Beastmen come in five different sub-species, including dog-men, sheep-men, pig-men, goat-men, and rat-men. Each sub-species has distinctive features, a potential modifier to morale, and a generalized personality type:

Sub-species	Distinctive Features	Morale	Stereotypical Personality
Dog-man	1. Sharp hearing: +1 to surprise and initiative. 2. Fierce: +1 to all attack rolls.	+ 10%	Aggressive, loyal
Pig-man	1. Hardy: +2 HP per HD. 2. Resistant: -1 damage (per die) from magic.	+ 5%	Smart, lazy and lucky
Goat-man	1. Berserk (33% chance): +2 attacks and damage for 3 rounds, but -2 AC. 2. Nimble: +2 save vs targeted or AoE magic.	+ 0%	Irascible, stubborn

Rat-man	1. Wily: +1 detect doors and traps. 2. Canny: +1 to all damage rolls.	+ 0%	Tricksy, knowledgeable
Sheep-man	1. Disciplined: +1 to hit when in formation. 2. Thick coat: +2 save vs fire and cold.	- 5%	Patient, agreeable

TROOPERS

FREQUENCY: Uncommon
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 4-6
SIZE: S (4' tall)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 6
HD: 1+1
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-6, or by weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See above
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See above
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
LEVEL/XP: 2 / 30 +1/hp
TREASURE: 3-18 sp individuals
LOCATION: 3-138 to 3-162, 4-2, 6-58, 6-59, 6-70

SERGEANTS

FREQUENCY: Uncommon
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3
SIZE: S (4' tall)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 4
HD: 2+2 (sergeant), or 3+3 (staff sergeant)
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-6, or by weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See above
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See above
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: 75%
INTELLIGENCE: Average
ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
LEVEL/XP:
Sergeant: 2 / 50 + 2/hp
Staff Sergeant: 3 / 75 + 3/hp
TREASURE: 3-18 sp individuals
LOCATION: 3-138 to 3-162, 6-58, 6-70

COUNTS

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: S (4' tall)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 3
HD: 5+5
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-6, or by weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See above

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See above
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
LEVEL/XP: 4 / 160 + 6/hp
TREASURE: 3-18 sp individuals
LOCATION: 3-149, 3-151, 3-152, 3-154

WITCH DOCTORS

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4
SIZE: S (4' tall)
MOVE: 120'
AC: 6
HD: 1+1 and up
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-6, or by weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spell use
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See above
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%
INTELLIGENCE: Exceptional
ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
LEVEL/XP: Varies
TREASURE: 3-18 sp individuals
LOCATION: 3-144

BLOOD EEL

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 8-24
SIZE: S (4')
MOVE: 120' swimming
AC: 7
HD: 3
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 3 / 65 + 2/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 7-49, SL7-23

These ferocious predators are blood-red in color, with a mouth full of razor-sharp teeth. If a blood eel hits, it is able to suck blood automatically at a rate of 2-8 HP per round thereafter. It detaches after draining 18 HP. Anyone bitten by a blood eel has a 5% chance of contracting a disease.

BOBCAT

FREQUENCY: Common
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3
SIZE: S (3' long)
MOVE: 120'
AC: 7

HD: 1+3
ATTACKS: 3
DAMAGE: 1-2/1-2/1-3
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 2 / 30 +1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL4-4

These mid-sized carnivorous cats avoid creatures larger than themselves, but, if cornered, attack fiercely with claws and bite.

BROOD MOTHER, THE

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (8' long)
MOVE: 150'
AC: 2
HD: 8+8; HP 63
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 1-10/1-4
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Level drain, dispel magic, paralyzation
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 33%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,356
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL8-13

The 'brood mother' is the name given to an enormous Set animal summoned and genetically modified in antiquity by the Set cult. The goal was to bring her to estrus and thus use her to produce new Set animals. When the research project was abandoned in 1803 AEP as the Archontes retreated, the brood mother was abandoned. She died but returned as a fearsome undead creature thanks to the influence of Set himself.

Like all Set animals, she has the body of a huge dog, with a curved, narrow snout, square ears, and a forked tail. In her undead state, the flesh appears decaying, and her bones periodically may be glimpsed through her torn skin. She gives off a stink of rot, and emanates a palpable evil.

The brood mother is still fast, and can leap up to 35' in an attack. Her vocalizations have been transformed into low baritone coughs punctuated by shrill shrieks; her vocalizations do not cause confusion, but instead can paralyze victims within 30' who do not save versus paralyzation. Paralyzation lasts for 5-8 rounds. Once per day she can emit a blast of foetid breath in a cone 30' long and 15' wide at its apex; the breath acts as dispel magic.

Her tail attack no longer delivers venom, but instead drains an energy level with every hit.

Her combat abilities may be enhanced by the Eyes of Set (SL8-13), which allow her to teleport unerringly once every round, grant her initial surprise, and the right to act first every round.

CHAOTIC FEASTERS

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 20-40
 SIZE: M
 MOVE: 90'
 AC: 10 or 6
 HD: 4
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: By weapon for 3-10
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10%
 LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%
 INTELLIGENCE: Average
 ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
 LEVEL/XP: 4/ 205 + 3/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 8-76, 8-77, 8-79

These poor souls are those who have consumed too much flesh of Rimmaq-Isfet (see 8-76). Consumption of 'steaks' taken from Rimmaq-Isfet's flank will eventually transform a human or humanoid into one of these creature of chaos. Feasters were thus once 'normal' adventurers or other humanoids who discovered the Feasting Hall and made the choice to partake of the feast. For each steak consumed, there is a 5% cumulative chance that the diner turns into one of the chaotic feasters; this chance is increased by 25% if the diner is already chaotic evil, and by 15% if the diner is chaotic (but not evil). Transformation causes little in the way of changes to outward appearance, but serves to effectively erase the personality of the diner. The new chaotic feaster cares only about maintaining the Feasting Hall (8-76) and procuring new meat. With these new, overriding desires, the feasters quickly cease to care about clothing, grooming, and anything other than procuring meat. As a result, the longest-lived feasters appear as filthy, greasy hermits dressed in scraps of once-useful clothing.

By temperament, the feasters are initially gregarious and cheerful, typically inviting newcomers to join the feast. If visitors are aggressive or threatening, or if certain customs are not observed in the Feasting Hall, the feasters turn instantly into raving, bloodthirsty fiends that attack with savage strength. They typically use whatever weapons are to hand, whether they are worked weapons from former lives or pieces of bone; due to their chaotic strength, they can dish out immense clouts with these improvised weapons (3-10 damage). When tranquil and gregarious, the feasters are AC 10; when enraged, they become harder to hit (AC 6).

An elaborate set of entirely false beliefs has grown up among the society of the feasters, one that seeks to explain in limited ways the situation in which they find themselves. What is most surprising is the fact that the feasters do not realize they are consuming the flesh of a minor deity of intense chaotic evil, but instead have come to attribute their bounty to the existence of a vast planar creature they call the throom. The throom, they think, may be singular, or there may be 'herds' of them moving through interdimensional space; either way, the throom are so vast and placid that careful harvesting of the throom flesh goes largely unnoticed. It is the good fortune of the feasters, they think, to have located a nexus point where they can harvest the throom's flesh. Beyond their rituals with the throom, the feasters have been known to engage in cannibalism to supplement the regular harvesting of the "throom"; this is particular true for feasters who have grown old, sick, and/or feeble, but this might also apply to nosy visitors.

Each feaster possesses one special attack and one special defense, products of their consumption of Rimmaq-Isfet's flesh. These special abilities should be rolled on the following table for each Feaster:

D6	Special Attack	Special Defense
1	Nails of Iron: the feaster attacks with elongated, sharpened 'nails' (or claws). A successful hit does 2-9 HP damage, but causes an additional 1-3 HP of bleeding damage each round for 3 rounds	Tough Skin: the feaster is AC 4, whether tranquil or enraged
2	Mesmerizing Eyes: the intensity of the feaster's gaze provokes a save versus petrification (with a +2 bonus), or else the victim is charmed per the spell	Immune to Fire: the feaster takes no damage from fire-based attacks
3	Corpse Breath: in combat the foul stench of the feaster's breath requires a melee opponent to save vs poison (+1 bonus) or spend 1-2 rounds retching	Immune to Cold: the feaster takes no damage from cold-based attacks
4	Flying Feet: the feaster gets an additional attack with one of its feet. If successful, the kick does 2-5 HP damage.	Great Endurance: the feaster has 1-3 more HD than usual.
5	Extra-Crazy: this feaster is even more berserk than its peers, and gets an additional bite attack each round. If successful, the bite does 1-3 damage, and the victim has a 5% chance of contracting a disease.	Magic Immunity: the feaster is immune to 1 st -level spells of every sort
6	Leaping Feaster: the feaster's thighs have grown thick from too much protein. It can leap up to 15' at foes. Opponents must save vs petrification (with a +2 bonus) or be knocked down for 1-2 rounds.	Missile Resistant: all missiles bounce off the skin of the feaster, unless they are +2 or better.

The alpha feaster is more powerful than its fellows: AC 3; HD 8; HP 57; #AT 3; Dmg 3-14; flying feet, extra-crazy; magic immunity, and immune to fire. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 1,050

CHASM CEPHALOPOD

FREQUENCY: Rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 4-24
 SIZE: S, M or L
 MOVE: 60' flying (Class A)
 AC: 5
 HD: 2, 4 or 6
 ATTACKS: 5 (4 tentacles and a beak)
 DAMAGE:
 Small: 1-3/1-3/1-3/1-3/1-4
 Medium: 1-4/1-4/1-4/1-4/1-6
 Large: 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6/1-8

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal to genius (?)
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP:
    2 HD: 3 / 80 + 1/hp
    4 HD: 3 / 145 + 3/hp
    6 HD: 5 / 350 + 6/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: The Great Chasm and connected areas

Chasm cephalopods vaguely resemble translucent floating octopus-creatures made out of a thin, slightly gelatinous protoplasm. They normally possess four dangling tentacles (4'-8' long) attached to a central cylinder. The central cylinder features three 'eyes' surrounding a chitinous beak and simple digestive and nervous systems. They seem to be unique to the caverns under Arden Vul, and ancient wizardly lore (which is unlikely to be available to modern scholars) hints that these creatures may originally have been associated with the rudishva. The cephalopods are capable of a form of 'flight,' by which they really float in the air and manipulate slight air currents. They are, however, able to produce small bursts of quick movement. Although translucent, the chasm cephalopods are able to take on the color and texture of most surroundings, making them difficult to spot and hard to hit in combat (reflected in their AC). Their translucence makes them more likely to surprise (4 in 6 chance) in all but the most brightly lit chambers.

Chasm cephalopods use their tentacles to stun prey with electric shocks, inflicting increasing damage by size. A few very old and rare cephalopods (6 HD) have a fifth tentacle which drains one memorized spell from spell casters per successful hit; such hits also add 2-8 temporary hit points to the cephalopod.

Frequent explorers of Arden Vul are divided on the question of whether or not chasm cephalopods are intelligent. Some assert they are mindless, that their ability to sense prey and feed is merely an animalistic response. Others claim they possess a collective intelligence which is unfathomable to human sentience. A third, minority, view suggests that the creatures develop sentience over long periods of time (centuries), and only approach intelligence after this span of time in groups of 6 or more. If this theory is correct, it follows that intelligent pods of the cephalopods are discoverable in the reaches of Arden Vul; such pods might possess valuable knowledge about the history and layout of Arden Vul. Of course one would need to convince such ancient beings not to attack, and in a language which the cephalopods might understand.

Chasm cephalopods do not possess true lairs, although they tend to clump together in certain areas of the chasms. As beings that float in perpetuity, they do not collect treasure. Still, the protoplasm of chasm cephalopods is said to be useful in the concoction of magical potions and, as mentioned above, the very most ancient pods may have valuable information.

The process by which new chasm cephalopods are spawned is unknown, with sages (those few who know of them) split (again) on the subject. Some think they are the spontaneous byproduct of spell-casting in the presence of raw arcana. Others believe that the ancient pods are able to incarnate a 'thought' or 'emanation' of their essence, which takes the form of low HD chasm cephalopods.

CLAM, GIANT

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-10
SIZE: M or L
MOVE: 10' swimming
AC: 0
HD: 6 or 9
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-10
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
INTELLIGENCE: Non-
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP:
    6 HD: 4 / 230 + 6/hp
    9 HD: 6 / 900 + 12/hp
TREASURE: 1-4 giant pearls (1,000 gp each) (5%)
LOCATION: SL7-17

These behemoths can grow up to 9' across. Their shells are commonly colonized by marine plant life and other, smaller, mollusks. This camouflage allows them to surprise on 3 in 6. Giant clams feed by snapping their valves down on unsuspecting prey, and then drawing them into their stomachs via a powerful incurrent siphon. While they mostly thrive on small organisms, the digestive juices of the giant clam's stomach are strong enough to affect larger creatures (like humans). The clam's initial attack is thus the snapping shut of its shells, for 1-10 HP damage on a successful hit. A successful hit also means the victim is trapped (-4 to all to-hit rolls and saves). In subsequent rounds the clam gets +4 to hit in order to suck the trapped victim into its gullet, where it inflicts 2-8 HP damage on that and every subsequent round.

CRAWLING SOUL BORER

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (20' long)
MOVE: 45'
AC: 3
HD: 12
ATTACKS: 3-5, engulf, and special
DAMAGE: 2-8 (x5), 4-24, and special
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to fire, cold, and poison
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Very
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,750 + 16/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL9-66

This horrific entity crawls the deep paths of the Underearth, looking for living entities whose life forces it can drain. It appears as a lumpen cylinder of amorphous fleshy protoplasm about 20' long and 8' in diameter, the surface of which is dotted with dozens of eyes of varying sizes. The soul borer can extrude tentacles at will, up to 15' in distance, and will often do so with one of the eyes at the tip so as to investigate something or someone. It moves relatively slowly, by creeping along the stone; while it cannot fly or climb great distances, it can pull itself up heights up to twice its diameter, and can squeeze itself through openings as small as 6" tall.

The soul borer can engulf anything smaller than itself, using its acidic flesh to dissolve its prey, but it reserves such attacks against non-sentient life forms. This attack begins with 3-5 pseudopod strikes, each doing 2-8 HP damage; should 2 pseudopods hit in the same round, the soul borer engulfs the prey, thereby doing 4-24 HP damage per round until the being is consumed.

With sentient targets, however, it prefers to use its deadly eyes to captivate foes and slowly devour their life forces. Its eye attacks require 3 eyes to focus on a foe, usually by extruding pseudopods with eyes on their tips to engage the foe. The borer can extrude a total of 6 such pseudopods, which means it can effectively make two 'eye attacks' per round (one from each set of three pseudopods).

Eye attacks can take one of three forms: 1) Domination: dominates the victim and enslaves him/her to the soul borer; 2) Soul Bore: drains an energy level from the victim; 3) Intellect Drain: drains a point of INT from the victim. Each type of attack provokes a saving throw on the part of the victim, which is modified by the victim's INT: 3-6: -2; 7-10: -1; 11-13: 0; 14-16: +1; 17-18: +2.

A soul borer typically attempts first to dominate a sentient victim. Once the victim is enslaved, the soul borer will use the other attacks to slowly degrade the victim, usually using soul bore and intellect drain each once per day until the victim is a driveling fool. At that point the soul borer will engulf the mindless cretin and 'eat' it.

Soul borers are immune to cold, fire, and poison. Attacks which impose blindness, magical darkness, or other concealments are effective against it; but the soul borer saves with a +2 bonus against any attack for which a save is allowed.

DEBASED MONK

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-6
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 5
HD: 4
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 1-6/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: 10% chance of causing a disease per hit
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to charm
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 3 / 105 + 3/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 5-78 to 5-83

These terrible creatures once were men, pious monks of the Inner Order who staffed the secret Fane of Thoth (5-83) through the Archontean period. They have been corrupted by the very great evil of Oziman, a type III demon who has posed as incarnation of Thoth for about 1,200 years. The debased monks are not undead, but preserved in an undying state by the horrific evil of the demon and their own corrupted natures. They appear as wiry, strong, pasty-white, stringy-haired men who communicate in grunts and snarls. They have lost most of their sentience and exist mostly to feed (on whatever happens by) and to serve their demonic master.

Although not true undead, they can be temporarily turned (for 1-6 rounds) by good-aligned clerics. They are 'turned' as wights, unless the Sanctum (5-83) has been re-consecrated to Thoth, in which case they are 'turned' as zombies.

DEMON, AROKSACHAUL (arr-OAK-sah-chool) (Minor Demon)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 4-8
SIZE: L (8' tall)
MOVE: 120', 270' flying (Class C)
AC: 0
HD: 7+7
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4 or by weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +2 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 55%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic Evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1650 + 10/hp

TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)

LOCATION: 9-50, SL2-2

These demons are common to several layers of the abyss, where they serve demonic princes as crack huntsmen, often in tandem with yeth hounds. Stout and 8' tall, the aroksachaul have the head of a wild boar, the arms and hands of a human, the legs and feet of an elephant, and small (but powerful) wings. They are arrogant and vulgar by nature, assured of their mastery of the hunt and the inevitability that they will capture their prey. From positions of strength they are likely to taunt future prey, sometimes even granting them a set time before setting off in pursuit. The huntsmen particularly enjoy hunting in the Astral Plane, where their enhanced senses are equally strong.

Aroksachaul have extraordinary senses: in addition to infravision, they can smell living flesh 100' away and can hear a mouse sneeze at 50'. Although they cannot technically detect invisible beings, their senses make it easier for them to follow the invisible: their penalty for melee versus invisible foes is only -1. In addition to their senses, the huntsmen have the following abilities: infravision, create darkness (10' radius), teleport without error, detect magic, read languages, dispel magic, levitate (as a 10th-level magic user), telekinese 4,000 gp weight, cause fear (as per a fear wand), and gate in another aroksachaul or a type I-III demon (dice for which; 50% chance).

They may strike with their strong fists, but prefer to arm themselves with two weapons, which they use simultaneously without penalty; among their preferred weapons (all enchanted as +2 weapons) are whips (range 20', damage 1-3+2/1-2+2), bastard swords (damage 4-12/4-18), and short bows (using arrows of striking – see new magic items; damage 4-9/4-9). The huntsmen may only be hit by magic weapons (+2 or better). Like all demons, they take half damage from cold, electricity, fire, and gas.

DEMON, BLOOD-SEEKING (Minor Demon)

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3 or 1-6

SIZE: M

MOVE: 60'

AC: 0

HD: 9

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 2-8/2-8/2-8

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Standard demonic defenses

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 20%

INTELLIGENCE: Average to very

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,200 + 12/hp

TREASURE: 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%)

LOCATION: 4-14A

Blood-seeking demons appear as round, vaguely gelatinous balls with long spindly legs. They possess two short eyestalks and two 10' tentacles. Tentacles hit for 2-8 damage each, and if a victim is hit by both tentacles in a round, the blood-seeking demon will pull its body towards the victim and attach its mouth/orifice to the victim, whose blood it will begin draining (automatic hit, 2-4 damage per round).

The eyestalks can create darkness 2/day and can stun for 3-12 rounds 2/day (save vs spells to avoid). Blood-seeking demons can gate in 1-2 flensing demons (30% chance, see new monsters), their only demon allies.

A blood-seeking demon's main body is covered with a slick red slime which is toxic to human flesh (save versus poison or take 3-12 damage). Blood-seeking demons can be distracted by significant (2 pints, or 5 HP) amounts of fresh blood. Unlike most demons, blood-seeking demons are not telepathic, and although blood-seeking demons understand all languages, they can only communicate on the Prime Material Plane through a series of long keening tones which rise or fall after 5 seconds of stability (e.g., "Eeeeeee-ah").

DEMON, FLENSING (Major Demon)

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (7' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: -1

HD: 9+9

ATTACKS: 4

DAMAGE: 1-6/1-6/1-6/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 35%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 15%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 8 / 3,600 + 13/hp

TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)

LOCATION: SL6-16

Flensing demons are a breed of punishment demons used by the more powerful demonic lords to inflict torments through the flaying of skin of their victims. A flensing demon has the legs of a gorilla, the torso of a milk cow, and the head of a mandrill. It has four tentacular arms that end in leeches' mouths; each is 10' long and constantly searching for flesh to flense.

With its powerful legs, the flensing demon can leap up to 40', whether vertically or horizontally; it loves nothing more than to wait invisibly before leaping into the midst of its prey, where its tentacles can do their work. The tentacles lightly caress the skin of victims, pulling off flesh in the process. Once a tentacle has successfully hit, it causes 1-3 HP of bleeding damage for 3-6 rounds. The flensing demon can also spit a caustic mucus once every three rounds that burns for 2-8 HP damage. The flensing demon can use the following spell-like abilities at will, one per round: invisibility, detect invisibility, levitate (1,000 lb), dispel magic, darkness (20' diameter), and ESP.

Flensing demons have a 50% chance to gate in a rending demon or another flensing demon. In addition to their normal demonic defenses, flensing demons can only be hit by +2 weapons or better.

DEMON, KAUKET (Demon Prince) (COW-kett)

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (15' tall)
MOVE: 120'
AC: -7
HD: 175 HP
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 3-18/1-4
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +2 or better weapons to hit, immune to psionics
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 80%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%
INTELLIGENCE: Genius
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 10/55,000 (material form only)
TREASURE: 1-6k sp (30%), 1-2k ep (25%), 2-8 potions (40%), 1-4 scrolls (50%), 10-80 gems (90%), 5-30 jewelry (80%), 1 of each magic item excluding potions and scrolls (70%)
LOCATION: 10-35

Kauket, the ever-ravenous lord of the 497th plane of the Abyss, is one of the nastiest of demon princes. He revels in the consumption of living matter, and has an apparently insatiable appetite. Kauket appears as a 15'-tall biped, with the trunk of a salamander (black with yellow spots), the feet of an elephant, human arms, and an oversized salamander-esque head. His maw is large but toothless, and is filled with acids and other deadly slimes; Kauket can, moreover, hyperextend his jaws in order to swallow beings up to 10' in height. Kauket's lidless eyes are saucer-like, limpid pools of yellowish ichor, which occasionally drip extrusions that harden before they reach the ground; these extrusions are collected by Kauket's servitors, and are known as the tears of Kauket (see new magic items).

He is a deadly foe, thanks to numerous special abilities. First, Kauket is able to swallow foes up to 10' in size, doing so on a roll of 19-20 to hit. Those swallowed by Kauket are subjected to swift corrosion (metal destroyed in 2 rounds, flesh takes 4-24 damage per round; magic items get a save).

Second, when he hops (every other round), the sound of his colossal, elephantine feet striking stone causes a sonic shock wave that serves to stun all foes within 30' for 1-3 rounds. Those with 5 HD or fewer are automatically affected, while those with 6-9 HD save at a -1 penalty, those with 10-12 HD save normally, and those with 13 or more HD save at +1.

Third, Kauket is able to spit a blob of strong acid up to 30' once every other round (in addition to other attacks); if it hits, the acid does 2-12 HP damage and has the chance to destroy items.

Finally, Kauket also wields a deadly spear that carries his name. The spear of Kauket (see new magic items) is 12' long and made of cold iron and copper. In addition to its formidable combat abilities (3-18 HP damage per hit), it has a chance to drain 1-2 energy levels and half of a victim's remaining hit points for every successful attack. See the new magic items appendix for further details on the spear.

Kauket possesses the following innate powers which he can use passively or continuously, without concentrating: infravision

(120'), cause fear, detect magic, read magic, read language, detect invisible, ESP, clairvoyance, clairaudience, water breathing.

As a supplement to his normal attack routine, Kauket can use the following innate powers: continual darkness, charm person, create illusion (as a wand of illusion), levitate, dispel magic, suggest, polymorph self, wall of fire, charm monster, telekinesis (11,000 gp weight), feeblemind (1/day), teleport (without error), project image, use any symbol (1x/day each), vanish 1/day, and polymorph any object. He can gate in other demons with an 80% chance for success (33% for a type II-IV demon, 33% for a keqemander [see new monsters], and 33% for a type V-VI demon).

Kauket commands the 497th layer of the abyss from a stone castle set atop an enormous mountain of decaying mulch, in which lesser demons squirm, burrow, and consume each other. He is served by an octet of powerful type V demons, and commands troops of type II demons, type IV demons, babau and shub, as well as hordes of salamander- and amphibian-form demons that are unique to this layer (e.g., keqemandri).

Kauket is powerful among the demon princes, although not as powerful as Orcus or Demogorgon. He defers to the latter and is actively opposed to the former, although his real alliance is with the faceless lord, Juiblex. In addition to the heqeti, Kauket is worshipped by the snake-people and by evil cultists.

Whether or not Kauket was in origin an extrusion from Rimmaq-Isfet (see new monsters) cannot be determined, but the heqeti are convinced that Kauket is one of the Devourer's avatars or offspring. Kauket himself certainly claims to be eternal and thus father-less. Still, the connections between the two are suggestive: both are amphibianoid, both favor slimes, and both revel in slow corrosion and consumption of all opponents.

Titles: The Ever-Ravenous Lord, the Swallower, He Who Drains the Water of Life, the Giver of Tears

Symbols: A white teardrop; a black spear with additional barbs below the point; a white worm; an open, toothless maw.

DEMON, KEQEMANDER (Major Demon) (KEHK-eh-man-der)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1 or 1-3
SIZE: L (8' + tall)
MOVE: 90', 150' flying (Class D)
AC: -2
HD: 8, 12, or 16
ATTACKS: 3
DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4/3-18
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below
LAIR PROBABILITY: 60%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP:

8 HD: 7 / 1,350 + 10/hp

12 HD: 8 / 4,300 +16/hp

16 HD: 9 / 8,100 +20/hp

TREASURE: 1-20k sp (10%), 1-12k ep (15%), 1-10k gp (40%), 100-800 pp (35%), 3-30 gems (20%), 1-10 jewelry (10%), any 3 magic items except swords or misc. weapons, + 1 potion + 1 scroll (30%)

LOCATION: 2-48, 3-178, 5-6B, 5-52, 7-79, 9-40, 9-78, 9-121, 9-135, 10-35, SL5-36

Keqemandri (the plural of keqemander) are the sub-class of demon that encompasses the main servitors of dread Kauket. Keqemandri vary in size and power, details of which can be found on the following chart. They are fiercely chaotic and love nothing more than the chaos of slaughter. Although intelligent and capable of human speech, they prefer to bark threatening commands in their own demonic tongue while grinning foully and exuding toxic slime in a puddle around them.

They appear most commonly as misshapen amphibianoid beings, as if a grotesquely bloated salamander were walking upright on vaguely human, powerful legs. Their torsos tend to be warty and mottled, while their heads are squat and flattened, with two purple, pupil-less eyes. Keqemandri slash with their claw-like paws and bite with their over-sized, toothy maws.

Size	Hit Dice	Magic Resistance	Gate Chance	Degrade Chance
8'	8	40%	30%	25%
10'	12	45%	40%	40%
12'	16	50%	50%	60%

The presence of a keqemander causes dread in all beings in a 20' radius; the dread inflicts a -1 penalty to all saving throws. When a keqemander barks in its guttural, alien tongue, the sound is enough to cause fear in all within a 30' radius.

All keqemandri, regardless of size, exude an oily, yellowish slime at all times. If engaged in combat with an opponent for more than 2 rounds, this slime will form a pool around the combatants; in this case, the opponent must save vs spells or slip and tumble to the ground for a round. Those falling in the slime are subject to appropriate checks to see if metallic armor degrades (see chances in table above) and/or unprotected flesh is burned by the slime's acidity (3-8 HP per round).

A hit from one of the Keqemander's claws will also smear the slime onto an opponent's armor and/or weapon and/or flesh; the chance for the slime to degrade metals is given in the table above, but if the target is unarmored, the opponent also takes an additional 1-6 damage from the caustic slime. If armor is degraded, it loses 1 point of AC value, which can eventually degrade armor to worthlessness. The slime does not affect leather or wood.

Keqemandri can also spit their acidic slime every other round; the range of the spit is 30', and it inflicts 3-10 HP damage (and may degrade armor as above).

Like all demons, keqemandri possess infravision and the power to create darkness (10' radius), teleport without error, and open gates (50% chance to gate in either a demon of type I-IV or another keqemander). They can only be hit by magic weapons. Other powers that they can employ once per round include levitation, telekinesis (4,000 gp weight), invisibility, project image, and use of a symbol of discord.

Keqemandri are highly susceptible to law, and clerics or paladins who are LG get an extra +1 to hit and +1 to damage when fighting them. Magic items with a lawful alignment (e.g., a LG sword) receive an additional +1 to hit and damage over and above their usual bonuses.

DEMON, LUCERN (Minor Demon)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: L (8')

MOVE: 90'

AC -3

HD: 8+8

ATTACKS: 5

DAMAGE: 3-6/3-6/3-6/3-6/4-16

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 75%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 15%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,300 + 12/hp

TREASURE: 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%)

LOCATION: SL4-15

Although they have no fixed form and constantly mutate in shape, lucern demons often assume floppy bipedal forms of dripping purple wax. Their heads feature two large black eyes and the hint of a mouth; the mouth occasionally slides open, revealing chitinous, hollow, conical 'teeth'.

Although lucern demons can (and usually do) appear to mortals in this bipedal form, they can mutate up to four pseudopod-like tentacles from their wax-like bodies. These tentacles have a range of 20' and, in addition to damage inflicted, cause paralysis in those who fail to save. Paralyzed victims can be dragged close to the demons in 1-2 rounds, whereupon they are subject to the bite attack (automatic damage to those paralyzed).

In certain circumstances lucern demons may elect not to manifest pseudopods at all, but to project blobs of the paralytic wax as missiles (range of 40', damage as per pseudopod). Regardless of attack form (blob or pseudopod), they have a maximum of four attacks per round plus a bite. The purple wax that drips from their bodies can be collected and, with alchemical training, turned into a paralytic poison.

Lucern demons are only hit by +1 or better weapons, and are immune to mind-affecting spells and to acid-based attacks in addition to normal demonic resistances. Lucern demons possess infravision, teleport without error, darkness, and may gate in 2-5 dretch (75% chance of success). In addition, they possess the following extra abilities used at will, one at a time: comprehend languages, levitate, detect magic, dispel magic, telekinesis (3,000 gp), symbol of discord, and symbol of despair.

Lucern demons can make prophecies about future events, although their responses tend to emerge in terms of arithmetical expressions that are difficult to decipher, as each lucern demon has its own mathematical method of saying yes and no. They cannot, under any duress, speak more precisely about their visions. Summoning these prophecies requires a sacrifice of some sort that is also unique to each lucern demon, but typically involves various body parts: some desire three heads with red hair, others desire hands and feet, and still others require lungs and hearts.

Lucern demons are very rare, even for infinite demonkind, and they are often found in the service of powerful lords or princes who are the only ones able to decipher their responses. Because of this, summoning one has a good chance of attracting the attention of a more powerful demon that's just lost the service of their augur.

DEMON, RENDING (Minor Demon)

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (8' tall)

MOVE: 120', 60' climbing

AC: 0

HD: 7+7

ATTACKS: 4

DAMAGE: 2-7/2-7/2-7/2-7

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 40%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,050 + 10/hp

TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)

LOCATION: 5-101, SL13-10J

These powerful demons appear as enormous, six-armed praying mantises, albeit with simian heads that snap back and forth, constantly looking for prey. They are not the smartest of demons, but they are very strong (STR 19). They are primarily combat demons, preferring to use their camouflage ability to blend into their surroundings (90% undetectable) before leaping onto their prey from above, surprising on 4 in 6. If three claws hit in one round, the rending demon does an additional 3-18 damage as it tears its victim into shreds.

Rending demons can use the following spell-like abilities, once per round: darkness (10' radius), levitation, dispel magic (as a 12th-level magic user), detect illusion, detect invisible, teleport without error, and cone of cold (once per day). A rending demon has a 33% chance of gating in another rending demon (3/day).

In addition to its normal demonic defenses, the rending demon can only be hit by +2 weapons or better.

DEMON, VORANTES (Minor Demon) (vore-AHN-tays)

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 7-12

SIZE: S (2' diameter) or M (5' diameter)

MOVE: 120'

AC: 4 or 2

HD: 4 or 7+3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-8 or 2-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Resistant to fire and cold

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10% or 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 15%

INTELLIGENCE: Semi or low

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP:

Vorantes: 4 / 135 + 3/hp

Greater Vorantes: 6 / 750 + 10/hp

TREASURE: 1-4 gems (50%) (x2)

LOCATION: UP-11, 8-17, 8-19-21

Vorantes (plural vorantes) are a race of minor demons who occasionally contract with powerful entities for particular services, usually guardian duties. These beings live to consume organic matter, and are entirely insatiable. They take the form of 2' ovals of matte brown leathery skin; they have a single eye and a huge maw (the jaw is unhinged). Although they possess two legs and two arms, they prefer to locomote by rolling swiftly up to their prey, and then leaping to the attack. Vorantes latch on to enemies using their powerful jaws; once attached, they can use a subsidiary set of teeth to begin gnawing away at organic material. Once a vorantes hits for the first time, it will continue to inflict gnawing damage (an automatic 1-4 hp per round) until removed.

Unlike most demons, vorantes do not have standard demonic abilities. They possess demonic telepathy, but they only resist fire and cold by taking 1 less HP damage per die. They are able to see in absolute (even magical) darkness, but are repelled by and cannot enter true sunlight. Vorantes do not intentionally accumulate treasure, but gems naturally accumulation in their gut.

Greater vorantes are similar in shape and basic abilities to their smaller brethren. They are larger (5' diameter; SZ M) and tougher (AC 2; HD 7+3; MR 25%); they do 2-12 HP damage on an initial hit, and an automatic 2-8 for every round they gnaw. They are completely immune to fire and cold. Greater vorantes have more intelligence than their basic brethren, and are able to direct basic vorantes in simple tactical maneuvers.

DEVIL, ENTRAPMENT (Greater Devil)

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: -2

HD: 10

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 3-6/3-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 70%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 30%
 INTELLIGENCE: Supra-genius
 ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil
 LEVEL/XP: 8 / 4,050+ 13/hp
 TREASURE: 300-1,800 pp (30%), 2-20 gems (55%), 1-12 jewelry (50%), any 1 magic item (15%)
 LOCATION: 2-31

Entrapment devils are greatly feared as the smooth, seductive face of evil. These creatures are extremely knowledgeable about matters of history, magic, and/or general arcana in general, and are hence relatively frequent objects of summoning for those wizards seeking hidden knowledge. Although all summoning attempts are dangerous, those of entrapment devils are especially fraught, as their intelligence, craftiness, and deceptive natures render them formidable foes.

Not particularly imposing in a physical sense (although possessing an 18 STR), these devils do minimal 3-6 damage with their claws. They are much more likely to pose as charming (18 CHA) benign allies, taking on forms designed to allay the suspicions of their victims. When possible, they use their feared dominate ability to take command of victims, whom they attempt to manipulate into doing more of their work; if discovered, they will gate themselves and any dominated victims safely back to Hell, where such victims will be turned over to erinyes for torture. Entrapment devils are known to use their illusion and polymorph abilities to create plausible physical and social circumstances likely to allow them to dominate victims.

Entrapment devils have numerous special powers. Up to 3/ day, the devil can attempt to dominate the mind of a victim. Domination takes the form of an advanced charm spell. Victims must save versus spells to avoid being trapped; a modifier to the save is determined by the victim's HD.

Hit Dice	Modifier
1-2	-4
3-4	-3
5-6	-2
7-8	-1
9-10	+0
11-12	+1
13-14	+2
15+	+3

Entrapment devils can use polymorph self and hold person at will, as an innate ability. Entrapment devils can also create convincing illusions of physical objects, room conditions, and so forth, as if through the 6th-level illusionist spell, permanent illusion. They may teleport unerringly. As with all devils, they may also attempt to gate another devil to aid them (40% chance of success); if successful the ally will be a barbed devil (40%), a bone devil (20%), an erinyes (20%), or an ice devil (10%).

DISCIPLINED

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-6
 SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'
 AC: 7
 HD: 2-4
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: By weapon
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to mind-affecting spells
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10%
 LAIR PROBABILITY: None
 INTELLIGENCE: Low
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP:
 2 HD: 2 / 40 + 1/hp
 3 HD: 3 / 65 + 2/hp
 4 HD: 3 / 105 + 3hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 4-2, 6-58, 6-70, SL3-2

These poor creatures are the product of the terrible experiments of Tikun Thane, mage of Newmarket (see World of Archontos appendix) and sometime resident of Arden Vul (SL3-2). Tikun Thane buys strong young men from the slave market in the Forum (4-2), and transports them to his lab in the Tower of the Ape in Newmarket, where he employs bizarre techno-sorcery to create these lobotomized servants.

The disciplined appear as muscular young men dressed in a loincloth, bracers, and boots. Their heads are shaven, and a copper plate is affixed to the back of their skulls. They typically employ scimitars and attack as fighters. While not mindless, the disciplined are unable to resist commands by Tikun Thane and, due to the strength of his control, are unaffected by any mind-affecting spells.

Tikun Thane gives his disciplined short, punchy names like 'Silk', 'Sparrow', 'Rose', and so forth. If encountered in a group, it is likely (50%) that one of the disciplined will be leading 1-2 albino baboons on a leash. There are rumors that disciplined of substantially greater power guard the Tower of the Ape.

DUST MONSTER

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
 SIZE: S, M or L
 MOVE: 90'
 AC: 0
 HD: 4, 6, or 8
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE:
 Small: 1-6
 Medium: 1-10
 Large: 3-18
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: Suffocation, blinding
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
 LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
 INTELLIGENCE: Semi
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP:
 4 HD: 4 / 265 + 3/hp
 6 HD: 6 / 560 + 6/hp
 8 HD: 7 / 1,450 + 10hp

TREASURE: See below
LOCATION: 3-35, 7-142, SL6-47

Dust monsters are greatly feared by explorers of dungeons and arid wastes. It is not clear how they come into being, whether spontaneously in sites of magical power or as a byproduct of constant spell use, but they are clearly magical in nature, of limited intellect, and antithetical to all air-breathers. They generally lie quiescent until disturbed by a living creature. When disturbed, a small vortex will be seen swirling among the dust. Within 1-4 rounds the vortex becomes a dust monster.

During the 1-4 rounds in which the dust monster takes shape, it begins to spin dust and grit into a large cloud. This cloud extends in a 10' radius for small dust monsters, in a 15' radius for medium ones, and in a 25' radius for large ones. Any creature inside this radius without eye protection must save versus wands to retain its sense of direction and full movement. Otherwise movement is halved, and it must make a second save in order to move in the desired direction.

The dust monster remains a swirling, generally formless dust cloud until it attacks. Its attack takes the form of huge fists made of dust and grit that strike a victim for variable damage based upon its size. Additionally, if a dust monster hits its target with a fist, the victim begins to suffocate from the dust/grit unless it saves vs poison. The victim takes 1-4 damage from suffocation in the first round, and subsequent rounds increase the damage according to the following progression: 1-6, 1-8, 1-10, 1-12, 3-18, 4-24, etc. A suffocating victim can try to break the suffocation by making further saves vs poison: normal in the second round, -2 in the third, -4 in the fourth, -6 in the fifth, and -10 in any subsequent rounds.

Dust monsters may only be hit by magical weapons, and blunt enchanted weapons (e.g., maces) only do half damage. Dust monsters take damage from all liquids, whether magical or mundane. Create water spells do 3-18 damage to dust monsters. The GM should adjust the effects of other water-based spells accordingly. A typical wine- or water-skin emptied on a dust monster inflicts 1-6 damage.

Dust monsters are indifferent to treasure, but it accumulates over time as the dust monster preys upon more and more victims.

EEL, COLOSSAL MORAY

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2
SIZE: L (40' long)
MOVE: 90' swimming
AC: 5
HD: 9
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 4-24
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 6 / 900 + 12/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 6-57

This is a larger, meaner, and more intelligent variety of the 'ordinary' giant moray eel.

ELEMENTAL, FEAR

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (20' emanation)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 0/-2
HD: 6, 10 or 14
ATTACKS: 1 per target
DAMAGE: See below
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 50%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP:

6 HD: 5 / 420 + 6/hp

10 HD: 7 / 2,000 + 13/hp

14 HD: 8 / 4,900 + 19/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 3-124

These dangerous creatures prey upon the fears - or potential for fear - present in all beings. They appear differently to each and every being that encounters them, namely as a slightly translucent form of each being's most dreaded fear. As such the native form of a fear elemental is unknown, as is their plane of origin.

Detecting latent fears in those they encounter, fear elementals are able to project those fears outward; this fear aura acts as a cause fear spell to all in a 20'-diameter area around them. Mostly incorporeal, fear elementals do not inflict direct physical damage; instead their touch can cause victims to become literally petrified with fear. In combat, this works as follows: the fear elemental makes a touch attack against any within its 20' emanation, and, if it hits, the victim must save vs petrification or be rendered immobile for 3-6 rounds. A victim under the effect of remove fear gains an automatic +4 to the save.

The round after a victim has been petrified, the fear elemental begins draining the victim's life essence. Each round of life drain removes 1-4 CON. A victim dies when its CON has been reduced to 2 or lower. CON drained by a fear elemental can be regained at the rate of 1-4 per day. A being slain by a fear elemental exhibits no signs of outward damage, but its face is usually contorted in a rictus of terror.

Fear elementals have substantial magic resistance, and are only hit by +1 or better weapons. They are immune to cold and fire, but are susceptible to certain spells that affect the mind, e.g. confusion and feeblemind (but not sleep or charm). A being that is somehow able to completely mask its mind (e.g., through mindblank) is immune from the attacks of a fear elemental.

14 HD fear elementals have a lower AC, and are only hit by +2 magic weapons. Saves against both the fear aura and terror petrification of 14 HD fear elementals are at -2 (before other modifications are considered).

FEY LORD

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 7 or by armor

HD: 8+3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 33%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%

INTELLIGENCE: Genius

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 8 / 3,100 + 12/hp

TREASURE: 5-30k gp (60%), 100-800 pp (15%), 10-80 gems (60%), 5-40 jewelry (50%), 1 map (55%), 1 misc. magic item + 1 potion (60%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%)

LOCATION: 6-1 (possible)

Fey lords are the aristocratic rulers of the fairy realms. Unlike the simpler sort of fey (pixies, brownies, etc.), over whom they rule, the fey lords organize themselves into complex hierarchies and develop highly refined artistic and political customs. While fey lords most typically are found in faerie, machinating against other fey houses in the constant 'War of Flowers,' some are occasionally drawn to the Prime Material Plane.

While in the Prime Material Plane, fey lords are able to manifest some - but not all - of their considerable magical abilities. Recognizing that humans and demi-humans sometimes can be frightened or angered by fey magic, most fey travelers (or at least those who last for any length of time) have learned to modify and curtail their capricious natures so as to better blend into the mundane world. They are thus less likely than their more wild cousins (e.g., sprites) to barrage all comers with their magical powers, for they have learned to put their goals ahead of their pleasures. Fey lords encountered in the Prime Material Plane will always have a specific goal and rationale for having left faerie; this might be as simple as a journey to hear a famous singer, or as complex as to subvert a human lord's powers over a forested area.

Although thought by sages (particularly elves) to be formed of pure magic, and thus to possess bodies that are more akin to spirits than to mortals, fey lords who travel in the mundane world have chosen to adapt their essence to the realities of mortality. Their bodies are truly flesh, and can experience pain, pleasure, and decay while away from faerie. Still, the fey lord's magical essence causes him/her to age and decay at a much slower rate, a fact which causes most mortals to believe that fey lords are immortal. It is also the case that fey lords have no soul and cannot therefore be raised from the dead or resurrected. What happens to a fey lord who dies in the mortal world is not exactly certain, but most scholars believe they are reincarnated as a new fairy (of a nature determined in part by their House Lord) in Tir-nan-Og; whether this new fairy recalls his/her former life or not is also unclear.

In general fey lords respect the elves and are fascinated by their culture and balance; they are disappointed, however, by the elves' general disdain for faeries and by the elves' unwillingness to allow the fey to live permanently with the elves (elves see the fey as imperfections or corruptions of Valborian's creation; the inconstancy and lack of wisdom of the fey is off-putting to elven sensibilities). Fey lords are frequently enamored of human culture, finding its extremes of action, emotion, and belief to be invigorating and worthy of emulation, at least for short periods. As a result, fey lords are drawn to human population centers, particularly those which boast high degrees of creativity, whether it be artistic, political, intellectual, or so on. Fey lords have little time for halflings, seeing them as boring. They genuinely dislike dwarves, who have been known to forge special cold iron weapons designed to permanently destroy or torture fairies. The goblins they treat as enjoyable children; they are fun to be around for a short time, but are unlikely to present enough of interest to require extended visitation. Of the humanoid races, the fey lords have little to say; orcs, trolls and such are occasionally interesting, but generally pale in comparison to human and elven society.

As almost pure incarnations of faerie magic, fey lords wield formidable powers of shaping themselves and their environments.

At home, in faerie, fey lords can use polymorph self and polymorph other at will as often as they like. In the Prime Material Plane, though, fey lords lose the ability to polymorph others, and their ability to polymorph themselves is limited to human form plus three distinct creature types, one small, one medium-sized, and one large. The type of creatures to which a fey lord can transform itself are fixed; so, for instance, the Lord of Gardenias might be able to transform himself into a weasel (small), a boar (medium), and a wyvern (large), but only those three creatures. A fey lord gains all abilities of the creature in question. A fey lord may transform himself into each of his three creature types once per day; the duration of the transformation is at the fey lord's will.

Fey lords are constantly aware of the connection points between faerie and the Prime Material Plane. They can locate the nearest such point (faerie circle, barrow, etc.) with 75% accuracy. Due to their hyper-awareness of faerie, fey lords have a 50% chance to successfully summon 2-5 pixies once per day. In addition, fey lords have a 20% chance per day to be able to step directly from the Prime Material Plane into faerie. Doing so comes at a cost, however; fey lords who are able to bypass normal connection points must remain in faerie for a year before venturing forth again.

When in the Prime Material Plane, fey lords typically appear as slender, handsome humans, albeit with a distinguishing features (see below). They wear and use all manner of human equipment and magic items, except for objects made of cold iron. Regardless of what they wear, though, a fey lord will always display on his/her person a token representing the fey house to which he belongs. So, a lord of the house of Asters might always wear a perfectly fresh aster tucked above his/her ear, or in a button-hole, or pinned to his/her cap.

All fey lords possess distinctive features, one of which is physical, one emotional, one martial, and one mysterious. Distinguishing physical features might involve a shock of pure white hair amid normally black hair, an extremely long nose, an abnormally large foot, a large strawberry birthmark on his/her face in the shape of a moon, black finger- and toenails, an unusual timbre to his/her voice (e.g. soprano for a male), etc. This distinguishing feature will always be present, regardless of what form the fey lord takes (e.g., a fey lord with a shock of white hair who takes weasel form will appear as a weasel with a noticeable streak of white fur).

Fey lords also possess a governing emotional feature, typically one of the following: anger, fear, sorrow, hatred, joy, or absence of emotion. This emotion guides the fey lord's general responses to stressful situations.

Distinctive martial features typically involve the possession of a unique and unusual weapon, whether it be a bone shillelagh, a spear made of pure ebony (no metal), a copper dirk engraved in silver, a spear made from a narwhal's horn, etc. Although the weapon may have other magical powers, it always functions at a minimum as a +1 weapon.

Finally, all fey lords have a mysterious feature: this feature can be a class of objects that the fey lord cannot touch, an action he/she cannot perform, an action he/she must perform, and so forth. Examples include a fey lord who is incapable of touching silk, one who is unable to utter his/her own name, and/or one who must always wear an eagle feather in his/her cap. Fey lords who are tricked into transgressing this mysterious feature instantly become grotesquely ugly through the hyper-exaggeration of existing features, suffer -2 to AC, lose 10 HP for a month, and become sullen and vengeful (-20% reactions).

Fey lords have several other powers, and a few weaknesses. They can instantly detect other fey creatures, even when those creatures are invisible. They are naturally resistant to illusion, saving at +4 to any illusion spell or effect. They can change self per the spell at will, as often as they like. They are highly vulnerable to pure (cold) iron; the touch of cold iron inflicts 1-4 damage, and weapons made of cold iron inflict an extra 1-4 damage. Due to their magical metabolisms, fey lords who travel in the Prime Material Plane must consume twice the normal amount of food and drink every day; failure to do so inflicts 1-6 damage per day of sub-normal eating and drinking.

Fey lords have secret names that are known only to them and the lord of their house; these names are typically long, complicated and bizarre. Knowing a fey lord's true name grants instant powers over that lord; one who speaks a true name may either banish the fey lord back to faerie for 99 years or demand a boon, which the fey lord is bound to fulfill to the best of his/her ability. For this reason, fey lords traveling in the Prime Material Plane adopt pseudonyms, often connected to their house name.

Finally, each fey lord can produce five glamours selected from the lists below. Once selected, those glamours are fixed; that is, those are the only ones the fey lord will ever be able to perform. Although they are modeled on spell effects, the glamours are at-will, spell-like powers; each may be produced twice per day, and each lasts until the fey lord wishes it to cease.

Fey lords possesses two glamours from the following list: blur, charm person, dancing lights, darkness, fog cloud, hypnotic pattern, hypnotism, improved phantasmal force, magic mouth, ventriloquism; one glamour from the following list: dispel illusion, invisibility, hallucinatory terrain, non-detection, spectral force, suggestion; one glamour from the following list: charm monster, blink, confusion, emotion, improved invisibility, spectral force, emotion; and one glamour from this final list: mass suggestion, permanent illusion, true seeing, veil.

FISH, CORAL GENERATING

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: S (2'-3' long)

MOVE: 150' swimming

AC: 4

HD: 2

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: None

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Chitin spray

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: None

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 2 / 40 + 1/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: SL7-1, SL7-2, SL7-14, SL7-15, SL7-17-19, SL7-22

A product of Reiv-Tor's (SL7-23) bizarre experimentation, these unusual fish have been modified, allowing them to create coral-like formations of sharp, spiky chitin. They appear as ugly fish about 2'-3' long, with large jaws and short fins. The fish project a stream of liquified chitinous material from a pair of glands inside the mouth; the chitin hardens when it comes into contact with stone or other hard surfaces. Although they do not normally attack living creatures (especially those bigger than themselves), the fish have been known to spray their chitin at approaching threats. The chitin hardens upon contact with rigid armors (metal, studded leather); more seriously, it degrades metal and leather almost instantly. For each hit of liquified chitin, a set of armor's AC is reduced by 1. Magical armors save at +2.

The coral generators can, over time, completely coat an area with this chitin. Such areas will have numerous nooks, crannies, and bolt holes among the chitin; the fish then live in the security these areas provide.

FISH, GIANT GROUPE

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4
SIZE: L (6'-10' long)
MOVE: 60' swimming
AC: 7
HD: 5
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 4 / 190 + 4/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL6-46, SL7-4, SL7-15, SL7-22

These monstrous fish grow to a size of 6'-10'. They are ambush predators that wait in the murk, often near coral reefs, and swiftly move to swallow and crunch any prey that comes their way. They are not particularly mobile, but do move swiftly when they attack. Instead of teeth, they have strong bony plates with which they crush and grind prey that they suck into their large mouths.

With bipedal beings of medium size or smaller, giant groupers typically attempt to swallow an extremity (arm, leg or head). On a successful to hit roll, roll a second d20 to determine hit location: 1-4: right arm; 5-8: left arm; 9-12: right leg; 13-16: left leg; 17-18: head; 19-20: whole body. After an initially successful hit in combat, the giant grouper gets +4 to hit any being it has already (partially) swallowed as well as a +4 on the second d20 roll to check for hit location. Because they typically lie motionless in the murk awaiting prey, they surprise opponents with a 3 in 6 chance.

FISH, LANTERN

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2
SIZE: S (2' long)
MOVE: 120' swimming
AC: 8 (or 4)
HD: 2
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-5

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Blind
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 2 / 40 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL7-1-2, SL7-4, SL7-11, SL7-14-15, SL7-18, SL7-22

These strange fish are typically 2' long, with very large heads, mouth, and eyes, and relatively small body, tail, and fins. They are ambush predators that lurk in murky water, especially near coral reefs, and wait for prey to come close. Then they attack, using their bioluminescence to attempt to blind the prey (save versus petrification or be blinded for 1-3 rounds). This 'flashlight' effect is caused by photophores located just below their eyes. The fish can cover or uncover these cells using a special membrane, which allows them to pulse their light into the eyes of prey.

The lantern fish are carnivores, but only attack small creatures, unless they are starving (20%), in which case they attack anything that moves. If operating out of a coral reef, these fish gain a bonus to their AC, resulting in an AC 4.

FISH, SPY

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: S (10" long)
MOVE: 150' swimming
AC: 7 (or 3)
HD: 1-4 HP
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Blinding
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 1 / 8 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL7-1-2, SL7-11, SL7-15, SL7-18-19

These are smaller, enchanted versions of the lantern fish. About 10" long, spy fish have been enchanted by Reiv-Tor (SL7-23) to allow him to see through their eyes and to control their photophore cells; if they surprise prey, which they do with a 3 in 6 chance, the beam of light created by their photophores may blind the prey for 1-3 rounds unless a saving throw versus petrification is made. While the viewing mechanism has served him well, Reiv-Tor is not able to control the movement of these fish; so he is limited by their natural instinctual movements.

Although carnivorous like their larger cousins, these fish are usually too small to concern themselves with man-sized prey; only if there is blood in the water (i.e., bleeding wounds) will they attack large prey, and even then they focus first on small creatures (goblins, halflings, etc.). If swimming among a coral reef, these fish gain a bonus to their AC, resulting in an AC 3.

FISHMEN

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 8-24
SIZE: M
MOVE: 60', 150' swimming
AC: 5
HD: 3+1
ATTACKS: 2 or by weapon
DAMAGE: 1-3/1-3, or 2-7
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Paralyzing mucus
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to cold, poison
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 33%
INTELLIGENCE: Low to average
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 4 / 175 + 3/hp
TREASURE: 1-4 gems or jewelry (50%) individuals; 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%) in lair
LOCATION: SL5-46, SL6-10, SL6-12, SL6-15, SL6-39, Sub-Level 7

These pitiful creatures were once humans or humanoids. Lured into the flooded vaults (Sub-Level 7) and captured by Reiv-Tor (SL7-23), those unfortunates were transformed via a slow, painful process of bio-sorcery into fishmen. Fishmen appear as man-sized beings covered in green scales that drip with an emerald green mucus. Their feet and hands are webbed and oversized, and their heads have been transformed to give them gills and a horny, vaguely demonic and fishy appearance. Fishmen can breathe both air and water. They walk slowly on land, but swim swiftly using a dolphin-style kick.

They can attack with their claws, but are also known to use weapons carved from bone, particularly spears, clubs, and javelins. When using these bone weapons, they do 2-7 HP damage per hit due to their fishy strength. The slimy green mucus that covers their skin is toxic to those not associated with the water; contact with the mucus causes those who fail a saving throw versus poison to be paralyzed for 1-3 rounds.

The fishmen exist to serve their master. Thus they constantly search for warm-blooded beings to eat or to bring to SL7 in order to transform into new fishmen. A splinter group of fishmen has broken away from the main body (see SL6-15) in order to worship the colossal eel (see SL6-24) as a god. A rare few fishmen are able to become shamans, and can rise to 7th-level in that function. In addition, for every 30 fishmen, there will be 2-5 fishmen chiefs; these chiefs are as normal fishmen save for the following stats: AC 3, HD 5; #AT 2; Dmg 2-7/2-7 or 3-12 (weapon).

FROST GHOULS

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-12
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 8 or per armor
HD: 3
ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Cold aura
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to cold
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP: 3 / 65 +2/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 6-137 to 6-140

These pathetic creatures are the remains of mortals slain by the ice magicks of a frost mother (q.v.). Within 1-6 rounds of dying from the frost mother's ice slivers, the victim rises as an unholy frost ghoul. These entities retain their prior forms, complete with equipment; over time, their complexions turn bluish-white and they come to be covered in a light coating of frost. Their visages are fixed in terrible approximations of smiles.

Frost ghouls have little independent volition, and mostly serve the will of their creator by running down and slaying any warm-blooded creatures that venture too close to the frost mother's location. They attack by bludgeoning foes with their icy fists. As a result of their planar-powered existence, frost ghouls cannot be turned. Finally, they radiate cold that inflicts 1 HP damage/round to any within 5'.

FROST MOTHER

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 60'
AC: 2
HD: 8, 12 or 16
ATTACKS: 3
DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4/1-4
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP:
8 HD: 6 / 1,050 + 10/hp
12 HD: 8 / 3,450 +16/hp
16 HD: 8 / 4,900 +20/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 6-140

These horrific entities of the para-elemental plane of ice are servants of the prince of evil elemental cold. In their natural state they appear as bipeds formed of mushy snow, with coal black eyes and faintly suggested facial features. By some unknown means, frost mothers may automatically alter their appearance to mimic that of the mother of any victim of roughly comparable size and mass that looks upon them. It is this ability to appear to all viewers as terrible pale-white versions of their mothers that has caused these elementals to be known as 'frost mothers,' and often the last sight a group sees is the visage of a familiar face opening its mouth to breath out blasts of frost and snow.

Frost mothers radiate intense cold in a 10' radius around their persons; any entering that radius takes 1-3 cold damage per round. Twice per day they can project a cone of cold (8d4+8 damage) from their mouths. Similarly, twice per day they can belch forth the sleet form of an ice storm.

They can also cough up three slivers of sharpened ice (1-4 each) per round at targets up to 40' away. Perhaps the most terrible feature of a frost mother is the fact that any opponent slain by one of the frost mother's ice slivers will rise in 1-6 rounds as a frost ghoul (q.v.) under the frost mother's control.

Frost mothers can only be hit by magic weapons (+2 or better), have mild magic resistance, and are immune to cold-based attacks. They are, of course, highly susceptible to fire, and take an extra +2 per damage die from fire or heat effects. They regenerate wounds slowly (1 hp per turn) in cold environments.

Frost mothers can be summoned like other para-elementals. They are rarely encountered on the Prime Material Plane, and then only as a product of summoning. On their native plane they move twice as quickly (120' instead of 60'). Because of their slow speed, they typically order their frost ghouls to pursue potential Prime Material Plane victims.

FUNGAL FORESTERS

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-33 in multiples of 3

SIZE: S, M or L

MOVE: 30' on rock, 90' in fungal forests

AC: 6, or 4

HD: 2, 4, 6 or 8

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-12 or 4-16

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to charm, sleep, other mind spells

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 40%

INTELLIGENCE: Low to high

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: Varies (see below)

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 2-69, 3-172B, 3-176, 3-202, 3-228, 4-97

Appearing much like the colossal subterranean mushrooms that they cultivate, the fungal foresters are a mysterious race inhabiting the dank, moist, warm cave systems beneath the surface of the earth. Generally they appear as pale, thin bipeds whose heads resemble conical mushroom caps. Their legs are thin and rubbery, and appear to lack normal joints, although the foresters have no problem bending their porous flesh to clamber over rocks and other obstacles. Their two arms usually hang at their side, but can be employed to deliver strong, clubbing blows.

The race is divided into several discrete sub-types, organized by function; these sub-types are recognizable to an experienced spelunker by the color of the forester's cap-like head. A 'spore group' of 33 fungal foresters is always made up of a combination of different sub-types. All types of foresters have mouths, and can communicate via a shrill set of pips and squeaks; they can and do employ metal tools on occasion, but these are 'found' tools, as the foresters are ignorant of metallurgy.

Spotted (white caps with brown spots): These are the less intelligent, brute laborers of the species. Unlike their fellow fungal foresters, they are susceptible to mind affecting spells. Variations in statistics: SZ S (4' tall), AC 6, HD 4, INT: Low. LEVEL/XP: 3 / 75 + 3/hp

Red (bright red, slightly more bulbous caps): These foresters are the collectors of 'evil', that is, the 1-3 individuals per colony that are literal repositories of all evil thoughts and deeds produced or encountered by colony. Red foresters can sacrifice themselves with an explosion affecting all in a 15'-diameter circle (3-18 damage), thus ridding the colony of its evils. Statistics: SZ S (3' tall), AC 6, HD 2, INT: Average. LEVEL/XP: 3 / 80 +1/hp

Blue (pale blue caps): These are the active warriors of a colony, foresters that can emit a 30'-diameter toxic spore cloud that stuns opponents (save vs poison or be stunned 2-6 rounds). Statistics: SZ M (5' tall), AC 6, HD 6, INT: Average. LEVEL/XP: 4 / 230 +6/hp

Yellow (pale yellow caps): These foresters are the main defenders of a colony. They can emit a dense 20'-diameter spore cloud that reduces chance of missiles hitting by 2, and absorbs up to 6 levels of spells before dissipating. Statistics: SZ M (5' tall), AC 6, HD 6, INT: Very. LEVEL/XP: 4 / 230 +6/hp

Black (dark black caps): The legendary spore fathers, only one or two such ancient foresters exist per colony. In addition to being larger and tougher, the spore fathers can emit both the blue and the yellow spore clouds. Statistics: SZ L (7' tall), AC 4; HD 8; Dmg 4-16, INT: High. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 650 + 10/hp

FUNGAL MUMMY

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M or L

MOVE: 60'

AC: 1

HD: 8 or 12

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 1-10/1-10

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 80%

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

8 HD: 7 / 1,150 + 12/hp

12 HD: 8 / 3,450 + 16/hp

TREASURE: 1-8k cp (10%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-8k ep (15%), 1-6k gp (50%), 1-10 gems (30%), 1-6 jewelry (25%), any 2 magic items + 1 potion (15%)

LOCATION: 3-174

Fungal Mummies are unusual undead created by priests or magic users with an unhealthy interest in flora, particularly fungi. Although wrapped in the usual mummy wraps, fungal mummies possess a spongy fungoid 'flesh' that is a sickly green hue. They attack with their hands via slow, but heavy blows. Their slowness ensures that they act last each round.

An aura of fear surrounds the fungal mummy in a 10' radius; all those within it must save versus spells or flee in terror at maximum movement for 1-6 rounds. Their mycelium-infused flesh renders them immune to all but magical weapons. The flesh also reduces damage by -2 for each hit suffered by any weapon. Fungal mummies turn as spectres.

Their heads are covered with crowns of tiny mushrooms that explode outward when the fungal mummy is hit, infecting those in a 10' radius who fail a save versus poison. The infection leads to madness in 2-4 days, with the afflicted person believing he/she is some sort of mushroom. Fungal mummies are susceptible to fire, and magical fire does an extra +2 damage/die. Burning oil does an extra 1-6 damage the first round, and an extra 1-4 for each subsequent round. The nutty smell of the cooking fungus is actually quite pleasant.

FUNGAL RENDER

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (15' tall)

MOVE: 30'

AC: 9

HD: 12

ATTACKS: 6

DAMAGE: See below

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Crush

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Regeneration

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 95%

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,900 + 16/hp

TREASURE: 3-24 cp, 3-18 sp, 2-12 ep, 2-8 gp, 1-6 pp, 1-4 gems (50%) in lair

LOCATION: 9-83

A fungal render is a mushroom of vast magnitude with ten tendrils that extend from the cap, which it uses to tear apart its food. The trunk is flexible and sways to avoid blows. Fungal renders can grow up to 20' tall, but most average around 15'. Their caps are a dark purple, their trunks and tendrils a dark red, and their lamellae a dark orange. When uprooted, twelve thick, root-like black tendrils support the lumbering mushroom. Upon its trunk are rows of argent spots, which the render uses as primitive eyes.

A fungal render attacks with its ten tendrils, using only six during each round. If only one tendril hits, no damage is done, but if two or more hit the target creature takes 1-4 hit points of damage per tendril each round as the fungal render pulls its victim apart. A fungal render's tendrils are very elastic and can stretch up to three times the render's height. The chance of dislodging a tendril is equal to the chance of opening doors. A tendril is severed after receiving 10 HP of damage against AC 3. Damage to a tendril does no harm to the fungal render; only attacks against its cap, trunk, or roots can slay a render.

When reduced to 10 HP or fewer, a fungal render will throw itself upon its attackers in a devastating crush attack dealing 4-24 points of damage to any creatures underneath it. Up to 3 man-sized creatures can be attacked in this manner. It takes a fungal render 2 rounds to right itself after a crush attack. During this period it can only attack with 4 of its tendrils, as the others are occupied by setting itself upright.

A fungal render heals quickly, regaining 2 hit points per turn. One severed tendril can be regenerated over the same period of time. A fungal render can only detect creatures within 50 feet of its stalk via its light detecting "eyes," and it will only pursue fleeing prey for a short time (three rounds) before losing interest and returning to its favored location.

GHOST, ARCHONTEAN ANIMATING

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 8 or 2

HD: 8

ATTACKS: None

DAMAGE: None

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 850 + 10/hp

TREASURE: 1-20k sp (10%), 1-12k ep (15%), 1-10k gp (40%), 100-800 pp (35%), 3-30 gems (20%), 1-10 jewelry (10%), any 3 magic items except swords or misc. weapons, + 1 potion + 1 scroll (30%)

LOCATION: 9-134

Archontean animating ghosts are similar to normal ghosts in that they are primarily ethereal, being visible only as a vague form on the Prime Material Plane. While ethereal they are impervious to attacks from those on the Prime Material Plane; however, those on the Ethereal Plane can hit them normally (in which case their AC is 8). An animating ghost has no attack form, but is capable of animating stone statues or figurines within its tomb or graveyard. It enters such a stone figure directly from the Ethereal Plane, and take one round to animate it. While animated, the GM should decide which type of Archontean animated construct the statue or figurine most resembles and use the statistics provided there. While animated, the construct gains the 25% magic resistance of its animator. Experience should be awarded for each animated construct destroyed.

To exit the figure, a ghost must become semi-material for a round. In this semi-material state it is AC 2, but is still protected by magic resistance and its immunity to non-magical weapons. After this one round in a semi-material state it re-enters the Ethereal Plane for 1-2 rounds before turning to animate another stone figure. Thus, aside from ethereal attacks, a ghost is only vulnerable in the single round after exiting a stone figure. Animating ghosts dissipate if all statues or figurines within their tomb or graveyard are destroyed.

GHOU L ORD

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 4

HD: 6+6

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 1-6/1-6/1-10

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Paralyzation

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 40%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 65%

INTELLIGENCE: Very

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 6/ 545 + 8/hp

TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)

LOCATION: SL13-10J

These foul creatures are stronger, faster, and more intelligent ghouls, and thus are found leading packs of ordinary ghouls and ghouls. Their greater intelligence allows them to direct their lesser brethren, and they delight in plotting traps for those unwary souls that venture into their hidden crypts. They attack with claws and bite, and their touch causes paralyzation in all humans and humanoids (save elves). They possess strong magic resistance as well as being completely immune to sleep and charm. They are turned as spectres.

GIMON (GEE-mon)

FREQUENCY: Unique

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M

MOVE: 60'/150' flying (Class D)

AC: 7

HD: 6 (40 HP)

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Cannot be surprised, immune to cold

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 540

TREASURE: 1-4 gems (50%) (x3)

LOCATION: 6-167

Gimon is a human adventurer cursed (or blessed?) by his possession of an idol of Camazotz (see new magic items). Due to the curse, he has been transformed into a part-bat, part-human creature. He appears as a naked, skinny man with black hair and elongated, skinny limbs. Silvery-grey batwings connect his arms to his back and sides. His feet and hands are now claws, and he possesses impressive fangs. His eyes glow in a primal red color. His clawed feet and hands allow him to scramble along the walls of the Great Chasm with surprising quickness, and he can also echolocate by uttering a shrill bat-like cry. His hearing is so enhanced he cannot be surprised.

Gimon carries two daggers attached by straps to his wrists; in combat he uses these for 1-4 damage each. He can also bite (1-6). Camazotz's 'gift' has also rendered him partially immune to magic.

Gimon is not exactly sane, but nor is he an animal or evil: he flies about, seeking food in the form of animals or monsters. Occasionally his residual altruism kicks in and he will act to aid a good party that is in distress.

GOLD SCARAB BEETLES, SMALL

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-24

SIZE: S (2")

MOVE: 60'/120' flying (Class C)

AC: 0 or 6

HD: 2

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 1-4

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Burrow

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 3 / 140 + 1/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 5-43

Created by the ancient sorcerers of the cult of Thoth, these constructs are shaped out of gold and ivory to resemble scarab beetles. Designed as part of a complex lock for an important vault, they were commanded to attack any who did not follow the correct procedure in opening the vault door.

They attack as a 4 HD creature, seeking exposed flesh and inflicting a sharp bite (1-4 HP) before burrowing into flesh (and doing an automatic 2-4 HP damage per subsequent round). Their small size provides them with a low AC when they are scuttling or flying, although that AC rises to 6 for the first two rounds that they are attached to human flesh. Burrowing gold scarabs can be extracted by digging them out (painfully inflicting another 1-4 HP damage in the process).

Gold scarab beetles take full damage from blunt weapons, but only ½ damage from slashing or piercing attacks. They are immune to all magic effects, but casting dispel magic on them instantly renders them inoperable; doing the same to a flying swarm of them disables 3-6 of the constructs per casting. If not too badly damaged, inoperable scarabs are worth 50 gp each.

GOLD SCARAB BEETLES, LARGE

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: S (5")
MOVE: 60'/90' flying (Class C)
AC: 2 or 6
HD: 5
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Burrow
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 5/ 315 + 4/hp
TREASURE: See below
LOCATION: 5-43

This larger version of the small gold scarab beetles is 5" in diameter. It functions in the same way, although it has more HD, is slightly easier to hit, and attacks as a 10 HD creature.

GREEN FRENEMY

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L
MOVE: 0'
AC: 8
HD: 4 per 10<sup>2</sup>-square section
ATTACKS: 8 per 10<sup>2</sup>-square section
DAMAGE: 1-3 (x8)
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 3/ 146 + 3/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL5-29

A mutated form of the algae known as the green friend (see new flora), this dangerous plant is able to sense movement and lash out with sticky, toxic fronds. The bubble-like pods on the fronds are filled with a toxic sap (unlike the normal green friend), which splash upon victims when the fronds strike.

Specimens of the green frenemy are typically measured in how many 10'x10'x10' sections of space they cover; each section is worth 4 HD and can attack eight times per round. The toxic sap from each frond inflicts 1-3 HP damage. Because it looks so much like the green friend, those familiar with the green friend are likely (4 in 6) to be surprised by the green frenemy.

GREQILLAP THE UNDYING (GREHK-ill-ap)

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (25')
MOVE: 90'/120' flying (Class A)
AC: 0
HD: 16 (128 HP)
ATTACKS: 4
DAMAGE: 2-12/2-12/2-12/2-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 45%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 5%
INTELLIGENCE: Exceptional
ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil
LEVEL/XP: 10 / 30,000 (material form only)
TREASURE: 10-40k gp (50%), 100-2,000 pp (50%), 5-20 gems (30%), 1-10 jewelry (25%), any 4 magic items + 1 scroll (15%)
LOCATION: SL9-24

Greqillap, one of the eleven senior servitors of the alien entity Mzingaloq (mm-ZING-a-lock), waits in Dripping Lyaeltok for the return of its lord. Greqillap appears as a 25'-tall, columnar being of rippling, putrid-green, rubbery matter. It possesses but a single, massive, slug-like foot. Four appendages with wings made of filmy membranes radiate from the central body. The top of the columnar body (i.e., the head) is a constantly shifting form of sickly green matter; the head shifts through any number of forms resembling any and all of the entities that Greqillap has consumed in its millennia-long existence: these include recognizable demonic, human, animal, and elemental forms, as well as a frightening variety of completely alien 'things'. Due to the shifting 'head', Greqillap's voice also shifts in tone, timbre, and volume. Despite its awkward size and shape, Greqillap is remarkably mobile, and is able to fly, levitate, and stomp across whatever lies in its path.

The sight of its terrible form causes fear in a 30' radius. It attacks by shooting 5'-thick ropes of its cytoplasmic body at any foe within 30'; these ropes inflict 2-12 HP damage each, and also bind the victim in the gluey matter of Greqillap. Unless a save versus paralysis is successfully made, on the subsequent round the rope pulls the unfortunate victim back into the main columnar mass, where Greqillap's alien body inflicts 3-18 damage per round until the victim is utterly consumed. For every comrade who spends a round attempting to pull an ensnared victim free, the victim receives a +1 bonus to the saving throw.

Greqillap can only be hit by +2 weapons or better, and is immune to charm, hold, fire, cold, and all mind-affecting spells; it takes half damage from electric attacks. Greqillap has infravision and ultravision, and can use the following abilities at will, as often it likes: detect magic, detect invisible, teleport without error, telekinesis (10,000 gp weight).

Note: Summoning Greqillap is almost certainly foolhardy, for it is extremely powerful and antithetical to the races of the Prime Material Plane. It is most difficult to communicate with Greqillap, for it comprehends only its own tongue (the tongue of Mzingaloq), and a proto-archaic form of the LE alignment tongue. Those who know LE are able to recognize 50% of Greqillap's words (and vice versa). Even if communication is possible, a supplicant must have prepared eleven live sacrifices (of sentient beings) in order for Greqillap to not instantly attack the summoner. After consuming the eleven sacrifices, Greqillap will answer several questions. Offering the sacrifices to Greqillap, of course, constitutes an evil act. Information about Mzingaloo and Greqillap is extraordinarily rare; only a handful of the most ancient texts describe these alien 'gods', and those texts are carefully guarded treasures of the Order of Thoth in its headquarters in Archontos. One such ancient text is On the Terrible Old Gods, by Sarquin of Archontos (see Arden Vul books); only nine copies exist, but several are located in Arden Vul.

GUARDIAN OF THOTH

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 5

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Shriek

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral

LEVEL/XP: 3 / 80 + 3/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 3-23A, 3-40A, 3-40B, 3-40C, 3-72

Guardians of Thoth are ibis-headed bipedal creatures from an outer plane who are dedicated to serving Thoth. Priests of Thoth can summon them to the Prime Material Plane, usually to serve as guardians of locations or secrets. Although not undead, they are patient like undead and require no sustenance for long periods of time. Guardians can come in various shapes and sizes, but most commonly appear as spindly humanoid forms with a white ibis head. The arms end in claw-like hands, which rend for 1-4 damage each. The beak is sharp and can deal 1-6 damage.

The most feared feature of the guardian, however, is its shriek. Three times per day a guardian can utter a mind-twisting shriek that twists the senses of mortal listeners within a 50' radius with its alien notes and rhythm. Those with unblocked ears must make a save versus petrification or be disoriented for 1-4 rounds. Disoriented characters cannot attack or cast spells, but may stumble away in terror. In addition, three times per day a Guardian can impose darkness as per the spell. This is a spell-like ability. Favored tactics of the guardian include imposing darkness, then shrieking, and then moving in to attack.

GUARDIAN OF THOTH, GREATER

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3

SIZE: L

MOVE: 120'

AC: 0

HD: 8

ATTACKS: 4 or 1

DAMAGE: 1-8/1-8/1-8/1-8 or 1-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Fear, stun

SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 20%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,250 + 10/hp

TREASURE: None (see below)

LOCATION: UP-introduction, TS-13, 8-147B

Greater Guardians of Thoth are stronger and more powerful exemplars of the common guardian of Thoth (q.v.). An extraplanar race, these entities are bound in service to the great god for eternity; unlike their lesser brethren, Greater guardians were bound to guard only the most holy or secret of Thothian sites. Greater guardians can appear in a variety of guises, although those who have been encountered generally appeared as spindly humanoids with four arms and a baboon head. Greater guardians customarily employ a weapon in each hand (usually curved swords, as tulwars); there is a 25% that one of the four tulwars is magical (+1 or +2, with an additional 33% chance of further abilities).

Greater guardians vocalize constantly in a low monotone (in their own alien language); this alien muttering serves to instill fear in all but the most hardy (save vs spells at -2; worshippers of Thoth are not affected). Twice per day greater guardians can interrupt their vocalizations to bark out a command at an extreme volume. This bark acts as a power word stun, albeit with slight differences in the duration of the stun effect: creatures with 1-30 HP remaining are stunned for 3-12 rounds; 31-60 HP for 2-8 rounds; 61-90 HP for 1-4 rounds; and those with more than 90 HP are unaffected.

Greater guardians may teleport without error twice a day and are immune to non-magical weapons.

HARVEST LORD

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 4

HD: 6+6

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 2-12/2-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil

LEVEL/XP: 5 / 345 +8/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: SL13-10F

Harvest Lords are incarnations of the harvest, summoned by the priests of forest and agricultural deities to punish those interfering with the autumn rituals of harvest. They appear as bipeds dressed in black, with glowing globes of orange fire around their hands. Their faces are typically formed from a variety of autumn produce – corn, potatoes, cranberries, etc. They usually appear with coal-black steeds, on which they ride around punishing those who break with ancient custom. They attack by hurling globes of orange fire from each hand for 2-12 HP damage per globe. There is a 10% chance that a fire attack will ignite flammables on a target.

Priests of Fenth (see World of Archontos appendix) are particularly known to favor the summoning of harvest lords.

HEQETI (heh-KETT-ee)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-18 (40-400 in lair)

SIZE: M

MOVE:

Hoppers: 60'/150' swimming

Chosen: 60'/150' swimming

Builders: 90'/120' swimming

Weavers: 120'/90' swimming

AC: 5, or less with armor (see below)

HD: 2 or more

ATTACKS: 1 or 2

DAMAGE: By weapon, at +1 damage due to strength (all); bite for 1-6 damage (hoppers, chosen)

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 25%

INTELLIGENCE: Low to genius

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: Variable

TREASURE: 2-12 ep, 2-8 gp, 1-6 pp individuals; 1-3k cp (20%), 1-4k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-4k gp (30%), 100-600 pp (30%), 10-60 gems (55%), 5-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (50%) in lair

LOCATION: 4-74, 6-51, 6-59, 6-104, 6-106, 7-33, 7-78-82, 8-25, 9-76, 9-78, 9-81, Level 10, SL4-34, SL5-7

Heqeti are an ancient race of subterranean amphibianoids. They once inhabited coastal seas but were driven underground with the rise of human and demi-human populations. Knowledge of them is mostly lost to the surface folk.

Although significant variations exist in how the different types of heqeti appear, all resemble, to one extent or another, bipedal salamanders. Their torso is longer than that of humans, and roughly tubular; they have short, but very powerful legs, and longer arms. They have vestigial tails, and a head/neck that pivots 90-degrees from the torso. Their heads resemble slightly flattened bullets, with a rounded snout, slit eyes and slit ears set well back from the edge of the snout, and an oversized, sharp-toothed maw. Typically their skin is coal black, flecked with orange or yellows spots, although some heqeti (particularly the Chosen) have white bellies. Their pebbled hide glistens with a mucous sheen that is toxic to surface dwellers (save or be paralyzed for 1-2 rounds). Their speech takes the form of shrill piping, a fact that is usually unsettling to those expecting a deeper set of croaks.

Heqeti communities still exist beneath the surface of the earth, typically centered on one of their pebbled, oily, granite-and-soapstone ziggurats. These blasphemous mounds are the center of their cultic rituals, in which they beseech their deities, Rimmaq-Isfet the Devourer, and the demon-prince Kauket (q.v.), to grant them racial vengeance against their ancient oppressors. Blood sacrifice is common on such ziggurats, and is perhaps a reason why the heqeti did not fare well in the era of human domination.

Ordinary heqeti hoppers act as level 2 fighters and have 2-6 HD. The more advanced heqeti, however, possess class levels as fighters, thieves, clerics, magic users, monks, fighter/magic users, fighter/clerics, or cleric/magic users. Their number of HD varies by their class(es). The Great Tongue, a high-level weaver, administers each heqeti ziggurat with the assistance of other classed heqeti.

Heqeti can reproduce in one of two ways: either in an amphibian mode in their hidden birthing pools, or as mammals with most other kinds of humanoid. The former tends to produce hoppers, while the latter is responsible for the majority of builders and weavers. The heqeti come in several variants:

Hoppers: These heqeti are the most salamander-like in appearance, with powerful, bowed legs, only a quasi-erect stance, and huge, toothed maws. They tend to be less intelligent and employed for their brute strength. Due to their squat legs, they can 'hop' up to 20' every other round; this acts as a charge, with an additional +1 to hit. If using a spear when hopping, the spear will do double damage. If weaponless, the hopper will attempt to bowl over the victim, who must save vs. paralysis or be knocked over for 1-2 rounds. Hoppers tend to have 2-6 HD, and are classed as fighters although a few are classed as monks.

Chosen of Kauket (or 'the Chosen'): These heqeti look like ordinary hoppers, but are significantly more dangerous. They are more intelligent, and use more advanced tactics to separate and knock down their foes. They also possess amphibian tongues that they can use to strike an opponent up to 15' away; if it hits, the tongue inflicts 1-6 acid damage on the victim. The chosen tend to have 6-12 HD, and are classed as fighters or thieves.

Builders: These heqeti appear more humanoid than the chosen or the hoppers. Their legs are still clearly amphibian-oid, but lack the strength to hop. Their legs do allow them to walk more erectly, and hence more swiftly on dry land. Their heads are still amphibian-oid, having slit ears and noses, but are more proportionate to the rest of their bodies. Due to their higher intelligence, builders are the heqeti who tend to rise to leadership positions; they also work the smithies and direct the building of all structures and objects of heqeti 'civilization.' They range in HD from 4-12, and are classed as fighters, thieves, fighter-magic users (max F12/MU5), or fighter-clerics (max F12/C9). For purposes of clerical bonus spells, builders have WIS 16.

Weavers of Kauket: These heqeti are the most magically adept of the heqeti. They are also the most humanoid in appearance, with the least amphibian-like legs and the most 'mammalian' heads and faces. Despite this fact, their faces are still flattened, with slit-noses and slightly too-large mouths. Weavers are either clerics of Kauket or Rimmaq-Isfet, magic users (max MU9), or true 'weavers' (i.e., cleric/magic users of max C10/MU9). For purposes of clerical bonus spells, weavers have WIS 16. Great Tongues are exclusively weavers, individually chosen by Kauket, and blessed with the capability to exceed level limits of other weavers; they also effectively have WIS 18 for the purpose of bonus spells.

Equipment, Combat, and Special Abilities: Heqeti prefer spears of whatever variety, ranging from simple stone-tipped spears to elaborate works of ebony and steel. They may also use throwing javelins, daggers, and jagged clubs. Due to their strength, damage is always +1. Hoppers eschew armor, but builders may craft armor out of hide or simple mail; their hide armor subtracts 1-2 from AC, while their mail subtracts 1-4 from AC.

Due to their speed, dexterity and tough hides, they possess good natural armor (AC 5). They are good swimmers, but are perfectly at home out of the water. Their skin is, as mentioned above, toxic to surface-dwellers (save vs. paralysis or be paralyzed for 1-2 rounds). They possess infravision. They are immune to all water-based spells (including ice), as well as to charm, sleep, and hold. Heqeti are particularly vulnerable to fire, saving at -2 vs. fire spells and taking +1 damage per die. They are also spooked by bright light (such as that produced by light or continual light), and act at -1 in such conditions. They are resistant to psionic attacks, even if they have never developed psionic ability themselves.

Relations with other Species: The heqeti have an undying hatred of humans that will be hard to overcome for any humans who encounter them. Such hatred extends to human equipment, dwellings, and materiel; heqeti are just as likely to destroy any human equipment as they are to use it. The only exceptions to this rule concern necklaces, rings and magical spears or daggers; the former hold a great attraction to heqeti, who love to adorn every part of their body with such trinkets, while the latter are gathered for possible use by builders, weavers, and the chosen. Their hatred of humans extends in most cases to demi-humans, although dwarves are exempt from that feeling. A few other subterranean races form grudging, temporary alliances with the heqeti; otherwise, the heqeti are inimical towards most other races, whether subterranean or surface-dwellers.

Within Arden Vul the heqeti despise all other factions, as they consider them all to be usurpers of ancestral territory belonging to the heqeti; they bear particular hatred for the varumani and for anyone dressed in ancient imperial field plate armor. The only exception to their universal antipathy would be the kaliyani, if, that is, the heqeti were aware of their return to Arden Vul. Even then, although often allied with the kaliyani in the Undereath, the heqeti would be suspicious of the motives of the kaliyani in returning to Arden Vul.

HEQETI, HOPPING DEAD

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-12

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: 5

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 1-8 or by weapon (stone spear, 1-6)

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Leap, cursed tongue

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP:

Standard: 3 / 95 + 2/hp

Old Ones: 6 / 585 +8/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 2-49, 4-151A, 7-78, 7-139, 9-36, 9-108A, 9-111A, 9-112A, 9-115, SL9-30

These foul undead are created by heqeti weavers (q.v.). They appear as skeletons, albeit as some sort of cross between a biped and an amphibian (large thigh bones, crouching demeanor, exaggerated mouths). They typically attack either with a two-fisted smash or with a crude stone spear; a few special varieties employ short bows with poisoned arrows. Their eyes glow with an unholy light that ranges across the spectrum from blue to red. The hopping dead can leap up to 30' in any direction (including upwards). Doing so gives them a +2 bonus to hit, and may result in the target being knocked down (25% chance, less 5% for every point of STR above 12). Once every other round a hopping dead can project a sickly green beam of energy from its mouth; the beam resembles a tongue and has a range of 15'. If the beam hits, the unholy tongue inflicts 1-6 acid damage and burns a permanent mark on the victim's skin, lowering the target's CHA by 1 point cumulatively. The marks may only be removed with a remove curse spell. Hopping dead target the faces of their enemies with their tongues.

Hopping dead are turned as ghastrs. They suffer full damage from blunt weapons, but only ½ damage from piercing and edged weapons. They are immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold-based spells. Holy water does 2-8 HP damage to them.

A more powerful type of hopping dead, called 'Old Ones' by the heqeti, exists. These greater hopping dead have the following statistics: AC 3; HD 6+6; #AT 1; DMG 3-12; leap, cursed tongue; these types are turned as spectres. Old ones may wield enchanted stone spears. The hopping dead found on Level 9 are of this more powerful variety.

HEQETI, OLD FATHER

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 90'
AC: 0 (or 6)
HD: 10+3; HP 71
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: See below
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +2 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
INTELLIGENCE: Genius
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 8 / 4,194
TREASURE: 300-1,800 pp (30%), 2-20 gems (55%), 1-12 jewelry (50%), any 1 magic item (15%)
LOCATION: 9-126

The Old Father is the undead spirit form of an ancient heqeti Great Tongue slain when the rudishva destroyed the heqeti habitations on Level 9. The Old Father's evil is very great, and serves to animate the lesser undead of the canyon area (9-109 to 9-126).

The Old Father exists most of the time in an ethereal state (AC 6 on the Ethereal Plane). In this state it can afflict one victim in the Prime Material per round with the equivalent of a maze spell. As per the spell, victims get a save; if the save is made, that victim cannot be affected by the heqeti Old Father's maze effect until a turn has passed.

After inflicting maze on as many victims as possible, the Old Father semi-materializes (AC 0 on both the Ethereal and Material Planes) and attempts to drain the life force from the victims; its touch while semi-materialized drains two experience levels.

Should its remains be discovered and hallowed (by the new spell or by sprinkling holy water on them), the Old Father's power is weakened; the duration of maze attacks is halved, as is the number of experience levels drained per hit. If the Old Father's remains are not hallowed, it cannot permanently be slain by regular means; even if reduced to zero hit points it will reconstitute in 4-8 days. The Heqeti Old Father is turned as a lich, and may only be hit by +2 weapons or better.

HEQETI, OLD ONES

See heqeti hopping dead.

HUGO BERRYDRAW

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 150'
AC: 0
HD: 8; HP 48
ATTACKS: 2, or 1
DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4 or by staff
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Level drain
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,730
TREASURE: See below
LOCATION: 5-9

This unique undead entity is the embodied spirit of the notoriously malicious folk-'hero', Hugo Berrydraw. Hugo was known – and is still known today in numerous folktales – for his love of alcohol in all its forms and for his cupidity and lust. Despite possessing a gift for humor, it was always of the cruel sort, as he delighted in humiliating others. In unlife, Hugo is just as malicious, reveling in using his staff of fermentation and horn of carousing (see new magic items for both), as well as his undead abilities to inflict pain and humiliation on the living.

He appears as a 5'-tall human with thick fingers, a potbelly, copious mustaches, and glittering, hard eyes. His touch drains an experience level from those he hits. He is immune to elemental attacks and normal weapons (only +1 or better weapons hit him), and he turns as a ghost. Drinking alcohol of any kind, or even having it poured over him, restores 2-7 HP per quart.

HULDUGRITTI (hull-doo-GRIT-ee)

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-4
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120' or 60'
AC: 0 or 2
HD: 8+8
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 2-16/2-16
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Hurl boulders (2-8)
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Semi
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,000 + 12/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 8-87, 8-89-94, 9-138, SL13-34

Hailing from the elemental plane of earth, these creatures are greatly feared by subterranean explorers, as much for their variable forms as for the inscrutable motives. Huldugritti can take one of two forms, an ethereal, insubstantial 'spirit' form (similar to that of an invisible stalker) and a stone form that physically resembles that of a stone golem. Huldugritti are only found on the Prime Material Plane in areas with rich mineral deposits – mines, mostly. There they flit about in their spirit forms, feeding on rock dust and other microscopic bits of ore. If a huldugritti feels threatened, however, it can instantly blend into neighboring rock and emerge in rock form, ready to fight.

In spirit form, huldugritti are difficult to detect without use of magic. Typically the presence of a spirit-form huldugritti is only recognized after the entity has blended with the local stone, but some explorers claim that they can detect the invisible huldugritti as temporary bursts of moving air; it is also true that any with the ability to detect the invisible will see spirit-form huldugritti as man-sized, bipedal wisps of moving air.

In spirit form, the huldugritti is unable to attack, but is difficult to hit (AC 0). As with all invisible entities, PCs swinging at an unrevealed huldugritti are at -4 to hit.

In stone form, the huldugritti is slower (60') and is slightly easier to hit (AC 2), but is also able to strike opponents with two large stone fists (2-16/2-16). In addition, a huldugritti in stone form can pull chunks of rock from any convenient location (wall, ceiling, floor) and hurl the rock bits up to 30'; these 'boulders' inflict 2-8 HP damage if they hit. Finally, at any point a huldugritti in stone form can meld its body back into an appropriate type of stone, thereby curing itself of 3-24 HP damage; the huldugritti must then assume spirit form for a minimum of 1 turn before it is able to again assume stone form.

As magical, elemental beings, huldugritti in whatever form have a certain degree of magic resistance, and can only be hit by +1 or better weapons; they are also immune to certain types of damage (fire and electricity) and to all mind-affecting spells.

The society of huldugritti is unknown, and indeed there is some debate among sages about whether or not the creatures are intelligent. They cannot be communicated with using normal speech. Although not necessarily aggressive when first encountered, huldugritti typically revert to rock form within 2-8 rounds so as to protect their feeding grounds.

ICHOR OF RIMMAQ-ISFET (RIM-mack ISS-fett)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1, but may subdivide

SIZE: L (600 lb)

MOVE: 60'

AC: 5, although some spawn may inhabit armor

HD: 12 or 16 HD, divisible into 4HD spawn

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 1-6/1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 30%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP:

12 HD: 8 / 3,600 + 16/hp

16 HD: 9 / 7,300 + 20/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 5-14, 7-109, 9-46, SL1-9, SL2-2

The ichor of Rimmaq-Isfet is thought to be an extrusion of Rimmaq-Isfet himself, and as such is found in temples or shrines to the chaotic evil god. Examples of the ichor take the form of noxious black sludge. The sludge can form itself into any shape, and if the shape is bipedal, it can walk and move in a jerky fashion. The ichor can form pseudopods, fanged mouths and many other nasty forms. The ichor may also subdivide into 4HD spawn, which share all the features of the larger whole (save for reduced HD).

Specimens of the ichor Rimmaq-Isfet can only strike with two of their pseudopods (or limbs if in bipedal form). If both hit the same target, they link together and crush their foe (1-10 additional damage); this crushing damage is automatic in the first round, but in subsequent rounds the trapped creature can try to roll 3d8 under STR to escape.

The touch of the ichor is caustic to denizens of the Prime Material Plane, and causes 1-4 damage per round to those being crushed and even to those hit in combat. The ichor will completely obliterate all organic matter if permitted to do so; this takes a number of hours equal to the HD of the entity to be devoured. Creatures slain by a specimen of the ichor will thus be devoured unless rescued by friends or allies. The ichor can only be hit by magic weapons and is immune to acid and cold; it takes 1-8 damage from purify water spells.

IMPERIAL STONE GUARDIAN

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6

SIZE: L (8' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: -2

HD: 8+3

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 3-18/3-18

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,400 + 12/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: AV-27, TS-17, 5-61, 8-107, 8-147G, 9-98, SL6-55, SL11-7, SL13-8, SL13-21, SL14-2

These fearsome sentinels were created by the archmages of the ancient empire for the defense of imperial palaces and strongholds. Their appearance can vary, ranging between simple, roughly-humanoid lumps of stone to finely-carved statues. In the past they were given specific commands concerning defense, and those that remain active are 90% likely to be engaged in fulfilling these millennia-old orders (the other 10% have gone 'insane' and move randomly, dealing destruction wherever they go).

The guardians' attack form is simple: bludgeoning with their massive stone fists or clubs. Their true threat lies in the array of magical defenses placed on them, for they can only be hit by enchanted weapons (+2 or better) and are immune to all spells save transmute rock to mud (which slows them 50% for 2-12 rounds), stone to flesh (which renders them vulnerable to normal, nonmagical weapons for 1-3 rounds), and mud to rock (which restores all lost hit points). In addition, imperial stone guardians enjoy permanent protection from normal missiles.

The secret of making imperial stone guardians is long lost, and Archontean mages are even now engaged in research designed to recover the lost formula. Unbeknownst to those mages, one surviving treatise outlining the creation of imperial stone guardians may still be found within Arden Vul: the Art of Becoming, by Varix the Archmage (see SL14-4 and Arden Vul books). The process outlined by Varix is complex, and resembles that for the creation of stone golems. A magic user of at least 14th level must expend 1,000 gp per HP (minimum 50,000 gp) and spend two months of labor in order to create the guardian. The wizard must employ special concrete, into which has been mixed a dram of blood from an Archontean citizen and the ground-up bones of an Archontean soldier who fell defending the empire from attacking foes. The magic user must also cast limited wish, polymorph any object, geas, and protection from normal missiles.

The remaining stone guardians at Arden Vul are few, most having been destroyed in the war of the Theosophs and Sortians. Several still patrol the bailey of the donjon, and another handful may be encountered within the dungeon levels. The Imperial Palace at Archontos is said to be defended by four detachments (24) of the guardians.

KALIYANI (kahl-ee-YAWN-ee)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 5-12, or 40-400

SIZE: M (8' long)

MOVE: 150' on six legs, 60' upright

AC: 6

HD: 4, or by class

ATTACKS: 2 or 3

DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4, or by weapon (scimitars at 3-8, daggers at 2-5, javelins at 2-7). Kaliyani who possess a blasting rod may use it as a third attack, as they hold it in their middle set of hands.

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to poison, immune to mind spells

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 5%

INTELLIGENCE: Average to high

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP: Varies

TREASURE: 2-8 gems (55%), 1-4 jewelry (50%), any 1 magic item (15%) individuals; 1-3k cp (20%), 1-4k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-4k gp (30%), 100-600 pp (30%), 10-60 gems (55%), 5-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (50%), 4-8 potions (x2) (40%), and 5-20 Kaliyani asp eggs (see new magic items) in lair

LOCATION: 4-51A, 5-125, 6-33, 8-22, 9-57, 9-116, 9-118, 10-54, Sub-Level 9

The kaliyani were already a technologically advanced race when the rudishva encountered them and incorporated them into the rudishva hegemony. The kaliyani came to serve the rudishva as intelligence and science officers; despite their status as servitors, they always looked down on the more 'primitive' and 'naturally servile' varumani and varuda. Eventually the kaliyani of the Beacon chose to betray their overlords by allying with the heqeti. The kaliyani then fled, first to Sub-Level 9 and then deeper into the Underearth, where they founded the city of Lissak-Tol. Only 20 years ago did a band of renegade kaliyani return to Arden Vul, intent on seeking lost lore.

Kaliyani are six-legged beings with a 4'-long, sinuous, relatively thin body that extends another 2' before and behind the main part of their torsos. The torso is remarkably flexible, allowing them to curl up into smaller spaces. Their heads are spade-shaped, with a slit 'nose' and four almond-yellow eyes set widely apart on either side of their head; they have infravision to 90', and their eyes glow ruby-red to others with infravision. Their mouth is full of small but sharp teeth, which are dominated by a pair of visible fangs. On their necks they possess a pair of gill-like membranes that can flare open, especially when aroused or excited.

Each set of 'legs' is about 2' long and ends in a set of digits that comprise a central pad, plus three 'fingers' and an opposable 'thumb'. Their foremost and hindmost pairs of legs are noticeably more muscular than the middle set. This means that while the kaliyani can run swiftly on all sixes for brief periods of time, they can also move about using just their hind legs. When standing erect, they move more slowly, and balance themselves with the hindmost, 'tail' section of their body. When erect, they use their forearms for melee weapons and the middle set of hands for more delicate tasks.

The flesh of the kaliyani is yellow-brown, rubbery, and slightly moist due to a mucus-like substance that coats their skin. kaliyani must regularly immerse themselves in water or other liquids, or suffer painful epidermal cracking and eventual death. A kaliyani who spends more than 3 days away from liquid (or their special moisturizing 'refreshing liquid') will take 2-8 HP damage per day until he/she dies. Kaliyani females produce clutches of eggs, which are fertilized by high status males. The lifespan of kaliyani males is 45-50 years, while that of females is 35-40 years. Kaliyani are fully grown at 4 years, although by custom the period from 5-8 years is considered 'adolescence' and such individuals are not permitted full autonomy.

In antiquity the kaliyani favored wearing loose blowsy shirts and pants of a special fabric that did not dry out their skin, but lacking renewable supplies of that material in the present, they mostly eschew clothing in favor of a set of belts and straps, from which depend dozens of objects both useful and symbolic. Indeed, the kaliyani are somewhat vain, and use these belts to display small decorative objects, some of which are worked precious metals, some trophies from defeated enemies, and some simple twists and tufts of hair, fabric, or other material that have deeply personal symbolism to their wearer.

Although the kaliyani have declined over the millennia to the level of technology typical of their surroundings, they still make use of any surviving pieces of rudishva technology and still retain a collective memory of their arrival here aboard a ship of some sort. Already during the last centuries of the rudishva hegemony the kaliyani were dabbling in sorcery, and in the millennia since the betrayal, a few have become highly capable magic users. Although a few kaliyani have risen to the equivalent of 12th-level in magic use, typically kaliyani sorcerers are in the range of 4th to 8th level. Kaliyani sorcery is also limited to certain types of spells and 'schools' of magic, as described below.

Kaliyani society is highly ordered and disciplined, and organized around a series of four hierarchical axes. One axis concerns the prestige of one's egg mother: famous or ancient mothers impute instant status to their sons and daughters. An-

Kaliyani Level	HD	Spell Lvl 1	Spell Lvl 2	Spell Lvl 3	Spell Lvl 4	Spell Lvl 5	Available spells
1	4d8	1					1 st Level: Charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, identify, light, protection from evil, read magic, unseen servant, ventriloquism
2	4d8	1					1 st Level: Audible glamor, dancing lights, detect invisibility, hypnotism
3	4d8	2
4	4d8	2	1				2 nd Level: Continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, forget, knock, scare, strength
5	4d8 + 1d6	2	1				2 nd Level: Hypnotic pattern, invisibility, mirror image
6	4d8 + 2d6	3	2	1			3 rd Level: Blink, clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, infravision, invisibility 10' radius, monster summoning I, protection from evil 10' radius, protection from normal missiles, slow, tongues
7	4d8 + 3d6	3	2	1			3 rd Level: Continual darkness, dispel illusion, fear, non-detection, suggestion
8	4d8 + 4d6	3	3	1
9	4d8 + 5d6	3	3	2	1		4 th Level: Charm monster, confusion, extension I, fireball, monster summoning II, remove curse
10	4d8 + 5d6	3	3	3	1		4 th Level: Improved invisibility
11	4d8 + 5d6	4	4	3	2	1	5 th Level: Cone of cold, Contact other plane, extension II, feeblemind, monster summoning III, telekinesis
12	4d8 + 5d6	4	4	4	2	2

Note to this Table: First, certain spells are considered of different level for kaliyani than they are for regular magic users. Thus, for kaliyani, fireball is a 4th-level spell, and audible glamor is a 1st-level spell. The column of 'available spells' lists spells by their kaliyani level, not their level in the player's guide. Secondly, this table reveals that, for instance, a 3rd-level kaliyani sorcerer could cast 2 1st-level kaliyani spells, to be chosen from those spells listed in either row 2 or row 3. Similarly, a 9th-level sorcerer can cast three 1st-, three 2nd-, two 3rd-, and one 4th-level spells. The 1st-level spells are to be selected from those found in rows 2 and 3; the 2nd-level spells can be selected from those in rows 5 and 6; the 3rd-level spells can be selected from those in rows 7 and 8, while the lone 4th-level spell can only be chosen from those listed in row 10. At 10th level of experience, the same sorcerer would also be able to select his/her 4th-level spell from those found in row 11 (i.e. improved invisibility).

other important axis involves intelligence and psionic ability; the strongest individuals, regardless of birth, are wisely treated with respect and fear. A third axis concerns a kaliyani membership in one of the eleven consortia that dominate kaliyani society (see below): some consortia, by virtue of their political success, the quality of their deeds, or the respect of their magister, have more power and influence in kaliyani society. Finally, individual achievement, as marked by class and level, provides the last axis of kaliyani social status.

The consortia govern kaliyani society. Only eleven consortia can exist at any one time, although it is possible – even common – for a consortium to dissolve upon the death of its master or through a series of political or military mistakes. New consortia form around those dynamic, charismatic, and psionically adept aspirant magisters who can successfully attract a minimum of three magistra to their side (and who are willing to neuter themselves). Consortia are governed somewhat autocratically by a magister, a psionically-powerful male kaliyani; as magisters must be eunuchs, it is usually only when an aspirant has collected promises of support that he takes the last step necessary to proclaim a new consortium.

Although consortia are governed by a eunuch male magister, most policy is determined by a group of 3, 5, or 7 female magistra, whose support the magister must attract and retain, and whose duty it is to advise the magister on all matters. The remainder of the consortium is composed both of ordinary kaliyani and classed kaliyani NPCs. It is possible, moreover, for an aspirant magister to challenge the leader of an existing magister for control of his organization. In such challenges the aspirant must have the public support of at least three magistra and must defeat his rival in a public psionic duel. If the aspirant wins, he establishes his own consortium and the members of the former consortium are free to seek membership in any of the consortia. The kaliyani currently in Arden Vul have broken with tradition in two ways, first by failing to respect the customary limit of eleven consortia, and second by allowing a female magistra (Tsilliv, see SL9-77) to govern her 'Twelfth Consortium'

Collective matters are determined by a Conclave of the Eleven, that is, by regular meetings of the eleven magisters.

The kaliyani have a strongly xenophobic outlook, considering nearly all other peoples to be inferior and suitable only as slaves or meat. Despite their historic and fateful alliance with the heqeti, they have no real love for the Kauket-worshippers, whom they consider primitive, superstitious, and chaotic. They have a historical enmity with the varumani, and have contempt for humans. The kaliyani have not traditionally been religious, although periodically a magister who has succeeded in contacting one of the princes of hell will win temporary support for some sort of devil worship.

Kaliyani have an innate capacity for psionics. That means that 25% of kaliyani have some psionic ability (and the 75% who don't are prohibited from leadership roles). The total psionic ability for 25% of the psionically endowed kaliyani is in the range of 50-80 points; such individuals possess only 1 attack mode, 1 defense mode, and 1-2 of the following minor disciplines: detect good/evil, detect magic, ESP, or object reading. 75% of the psionically endowed kaliyani (about 18% of the general population), are more advanced psionics, having total psionic ability scores ranging from 150-250 points (150+d100): these individuals have 3-5 attack modes, 3-5 defense modes, 3-5 minor disciplines, and 1-2 major disciplines. For these adepts, the permissible minor disciplines are: body equilibrium, cellular adjustment, clairaudience, clairvoyance, detect good/evil, detect magic, domination, empathy, ESP, hypnosis, invisibility, and precognition; the available major disciplines are fewer, namely astral projection (rare), body control, mind barring, and telepathic projection. For obvious reasons, magisters and magistra tend to be especially adept at domination and telepathic projection.

It should also be noted that rudishva and true varumani are completely immune to kaliyani psionic abilities. GM Note: if psionics are not in play, the GM should assign powerful kaliyani with the following 'spell-like' abilities: mind blast, domination, several of the detection powers, and invisibility; astral projection should be added as an actual spell available to kaliyani magic users of 11th or 12th level.

As mentioned above, the kaliyani were intrigued by the concept of magic use as encountered in Arden Vul, and over time have become partially adept at some forms of 'ordinary' magic use. Kaliyani sorcery is limited in three important ways: first, it is strongly connected to the spoken word, and thus all their spells have audible components. Second, arcenum (see new magic items) is a necessary material component for every 3rd- to 5th-level spell they cast. For each lb of arcenum, the kaliyani can successfully cast 20 spell levels (e.g., 20 five 4th-level spells, or four 3rd-level and two 4th-level spells, or any such combination). Finally, the kaliyani have found themselves unable to master some entire categories or 'schools' of magic, including necromancy. Conversely, they are especially adept at summoning and mind-affecting spells, and have developed one significant, unique magical ritual (see below). Kaliyani use those magic user and illusionist spells that they know interchangeably (that is, there is no separate illusionist class). The chart on the previous page details how many spells, and of what sort, a kaliyani sorcerer may prepare:

In addition to their limited use of traditional magic, the kaliyani have developed a potent summoning ritual. This ritual is known only to 4th-level or higher kaliyani sorcerers and, while a single individual can cast it, it is more powerful and may be achieved more quickly when two or more sorcerers work in concert. The summoning ritual takes a minimum of 3 rounds, and requires ½ lb of arcenum. The base chance for success (on the 3rd round) is 25% chance. If the ritual is not successful on the first try, the kaliyani sorcerer may continue chanting for subsequent rounds: each such round adds 5% to the chance for success, but also imposes a cumulative 5% chance for failure. For each additional kaliyani sorcerer who joins the ritual, the base chance rises by 20%. Example: two kaliyani sorcerers begin a summoning ritual. They chant for 3 rounds and expend ½ lb arcenum. After three rounds, their chance of success is 45%. If they fail on round 3, they may try again on round 4 with a 55% chance for success but also with a 5% chance of failure; chances in the fifth round are 65% for success, and 10% for failure.

If successful, the ritual summons an elemental of the desired type. If a single sorcerer initiates the ritual, the elemental will be 8HD in strength; if two sorcerers collaborate, it will be a 12 HD elemental; if three or more collaborate, the ritual summons a potent 16 HD elemental. If the ritual fails, a type I demon appears and attacks all within the vicinity (including the kaliyani).

In addition to magic users, kaliyani may advance as fighters (to level 8) and thieves (to level 10); the kaliyani knows these professions as 'soldiers' and 'scouts' respectively. HD for soldiers and scouts are as follows:

Level	HD for Soldiers	HD for Scouts
1	4d8	4d8
2	+1d10	+1d8
3
4	+1d10	+1d8
5
6	+1d10	+1d8
7
8	+1d10	+1d8
9
10	n.a.	+1d8

Example: A 7th-level soldier has 4d8+3d10 HD, whereas a 5th-level scout has 6d8 HD

Kaliyani do not wear armor, although they may employ magical defenses (rings, amulets, etc.). In combat they prefer to employ narrow-bladed scimitars, curved or serrated daggers, and barbed javelins. The kaliyani still possess a limited number of 'blasting rods' (see new technological items) that are relics from their days on the Beacon. These devices are potent, but rare.

LIZARDMAN, ELITE

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-12
 SIZE: M (7' tall)
 MOVE: 90'/150'
 AC: 4, or 3 with shield
 HD: 3+3
 ATTACKS: 3 or by weapon
 DAMAGE: 1-3/1-3/2-9, or by weapon
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
 LAIR PROBABILITY: 35%
 INTELLIGENCE: Average
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral (tending to evil)
 LEVEL/XP: 3 / 75 + 3/hp
 TREASURE: 3-24 cp, 3-18 sp, 2-12 ep, 2-8 gp individuals
 LOCATION: SL5-26, SL5-36, SL9-11, SL9-17, SL9-27, SL9-36

These elite warriors are stouter, faster, and more intelligent than their fellows. They prefer to use javelins (2-7 hp) and scavenged broad swords (3-10 HP). Due to their physical and mental advantages, the elite warriors dominate both the Skreel (Sub-Level 5) and the Lagrok (Sub-Level 9) tribe and form a special bodyguard for chief Sgraal (SL5-36) and chief Nisslok (SL9-27).

LOGOVORE

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-40
 SIZE: Varies, see below
 MOVE: 120'
 AC: 6
 HD: 2, 4, 6, 8 or 10
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: 1-6, or 2-8, or 2-12, or 3-18, or 3-24
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: 20%
 INTELLIGENCE: Low
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP:
 2 HD: 3 / 80 + 1/hp
 4 HD: 3 / 145 +3/hp
 6 HD: 5 / 280 +6/hp
 8 HD: 5 / 350 +10/hp
 10 HD: 7 / 1,200 +13/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 2-70

A pack of logovores is a fearsome thing indeed. Created by an ancient ritual that uses at its base some small animal (squirrel, monkey cub, rat etc.), the sorcerer infuses the small animal with a degree of sentience and the overwhelming desire to acquire more words. Logovores grow, and eventually spawn, by acquiring new words. Logovores grow, and eventually spawn, by acquiring new words; they acquire these words by hearing them. Hence a pack is likely to shout "Known! Known!" when it hears words it already knows, but will loudly repeat new words for the benefit of the pack. Victims who prove recalcitrant to provide new words are likely to be screamed at ("Known! KNOWN! Need New! NEED NEW!") and pelted with small objects. The cacophony of the shrieking quickly turns into a sonic assault on the senses of non-logovores, and after 2 rounds of shrieking all in range must save versus spells or be subject to a confusion spell. Eventually, after 1-4 rounds, a pack will become so frenzied that it will attack, with individual logovores attempting to bite their opponents. While individual logovores are not particularly formidable, at least when they are first spawned, the process of logos acquisition causes them to grow larger, stronger and more dangerous. When an individual logovore reaches 10HD in size, it can spawn a new 2 HD logovore once per turn, but only when a new word is acquired.

Logovores grow through the acquisition of unknown words, hence their constant shrieking "Need New!" Or "Known!" Each word spoken in the hearing of a logovore pack has a chance of being 'new' to that pack. In gauging whether or not a word is new, the GM should use his/her best judgment, although certain guidelines apply: 1) all prepositions, conjunctions, and articles are automatically known to all logovores; 2) numbers have a 90% chance of being known already; etc. In general terms, the chance that a word is known is dependent on the size of the largest individual in the pack:

Largest Individual in Pack	Chance a Word is New
2 HD (S)	80%
4 HD (M)	60%
6 HD (M)	50%
8 HD (M)	30%
10 HD (L)	10%

Note that although logovores exist as individual creatures, their vocabulary is determined by the experiences of the entire pack. Thus, the presence of a 10HD logovore in a pack ensures that it will be harder for the smaller logovores to grow, since the shared vocabulary is that much greater.

Individuals grow in size and power when the pack acquires new words.

Size of Individual Logovore	Number of New Words Needed to Grow
2 HD	15
4 HD	30
6 HD	60
8 HD	120
10 HD	N/A

When the pack has acquired enough new words for an individual logovore to grow, it immediately grows in size and gains two HD and the next level of damage die. Multiple logovores can simultaneously grow: for example, a pack containing four 2 HD logovores learns its 15th new word and all four simultaneously grow into 4 HD logovores.

The best way of dealing with logovores is to never speak around them, for then they will not commence shrieking for new words. A quiet group might thus be able to simply walk away from the pack. Magical silence, too, is an effective way to minimize their threat, for it causes all members of a pack to be at -2 to hit for the duration of the silence.

LUMEN

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3, 6, or 9
SIZE: M (4' diameter)
MOVE: 180' flying (Class A)
AC: 2
HD: 6
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-4 up to 4-16
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Blindness, attacks as a 9 HD creature
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +2 or better to hit, immune to light and optical effects
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Semi
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 5 / 350 + 6/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL1-4

Lumens are alien entities formed of oscillating electro-magnetic radiation, that is, of 'light'. Lumens can vary the intensity of their oscillation and thus pass outside of the spectrum visible to human and humanoid eyes; that is, they can take the form of ultra-violet or infrared radiation.

When encountered, lumens are equally likely (33%) to be in any of those three forms: ultra-violet, visible, or infra-red. For those unable to see ultra-violet or infra-red light, lumens are effectively invisible. They are extremely rare on the Prime Material Plane, and are generally encountered only when bound to a particular location by a powerful and unusual wizard.

Lumens can vary the wave-intensity of their forms when 'visible', thereby increasing or decreasing their 'brightness'; effectively this means that 2/per turn they can 'flash' with brilliant light that may blind unshielded viewers for 3 rounds. Although lumens are not naturally aggressive, those bound to specific locations on the Prime Material Plane tend towards aggression: some sages speculate they may be insane.

An agitated lumen attacks by passing through its victim, attacking as a 9 HD creature.; The intensity of the oscillation of their energy determines the damage that such an attack inflicts, ranging from 1-4 when irate, up to a maximum of 4-16 when seeking to kill.

Given their nature, lumens may only be hit by enchanted weapons (+2 or better), and are immune to any spell-effect that mimics light (e.g., light) or optical effects (e.g., all illusions, blindness, etc.). Darkness acts as a slow spell upon them. They are particularly susceptible to electrical attacks (+2 per damage die).

MAUBASTE (mao-BAW-stay)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 4-12
SIZE: S, M, L
MOVE: See below
AC: See below
HD: See below
ATTACKS: See below
DAMAGE: See below

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below
LAIR PROBABILITY: 80%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic neutral
LEVEL/XP: As human form + 500
TREASURE: As human form
LOCATION: 4-2 (possible), 8-31, 8-32, 8-37, 8-38

The maubaste are the magically transformed feline forms of important priestesses of the cat goddess, Bastet. Sages have spent much time considering the nature of these creatures: are they a distinct race? If so, where do they reside? Are they avatars of Bastet? Are they analogous to lycanthropes? With the decline of the cult of Bastet and the general reticence of her devotees to discuss her rituals, no answers are forthcoming.

What is known to a handful of Bastet followers is that priestesses of the cat goddess are able to transform themselves into maubaste with the help of a moon of Bastet (see new magic items). Wearing this token of Bastet's favor allows the priestess to leave human form and transform into a maubaste. Transformation is voluntary and its duration depends on the will of the priestess. Most equipment worn by a priestess drops off when she transforms; the only exceptions are her moon of Bastet necklace and any rings, earrings, or other small pieces of jewelry.

Maubaste come in three sizes. Clerics of Bastet possessing a moon of Bastet who have reached 4th level are able to transform into small maubaste, those who have reached 7th level can transform into medium maubaste, and those who have reached 9th level can transform into large maubaste.

All maubaste appear as felines of great beauty and agility. Their fur is ticked, like that of Abyssinian cats, and is typically ruddy or tawny; their eyes are yellow. Maubaste are capable of leaping up to 30', and attack with front paws and teeth; if both front claws hit, they are also able to rake with their rear claws.

All maubaste are able to mesmerize those within a 15' radius through a combination of purring and intense staring; those who fail to save vs. spells are transfixed (as per the 2nd-level illusionist spell, hypnotic pattern). Once a victim is mesmerized, the spell is broken only when the maubaste ceases to purr and/or concentrate on mesmerization. Saving throws versus mesmerization are at -1 for medium maubaste and -2 for large maubaste. Maubaste have inherent magic resistance, and, in addition, are immune to hold, charm, and illusion spells.

Maubaste retain the HD and HP of their human forms. So, for instance, a 7th-level cleric of Bastet has 7 HD and 48 HP; if she transforms into a maubaste, the maubaste will also have 7 HD and 48 HP. In maubaste form, however, the priestess would use the combat tables for monsters of the appropriate HD.

Other statistics based upon size are as follows:

Small: SZ S (3' long); MV 150'; AC 3; HD as human form; #AT 3 or 5; Dmg 1-3/1-3/2-7, plus 1-3/1-3; MR 20%.

Medium: SZ M (5'-6' long); MV 150'; AC 4; HD as human form; #AT 3 or 5; Dmg 1-4/1-4/2-9, plus 1-4/1-4; MR 30%.

Large: SZ L (9' long); MV 120'; AC 5; HD as human form; #AT 3 or 5; Dmg 1-6/1-6/2-11, plus 2-5/2-5; MR 40%.

MUD PEOPLE

FREQUENCY: Uncommon

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-5

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: 4

HD: 3-6

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 1-8/1-8

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Regeneration, half damage to edged weapons, fire and electricity

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP:

3 HD: 3 / 95 + 2/hp

4 HD: 4 / 165 + 3/hp

5 HD: 4 / 245 + 4/hp

6 HD: 5 / 370 + 6/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 3-208, SL9-6

Created by sorcerous enchantments, mud people appear as oozing, roughly man-sized mounds of mud. They cannot leave the mud from which they were born for more than ten minutes, and if the mud flats or mud pool is destroyed, the mud people are also destroyed. Mud people batter foes with their strong fists.

If both fists hit in the same round, the mud person has successfully grabbed ahold of its victim and will attempt to drag that victim into the mud, where it will drown in 4 rounds. Attempts to break free are possible, and may be made through opposed STR checks; so long as they are touching mud, however, mud people have a STR of 19. When not touching mud their STR is 12. To check STR, the victim and the mud person roll 3d6 and subtract the total from their STR: the larger result wins the check.

Mud people can also hurl blobs of hot mud up to 20'; a mud blob strikes for 1-8 damage, but also splatters, causing ½ damage to all within 5'. Mud people regenerate 2 HP/round so long as they are touching mud, but cannot regenerate once slain. Edged weapons, fire and electricity do half damage to mud people, but cold damage is doubled. Mud people vary in HD according to the ingredients used by their creators.

The formula for creating mud people is obscure and little known in the present. Still, should a magic user of 12th-level or higher locate the arcane instructions for the process, it can be done with 2 days' worth of rituals and an expenditure of 5,000 gp in rare ingredients per hit die (thus 15,000 gp for a 3 HD mud person). The magic user must then cast transmute rock to mud, reincarnation and curse. The process creates 2-5 mud people that obey the commands of their creator.

MUD WORM

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-8

SIZE: L (10' long)

MOVE: 120'

AC: 4

HD: 8

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 3-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 950 + 10/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: SL9-3

These voracious predators may be unique to the arcanum-infused mud flats that exist on SL9 of Arden Vul. Adult worms are 3' in diameter and 10' long, and have brilliant, multi-colored mottled skin thanks to the mineral-rich mud in which they live. They move swiftly through the mud, raising their fanged mouths to attack any creature that they detect.

Their bite does 3-12 damage, but also contains a corrosive acid that damages metal armor (armor class degrades by one point per successful hit) and inflicts another 1-4 damage every round for 2-4 rounds. Should a mud worm score a natural 20 to hit, the worm will have wrapped its body around its victim and will attempt to drown it in the mud. Attempts to break free are successful if 4d6 are rolled under STR.

The worms have fairly tough skin, thanks to the minerals, and a decent natural magic resistance. They are immune to acid, but particularly susceptible to lightning (each d6 of electrical damage does 4, 5, or 6 points of damage).

MUMMY, GOOD

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: Medium

MOVE: 60'

AC: 3

HD: 6+3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 1-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below

LAIR PROBABILITY: 80%

INTELLIGENCE: Average to high

ALIGNMENT: Lawful good

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 745 + 8/hp

TREASURE: 1-8k cp (10%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-8k ep (15%), 1-6k gp (50%), 1-10 gems (30%), 1-6 jewelry (25%), any 2 magic items + 1 potion (15%)

LOCATION: 4-146

These creatures are the product of direct divine intervention protecting a lawful good-aligned follower from being twisted into an undead form by evil necromantic rituals or spells. Good mummies look much as regular ones; they are wrapped in linen tomb wrappings and smell of preserving spices. Rather than a malefic demeanor, good mummies typically seem sad or resigned. They can communicate, although the wrappings render their voices a low hush. Given the unique circumstances of their creation, it's doubtful that there are more than a handful of good mummies in the entire multiverse at any one time.

They do not project fear as do normal mummies, but instead radiate resistance to fear (as remove fear) in a 20' radius around their persons. They continually detect good or evil in a 60' radius. Their touch does not rot; instead, their touch cures good allies of 1-8 HP damage (3/day), and inflicts 1-8 HP damage on those of evil alignment in addition to their normal attack damage. They are only hit by magic, and magic weapons only do half damage. Good mummies are susceptible to fire in the same way as normal (evil) mummies. Good mummies are immune to sleep, hold, charm, poison, and paralysis. Raise dead cures the good mummy of all its hit points. Dispel good causes a good mummy to collapse into a pile of linen wrappings, as the good soul is lost forever.

Good mummies seek release from the purgatory of their current existence by returning to a shrine dedicated to the god who saved them from undead status. If they are able to do this, their souls will be released to the proper afterlife, and the wrappings will be all that is left. These wrappings will cure mummy rot if wrapped about the sufferer. A total of two people can be thusly cured before the wrappings fall apart.

MUMMY, GREATER

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: 0

HD: 10+3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 50%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%

INTELLIGENCE: Genius

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP: 8/ 4,900 + 14/hp

TREASURE: 1-6k cp (25%), 1-6k sp (40%), 1-6k ep (40%), 1-10k

gp (55%), 100-400 pp (25%), 4-40 gems (60%), 3-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (30%)

LOCATION: 3-127A, 4-139C, SL15-13

Greater mummies are the mummified and necromantically preserved spirits of powerful priests. Although wrapped as normal, they tend to retain vestiges of their former clothing (tattered robes) and always possess a holy symbol of their deity. They give off a strong odor of sweet spice (from the embalming process). They are quite intelligent, and can command lesser mummies (90%) and other undead of lower HD (50%). Fearsome opponents, they usually guard some object or location of significance to their deity and/or cult.

Greater mummies radiate despair. This is like a normal mummy's fear and revulsion attack, except it only affects those within 15', and all saves against it are made at -3 due to the greater mummy's terrible evil.

Anyone struck by a greater mummy becomes infected with greater mummy rot; the onset of the disease is immediate. Once begun, the disease causes loss of 1 point of STR, 1 point of CON, and 2 points of CHA for each day of infection. Those afflicted will die in 3-9 days, or when an ability reaches 0, whichever is first. A regenerate spell will cure the disease completely (as will any magic item with the regeneration ability), a heal spell prevents ability loss for one week and restores any lost ability points, and a cure disease prevents ability loss for one day. Drinking a vial of holy water has a 50% chance of preventing ability loss for one day, but causes 1-6 damage to the drinker regardless success. Someone who dies from greater mummy rot may only be brought back if both cure disease and raise dead spell are cast within one hour of death.

Holy water does half damage to greater mummies. Touching a greater mummy with the holy symbol of a good deity causes 1-6 damage to the mummy. Contact with one of the mummy's own holy symbols restores 1-6 HP.

In addition to potent general magic resistance, cold-based spells do not harm greater mummies; fire-based spells, however, do normal damage, and magical electricity does double damage. Although they can be affected by it, greater mummies take half damage from normal fire (including oil). Ordinary weapons are useless against greater mummies, while +1 weapons do but 1 HP damage per hit; +2 weapons do half damage, and +3 weapons do full damage.

Finally, greater mummies cast spells at the level they possessed in life (typically 9th-12th), and are turned as ghosts.

MYRMEX (MEER-mex)

FREQUENCY: Unique

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (10' tall)

MOVE: 60'

AC: 4

HD: 70 HP

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 3-24/3-24

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 10 / 11,250
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL6-22

The Myrmex is a unique type of stone golem developed by Zhorak the Smith, whose forge is found at 8-100. It is shaped like a man, but of stone, with elaborate bronze fittings and decorations. Its face appears as an ancient greek kouros, that is, with a half-smile, elongated oval eyes, and shoulder-length, ringleted hair. The Myrmex was created by an enchantment process that is now lost, but which included 70 days of effort, 70,000 gp in materials, and the following spells: wish, geas, polymorph any object, slow, and a unique version of clenched fist.

In combat the Myrmex attacks with its two hands, to which are bound fork-shaped implements that contribute to its lethal damage. The Myrmex is immune to cold and fire, and is cured by electricity (1 hp cured/ hp of damage), and it is only hit by +2 or better weapons.

Once every three rounds the Myrmex can inflict slow on all within a 10' radius. Once per turn it can club its hands together and use them to produce an enhanced version of clenched fist; if this attack is used against flesh, it automatically hits for 4-24 damage and the victim must save (at -2) or be stunned for 3 rounds. If used against stone, it shatters 10 cubic feet of stone per blow.

The only spell that affects the Myrmex is stone to flesh; each time the spell is cast against it, it takes 3-18 damage and has a 75% chance for one limb (including its head) to drop off. Should a limb fall off, the Myrmex will devote its attention to recovering that limb and reattaching it (taking two rounds to do so). The Myrmex can be 'deactivated' if all 5 of its limbs are separated from its body, and will 'reactivate' once all 5 are joined again.

NEVERLASTING

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1 or 2-4
SIZE: M (5' tall)
MOVE: 120'/60' flying (Class C)
AC: 2
HD: 8+1
ATTACKS: 3
DAMAGE: 3-8/3-8/1-2 or with claws and banner, 2-5/2-5/1-2
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%
INTELLIGENCE: Genius
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,700 +12/hp
TREASURE: 2-12 ep, 3-18 gp, 3-18 pp, + lesser sword of sharpness individuals; 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor or misc. weapon (10%) in lair
LOCATION: 4-2 (possible), 7-76 (possible)

Neverlasting are all very old undead, having only skulls for heads, yet fleshy bodies not unlike that which they had in life, albeit even leaner and gray-skinned. Their hands and feet are clawed, and all bear their clan's ancient banner upon the banner-poles strapped to their backs. The banners were once colorful and proud, but are now only composed of almost-living shadowstuff. These banners spread like bat wings when the neverlasting are in flight.

They wield lesser swords of sharpness (50% of severing a limb on a natural 20). They attack twice per round with this weapon, as well as once with their shadowstuff banner. If the banner hits, it does 1-2 HP of constriction damage per round, and the victim is held fast, unable to perform any actions. If the victim's STR is 17 or greater, he may attempt to bend bars once per round to escape. Only 1 victim may be so trapped at a time, and the act of wrapping a victim renders the neverlasting unable to fly.

Neverlasting use magic as 10th-level magic users. They are hit only by magical weapons, and immune to any damage from creatures of less than 3 HD. They are also immune to charm, sleep, enfeeblement, polymorph, cold, insanity, and death attacks. They are turned as vampires.

NIRAVAIRI (near-ah-VEHR-ee)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 6-12
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 9
HD: 2, or by class
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: By weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Surprise on 1-3
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Surprised only on a 1
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: Very to supra-genius
ALIGNMENT: Lawful

LEVEL/XP: Varies

TREASURE: As NPCs

LOCATION: 4-2 (possible), 9-48, SL1-11

The niravairi are an alien race inhabiting a star system only fifty lightyears from the rudishva homeworld. The niravairi appear as 6'-tall, spindly, hairless, grey-skinned bipeds, with exaggerated knee and elbow joints. They possess no external nose, and smell through gill-like flaps on the sides of their temples. Their supra- and sub-orbital ridges are highly pronounced, making their eyes appear almost goggle-like; those eyes are pupil-less and shifting in color across the blue and green spectra. They possess three digits on each hand and foot. On their homeworld and on their starships they do not wear much clothing, preferring loincloths and web-belts for gear. Still, when traveling in the astral or into worlds they deem particularly cool (like Magae), they may also wear puffy, quilted pants and coats.

All niravairi possess infravision (60'), exceptional hearing and olfactory senses (only surprised on a 1), and move with remarkable stealth (surprise on 1-3). A number of niravairi are quite adept at sorcery, and can rise to 18th level as magic users. Others are highly skilled as tactical officers and fixers (i.e., fighters and thieves), and are trained in hand-to-hand combat as well as in blades, sticks, and technological weapons. As fighters the niravairi can rise to the 12th level of experience; they have no limit for classes as thieves.

In the context of Arden Vul, the niravairi are encountered as members of their special paramilitary organization, the Order of Planar Explorers. This elite unit performs several functions for the niravairi. First, it is tasked with covertly resisting the rudishva hegemony throughout the galaxy. Second, it is tasked with exploring the various planes of existence, with special focus on the Astral and Ethereal Planes; there they seek for magical objects and allies for their cold-war conflict with the rudishva. While the niravairi have developed interstellar travel and thus have access to an extensive range of powerful technological devices, these devices do not function reliably on the inner planes, and niravairi strike-teams (or tumans) that operate on or through the Astral or Ethereal plane are thus more likely to employ specially enchanted items, including astral tulwars, astral staves, astral wands, and a variety of specially-created spells and devices (see new magic items for all).

The Order of Planar Explorers embraces a military-style hierarchy, although the officers of the order are divided into sorcerous and non-sorcerous ranks. Thus, a typical tuman possesses 6-12 members and is co-led by an officer from the tactical side and one from the sorcerous side. The ranks for tactical officers are havildar, rissaldar, and jemadar; while the sorcerous component possesses only two ranks, duffadar and subadar. Ordinary, or non-officer, ranks are called naiks.

OATHBOUND KNIGHTS

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 8-9

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: 5

HD: 6 or 9

ATTACKS: 3/2

DAMAGE: By weapon

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral

LEVEL/XP:

Knight: 4 / 160 + 6/hp

Knight Commander: 7 / 600 + 12/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 6-148

These strange entities were once human knights loyal to Archon Marius Tricotor (see 6-148, 6-154). As paragons of law and of duty to the emperor, they agreed to surrender their lives to serve the empire and the memory of Marius the Unconquered. They presented personal tokens before the shrine to Marius's heart, and swore oaths before the goddess Wadjet. Wadjet granted them eternal life, so long as they fulfilled their oaths to protect and honor Marius's remains. Now, close to 2,000 years later, the knights are still present and are still fulfilling their oaths.

The knights appear as wizened, aged humans, with wrinkled faces and hands and long white hair. Their eyes are still bright, and the power of Wadjet and their oaths still gives them strength. They move a bit more slowly, but are still capable warriors. They wear chain mail covered with faded and tattered yellow surcoats with the 'MP' logo (for Marius Invictus). They wield broadswords, light flails, and light crossbows, and have +1 to hit and +1 to damage due to experience and strength. Although they might seem to be undead, they are not, and cannot be turned. The divine power of their oaths ensures that they can only be hit by magic weapons, and provides them with 25% magic resistance.

The knight-commander of the oathbound knights, a certain Publius Lanlius, has more HD (HD 9), wears chain mail +2 (AC 3), and wields a long sword +3.

OOZE, ORANGE

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3

SIZE: M

MOVE: 30'

AC: 6

HD: 8

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Only hit by non-magic weapons

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 85%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 0%

INTELLIGENCE: Animal

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 650 + 10/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: SL5-32

These creatures are formed from a combination of powerful magic in operation near or on top of a large seam or pocket of arcantum (see new magic items). They are able to strike enemies up to 15' away with an acidic pseudopod for 2-12 HP damage. A successful attack may destroy a magic item; a randomly chosen magic item on the victim must roll an item saving throw with a -2 penalty or be instantly destroyed. Orange oozes are also almost invulnerable to magical attacks of all sorts: they have an 85% base magic resistance, and cannot be harmed by magical weapons.

PARALYZING BRAIN

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120' flying (Class A)
AC: 3
HD: 10
ATTACKS: 11
DAMAGE: 1-6 (x10)/2-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Paralyzation, surprise
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to electricity
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Normal
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Average
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,100 + 13/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 5-65, 6-25

The horrible product of an ancient Archontean sorcerous experiment, this creature resembles an enormous naked brain from which sprout ten, 7'-long tentacles. A sharp beak protrudes from one side of the brain. The paralyzing brain moves through levitation, and prefers to lurk in tall subterranean spaces where it can drop down on unsuspecting prey; due to this tactic it is slightly more prone to surprising its prey (surprise on 1-3).

It typically lashes out with all ten tentacles at a single victim; these do 1-6 HP damage each and inject a toxin that paralyzes prey (saves are at +2). Once a victim is paralyzed, 2-3 tentacles hold it still while the other 7-8 and the beak rip it apart (no need to roll to hit once the victim is paralyzed). Any successful hit on a tentacle renders it inoperative (although the brain can regenerate a tentacle in 2-3 days). Only damage to the brain itself will lead to its death. Paralyzing brains are immune to electricity, but are susceptible to cold (+1 damage per die).

PRISCIAN CONVERSI (PRISH-ee-an)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6
SIZE: M (typically)
MOVE: 120'
AC: Varies
HD: By class level
ATTACKS: 1 or more
DAMAGE: Varies
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Varies
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Varies
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: Average to high
ALIGNMENT: Lawful (neutral or evil)
LEVEL/XP: Varies

TREASURE: As NPCs

LOCATION: 4-2, 6-48, 6-49, 7-39, 7-44, 7-143, 9-31, 9-59A, 9-60-62, 9-63A, 9-64A, SL4-44

Conversi (singular: conversus), or Associates, are those members of the modern Priscian Order who are completely devoted to the Priscian principles but lack the requisite training or ability in the arcane arts to become full members. The conversi serve the sept through their skills as defenders and agents provocateurs, using their (mostly) martial skills to further the needs of specific circles. Conversi are fighters, thieves, monks, and the special bonded defenders. The majority of conversi are humans, but some demi-humans have also taken the oath as conversi.

Through their demanding training, conversi gain +1 to saves against charm and other mental attacks. Other than that benefit, conversi have no special abilities aside from their class and level abilities, although they typically are equipped with Priscian chain mail and a Priscian gladius (see new magic items).

Bonded defenders are those conversi who have taken oaths to serve a particular, high-level circularius (i.e., Priscian mage). Typically this happens only when the circularius in question is level 6 or above and when the conversus is of equal level. To become a bonded defender, a conversus undergoes two full weeks of rituals, deprivation, tests, and oaths; at the end, he or she is permanently linked to the circularius in question through a psychic-magical bond. This link, or bond, means that the conversus can instantly and magically transfer up to ¼ of his/her remaining HP to his/her circularius. If the circularius should die, however, the bonded defender immediately takes 4-12 HP in psychic damage.

PRISCIAN WAR MAGE (PRISH-ee-an)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1 or 3
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: varies, base 5 (Priscian chain mail)
HD: per level as magic user
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: By Priscian gladius or by spell
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spells, see below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: High to genius
ALIGNMENT: Lawful (neutral or evil)
LEVEL/XP: Varies
TREASURE: As NPCs
LOCATION: 4-2, 6-48, 6-49, 7-24, 7-39, 7-44, 7-72, 7-143, 9-31, 9-60-64, SL4-44

Priscian circulariis (i.e., arcane spell-casters and full members of the order) who undertake special missions outside a sept's hold are known as 'war mages'. The reasons for such a venture may be related to a task assigned by a Circle Lord, may be connected to a search for sources of arcana, or, particularly for members of lower circles, may be self-motivated as a way to gain experience. After the decision to venture into hostile territory is taken, the circularius in question must perform a ritual to 'prepare' his/her essence for the possibility of war and combat. Almost always the war mage will also equip him- or herself with a suit of Priscian chain mail and a Priscian gladius (see new magic items), and will invite the presence of a number of conversi to aid him/her in his task (and, of course, to help protect him/her). The ritual by which one becomes a war mage has one specific benefit: it allows the war mage to use the thief combat matrix for the duration of the mission (instead of that reserved for magic users and illusionists).

JLB
2013

War Mage Triads: When journeys or missions of particular importance are deemed necessary by one of the Circles, a triad of war mages is formed. As with singular war mages, the members of a triad undergo a ritual, with oaths, fasting, and exchange of personal items; the ceremony intends to bind the members to a common purpose, and to each other.

In game terms, the ceremony provides three benefits. Firstly, it grants each member of the triad access to the thief combat tables for the duration of the venture.

Secondly, members of a formally established Triad can tap the arcane energies of another member of the Triad, allowing them to exchange a memorized spell so long as it is of equal or lesser level.

Finally, members can 'donate' up to 10 HP of their own life force to one of the other members of the Triad. Should one member of a Triad die, the remaining members take 10 HP of psychic damage and are unable to exchange memorized spells.

The bonding ritual that forms a Triad instills in its members a particularly aggressive and confident demeanor. As with 'ordinary' war mages, each member of a Triad customarily equips him- or herself with Priscian chain mail, a Priscian gladius and other magical items. It is common for several conversi to pledge themselves to the goals of a Triad.

PUDDING, PURPLE

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M to L (10' diameter)

MOVE: 60'

AC: 8

HD: 4-10

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None to animal

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP:

4 HD: 4 / 175 + 3/hp

5 HD: 4 / 235 + 4/hp

6 HD: 5 / 350 + 5/hp

7 HD: 6 / 575 + 6/hp

8 HD: 6 / 850 + 7/hp

9 HD: 7 / 1,300 + 8/hp

10 HD: 7 / 1,600 + 9/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 5-71, 5-131, SL6-26, SL8-18

This pudding of a deep purple color was originally the creation of Psalor-Ki, the rudishva vivisectionist (5-74); some specimens escaped, however, and as a result purple puddings are not unknown outside Arden Vul. It is deeply caustic, burning flesh at the touch and corroding metal or leather in a round (curiously, it does not affect wood; enchanted metal gets a save). In small volumes it is mindless, but in larger volumes (8+ HD) it acquires a certain degree of sentience.

It is immune to attacks by fire, but it will grow (curing 3-18 HP and adding 1-6 HD on top of that) if hit by electricity. Cold affects it severely, doing double-damage and slowing it.

It is magically and elementally conductive, such that if it is struck by magical or elemental attacks in the round in which it has hit an enemy it will convey ½ the damage from those attacks to its opponent. It can be bottled and thrown as a weapon.

PUDDING, RED

FREQUENCY: Unique

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L

MOVE: 30'

AC: 4

HD: 10; HP 75

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-16

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Bloody healing

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to cold and electricity

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2, 575

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 6-4

This motile pudding was created in area 6-4 through a chance combination of rudishva fertilizers and human flesh and blood. It appears as a blood-red puddle; indeed, PCs may believe it to be merely blood.

It attacks via a strong pseudopod. In addition to caustic damage, successful hits have two other potential effects. First, the pseudopod has a chance to corrode any non-metallic substance it hits (clothing, leather armor, etc.); those wearing hide, leather, studded leather and similar protections must roll an item saving throw (at -2 penalty) or else find that item irreparably damaged (magic items use their 'plus' as a positive modifier to saves). The same holds for non-metallic weapons that strike the pudding (staves, arrow shafts, wooden clubs, etc.).

Second, if the pseudopod hits a target that is already bleeding (i.e., one that has already taken damage), the pudding can rejuvenate itself, adding ½ of its damage roll to its own HP. Example: a pudding hits a PC on the first round and does 8 hp damage. It hits the same PC on the second round for another 9 hp, and thereby adding 4 HP to its own HP total. The pudding can actually grow in this way by adding HP beyond its starting HP. For every 6 HP that it acquires beyond its initial HP total, it should be treated as having an additional HD in terms of rolls 'to hit.'

Red pudding is immune to electricity and cold, has a modicum of magic resistance, and is incredibly hardy. If it is defeated (brought to 0 HP) it has the ability to regenerate slowly from the small drops that remain; only by burning the entire area where the pudding had been operating can one be sure to eliminate any drips that might regrow into a full specimen. In the case that the pudding regrows itself, it is likely to do so in 1-6 separate versions; that is, 1-6 bits of red pudding matter will start to regrow, eventually forming 1-6 new puddings 1' in diameter with 1 HD. In this way the red pudding may, even if encountered and defeated at 6-4, come to spread slowly into other parts of Arden Vul.

PUFF BALL MUSHROOMS, DEADLY

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 2-8

SIZE: S (3' diameter)

MOVE: None

AC: 10

HD: 3 HP

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: Special

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spore cloud

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 1 / 11

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 3-174

Deadly puff balls are a type of mushroom that grows in forests and occasionally underground. They produce a 3'-diameter globe in which mature thousands of spores. When ripe, the globe bursts and the spores are released. Of course, if the globe is damaged in any way, the damage will cause the spores to release. Although many mushroom species grow in similar ways, this genus is deadly, since its spore cloud can cause one of the following debilitating effects, depending on the sub-species:

Type	Spore Effect
White Globe	Confusion, 4-7 rounds
Brown Globe	Stunning, 4-7 rounds
Ochre Globe	Poison, save vs poison at +2 or die
Yellow Globe	Zombification (save vs spells or become unthinking spore carrier; in 1-3 days body explodes, transmitting a new spore cloud and killing the host. While zombified, the body seeks a new and advantageous location for propagation. Only cure disease can stop the process.)

RIMMAQ-ISFET (RIM-mack ISS-fett)

Greater god

SIZE: L (salamander body 200' long, real body inconceivable)

MOVE: 30'

AC: -2

HD: Salamander body 400; True body infinite

ATTACKS: 5

DAMAGE: 10-50 (x4)/20-200

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 99%

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

WORSHIPPERS ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

SYMBOLS: A thin black circle on a white or blue field; a sinuous tongue; an ovoid cave opening on a cliff face

TITLES: The Devourer, the Worm who Licks the Heart of the Earth, the Extruder of Potent Slimes, the Fecund Sire, the Corroder, the Worm of Qok

CLASSES:

Cleric: 20th-level

Fighter: As 16+ HD monster

Magic User: 30th-level

Illusionist: 30th-level

S 25 (+7, +14); I —; W —; D 10; C 25; CH -7

According to heqeti cosmogony, Rimmaq-Isfet predates all other creation and is, in fact, the source of all matter. They believe Rimmaq-Isfet to have excreted rock, earth, oozes, and the first heqeti (indeed, all the Prime Material Plane). At the present Rimmaq-Isfet burrows constantly through matter, seeking to ooze, scrape, and gnaw itself into a position to re-consume all that it has excreted. True believers among the heqeti and other strange cults thus seek one-ness with Rimmaq-Isfet, hoping to be reabsorbed into its endless, churning maw. The rituals of such believers thus seek to open channels in the world through which Rimmaq-Isfet may enter via slime, avatar, tentacle, or even – in the right circumstances – with his entire salamander body. Given the apocalyptic, destructive nature of this theology, however, not all heqeti are as devout as these true believers, preferring to appease giant Rimmaq-Isfet with sacrifices rather than joining or summoning it.

Most heqeti descriptions of Rimmaq-Isfet imagine it as a colossal salamander over 200' long, with multiple legs and an enormous mouth filled with teeth and circled with a 'beard' of feelers/tentacles. Three dull-green, lidless eyes span its massive brow. The flesh of Rimmaq-Isfet is pebbled, dimpled, and covered with a mucous sheen; in color, its flesh is sometimes thought to be midnight black, with flecks of yellow, but other times it is held to be a constantly-shifting range of mottled green and brown. The mucus that covers its flesh is occasionally scraped off and collected by its fawning spawn, who gift it to servants and allies as the sweat of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new magic items).

The salamander body of Rimmaq-Isfet is generally indifferent to its surroundings. It regenerates 300 hit points of damage per round, and is immune to elemental damage as well as poison. It takes at least 75 hit points of damage in a single round for it to notice it is under attack and perhaps retaliate. On these rare occasions, it attacks with four tentacle strikes and a fearsome bite. If that doesn't resolve the situation, each tentacle may form a smaller mouth, allowing the god to use up to four different spells during the same round. If it ever feels threatened, it favors wishes to snuff out those who oppose it like candles before a great wind, fearing not the universe's vain attempts to subvert its will: nothing can be done to the Worm of Qok that it will not survive, for even if the salamander body of Rimmaq-Isfet is destroyed, it reforms in 400 years to continue consuming.

Most modern human and demi-human sages know little of Rimmaq-Isfet, as it appears as but an occasional, uncommented reference in the oldest codices. Occasionally very evil (and chaotic) human cultists will develop a devotion to Rimmaq-Isfet, but their cults tend to be small, isolated, and primitive. Were one to acquire one of the nine copies of the almost completely forgotten work, On the Terrible Old Gods, by Sarquin of Archontos (who lived before the foundation of the Archontean Empire), however, one might learn something about this entity.

Sarquin thought that Rimmaq-Isfet belonged to a category of deity unfamiliar and alien to most 'normal' gods. According to Sarquin, Rimmaq-Isfet, like Frelothian, Mzingaloq, and Jeqellathon, existed beyond time, having been exiled by forces unknown; it was the goal of Rimmaq-Isfet to return to the main channel of time and to 'reality' in order to wreak vengeance for this exile. Sarquin also inferred that Rimmaq-Isfet's mind and motives were unknowable, not merely in the usual sense that a God's godhood rendered his/her actions ineffable, but in a deeper, more profound sense: it seemed, perhaps, that Rimmaq-Isfet had no motives, or at least no motives and no agendas that were comprehensible to human minds.

It may also be of interest to note that Sarquin devoted a dozen folios to an ontological discussion of the relationships, if any, between demonkind and Rimmaq-Isfet (and others of his ilk, including Frelothian, Mzingaloq, and Jeqellathon). He used a variety of philosophical, logical, and theological arguments to suggest that demons were clearly distinct from these entities, as their motives were at least partially comprehensible and their forms at least analogous to those experienced in prime material reality; in contrast to the relatively comprehensible, if still fearsome nature of demons, the appearance of Rimmaq-Isfet was utterly foreign, even incomprehensible. Even the form usually ascribed to it by the heqeti was, in this view, merely allegorical.

Despite this firm conclusion, however, Sarquin mused that certain demons may in fact have been spawned by Rimmaq-Isfet and the other Old Gods; as such the most potent demons might approximate the powers, instincts, and portfolios of the Old Gods while nevertheless existing as shadows of their sires. At the end of his work, Sarquin concluded that for all of these reasons, any who chose to worship Rimmaq-Isfet, let alone to conduct rituals on his behalf, was criminally insane, and should be persecuted with extreme prejudice.

RUDISHVA (roo-DEESH-vah)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (7'-8' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: 7

HD: 3, or by class

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 20%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 80%

INTELLIGENCE: Very to supra-genius

ALIGNMENT: Varies

LEVEL/XP: Varies

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 5-74, 6-20, 6-85, SL2-2, SL7-23, SL10-32

Hailing from the distant planet of Rudish with its three moons, the rudishva were the technologically advanced leaders of a star-spanning hegemonic empire comprising the varuda, the varumani, and the kaliyani. One of their starships, the Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven, crashed into the plateau of Arden Vul close to three millennia ago. Several modules of the starship survived, albeit scattered in various locations within the rock face.

While they sought in vain to repair their ship, the rudishva laid claim to the tunnels and halls that the heqeti had previously delved. The rudishva rule in Arden Vul only lasted for 163 years, with the rudishva crewmembers extending their lifespans via the use of the cryogenic facilities of the Beacon.

Eventually the heqeti (see new monsters) made a secret alliance with the kaliyani to betray their masters, and the introduction of deadly heqeti slimes meant the rapid collapse of the rudishva. Almost all the rudishva perished in the first days of the plague, leaving only a handful of survivors. Of those, a tiny number are still alive thanks to the same ancient technologies: Psalor-Ki (5-74), Isok-Crix (6-20), Crelik-Var the Lord of the Arena (6-85), Reiv-Tor (SL7-23), and Melok-Ri, Master of the Sun-Scarred Knights (SL10-32). Four more rudishva (Triv-Lok, Plec-Gris, Kelo-Rep, and Talg-Roe) may be alive in the deep-space containment units (SL2-2) provided their containment unit hasn't failed.

Rudishva are skinny, spindly-limbed bipeds some 7' to 8' tall. They possess large hairless heads, from which protrude two small, curved horns. They have three fingers and a thumb per hand. Their skin-tones are typically light-brown to mahogany. All of the Arden Vul survivors have cybernetic implants; these appear as ½"-diameter plugs of colored plasteel visible just behind the left temple. Each rudishva can have up to 4 such implants. The crew wore orange jumpsuits, and, unless indicated otherwise, the survivors continue to dress in the traditional style. A set of webbelts allow the rudishva to carry a fair amount of gear.

The stats above are for generic rudishva without advanced combat training and without implants. The survivors in Arden Vul have better stats, due both to their implants but also to the centuries of experience they acquired as well as the fates they each have met. Indeed, some of the survivors have developed class skills as fighter or thieves (max of level 15 in each case); for these classed rudishva, weapon proficiency (and specialization, for fighters, if such is desired) in the following advanced weaponry is possible (in addition to the usual): laser pistol, laser rifle, dart thrower, grenades, rocket launcher, and spear gun. All rudishva have 8-sided dice for HD, regardless of whether or not they possess classes in thief or fighter.

Although not magically adept, and hence not capable of advancing as magic users, some of the rudishva managed to incorporate alchemical and other magical energies with their own technology, thereby producing a kind of techno-sorcery. The glory days of such techno-sorcerous experimentation are long past, however, since much of it depended on the assistance of the more magically-inclined kaliyani; still, remnants of this work exist in a few places, and one survivor (Reiv-Tor, SL7-23) continues to experiment with techno-sorcery.

If the survivors are not spell-casters, they are nonetheless all capable of employing magic items, and do so with regularity. Indeed, because of their longevity the survivors typically possess a wide and powerful range of magical and technological items. As a consequence of their lack of magical aptitude, they all possess a mild magic resistance (20%).

The following table lists the known cybernetic implants employed by survivors:

Implant	Effect
Strength	STR 19
Speed	AC 4; base MV 150'; #AT doubled; haste for 1 turn every day
Toughness	CON 18; +30 HP
Optics	Infravision, see invisible
Metabolism	Reduces need to eat and drink by 90%, slows aging by 90%
Shield	AC 2; hit only by +1 or better weapons
Linguistics	Allows comprehension and communication in all languages, provided the wearer spends 1-3 turns in proximity of a new language
Stealth	Invisibility ; muffles sound
Microprocessor	INT 18; +25% reaction rolls
Medical	Regenerate 2 HP per round; 50% chance to avoid effects of disease or poison.
Communications	Allows subvocal communication with any other survivor with this implant, as well as with Gethe (6-16), Relke (6-30), RAJ-750 (6-27), Stiller (6-36), Haine (6-84), Ranke (SL10A-16), and Akla-Chah (AL14-13).

In the case where a single survivor has implants with overlapping functions (e.g., speed and shield), the better of the two applies; so, if a survivor had both speed and shield, he/she would have AC 2, MV 150'; double attacks; and hit only by +1 or better weapons.

SALAMANDER, ACID

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4 or 4-20
 SIZE: L (7'-8' long)
 MOVE: 60'/90' swimming
 AC: 7

HD: 7
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: 3-12
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: Acid spit
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to acid
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
 LAIR PROBABILITY: None
 INTELLIGENCE: Animal
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP: 5 / 465 + 8/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 10-15

These giant salamanders are mottled yellow, green, and brown, and inhabit only a handful of isolated, subterranean locations. They favor muck, swamps, and other areas with rich, decaying matter. Acid salamanders are nearly always hungry, and will investigate potential prey that comes near them. They prefer to rest quietly in one location, blending in with algal and fungal vegetation until they are ready to spring forth. While they can deliver a nasty bite, what makes them fearsome is the acidic nature of their saliva.

They can spit acid blobs up to 15' away (while charging); these blobs do 2-8 HP damage upon a successful hit, and do an automatic 1-4 additional damage for 1-2 rounds after such a hit. Given their acidic nature, they are unsurprisingly immune to all types of acid.

SALAMANDER, PHASE

FREQUENCY: Very rare
 NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4
 SIZE: M (4' long)
 MOVE: 90'; 120' swimming
 AC: 3 (or 6)
 HD: 5
 ATTACKS: 1
 DAMAGE: 2-8
 SPECIAL ATTACKS: Phase (+4 to hit)
 SPECIAL DEFENSES: Lower AC while phasing
 MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
 LAIR PROBABILITY: None
 INTELLIGENCE: Animal
 ALIGNMENT: Neutral
 LEVEL/XP: 4 / 200 + 4/hp
 TREASURE: None
 LOCATION: 3-165, SL6-1

A rare breed of carnivorous subterranean amphibian, these salamanders are ochre colored with black spots. They boast sharp teeth and, more significantly, an ability to phase out of reality for brief periods. They typically use this ability to appear behind potential prey, biting with surprise (+4 to hit) before phasing out of the Prime Material Plane again. This ability accounts for their low AC (AC 3).

Like phase spiders, they can be forced to remain in the Prime Material Plane for 8 rounds through the casting of a phase door spell. Those who can become ethereal are able to track a phase salamander normally, and are thus not surprised by its attack. A phase salamander that is unable to 'phase' has a higher AC (6).

SALAMANDER, RIDING

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6
SIZE: L (10' long)
MOVE: 60'/90' swimming
AC: 6
HD: 6
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 4 / 160 + 6/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 7-78, 7-79, 10-61

A rare giant subspecies of underground salamander, these beasts are most commonly found as semi-trained mounts for the heqeti and other subterranean races. Riding salamanders are typically midnight black with sun-yellow spots. The heqeti insert bits into their mouths and guide them with reins. Not particularly swift, they are able to move with greater alacrity in water. They attack by biting for 2-12 HP damage.

SALAMANDER, WARNING

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-18
SIZE: S (2' long)
MOVE: 90'/150' swimming
AC: 8

HD: 2
ATTACKS: 0
DAMAGE: None
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Strobe light
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Surprised only on 1
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 1 / 10 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 7-84, 10-2

These small salamanders are mainly found underground. Their skin is dark blue with yellowish-green spots. If threatened, or if they detect predators, they are able to emit a series of strobe-like blasts of yellow light. These blasts last 2 rounds and can stun the unwary (save vs. petrification at +2). Given this alert feature, and the difficulty in surprising them, the salamanders are frequently used by the heqeti (who are immune to their strobe lights) as early-warning alarms.

SAND WORM

FREQUENCY: Uncommon
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 6-11
SIZE: S (4' long)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 7/2
HD: 2
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-6
Special Attack: Slurp blood
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 2 / 50 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 8-60, SL3-24

Sand worms are a vicious species of sand burrowers that grow about 4' long (although much larger specimens have been reported in open desert, up to 10' long and 6 HD). They move through sand at great speed and leap out to attack their victims with the abrasive cilia of their mouths. A successful hit indicates that the worm has attached itself to its victim; it automatically slurps blood at 1-4 HP per round until removed. Once attached to a victim, their AC drops to 2 as they become very difficult to hit.

SECURITY CONSTRUCT, RUDISHVA

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1 to 3
SIZE: M or L
MOVE: 120'
AC: Varies
HD: Varies
ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: Varies
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: Varies (see below)
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 5-118, 6-16, 6-30, 6-84, SL10A-16, SL10A-18

Representing the peak of rudishva dabbling in robotics and artificial intelligence, these dangerous constructs take the form of one of the rudishva races – rudishva, varumani, varuda or kaliyani. Their frames are composed of high-tensile alloys, cloaked in pseudo-flesh. Although their faces are highly detailed and life-like, the features are too rigid and defined, and lacking in the subtle facial movements of true life-forms. Indeed, close observation reveals that only their lips and their coal-black eyes show movement and life. Their positronic brains, however, are supple and allow rapid, effective tactical and interpersonal decision-making.

The Beacon carried only a few such constructs, including three tactical advisors in charge of weapons training (c.f. 5-118) and a handful of military-grade constructs (e.g. Relke, in 6-30). Individual constructs vary slightly in appearance and capabilities. Due to their age, it is probable (50% likely) that their pseudo-flesh has begun to decay, producing an unpleasant aroma of decay. All rudishva security constructs are immune to poison and mind-affecting spells.

Rudishva Tactical Advisor (5-118)

Appearance: A spindly-limbed biped about 7' tall with a large head; the head bears two small horns, and the mouth has fangs. The automaton is dressed in an orange jumpsuit and wears a utility belt.

Statistics: AC 2; HD 6+6; ATTACKS 2; DAMAGE: laser pistol and vibrablade (see new technological items), or fists (1-8/1-8); standard immunities plus immune to fire, cold, and laser attacks; voice can issue sonic attacks every 2 rounds equivalent to command spell (save at -2); regenerate 3 HP/round. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 645 + 8/hp

Varumani Tactical Advisor (5-118, SL10A-18)

Appearance: A heavy, thick-limbed, 8'-tall being, with gnarled features. The automaton wears a loincloth and a utility belt.

Statistics: AC 2; MV 90'; HD 8; ATTACKS 2; DAMAGE: stun baton and laser rifle (one-handed!) (see new technological items), or fists (2-12/2-12); standard immunities plus immune to cold; regenerate 2 HP/round. LEVEL/XP: 6 / 750 + 10/hp

Varuda Tactical Advisor: (5-118)

Appearance: A 6'-tall biped with membranes attached between arms and back, a sharp beak, and impressive comb feathers. The automaton wears a light-blue tunic.

Statistics: AC 2; MV 120', can glide 120' (class D); HD 7; ATTACKS 1 or 2; DAMAGE: laser pistol (see new technological items) or claws (1-6/1-6); standard immunities plus immune to cold; regenerate 1 HP/round. LEVEL/XP: 5 / 425 + 8/hp

Military-Grade Security Construct (6-16, 6-30, 6-84, SL10A-16)

Appearance: A 7'-tall rudishva, with spindly limbs, bald heads with small horns, and fangs. Heads and hands are made of artificial flesh; torso, arms, legs and feet are formed of black titanium alloy armor that crackles with electricity.

Statistics: SZ M; AC 0, MV 120'; HD 10, HP 50; #AT 2; Dmg 2-12/2-12 (monofilament blades) or 3-8/3-8 (fists); MR 50%.
SPECIAL ATTACKS: fire gouts, from left hand, 3x/day, for 5-30 damage in a 20' radius; plasma ray from right hand, 5x/day, for 3-18 damage in a 30' beam.
SPECIAL DEFENSES: hit only by +2 weapons; leap unerringly 30'; regeneration 2 HP/round; holographic projection (a construct can project three duplicate images of itself; these images have 10 hp each and move and act as does the construct, inflicting damage unless the illusion is disbelieved). The constructs' armored torsos are charged with electricity; any who touch it them suffer 2-8 electric damage. Their monofilament blades are 3' long and are housed in scabbards built into their armor. The armor, blades, and special attacks are only effective so long as they are powered; a full charge will keep them powered for 28 + 1-3 hours. Should a construct be unable to recharge, it loses its powered functions (monofilament blades, fire, plasma, holographic projection, electric charge), its AC drops to 3, and it must attack by fists for 3-8/3-8 damage. LEVEL/XP: 8 / 3,750

SELENITE GUARDIANS

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4

SIZE: M or L (6-10')

MOVE: 30' on dirt, 90' on selenite

AC: 2

HD: 6 or 9

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 2-8/2-8, or 2-16/2-16

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP:

6 HD: 5 / 420 + 6/hp

9 HD: 7 / 1,600 + 12/hp

TREASURE: Special (see below)

LOCATION: 3-200, 4-90, 7-118, 8-169

Selenite guardians are beings made of pure gypsum (selenite). They most commonly appear as 4'-diameter octagonal rods of selenite, and may thus be mistaken for inert gypsum. They are able to extrude up to 6 limbs (1' diameter) from their main 'body' at will; these limbs allow them to move and manipulate objects. They have no clear face, mouth or eyes, but are able to detect movement and make sounds by rubbing extruded 'arms' against their body. Amid selenite deposits, they are able to move with some speed; away from that habitat, they are quite slow. In combat situations they extrude two short 'arms' that they use to batter opponents.

Although selenite guardians are intelligent, their thought processes are alien and their speech nigh incomprehensible (it consists of a combination of low grunts, high squeaks, and slight changes in the opaque color of their 'skin'). They are attracted to large deposits of selenite; sages differ on whether they feed on some aspect of the mineral or are drawn to the deposits in order to preserve and/or maintain them. Selenite guardians are quite hardy, and take limited damage from edged weapons; once they have been beaten to death, their bodies will shatter, allowing the victor to recover 100-600 gp worth of selenite crystals from the corpse.

Selenite guardians regenerate 2 HP per round so long as they are in within 25' feet of a substantial deposit of selenite. Because of the hot and humid environment in which selenite is formed, Selenite guardians are immune to fire and water-based attacks; for the same reason, they take double damage from cold-based attacks. Given their crystalline nature, selenite guardians take only 1 HP damage from edged weapons. They operate without penalty in water. Some selenite guardians are larger, possessing more HD and doing more damage in combat.

SET ACOLYTES

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 4

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spell use as 3rd-level cleric

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Fanaticism

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 20%

INTELLIGENCE: Average to high

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

Junior Acolyte: 2 / 50 + 1/hp

Acolyte: 3 / 80 + 2/hp

Advanced Acolyte: 3 / 135 + 3/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: Level 3, Level 4, 5-100, 6-58, SL8-7

Set priests are not common, as the cult of Set is in abeyance. They mostly inhabit remote temples or ruins, preferably underground. Their goals are many, among which are the defeat of 'good' gods of knowledge and magic, the acquisition of knowledge and power, and the subtle undermining of human power structures for their own purposes.

Acolytes are the lowest ranking priests of the cult of Set; they are typically 3rd-level clerics (with 4 1st-level and 2 2nd-level spells). Like all Set priests, acolytes wear a special ensemble of armor similar to that of a Roman legionary; called Set armor (see Arden Vul items), the ensemble includes scale body armor, copper leg and arm greaves, copper helmet shaped like a Set animal. Again, as with all Set priests, acolytes normally carry was sticks appropriate to their rank (see new magic items) in addition to their normal hand-weapon (usually a mace). Acolytes are likely to carry a small amount of coin (4-24 gp) and a few minor magic items: 0-2 potions and 0-2 scrolls.

Variations include junior acolytes (2nd-level clerics with 4 1st-level spells) and advanced acolytes (5th-level clerics with 5 1st-level, 5 2nd-level, and 1 3rd-level spells).

Due to their fanatical loyalty to Set and his goals, Set acolytes have a bonus of +1 to all saves versus hold person, sleep, and other mind-affecting spells.

SET ANIMALS

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-8

SIZE: S (3' long)

MOVE: 150'

AC: 5

HD: 1-2

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 1-4/ 1-6

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: None

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: Semi

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

1 HD: 2 / 25 + 1/hp

2 HD: 2 / 60 + 1/hp

5 HD: 4 / 345 + 4/hp

6 HD: 5 / 370 + 6/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: SL8-5, SL8-7

Set animals are creatures bred by priests of Set and devoted to his cult. They have the body of a dog, but with a curved, narrow snout, square ears, and a forked tail. Their tails sting with a nasty venom which inflicts an additional 1-4 HP damage and causes discomfort (-1 to hit for 1 turn) unless saved against.

Set animals love to inflict pain and watch a victim writhe. Their preferred form of attack is to leap at opponents to sting them with their tail. Due to their small size, Set animals can race swiftly along near-vertical surfaces and jump up to 15' at foes.

Set animals are vocal, emitting a constant stream of high-pitched yibbering sounds. The yibbering is unsettling and other-planar, and can sometimes cause confusion in enemies unaccustomed to it. When first encountered Set animals have a 50% chance of confusing enemies with their yibbering; this declines to 15% for subsequent encounters. If inflicted, confusion prompts a save vs spells in listeners; if failed, the victim cannot act for 1-4 rounds.

Set animals have a foetid breath that acts as a dispel magic spell. This power may be used once per day, and generally is used in the first round of combat. The cone extends for 15' in front of the Set animal, and acts as the spell.

Greater Set animals are only encountered singly or in pairs and have the following statistics: SZ M; AC 2, MV 150'; HD 5-6; #AT 2; Dmg 1-6/1-8. They are more intelligent (low) than their smaller brethren and cannot race along near-vertical surfaces. The venom in their tails inflicts an additional 1-6 HP damage each round for 1-4 rounds, and may also cause paralysis (a second save is required to avoid suffering paralysis for 1-3 rounds). Their yibbering confusion percentages are 75% and 25 % respectively.

SET CULTISTS

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 6-11

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90'

AC: 10, or 8

HD: 1-2

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon, usually dagger, flail or staff

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Fanaticism

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

1 HD: 1 / 15 + 1/hp

2 HD: 2 / 40 + 1/hp

TREASURE: 3-18 sp, 2-8 gp individuals

LOCATION: AV-44, Level 3, Level 4, SL4-32

Set cultists are the non-clerical followers of the god Set. Set cultists can come from any race of intelligent creatures, although the leadership of the cult is mostly (75%) human. In the Halls of Arden Vul, 66% of encountered cultists will be human; of the remaining 33%, the breakdown will be as follows: goblin (40%), lizardman (20%), demi-human (20%), other/GM's choice (20%). They are typically not particularly difficult to defeat in combat, wearing only clothes, sacred robes, and padded armor. They typically carry daggers or staves, or the occasional flail.

Set cultists travel in groups, and their numbers can tell against smaller groups of opponents. Often cultists are accompanied by a Set priest (50% chance) and/or by 1-4 Set guardsmen (also 50% chance). It is entirely possible for them to be accompanied by both a priest and some guardsmen.

Even though they are essentially mundane creatures, certain Set cultists are highly regarded figures in the hierarchy of power in Temples of Set. That is, wealth, influence, and knowledge might cause a cultist to have more influence/power than a formal priest, even though the cultist lacks the priest's spell-casting abilities.

Due to their fanatical loyalty to Set and his goals, Set cultists have a bonus of +1 to all saves versus hold person, sleep, and other mind-affecting spells.

SET DEACONS

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 3 or better

HD: 6

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spell use as a 6th-level cleric

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Fanaticism

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 30%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP: 5 / 300 + 6/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 3-90, 3-106, 3-107, 4-2, 4-42, 4-49, 4-61, 7-33, SL4-23, SL4-32, SL8-7

Set priests are not common, as the cult of Set is in abeyance. They mostly inhabit remote temples or ruins, preferably underground. Their goals are many, among which are the defeat of 'good' gods of knowledge and magic, the acquisition of knowledge and power, and the subtle undermining of human power structures for their own purposes.

Deacons are the powerful mid-level clerics of the cult; they are typically 6th-level clerics (with 5 1st-level, 5 2nd-level, 3 3rd-level, and 1 4th-level spells). Like all Set priests, deacons wear the special ensemble of armor known as Set armor (see Arden Vul items). The ensemble includes scale body armor, copper leg and arm greaves, copper helmet shaped like a Set animal, and for deacons the entire ensemble is enchanted (Set armor +1). Again, as with all Set Priests, deacons normally carry was sticks appropriate to their rank (see new magic items) in addition to their normal hand-weapon (usually a mace). Deacons typically possess a small amount of coin (5-60 gp) and the following magic items: a minor protective item, a magical weapon, plus 0-3 potions and 0-2 scrolls.

SET GUARDSMEN

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-6

SIZE: M

MOVE: 60'

AC: 5

HD: 2 or more

Attack: 1

DAMAGE: By weapon (spear or bow, plus sword)

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Bonds of Set

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Fanaticism

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 20%

INTELLIGENCE: Average

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

Guardsmen: 2 / 40 + 1/hp

Elite Guardsmen: 3 / 65 + 2/hp

Sergeants: 4 / 155 + 4/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: AV-44, Level 3, Level 4, 5-100, 6-58, 6-70, SL4-23, SL5-38, SL8-5, SL8-7, SL9-17

Guardsmen (and -women) of Set are warriors dedicated to defending Set's property and interests, and to punishing those designated by the priesthood. Ordinary guardsmen are the equivalent of 2nd-level fighters, with effective STR of 15 or 16. They typically wear scale mail and carry wooden shields, although some have been known to sport bronze breastplates. Although they don't wear official Set armor (see Arden Vul items), they do stain their normal armor red. They prefer spears, bows, and long swords.

Any given group of guardsmen is likely (50% per group, not per individual) to carry a set of bolas known as the bonds of Set. These are essentially weighted balls attached to a cord, which the guardsmen use to attempt to immobilize their enemies. An enemy hit with the bonds, and who fails to roll under their DEX on 4d6, should determine hit location (50% legs, 40% torso/arms, 10% neck): if hit in the legs, the victim will fall over and will be immobilized for 3-6 rounds; if hit in the torso arms, the victim will drop anything held in his arms, and be rendered immobile until a comrade spends 5-11 rounds freeing him/her; if hit in the neck, the victim will take 1-4 damage and will begin choking, and strangulation will come in 2-12 rounds. The bonds of Set can be broken with a successful bend bars/lift gates attempt. The bonds are difficult to learn to use (-5 to hit for the non-proficient).

Variations include elite guardsmen (3rd-level fighters) and sergeants (5th-level fighters). Set guardsmen typically possess a small amount of coin (3-18 gp).

Due to their fanatical loyalty to Set, Set guardsmen have a bonus of +1 to all saves versus hold person, sleep, and other mind-affecting spells.

SET PONTIFEXES

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: Varies
HD: 9 or more
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: By weapon
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spell use
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Fanaticism
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%
INTELLIGENCE: Exceptional
ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil
LEVEL/XP: Varies
TREASURE: As NPCs and see below
LOCATION: 4-51, 4-56, 4-57

If it is true that Set priests in general are not common, it is doubly true that Set pontifexes are even less common. As with Set acolytes and Set deacons, the pontifexes seek the defeat of 'good' gods of knowledge and magic, the acquisition of knowledge and power, and the subtle undermining of human power structures for their own purposes.

The pontifexes of the cult are the leaders and masterminds, and as a result are few in number. In Arden Vul, there are three pontifexes (the high priestess, second priest and third priest). Pontifexes are always potent name-level spell-casters, and while most are clerics, a few come from other classes, including magic users (see Marius Junienos, 4-56).

For those pontifexes classed as clerics, Set armor +2 (see Arden Vul items) is the norm. They typically employ, in addition to their was stick, an enchanted weapon (often mace +2 or +3) and several other potent magical items (two minor or one major protective item, 2 potions, and 1-2 miscellaneous items or rods/wands). Pontifexes who are magic users, such as Marius Junienos, wear a red robe, with red bracers of defense (AC 4 or 3), a ring of protection (+1 or +2), and a red cloth headdress shaped like a Set animal. They carry a potent magical staff or wand (e.g. staff of striking), several potions, several scrolls and one or two miscellaneous magical items.

All Set pontifexes, regardless of class, wear a unique ring of Set, an item both significant in its symbolism to the cult and potent in its magic (see new magic items). Due to their fanatical loyalty to Set, Set pontifexes have a bonus of +1 to all saves versus hold person, sleep, and other mind-affecting spells.

SHADOW, GREATER

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-12
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 5
HD: 5+1
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: STR, CON or DEX drain
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 75%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 5 / 470 +6/hp
TREASURE: 1-20k sp (10%), 1-12k ep (15%), 1-10k gp (40%), 100-800 pp (35%), 3-30 gems (20%), 1-10 jewelry (10%), any 3 magic items except swords or misc. weapons, + 1 potion + 1 scroll (30%)
LOCATION: 4-148, 8-8, 8-9, 8-14, 8-15

These creatures are tougher versions of the more familiar shadow. Greater shadows drain 1 point from two physical attributes per successful hit. The GM should randomly determine which two abilities - STR, CON or DEX - are those affected by a particular pack of greater shadows on a successful hit; once set, all greater shadows in the pack deal attribute loss to the same abilities for the rest of that combat. Those reduced to 0 in an attribute become regular shadows under the greater shadow's control. Greater shadows are almost undetectable in normal conditions (18 out of 20) until they attack; they are unable to enter true sunlight. They are turned as wraiths and are immune to cold, poison, paralysis, sleep, charm, and hold attacks.

SHADOW LORD

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 150'/240' flying (Class A)
AC: 4
HD: 9+3
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 2-5/2-5
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,440 + 13/hp

TREASURE: 2-12k gp (70%), 1-4 gems x4 (50%), 1 misc. magic item +1 potion (60%)

LOCATION: 8-15

Lords of the Negative Material Plane, shadow lords are usually surrounded with a unit of lesser undead. Typically this is a troop of 2-5 shadows, but zombies, skeletons and ghouls are not uncommon. In combat, the shadow lord relies upon his draining aura, spells, and minions rather than melee, but can deal 2-5 points of cold damage and drain 1 STR per hit when reduced to physical combat. Strength lost at the touch of a shadow lord returns in 2-8 turns. Any creature brought to 0 STR by a shadow lord dies and becomes a shadow in 2-8 turns.

Shadow lords can command undead like 12th-level clerics. Undead with greater than average intelligence are immune to this effect. Shadow lords turn as vampires and can cast the following spells once per day at the 16th-level of ability: augury, cause critical wounds, detect magic, dispel magic, locate object, stone tell, symbol of pain. They are immune to cold, poison, paralysis, sleep, charm, and hold attacks.

Shadow lords carry within them the heart of the Negative Material Plane and radiate an evil aura 20' in all directions. The aura has three effects upon those within it. The aura reduces any turning attempts by 2, it allows all undead to regenerate 1 hit point per round, and it drains 1 STR per round to any living creature that fails a save against paralysis. The shadow lord is affected by his own aura, meaning that turning it is done at -2 and that it regenerates 1 point per round as long as the aura is in effect. Dispel evil destroys this aura for a full 24 hours. Shadow lords are unable to enter true sunlight and are destroyed by it if unable to flee before it.

SKELETON, BLACK

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4

SIZE: M

MOVE: 120'

AC: 0

HD: 6

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: By weapon (usually 1-6)

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 45%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP: 5 / 370 +6/hp

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 4-159 to 4-162 (possible), 7-75 (possible)

These intelligent undead are quite unlike their simpler namesakes. A black skeleton may let loose a terrible shriek, and creatures within 60' and with less than 4 HD must save vs. spells or be paralyzed with fear for 2-8 rounds (50%) or panic (50%) for 2-8 rounds, fleeing as fast as possible. Creatures that make their saving throw suffer -1 to attack and damage rolls for 2-8 rounds.

Most black skeletons wield two short swords (without penalty), and 10% possess a sword of shadows (see new magic items). Good-aligned creatures hit by a black skeleton must succeed on a save vs. spells roll or temporarily lose 1-3 STR. A victim heals 1 point of STR loss per turn. If a creature is reduced to 0 STR, it returns as a shadow in the middle of the night of the next full moon. Black skeletons take ½ damage from sharp or edged weapons, but full damage from blunt weapons. Fire inflicts half damage. They are immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold-based spells, and are unaffected by poison or paralysis. Holy water inflicts 2-8 damage per vial. They are turned as ghosts.

SKELETON, ICE TOAD

FREQUENCY: Rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4

SIZE: M (4' long)

MOVE: 60' plus 60' hop

AC: 5

HD: 3

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 3-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Cold

SPECIAL DEFENSES: Edged weapons do half damage

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil

LEVEL/XP: 3 / 110 + 2/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 9-123

These monsters are undead forms of ice toads, animated by the great evil of Kauket and the Old Father (see 9-126). They are about 4' long and can hop into combat without penalty. Like ice toads, they radiate cold: once every other round they emanate a cold blast that does 2-12 HP damage to all within 10'. Without the Old Father's nearby presence, they are turned as wights, but so long as the Old Father 'lives' they are turned as spectres.

SKELETON, GIANT RUDISHVA OR VARUMANI

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-4
SIZE: L (8'-9' tall)
MOVE: 90'
AC: 2
HD: 8+8
ATTACKS: 1 or 2
DAMAGE: 3-18, or 2-8/2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Bone throwing, sonic blast
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +1 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 50%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 90%
INTELLIGENCE: Semi or very
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,700 + 12/hp
TREASURE: 1-8k cp (10%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-8k ep (15%), 1-6k gp (50%), 1-10 gems (30%), 1-6 jewelry (25%), any 2 magic items + 1 potion (15%)
LOCATION: 3-39, 3-52, 3-52A, 5-137, 5-139, 6-102, 6-163, 7-41, 7-146, 9-91, SL7-13

These creatures are formed from rudishva or varumani bodies, and are thus large in size; they also display at least one of the features that marked the original being as alien: e.g., tusks, or small curved horns, or a tail. Two varieties of these fearsome warriors exist. One sort is intelligent, and can scheme, plan, and strategize. Only a tiny handful of such skeletons exist, as they are the product of voluntary experimentation by living survivors of the rudishva collapse (e.g., Artax-Ris, at 3-39). The more common sort is semi-intelligent, and are suitable for guardian or servitor duties. The semi-intelligent skeletons were created from the remains of already dead crewmembers of the Beacon, using a rudishva hyperbaric chamber (see new technological items) and some rudimentary necromancy.

All giant skeletons can still speak, albeit only in the most guttural form of Glyphik; their 'voices' sound as deep sonic blasts of force, and can stun the unwary (save versus spells to avoid). The intelligent sort can obviously carry out sophisticated conversations, whereas the semi-intelligent sort typically can utter only a limited number of phrases.

Giant skeletons attack either with a large weapon for 3-18 damage or by hurling pieces of their own skeleton (e.g. ulnae, femurs) as missiles (2-8/2-8). The necromantic magicks used in creation of these monstrosities ensure that new bones appear instantly in the place of any hurled ones.

Giant skeletons take ½ damage from sharp or edged weapons, but full damage from blunt weapons. Fire inflicts half damage.

They are immune to sleep, charm, hold, and cold-based spells, and are unaffected by poison or paralysis. Due their necromantic origin holy water inflicts 1-4 damage per vial, but as they are not truly undead, giant skeletons cannot be turned.

GM Note: As noted above, giant skeletons are the results of experimentation by the rudishva survivors after the surprise attack that destroyed their hegemony. When the survivors broke into factions, and Melok-Ri (SL10A-32) and the Arena Lord (6-85) managed to obtain the only two remaining portable medical units (see new technological items), the remaining survivors experimented with alternate means of prolonging life. Psalor-Ki (5-74) and Artax-Ris (3-39) attempted to use hyperbaric chambers in conjunction with some now-lost kaliyani sorcery to extend life.

Their results were partially successful, in that they did prevent final death in their subjects. The problem was that the subjects were also gradually transformed into giant rudishva skeletons. One such subject was Artax-Ris himself; he and a few other living subjects found their intellects preserved while their bodies were transformed. When no other survivors were willing to undergo that sort of transformation, Psalor-Ki continued to experiment, this time using the (plentiful) corpses of his former crewmates. Use of the hyperbaric chamber with a form of necromancy produced the semi-intelligent variety of giant rudishva skeleton.

SKINK, CAVE

FREQUENCY: Uncommon
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 15-30
SIZE: S (3' long)
MOVE: 120'
AC: 7
HD: 2
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 1-6
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Toxic mucus
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 2 / 40 + 1/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 3-218, 7-60, 7-61, 9-144, 9-145, 9-149

These underground scavengers are typically grey, with brown splotches, and grow to be about 3' long. They move swiftly along floors and walls, and will typically swarm prey. Cave skinks possess a toxic mucus on their skin and tongues. If the skin is touched, one must save versus poison or develop a fever and a severe rash which reduces CON by 2 for 3-6 days. Hit location should be determined; if on exposed flesh, the tongue will inflict the same sort of rash.

SLIME, HEQETI

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-20
SIZE: S (1'-3' diameter)
MOVE: Varies (see chart)
AC: 6

HD: 2

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: Varies

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 15%

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: Variable

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 5-104, 6-118-21, 6-165, 7-7, 8-157, 9-46, 10-44, SL10A-29, SL10B-17

These slimes are non-sentient and may or may not be motile. See charts below for color, motility, and function. They are typically small in size, with 2 HD, although a GM could decide otherwise for both statistics. Most do not have a formal 'attack' sequence, but rather have a dedicated function (see chart). About 50% are corrosive to metal, wood or leather (roll 1d4: 1: to metal, 2: to wood, 3: to leather, 4: to all three), although the GM should determine this based on context and the function of the slime in question. Most are healed 2-12 HP per successful hit by electricity or laser fire, while they are slowed (½ movement) by cold and are susceptible to fire (+1 damage/die). Ultimately the GM can make up any other kind of slime that is desired (e.g. the special slime at SL10A-29).

The appearance and effect of any given heqeti slime can be determined by rolling twice on the appearance table, once on the motility table, and once on the effects table:

D10	Color	Consistency
1	Purple	Jelly-like
2	Yellow maize	Oily and thick
3	Burnt orange	Non-stick and compact
4	Rust	Like melted butter
5	Electric blue	Gluey, like peanut butter
6	'Rainbow', i.e., shimmering	Quicksilver-like
7	Blue-black	Watery
8	Sickly green	Liquid but adhesive
9	Off-white with greenish motes	Gelatin-like
10	Pale lavender	Oily and runny

D8	Motility
1	No independent movement
2	Slow creeping (5' per round)
3	Faster creeping (10' per round)
4	Travel by pseudopod (15' per round)
5	Travel by pseudopod (20' per round)
6	Spore-born, with fast growth after movement
7	Only motile (20' per round) on/in liquids
8	Only motile (5' per round) on carbon-based substances (i.e., immobile on stone)

D20	Effect
1	Flesh-eating, lesser: 1-6 damage per round for 4-7 rounds.
2	Flesh-eating, greater: 2-12 damage instantly, will kill if not scraped off in 2 rounds
3	Flesh-animating: kills by covering flesh in 4-7 rounds, animates body as a heqeti slime zombie (see new monsters)
4	Poison: seeps into pores and poisons from within, die in 3-18 days
5	Metal-eating: consumes metal objects in 1 round; magic items get save
6	Epidermis-transforming: changes victim's skin to scales, feathers, or fur (33% of each); 25% of epidermis transformed per hit
7	Spore-thrower: vapors carry spores which infect lungs and bloodstream; death in 3-18 days
8	Message-carrier: any message spoken loudly and clearly will be absorbed by the slime; when touched by living flesh, it will repeat the message
9	Coagulant: turns up to 30 gallons of any normal liquid into a solid, including blood (even blood still coursing through vessels: death in 1-3 rounds unless purify food &amp; drink, purify water, or cure disease applied)
10	Blocker: forms impermeable seal over any aperture up to 2' in diameter (including, keyholes, a being's mouth and nose, spyholes, etc.)
11	Plague-bringer, lesser: inflicts painful (-1 to all rolls) boils and scabs which last for 1-3 months; highly infectious
12	Plague-bringer, greater: inflicts painful boils (-1 to all rolls) for 1-3 days, after which death; highly infectious
13	Mind-altering, mild: causes severe hallucinations for 7-12 hours
14	Mind-altering, serious: permanent change in gender, alignment, racial self-perception, etc.
15	Symbiotic, passive: attaches self to skin at base of spine, sends locator signals to heqeti within 250'
16	Symbiotic, active: attaches self to skin at base of spine, attempts to control motor functions (save vs spells each day)
17	Water-activated Poison Gas: on contact with fresh water this slime exudes a toxic poison which kills in 1-4 hours; it also causes extreme thirst
18	Gills: wraps around neck and produces gills; host must spend at least 4 hours a day in water; can breathe under water
19	Explosive: explodes for 6-36 damage to all within 30' radius if jostled more than slightly. Motile varieties explode at will.
20	Greek Fire: explodes for 3-18 damage in a 30' radius, coats those who don't save with burning slime for another 1-6 per round for 1-4 rounds. Motile varieties choose when to explode.

SLIME KRAKEN

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (20+' long)
MOVE: 120' swimming
AC: 4
HD: 7
ATTACKS: 7 (6 pseudopods and a beak)
DAMAGE: 1-8(x6)/1-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Stunning slime
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Regeneration
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 6 / 745 + 8/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 3-71

Slime krakens are magical entities composed of mud and slime that sorcerers and cultists animate in order to use as guardians. These foul creatures are bound to specially prepared pits of slime or corrupted water.

Within such a prepared location the slime kraken can produce up to 6 pseudopods of muck per round; pseudopods can strike targets up to 30' away with surprising speed and accuracy, attempting to immobilize victims and drag them back to the central beak to be devoured. If the slime kraken's prey withdraws beyond 30' it will, after 1 round, sink back into its basin where its AC rises to -3. Should prey return within range, the slime kraken will re-form its pseudopods within 1 round. Crafty PCs may attempt to sever a pseudopod; to do so they must inflict ¼ of the slime kraken's total HP in one blow.

The pseudopods (and main 'body') of a slime kraken are covered with a viscous mucus membrane which is mildly toxic to most inhabitants of the Prime Material Plane. Those hit by a pseudopod must make a save versus poison at +2 or be stunned for 1-3 rounds (hits by multiple pseudopods are cumulative).

An immobilized creature may be dragged 10' per round by a pseudopod. Each additional pseudopod that assists in grappling adds 10'/rd to that rate of dragging. A victim who recovers from immobilization can attempt to break free from the pseudopod by rolling 3d6 under STR, although the test becomes more difficult (by adding 1d6 to roll) for each additional pseudopod.

A slime kraken can regenerate lost HP slowly, at a rate of 1-6 per turn. For each ¼ of the original HP total that the slime kraken recovers, it regenerates a lost pseudopod. Example: A party of adventurers encounters a slime kraken of 36 HP and deals 18 HP damage (severing two pseudopods) before fleeing. For every 9 hp that the slime kraken regenerates (at a rate of 1-6/turn), it regains a pseudopod.

SPACE SQUID

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (12' long)
MOVE: 20'/120' flying (Class D)
AC: 3
HD: 16

ATTACKS: 7
DAMAGE: 1-8(x6)/6-36
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 35%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 9 / 9,700 + 20/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL1-9, SL12-11

Two specimens of this strange species were captured in the low atmosphere of an alien world by the crew of the Beacon, who named them the 'space squids'. They appear as 12'-long cylinders of a translucent, pulsating membrane, flecked with yellow. The front end of the cylinder is ringed with six tentacles, each 12' long and made from the same translucent material. The rear end of the cylinder tapers to a cone. The creature moves by absorbing solar radiation through its permeable 'skin' and pushing it through the cylinder; it also feeds on the same radiation. This passive 'eating' allows it to move lazily through the exosphere, dropping into lower layers of atmosphere to feed on other calorie-dense entities. Feeding gives it an energy burst, propelling it at up twice its usual movement rate for up to 1 turn.

A space squid lacks eyes and olfactory organs; instead it senses changes in electric fields and uses those variations to hone in on potential prey. Once potential prey has been detected, the creature uses its stinging tentacles to stun the prey and direct it into the open end of its cylindrical body. Within, the solar radiation captured in the creature's body is magnified into an incredibly high level of heat, cooking and mostly disintegrating the prey before expelling any detritus out its conical rear. It lacks a true nervous system, so it is impossible to target a head.

The creature's translucent 'skin' appears fragile, but is relatively tough (AC 3). Its consumption of solar radiation also renders it partly immune to magic (MR 35%). Its six tentacles deliver stinging attacks worth 1-8 HP damage each; if two or more hit the same target on the same round, that target must save vs poison or be stunned (a penalty of -1 to the saving throw is assessed for each tentacle beyond two that hit in the same round). Stunned prey is stuffed into the main cylinder of the beast, where it receives 4-24 hp of intense heat damage per round.

Without access to solar radiation, a space squid becomes slightly less dangerous: it loses the ability to fly, and flops about with a move of 20'; in addition, the damage inflicted by the main cylinder is reduced (3-18 hp per round).

Space squids are sensitive to electricity: attacks that deal electrical damage do double damage. Conversely they are immune to cold- and heat-based attacks.

SPAWN, ICHOR

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-10
SIZE: M
MOVE: 60'
AC: 6
HD: 3
ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 1-8/1-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Ichor spray
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 3 / 65 + 2/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 5-67, 5-68, 6-58, 6-70

These foul beings are the creation of the mad rudishva vivisectionist, Psalor-Ki, and are only encountered in the middle levels of the Halls of Arden Vul. Although Psalor-Ki creates them from the corpses of dead humanoids and reanimates them with his special purple puddings, they are not undead, and thus cannot be turned by clerics. Like zombies, these creatures are quite slow (attacking last in a round), and they can only obey the simplest of commands ("Attack intruders!").

Ichor spawn are always composite in form, as Psalor-Ki stitches them together from the rotting pieces of whatever human, demi-human or humanoid bodies were at hand; despite this variation, all share a faint purplish tinge and a sickly sheen of moisture on their skin. They attack with two powerful slam attacks.

If wounded for more than 8 points of damage in a single blow, a spray of purple ichor pulses from the ichor spawn; if the spray hits (roll a new attack), it does 2-12 damage and corrodes metal or leather in a round. Wood is not corroded, and enchanted metal gets a save.

SPRIGGAN, ARDEN VUL

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6
SIZE: S (3' tall) or L (9' tall)
MOVE: 90' (150')
AC: 4 (5)
HD: 5 (8+3)
ATTACKS: 1 (2)
DAMAGE: By weapon (2-12/2-12)
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Spell-like powers
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 33%
INTELLIGENCE: Average
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic (neutral or evil)
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,000 + 12/hp
TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%), 2-8 potions (40%)
LOCATION: 4-2 (possible), 7-62, 8-155, 9-99

Unlike the traditional humanoid spriggans, Arden Vul spriggans are creatures of faery and pure magic, whose identity is strongly connected to earth and stone. Arden Vul spriggans take two forms. Normally they appear as similar to any number of small fey, that is, as 3'-tall bipeds with sharp teeth and elongated nose, ears, fingers and toes. When angered or threatened, however, they can instantly assume a giant size (stats in parentheses above).

They attack either by small knife (in small form) or twin fists (in giant form). In addition to these attacks, they can use the following spell-like abilities regardless of form, one at a time and once per round: affect normal fires, faerie fire, trip, detect magic, and shatter. Once per day they can cause confusion through babbling and banging rocks together when in small form: saves are reduced by 1 for each additional AV spriggan causing confusion, up to a maximum of a -3 penalty to saves.

Arden Vul spriggans are immune to poison, charm, and mind-affecting spells. They are also immune to magic missiles, and indeed are healed by such energies such that half of the supposed damage of the spell is added to their HP total (although such 'healing' can never increase the spriggan's HP total beyond its regular maximum).

Arden Vul spriggans are enthralled by magic and are particularly eager to inspect, steal or otherwise acquire magic items from visitors; they commonly use their detect magic ability to suss out potential objects of interest. Of course they can be tricked by simple dweomers cast on ordinary rocks, provided the magic user doing the tricking has a suitably interesting story to accompany the 'magic rock'. If magic items are not forthcoming, they may attempt to steal any objects so detected: in small form, they have the following thief skills: PP 75%, OL 78%, FRT 70%, MS 77%, HS 64%, HN 35%, CW 81%, RL 40%.

As fey creatures, Arden Vul spriggans are alien in mindset and temperament. While they enjoy debates with humans (and demi-humans), particularly about magic, about famous stones or rock formations, and about unusual creatures, those debates almost always turn contentious; once a debate has turned into a dispute, the spriggans are likely to begin causing confusion prior to turning giant sized and smiting their annoying guests.

Very clever humans have been known, however, to trick groups of Arden Vul spriggans into promising something; once this promise is given, the spriggans are generally bound to keep their word, although they will attempt to twist any such vow to their own benefit. Generally it is easiest to trick spriggans into making a vow by engaging in comparisons and light boasting, or by offering magic in return for carefully worded vows.

Arden Vul spriggans encountered in the wild may either be traveling on their own purpose or be bound to a location by choice or vow. If the latter, it is common for them to appear initially as a group of sprightly little people relaxing around a campfire. Visitors will be treated kindly to begin with, although as stated above the spriggans can turn nasty very quickly.

STONE SLIME

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: S
MOVE: 0'
AC: 9
HD: 3
ATTACKS: 0
DAMAGE: None
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 6 / 700 + 2/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL9-9

Stone slime is the second life stage of the metamorphosis of green slime into gray ooze. Once a colony of green slime grows large enough it encases itself in a series of rock-hard cysts that eventually split open, revealing the much smaller stone slime. If the stone slime manages to grow large enough, it repeats the process, but emerges in its final state: gray ooze.

Stone slime is a mottled gray, like the typical granite of subterranean tunnels and caves. When attached to living flesh, will turn a victim into stone slime in 1-3 melee rounds. It can consume wood slowly, but eats metal quickly (2 rounds). It can be scraped off, frozen, or burned. Cure disease kills it. Other forms of attack do not harm it.

SUMUKSU (soo-MOOK-soo)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L
MOVE: 30'
AC: 3
HD: 10
ATTACKS: 4
DAMAGE: 2-8 (x4)
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 15%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 20%
INTELLIGENCE: Semi
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,800 + 13/hp
TREASURE: 1-6k cp (25%), 1-6k sp (40%), 1-6k ep (40%), 1-10k gp (55%), 100-400 pp (25%), 4-40 gems (60%), 3-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (30%)
LOCATION: 6-121

Also known as the spawn of Rimmaq-Isfet, these fearsome entities are tightly connected to that terrible gnawing deity. Heqeti lore speaks of the miraculous appearance of seven such monstrosities at the climax of their until-then futile wars against the rudishva starfarers. Whether the heqeti weavers managed to breed the sumuksu through a lucky break in their sorcerous alchemy, or whether Rimmaq-Isfet himself loaned seven of his minions to the heqeti is still debated among the amphibian-folk.

Sumuksu are sentient, but alien. That is, they are capable of a degree of strategic planning and goal realization, but are not fully rational in the usual sense. They take the form of enormous mounds of mottled green-and-brown slime, and move slowly due their bulk. They can form up to four pseudopods at a time, which lash out at enemies up to 30' away (or to grab/snatch objects). If two pseudopods hit the same target, the victim will be pulled into the main body of the slime in 1-3 rounds. Only by successfully rolling 4d6 under STR can a victim break this grasp. Anyone brought to the main body is engulfed by the slimy mass, and takes 2-12 caustic damage per round until death. Others can try to pull an engulfed victim from the sumuksu by successfully rolling 3d6+2 under STR; such endeavors also inflict 1-4 damage on the would-be rescuers as the creature's toxic slime burns the rescuer's skin.

In addition to their fearsome combat abilities, sumuksu can brew new, non-sentient heqeti slimes, which they then 'burp' out into the world. In lieu of a pseudopod, the slime creature can create one such slime per round during combat; in such conditions, the type of slime produced is random. In non-combat situations the sumuksu can produce whatever lesser slime it likes (see heqeti slimes – new monsters).

Their body slime is toxic to most carbon-based life forms, and is also capable of corroding metal, plastic, and plasteel. Any substance (armor, weapon, equipment) so touched must make an item saving throw or be destroyed (use 'acid' column). A sumuksu can choose to subtly alter the chemistry of its outer slime to prevent or mitigate such corrosion. They are partially immune to fire and cold (½ damage from each form), and are healed of 2-12 HP per successful hit by electricity or laser energy. They are immune to charm, hold, and all mind-based spells.

SUN-SCARRED KNIGHT

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: -2
HD: By class and level. Knights have reached at least the 9th level of experience, with older knights at levels 10-15. They tend to be fighters, although multi-class fighters are possible.
ATTACKS: 3/2 or 2/1 (by level)
DAMAGE: By weapon plus strength bonus
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Sun lance, solar ring, circlet of command
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Gothic armor, backpack of capacity, 33% damage resistance to fire, cold and electricity; regenerate 2hp/rd
MAGIC RESISTANCE:
LAIR PROBABILITY: 50%
INTELLIGENCE: Exceptional
ALIGNMENT: Lawful (neutral mostly)
LEVEL/XP: Varies
TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 3-131, 6-39, 7-75, 7-76A, 7-81, 8-116, SL4-19, Sub-Level 10

The Sun-Scarred Knights are a strange order of knights who dwell only to dwell in the caverns underneath the halls of Arden Vul. The order numbers 14 named knights under the rule of the shadowy Master Malachite, who never leaves the inner chambers of the Order (for full details see the introduction of Sub-level 10). The Order is ancient, and legend has it that its name comes from the fact that the founder and his initial disciples had been scarred somehow by sunlight, and had thus retreated beneath the Halls to avoid further injury. Current members do boast ritual scars burned onto their faces, but these scars are now inflicted within the Halls as part of the ritual of initiation.

The knights also possess a small force of auxiliaries, known as the varlets; they are always interested in adding young boys and girls to the ranks of the varlets so as to ensure a supply of future knights. Those young recruits must be willing and able to spend the rest of their lives in cloistered obscurity beneath the surface of Arden Vul. No one is sure what happens to varlets who never make it to the rank of knight.

The knights are formidable foes, as they possess impressive suits of armor and powerful magic weapons. They mostly travel by themselves through the Halls, on particular quests for the Master of the order (a 15th-level fighter), but are sometimes accompanied by one or more varlets. Although the collective needs of the Order are always paramount, the knights are highly individualized in their particular goals and agendas, with individual knights pursuing their own projects, some of which may last decades. Indeed, although all knights must be lawful and swear powerful oaths to support the interests of the Master above all else, there is wide divergence in alignment, personality, and degree of interest in the other denizens of the Halls on the part of each knight.

Intelligent creatures in the Halls respect, and often fear them. Individual knights may often act as advisors to such groups (goblins, beastmen, the cult of Set, the troll thegn, or the Skreel lizardmen) for indeterminate periods of time, all the while furthering his/her own goals. Such advice is usually coveted by the factions of the Halls, since these factions imagine they can gain advantage through a knight's wisdom and might. All such denizens recognize, however, that to count on such advice is dangerous, since the knights can and will abandon their charges according to their own, often untimely, schedules. The arrival of a Sun-Scarred Knight in any of the precincts of the Halls is thus cause for anxiety, hope, and alarm.

Upon joining the Order, each knight takes a new name. The name may honor some previous knight or impressive ancient hero (Sir Simonet, Sir Larel, etc.), it may represent an allegorical virtue or vice (like Sir Prudence, Sir Sorrow, Sir Philautia, Sir Discord, Sir Spes, etc.), or it may be cryptic (as with Sir Sixth and Sir Hegemon). The communities of Arden Vul assume that a knight keeps his/her name for his/her lifetime, but there is no way to be sure that knights do not change their names as it suits them. Although many attempts have been made to explain the choice of a knight's name by the character of his/her actions, this has always proven fruitless, for knights do not consistently practice heroism or asceticism, nor do they insist on particular behavior in others. It is assumed that the naming of knights is connected to the inner rites of the Order, and perhaps to ancient tradition and/or the needs of the Master.

Although the knights customarily wear their gothic armor when abroad in the Halls, thereby obscuring their bodies, it is widely known that the knights accept recruits of all races and gender. It is not impossible for there to be a goblin or beastman knight (albeit one of surpassing intelligence and ability), as well as the more customary human knights. Still, it is more common to encounter human knights. The denizens of the halls have learned to their chagrin, however, that the race of a particular knight confers no special preference for any of the factions within Arden Vul. Female knights are common, and are addressed with the same honorific, "Sir".

The knights are known to dwell in a hidden complex deep within Arden Vul (Sub-Level 10), and passing mention of the Knights' Hall, the Master's Sanctum, the Chapter House, and the Solar Chapel have become inscribed in the lore of knowledgeable denizens and explorers of Arden Vul. The precise location of their headquarters is the subject of much speculation and gossip, even though none are so bold as to discuss their theories in the presence of the knights.

Encounters with the knights should almost always start out civilly: the knights prefer to only engage when they believe no other avenue of pursuit is superior or when their interests are obviously served by combat. The knights should be developed as a secret faction with logical agendas of their own. Those agendas may not necessarily, at least at first, have anything to do with the PCs; indeed, a knight who happened to encounter a low-level party (an unusual fact in and of itself, since the knights venture abroad in the Upper Halls only rarely) is just as likely to politely ignore the PCs as to engage them in combat or even conversation.

Motives and Agendas

When encountered outside of their sept, individual knights will possess one of each of the following characteristics. A GM may create their own to fit the rhythms of his/her campaign, or can roll on one of the tables.

Personal Interests: A knight will have 2-6 interests. These can run the gamut, and may include subjects that are historical, psychological, artistic, linguistic, cultural, magical, botanical, religious, and so forth. While some interests are generic and comprehensible, at least one interest is always unusual, even idiosyncratic. The following tables offer just a few examples of potential interests:

3d6	Generic
3	The Beacon
4	Larel One-Eye
5	Grief, causes and manifestations
6	Anger
7	Sleep
8	Mushrooms
9	Cavern fauna
10	Leadership styles
11	Forgotten deities
12	Demons
13	Descendants of Mithric
14	Mithric poetry

15	Varumani mating rituals
16	Thothian frescoes
17	Scrying magic
18	Gender norms

2d6	Unusual
3	The color blue
4	Red hair
5	Pupil size
6	Half-moons in art and sculpture
7	The nap of various hides
8	Sword hilts
9	Paleography of the Archontean Golden Age
10	Toe-size in hominids
11	Cinnamon
12	The taste of rock-dust(s)
13	Taxonomy of goblin noses

Weakness

Every knight has one flaw, or weakness. How strong a weakness is for the GM to decide. Remember, though, that all the knights are self-assured, canny veterans of years of conflict-ridden living in the Halls, and are thus unlikely to reveal their weakness easily. Weaknesses can be material, psychological, morphological, or intellectual; in any case, though, the weakness will not be a simple and obvious one (like 'gold'), since even a knight would not survive long in the Halls with an obvious flaw. Weaknesses serve, in terms of mechanics, as a way of softening a knight's resolve; that is, playing on a knight's weakness is likely to produce positive results, at least in the short term.

3d4	Weakness
3	Grieving, brown-haired people
4	Iambic pentameter
5	Vengeance in the pursuit of love
6	Gold solidi from the reign of Sertius IV
7	Arrogance, in pursuit of noble purposes
8	Honest (as opposed to secret) venality
9	Sugary treats
10	Chaotic goblins
11	Betrayal
12	Love songs
13	Taxonomy of goblin noses

Objective

A knight's objective is assigned by the entire chapter of the sept, and must be approved by the Master himself. Objectives are complex, as the Master is particularly adept at pursuing long-term, contingent policies. An objective may seem simple, but in such cases it is undoubtedly only one step in the sept's larger goals. It is also the case that while the knights are agents of the Master and the Chapter, they are also individuals, with their own goals.

It is thus particularly difficult to randomize objectives. The GM should think hard about what objectives are appropriate for the sept as a whole in his/her campaign, and about whether or how an individual knight be currently pursuing those objectives. Recall, too, that the name adopted by a knight when he/she appears in the Halls is likely connected to his/her objective.

This table lists categories of objectives followed by a small handful of example specific objectives.

D12	Objective (category)
1	Support/undermine a leader/faction
2	Modify cultural/religious belief
3	Locate an artifact
4	Cause/prevent a conflict
5	Enhance sept's reputation through heroic deeds
6	Misdirection
7	Intelligence gathering
8	Recruitment
9	Acquisition of arcanum (see new magic items)
10	Foil plans of another power
11	Assassination
12	Corrupt a group

Sample of Detailed Objectives:

Misdirection: Sir Simonet is wandering the upper halls without apparent direction, slaying vermin, undead, and any who confront him, but avoiding overt conflict with intelligent foes. Although Simonet has a personal interest in late-period Archontean frescoes and religious secrets, his mission is to cause enough 'noise' to distract from the more important mission of one of his brethren, Sir Sixth, who is using stealth to locate a lost artifact on Level 6.

Support: Sir Sorrow has moved in with Weskenim, the goblin king, in order to prop him up in the face of competition from High Priestess Stephanica and Phlebotomas Plumthorn. Sorrow is adept at subtle forms of suasion and psychological manipulation, and is content to direct Weskenim in new directions that may enhance his people's security and standing. Sorrow uses her considerable charisma to manipulate grief and the potential for grief (hence her name) in these efforts.

Locate: Sir Sixth, see 6-39.

Undermine: Sir Prudence has been stationed at the court of the troll thegn (7-30) for years as a permanent advisor and watcher. Recently he has received orders to undermine Varboka's authority, and in particular to prevent Varboka from moving against the goblins. Prudence has interests in varumani mating rituals (which he has still never witnessed), in the reasons why no varumani have ever been tapped as knights, and in the particular tactile qualities of the skins of all manner of creatures.

Recruitment: The knights are always on the lookout for smart, morally-neutral young recruits from any species to add to the ranks of varlets. In addition to his undermine mission, Sir Prudence is also a reliable recruiter for the knights, and has been known to use his considerable persuasive abilities to convince young members of NPC adventuring groups to consider a career/lifetime as a knight. He has a well-known soft spot for cheerful grifters and cheats, so long as he is not the victim.

Equipment

Gothic Armor (also see new technological items): all Sun-Scarred Knights possess suits of plate armor fashioned out of a strange black substance that is as hard as steel but as light as cloth. The armor varies in form, but commonly features elaborate gold- or silver-chasings worked into the arm and leg pieces and decorative extrusions on the shoulders and helmet (like Polish winged hussar armor). All suits show the symbol of the Order, a setting (or rising?) sun, on the breast plate. The armor is highly effective, granting a base AC of -2. It also provides a 33% reduction of damage taken from fire, cold, and electricity. The helms provide immunity to gas (and bliss pollen – see Level 8). Suits grant fast recovery of wounds: regeneration of 2 pts/round. A few suits are reputed to crackle with their own electricity, acting as shocking grasp (10th-level, 11-18 damage) spells to those who touch them.

Sun Lance (also see new technological items): all knights carry 4 lances. The business end is formed of a black metal alloy, with a slot in it into which a silver metallic disk may be slipped (for charges). The metallic end is attached to a handle of varying substance (more metal, or wood, or even ivory). The sun lance can discharge a powerful burning ray of variable power: 1 charge (2-12 heat damage), 2 charges (4-24), 3 charges (6-36). It can also be used to inflict a burst of fiery energy (4 charges) which will do 6-36 damage to everyone in a 25' radius.

Solar Ring (also see new magic items): all knights wear these copper rings set with a silver scarab beetle on top of their gauntlets. Solar rings have various powers: at will they can produce sunlight in a 50' radius; at will they act as rings of feather fall, or rings of jumping; finally, they can also produce an air bubble around the head of the wearer which will permit travel under water for a period of 1 day.

Circlet of Command (also see new magic items): these platinum circlets set with a single emerald are typically worn underneath a knight's helmet. The circlets allow knights to, at will, 1) detect alignment; 2) detect lies; 3) issue commands (3/day); and 4) charm person or monster (2/day). All of these effects operate as if cast by a 10th-level caster.

Backpack of Capacity (also see new magic items): all knights wear these backpacks that can carry 10x the normal weight without encumbrance when moving through the Halls.

In addition to the magic items listed above, knights also wear and employ a mundane or magical weapon: typically a thin, but exceptionally strong sword, or hand axes.

Current Sun-Scarred Knights

Sir Simonet (10th-level male Archontean fighter, 3-131)
Sir Sixth (12th-level male Thorcin fighter, 6-39)
Sir Prudence (9th-level male Wisikin fighter, 7-75, 7-76A)
Sir Sorrow (11th-level female Wisikin fighter, SL4-19)
Sir Calculor (10th-level male Archontean fighter, 4-2; Level 5, random encounters; 6-2; 6-58; Sub-Level 6, random encounters)
Sir Mendacity (13th-level female Thorcin fighter, 7-81)
Sir Discord (11th-level male Wisikin fighter, 8-116)
Sir Spes (9th-level female beastman fighter, SL10A-24)
Sir Larel (13th-level male Thorcin fighter, SL10A-22)
Sir Ennius (7th/9th-level female high elf fighter/magic user, SL10A-21)
Sir Hegemon (12th-level female Thorcin fighter, SL10A-21)
Sir Hazel (9th-level male hill dwarf fighter, SL10A-18)
Sir Philautia (13th-level female Archontean fighter, SL10B-2)
Sir Vambrace (11th-level male Wisikin fighter, SL10B-2)
Master Malachite (aka Melok-Ri, rudishva vampire), the Master (SL10A-32)

TASHIBLIS (tah-SHEE-blees)

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (8' tall)
MOVE: 120'
AC: 1
HD: 8+8
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 4-11
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: +2 or better weapon to hit
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 35%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,250 + 10/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 9-34

Tashiblis ('stone-demon') is a repurposed rudishva animated construct of the stone nataraja form. It was abandoned during the rudishva collapse and 'converted' into a heqeti guardian by the great heqeti builder, Hossqip. While it retains many of its original features, Hossqip added some new ones.

Tashiblis takes the form of the four-armed dancer. It hops from one leg to another, with its four arms arrayed in a nimbus around its body; one arm holds a scimitar, one holds a small drum, one a fire pot, and the fourth is empty. The head is carved in a rictus of a grin, with almond-shaped eyes, pointed ears, two small horns, and a round pillbox cap.

Its main attack is via the stone scimitar (4-11 HP), but every round it also can use its empty hand to either beat the small drum, or toss a small fireball from its fire pot, or emit a rainbow bolt from its open hand.

The drum resounds with a sharp, bass retort that radiates outward in a 20' radius; any caught within the sonic range must save versus spells or stumble from the shock, thereby losing their action for the round.

The fire pot provides an endless supply of small balls of fire that Tashiblis can throw up to 30' with each ball of fire doing 4-24 damage to a single target; if the target saves versus breath weapons it takes ½ damage.

The rainbow bolt has a 60' range and steals spells from its target if they fail a save versus spells. It steals 1 3rd level, 2 2nd level, or 3 1st level spells (starting with the highest level that is available for theft). The round after the spells are stolen, Tashiblis releases all of its stolen spells in addition to its normal action, with beneficial spells applied to itself and detrimental spells applied to enemies. Tashiblis is treated as a living creature for purposes of beneficial spells: for example, it could release cure light wounds upon itself and heal lost hit points were it to steal that spell.

Once every 3 rounds Tashiblis can breathe a sheet of fire in an arc 30' wide that extends 40' in front of it; anyone caught in the sheet must save vs breath weapons or take 5-30 damage and risk having one's flammable possessions catch fire.

Tashiblis may only be hit by +2 weapons or better, and has improved magic resistance compared to the standard rudishva stone nataraja. If Tashiblis is brought to 0 or fewer HP, it collapses into a pile of rubble; the objects it carries all crumble as well, save for the pillbox cap (which may be used as a cap).

TRITON, GIANT SEA

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-3
SIZE: L (10' long)
MOVE: 30'
AC: 0 or 4
HD: 12
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 6-24
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: None
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,900 + 16/hp
TREASURE: None (see below)
LOCATION: SL13-10G

These giant sea snails grow up to 10' in size, with commensurate (and beautiful) shells. Tritons are predators, feasting on other crustaceans, mollusks, and whatever else they can trap. Although slow, they count on the armor provided by their shells to allow them to close with most prey. Once within range their muscular feet grip prey while their raspy tongue saws them open. Upon the first bite a paralyzing saliva is injected, and the giant triton can slurp away at the soft tissues without struggle.

A successful hit indicates that the snail has grabbed ahold and begun sawing with its tongue; the tongue does 6-24 damage, and the victim must save versus paralyzation or be held immobile. If successful in paralyzing their prey, the snails inflict 6-24 damage automatically every round until the victim is dead.

Given their size, giant tritons can swallow whole any creature under 5' in height; any to hit roll that succeeds by more than 3 on a d20 indicates the snail has swallowed such prey. Once a victim has been swallowed, the snail's stomach automatically inflicts 6-36 damage per round. Swallowed victims may attempt to fight their way out of the stomach, but their to hit rolls are reduced by one for each round they are in the snail's stomach.

The shells of giant tritons provide formidable protection (AC 0), but the soft body of the snail is easier to hit (AC 4). Giant tritons are typically inexorable, enduring the blows of faster foes until they can corner and devour their prey. An intact giant triton shell can bring 5,000-10,000 gp depending on the quality of the specimen.

TROLL, ARDEN VUL

See varumani, bestial

VARUDA, PRIMITIVE (vah-ROO-dah)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 5-60
SIZE: M (6' tall)
MOVE: 90'/90' glide (Class E)
AC: 7 or 6
HD: 2-3
ATTACKS: 2 or by weapon
DAMAGE: 1-4/1-4
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 80%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral
LEVEL/XP:
2 HD: 2 / 30 + 1/hp
3 HD: 2 / 50 + 2/hp
TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)
LOCATION: 5-111, 5-119A

A small tribe of debased varuda exists within Arden Vul. They are the sorry remnants of a great starfaring race, one of the four peoples that comprised the rudishva hegemony. Varuda appear as spindly, bipedal bird-men. They have pointed ears, a curved beak, a membrane between their backs and arms, and impressive, multi-colored, feathered head-combs. Although they cannot fly, they are capable of gliding for 90'. Statistics are given for ordinary mature varuda. These varuda employ primitive stone weaponry, mostly axes and clubs. Those primitive varuda that live to an advanced age gain some small advantage: they have 3 HD and are AC 6.

Due to almost three millennia of inbreeding, the primitive varuda are significantly less advanced, behaving much like primitive humans. Their lives are engaged in a constant cycle of preening and efforts to gain tiny increments of social prestige through impressive display and victory in elaborate, but non-lethal, ritual combats. Their society is cripplingly conservative, and even if exposed to the outside they will be slow to expand outside their ancestral cavern.

VARUMANI, BESTIAL (vah-roo-MAHN-ee)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 3-8

SIZE: L (9' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: 4

HD: 8

ATTACKS: 3

DAMAGE: 3-6/3-6/3-10

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 20%

INTELLIGENCE: Semi to low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 850 + 10/hp

TREASURE: 1-12k cp (20%), 1-6k sp (30%), 1-4k ep (10%), 1-6 gems (25%), 1-3 jewelry (20%), any 2 magic items (10%)

LOCATION: 5-55, 6-1, 6-3, 6-5, 6-157, 6-159, 6-160, 7-1, 7-8, 7-91, 7-93, 7-94, 7-96, 7-97, 7-99, 7-101-106, 7-128, 8-136, 9-8, 9-22-23, 10-39, SL6-47

These hulking creatures are the simple-minded products of centuries of inbreeding among the varumani, along with unfortunate out-breeding between varumani and 'ordinary' trolls. The result is a being that is as big and strong as a true or lesser varumani, but far less intelligent; indeed, bestial varumani, or as they are frequently called, 'Arden Vul trolls,' are barely capable of speech. For centuries these creatures were exiled from the thegn's court when their bestial nature was discovered, but recently, due to shrinking numbers of true and lesser varumani, the thegn has been forced to allow some of them to remain in the varumani precincts. These bestial varumani resent their lesser status and have proven to be nothing but trouble for the thegn. Still, a segment among the lesser varumani has fostered the plight of their 'even lesser brothers' as a way of exerting pressure on the thegn, for without the labor and muscle of the bestial varumani, the Troll Lifts would cease operation and the thegn's court would sink into even more rapid decline.

Bestial varumani are large, stooped, ape-like versions of their more intelligent cousins. They do not use weapons or armor, but they can be taught to perform some repetitive tasks (e.g., running a winch or beating on a rock wall with hammers). They possess the regenerative powers of their kin (3 hp/round, requiring fire or acid to remain dead), infravision, and immunity to poison. They do not share their more advanced cousins' other immunities or intelligence. Although strong and dangerous, they can be tricked fairly easily.

In their bestial state, they have lost the predilection for law that marks the true and lesser varumani; for this reason their alignment is NE.

VARUMANI, TRUE AND LESSER (vah-roo-MAHN-ee)

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1 or 10-30

SIZE: L (9' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: 4, or by armor

HD: 8

ATTACKS: 3 or by weapon

DAMAGE: 3-6/3-6/4-10, or by weapon (see below)

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Possible magic use

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 40%

INTELLIGENCE: Average to genius

ALIGNMENT: Lawful neutral or lawful evil

LEVEL/XP: 6 / 1,050 +10/hp

TREASURE: 2-12 ep, 2-8 gp, 1-6 pp individuals; 1-3k cp (20%), 1-4k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-4k gp (30%), 100-600 pp (30%), 10-60 gems (55%), 5-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (50%)

LOCATION: 4-2, 4-95, 4-101, 5-53, 5-54, 5-131, Level 6, Level 7, 8-1, 9-21-22, 10-8, 10-42, SL4-23, SL12-11

The true and lesser varumani of the Halls of Arden Vul are the descendants of one of the rudishva servitor races. In the present, there are two fairly distinct types of varumani: the true varumani, whose bloodlines run true back to the days of the rudishva, and the lesser varumani, whose genes and powers have been diminished by in- and out-breeding. A third group, the bestial varumani, are treated elsewhere: they are intellectually little different than ordinary trolls and worthy of the name of "Arden Vul trolls."

True and lesser varumani share some general qualities. Both types are 9' tall and perfectly hairless, with brownish- or rust-colored skin and coal-black, pupil-less eyes. They are thick-limbed and impressively muscled. Both regenerate at the rate of 3 HP, and can reform even if brought below 0 HP; only fire or acid can slay them permanently. Despite these similarities, differences abound.

True varumani are mentally quick, more agile and dexterous, and more resistant to a wider range of threats. They are also far more likely than lesser varumani to exhibit a talent for spell-casting. True varumani can live up to 200 years with little decline in physical abilities; at that age (plus or minus 1-8 years) they decline rapidly into decrepitude and die. The true varumani are the smiths, the masons, the architects, the strategists and, in general, the leaders of the race. They employ armor and magical or techno-magical devices with ease, and have access to more sophisticated weapons. For instance, true varumani often wear specially made ring mail, which lowers their AC to 2. The thegn and his housecarls, however, wear even better armor that dates, in part, to the rudishva period (AC 0). True varumani employ well-forged two-handed swords, halberds, tridents, iron-shod staves, and heavy crossbows (or rudishva bolt throwers); all these weapons do 2-20+4 HP damage due to the varumani warriors' strength and military skills.

True varumani are immune to charm, hold, feeblemind, confusion and other mind-related spells; they are also immune to cold and all poisons. They take normal damage from electricity (and energy weapons) and fire. Due to advanced combat training, they are also harder to surprise (1 in 6). They save vs. physical effects as an 8th-level fighter, but save vs. spells and other magics as 8th-level magic users.

About 1 in 20 true varumani exhibits the spark of magical aptitude, although often this spark is ignored and few varumani sorcerers are trained. Those who do choose the path of sorcery can rise to 12th level as magic users. The true varumani can usually be distinguished by their names, all of which tend to follow ancient varumani or rudishva patterns.

Lesser varumani tend to be more stooped, and possess more pronounced supraorbital ridges, more simian arms, and substantially less intelligence, wit, and urbanity. They usually eschew armor (and are thus AC 4), although a few carry a shield (AC 3). They favor huge clubs, mattocks, and simple maces, which in their hands do 3-18+4 damage. They possess 33% resistance to mind-related spells, are unaffected by poison, and are immune to cold. They take normal damage from electricity and fire. They save against all effects as 8th-level fighters. Lesser varumani only rarely become spell casters. The lesser varumani can be identified by their names, which tend to be short and composed of simple repetitive or onomatopoeic radicals (e.g., 'Gog').

The varumani breed rarely. When they do produce offspring, it is increasingly common that the child will be a bestial varumani (60% chance) or a lesser varumani (25%). Only 15% of babies born even to true varumani parents are themselves true varumani. All varumani children grow swiftly, reaching maturity after 6 years. For infants, stats are as follows: SZ S/M; AC 8; MV 120'; HD 2-7, depending on age (1 HD per year); #AT 3; Dmg 1-2/1-2/1-6.

Varumani Sub-Types: Originally the rudishva genetic engineers created three 'models' or genetic lines of varumani; these models, known as models A, D, and G, were more colloquially known from the names of the first individual varumani produced with each set of genes. Hence the A-model type, whose genetic map produced varumani personalities marked by tactical intelligence and blinding loyalty, was known as the Vanara line, after Vanara, the first such model (and a revered ancestor-figure even today). The D-model type, whose genes produced a personality that emphasized aggressive combat skills and obedience to authority, was known as the Druva line, after Druva, the first of his line.

Eventually the rudishva bio-engineers attempted to create a varumani model that retained the military and tactical sense of the first two models while boasting greater initiative and independence of thought. The result was the G-model type, known colloquially as the Rudiga model after Rudiga, the first of his type. Unfortunately, G-model varumani proved to be a bit too independent; they were, in fact, prone to selfishness, intrigue, and betrayal. Indeed, Rudiga himself ended up betraying varumani command to a combined attack by the kaliyani and heqeti. As a result of this treachery, most of the remaining Rudiga models were killed by their brethren during the long exodus of the varumani following the collapse of the rudishva hegemony.

It should be noted that there are no statistical differences between the three models; the only difference is psychological. In the present, moreover, the distinctions between the three models are generally muted thanks to millennia of crossbreeding. Still, it is frequently true that individual true or lesser varumani exhibit personalities that reflect these ancient genetic codes.

Should it be thought desirable to know an individual's predominant genetic ancestry (for role-playing reasons, for instance), the GM can simply roll percentile dice to determine this fact: 45% will exhibit A-model traits, 40% will exhibit D-model traits, and only 15% will exhibit G-model traits. It is also the case that the majority of those modern varumani exhibiting G-model personalities are found in clan Rudigaya (see 7-17). Finally, it is still possible to create 'pure' versions of each of the three original models by manipulating the troll pits (5-131); while these creatures will not differ statistically from their modern cousins, their personalities will more sharply adhere to the psychological profile of that 'model'.

Brief History: The starship Beacon possessed a small complement of varumani security forces and 'ground pacification' teams. In the years after the crash of the Beacon, though, the rudishva used the troll pits (5-131) to rapidly breed more varumani to aid in their war against the heqeti. Although the varumani proved immune to the slime-attack that toppled the rudishva hegemony 2,800 years ago, the overnight elimination of the officer corps of rudishva and kaliyani left the varumani paralyzed. Eventually, their thegns, Varana and Druva, decided to flee in search of a new and safer homeland for their rudderless people. Druva died covering the retreat, but Vanara successfully led the varumani survivors on a months-long trek through the chambers and caves of Arden Vul.

They ultimately decided to settle in a set of caverns just off the Great Chasm (i.e., areas 7-1 to 7-77 and 7-91 to 7-106). For almost 800 years, the varumani developed their domain and fended off the attacks of heqeti and others. When the Archonteans arrived and, under the leadership of Marius Tricotor, defeated the heqeti, the varumani submitted to the humans and offered tribute to the archon. Over the ensuing 600 years of human domination, the varumani came to be known as 'Arden Vul trolls', a nickname given to them by humans who noted some superficial similarities to 'normal' trolls (especially regeneration). Similarly, their thegn came to be called the 'troll thegn' and their marketplace came to be referred to as the 'troll market.' The varumani regained their independence when the Archonteans retreated from Arden Vul some 1,200 years ago.

While they are currently acknowledged as the apex faction within Arden Vul, it is also true to many observers that the varumani are a declining race; fewer true varumani are born, while the number of lesser and bestial varumani rises.

VAT-KEEPER OF PSALOR-KI

FREQUENCY: Unique

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: L (8' tall)

MOVE: 90'

AC: 5

HD: 6; HP 35

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 3-6 (dagger +2) or buffet 1-8

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Purple pudding attack

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: Low

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 5 / 490

TREASURE: See below

LOCATION: 5-71

This hideous creature is an ogre whom Psalor-Ki (5-74) has reanimated, albeit with a purple pudding as its circulatory system. It appears as a bloated, shambling, misshapen, being whose normal brown pigmentation regularly flushes a deep shade of purple. The vat keeper's duties are mundane (maintenance of the vats), but it will defend itself if needed. In addition to wielding its dagger +2, it can, once every 3 rounds, spit a small amount of purple-pudding-like ichor at foes; this attack does 2-12 damage and has the corrosive effect of those puddings, but it is not conductive. It is immune to poison and all spells that affect the mind.

VENGEANCE ASPECT

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: M

MOVE: 90' flying (Class A)

AC: 0 or 7

HD: 9

ATTACKS: 2

DAMAGE: 3-18/3-18

SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 75% or 50%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Lawful (varies)

LEVEL/XP: 8 / 3,800 + 12/hp

TREASURE: 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%)

LOCATION: 9-104

A vengeance aspect is a deadly ethereal entity born of a fusion of religious devotion and intense fidelity to a cause or person. Any deity can in theory have vengeance aspects, but they are more likely to be produced among followers of gods with portfolios that involve warfare, justice, and vengeance. Vengeance aspects are similar to ghosts, in that they exist primarily in an ethereal state. They manifest in a semi-material way briefly (a matter of seconds) in order to attack or threaten foes; they can, of course, choose to exist for longer in a semi-material state, but few will do so without being forced.

The presence of a vengeance aspect causes fear in a 30' radius; all must save vs spells or flee for 4-10 rounds. Those of 9th level or above save at +2. Vengeance aspects can animate corpses as undead servitors. They can raise up to 4-8 corpses every other round, so long as a suitable supply is available. Corpses so raised by a vengeance aspect will be skeletons (if skeletal), or zombies, ghouls, or ghosts (if fleshy). While the vengeance aspect is not itself undead, the raised corpses are, and can be turned by clerics. Regardless of the type of undead animated by the vengeance aspect, any animated undead are strengthened by its presence, and are turned as wraiths so long as they remain in sight of the vengeance aspect.

Vengeance aspects have three modes of attack. First, they are able to produce two elemental magical attacks appropriate to their deity every other round (these could take the form of small firebolts, bolts of lightning, ice blocks, green poison rays); whatever the form, each of these attacks does 3-18 damage.

Second, once every three rounds they can utter a terrible cosmic shout (usually a guttural form of their deity's name, or of some phrase connected to their deity) that stuns all listeners within 30' for 1-3 rounds (a successful save versus spells halves the duration [round up] of the stunning; those stunned for only 1 round because of a save are not stunned at all).

Third, they have a number of magical powers that they can employ. They can use detect magic, detect evil, and detect invisibility at will an unlimited number of times per day. They can instantaneously (no casting time) create any of the magic user symbols (per the 8th-level spell) once per day, and can instantaneously use the power word blind spell twice per day.

Vengeance aspects are more vulnerable in the ethereal plane; if confronted by an ethereal foe, their AC drops from 0 to 7, and their magic resistance drops from 75% to 50%. Only magical weapons can harm a vengeance aspect (+1 or better weapons to hit).

Typically vengeance aspects come into being as a result of a gross injustice done to a powerful lawful (and loyal) follower of a particular deity. Once incarnate, vengeance aspects remain until either they are slain or the source of the injustice is resolved. Until that moment they are likely to be implacable foes of any who disturb the site where the injustice occurred, regardless of those intruders' alignment or motives. Indeed, although highly intelligent and capable of reasoned speech, they are unlikely to converse with intruders, let alone explain the source of the particular injustice; at best, intruders are likely to have a round or two to explain themselves before the urge for vengeance takes over.

VENGEFUL SPIRIT

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1

SIZE: Varies

MOVE: 120'

AC: 1

HD: 6

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 1-12

SPECIAL ATTACKS: Strength drain

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%

LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%

INTELLIGENCE: High

ALIGNMENT: Lawful evil

LEVEL/XP:

TREASURE: 1-10k cp (5%), 1-12k sp (15%), 1-6k ep (25%), 1-8k gp (25%), 1-12 gems (15%), 1-8 jewelry (10%), any 3 magic items + 1 scroll (25%)

LOCATION: SL6-46, SL13-14, SL15-4

Vengeful spirits are the undead spirits of powerful persons who have been killed and have returned to seek vengeance or justice for their deaths. They are bound to a particular place, usually the place where the killing occurred, and are able to travel only a few hundred feet from that spot. It is occasionally possible to negotiate with a vengeful spirit, but it is more common for these undead to attack and drain the strength of the living. Vengeful spirits employ spectral forms of weapons they might have used in life; the bone-chilling negative energy of these weapons (or claws, etc.) causes them to inflict 1-12 damage regardless of their type.

In addition to normal damage, each hit by a vengeful spirit drains two points of STR, although if the victim saves vs. breath weapons he/she only loses 1 point. Lost STR may be regained through rest at the rate of 1 point/day. If a PC is brought to 0 or lower STR by a vengeful spirit, he/she is dead, and transforms into a wight within 1-3 hours. As they are incorporeal entities, vengeful spirits can only be hit by magical weapons (+1 or better). They are also immune to damage from fire.

Vengeful spirits cannot be fully destroyed until their bones are located and given a proper burial. This means that until such time as their bones are laid to rest, they will reform with full hit points 1-6 hours after being killed. Vengeful spirits are turned as vampires.

WORM OF QOK (kwahk)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: L (15' long)
MOVE: 60'
AC: 3
HD: 12
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-24
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Swallow
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 50%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 10%
INTELLIGENCE: Animal
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 1,900 + 16/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 6-104, 8-75, 8-76, 9-121, 10-17, 10-18

These fearsome, corpse-white, blind worms are minor aspects of the dread god, Rimmaq-Isfet. They do not reside on the material plane, but can be summoned by devotees of Rimmaq-Isfet, typically through a specially-prepared summoning pool of water or slime. Once summoned, they emerge in a blind hunger, ready to devour whatever sacrifices are available; if none are available, the worm is content to devour its summoners. After a turn of presence on the material plane, the worm returns to its home plane, unless, that is, the summoner successfully binds it for another turn (50% chance). Further sacrifices are, of course, necessary.

The worms are corpse white, with pinkish circles where eyes might have once existed. They are blind, but highly attuned to sound (silence, however, imposes a -4 penalty to hit on them). They attack by chomping with their caustic mouth. Any roll to hit of 19 or 20 has a chance to swallow its victim; victims must save versus petrification with a -2 penalty or be swallowed. Those swallowed take 2-16 acid damage per round. They can attempt to cut their way out of the worm, and can do so by inflicting 30 HP of damage on the worm's innards (AC 5).

WIGHT, SKELETAL

FREQUENCY: Rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-6
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 3
HD: 5+1
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 3-9
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Energy drain
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: 75%
INTELLIGENCE: Low
ALIGNMENT: Chaotic evil
LEVEL/XP: 6 / 660 + 6/hp
TREASURE: 1-8k cp (50%), 1-6k sp (25%), 1-4k ep (25%), 1-3k gp (25%), 1-8 gems (30%), 1-4 jewelry (20%), sword, armor, or misc. weapon (10%)
LOCATION: 5-16, 8-16, 8-162, 9-55

These feared creatures are skeletal (and slightly tougher) versions of the more familiar corporeal wights. In addition to improved AC and HD, skeletal wights are 'cured' of wounds each time they drain a level from a victim; each level drain restores 3-9 lost hit points. As with normal wights, they are not affected by sleep, charm, hold, poison, paralyzation, and cold-based attacks. They are hit only by silver or magic weapons; as with skeletons, edged weapons do only ½ damage. They are turned as ghasts.

WRAITH, MASTER

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 150'/300' flying (Class A)
AC: 1
HD: 9+1
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 1-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Energy drain
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: See below
LAIR PROBABILITY: 30%
INTELLIGENCE: High
ALIGNMENT: Evil (lawful or chaotic)
LEVEL/XP: 7 / 2,600 + 12/hp
TREASURE: 1-10k cp (5%), 1-12k sp (15%), 1-6k ep (25%), 2-12k gp (70%), 1-12 gems (15%), 1-8 jewelry (10%), any 3 magic items + 1 scroll (25%)
LOCATION: TS-16

A master wraith is an extremely powerful incorporeal undead creature. Usually created from exceptionally evil humans (often those who have betrayed others), master wraiths are hard to turn (turn as vampires) and revel in creating new, ordinary wraiths from their victims. Like spectres, their chilling touch drains two energy levels. Like ordinary wraiths, they are only struck by silver or magic weapons and are unaffected by sleep, hold, charm or cold-based spells.

ZHORAK (ZOAR-ahk)

FREQUENCY: Unique
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120' flying (Class A)
AC: 1
HD: 9; 61 HP
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 3-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: See below
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 75%
LAIR PROBABILITY: 100%
INTELLIGENCE: Exceptional
ALIGNMENT: NE
LEVEL/XP: 8 / 3,332
TREASURE: 1-6k cp (25%), 1-6k sp (40%), 1-6k ep (40%), 1-10k gp (55%), 100-400 pp (25%), 4-40 gems (60%), 3-30 jewelry (50%), any 3 magic items (30%)
LOCATION: 8-97

Zhorak, the great dwarven smith of antiquity, was betrayed by his apprentice and ending up starving to death in his own hidden retreat. Zhorak returned as a malign spirit, eager to punish the living for his horrible end. He appears as a ghostly apparition in the form of a dwarf wearing a phrygian cap and a tight-fitting leather half-coat. His eyes glow with a purple fire.

In most ways Zhorak functions as a spectre, although a slightly more powerful one: his chill touch drains two energy levels, he can only be hit by magic weapons, and he is unaffected by sleep, charm, hold, or cold-based spells. Yet so long as his physical remains are intact, Zhorak cannot be turned; his body would need to be consumed utterly by powerful fire (e.g., by burning it in his own forge, or by subjecting it to strong magical fire).

Finally, the gaze of his purple eyes can instill an unholy hunger in those who fail to save vs. spells; he can use this gaze once per round in addition to his regular attack. Consult the following table for the results of this gaze:

D4	Type of Hunger	Effects
1	Food	PC has consuming need to eat. Initially this can be roleplayed, but after 3-6 days the hunger becomes crippling: unless the PCs eats constantly, he/she loses 1 point of CON per day until he/she dies.
2	Wealth	PC is afflicted with great greed. He/she seeks to acquire monetary wealth by whatever means possible. After 3-6 days this hunger is so great that the PC cannot be reasoned with, and he/she will fight friends for their coins (or for what he/she perceives to be their wealth).

3	Alcohol	PC suddenly craves alcohol. For the first 3-6 days this is manageable, although potentially surprising if the PC were formerly a teetotaler. Beginning 3-6 days after being affected, though, the PC must devote all his/her time to acquiring and consuming booze; this causes WIS, DEX, and to hit rolls to drop by 5.
4	Companionship	The PC craves company at all times, night or day. The craving is accompanied by a desperate need to get those around him/her to 'love' or at least appreciate him/her. After 3-6 days, the compulsion is so strong that the PC cannot be alone and begins to force his/her 'friends' to be with him (leading to violence).

Any of these hungers may be removed by the casting of remove curse, albeit only by a caster of at least 9th level of experience.

ZHORAK'S MINERS

FREQUENCY: Very rare

NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-2

SIZE: S (4' tall)

MOVE: 60'

AC: 2

HD: 5

ATTACKS: 1

DAMAGE: 2-8

SPECIAL ATTACKS: None

SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below

MAGIC RESISTANCE: None

LAIR PROBABILITY: None

INTELLIGENCE: None

ALIGNMENT: Neutral

LEVEL/XP: 4 / 200 + 4/hp

TREASURE: None

LOCATION: 8-87, 8-93

These stone constructs are the creation of the great dwarven smith, Zhorak, who created them specifically to procure ore for his forge. Originally there were twelve miners, all carefully carved to resemble stone dwarves: Zhorak spared no detail, ensuring that face, hair, clothing, and so forth were realistic. Three features permit a viewer to recognize that these entities are constructs and not petrified dwarves: first, their faces are a bit too uniform and unblemished to be real; second, a narrow slot exists under the left armpit of each one; and third, the eyes are empty holes.

Zhorak controlled the miners via a special magic item, Zhorak's bracelet (see new magic items); the wearer of the bracelet can convey simple oral commands to the miners ("Dig coal", "Bring ore to the forge", etc.). The bracelet is useless, however, unless the miners are charged. So, unless a full rudishva lesser power supply (see new technological items) is inserted into the slot under the miners' left arms, they are effectively inert. One could reactivate a miner by locating and inserting such a power supply; doing so would cause the miner to return to the tasks given to it 1,300 years ago. To change the miner's orders, one would need to locate the bracelet (8-97) and issue commands.

Should active miners be prevented from fulfilling their orders, they will attack using their picks or stone hands (2-8 damage). The miners are immune to fire, cold, and all mind-affecting spells, but take double damage from electricity. A full rudishva lesser power supply will allow a miner to work for a month.

ZHOUL (ZOO)

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-8
SIZE: M
MOVE: 120'
AC: 6
HD: 4
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 3-12
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: See below
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 10%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP: 3/ 105 +3/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 3-80, 8-162

An unusual and rare type of undead, the zhoul are essentially tougher and faster zombies. The zhoul were a creation of the heqeti in antiquity, and they are still used as guardians by the weavers and chosen. Given this origin, they typically have vaguely amphibian features, although since a few Archontes learned the secret of their creation, it is not impossible to encounter more human-featured zhoul.

Given this method of creation, one would assume that zhoul are limited only to Arden Vul, but there are reports from the fringes of the Empire that zhoul are now being found outside of Arden Vul, spontaneously rising in places where previously only regular zombies wandered.

Zhoul are immune to charm, hold, sleep, and cold-based attacks. Holy water is anathema to them, dealing 4-16 HP damage. Zhoul are turned as ghastrs.

ZOMBIE, FENTH

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-10
SIZE: M
MOVE: 90'
AC: 8
HD: 4
ATTACKS: 2
DAMAGE: 2-8/2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: None
SPECIAL DEFENSES: None
MAGIC RESISTANCE: 25%
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral evil
LEVEL/XP: 3 / 135 + 3/hp

TREASURE: None
LOCATION: SL13-10F

These zombies may only be raised by priests of Fenth, the Thorcin god of the forest (see World of Archontos appendix). Created from dead humanoids, Fenth zombies differ from regular ones by sprouting twigs from their temples, possessing green eyes, and having teeth that appear as sharpened sticks. They are tougher than regular zombies, attack twice per round, and have some magic resistance.

They turn as wights, and their connection to the living forest makes such more dangerous: a cleric or paladin takes 1-4 hit points of damage on a failed turn attempt.

ZOMBIE, HEQETI SLIME

FREQUENCY: Very rare
NO. ENCOUNTERED: 1-12
SIZE: S, M or L
MOVE: 60'
AC: 6
HD: 2, 4, or 6 (depending on size)
ATTACKS: 1
DAMAGE: 2-8
SPECIAL ATTACKS: Slime infestation
SPECIAL DEFENSES: Immune to electricity
MAGIC RESISTANCE: Standard
LAIR PROBABILITY: None
INTELLIGENCE: None
ALIGNMENT: Neutral
LEVEL/XP:
2 HD: 3 / 90 + 1/hp
4 HD: 4 / 175 + 3/hp
6 HD: 5 / 350 + 6/hp
TREASURE: None
LOCATION: 5-108, 6-118-120, 6-122, 7-7, 8-157, SL6-4

These disgusting beings are animated by one of the burnt-orange flesh-animating heqeti slimes, including those burped forth by a sumuksu (6-121). Slime zombies are created either from those beings slain by a flesh-animating slime, or from a recently deceased corpse. Once the flesh-animating slime has infested the host, it can direct the host's limbs, generally to further the commands of a sumuksu or a heqeti master.

Heqeti slime zombies attack by bludgeoning with their fists/paws. An opponent so struck must save vs. poison or be infested with a flesh-animating slime, which causes 1-4 damage per round until the victim dies. Application of fire (for 1-6 damage) will destroy the infestation.

Slime zombies are susceptible to fire (+1 damage per die), their movement is halved by cold, and they are immune to electricity. The slime zombies vary in HD according to the size of the creature infected. Since these beings are not undead, they cannot be turned.

NEW MAGIC ITEMS

There are more than 300 new magic items presented in Arden Vul. Many are unique, but most are not and thusly suitable for random treasure generation specific to Arden Vul. The tables below are composed of these non-unique items.

This appendix uses the following abbreviations in the detailed item description:

Class Limit: The abbreviations in this descriptor are the classes that may use the item: A = Assassin, B = Bard, C = Cleric, D = Druid, F = Fighter, I = Illusionist, M = Magic User, Mk=Monk, P = Paladin, R = Ranger, T = Thief.

If this descriptor is absent, any class may use the item provided it is not already prohibited to that class.

Alignment Limit: The abbreviations in this descriptor are the alignments that may use the item.

If this descriptor is absent, any alignment may use the item.

Random Arden Vul Treasure Determination

Dice	Result
01-20	Potions
21-30	Rings
31-40	Rods, Staves & Wands
41-55	Miscellaneous Magic Table 1
56-70	Miscellaneous Magic Table 2
71-85	Miscellaneous Magic Table 3
86-00	Armor & Weapons

Potions

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-03	Dispelling	500	1,000
04-10	Clarity	500	900
11-15	Deafening Light	500	1,000
16-22	Explosive Acid	500	4,000
23-25	Frost Cage	500	2,000
26-30	Ghost Paste	1,000	5,000
31-40	Greek Fire	500	4,000
41-48	Hostile Levitation	200	800
49-56	Molasses	200	800
57-67	Rock Melting	500	1,000
68-75	Singing Birds	500	1,000
76-80	Sweat of Rimmaq-Isfet	300	600
81-85	The Berserk	200	400
86-90	Truthfulness	400	800
91-97	Watery Form	200	500
98-00	Youth	200	250

Rings

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-07	Acid Resistance	1,000	5,000
08-15	Change Self	500	2,000
16-17	Friendly Defense (arcanum)	7,500	35,000
17-24	Friendly Defense (copper, silver, gold, iron)	2,500	15,000
25-28	Friendly Defense (steel, white gold, platinum)	5,000	25,000
29-33	Heqeti Ring	2,000	10,000
34-40	Levitation	500	2,000
41-42	Protection from Normal Missiles	5,000	40,000
43-44	Set	5,000	40,000
45-50	Shield	1,000	5,000
51-60	Snake (of the)	2,000	10,000
61-70	Spider Climbing	1,000	5,000
71-80	Stalker (of the)	1,000	5,000
81-00	Water Breathing	250	2,500

Rods, Staves, & Wands

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-06	Rod of Turning	2,000	10,000
07-09	Rod of Wind Control (BDCIM)	5,000	20,000
10-15	Staff of Fenth (CM)	7,000	35,000
16-19	Staff of Fermentation (BDCIM)	6,000	30,000
20-21	Staff of Illusions (I)	12,000	60,000
22-26	Staff of the Frog	6,000	30,000
27-28	Staff of the Necromancer (M)	12,000	60,000

29-35	Wand of Alarms, Cursed	—	1,000
36-48	Wand of Alignment Detection	1,500	7,500
49-55	Wand of Life-Stealing, Cursed	—	1,000
56-65	Wand of Shielding	2,000	15,000
66-70	Wand of Spectral Force (I)	3,500	25,000
71-80	Was Stick, Acolyte (C)	1,000	10,000
81-89	Was Stick, Deacon (C)	2,000	20,000
90-93	Was Stick, Pontifex (C)	3,000	30,000
94-96	Was Stick, Special (C)	1,000	10,000
97-00	Was Stick, Uncommon (C)	2,000	20,000

Miscellaneous Magic (Table 1)

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-04	Acorn of Fenth	250	500
05-07	Alexia's Useful Pole	2,500	15,000
08-10	Amulet of Courage (BFMkPR)	1,500	10,000
11-13	Amulet of Fire Resistance	1,500	10,000
14-17	Amulet of Mighty Fists (ABFMkRT)	1,500	15,000
18-21	Amulet of Natural Armor +1	1,000	10,000
22-24	Amulet of Natural Armor +2	2,000	20,000
25-26	Amulet of Natural Armor +3	3,000	30,000
27-30	Amulet of Protection from Normal Missiles	6,000	30,000
31-32	Amulet of Spell Absorption	1,000	5,000
33-37	Amulet of Swimming	1,000	5,000
38	Amulets of Return	3,000	15,000
39	Amulets of Telepathy	2,000	17,500
40-41	Ankh of Healing	1,000	5,000
42-44	Ankh of Protection	1,000	5,000
45-50	Arcanum (IM)	100	500
51	Asp Eggs, Kaliyani	500	4,000
52	Aulos of Frenzy	7,000	40,000
53	Banion's Dice, Bone	—	10,000
54	Banion's Dice, Ivory	—	15,000
55	Banion's Dice, Silver	—	30,000
56-57	Banion's Dice, Wooden	—	5,000
58-59	Basin of Evaporation	500	1,000
60-61	Black Light of Useful Necromancy	1,000	5,000
62	Blacklight Torch, Cursed	—	500
63	Boots of Attraction	—	1,000
64-65	Boots of Insulation	1,000	5,000
66	Boots of Subtlety	—	2,000
67	Box of Trapping	4,000	40,000
68-70	Brooch of Confident Action	4,000	17,500
71-72	Brooch of the Everlasting Brotherhood	2,000	15,000

73	Bruning of Westholm's Cursed Grammar	—	7,500
74-75	Cap of Serenity	750	3,500
76-82	Cauldron of Boiling	300	1,500
83-85	Chaplet of Father Utar	500	5,000
86-87	Circlet of Pearls, Golden (ABIMMkT)	1,000	5,000
88-89	Cloak of the Dwarves	1,000	6,000
90-91	Cloak of Wise Negotiating	2,500	12,500
92	Coffer of Zox (ABCIMMkT)	3,000	45,000
93-95	Cold Rocks	1,000	10,000
96-98	Collar of Servitude	500	25,000
99-00	Conch of Amplification	1,500	15,000

Miscellaneous Magic (Table 2)

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-03	Conch of Crustacean Assistance	3,000	30,000
04-05	Dancing Houris	1,500	30,000
06	Deck of the Magi (IM)	—	10,000
07-08	Djed Amulet	4,500	25,000
09	Dwarven Life-Stone	500	1,000
10-11	Earring of Protection +2	1,000	1,000
12	Earring of Protection +3	1,500	2,000
13	Earring of Protection +4	2,000	3,000
14	Earring of Protection +5	2,500	4,000
15-17	Efreeti Sand	300	2,000
18-22	Elven Rope	100	500
23-24	Ever-alert Head	500	2,000
25	Ever-full Chest	2,500	25,000
26-29	Ever-full Inkwell	500	3,500
30-32	Eye of Seeing	3,000	30,000
33-34	Eyes of Fenth	250	1,000
35-36	Eyes of Set	250	1,000
37-38	Foebane Necklace	500	2,500
39-40	Gauntlet of Fire Absorption	1,000	5,000
41-43	Glass Spheres of Arcane Assistance	200	1,500
44	Goggles of Seeing	1,000	15,000
45-49	Guard Cap (ABCDFPRT)	1,000	10,000
50	Guardian Caryatid	5,000	40,000
51-52	Hag's Eye	500	5,000
53	Hand of Glory	5,000	50,000
54	Harp of Charming	3,000	30,000
55-57	Helm of Infravision	1,000	5,000
58-59	Horn of Carousing	1,000	5,000
60	Horn of Chaos	—	25,000
61	Horn of Domination (BFPR)	6,000	60,000

62	Idol of Camozotz	—	1,500
63-65	Immobilizing Mesh	500	5,000
66-68	Incense of Attraction	250	500
69-70	Incense of Relaxation	200	400
71-72	Infernal Effigy	1,000	7,000
73	Insidious Bone Flute	—	2,500
74	Jade Cup of Life Restoration	5,000	30,000
75-76	Jug of Purple Mist	500	2,500
77-78	Leviathan's Teeth	1,000	10,000
79-80	Lion Cloak	2,000	20,000
81-84	Lover's Token	200	500
85	Mantle of Fenth	5,000	35,000
86-88	Mask of the Skull (AIMMkT)	1,000	15,000
89-92	Melchior's Beads of Escape	500	2,000
93-95	Moon of Bastet	500	1,000
96	Necklace of Harmony	4,000	45,000
97-98	Obsidian Skull of Comprehension	1,000	5,000
99-00	Olifant of Command	4,000	40,000

Miscellaneous Magic (Table 3)

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-04	Pearl Necklace of Invisibility	2,500	7,500
05	Penny, Cursed	—	2,000
06-08	Periap of Finding	1,000	5,000
09-10	Pledge of Rimmaq-Isfet	1,000	10,000
11-12	Porter's Carpet	2,000	10,000
13-15	Pouch of Capacity	1,000	7,500
16	Purse of Asters	2,000	10,000
17	Returning Pebble	—	100
18-19	Rug of Instant Access	3,000	15,000
20-21	Salt Lamp of Protection, Greater	3,000	30,000
22-25	Salt Lamp of Protection, Lesser	2,000	10,000
26	Sarcophagus of Entombment	5,000	20,000
27-34	Scroll Case of Potency	3,000	10,000
35-38	Scrying Ball	1,000	4,000
39	Set Animal Masks	—	2,000
40-45	Shawl of Warmth	1,000	5,000
46-47	Shrunken Head	1,000	10,000
48-49	Sistrum of Bastet	5,000	55,000
50-51	Slippers of Stealth	1,500	7,500
52-55	Smokeless Torches	1,000	5,000
56	Sortian Portable Sage	4,000	20,000
57	Soul Stone	500	2,000
58-59	Statuette of Feline Friendship	1,000	5,000
60-61	Statuette of the Camel	1,000	10,000
62-64	Stone of Passage	250	1,000

65-66	Stone of Striking	1,500	20,000
67-68	Stone Salve	1,000	5,000
69-74	Tear of Kauket	500	25,000
75	Tears of the Twins	1,000	5,000
76	Theodorus' Bed of Convenient Respite	500	2,500
77	Theodorus' Chair of Great Ease	1,000	5,000
78-80	Thieves' Mask (ABMkT)	4,000	35,000
81-82	Thorstein's Oculae	1,000	5,000
83-85	Torc of Authority	1,000	5,000
86-88	Torc of Domination	1,000	5,000
89	Torc of Protection	2,000	10,000
90-93	Tripod of Heating	1,000	10,000
94-95	Troll Flute	1,000	5,000
96	Watcher Nataraja	1,000	10,000
97-98	Winged Statuette	250	1,500
99-00	Wondrous Flute	2,000	20,000

Armor & Weapons

Dice	Result	Exp. Value	G.P. Value
01-03	Abyssal Armor	6,000	35,000
04-05	Armor of Arrow Attraction, Cursed	—	2,000
06-30	Arrow of Striking	20	120
31-35	Black Iron Spear	600	3,750
36-50	Bolts of Fire	20	120
51-70	Darts of Sleeping	20	120
71-75	Leather Armor of Shadows	1,500	10,000
76-85	Returning Javelin	1,000	10,000
86-95	Staff of Blue Light	250	1,500
96-97	Sword of Shadows	600	3,000
98-00	Trident of Water Breathing	1,250	10,000

NEW MAGIC ITEM DESCRIPTIONS

A Spoke in the Wheel: This unique magic club is formed of beechwood, and has been smoothed, sanded, and oiled until it glistens and shines. On the thick, 'business' end is incised a multi-spoked wheel filled with lapis lazuli. It is +3 against both good and evil alignments, but +0 against neutral foes (although it still counts as a +3 magic weapon for purposes of hitting those hit only by magic); it is +4 against demons and devils, however. A Spoke in the Wheel also can act as a defender: the user can apply some or all of its +3 bonus to hit as a bonus to AC instead; the defender feature only works against melee weapons. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-69 Class Limit: DFT Alignment Limit: N, NG, NE.

Abyssal Armor: A matched set of breastplate and greaves in an elaborate, richly decorated style, this armor is imbued with special properties by smiths working on the various planes of the abyss. The armor provides AC 2 when facing most foes, provided that no other armor or protective devices are worn. It improves to AC -1 when facing demonic foes, but worsens to AC 6 when facing foes who are LG. Most impressively, the armor allows the wearer to take only half damage from cold and fire, and it cannot be damaged or destroyed by those elements. Because of its demonic origins, paladins may wear this armor only if they donate (or promise to donate) treasure equal to the value of the armor to their chosen LG religious institution. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 35,000 Location: 4-146, 8-125.

Acorn of Fenth: These large (8"-long, 3"-wide) acorns fall from the enormous oak trees that ring the forested plane on which the Thorcin god Fenth resides. Although natural, they also detect as magic. If an acorn is planted in earth and watered with the blood of any creature (animal or sentient), it immediately causes a harvest lord (see new monsters) to appear. The harvest lord can be reasoned with by anyone of LE alignment, but is not necessarily beholden to the planter of the acorn. Instead, the harvest lord judges the situation and acts in accordance with what it feels to be the laws of the forest: its summoner is treated as having an 18 CHA when first interacting with the harvest lord.. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 2-19, SL13-10.

Alexia's Useful Pole: This practical item appears as a 3-inch long, ¼-inch diameter rod of steel that is remarkably light (only 1 lb regardless length). Most are usually inscribed with runes, and/or with their command words. Useful poles can extend to three or four fixed lengths by speaking an appropriate command word. For example, the most common useful poles have three lengths: the 3', 'short' length, a 4', 'medium' length, and a 6', 'long' length. A few varieties (10%) have a fourth 'very long' length (usually 10' or 15'). The short length functions quite nicely as a jo-stick, doing 1-8/1-6 damage. The medium length functions as a bo-stick or quarterstaff, doing 1-10/1-8 damage. The long length functions as a spear 1-10/1-12, and the very long length functions as an awl pike 1-10/3-18. Although the weapon functions are convenient, the magic of these items lies primarily in their portability and light weight. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: AV-40, 3-78, 7-76, 8-67, SL4-10.

Amulet of Courage: This amulet takes the form of a chalcedony cameo of a springing lion set onto a silver backing. It conveys a bonus of +3 to saves versus fear or dread for the wearer and all within 10'. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-40, 7-31, 8-67, 10-26 Class Limit: BFMkPR.

Amulet of Fire Resistance: This jade amulet is shaped like a sun-burst, with a yellow bead in its center. It affords +2 saves vs fire, and a bonus of -1 HP/damage die versus fire-based damage. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-71, 4-139C, 8-40, SL15-13.

Amulet of Mighty Fists: A plate of copper, shaped to resemble the clenched claw of a heqeti hopper, this amulet is worn attached to a belt or other piece of equipment. It provides the wearer with STR +1. It is particularly valuable in unarmed combat, providing +2 to hit and +3 to damage to all attacks with fists in addition to normal STR bonuses. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 7-92 Class Limit: ABFMkRT.

Amulet of Natural Armor: These amulets are the creation of heqeti weavers, and serve to add additional magical protection to the wearer (+1 to +3 bonus to AC). Typically they are created of carpal bones strung together in a circle, with a semi-precious stone in the center; they are worn on a chain as a necklace or pinned to clothing. Naturally they are most commonly possessed by heqeti, although they can be used by others as well. The most powerful variety (+3 amulets) detect as evil, but the lesser amulets have no such taint. Experience Point Value: (+1) 1,000; (+2) 2,000; (+3) 3,000 G. P. Value: (+1) 10,000; (+2) 20,000; (+3) 30,000 Location: 2-60, 5-11, 6-7, 6-104, 7-79, 8-25, 9-78, 9-81, 10-3, 10-6, 10-11, 10-13, 10-16, 10-20, 10-33, 10-35, 10-38, 10-40, 10-44, 10-48, 10-57, SL5-7, SL5-36.

Amulet of Protection from Normal Missiles: A silver amulet shaped like an arrow or crossbow bolt, this useful amulet conveys the protection of the 3rd-level magic user spell, protection from normal missiles. The effect of the protection last for four turns, and the amulet may be activated 3/day by speaking the words 'protect me' in Mithric. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 2-36A, 3-127A, 6-8, 7-76, 9-55, SL5-38.

Amulet of Ptarmis: This copper amulet studded with colored glass is a powerful but cursed magical item. The amulet gives its wearer the ability to control plants, including sentient plant creatures. It imparts a +3 bonus to AC, and will allow the wearer to summon sentient plant creatures (like fungal foresters - see new monsters) 3/day, if feasible. Unfortunately once it has been donned, the amulet proves impossible to remove. Over time the wearer will begin to think that he/she is Ptarmis, ancient priest of Thoth, who found and cultivated the great fungal forest beneath Arden Vul. Once so cursed, the owner will wish to remain in the Great Cavern (3-163 and 3-172), looking after 'his' children and gardens (or will actively seek the Great Cavern if the amulet is found elsewhere). Only a remove curse spell will permit the removal of the amulet. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 3-176.

Amulet of Spell Absorption: This powerful talisman absorbs a number of levels of spells that are cast directly at the wearer. The number of spell levels so absorbed is limited to 30; when that limit has been reached the amulet blackens into unusable slag. The amulet does not absorb area-effect spells or damage, or effects that are indirect; it only absorbs spells directly targeted at the wearer. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-152, SL4-22, SL6-17A, SL9-26.

Amulet of Swimming: These amulets are formed of the small bones of subterranean creatures wired together to resemble a flipper, and they bestow upon their bearer an 18' swimming speed even when wearing full armor. The bearer is able to dive up to 50' into water without injury provided the water is 2' deep for every 10' of dive height. The bearer can also remain underwater for 10 rounds before needing a breath, can swim for up to 8 hours per 24 hour period, and can float safely on the surface in even hurricane-like conditions. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 7-108, SL7-24.

Amulets of Return: A pair of copper amulets depicting yin-yang symbols, these devices channel extremely potent wish magic. The owner of one amulet can summon the wearer of the other at any time, even from death and/or bodily mutation; the 'returning' partner appears in the state when the summoner last saw him/her. Given that the magic in this device allows the transcendence of death, the amulets only work three times before crumbling to powder. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 8-120, 8-124.

Amulets of Telepathy: These useful items are the invention of the famous Grinning Mage, Pol (see SL6-8). The amulets appear as highly-detailed human ears, shaped out of platinum. In tiny script on the inner ear can be found the inscription: "Listen! So shall we all. Pol". Most users never notice the inscription. The amulets allow telepathic communication between two sentient beings, each of whom must wear one of the amulets. This means that the pair can 'speak' without actually speaking, and can communicate fully any thoughts, desires, commands, and so forth. Active telepathic communication is activated by a vocalizing a command word (in this case, "listen" in Mithric. In keeping with Pol's notoriously puckish sense of humor, there is a 1 in 20 chance per use that the amulets also serve as a microphone, loudly broadcasting an entire conversation after a 1 minute delay. It is said that Pol created three pairs of amulets; only two are known to exist at present. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 17,500 Location: 6-28, 8-5.

Ankh of Healing: These powerful items were infrequently created by good-aligned priests during the golden age of the Archontean empire. They appear as ankhs formed of pure white porcelain, about 8" tall. When the ankh is pressed against a visible wound (caused by weapon, bite, claw, etc.), the ankh's power instantly cures the victim of 3-24 HP of damage. Each time it is used, a portion of the pristine white surface of the ankh becomes discolored, taking on a rusty red color; when the entire ankh becomes rusty-red, it crumbles into dust. Ankhs of healing have as many uses as their creator had levels (d6+10), but given their antiquity most now only have a small number (2-5) of charges remaining. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-146, 5-62, SL3-2.

Ankh of Protection: Appearing as 10"-tall ankhs formed of sun-yellow porcelain, these devices have the useful function of repelling undead. Like ankhs of healing, they had as many uses as their creator had levels (d6+10), but given their antiquity most now only have a small number (2-5) of charges remaining. The ankh is used by presenting it to an undead creature (as if it were a holy symbol); it functions as a 7th-level cleric for the purposes of destroying or turning undead. Each time it is used, a portion of the yellow porcelain changes color, taking on a dull-grey tone; when all charges have been used, the ankh is thus fully grey, and will crumble to dust. It should be noted that these ankhs were created by good-aligned priests, and can thus never be used to control or dominate undead, only to turn or destroy them. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: AV surface ruins, 5-17, 8-10, SL6-16, SL8-13A. Alignment Limit: LG, LN, NG, N, CG, CN.

Apprentices' Raven: This unique object takes the form of a mechanical raven crafted out of ebony, glass, and feathers. Some wealthy apprentices in the cult of Thoth with too much time on their hands paid for it to be enchanted it some 1,600 years ago. When it detects motion in a 5' cone in front of it, it will croak out one of six sayings in Mithric:

D6	Saying
1	"The high priest's mother was a baboon."
2	"Thus spake the Raven, [Burrrrrp]."
3	"I think, therefore I am."
4	"The meta-magical qualities of arcanum are a product of a quintessential flux in the divine thought of Thoth, especially when compared with the macro-ontological properties of piety."
5	[A random cantrip is produced]
6	"You can call me AI."

If touched, the Raven will deliver a jolt of electricity for 1-2 hp damage unless the code word (Thoth) is first spoken in Mithric; this effect only works once per person. A magic user or illusionist who spends 2-4 weeks studying the Raven will be able to impart new phrases into the Raven at the cost of 25 gp per saying. Kerbog Khan (SL12-25) would pay double the normal G.P. value for this item. Experience Point Value: 400 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 2-24.

Arcanum: Arcanum is an orange-colored mineral that is a powerful enhancer of magical properties. It appears naturally in the mountains near Arden Vul, typically in one of two forms: large geodes up to 50' in diameter, or (paradoxically) enormous nuggets some 10'-15' in diameter. The arcane power of large pockets poses significant dangers to explorers, as the concentrated power of the arcanum causes arcane spell-casters and inherently-magical creatures to be overwhelmed with desire to stay within or near the arcanum pocket.

When a large pocket is encountered, such beings must successfully save vs. spells or else be compelled to remain in the arcanum pocket for 2-5 days, studying the substance and basking in its potency. For each day in the pocket, the caster or magical creature must roll on the table below to determine the effect(s) imparted on that day. At the end of the compulsory period, a magic user or magical creature has conquered the compulsion and can elect to stay in or near the pocket for as long as he/she/it likes; for each day of close access and study, roll again on Table 1. It should be noted that for each day in close contact with a large pocket of arcanum, 1-3 fist-sized, 'portable' lumps of 2 lb weight can be carefully chiseled off of the main source. After 3-12 such lumps have been removed, the main pocket becomes inert.

Results of Exposure to Arcanum Pocket (per day)

2D6	Type of Effect
2-3	No effect
4-6	1-2 side effects
7-8	Negative effect
9-10	Positive, plus 1-2 side effects
11-12	Positive, with no side effects

D8	Side Effects
1	Lose 1-4 WIS for 4-6 days
2	Temporary delusion for 1-3 weeks: believe self to be 1-2: archmage, 3-4: famous historical person; 5-6: animal (dog, cat); 7-8: fighter
3	All hair falls out; regrowth at extremely slow pace. -10% to reaction rolls for 1-3 months
4	Temporary Paranoia, resulting in: 1-2: refusal to talk; 3-4: hostility towards all party members; 5-6: immediate attack on any enemies. Duration is 4-6 days.
5	Temporary loss of 2-5 CON for 4-6 days
6	Ability to breathe water for 2-5 days, but with requirement of full immersion in water for at least 1 hour per day. Skin grows dry as immersion requirement grows near; subject feels need to hydrate.
7	Move is halved for 2-5 days, but AC is bettered by 2 due to strange trans-dimensional flux (subject's form is slightly hazy throughout)
8	Epidermis glows dully with a yellow light for 2-5 days. Good for reading, bad for sneaking.

D8	Negative Effects
1	Sink into catatonic state for 3-6 days; at end emerge with half HP and permanent loss of 1-4 HP.
2	Permanent delusion (GM's choice)
3	Permanent paranoia, about 1-2: fellow party member(s), 3-4: specific sentient group or race; 5-6: political group; 7-8: natural element or object (e.g. plants)
4	Permanent loss of 1-2 WIS. Subsequent rolls produce penalties of -2 to all saving throws for 4-9 days.
5	Permanent loss of 1-2 CON. Subsequent rolls produce penalties of -2 to all saving throws for 4-9 days.
6	Addiction to arcanum: sweat profusely and incur -1 penalty to all rolls when away from arcanum of any sort. Curable only by atonement or heal spells.
7	Stubborn Error: choose one known spell at random. Its effect, duration, or range is reduced by 50% permanently. Only invention of a 'new' version of the spell can resolve this problem.

8	Permanent disfiguring mark, to be determined jointly by PC and GM. Causes permanent -1 CHA. Subsequent rolls that produce this result impose temporary CHA losses of 1 month in duration.
---	---

D8	Positive Effects
1	Gain 2-5 spell slots for one day
2	Next 1-4 spells enhanced by 50% in either effect, duration or range
3	Next 1-4 spells enhanced by 50% in effect, duration AND range
4	Permanent gain of +1 INT. If this has already been acquired once, INT gain is temporary (1 week) if INT is higher than 19
5	Gain insight into spell creation, write one new standard spell of level 1-4 in spell book (determined randomly)
6	Gain insight into spell creation, write one new standard spell of level 3-6 into spell book (determined randomly)
7	Gain insight into spell creation, devise one new spell of level 1-3 (subject to GM's approval)
8	Gain insight into spell creation, devise one new spell of level 2-5 (subject to GM's approval)

Small, fist-sized lumps of arcanum are obviously more portable and significantly less dangerous. They impose no negative effects, and can be used in a number of beneficial ways. To 'use' one, a magic user (or essentially magical being) must hold the lump in his/her/its hand and concentrate on the task to be performed. The potency of the arcanum is transferred to the task, and the lump becomes an inert piece of orange mineral.

The following are tasks to which arcanum can be put:

1. Recharging a charged magic item: one lump restores 2-8 charges
2. Enhancing either the effect, range or duration of a single spell by 50%, the spell to be enhanced must be cast within 5 minutes of the 'use' of the arcanum
3. Recalling a cast spell: the caster is able to recall and recast a single spell that he/she has already cast that day.
4. Adding a one-time bonus of +2 to any roll.

Other uses for lumped arcanum may be devised by the GM. Experience Point Value: 100 per lb G. P. Value: 500 per lb Location: AV-29, 2-10, 2-23, 2-71, 3-76, 4-31, 4-51A, 4-63, 4-153, 4-155, 5-18, 5-85, 5-89, 5-107, 5-125, 5-128, 5-137, 6-33, 6-61, 6-85, 7-22, 7-24, 7-55, 7-70, 8-104, 8-148, 8-169, 9-55, 9-60, 9-64, 9-65, 9-95, 9-118, 9-130, 9-138, 10-8, 10-48, 10-54, SL1-11, SL5-7, SL5-32, SL6-16, SL6-47, SL6-51, SL6-55, SL7-16, SL9-4, SL9-20, SL9-27A, SL9-48, SL9-52, SL9-71, SL9-73, SL9-77, SL10A-19, SL12-19, SL12-24, SL13-37. Class Limit: IM

Arcanum Jelly: When smeared on the forehead of a magic user or illusionist, this orange jelly made from a distillate of powdered arcanum grants the caster two extra spell slots (one for 2nd-level spells, and one for 3rd-level spells). The jelly leaves an unsightly rash that only dissipates in 2-4 days. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 900 Location: 4-62, SL5-4 Class Limit: IM.

Armor of Arrow Attraction, Cursed: This cursed armor can come in any form, although banded mail is most common. It provides a +1 bonus to AC to all attacks except arrows, for which it imposes an AC penalty of -2. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: AV-40, 5-29.

Armor of Marius: A suit of battered, archaic Archontean legionary's armor with numerous scorch marks across the chest, this relic provides any wearer with armor the equivalent of banded mail +2. Yet for wearers of lawful alignments, it provides two impressive powers: 1) immunity to fire-, cold-, and acid-based attacks, and 2) the ability to raise the morale of allies in a 50' radius (+30% to morale). Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 6-135.

Armor of Secret Storage: This rusty suit of man-sized ceremonial armor is not fit for combat. Resting on an armor stand and topped with an elaborate, dog-faced helmet, it is actually a strange form of extra-dimensional space. The armor acts as a sort of bag of holding, albeit one that can hold up to 1,000 cubic feet of material. One deposits goods to be stored through the helmet's visor. When one wishes to recover something, one must state the nature (and quantity, if appropriate) of the object desired, and it will drop out of the right gauntlet. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL4-22.

Armor of Sulla: This set of high-quality, archaic Archontean banded mail, complete with cuirass, greaves, arm guards, and a polemarch's helmet, was the property of the famous warrior, Sulla. It acts as banded mail +2, +5 versus missiles. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 14,500 Location: 8-107.

Arrow of Striking: These +1 arrows automatically hit their target. There is a 10% cumulative chance that they are destroyed after a successful hit. Experience Point Value: 20 G. P. Value: 120 Location: 2-27, 3-5, 4-111, 9-50.

Asp Eggs, Kaliyani: These products of kaliyani techno-sorcery resemble 6"-tall eggs made of leather, ivory, and metal straps. They are handmade, and typically carved to show an asp's face. Kaliyani sorcerers are able to charge them with a potent magical effect. Known types of asp eggs are:

Fire Egg – explodes for 5-30 fire damage to all in a 15'-diameter area.

Cold Egg – explodes for 3-18 cold damage to all in a 15'-diameter area, save or move halved for 1-3 rounds.

Egg of Torment – egg releases gas made from mushroom spores, save at -2 or laugh uncontrollably for 3-6 rounds, during which time combat maneuvers are impossible. Flight is possible, although at half speed.

Egg of Blinding – explodes in a strobe light, causing all within 40' too save (at -2 penalty) or be blinded for 2-4 rounds.

Eggs are hurled (as darts, but only one per round) and must make contact with a living creature for their magic to activate. There is a 2% chance per egg that they are defective. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 10-54, SL9-60, SL9-64, SL9-65, SL9-73.

Aulos of Frenzy: This set of double-pipes (or aulos) was the personal property of Eustachius the cantor. When played it produces a shrill, middle-range set of tones. It can be played normally, but if the command word is invoked ("madness" in Mithric), then it plays by itself, producing an insistent drone of increasing tempo. This magical music has two effects. First, it causes distress in enemies of the owner, causing them to save vs spells (with a +1 bonus) or flee in distress. Second, it causes martial courage in the friends of the owner, granting them +1 to hit and +1 to saves vs fear or other morale-sapping effects. These effects last for 4 rounds. If played by a bard, the save vs spells is made at a -2, and the duration is 8 rounds instead of 4. Experience Point Value: 7,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 8-149.

Aulos of Undead Command: This double-reeded instrument produces a haunting tone that allows the musician to turn or command some corporeal undead. The aulos functions as a 3rd-level cleric for the purpose of attempting to command corporeal undead. If played by a bard, it functions as a 6th-level cleric. The musician automatically turns corporeal undead that a cleric of the appropriate level has a chance of turning, but must succeed at a 'turn undead' roll to be able to command them. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL13-10I.

Axe of the Wastes: This famous battle axe was most recently in the possession of Skalla of Westholm, a well-known Wiskin warrior and reaver. The axe has a silver-chased haft and a leather-wrapped hilt. It glows softly with a pale green light (10' radius). It grants the wielder a +1 bonus in general, but is +3 versus ogres, giants, and trolls/varumani. The axe also renders the wielder less vulnerable to thirst and hunger; he/she can survive twice as long without necessities before taking damage from thirst and hunger. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 2-27.

Backpack of Capacity: Each of the Sun-Scarred Knights wears one of these useful items atop his/her gothic armor. Backpacks of capacity look like normal leather rucksacks, but are enchanted such that they can carry 10x the normal weight without encumbrance. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: On Sun-Scarred Knights, and 10-53.

Banion's Dice: These sets of three six-sided dice come in a variety of materials (wood, bone, ivory, silver). They appear as normal dice except for the face that normally would have six pips on it; an image of a golden coin stands in place of the six pips. The dice are associated with the Archontean deity Banion, the god associated with decision-making and trickery. The dice can be difficult to recognize, as detect magic does not reveal them to be magical. Those who have used them in the past, as well as all sages, may recognize them by the distinctive coin found in place of the number six. Any cleric of at least 5th level will recognize them as magical, although he/she won't know how or why. Clerics of Banion, however, will immediately understand their nature and function. While anyone may throw the dice, clerics of Banion and those of chaotic neutral alignment generally obtain more beneficial effects.

To use the dice, one rolls them as normal. The result is determined by the die that rolls the highest result, with 1 as low and the 'coin' (six) as high. For example, a PC rolls 2, 4, 1. The result is determined by the high number, '4'. If the dice all produce the same number, then extraordinary results are obtained. The following tables summarize results:

Result	Effect for Ordinary Persons	Effect for CN persons
High of '2'	Thrower is cursed	Thrower is cursed
High of '3'	-1 to all rolls for 1 hr	-1 to all rolls for 3 turns
High of '4'	+1 to all rolls for 1 hr	+1 to all rolls for 2 hr
High of '5'	Bless for 1 hr	Bless for 2 hrs
High of 'coin'	Augury	Augury
1-1-1	Geas on thrower	Geas on thrower
2-2-2	Thrower is cursed	Thrower is cursed
3-3-3	Detect minerals and metals (per wand) for 1 hour	Detect minerals and metals (per wand) for 3 hours
4-4-4	Enemy detection (per wand) for 1 hour	Enemy detection (per wand) for 3 hours
5-5-5	Secret door and trap detection (per wand) for 1 hour	Secret door and trap detection (per wand) for 3 hours
Coin-Coin-Coin	Divination	Divination

Result	Effect for Clerics of Banion
High of '2'	-1 to all rolls for 3 turns
High of '3'	Augury
High of '4'	Augury
High of '5'	Augury
High of 'coin'	Divination
1-1-1	Geas on thrower
2-2-2	Divination
3-3-3	Detect minerals and metals (per wand) for 1 day
4-4-4	Enemy detection (per wand) for 1 day
5-5-5	Secret door and trap detection (per wand) for 1 day
Coin-Coin-Coin	Commune

The quality of the materials used to create the dice determines how often they may be rolled to achieve a magical effect. Wooden dice may be thrown once per month; bone dice once every two weeks; ivory dice once a week, and silver dice once per day. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: (wooden) 5,000; (bone) 10,000; (ivory) 15,000; (silver) 30,000 Location: 6-61, 8-136, 9-21, SL7-24.

Basin of Evaporation: A basin formed from a giant clam shell, this object serves to hasten the evaporation of water or other liquids placed in it when full. It evaporates at the rate of 1 gallon per minute. It is often used in conjunction with a decanter of endless water, creating a self-sufficient water fountain. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-133.

Beekeeper's Rod: Upon utterance of the command word ("smoke" in Mithric), this 3'-long rod of blackened steel emits puffs of a greyish smoke that serves as a soporific for bees and other insects. The smoke fills a 15'-radius sphere. Insects, including giant insects, must save versus spells at -5 in order to be able to attack anyone within the smoke. In addition to this power, the rod can be used as a mace; as such it is normally +1, but +3 against insects. Finally, the bearer gains a +2 to all saves against insect venoms. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 8-12 Class Limit: BCDMT.

Bhima: A unique glaive of extraordinary craftsmanship, Bhima acts as +2 for any wielder. Those of lawful alignment find Bhima a glaive +3, +5 versus demons. In addition, Bhima surrounds lawful wielders with a 5'-diameter circle of protection from evil, and allows them to see through demonic illusions and to detect invisible demons. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 12,000 Location: 8-125.

Black Iron Spear: These 5'-long spears are forged of black iron, and feature a single barb on the business end. They act as spears +1, +2 versus humanoids. Due to their weight, only those with STR 17 or greater can wield them. They are sometimes found with the animated spearmen type of Archontean constructs (see new monsters). Experience Point Value: 600 G. P. Value: 3,750 Location: 2-23, SL5-13B.

Black Light of Useful Necromancy: This 3'-tall rock-crystal lamp emits an unceasing black light out to 40'. So long as the black light is present, any undead within 20' regenerate 2 hp per round. The lamp can be destroyed by inflicting 5 hp damage on it. Hooding or cloaking the lamp blocks the visual emanations from the lamp (i.e., the black light), but does not prevent regeneration. The black light of the lamp doesn't interfere with infravision. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-213.

Blacklight Torch, Cursed: This item can only be obtained from the statue of Anubis in area 8-8, although there can be many such torches at any given time. Those who remove the apparently solid gold torch from Anubis's hand find the torch to be actually made of fool's gold and cursed. The curse prevents the taker from dropping the torch until he/she has died or until remove curse is cast. The cursed blacklight torch emits black light in a 20' radius. This black light has the opposite effect of the yellow light of the torch found in Anubis's hands; that is, the black light serves to attract rather than repel undead, and particularly shadows. Not only are shadows able to penetrate the 'light' of the torch, they are 50% more likely to attack the bearer of the cursed torch than any other available foe. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 500 Location: 3-16, 4-121, 8-8.

Blackthorn: This heavy spear is formed of ironwood that has been shellacked and varnished until it appears to be deep black. Its point is leaf-shaped. Blackthorn acts as a spear +2, +4 versus clerics. It has the potent ability to absorb six levels of clerical spells per day, provided the spell are cast directly at the wielder. In absorbing the spells, Blackthorn negates their effect (but cannot use them itself). Experience Point Value: 1,750 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 4-10.

Boar's Helm: This helmet is made of copper and shaped like the head of a raging black boar: mouth vents show tusks, the eyes are boar-like, and the top of the helm features some bristles. The helm detects of evil and, indeed, may only be worn by those of lawful evil alignment; all others take 1-4 electrical damage per round the helm is worn. The helmet is a powerful minor artifact of the ancient Archontean cult of Set, one of the symbols of which was the black boar. So long as the helm is worn, it provides the following powers: 1) a bonus of +2 to STR (maximum of 18; for fighters who already have STR 18, the helm increases exceptional STR by +25% up to a maximum of 18/00); 2) immunity to spells and effects that target the mind, including hold person, charm person, sleep, etc.; 3) immunity to fear; 4) addition of 10 HP to the character's normal total; 5) immunity to gas, smoke, and poison; and 5) cause fear in all within 10' who fail a save versus spells. Prolonged wearing of the helm has two side effects, however: 1) after 1-3 months of possession, the owner's reaction rolls are reduced permanently by 20%, even if he/she ends up losing the helm; 2) the owner has a 1% cumulative chance per month of becoming insane with homicidal mania. Experience Value: —. G. P. Value: 30,000. Location: 4-61 Alignment Limit: LE.

Bolts of Fire: These crossbow bolts act as bolts +2 but also cause a small explosion of fire if they hit their victim. The fire inflicts 5-8 HP damage the first round, and 1-3 HP the second. Experience Point Value: 20 G. P. Value: 120 Location: AV surface ruins, 2-20, 4-60, 4-91, 4-123, 4-124, 8-53.

Bone-Biter: This spear was owned by the heqeti hero, Tissiq One-Claw. It is normally a +3 weapon, but against humans it is a +5 weapon. In addition, Bone-Biter does double damage whenever a natural 19 or 20 is rolled to hit. Unless its tip is bathed in the blood of a human once per week (through combat or other means), Bone-Biter begins to lose some of its power. It loses one 'plus' to hit and damage for each week after the first in which it does not bathe in human blood. Thus, after six weeks without human blood, it is effectively a magic weapon without bonuses to hit or damage. Each time it tastes human blood thereafter, its bonus increases by one. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 7-92.

Bone Ring of Jagri-Naz (aka the Bone Ring of Jarnegus Argenteus): This minor artifact was the creation of the ancient Archontean sorcerer, Jarnegus Argenteus, i.e., Jarnegus 'the silver'. Over the centuries his name and identity has been corrupted into "Jagri-Naz", and the ring is most commonly known by this name.

Although modern legend has it that "Jagri-Naz" somehow removed pieces of his own femur to form the ring, the reality is slightly different, although no less creepy: Jarnegus amputated all four of his pinky fingers and toes, whittled down and smoothed the distal, intermediate, and proximal phalanges from these digits, and mounted them vertically on a thick silver band using magic and silver wire. Given its ungainly size and components, the ring is large, and must be worn on the thumb of most humans or humanoids. How the ring entered the treasury of the archons of Arden Vul is disputed, but it was certainly part of the archonal regalia by the death of the archon, Julian Grex (died AEP 1006). It remained a chief treasure of the archons until the fall of Arden Vul, when it was acquired by the rudishva survivor, Psalor-Ki.

The bone ring is at base a ring of protection +4. In addition, it provides regeneration of 1 HP every 2 rounds. By twisting various of the phalanges to a horizontal position, it also allows the wearer to produce other spell-like effects: protection from evil 10' radius (3/day), protection from good 10' radius (3/day), globe of invulnerability (2/day), and spell immunity (1/day; only usable on the wearer, lasting 20 turns).

Due to the notoriety of its creator, and the fearsome spectacle that it presents when worn, the ring decreases CHA by 1 and imposes a -25% penalty to reaction rolls. Despite these penalties, the ring is not necessarily evil, and can be worn by those of any alignment. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75,000 Location: 5-74.

Bones of Jaken the Proud: Housed in a carved ivory coffer, the charred bone-fragments of Jaken the Proud convey protection from evil, 10' radius on anyone who bears them with respect. The bones can be used to contact Jaken's spirit once per month, for one hour. Jaken is bluff and martial, but not stupid, and can only converse in Mithric. He knows little of Arden Vul, but is well-versed in ancient history, mythology, and tactics; he will also offer sharp, but useful, tactical criticism on the bearer of his relics. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 3-48.

Boots of Attraction, Cursed: These beautiful fawn leather boots are topped with soft wool. They detect as magic, but are unfortunately cursed, imposing a penalty of 2 upon the wearer's AC. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: AV-23, 2-43, SL12-19.

Boots of Insulation: These heavy, knee-high boots are fashioned from blue dragon hide. They confer a +2 bonus to saves vs electricity, and reduce damage from electricity by 1 point per die. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-110, 9-18.

Boots of the Ogre: These sturdy knee-high boots are shaped out of ogre hide. They provide +1 to the wearer's STR, or +10% if the wearer's strength is already 18 and percentile strength is allowable by class. The boots can increase a wearer's strength to a maximum of 18/00. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-51, 8-136 Class Limit: ABCFPRT.

Boots of Subtlety, Cursed: These burgundy leather boots with elaborate blue-tooled designs carved into the leather detect as magic, and fit any wearer, regardless of size. The wearer will find that they are the most comfortable boots she/he has ever owned. The boots are cursed such that they conceal the true extent of the wearer's injuries; the wearer believes his wounds to be only ⅓ as severe as they really are. For example, the wearer receives a hit for 9 HP damage. The GM announces "6 HP damage" but privately records the full 9. This means, of course, that at some point the GM may have to announce that the wearer has simply keeled over and died. As the wearer becomes injured, the boots' color gradually moves from burgundy to crimson and shine from dampness. When the wearer dies, the boots are found to be blood-red, damp as a sponge, and leaking blood. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: EX-10.

Box of Trapping: This lead box is 3' long, 2' wide, and 18" tall; all facets are carved with a myriad of faces, each with an open mouth. Some faces appear to be laughing, some moaning, some gaping, and so forth. The box can be owned by only one person at a time (the person who has carried it for the longest time in the past 24 hours is considered the owner). The box is imbued with powerful compulsion and imprisonment magic. Should anyone other than the owner open the box and look within, that person is instantly sucked into a windowless, door-less cell in a pocket dimension; there he/she/it is held captive indefinitely. The owner can release any trapped soul by stating the person's name or giving a reasonable description of that person. The pocket dimension can hold up to seven captives; strangely, captives do not require food or drink while trapped, nor do they age. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: SL13-10.

Bracers of Haste: These copper bracelets are incised with images of wings. The wearer's base movement increases by 30', and the wearer can choose to go even faster, acting as if a haste spell had been cast upon him. The haste lasts for 5-20 rounds, and ages the user by 1 year for each use. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 3-225, 4-139C, 5-46.

Bright-Blade: A fine ash spear with a gleaming steel tip, this spear acts as a spear +2. Against undead, however, it offers substantially greater powers: 1) it acts as a spear +4; 2) it emits a pure bright light in a 20' radius whenever undead are within 100'; and 3) when it delivers a killing blow to any undead creature, it instantly summons true sunlight in a 100' radius (this 'bright' light lasts for 1-6 turns). Needless to say, sentient and powerful undead, such as the vampire, Cinna Minux (7-122), or Meskenit the greater mummy (4-139C) know of Bright-Blade's fearsome reputation, and would do much to destroy it. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: SL4-43.

Brooch of Confident Action: This modest-looking brooch is prized by thieves, especially those working long cons. Made of silver, it takes the form of two crossed daggers. While it is useful for mundane purposes, its true value lies in the fact that it conveys on the wearer immunity from ESP, telepathy, and detection spells of all kinds (i.e., detect alignment, detect evil). What is more, the magic of the brooch provides a false reading to those kinds of spells: it suggests a pure neutrality of alignment for the wearer, and masks or modifies thoughts to make them appropriately mundane. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 17,500 Location: 4-2, 6-19.

Brooch of the Everlasting Brotherhood: This unique brooch takes the form of a skull molded of silver, with tiny pieces of jet for eyes. It radiates strong evil. If worn by any good or neutral character, the wearer takes 1-6 HP damage per turn until the brooch is removed. If worn by any being of evil alignment it provides immunity to death magic and raises the wearer's CHA by +2 when interacting with evil creatures. If worn by a being of lawful evil alignment, it also allows the user to command undead of 4 HD or fewer. Undead of greater power act as if under a friends spell towards the wearer. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: SL15-12 Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Bruning of Westholm's Cursed Grammar: This terrible, cursed volume appears on first inspection to be a valuable magical tome of 200 folios that is appropriate to the class of the person who inspects it (e.g., a book of exalted deeds for a cleric, a manual of stealthy pilfering for a thief). When the victim begins to study it however, he/she realizes that it needs a bit of correction. The curse compels the reader to correct the grammar of the volume, spending 1 hour per folio. If the victim has ready access to ink, he/she uses the ink until it is gone; if the victim does not have any ink, or runs out, he/she will begin to use his/her own blood to make the corrections, thereby causing 1-2 hp damage per folio. If the victim manages to make it to the end of the book before his/her ink or blood runs out, he/she will feel an irresistible urge to start again from the beginning, seeking to correct the new errors introduced by his own edits.

The only way to break the curse is to cast remove curse on the victim. Friends of the victim could also restrain and bind the victim, but he/she will prove inconsolable, shouting constantly about the need to 'perfect the grammar!' If the victim expects to be restrained, he/she will use all means at his/her disposal to protect his/her right to continue editing, including combat. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 3-41A.

Cap of Serenity: A red-and-yellow woolen knit cap with extending ear-protectors and strings for tying under the chin, this useful headwear acts to deflect hostile spells directed at the mind by providing a +2 bonus versus such spells (hold, paralysis, confusion, feeblemind, etc.). It also promotes in the wearer a serene, non-aggressive state, making it difficult to use in combat (-2 to all to hit rolls). Experience Point Value: 750 G. P. Value: 3,500 Location: SL4-19, SL6-17A, SL13-8.

Cauldron of Boiling: These large cauldrons create heat enough heat to boil water whenever their command word (usually inscribed on the bottom or side) is spoken. They are typically about 4' tall and 6' in diameter. Many subterranean peoples use them for cooking. Experience Point Value: 300 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 2-65, 5-77, 9-62, SL5-11, SL9-13.

Cers: Cers is an intelligent scimitar +3. The blade is 4' long and made of damascened steel, with gold-filled etchings of a half-dozen ancient words of power. The haft is wrapped in supple, tanned crocodile skin. It is a twin to Mistral (c.f.), but has great enmity towards its brother blade. Cers is LE in alignment, has INT 15, has an ego of 7, and is capable of speaking the LE tongue and Mithric. Its primary abilities are these: 1) detect precious metals, kind and amount in a 20' radius; 2) detect magic in a 10' radius; and 3) and detect secret doors in a 5' radius. Cers has a shifty, paranoid, secretive personality. It remains silent in the hands of good or neutral characters, but in the hands of an evil character it will whisper constantly to its owner about potential secret treasures and magical scrying, and about how dangerous its twin blade is. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 7-122.

Chaos Blade: The Chaos Blade is an intelligent long sword dedicated to chaos and the elimination of law. Its grip is red leather, and its blade is slightly curved (like a falchion). It is a long sword +2. It has INT 13 and ego 10, is chaotic neutral in alignment, and communicates via empathy. Its primary ability is to detect law/chaos in a 10' radius. As an extraordinary ability, it can impart strength 1/day on the wielder. The Chaos Blade has an overriding special purpose, which is to overthrow law; in pursuit of this purpose, it inflicts paralysis on a successful hit (victim saves versus spells or be paralyzed for 1-4 rounds).

The Chaos Blade was originally created for a notorious Thorcin criminal, Maestic the Sot. Maestic hated all kinds of authority, and especially the Archontean hegemony over Irthuun; he used this passion to mobilize support among his people against the Archontean for a decade before the Thorcinga realized that Maestic hated all law, not merely the Archontean. He was murdered in an ambush, and his blade fell into shadow. It was rediscovered by the modern cult of Set and was being studied by the deacon Herbert when he was killed by a succubus (see 4-58). Experience Point Value: 1,690 G. P. Value: 8,450 Location: 4-58.

Chaplet of Father Utar: This headband is made of lotus blossoms entwined around a narrow silk band. It provides WIS +1 and allows a cleric to memorize one extra 3rd-level spell per day. The lotus blossoms are hardy and specially treated, and remain fresh for a month. Unfortunately, after a month they slowly begin to fade, and the chaplet progressively loses its powers: month two provides one extra 2nd-level spell and month three provides one extra 1st-level spell. The flowers die in the fourth month, making the chaplet powerless. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 6-28 Class Limit: C.

Choker of the Great Tongue: This potent item appears as a thick torc of beaten copper with writhing salamanders, giant worms, and snakes incised into its surfaces. It is the symbol of authority of the heqeti Great Tongue of Arden Vul. In addition to providing an armor class bonus of 4 and a to hit bonus of +2 against good creatures, it allows the wearer to detect good 3/day, detect magic 3/day, detect alignment 3/day, detect lie 1/day, use true seeing 1/day, and cast commune 1/week. The choker is clearly evil and usable only by clerics. If worn by a neutral or good cleric, it causes instant insanity and has a 5% cumulative chance per week of permanently altering the victim's alignment to chaotic evil. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 65,000 Location: 10-47 Class Limit: C.

Circlet of Command: These platinum circlets set with a single emerald are part of the standard equipment of each of the Sun-Scarred Knights (see new monsters). As typically worn underneath a knight's helmet, a circlet allows a knight to, at will, 1) detect alignment; 2) detect lies; 3) issue commands (3/day); and 4) charm person or monster (2/day). All of these effects operate as if cast by a 10th-level caster. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: On Sun-Scarred Knights, and 10-53 Class Limit: BFIMMkT.

Circlet of Pearls, Golden: This item appears as a heavy gold circlet from which depend twenty large pearls on thin gold chains. Although the pearls are evenly spaced and thus may dangle in front of one's eyes, the circlet is extremely useful. If a pearl is consumed while the circlet is worn (by placing it in one's mouth and letting it dissolve), the user gains two powers for a period of 4-6 turns (provided he/she continues to wear the circlet): first, he/she is immune to charm or other mind-affecting attacks for a period of 4-6 turns; second, he/she gains telepathy, that is, the ability to silently communicate with other minds in a 100' radius. Unlike helms of telepathy, the circlet's pearls do not allow one to implant suggestions; in addition, sentient beings contacted by the user via telepathy can make a save versus spells to shut out the voice of the circlet's user (if they wish to do so). When all pearls have been consumed, the circlet is bereft of magical powers and can be sold for 250 gp. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: SL2-1F Class Limit: ABIMMkT.

Cloak of the Dwarves: In the sunlight this appears to be a dull, slate-grey traveling cloak. But as soon as it is surrounded by a substantial amount of stone (i.e., when underground), the cloak ripples with scores of shades of grey, black, and white. It allows the wearer to blend in to stone environments. The wearer is 95% invisible in torch/lantern light; 90% invisible to infravision; and 50% invisible in light/continual light. It also allows the wearer to detect new construction, depth underground, slopes, stone-based traps, and sliding walls just as a dwarf. Note that fast movement (more than 90') exposes the wearer regardless surroundings. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 6,000 Location: AV surface ruins, 3-151, 6-59, SL4-40, SL9-76.

Cloak of Wise Negotiating: This silver, hooded cloak is made of silk. Wearing it allows comprehension of all languages as well as a chance to respond in broken, halting, but still mildly comprehensible speech (there is a flat 25% chance that any utterance is comprehensible to the other speaker). When the hood is raised, the wearer becomes invisible. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 12,500 Location: 3-131, 5-2, SL1-11.

Coffer of Zox: Appearing as an ivory box carved with blasphemous images of tongues caressing all manner of beings, this item radiates evil of such intensity that all corporeal undead within 150' are compelled to try to locate and seize the box. The box has two potential uses to those of evil alignment. First it is possible to use the box as a portal to the Negative Material Plane. After saying the command word 'portal' in Mithric, and opening the box, one merely approaches, leans one's head towards it, and is sucked magically to that location. Second, the box can be used to trap corporeal undead and hold them in an interdimensional space. To do this, one must open the box when any such undead are within 20', and pronounce the command words "Store Allies" in Mithric.

For the next turn, any corporeal undead with fewer than 5 HD within 20' must save vs petrification or be sucked into the box.

The box can hold a maximum of seventeen undead; the number of undead contained in the box can be inferred by noting how many of the carved tongues on the exterior of the box have withdrawn into their mouths. When the owner wishes to release the undead, he/she must open the box and speak the phrase 'Summon Allies'; stored undead will consider the box owner an ally and will even fight for him/her.

Should the owner unwisely attempt to trap an eighteenth undead, the magic of the box becomes overloaded, and the lid springs open, releasing all seventeen undead to attack the owner. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 45,000 Location: 2-17, SL7-39 Class Limit: ABCIMMkT Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Cold Rocks: These coconut-sized boulders radiate cold. The cold is not damaging (being about 40-degrees Fahrenheit), but serves nicely as a source of refrigeration. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL4-39, SL12-24.

Collar of Servitude: This despicable device is used to bind another sentient being to the owner's will. It appears as a bronze collar about ½" wide with a locked clasp. Once fastened around a sentient being's neck, that being is unable to remove the collar and is compelled to follow all orders of the owner of the collar short of suicide, and even that request only allows a save vs spells to resist the compulsion. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL6-46, SL12-25 Alignment Limit: LN, LE, N, NE, CN, CE.

Conch of Amplification: An enormous (2'-long) conch shell, this device allows the listener to eavesdrop on any and every sound produced within a 50' cone extending from the shell. The practical benefit is obvious; it can be used to listen to whispers, even through closed doors. Sadly, it cannot sift 'noise' from desired sounds, so its use in noisy environments may well be limited. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 2-40.

Conch of Crustacean Assistance: If sounded, this beautiful parti-colored conch shell summons a pair of giant crabs that fight for the owner of the shell until they are slain or sent back whence they came. If a crab lives through successive summonings, it develops an affinity to the owner of the conch, allowing him/her to command or ride it. Without this affinity, the crabs attack all enemies, but cannot otherwise be controlled. The crabs always have affinity when the conch is sounded by a bard. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: SL9-27.

Control Rod and Collar, Rudishva: These linked items were created via rudishva techno-sorcery in the fire pits of creation (5-89). The purpose is to allow the wielder of the rod to compel the wearer of the collar to do his/her bidding. The thick collar is made of a silvery metallic alloy. The rod is 3' long and made of the same material; it has a 4"-diameter circle at one end. The wielder of the rod can a) direct motor control of the wearer of the collar and b) apply jolts of electricity (from 1-4 to 6-24 in damage). Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 5-89.

Creator's Breath: This potent enchanted mace +3 can only be wielded by lawful good clerics. It takes the form of a 2'-long column formed of rings of polished copper, starting with a ring 1" in diameter and ending with one that is 6" in diameter. The mace dispels enchantments and illusions as per a dispel magic spell cast by an 8th-level cleric. In addition, it grants true seeing to the wielder 2/day for 8 rounds. Experience Point Value: 1,750 G. P. Value: 17,500 Location: 7-120 Class Limit: C Alignment Limit: LG.

Dancing Houris: Variations of this odd set of items exist, but the one known to Arden Vul is a set of twelve, 1'-tall statuettes of scantily-clad female dancers. When the command word is spoken, the twelve figures begin to dance the Archontean 'dance of the silk veil'. In addition to general entertainment value, the dance acts as a more powerful version of the illusionist spell, hypnotic pattern, entrancing up to 50 HD of creatures who fail their saving throws. While entranced, the power of the houris allows the owner to make a mass suggestion (per the illusionist spell) to all who are transfixed. The transfixion lasts for 3-6 turns; the ability to suggest ends with the transfixion. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: SL6-46.

Darts of Sleeping: These large darts typically have a cork shaft and a vicious, sharpened steel point. On a hit, the victim must save or fall asleep per the 1st-level magic user spell sleep. The darts won't affect those with more than 5 HD. Experience Point Value: 20 G. P. Value: 120 Location: EX-14, 4-2, 6-61, 8-164, 9-18.

Death Mask of Ptoth-Ristus: The death mask of Ptoth-Ristus, companion of the heroes Arden and Vul, and first high priest of the temple of Thoth in Arden Vul, is a thin beaten gold helmet (with soft leather interior) to which is attached a beaten gold mask on which appear the features of Ptoth-Ristus himself. Facial features are indicated by subtle shaping of the gold, as well as by strategic application of a durable paint. The mask is valuable for its materials and antiquity, but is also a powerful magical item.

If worn, the mask imparts infravision 60' on the wearer. It also allows true seeing once per day (as the spell), and enhances the wearer's ability to detect lies (a successful save versus spells detects a lie) and illusions (+5 to disbelieve illusions). Finally, the mask also raises its wearer's WIS by one (+1) for so long as the mask is worn. The mask does have some negative effects: it instantly and permanently changes the wearer's alignment to LN (even if the wearer removes the mask); it produces in the wearer an intense, visceral hatred for heqeti which causes the wearer to act impulsively and possibly foolishly around frogs and salamanders and other such beings; and for every occasion on which it is worn for at least a turn, it produces a 5% cumulative effect that the wearer will come to permanently believe him-/herself to be Ptoth-Ristus. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-66.

Deck of the Magi: Like a deck of many things, this magical deck of cards can provide either beneficial or baneful effects. Unlike the more familiar deck, it can only be used by magic users or illusionists; those of other classes will see a fancy deck of cards with strange images on the reverse, but will not recognize its magic. A deck of the magi is formed of a set of twenty-two ivory plaques (2"x5") or heavy parchment cards, with the creator's sigil on the obverse of every card and a unique image illustrating the effect produced by that card on the reverse. When a magic user or illusionist decides to draw from the deck, he/she must announce how many cards he/she is drawing from the deck (a user may draw 1-4 cards per day). The deck contains the following cards:

Card Name	Card Equivalent	Image	Effect of Drawing Card
Dimwitted Apprentice	Ace of Clubs	An apprentice accidentally knocks a pile of scrolls into a fireplace	Lose 2 points from INT
Ambitious Apprentice	Ace of Spades	An apprentice surreptitiously reaching into a treasure chest	Lose all wealth (coin, gems, jewelry, real estate)
Faithful Apprentice	Ace of Hearts	An apprentice presents a candlestick to the viewer	Gain a bequest of either 20 jewels or 50 gems, plus 3-6 scrolls
Useful Apprentice	Ace of Diamonds	An apprentice holds a grimoire open in both hands for an unseen master	Gain +2 INT
Trickster	2 of Clubs	A potion, fizzing at its mouth	Potions drunk and/or created by PC have 50% shorter duration; such potions must always roll on the miscibility table, even if only one is consumed
Prestidigitator	Jack of Clubs	An alembic and retort	PC inherits a fully equipped alchemical laboratory, with 10,000 gp in materials and a monthly credit line for supplies of 500 gp
Magician	Queen of Clubs	A magic user steps obliviously onto an open pit	PC gains permanent -4 penalty to all attempts to disbelieve illusions
Illusionist	King of Clubs	A mage points a staff to the right	PC gains a staff of illusions (see new magic items) and all cast illusions have their duration enhanced by 50%
Evoker	2 of Spades	A demonic head, complete with horns	A type V demon appears, either to give boons and advice or to attack; response determined by alignment of PC and by a reaction roll
Conjurer	Jack of Spades	A deva in silhouette	An astral deva appears, either to give boons and advice or to attack; response determined by alignment of PC and by a reaction roll
Demonist	Queen of Spades	A brooding castle made, seemingly, of iron	PC is instantly transported into a demonic prison cell in an isolated fortress on one of the planes of the Abyss
Summoner	King of Spades	A lamp, with mysterious fumes coming out of one end	Gain 1-3 wishes
Shaman	2 of Diamonds	A smiling mage, with arms folded in contentment	Permanently lose one spell slot of level 1-3 (loss is delayed if PC is not yet high enough level for this to take effect)
Theurgist	Jack of Diamonds	A distraught mage, his face twisted in anguish, tearing at his hair	Permanently gain one spell slot of level 1-3 (PC may need to wait to utilize this boon if he/she is not yet high enough level to enjoy it)
Thaumaturge	Queen of Diamonds	Two smiling mages, with arms folded in contentment	Permanently lose one spell slot of level 4-6 (loss is delayed if PC is not yet high enough level for this to take effect)
Enchanter	King of Diamonds	Two distraught mages, each with his face twisted in anguish, tearing at their hair	Permanently gain one spell slot of level 4-6 (PC may need to wait to utilize this boon if he/she is not yet high enough level to enjoy it)
Warlock	2 of Hearts	A pickpocket lifting a purse from a robed person	Lose 10,000 XP and a magic item (dice for which)
Witch	Jack of Hearts	A featureless representative of a factor presents a wand on a red silk pillow	Gain 10,000 XP and a wand (dice for which)
Magus	Queen of Hearts	No image; the card is completely black	All magic items are instantly destroyed
Wizard	King of Hearts	Images of a staff and a hooded robe	Gain a staff of the magi and a robe of the archmagi (of the appropriate alignment)
Archmage	Joker (color)	A seated mage approvingly pats a kneeling mage on his shoulder	Gain 2 experience levels
Necromancer	Joker (b&w)	A grinning skull with faceted, gem-like eyes	Character is subject to destruction (reverse of resurrection )

Once drawn, the magic of a card takes effect immediately. Once drawn, a card must be reinserted into the deck (users who try to avoid this rule find that the cards magically reappear in the deck), except if the card drawn is a king, a queen, or a joker; in those cases, the card disappears in a puff of smoke after the magic takes effect. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 4-52 Class Limit: IM.

Deino's Dagger: A beautiful, copper-hilted, wavy-bladed blade, this dagger is one of the signature items of Deino the witch (3-158). It is +3 to hit and damage, and can inflict a paralytic poison 2/day (save vs poison or be paralyzed for 1-4 turns). Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-158.

Deino's Ring: This gold band is set with a huge opal, and is the possession of Deino the witch (3-158). It offers several protections: 1) protection from normal missiles, per the 3rd-level magic user spell of that name; 2) immunity to hold person; and 3) haste 2/day. Its powers are tied to Deino's life force, however; if Deino is killed, the ring will gradually lose its enchantments (this takes 60-90 days). If somehow stolen from Deino (and the witch still lives), it functions normally (until, of course, Deino dies or is killed). Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 3-158.

Desmesure: This beautiful broadsword possesses a long hilt wrapped in the tanned hide of a green dragon, with a pommel made of a huge crystal. It is a sword +2, dragon slayer (focus on green dragons). Desmesure is also intelligent, being NG in alignment and with INT 14, ego 9, and the ability to speak Archontean and the NG tongue. Its primary powers are these: 1) detect evil in a 10' radius; 2) detect gems, kind and number, in a 5' radius. Desmesure is an old and wise blade, having seen much combat in the hands of Archontean heroes of old. For all its glories, which it is fond of recounting to its wielder, Desmesure has never encountered a green dragon, and will urge its owner to seek out the hated draconic race and slay them as swiftly as he/she can. Experience Point Value: 1,260 G. P. Value: 6,300 Location: SL5-41.

Djed Amulet: These rare devices were constructed by the priests of Osiris in antiquity. Only a handful have been found by modern explorers, although others may once have existed. The amulet is of solid gold, with a gold pin on the reverse. Its form is that of the djed pillar, that is, a 10<sup>7</sup>-long slightly tapering column, into the shorter end of which five crossbars have been placed. A djed amulet confers +1 CON to whoever bears it, and permits true seeing three times a day (per the spell). These powers are only good so long as the amulet is worn openly. In addition, if a djed amulet is broken in half and the pieces placed in a recently deceased person's mouth, the person will be subject to resurrection per the 7th-level cleric spell (at 20th level) of that name. Experience Point Value: 4,500 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 5-60, 8-122, SL4-19, SL4-40F.

Draught of Fidelity: This clear potion is brewed by Malachite, the master of the Sun-Scarred Knights (see SL10A-32). It is consumed ritually as part of the bonding ritual of the Knights. One consumption renders the drinker permanently susceptible to suggestion or charm person cast by Malachite (-4 to saves). Taken over time, the potion extends the lifespan of the drinker by 50%, one dose every four months for five years does the trick. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL10B-30.

Druva's Claymore: This massive weapon was the property of Druva, second of the original three varumani Thegns. The blade is toughened black ceramic, and is about 50" long; the hilt is plasteel coated in supple, grey, kaliyani hide. Although it is a large blade, it is much less heavy than traditional two-handed swords; it takes 1-8 combats before even those with proficiency in two-handed blades can use it without a non-proficiency penalty. The claymore is +2 to hit and damage, is immune to acid and corrosion, and severs extremities on a natural 20 (1-4: arm; 5-7: leg; 8: head). Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 5-137.

Dwarven Life-Stone: Life-stones are carved oblongs about 4" long; they are frequently threaded upon a leather cord. Members of the powerful clans of Kazildor are given a life-stone when they reach adulthood; through an enchantment known only to dwarven rune-smiths, the stone is enchanted such that it glows with a low, yellow light so long as its owner lives. Should the owner die, the stone loses its enchantments. The life-stones allow trained dwarven delvers to locate missing members of the clan (via a locate object-type enchantment). The life-stones are considered sacred by the clans, and great effort is expended to locate and recover the life-stones of dead clansmen (of course this is difficult to do once the life-force that has enchanted a stone is dead). Those dwarves who are clanless lack life-stones.

Typically each life-stone is carved from a specimen of the stone for which the clan is named (i.e., malachite stone for clan Malachite). In addition to the basic enchantment, runes identifying the clan and the specific dwarf in question are carved into the life-stone. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: EX-10, 2-32, 4-2, 5-52, 6-164, 7-75, 7-76, 7-81, 8-97, 8-100, 8-115, 8-134, SL12-25.

Earring of Protection: This powerful device takes the form of a 2"-diameter hoop earring formed out of yellow gold. When worn by a creature of CN, LN or true N alignment, the earring provides a bonus to AC of +2 to +5 (depending on the enchantment), as well as a +1 bonus to saves. In addition to the alignment restriction, the earring only functions when the user is wearing no armor. Experience Point Value: (+2) 1,000; (+3) 1,500; (+4) 2,000 (+5) 2,500 G. P. Value: (+2) 2,000; (+3) 3,000; (+4) 4,000 (+5) 5,000 Location: 2-31, 3-36C, 4-2, 8-31, 9-32, 8-37 Alignment Limit: LN, N, CN.

Earthfriend: A fine ash spear with a deep, old patina and several Wiskin runes for power carved on its haft, this spear was originally wielded by the great Wiskin hero of song, Olaf White-Beard. It acts as a spear +2 until/unless the bearer learns its name, Earthfriend. Should the name Earthfriend be chanted rhythmically for 1 round, it will confer regeneration of 1 hp/round on its bearer, for a maximum of 2 turns and for so long as the bearer is touching earth (not stone, but earth). In addition, after the first chanting the owner of Earthfriend may choose to multi-class as a druid so long as the spear remains in his/her possession, even when such is not permitted by race, ability scores, or alignment. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 7-76E.

Ebon Spear, The: This powerful weapon resembles the standard, 5.5'-long, heavy thrusting spear of the Archontean heavy infantry. Unlike the usual ash-and-iron construction of the Archontean army, however, it is composed of an ebony shaft with a double-barbed mithril tip. The shaft is incised with various Mithric inscriptions to Wadjet, the ancient goddess of warfare. The spear was borne by the great hero Arden in the later stages of her storied career and is thus sometimes referred to as the spear of Arden (a confusing reference, since upon ascension to demi-godhood, Arden came to possess a different, more powerful spear - see the spear of Arden Ascended). The spear was one of the prized possessions of the archons of Arden Vul and was wielded in battle by military archons such as Marius Tricotor. It was 'borrowed' during the last decades of Archontean rule in Arden Vul by the archmage Kentillian, who took it to her private residence for 'protection'; it remains there to this day.

The spear may only be wielded by those of non-evil alignments. For any such persons capable of wielding spears, it functions as a spear +4. In the hands of a good or neutral fighter, however, it provides several additional powers.

First, when wielded by a fighter, the ebon spear is able to attack twice as many times per round as is normal for the fighter's level (i.e., a fighter wielding the ebon spear receives 2 attacks per round at levels 1-6, 3 attacks per round from levels 7-12, and 4 attacks per round at level 13). In addition, in the hands of a fighter one attack routine with the spear hits automatically (other attacks must be rolled normally). Finally, once per turn a fighter who wields the spear can inflict a small explosive ball of fire on a target that has already been successfully hit with the spear; this ball of fire does 3-24 HP damage (save vs spells for half damage).

The ebon spear is heavy, however, and may only be wielded by those with STR 17 or greater; those with lesser STR, even if they are fighters, find the spear acting as a spear +2 without any of its other powers. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 85,000 Location: SL5-13B.

Efreeti Sand: This fine black sand is reputed to come from a special garden within the fabled City of Brass on the plane of fire. If a dose is thrown on any entity whose home is the elemental plane of fire (fire elemental, efreeti, etc.), that entity is immediately returned to that plane and unable to return for one year. Intelligent entities so banished from the Prime Material Plane are likely to resent their banishment. A typical bag holds 2-3 doses of sand. Experience Point Value: 300 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 4-24, 7-79, 8-125.

Elven Rope: Elves weave these 75' coils rope out of silk before enchanting them. The rope can hold a ton of weight, and will not release its hold on an anchorage point unless the owner so desires. The coil weighs 5 lb. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: AV-19, TS-4, 6-20, 9-102, SL4-46, SL11-19.

Erdenion's Spear: This fine ash spear was the property of Erdenion, the last known descendant of the great Arden (she was the great, great, great, great-niece of Arden). It is a spear +2 of wounding (as a sword of wounding). Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL7-29.

Eustachius's Cithara: This beautiful cithara was the personal instrument of Eustachius the cantor. The sounding box is basswood and the arms and crosspieces olivewood. Originally it had eight strings, but the strings are long gone. The sounding box is carved with grape and olive vines entwined around the letter E. If restrung, a skilled player can use the cithara to achieve several effects. First, it can soothe the tempers of wild animals; animals encountering the citharist must save versus spells or prove unwilling to attack him/her. Second, it can render sentient beings amenable to the musician; in game terms, the citharist operates as if under a friends spell for as long as he/she plays, and those encountered by the citharist get a +15% to reaction rolls. In the hands of a bard, wild animals are always soothed, and the temper of plants and fungi can be soothed as well with a failed save. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 8-149.

Ever-alert Head: Through foul necromantic rituals, a preserved head of any sentient creature can be turned into an enchanted watcher of sorts. An ever-alert head is able to detect motion in a 30' radius in front of its eyes; it can then bark forth a programmed response that serves to warn its owner of potential trespass. Other effects can be instilled in the head, including the ability to see invisibility, detect magic or alignment, and so forth. A few ever-alert heads are said to retain independent speech, although usually this is insensible speech and not the product of reason. Experience Point Value: 500 (+250 per additional effect) G. P. Value: 2,000 (+1,000 per additional effect) Location: 4-1B, SL12-23.

Ever-full Chest: Every morning this 25-lb stone chest creates 300 new gold coins. The chest holds up to 3,000 coins, and it will not create new coins if already full. If ever emptied of all coins and left empty for more than a few minutes, the ever-full chest's enchantment fails. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL6-17A.

Ever-full Inkwell: This simple, practical item is carved out of onyx. It never runs out of ink, and is thus invaluable to sages, scholars, and magic users. 10% of these items create ink suitable for scribing magic scrolls, and are worth ten times normal value. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 3,500 Location: 5-29, SL6-17A.

Ewer of Fadil the Clear: This brass ewer was created by the legendary padisha of the marids, Fadil the Clear. By pouring clear water from the ewer, 1-3 jannee are instantly summoned to serve the pourer. The jannee are compelled to serve for one combat or one century. It is possible to summon particular jannee by name, if the names are known; if not known, three random jannee are summoned. A maximum of three jannee may be bound to the ewer at any one time. It is said that the marids are greatly angered at the loss of this powerful object, and that they seek both its return and retribution against any human possessor of the ewer. Experience Point Value: 9,000 G. P. Value: 45,000 Location: SL15-16.

Eye of Seeing: This useful item appears as a solid silver or gold orb inset with lapis, crystal, and jet to form the semblance of an eye. When brandished it reveals all hidden, invisible, ethereal, or incorporeal creatures or objects in a 30'-long cone in front of the wielder. Each use drains a charge, but charges may be replenished by immersing the eye in a pot of quicksilver and fresh eyes over which a wizard eye is then cast. The scarcity and magical qualities of the eyes used in this broth determines how many charges are renewed (e.g., a goblin eye is worth ½ charge, but a dragon eye is worth 25). Eyes can hold up to 50 charges, but most are found with 20 + 2-12 charges. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 4-158.

Eyes of Fenth: These foul objects are associated with Fenth, the pitiless Thorcin god of the old forest. Fenth priests take a pair of eyes from a human sacrificed to Fenth on the night of a full moon, and mount them in a set of over-sized copper spectacles. The eyes provide true seeing per the 5th-level clerical spell for 2-6 days. All the while the eyes drip blood and ichor as a part of the enchantment. Wearing the eyes of Fenth in public marks one as a devotee of Fenth, and thus as an evil person. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL13-10F.

Eyes of Pol: The creation of the morbid sense of humor of Pol, the 'laughing mage' of Arden Vul, these bizarre objects are the product of the curse that Pol imbued in his infamous Pol's Treatise On Scrying (see new magic items; currently found at 2-72).

Each set of eyes of Pol includes a copper bowl about 6" in diameter and 4" deep; the bowl is filled with mercury, in which twitch a pair of human eyeballs. The eyeballs rotate, blink, and otherwise perform as eyes. They transmit whatever they see back to the appropriate crystalline sheet within Pol's Treatise on Scrying. Using the Treatise can create new sets of eyes of Pol (see entry on the Treatise for its operation).

The bowl can be moved easily enough, and Pol's magic keeps the mercury and eyeballs from spilling out of the bowl. If dispel magic is cast on a set of eyes, the binding properties are eliminated, and the mercury can be poured out and the eyes discarded (or used); in such cases, the appropriate page within the Treatise will also lose its images. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-147, 5-29, 5-83, 7-127, 8-125, SL6-85.

Eyes of Set: This set of lenses allows the wearer to see heat signatures within magical darkness provided that the darkness has been caused by a priest or minion of Set. The eyes of Set appear as huge goggles set with strange, greenish, crystalline lenses; the effect renders the wearers somewhat intimidating. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-21, 4-23.

Feather: A finely made two-handed sword, with demon-skin grip and a spherical red malachite pommel cap, this is one of Zhorak's finest creations. It weighs a massive 75 lb unless/until one speaks the command word ("unburden" in Dwarvish), at which point it becomes 'light as a feather'. Once usable, the sword acts as a two-handed sword +4, +6 versus demons and devils. Additionally, any demon hit by Feather may be subject to a turning attempt provided it falls under the special category: check as if the turn was from a 10th-level cleric. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 8-99.

Feather of Maat: These rare items are typically bestowed by the gods themselves, or at least by powerful high priests of good deities. They appear as 2'-long, pure white ibis feathers. If worn visibly (say, by attaching to a helmet), the feather protects the postulant (and only him/her) from level drain until it has successfully cancelled 10 drained levels. Each cancelled level drain causes the feather to blacken slightly, starting at the edges and working inward; when the tenth level drain has been cancelled, the feather crumbles into black dust. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: SL2-1D.

Finisher: This steel mace features four prominent flanges carved in the shape of teeth. It is +1 in general, but is +2 versus all forms of undead. It also reduces energy drain attacks against the bearer by one level of intensity. Experience Point Value: 750 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 3-63.

Fishgutter: This massive iron trident +2 is wielded by Nisslok, the lizard king who rules the Lagrok tribe of lizardmen. It also allows one to breath water as a fish. Experience Point Value: 1,250 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location SL9-27.

Foebane Necklace: These necklaces are typically made by primitive peoples or races, and are coveted for their protective properties. The Lagrok lizardman tribe of Sub-Level 9 form their foebane necklaces of cowrie shell, amber, obsidian and green beryl strung on dried animal tendons. Each necklace provides a bonus of +2 to armor class provided the wearer is not wearing other armor or protective magic. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location SL7-14, SL9-11, SL9-17, SL9-27, SL9-36.

Founder's Mattock, The: This enormous mattock was the personal weapon of the ancient heqeti hero, Glivtep. It is a lesser artifact with many powers. Among them are the abilities to cause the following spell-like effects, 3/day each: transmute rock to mud, wall of stone, passwall, and stone shape. It can also detect changes in stonework as a dwarf.

If wielded in combat, it is a heavy, two-handed weapon with a +3 bonus to hit and damage; it is, however +5 versus humans. Damage is 1-10 (+3/+5) versus small or medium creatures, and 3-18 (+3/+5) versus large creatures.

The founder's mattock detects strongly of evil, and it is so thoroughly chaotic evil that it will eventually convert any wielder to that alignment. This process takes 6-8 months for those of good alignments, 3-6 months for those of neutral alignments, and 1-3 weeks for those of evil alignments. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 40,000 Location 9-12.

Fox Crests: A pair of fox pelts tied together and meant to be attached to a helmet as a form of adornment, these items were the property of the long-forgotten legionary and hero, Spiculus Carbo. They confer a bonus to saves versus fear (+2) and a general +1 to all to hit rolls (but not to damage). They are highly flammable, though. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location SL6-77 Class Limit: ABFMkPRT.

Freki's Bow: This enchanted short bow was the possession of the famous Wiskin trickster, Freki Long-ears. It is a short bow +2, and also provides its user DEX +2 (to a maximum of 20). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 12,000 Location SL10B-16.

Frog-Biter: This spear was enchanted in antiquity to help the early Archontean colonists battle the heqeti. Frog-Biter acts as a spear +2, but is +3 versus amphibians, and +4 versus heqeti. It also reduces damage from acid by 1 point per die. Experience Point Value: 1,250 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 5-16.

Gauntlet of Fire Absorption: This heavy leather gauntlet provides protection from fire. Hostile fire attacks are sucked into the gauntlet, thereby reducing damage from fire by 2 points per die. If more than 30 HP of fire damage is taken in a single round, however, there is a 25% chance the glove will explode in a burst of sparks, inflicting 2-8 HP damage on the wearer. It is otherwise immune to fire damage. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 2-27, 3-157.

Gemini Blades: These matched broad swords have hilts wrapped in yellow silk and come with beautiful red leather scabbards. They were the weapons of Taticus and Tekla, the Archontean fraternal twins who became famous by defeating the troll of Helmdorf. It is much less widely known, however, that the twins also helped the imperial authorities defeat the varumani thegn in Arden Vul and that they and their blades were consequently buried there (SL6-88). Each of the gemini blades is a potent weapon on its own, but when the blades are welded together (by a single, dual-wielding owner) or in close proximity (by partners fighting within 50' of each other), they demonstrate additional powers.

As individual weapons, each is a broadsword +1, +2 versus trolls (including varumani). When welded in proximity to each other by allies, they become broadswords +2, +3 versus trolls (including varumani), and also provide telepathy between the wielders. When dual-wielded by a single character, they act as broadswords +2, +3 versus trolls (including varumani), and also provide the following powers: 1) ESP, 30' range; 2) wounding, as a sword of wounding.

The blades can only be welded by twins or by those of chaotic good or chaotic neutral alignment. Normal penalties for dual-wielding still apply. Experience Point Value: 1,500 (each) G. P. Value: 10,000 (each) Location: SL6-88 Alignment Limit: CG.

Ghost Paste: This off-white paste must be smeared across a user's entire body. When this is done, it provides improved invisibility for 6-12 turns. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: SL5-4.

Giant's Tooth: The incisors of the hill giant chief, Bandoth Four-Fingers, are mounted in this silver coronet. The forces of Archon Agapion slew Bandoth and his entire household, and created this item from the giant's remains. The coronet provides +2 STR to the wearer (but cannot provide exceptional strength; it can only raise STR to 18). Experience Point Value: 1,250 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: SL7-12 Class Limit: ABFMkPRT.

Glass Activation Squares: see Thothian Teleportation Rings (q.v.)

Glass Sphere of Arcane Assistance: These useful magical aids come in a variety of forms that are distinguished by the color of the gas swirling within them. Each is about 3" in diameter and formed of translucent (and delicate!) glass. Known types of glass spheres are as follows:

Name	Color	Effect
Protection	Light blue	As the 4 th -level magic user spell, minor globe of invulnerability .
Dispelling	Pale green	As the spell dispel magic (6 th -level).
Arcane Warding	Lemon yellow	Encases target in a yellow, shimmering sphere. The sphere impedes spell casting, preventing spells of levels 1-3 from being cast by anyone within the sphere. Area of Effect: 6' radius sphere; Duration: 2-5 rounds.

Martial Warding	Yellow-green	Encases target in a yellow-green, shimmering sphere. The victim is at -2 to hit and damage (minimum 1) for the duration. Effect: 6' radius sphere; Duration 2-5 rounds.
Destruction	Fire-red	As the 3 rd -level magic user spell fireball (6 dice).

They are activated by breaking them, whether at one's feet or against the body of an enemy. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 2-47, 7-79, 8-25, 9-8, 9-14, 9-20, 9-62, 10-3, 10-57, SL4-40D.

Globe of Sulfuric Distress: These globes are made of intestinal linings and filled with sulfuric gas collected from the mudflats of Sub-Level 9. The Lagrok tribe uses them as missile weapons. A direct hit on a man-sized foe does 1-3 hp damage and causes burning and choking for 1-2 rounds, rendering the victim incapable of attack. Globes which burst on a hard surface within 5' of a victim release their gas, but victims can make a saving throw to avoid the choking effect. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL9-27.

Goggles of Seeing: This strange apparatus resembles a WWI aviator helmet: a cracked leather cowl with large, 2"-diameter circular yellow lenses embedded in the eye holes. The device grants the wearer these abilities: 1) invisible beings and objects become visible; 2) secret doors are easier to spot (1 in 4); 3) illusions cast at less than 8th level are recognized as false. The downside of the goggles is that they limit vision to 20', and render the wearer more prone to surprise by 1. If worn in combat, they inflict a -2 penalty to 'to hit' rolls. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: SL3-3D, SL3-6.

Golden Ankh: This object serves, in the right hands, as a powerful talisman against undead. Although it can be picked up by those of any alignment, it only conveys useful powers on those who are neutral or evil; it actually works as a cursed object for those of good alignment. Within the necropolis of Set (4-136 to 4-146) and when wielded by a neutral or evil character, the ankh turns undead as if it were a 12th-level cleric. If taken outside the necropolis of Set by one of neutral or evil alignment, the ankh's powers are reduced: a) its turning effect is replaced by a simple a +2 bonus to AC when combatting undead; and b) the wielder and any companions within 15' will be cursed with the mark of Set (a magical sign indicating those so affected as inimical to Set).

Should a PC of good alignment pick up the ankh, he/she will find himself/herself cursed such that he/she cannot willingly give up the ankh; what is worse, the ankh will act as an undead-attractor for the cursed person, attracting any undead within a 100' radius and worsening the wielder's AC versus undead by 3. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-138A Alignment Limit: LN, CN, LE, NE, CE.

Golden Band of Singalok Ket: A thick band of gold, studded with small rubies, this ring provides potent defense against magic. It provides a permanent protection from evil in a 10' radius around the wearer. It also offers other effects, each of which can be activated by pressing a distinct ruby along the band: 1) invisibility; 2) demon control: acts like a charm person spell on minor demons, bypassing their magic resistance if they have any; 3) Energy blast: a circle of green energy emanates from the band and extends in a 50' radius around the wearer, inflicting 4-24 HP on any demons within the radius. These stud-based powers can be used 3/day.

Golden bands are created for the Order of Planar Explorers by niravairi (see new monsters) sorcerers; they are rare, and typically only allotted to the leader of a planar expedition (e.g., Singalok Ket). Experience Point Value: 1,500 G.P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL1-11 Class Limit: BFIMT.

Guard Cap: This tall, conical, bronze helmet grants a +1 bonus to AC and a +3 bonus saves versus fear or comparable effects. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-12, 4-109, 6-138, 7-22, 7-76, 8-147, SL13-22. Class Limit: ABCDFPRT.

Guardian Caryatid: This valuable object is prized by those travelers concerned with robbery on the road. It takes the form of a 20"-tall columnar statuette (specific details of the carving vary), formed usually out of ivory or bone. When set on a flat surface and given the proper command word, the guardian caryatid will watch over its owner until a second command is spoken. If certain parameters outlined by the owner occur (motion, noise, light), the caryatid grows to 5' tall and defends its owner as if it were a 5th-level fighter with AC 6, HP 40; and one attack per round (4-9 HP damage per successful hit). A guardian caryatid may only be hit by magic weapons or spells. It is susceptible to fire, taking double damage from it. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 7-31.

Hag's Eye: Some hags are able to infuse a large ruby with a portion of their life force; the ruby is mounted in a piece of jewelry (a necklace, or an amulet) and has a minimum value of 1,300 gp. The hag is able to see through the ruby, so long as the piece of jewelry is within ½ mile of her. At the cost of 1,000 gp and 1-6 hp (permanent), a magic user or illusionist can recalibrate the ruby so that he/she can see through it. Destroying the ruby inflicts 2-12 damage on the hag (or magic user or illusionist) and renders her (or him) blind for 2-12 days. After this period, any hit points lost in calibrating the hag's eye can be regained through normal healing. The remnants of a destroyed hag's eye can be sold for about 250 gp. Although a hag's eye detects as magic, only a sage or true seeing reveals its real nature. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-222.

Hand of Glory: The mummified hand of a hanged murderer, this foul object is created through complicated and lengthy necromantic rituals. Usually a hand comes with 1-3 thick candles wedged between the fingers of the hand; the candles are made of the rendered fat of the murderer as well. Hands of glory have two uses. First, if any one of the candles is lit, they will all give off an oily black smoke for precisely 1 round, after which they will burn cleanly; once lit (and the smoke gone), the candle(s)'s light provides invisibility and silence to the possessor (note: this is not an area affect, but one limited to an individual). Second, when worn around the neck on a string, the hand allows the wearer to use a third magic ring by placing it upon one of the fingers of the hand.

Hands of glory are clearly evil, and those of good alignment who employ one will be at -2 to all rolls for the duration of such use. Some very powerful hands are also said to be able to switch a user's alignment to LE. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 50,000 Location: 3-95, 9-33.

Harp of Charming: This full-sized, 8'-tall harp is made of ebony inset with ivory. When the harp is played for at least two rounds, its beautiful tones act as a charm person spell on all those within 40' (who are able to hear the music). The magic is powerful enough that the harpist does not need to be trained to effect the charm. When used by a bard, the harp's music acts as a charm monster. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 3-22, SL12-19.

Head of Thoth: One of the most potent sorceries developed by the priesthood of Thoth was the ability to preserve the consciousness and memory of a human in a stone receptacle. Given the fate-altering nature of such magic, and the frequent unwillingness of a sentient to be so 'channeled,' only a few such heads were ever made. What is more, they were a closely guarded secret, with only the high priest, the prior, and a few trusted aides aware of even the possibility of such sorcery. Once created (through a dangerous and expensive ritual), the mind, personality, and memories of a living being were trapped in (usually) a specially-prepared bust. The resulting sentient heads could speak, reason, argue, and experience emotions; they could not, however, cast spells, but some retained a few magical abilities. In essence, the process ensured that knowledge could be preserved and passed down through time. As there is no soft tissue to decay, the process also created a form of immortality, as the only way to silence a head was to smash its receptacle. Given the age of the few surviving heads, it is not surprising that there is a flat 50% chance that a given head is now insane. Heads are also usually quite heavy, and thus are not practical for mobile consultation.

In general terms a head can impart useful information to a questioner. Several caveats apply. First, a head is never compelled to be friendly or even to answer a question; a head that prefers silence might well be overlooked in a quick survey of loot. Second, the head's information is limited to its experiences; it is certainly not an oracle, nor does it possess clairvoyance or clairaudience. The most valuable information possessed by heads is often of a historical, explanatory, or directional sort. Third, heads have distinct personalities.

The GM should feel free to develop as many distinct heads as is desired (remembering their essential scarcity, of course). A few are given below:

Name	Personality	Description	Knowledge Possessed
Stamelis the Librarian (2-69)	Voluble, obsequious, inquisitive	Male, mostly bald, many wrinkles, broken nose, pronounced wart on cheek, large ears	Layout of all of Thothian regions of Levels 1-3; location of library; nature of Litany of Light; theories about Obsidian Gates; history of Archontean interaction with rudishva, varumani, heqeti; ideology of Sortians (but not their betrayal).
Nertet-Indra (3-206), high priestess of Thoth	Personable, inquisitive, helpful	Nertet-Indra stands 10' tall, with arms folded across her chest holding ankhs. She wears a tall cylindrical hat. Only once her eyes are restored (3-204) will the magic still present in the statue become manifest. Nertet-Indra still acts as a conduit between Thoth and this world, being able to bless 3/day (see right).	As a Head of Thoth, Nertet-Indra retains her personality. She eagerly questions those in her range of vision, and in turn answers questions about the history of the cult of Thoth. She is interested to know who reigns in the halls (especially Levels 2 and 3), what has become of the priests, what god the PCs worship, what their intentions are, and what they might do to restore the cult of Thoth. She attributes the slow demise of the city to the insidious influence of Set, and offers advice on how to stamp out Set and his followers. Only too aware of the power of Set during her own day, she is able to give clear information about the Set temple and neighboring precincts. She can provide a good general layout of Levels 1-3. If treated well, Nertet-Indra will be willing to incant a Blessing of Thoth three times per day; each blessing cures 3-18 damage and also cures all poisons.
Licinus Bonus Apsus (4-29)	Sour, sarcastic, uninterested	Male, close-cropped ringleted hair; short nose, one missing ear; piercing eyes	16 th claustral prior of Thoth. Licinus is unwilling to talk and it takes an extraordinary effort and personal revelation to get him to do so. If the current state of the chapter house (3-58) and/or the fate of the last prior (3-61) are mentioned, he may (50%) open up. If he begins to talk, he has information about the layout of the Thothian areas of Levels 2 and 3; he knows the Litany of Light; he has solid information about the southern portions of Level 4, although 50% of it has been rendered useless due to cave-ins
Vipsania Torquil (SL10B-7)	Eager and enthusiastic, to the extent of appearing naive; but actually quite intelligent and canny	Female, hair in side-buns; snub nose; mole on left cheek	19 th claustral prior of Thoth. Vipsania knows, of course, the layout of the Thothian areas of Levels 1-3, as well as the Set regions of Level 4 (although her knowledge is out of date given cave-ins). She has a strong interest in folklore, and was an expert on Larel, Jacinth and other trickster figures. She was also an expert in art and magic, and can still cast identify twice per day. She despises Set, and is quite racist about goblins and other demi-humans.
Paratus Vitrunius, logothete (SL12-23)	Blustering, over-confident, name-dropping,	Male, military haircut, weak chin, bags under eyes	Logothete in the archonal administration of Vafer Telator (AEP 1087-1106); one of the first to volunteer to become a head of Thoth ; has information about early Archontean military and political structures, figures, campaigns, and secrets (most of little value in the present). A statue to him is found at 8-9.

Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-69, 3-206, 4-29, SL10B-7, SL12-23.

Headband of the Kallistos: A 2"-wide headband of beaten silver plates mounted on cords of silvered linen, this unique item is the rightful possession of the kallistos, or first gladiator, of the Arena (area 6-68). It enhances CHA by 2 (maximum of 19), and improves reaction rolls by +20%. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 6-78.

Helm of Infravision: Typically found in the form of classical Archontean legionary helmets, complete with cheek guards, these helmets provide the wearer with infravision in a 40' range. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-154, 4-2, SL4-46.

Helm of Marius: One of the relics of the great Archontean military archon, Marius Tricotor, this helm is no more than the battered helmet of a simple legionary, covered in nicks, scratches, and dents. On the inside, scratched into the steel, is the name 'Marius'. For all of its unassuming appearance, the helmet provides a +2 bonus to AC; it also ensures that the wearer will never be surprised. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: 6-85.

Heqeti Ring: This simple band is made of stone, with a flattened section on which is sketched a crude salamander. To activate one of the ring's two powers, the wearer must say "Ia! Rimmaq-Isfet!" The wearer may then summon a giant salamander (SZ L, 6 HD, AC 4, Attack: bite for 1-6 plus poison) or charm salamanders, frogs, toads, and heqeti. The salamander can be summoned once per day, and the charming affect can be used 3/day. Long term possession of the ring corrupts the user by opening the user's mind to the oily thoughts of Kauket or Rimmaq-Isfet. Each week of possession inflicts a 10% cumulative chance that the user will switch alignment to Chaotic Evil, with appropriate personality shifts. Once alignment is switched, the user will be unwilling to relinquish the ring. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: TS-16, 5-11, 7-79, 8-94, 9-14, 10-13, 10-40, 10-47, 10-49, SL9-30.

Horn of Arden: Made from the horn of a water buffalo, this object is reputed to have been possessed by the great hero, Arden the Defender (although its provenance, and hence the accuracy of this claim, is dubious). The low, throbbing sound emitted by the horn serves to instill courage in the allies of the sounder within 300': this effect serves as the equivalent of a remove fear spell, and also provides a bonus of 20% to base loyalty for 1 turn. When sounded by a bard, the range increases to 600'. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: SL7-29 Class Limit: BFPR.

Horn of Carousing: This ivory drinking horn features elaborate feasting and carousing scenes carved along its length, and a gold cap with a decorative tassel. If anyone hoists the horn and shouts 'cheers' (or the equivalent in his/her native language), the horn will fill with a potent amber ale. If used in social settings, the owner of the horn receives a +20% boost to reaction adjustments. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-9.

Horn of Chaos: These horns are made from exotic, extraplanar tusks and horns, and therefore vary greatly in size, shape and color. They tend to be inscribed with alien glyphs and unsettling non-representational figures replete with tongues, bulging eyes, and long, pointed ears. When sounded, they produce a random effect:

D10	Effect
1	Summon 3-6 Wisikin berserkers (fighters two levels lower than that of the sounder [minimum one]); they attack any enemies first, then sounder and allies.
2	Summon 3-4 giant frogs; they attack the nearest targets, whether friend or foe.
3	Darkness: produces an inky black cloud which spreads from the horn to cover a radius of 50'.
4	Echoes of Chaos: produces a series of chaotic utterances in an alien language; the utterances alternate between deep and high tones, all of which echo like thunderclaps. All but wielder must save vs petrification or be paralyzed for 1-6 rounds.
5	Eye of the Spider: the sounder grows a temporary film over his/her eyes. The film grants enhanced sight, if in an octagonal way. Wielder is +3 to hit for 2 turns, but loses 1-10 HP from the alien nature of the film
6	Second Sight: the sounder is granted the following abilities for 1 hour: perfect direction sense (cardinal points, distance underground, etc.), the ability to detect traps and secret doors (as wand), clairvoyance , and clairaudience . The downside is that the chances for wandering monsters are tripled.
7	Aura of Fear: the horn sounds a single fell note, which forces all but sounder to save vs spells (at -1) or flee in abject terror for 3-18 rounds

8	Kiss of Chaos: the sounder is cured 4-32 HP, and his/her allies are cured 1-8 HP. A tattoo of a circle with 8 arrows emanating from it appears on the sounder's forehead, and lasts for 3-18 days.
9	Treasure Sense: the sounder knows instinctively the location of the largest treasure hoard within 250'. The sounder does not necessarily know how to get to that location, as the ability does not reveal secret doors or maps.
10	Roll twice.

The horn may be blown once per day. The first use of the horn has a 10% chance of summoning a major demon who will assault the sounder. This chance increases by 2% each time the horn is blown by the same owner. The chances of demon summoning are reduced in half when the horn is sounded by a bard. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 5-14.

Horn of Domination: This off-white ivory horn was taken from some huge elephant-like creature, and is nearly 3.5' long. A braided leather cord attached to either end allows it to be slung across one's back. The horn is carved with elaborate scenes of ancient Archontean legionaries marching towards a pyramidal structure in a tropical environment. Sounding the horn produces a sound that can be heard clearly a mile away, and that produces a magical effect on those within 150' feet. The magic of the horn stuns those who fail a saving throw vs. spells for 1 turn. In addition, it renders those stunned listeners susceptible to suggestion for the duration of the period that they are stunned; the sounder must be able to communicate orally in a language that the listeners comprehend for the suggestion to take effect. The horn may be sounded once per day, twice if sounded by a bard. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 60,000 Location: SL6-62. Class Limit: BFPR.

Icon of Kauket: Usually carved of a hard, dark stone (e.g. onyx), these 3" statuettes take the form of a salamander. In the hands of a heqeti weaver of Kauket, or any CE person who knows the command word, the icon transforms into a 12 HD keqemander (see new monsters) and fights under the direction of the possessor of the icon. If the incarnation is slain, the icon disappears; if the incarnation survives a battle, it can return to icon form at a second command. Incarnations do not regain HP while in icon form, however. The icon can be used twice per month. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 4-121, 5-49, 8-94, 9-14. Alignment Limit: CE.

Idol of Camozotz, Cursed: Possession of this powerful icon of the bat god, Camazotz, slowly turns the owner into a hybrid bat creature. The process takes three months, during which time the owner will be completely unwilling to part with the idol. Only a remove curse spell will allow him/her to discard the idol. At the end of the period, the possessor is permanently transformed into a part-bat, part-human(oid) creature. The possessor gains wings and the power of flight, echolocation abilities, fangs, and the belief that he/she is a bat. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 6-167.

Immobilizing Mesh: This useful sorcerous aid allows one to immobilize a summoned creature in a flexible net of metal mesh.

The mesh is usually found as a 6"-square packet of netting folded up in a leather satchel. If shaken out, it will cover a 20'-diameter area. To enmesh a target, the wielder must hit AC 10 less any DEX modifiers. This immobilizes any summoned or gated creature or being, preventing combat actions and spell use. Attacking an immobilized being is possible, of course, but attacks will also damage the mesh, which typically possesses 25 to 50 HP. Use the following chart to determine what proportion of damage inflicted on an immobilized creature is also borne by the mesh:

Damage Source	Damage to Mesh*
Arrows, bolts, bullets, darts	¼
Slashing weapons	full
Piercing weapons	¼
Bludgeoning weapons	¼
Magic missile	none
Elemental spells (e.g. fireball)	½

*Damage to the mesh is always a minimum of 1 HP, unless the attack form cannot harm it (e.g. magic missile)

Summoned or gated creatures can smell the metallic taint of this item upon a person. Any interaction with such creatures while in possession of immobilizing mesh is done at a -20% penalty. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-127A, 6-8, 7-22, 7-39, 7-124, SL4-44.

Incense of Attraction: Typically appearing as a cone of a sweet-smelling reddish substance, this incense, when burned, serves to cause those who smell it to look with great favor on he or she who burned it. The range is a 20'-diameter circle. The person burning the incense gains 2-8 points of CHA, and the incense acts as a friends spell (it is so powerful that saving throws are at -2). A cone burns for 3-4 hours. Once a victim is ensnared by the incense, he/she remains friendly until the incense is gone. Once gone, victims are ready to depart with nothing but pleasant memories of the time spent and favorable feelings towards the owner of the incense. As the incense lowers sexual inhibitions considerably, it is a favored item among the highest class of Archontean ladies of the night. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 1-19, 8-37, SL4-19, SL6-46, SL6-96, SL10B-15, SL10B-21, SL11-24.

Incense of Relaxation: These cones of sweet-smelling incense are 6" tall and colored a pleasing sea-green. When burned, the incense serves to ease suspicions and inhibitions among all those who smell it. Effectively it causes all within a 20' radius who fail to save versus poison to suffer a -4 penalty to all saving throws for the duration of the effect; it also favorably adjusts reaction rolls toward the burner of the incense by +40%. The duration of a cone is 3-4 hours. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 400 Location: 4-146, 8-76, SL8-20.

Infernal Effigy: These terrible objects radiate great evil, and are typically possessed only by those with evil intentions or aspirations. They take the form of solid brass heads carved realistically to depict a particular devil. Should the name of that devil be known, the infernal effigy can be used to summon the devil into the effigy for a number of rounds equal to twice the summoner's level. Should a pint of blood be dripped over the effigy while it is inhabited by the devil, the devil will be summoned in person to the spot where the effigy is located. A summoned devil, whether one confined to the effigy or appearing in person, is not obligated to the summoner in any way, nor can it be forced to act in ways contrary to its own nature. Devils summoned into the effigy typically converse with the summoner about matters arcane and evil. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: 3-157, 4-51, SL12-23.

Insidious Bone Flute: This horrific object is made from a leg bone of a mammal that has been enchanted by evil necromancers. It possesses six finger holes. Most flutes are also carved with obscene images or glyphs. Any multi-note song played on the flute will be perceived as a series of atonal, obscene pipings; these emanations act as a confusion spell on all those within 20' (friend or foe); even the player of the flute must save vs spells or be affected. Playing a single note produces different effects, depending on the note that is played. After one day, the effect of each note will be re-randomized; that is, each day the GM should re-determine the effect of each note/hole.

D6	Effect
1	Clarity: all invisible or ethereal creatures are revealed, for 1 turn
2	Rage: all creatures, friend or foe, within 20' must save vs spells or attack nearest
3	Charm: one creature (wielder's choice) is subject to charm person/monster at -5 saving throw
4	Chaos: all within 20' radius except wielder must save vs spells or perform random act: 1: run for 1-4 turns in random direction 2: attack nearest enemy 3: attack flute wielder 4: destroy one random personal item 5: gain +3 to hit and +5 HP for 1 hour 6: immediately devour 1-3 days' rations
5	Aid: summon 1-4 giant frogs which attack wielder's enemies; if no enemies, attack wielder's friends
6	Stasis: all creatures in 20' radius except wielder are paralyzed (save negates) for 3-12 rounds

Any bard playing an insidious bone flute instantly summons an apparition that targets the bard as its chosen victim. If the bard is slain, the apparition claims the flute for itself before traveling back to the Ethereal Plane. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 2-48, 7-31, 9-33, SL6-17A.

Iron Circlet of Ghanor: This potent minor artifact appears as a circlet of black iron, surmounted with a black opal of enormous size; for these reasons is it sometimes called 'the iron crown.' It was one of the four pieces of regalia held by the archon of Arden Vul during the height of the ancient Archontean Empire, and is still sought by sages, wizards and rulers.

The circlet conveys several powers on the user: 1) CHA +2; 2) true seeing; 3) clairvoyance, 3/day; 4) clairaudience 3/day; 5) charm monster, 3/day; 6) feeblemind, 1/day; 7) mass charm 1/day.

The powers of the Circlet draw upon the life force of the wearer: every year a save vs. magic (at +4) is required to avoid the Cirklet draining an energy level. Were it known that the Cirklet had been recovered, the possessor would undoubtedly become the target of numerous embassies, both peaceful (i.e. sales or trades) and hostile (assassinations or thievery). Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65,000 Location: 3-127A.

Jade Cup of Life Restoration: This potent Archontean-era object permits users to raise dead per the spell. It works by placing the blood of a recently slain (within 6 hours) person in the cup, and then pouring the blood into the corpse's mouth. Each cup works 3-5 times before cracking and becoming useless. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 5-33, 8-40, 8-164, 9-14, SL1-11.

Jug of Purple Mist: This brass ewer emits a thick purple mist for as long as it remains unstoppered. The purple mist pours out quickly, obscuring vision in a 50,000 cubic foot area in 1 turn. If still unstoppered, the mist volume increases by 10,000 cubic feet every turn until a maximum of 200,000 cubic feet is reached. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-38, 5-101.

Kalifer's Sword: This blade is formed of blackened steel, with a single line of gold incised down its center. The hilt is particularly long, and topped with a chunk of inert, polished arcanum (see new magic items). The blade is a two-handed sword +2, +4 versus magic-using and enchanted creatures. Experience Point Value: 900 G. P. Value: 4,500 Location: 3-36C.

Larel's Cloak: This ratty hooded cloak is covered with patches from different fabrics, rendering it a veritable cloak of many colors. It is in fact a great historical artifact, being the actual cloak worn by Larel One-Eye in most of the adventures that made his reputation. The cloak improves reaction rolls for wearers by +25%, while providing a bonus of +2 to AC. It also allows one to become invisible for three turns, 3/day. A powerful conceal magic effect has been placed on this item: only if detect magic is cast by a 9th-level caster will the fact that it is enchanted be revealed. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 24,000 Location: 3-46.

Larel's Pin: This simple dagger appears to be an ornamental, silver, letter opener (albeit a 2'-long letter opener). It is in fact a great historical artifact, being the famous dagger employed by Larel One-Eye in many of his adventures, known to the stories as "Larel's Pin". The blade is a dagger +3, with several other powers: 1) it provides a bonus of +1 to DEX to its wielder, and 2) any successful hit using the dagger inflicts slow on the victim (save vs spells to avoid). A powerful conceal magic effect has been placed on this item: only if detect magic is cast by a 9th-level caster will the fact that it is enchanted be revealed. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 3-46.

Larel's Sack: This ordinary-looking cotton sack is in fact a potent item. It is, moreover, a great historical artifact, as it is the actual magic sack employed by Larel One-Eye to great effect in many of his adventures. At base, it serves as a bag of holding (500 lb limit). More usefully, however, it also possesses some of the features of a robe of useful items: the owner can reach it into it and instantly locate whatever small, mundane item required at that moment.

There is no effective limit to the number of items the sack will produce, although some restrictions apply: the sack will not produce items larger than 15 lb in weight or worth more than 15 gp; it will also not produce sentient creatures or monsters (although chickens, mice, etc. are possible); it won't produce weapons or magical items. A powerful conceal magic effect has been placed on this item: only if detect magic is cast by a 9th-level caster will the fact that it is enchanted be revealed. Experience Point Value: 7,000 G. P. Value: 50,000 Location: 3-46.

Leather Armor of Shadows: This suit of darkly stained leather armor +2 is enchanted to aid thieves by providing a +10% bonus to Hide in Shadows and Move Silently. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 7-124.

Leviathan's Teeth: This set of 3-18 1st-tall teeth are carved from the teeth of a sperm whale and are usually carried in a blue silk purse. The teeth are enchanted so as to impart luck on the possessor. To benefit from this luck, the owner must cast the entire set of teeth as if making an augury; one of the teeth magically disappears, and the owner is infused with luck for 4 hours. Within this time frame, all saving throws receive a bonus of +1 and, what is more, the lucky owner is able to reroll any one roll of the dice or add/subtract 3 from any one roll of the dice. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL6-17A.

Lion Cloak: This potent item is crafted from the pelt of a huge male lion, including its head and ears. Worn as a cloak, the lion cloak adds +2 to STR (but only to a maximum of 18) and +1 bonus to AC. If the head is worn like a hood, it also provides infravision. Unfortunately the wearer tires more easily (-2 CON) and experiences constant hunger pangs that can only be satisfied by consuming meat. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-180.

Lithast: An oddly-smithed, 'serrated' long sword known to Wiskin warriors as the 'snake blade', Lithast is currently borne by the well-known fighter, Kormak the Snake (see 8-128). Lithast functions as a long sword +2, +4 versus reptiles, dragons, and amphibians. It is not sentient, but its fame is great among the Wiskinga. Non-Wiskins who bear the blade will be greeted by any Wiskinga they encounter with great suspicion (-25% reaction rolls) and possibly (5% chance) with outright hostility. Experience Point Value: 900 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 8-182.

Living Mosaic: Each piece of living mosaic is made of hundreds of multi-colored tesserae. The mosaic is enchanted to depict a fixed area within the Halls; the picture is relatively clear, and will even show the movement of creatures within that area. While the mosaic is fairly indistinct when first viewed, a user can zoom in by tapping on the mosaic; this allows one to get a detailed view of the surroundings and inhabitants of the designated area. Of course, if the user does not know the location of the area viewed, the living mosaic may not seem immediately useful.

The mosaics are set into the stone of floors and walls. It is theoretically possible to carve them out of the wall into which they are set; doing so requires appropriate tools, the knowledge of a master craftsman, and some luck to avoid irreparably damaging the mosaic. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 2-7, 2-29, 2-31, 2-42, 3-58, 3-176, 4-51, 4-181, 7-76, 8-15, 8-98, SL3-4, SL6-47, SL6-88, SL7-8.

Lover's Token: Despite their name and their use in conveying romantic messages to an innamorata or innamorato, these devices have a wider and more fundamental usage. The token allows the holder to effect a one-time verbal communication with the giver of the token; the duration of the communication is one hour, or until the holder of the token snaps it in half to end the link. Tokens can take any shape; common shapes are simple silver hearts, silver gilded feathers, a simple bronze ring, and so forth. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 1-12, 9-18, SL3-2A.

Mace of Dispelling: This unusual-looking mace has a curved haft, ending in a circular sphere about 8" in diameter. It is enchanted as a mace +1, but has two other special powers: 1) it is able to cast dispel magic 3/day as if by a 9th-level cleric, and 2) it dispels summoned beings whenever it makes a successful 'to hit' roll against that being if they fail a save versus spells with a -4 penalty. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: SL1-4.

Mace of Enforced Harmony: Formed from a single piece of 3"-wide black steel, the shaft of this mace is inscribed with silver runes and symbols of the Set Animal. Only those of lawful evil alignment can wield it. It functions as a mace +2, except when it faces an entity that is chaotic by alignment, in which case it is +3 and delivers and extra 1-4 of damage on successful hits. Experience Point Value: 750 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-117 Alignment Limit: LE.

Mace of Muirasso: This powerful mace appears as a simple steel ball attached to an oak handle carved with skulls. In combat it is +2 to hit and damage, but it also bestows +2 bonus to saves versus poison and enhances CHA by +2 so long as it is actively wielded (i.e., held in one's hand). Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: 5-40.

Magebane: The grip of this long sword is wrapped in azure-blue linen, while its blade is inscribed in Mithric with the words "sorcery must be smitten". It is a long sword +1, but becomes a long sword +3 when wielded against magic users or illusionists. It also has one unusual power: on a successful roll to hit against a magic user or illusionist, the victim must save vs spells or lose one of his/her prepared spells for the day (roll randomly to determine which). Any multi-classed magic user or illusionist who wields Magebane in combat must save as if struck by the sword every round. Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: AV-43.

Mantle of Fenth: This strange half-cloak is comprised of pieces of oak bark, stitched together and held around one's neck by a silk cord. The mantle absorbs the first 3 HP of damage from any successful attack on the wearer. The mantle can absorb up to 50 HP of such damage before falling to pieces. The mantle can, however, be replenished with the blood of the wearer; for each HP self-inflicted on the wearer, the mantle recovers one point of absorption. Such self-inflicted damage heals twice as slowly as normal wounds, and cannot be healed by magic. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 35,000 Location: 2-69.

Marrow-Drainer: This truly ancient spear is made entirely of wood, including its tip, and it appears to be purely decorative. It is, however, a spear +2, with significant powers. For one, it returns instantly to the hand of its owner after being thrown. For another, it is +3 versus snakes and reptiles (including kaliyani). Third, when wielded as a hand weapon, any hit has a 5% chance of causing significant additional damage to the tune of 3-12 HP. Finally, it is only usable by persons of lawful neutral alignment, bending like steamed wood in the hands of others. Experience Point Value: 1,250 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-95 Alignment Limit: LN.

Mask of Revelation: This beautiful unique mask is formed of gold and silver and takes the shape of a Set animal. Looking through the mask offers the equivalent of a true seeing spell. It comes attached to a 5'-tall iron pole, rendering it difficult to use in any but fixed settings. It might be possible to separate the mask from the pole by making a roll of 4d6 under STR; if it fails, the mask is ruined. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 4-2F.

Mask of the Skull: Once per day the wearer of this ivory mask carved to resemble a skull can command the mask to attack a target up to 50' away. The mask attacks with the same hit probability of the wearer and the target must save vs death magic or be slain on the spot, with a save resulting in 4-24 HP of damage instead. After resolving its single attack the mask flies back to the owner. Every time the skull slays a target, there is a 10% chance the skull turns upon its wearer for a single attack, with a failed save dealing 4-24 HP of damage, and a successful one 2-12. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 5-52, 7-26 Class Limit: AIMMkT.

Mask of Thoth: These elaborate masks were used by the priests of Thoth who staffed the Tower of Scrutiny. Each mask is a unique work of art depicting one aspect of great Thoth. Of the ten that remain, five represent ibises, three represent baboons, and two represent stylized, male humans. All of the masks are elaborately made of papier-mâché, with leather, silver, gold, colored glass, gemstones, and ivory adornments. All ten completely enclose the head and extend below to the wearer's neck.

Seven of the ten masks have but one (albeit useful) function: they provide true seeing per the spell. Three more have additional enchantments: one of the ibis masks also allows clairvoyance and clairaudience 3/day each, one of the baboon masks allows suggestion 3/day, and one of the human masks is cursed. It prevents the wearer from removing it, and also causes evil creatures within 60' to be drawn to the wearer and to attack him/her by preference.

All ten masks are heavy and bulky, and reduce the wearer's movement by 50%. They are also fragile (excluding the cursed mask, of course). If exposed to rain or immersed in water, they are instantly ruined. Even if kept dry, there is a 15% chance per each donning and doffing that the mask will simply break. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: TS-7.

Mattock of the Troll Thegn: This unique item was the personal weapon of Vanara, first and most revered of the three original varumani thegns. He took it with him when he abandoned the varumani in their new abode (Level 7), and it is found in the shrine built to honor him by his housecarls (5-139). The mattock is enormous, with a 5' haft and a 4' head; the haft is plasteel, while the head is enchanted steel. The mattock acts as either a battle axe or a heavy pick; either way it conveys +3 to hit and damage. It also provides a +1 bonus to AC and can dig quickly through rock without losing its effectiveness (10 cubic feet per 4 hours). Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 12,000 Location: 5-139.

Melchior's Beads of Escape: This potent item was popularized by the mage Melchior the Magnificent, who enjoyed a reputation as a notorious rogue. It appears as a simple necklace of six brown-glazed porcelain beads threaded over a rawhide cord. If one of the beads is consumed, by pulling it off the necklace and ingesting it, the subject is immediately teleported to a location of his/her choosing (the user must verbally state the location as he/she eats the bead). It is rumored that Melchior created several of these necklaces, some for friends and lovers. It has obvious thieving benefits, as well. When found, there will be 2-6 beads remaining. Experience Point Value: 500 (per bead) G. P. Value: 2,000 (per bead) Location: 5-128, SL3-2, SL12-20.

Mistral: Mistral is an intelligent scimitar +3. The blade is 4' long and made of damascened steel, with gold-filled etchings of a half-dozen ancient words of power. The haft is 10" long and wrapped in supple, tanned crocodile skin. Mistral is a twin to Cers (q.v.), but has great enmity towards its brother blade. It is LG in alignment, has INT 16, ego 8, speaks the LG tongue and Mithric, and can read text in Mithric. Its primary abilities are these: 1) detect elevator/shifting rooms/walls in a 10' radius; 2) detect secret doors in a 5' radius; and 3) locate object in a 120' radius.

Mistral has a confident, righteous, even arrogant personality; it is completely assured of the rightfulness of law and goodness, and is quick to condemn evil and any sort of 'half measures' (neutrality). In the hands of a wielder who is not lawful good, it will remain silent and will refuse to use its powers. In the hands of a lawful good wielder, it confidently comments on actions around it, urging its wielder to seek out evil and destroy it. It also constantly seeks Cers, its twin, hoping to destroy 'that festering piece of evil steel.' Experience Point Value: 1,760 G. P. Value: 8,800 Location: 4-156.

Moon of Bastet: Each of these objects appears as a long silver chain (20") on which is strung a 2" depiction of the crescent moon formed from solid silver. The silver moon is imbued with some of the divine power of the cat goddess, Bastet. Clerics of Bastet who wear one of the necklaces gain several powers: 1) infravision; 2) the ability to vertically leap up to 15'; and 3) the ability to transform into a maubaste (see new monsters). Transformation is voluntary and its duration depends on the will of the priestess.

Those of strictly neutral alignment who are not clerics of Bastet only gain infravision by wearing a moon of Bastet. Those of other alignments recognize the necklace as magical, but gain no powers from it. Normal cats always hiss at any non-cleric of Bastet who wears one of the necklaces. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-2, 8-31, 8-32, 8-37 Alignment Limit: N.

Mud Salamander Charm: These items appear as pieces of dried mud shaped like a salamander, with small bits of jade for eyes and a hole to allow them to be worn on thongs around the neck. Each one provides a temporary form of magical protection, lasting for 3 uses before the mud shatters. The charms were among the earliest form of magical item created by the heqeti, and are somewhat rare today, being favored only by archaicizing elders (sometimes known as 'mud priests'). Mud charms may provide one of the following benefits: 25% magic resistance; shield (as the spell); protection from magic (as the scroll); protection from fire (as scroll, but only lasting 5 rounds). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL9-30.

Narses: Narses is an ancient, highly intelligent, long sword +3. Its hilt is made of fine goblin-hide, and its blade is etched with images of peering eyes. Narses has Int 17 and ego 11, and is LE in alignment. It can communicate telepathically or orally, using Mithric, Dwarvish, or the LE alignment tongue. It has the following primary abilities: 1) detect elevator/shifting rooms/walls within a 10' radius; 2) detect sloping passages in a 10' radius; and 3) detect magic in a 10' radius. Narses also has the extraordinary ability to determine directions and depth underground (2/day).

Narses is highly intelligent and grasping; it prefers to wait until it has observed the temperament and proclivities of a new user before introducing itself. Once it has announced itself, Narses is ruthless in pressing its wielder to seek power over men at every stage, regardless of the cost or risk. Narses was forged in antiquity by the great dwarven smith, Zhorak (see 8-97), for the Archontean taxiarth, Afranius Dexter. It is rumored that a part of Afranius's soul was bound into the blade in the forging. Most recently, Narses has been wielded by the mercenary Kallion the White (see 8-15). Experience Point Value: 2,120 G. P. Value: 10,300 Location: 8-15.

Necklace of the Berserker: This unique magic item appears as a rather primitive necklace, with thirteen yellowed bear-claws strung on a thick leather cord; between each claw are three pieces of polished jet. Those who wear it are able to enter a berserker battle lust once per day; in the battle lust, they are able to strike twice in a round or strike once with a +2 to hit. The battle lust lasts for one hour, after which the wearer must rest for at least three turns. During the hour of its effect, the necklace causes the wearer to be unusually aggressive, picking fights and seeking combat wherever and however he/she can (although it does not require the user to attack his/her friends). Beyond its magical powers, this is a priceless item as it is the actual necklace that Arden seized from the berserkers whom she defeated in her 4th Labor (see SL13-10D for a later Archontean recreation of that labor). When worn by a true berserker the necklace grants +2 to STR and CON, and any true berserker will recognize the necklace for its power. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 (100,000 if provenance is established) Location: SL13-22 Class Limit: F.

Necklace of Harmony: These beautiful necklaces are formed of sixteen thick but irregular trapezoids of gold strung along a platinum chain; each trapezoid is inscribed with the Mithric word for harmony. A necklace of harmony's purpose is to help the wearer persuade listeners of the reasonability of his/her proposed actions, provided those actions are not antithetical to the basic world-view of the listeners. The necklace provides a permanent friends effect (although listeners get a save vs. spells) and allows the wearer to impart one suggestion per day. Those who save versus the friends effect, however, are not just uneasy with the wearer, they are immediately distrustful. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 45,000 Location: 5-17, SL9-76.

Nightwind: The spear is heavy and almost impossible to wield (-5 to hit) until its name (carved in Mithric on its shaft) is spoken, at which point it becomes light and perfectly balanced. Once the name is spoken, Nightwind functions as a spear +1, +3 versus humanoids (including giant-class humanoids). Needless to say, the goblins of the Halls will be instantly suspicious of any who bears Nightwind openly. Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 1-11, SL9-76.

Niravairi Astral Crossbow of Accuracy: This item is one of the special astral magic items developed by the Niravairi (see new monsters) for use by their elite exploration unit, the Order of Planar Explorers. While on the Astral Plane, the crossbow functions without penalty as a crossbow of accuracy. On any of the material planes, however, the crossbow functions as a mundane, non-magical weapon although it detects of magic. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 9-48, 9-50, SL1-11.

Niravairi Astral Dripping Sword: This item is one of the special astral magic items developed by the Niravairi (see new monsters) for use by their elite exploration unit, the Order of Planar Explorers. While on the Astral Plane, the blade constantly drips acid, thus giving it its name. There the sword functions without penalty as a long sword +3, inflicting an additional 1-6 HP of acid damage on a successful hit. On any of the material planes, however, it reverts to a simple long sword +1. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-74, SL1-11.

Niravairi Astral Staff of Power: This item is one of the special astral magic items developed by the Niravairi (see new monsters) for use by their elite exploration unit, the Order of Planar Explorers. While on the Astral Plane, the staff functions without penalty as a staff of power. On any of the material planes, however, it reverts to a simple staff +1. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL1-11 Class Limit: M.

Niravairi Astral Staff of the Magi: This item is one of the special astral magic items developed by the Niravairi (see new monsters) for use by their elite exploration unit, the Order of Planar Explorers. While on the Astral Plane, the staff functions without penalty as a staff of the magi. On any of the material planes, however, it reverts to a simple staff +1. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 9-50, SL1-11 Class Limit: M.

Niravairi Astral Tulwar: This item is one of the special astral magic items developed by the Niravairi (see new monsters) for use by their elite exploration unit, the Order of Planar Explorers. While on the Astral Plane, the tulwar functions as a long sword +3. On any of the material planes, however, it reverts to a simple tulwar +1 (long sword). The tulwar also has the special power of severing silver cords whenever it rolls a natural 20 to hit. Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 9-48, 9-50, SL1-11.

Oathbow: This white-wood composite long bow is +2 to hit and damage. When nocked and pulled, it whispers “Swift defeat to all enemies. Swear the oath and we shall be one ...” If the wielder names a target by name or specific feature and then swears aloud to slay it, the bow’s whisper will become a shout: “Swift death to those who have wronged me!” After swearing, the bonus is +5 to hit against the sworn enemy, and damage is an extra +1-6 per arrow. However, the bow will now be +1 against all other enemies until the sworn enemy is killed. The bow only recognizes specific individuals as sworn enemies, preferably those mentioned by name. Hence “that halfling” does not count, but “Phlebotomas” (the halfling leader) would count. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 4-54.

Obsidian Skull of Comprehension: When this grapefruit-sized, grotesquely carved, vaguely demonic skull is held with both hands, it allows comprehension of any spoken languages within earshot. If the holder is ignorant of the language spoken, small wisps of bluish smoke emanate from the skull’s ears. If the language is already known, no smoke emerges. The skull palpably radiates evil, a fact that causes good creatures that see it in use to treat the holder with suspicion (-25% penalty to reaction rolls). Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-121, SL12-23.

Olifant of Command: These extremely powerful horns are made from large ivory tusks (elephant or mammoth, usually), and tend to be carved with elaborate scenes. What scene is found carved on an olifant is a clue to some of its powers. All such olifants can project a very loud command 4/day (for those with 13+ INT or 6+ HD, a save will negate the command). Four different command tones may be blown (flee, surrender, charge, die) out to a range of 200’, affecting all enemies of the blower. Advanced features may be uncovered through study or consultation with sages or other magical authorities; such additional powers are produced by playing a particular rhythm of blasts on the horn. Some samples are given below:

Scene	Modification to Command
Woodland animals	Opponents save at -2 in forests
Warriors locked in battle	Fighters save at -2
Demonic entities	Demons, aberrations save at -2
Fortifications	None

Scene	Advanced Powers
Woodland animals	Animal summoning (2-5 bears, 1/day) Entangle (3/day)
Warriors locked in battle	Ally (1/day): make henchmen/allies fanatical for 1-10 rounds; they may resent this enforced loyalty Berserk (2/day): 1-4 fighters, including possible allies, save at -2 or go berserk for 3-9 rounds. +2 to hit, +2 to damage, -2 to AC Heroism: (1/day) allied warriors gain +2 to hit, +2 to AC
Demonic entities	Enchant weapon (1/week): causes any weapon to be imbued with demon-hunting hatred, making it act as a +3 weapon in terms of to hit, damage, and ability to strike demons. Gate: (1/week): a Type 1 demon is summoned and is bound to the sounder of the horn for 6 turns. May have alignment implications Isolate (1/day): prevents gating/summoning abilities of demons and others for a day, at least while on Prime Material Plane; side effect is that any demons present gain +3 to hit for 1-4 rounds due to desperation
Fortifications	Earthquake (1/week): as spell; Shield (4/day): as spell Wall of Force (1/day): as spell

These horns are potentially quite powerful, and all are extremely valuable. Possession of one is likely to make one a target for thieves, rulers, and powerful wizards. Each time an advanced power is used, there is a 5% chance that the horn will split in half, effectively destroying it (this liability can usually [66%] be detected by sages as one of the features of these olifants). Bards may use advanced powers without a chance of splitting the horn. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 4-2, 6-75, 7-127, SL6-17A, SL9-73.

Pearl Necklace of Invisibility: Appearing as a set of 11-20 large freshwater pearls strung on a platinum or silver chain, these valuable magical items are treasured by the vain and by those occasionally in need of a swift escape from dangerous settings. In time of need, one need only pry a pearl off of the chain and pop it in one's mouth; it will dissolve in 1 round, rendering one invisible per the spell.

It is said that powerful wizards have a recipe for recharging these devices: required materials include freshwater pearls of the largest size and purest quality (200 gp each), knowledge of invisibility, precious metals worth 100 gp per pearl, and 1 week of enchanting time per pearl. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 3-127A, SL5-4.

Penny, Cursed: These coins appear as normal ancient silver pennies (see Arden Vul items). Each is cursed in a slightly different way. In addition to one of the effects from the following table, cursed pennies cannot be given or thrown away until remove curse is cast on them:

D6	Curse Name	Effect
1	Shrieker	The penny utters a piercing high-pitched shriek whenever monsters of a particular class (GM's choice) are within 100'.
2	Firestarter	The penny rapidly grows white hot in the proximity of other precious metals (silver, gold, platinum). The heat causes combustibles to burst into flame in 1-4 rounds, and is likely to melt the nearby precious metals into a mixed lump
3	Weakener	The penny causes one ability to be reduced to 5 for 2 days. After the two days, it affects a new ability (roll randomly).
4	Truth Teller	The penny causes its possessor to only speak the truth in social interactions, including (or perhaps, particularly) during commercial transactions.
5	False Luck	The first time it is held, the penny gives off a magical sense of being lucky. Indeed, the next roll made by the PC are automatically successful; but thereafter, every subsequent roll is penalized: -5 on a d20 roll, -25 on a d100 roll, -1 on a d4, -2 on a d6, -2 on a d8, -3 on a d10, -4 on a d12, etc. The penalty should be about -25% of the possible outcome.

6	Distraction	The penny causes its possessor to be distracted by shiny objects, instilling a -2 penalty to hit rolls when in the presence of anything that gleams. This includes visible treasure, of course, but also reflective armor.
---	-------------	--

10% of cursed pennies become blessed pennies when a remove curse is cast upon them. These pennies act as a stone of good luck. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 2-25, 3-23B, 3-43, SL11-8.

Periapt of Discord: This polished, fist-sized piece of amber has a quarter-moon incised on one side (a symbol of Jael). The gem is enchanted with positive and negative effects. On the one hand, it serves as a stone of good luck, granting the usual bonuses to rolls. On the other hand, however, it causes intense jealousy among those who know of its existence. This jealousy is extreme, and builds over time, until leading finally to conflict. The type of conflict is appropriate to the individuals affected. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: SL15-18.

Periapt of Finding: These valuable objects are essentially precious stones into which a permanent locate object spell has been cast. The result is a stone that will pulse with light appropriate to the color of gemstone when the object to which it is attuned is nearby: the closer the object, the brighter the pulse that is emitted. Regular periapts of finding are created using a precious stone worth at least 1,000 gp; such stones can be attuned to a single 'object'. Use of a gem worth 5,000 gp or more allows the creator to attune the periapt to two objects. Note: objects can also be defined as specific types of creatures (unicorn, dragon, heqeti, etc.). Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: SL5-42.

Phineas's Silver Slide-Whistle: This slide whistle is formed of solid silver with the name Phineas inscribed on it. Playing any sequence of notes on it provides a 33% chance to stun 3HD of animals for one round. The whistle only affects those of animal intelligence or below. It was the property of the famous (to halflings) halfling hunter, Phineas Greenshoes. If played by a bard, it has a 33% chance to stun 3 HD of any type of creature, regardless intelligence, for two rounds. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: SL4-46.

Phocion's Dividers: This set of builder's or architect's dividers is made of copper and can be used in several ways. First, by opening them and pointing them at any worked chamber, an accurate set of dimensions can be instantly intuited by the holder. Second, the dividers provide dwarf-like abilities concerning underground construction. Third, the dividers can be used, over 2 rounds, to sketch out a cube in the air that provides instant access to an interdimensional space (like rope trick); the wielder and his friends can step into the cube and effectively disappear for as long as supplies remain. When ready to depart the cube, the wielder need only sketch a smaller cube with the dividers. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 8-144.

Plantsbane: This finely-made, intelligent blade is regularly a short sword +1, but functions as a short sword +4 versus plants and vegetal creatures (including mushrooms, fungal foresters, etc.).

Plantsbane has INT 14 and ego 8, and is lawful neutral in alignment. It can speak in Mithric and the lawful neutral alignment tongue, and favors loud, boastful declarations of its prowess and hatred of plants, delivered in a poor approximation of iambic hexameter. It has the following primary abilities: 1) detect evil in a 10' radius; and 2) locate object (deadly plants only) in a 120' radius. Experience Point Value: 980 G. P. Value: 4,900 Location: 3-174.

Pledge of Rimmaq-Isfet: These chaotic evil objects can take various forms, but are always carved representations of one of Rimmaq-Isfet's many aspects; they are typically carved from a rare, but unusual substance. For instance, the fishmen of SL6-15 have a 1'-tall jade statuette of a striking eel. Each pledge serves as a literal representation of Rimmaq-Isfet's promise to aid his followers in bringing chaos to all planes of existence.

After possessing a pledge for a day, the owner will begin to hear a dull roar in his/her ears, a roar that is punctuated by unearthly squawks and screams; at this point the owner will only part with the pledge if he/she makes a successful save vs. spells.

The pledge provides several benefits: the ability to swim (90'), the ability to breathe underwater, and the ability to speak with amphibians, marine snakes, eels, and reptiles. The possessor also has a chance to command unintelligent amphibians, marine snakes, eels, and reptiles: that chance is 50% if the possessor is chaotic evil, 20% if the possessor is neutral evil or chaotic neutral, and 5% for all other alignments.

Pledges also carry some serious side effects: the possessor is more susceptible to attacks by servants of Rimmaq-Isfet (effective -1 to AC) and to spells cast by servants of Rimmaq-Isfet (-1 to saving throws); and the possessor has a 5% chance per month of switching alignment to chaotic evil and seeking a cult of Rimmaq-Isfet to serve for the rest of his/her life.

Finally, in the hands of a chaotic evil devotee of Rimmaq-Isfet, the pledge can summon a keqemander demon to assist the summoner; such a summoning has a 75% chance of working. If used to attempt a summoning, the pledge will be used up – shattered and broken – regardless of whether or not the summoning effort is successful. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 7-79, 9-78, 10-13, 10-40, 10-47, SL6-15, SL9-73.

Pol's Treatise on Scrying: This cursed codex can provide some useful information to the casual reader, but can also impose a serious and lasting penalty. The volume is thick (6") and bound in blue leather; a gold, lidless eye is stamped into the leather cover. Within, a few folios of parchment surround ten crystalline sheets. The first parchment folio carries the following title and attribution: "How to Use Your Eyes for Better Scrying. By Pol the Magnificent, Archmage of Arden Vul." Below this, in smaller letters, is a description: "Use the folios within to gain a truer perspective on the goings on of our fair city. I, Pol, have prepared them in such a way as to delight and inform."

The crystalline sheets are about ¼" thick. The first six crystalline sheets are filled with real-time, moving images that seem to derive from first-person perspective. The last four sheets are blank. The Treatise on Scrying can be used without harm so long as only the filled crystalline sheets are examined. The filled sheets are linked to magical items known as eyes of Pol (q.v.); each sheet displays the perspective of a different set of eyes of Pol. For the location of the six existing eyes of Pol, and the scene that is displayed on a particular sheet of the Treatise, see below.

If, however, a reader turns to an unfilled crystalline sheet, negative effects occur. Instantly the reader's eyes are plucked out (causing 2-16 damage and blindness) and are magically transported to a random location within the halls, to serve as a new set of eyes of Pol. The formerly empty sheet now displays real-time images of the location at which the new set of eyes of Pol was created. Once all the sheets are all filled, the cursing qualities of the Treatise go into possibly temporary abeyance; that is, the book can be used without danger. Eyes of Pol can be disenchanting, however, through the use of dispel magic; if a set is disenchanting, then the appropriate crystalline sheet will again be blank, and the curse will again be operative.

Current contents of the Treatise on Scrying:

Crystalline Sheet #	Location of Eyes of Pol	Scene Displayed in Treatise
1	7-127	Two sarcophagi in a room with shut door, fine vases, a puppet theater, gilded armor, desk
2	4-147	A stone chamber, about 20'x20', with rough-hewn walls. No exits are visible.
3	5-29	A chamber with a door, several chests, frescoes of legionaries and an archon, several piles of treasure
4	SL6-85	A room in which sits a sarcophagus with wood planks for a lid
5	5-83	The nave of a temple, with a large statue of ibis-headed Thoth. In front of statue is a red settee on which lounges a large human(?) figure in orange robes and holding a white ibis-headed wand; surrounded by gaunt sickly-looking human attendants
6	8-125	Four daybeds with silk sheets, silk pillows, thick carpets, and numerous small tables packed with treasure. Two statues of glaive-wielding demon warriors stand guard, and several well-dressed humans move about.
7	Blank
8	Blank
9	Blank
10	Blank

Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-72.

Porter's Carpet: This less powerful cousin to the flying carpet acts as a permanent floating disk spell. It may carry up to 500 lb in weight, including persons (but not its owner). It hovers 18" above the ground and follows its owner at a speed of 60'. Unfortunately it will not cross water, nor can it travel vertically. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 7-31, 8-125, SL12-19.

Potion of the Berserk: This potion temporarily transforms the imbiber into a berserk fighting machine: it grants +10 HP, +2 to hit, and -3 AC for 7-12 rounds, but the user must attack something, whether friend or foe, during this period. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 400 Location: 2-21, 2-23, 3-5, 6-159, SL4-12.

Potion of Clarity: Drinking this potion increases INT by 2 for 2-5 days. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 900 Location: 2-7, 4-62, 4-146.

Potion of Deafening Light: These midnight blue potions are intended to be thrown as missiles. On hitting a solid surface, the material within combusts with a small explosion and a brief flash of light. Any foe within 10' must save versus petrification or be blinded for 1 round and deafened for 1-4 rounds. In addition, a direct hit on a living being causes 1-6 damage to that creature. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: AV-40, 5-40, 8-112, SL9-20.

Potion of Dispelling: A midnight black liquid flecked with motes of amber, this potion works in an identical fashion to the spell dispel magic. It can be drunk, but also can be thrown; the latter use (as a grenade) won it popularity with adventurers of all sorts. The dispelling acts at the 12th-level of ability. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 2-22, 5-40, 9-18.

Potion of Explosive Acid: This potion is greenish-yellow in color, albeit with black lumps floating in it. If drunk, it inflicts 3-18 HP damage immediately, and then explodes, causing another 6-36 HP of internal damage. It was designed to be hurled as a grenade, however; used in this way, it inflicts 3-12 HP of acid damage on the victim of a successful hit, but then explodes, bringing 3-6 HP acid damage to all within a 10' radius. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 3-149, 8-112.

Potion of Frost Cage: Plotina the Alchemist created this potion, which causes those who drink it or are hit by it to be immediately encased in ice, literally freezing them in place. Those affected can try to bend bars to break free every round, with each round after the 2nd adding +10% to the attempt. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 3-37, SL6-96.

Potion of Greek Fire: Hurlled as a grenade, this concoction spreads a smelly, viscous jelly on victims. It ignites on contact, causing 4-16 HP damage to the target and 2-12 HP damage on any others within 10' in the first round, and 2-8 HP or 1-6 HP on the second. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 3-149, 7-76I, 7-96, 7-124, 9-31, SL6-96, SL11-24.

Potion of Hostile Levitation: Another of Plotina the Alchemist's inventions, this convenient concoction causes those doused in it to float uncontrollably in the air, 4' above the ground. The effect lasts for 2-5 rounds on a failed save versus spells, and 1-2 rounds on a successful save. While levitating, victims may be incapable of some kinds of action. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 800 Location: AV-20, 7-127, 8-155, SL6-96, SL7-29, SL11-24.

Potion of Molasses: Plotina the Alchemist devised this potent concoction as a way of slowing down enemies (or any romantic targets who may be running away). Thrown or consumed, the potion halves movement and actions of those it strikes. The effects last for 2-5 rounds on a failed save versus spells, and 1-2 rounds on a successful save. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 800 Location: AV-40, 3-63, 7-94, 7-127, 9-31, SL4-12, SL6-96, SL7-29.

Potion of Rock Melting: The recipe for these potent potions is known only to the doppelgangers, who use them in the Endless War to destroy dwarven structures. Each potion causes 10 cubic feet of stone to melt into a thick slurry for five rounds, after which it rehardens. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-10, 7-75, 8-100, SL4-40.

Potion of Singing Birds: This invention of Plotina the Alchemist appears as a golden liquid with bright red motes. It may be consumed or thrown as a grenade. Either way, the victim must spend 1-3 rounds stumbling about in a daze (watching the illusionary 'singing birds'). Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-5, 7-76I, 7-127, SL6-96, SL10B-26, SL11-24.

Potion of Truthfulness: Anyone drinking this off-white potion will be unable to lie or conceal information for 2-5 hours. A minority (33%) of consumers instantly start babbling unusual, and often highly personal, information, but the majority must be questioned for the potion to have much effect. Experience Point Value: 400 G. P. Value: 800 Location: TS-2, 3-63, SL6-79, SL9-70, SL10B-26.

Potion of Waterbreathing: This sea-blue potion allows the drinker to breathe normally when under water. It also has the advantage of lasting ten times as long as normal potions; that is, it last for 40 turns plus 10-40 turns. It is 75% likely that a potion of waterbreathing contains two doses, and 25% likely to contain three. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 3-56, 3-164D, 7-14.

Potion of Watery Form: This potion is colored slate blue, with tinges of green. It turns the drinker, and all his/her possessions, into water, and allows him/her to flow at a rate of 30'/round on dry land or 60'/round in water. When in watery form, the user is immune to most magic, although electricity and cold do normal damage. Magic designed to purify water is highly effective against those using potions of watery form. The spells purify food and drink, and purify water, inflict 3-18 HP damage on one in watery form, while a potion of sweet water (thrown as a grenade, with a successful roll 'to hit') instantly cancels the effect of the potion of watery form and inflicts 3-18 HP damage as well. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 500 Location: AV-32, 3-24, SL7-23, SL7-23.

Potion of Youth: This pale orange potion is distilled from the blood of a vampire rudishva and a variety of unique mushrooms and herbs. Consuming one dose prevents aging for 6 months. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 250 Location: 6-20.

Pouch of Capacity: This soft belt pouch is made of purple leather, and features a sewn velvet lid with a yellow draw-string. It can hold 500 gp worth of coins without incurring any encumbrance. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 2-27, 8-5, 9-22, SL9-76, SL13-10C.

Predictive Tokens: This set of 24 ancient ivory backgammon pieces has been enchanted so as to allow any user to perform an augury as per the 2nd-level clerical spell, up to 3/day. The pieces must be used to play backgammon prior to performing the augury, and naturally the winner of the game is the one whose question is answered. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 8-125.

Priscian Chain Mail: A modern replica of Sortian chain mail (see new magic items), this armor is as light as elven chain and may be employed by spellcasters without penalty. Unlike the ancient Sortian version, however, Priscian chain mail has a limited duration in its magic; it must be bathed in the waters of the Arcanum Forge (9-60) every two months or it reverts to regular (elven) chain mail. What is more, Priscian chain mail permanently loses its special enchantment allowing spell-casters to wear it without penalty if it is not bathed in the Arcanum Forge at least once in a 6 month period. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 6-48, 6-49, 7-24, 7-39, 7-44, 7-72, 7-143, 9-31, 9-59A, 9-60-64, 9-63A, 9-64A, SL4-44.

Priscian Gladius: This stabbing short sword is a product of Priscian smiths, who enchant it with arcanum at the Arcanum Forge (9-60). Both Circularii and Conversi employ them. These swords are +2 to hit and do 3-9 damage. Some gladii are enchanted with additional effects. Unless a Priscian gladius is renewed in the Arcanum Forge on a regular basis (once every 2 months), it permanently loses its enchantments and becomes a simple, if extremely well forged, ordinary short sword that is +1 to damage. These swords are a new invention of the current smiths, and were not known to the ancient Sortians. Experience Point Value: 400 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 6-48, 6-49, 7-24, 7-39, 7-44, 7-72, 7-143, 9-31, 9-59A, 9-60-64, 9-63A, 9-64A, SL4-44.

Priscian Rings: These rings appear as simple gold bands set with a small, silver knot. They can be enchanted to contain 1-2 of the following spells: blink, comprehend languages, detect evil, detect invisibility, detect magic, dispel magic, extension I, feather fall, floating disk, friends, infravision, invisibility, knock, levitate, polymorph other, protection from evil, read magic, shield, or tongues. Typically a ring starts with 25 charges, and each use costs as many charges as the level of the spell cast (i.e., a ring charged with detect evil and invisibility would cost 1 charge for each detect evil and 2 charges for each invisibility cast from it). The rings are the product of modern Priscian sorcery; they were unknown to the ancient Sortians. Recharging requires casting a contained spell twice, gaining enough charges to cast it from the ring once. In addition, unless the Arcanum Forge is used during the recharge, 100 gp worth of special oils and powdered gems per gained charge is also required. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 6-49, 7-44, 7-143, 9-31, 9-60-64, SL4-44.

Pukel-mander: These 10'-tall idols are carved out of oily soapstone and exude a faint whiff of brimstone; they radiate evil in a 5' radius. Pukel-manders are shaped like crouching salamanders ready to spring forth on massive hind legs, with toothless mouths open wide. Where the eyes should be are gaping holes, 2' in diameter. Should a tear of Kauket (see new magic items) be placed in either of the eyes, a stream of viscous clear liquid will start to pool, and then drip, from the eyeholes. This liquid is none other than the sweat of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new magic items). Three potions-full of the substance may be collected for each tear deposited in the eyeholes. Should tears be placed in both eyeholes at the same time, however, all within 10' will be teleported to the pediment in front of the Great Pukel (9-40). Pure white tears used to activate the pukel-mander's powers are transported to the eye-holes of the Great Pukel, while tears of other colors are destroyed in the process.

It is also possible to destroy items - even powerful magical ones - by tossing them into the pukel-mander's maw. In essence, the maw functions as does a sphere of annihilation, with the (useful!) caveat that it cannot affect living matter. Destroying anything worth 1,000 gp, or a permanent magic item, provokes a roll on the following chart:

D6	Duration	"Gift" of Kauket
1	3 months	Infravision through the appearance of a third eye on the forehead
2	3 weeks	Gills appear, allowing water breathing
3	3 months	Tongue grows 100% in length; much drooling occurs, but tongue can 'taste' tracks (tracking like a ranger) on stone, earth, and water
4	3 days	A film grows over eyes, allowing detection of invisible and hidden, but which is sensitive to light (-2 to all rolls in bright light)
5	3 months	Friendly to amphibians and reptiles, plus ability to talk to both. -2 CHA to all others
6	3 days	Regenerate 1 HP/round

Even though their enchantments make their soapstone bodies unnaturally hard, Pukel-manders can be destroyed. Doing so requires concentrated effort with stonemasonry tools, though. If the Great Pukel is destroyed all pukel-manders lose their powers, becoming ominous, vaguely evil statues of normal composition. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 60,000 Location: 2-49, 2-56C, 3-11, 4-74, 4-151A, 5-104, 6-107, 6-165, 8-26, 8-159 (destroyed), SL5-28.

Purse of Asters: This object appears to be a simple purse of yellow leather tied up with a string, albeit with an image of an aster flower tooled into one side. In reality it is a powerful item produced by the fey House of Asters to aid its members in their travels. So long as the image of the aster is still apparent on the side of the purse, the purse always contains exactly as many coins as are needed for any transaction, up to a limit of 50 gp. Each time the purse is used, a portion of the tooled image is erased; the purse can be used 7-10 times before the image is gone and the purse becomes non-magical. Depositing a fresh aster flower into the purse, however, recharges 1-3 uses. A steady supply of asters can thus maintain this item's utility for a long time. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 6-1.

Qisstep's Ring: This granite ring is greasy with age and use. It detects as evil, and can only be used by an evil character. Those of other alignments who attempt to wear it receive a jolt of electricity for 2-12 HP. For evil characters, it acts as a ring of protection +3, with several other powers: 1) immunity to hold person; 2) ESP in a 30' radius; and 3) the equivalent of a tongues spell centered on the wearer. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 20,000 Location: 8-165 Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Qisstep's Spear: This ancient spear was the possession of the famous heqeti weaver, Qisstep. It is made of red ironwood that gleams from long years of polishing, and has a jagged iron tip. It may only be wielded by those of evil alignments. It acts as a spear +3, +5 vs varumani, varuda, kaliyani, and rudishva. The spear also has two special properties: 1) fear, in a 15' radius; 2) enfeeblement on a natural to hit roll of 20 (the enfeeblement weakens the victim by 33%). Experience Point Value: 2,500 G.P. Value: 25,000 Location: 8-162 Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Red Welt: This bullwhip acts as a whip +2, but successful hits against foes leaves large red welts. Each welt has a 15% chance of contracting a disease. This whip has a range of 15' and requires 15' to use; it inflicts 2-3/2-4 HP damage (not including magical bonuses). Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-99.

Returning Javelin: This javelin is +2 to hit and to damage, and will return unerringly to the hand of the wielder after being thrown. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 4-47, SL13-10C.

Returning Pebble: Appearing as an ordinary pebble, this object has the dubiously useful property of returning to its owner after three turns, no matter where it was lost or given away. The pebble may be alienated by dying or by getting someone else to request the gift of the pebble (at which point it is possible to give it away). Many have attempted (mostly unsuccessfully) to come up with a practical or tactical function for the pebble. Only the most-powerful magics (alter reality, limited wish, miracle, wish) let the bearer drop the pebble: a remove curse is not enough. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: EX-4, 2-61, SL4-40F.

Ring of Acid Resistance: This useful ring protects the wearer from many of the effects of acid. The wearer gains a +4 to any saves against acid attacks, the ring completely negates splash damage from thrown acid if less than 10 HP, and it lowers damage from other acid attacks by 2 pips per die of damage. The ring cannot save its wearer from full immersion in acid, however. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: AV-7, 10-10.

Ring of Change Self: This simple copper ring carries a powerful dweomer that allows the user to use the illusionist spell change self three times per day, with a duration of four hours per use (or until the wearer chooses to dismiss the illusion). Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 1-20, SL15-16.

Ring of Friendly Defense: These rings come as a mated pair, and in a variety of metals. Although they may feature mundane inscriptions, they detect strongly as magic. All such rings, regardless of metal, function as rings of protection +1, but their true potency arrives when they are used in tandem. The wearer of one ring of a pair can command, at any time, one of the following effects to be instantly imposed on the wearer of the other ring. Each effect inflicts some cost on the wearer who instigates the effect, and rings of different metals are known to carry a different array of effects. In most cases the duration of a cost is exactly the same as the duration of the beneficial effect (exception: Life). In most cases there is no limit to the number of uses per day (save for the instigator's ability to bear the cost of each effect).

Effect	Cost to Instigator	Explanation
Shield	-2 AC penalty	Recipient is affected by a shield spell (duration per spell)
Health	4 HP/level	Recipient gains up to 4 HP per level of instigator (instantaneous). The recipient cannot exceed his normal maximum HP using this effect.
Stealth	Blindness	Recipient is affected by an invisibility spell (duration per spell)
Speed	Max speed of 20'	Recipient's speed increases by 50% (duration 2 hours)
Life	Death	If the recipient has died in the past 4 rounds, the instigator trades his/her life force with his/her partner. Instigator dies and recipient is restored to life at ¼ HP.

Metal	Included Effects
Copper	Health
Silver	Shield
Gold	Stealth
Steel	Speed, Stealth
Iron	Speed
White gold	Stealth, Shield
Platinum	Life, health
Arcanum	Shield, health, stealth, speed, life

Rings of friendly defense each possess a unique command word, which must be determined using magic or intensive (and costly) research. Experience Point Value: 2,500 (copper, silver, gold, iron); 5,000 (steel, white gold, platinum); 7,500 (arcanum); G. P. Value: 15,000 (copper, silver, gold, iron); 25,000 (steel, white gold, platinum); 35,000 (arcanum) Location: 3-17, 7-96, 7-124, SL6-45.

Ring of Higher Purpose: Many centuries ago, Isocorax carved a set of six wooden bands from the same piece of ironwood with which he created the Peace Door (6-7A). These rings – the rings of higher purpose – allowed the wearer to circumvent the anti-magic effect that covered the Inn of the Lost. Each of the six rings has the same inscription, in Mithric: “Necessity Before Peace”.

A caster who wears one of the bands is able to cast spells within areas 6-7 to 6-18. In addition, the wearer has a 50% chance to circumvent anti-magic effects found elsewhere, and rings of higher purpose reduce the magic resistance of all targeted creatures by 25%. The location of the rings is as follows: one worn by Justin the Nose (6-7), one held by Thegan Whitemane (6-19), one in area 5-46, one in the tower of Walid (9-70), one in area 4-148, and one in the Tower of Pol (SL6-17A). Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-148, 5-46, 6-7, 6-19, 9-70, SL6-17A.

Ring of Levitation: This ring allows the wearer to activate a levitation spell on himself/herself. Speaking ‘rise’ in Elvish moves the wearer upwards, while saying ‘descend’ in Elvish causes the wearer to descend. The ring can be used for 1 turn every hour, and can lift a weight of up to 3,000 gp. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 3-39, 6-85, 8-4, SL3-2.

Ring of Marius: A simple, wide copper band, with the name ‘Marius’ scratched on the interior face, this unimposing ring is a potent relic of the great Marius Tricotor (6-154). The ring can be worn by anyone, but only provides its magical powers to wearers of lawful good or lawful neutral alignments. Such users find that the ring provides CHA +2 and complete immunity to all mind-based magical attacks (sleep, charm, confusion, hold, etc.). It also renders the wearer immune to first through sixth level illusion/phantasm spells. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 60,000 Location: 6-148 Alignment Limit: LG, LN.

Ring of Protection from Normal Missiles: These rings are highly coveted by magic users, as they provide permanent protection from normal missiles as per the third-level magic user spell of that name. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 3-158, 3-176.

Ring of Set: These copper rings are set with a scarab of a blood-red pig. The rings are extremely valuable as symbolic objects to the cult of Set. Each ring allows the wearer to cast true seeing 2/day and fear 2/day; it also provides a +2 bonus to armor class and grants a magic resistance of 15%. Although broadly similar, all known rings bear clear differences in the carving of the scarab, and each is known by a unique name (perhaps the name of their first wearer?). The location of four of the rings is known to the modern Set cult, one each in the possession of the three ranking Pontifexes and a fourth lost in the behir caves (but whose general location is known). The cult presumes that others existed in antiquity. The names of the four rings known to the Set Cult (with current locations in parentheses) are Batzas (4-51), Fronto the Wise (4-56), Sittas (4-57), and Fragar (4-111). A fifth ring, Loric, is unknown to the cult; it is found in SL8-4

Set will be most displeased with any who steal one of his priest’s rings; anyone who is not of lawful evil alignment who wears and uses one of the rings will be cursed by Set. The curse takes the form of a progressive weakening of CON (-1 CON per week) and of a sort of homing beacon effect that allows the possessor of any other ring of Set to track the blasphemer; in such a way Set hopes that his people will be able to recover the lost ring. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 4-51, 4-56, 4-57, 4-111, SL8-4.

Ring of Shield: This gaudy silver ring features an over-sized, 1”-diameter silver disk that rests against the knuckle of the wearer. If the wearer rotates the disk and speaks the command words (“Protect me!” in Mithric), the equivalent of shield spell instantaneously affects the wearer. This effect can be produced three times per day. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 2-70, 6-71, 7-76, 7-79, 8-5, SL6-17A.

Ring of the Snake: This copper ring takes the form of twisting snake’s body culminating in a snake’s head with eyes of jet. Whoever wears the ring can turn into a viper 3/day. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 9-64A.

Ring of Spider Climbing: This powerful ring allows the wearer to move as if permanently under the effect of the spell spider climb. It appears as a simple copper band with a web-pattern roughly incised in the copper. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-197, 4-181.

Ring of the Stalker: This ring is formed from an ivory band, with a large white pearl mounted on one side. Those who know the command word can use the ring to summon an invisible stalker once per week. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-151, 7-76D.

Ring of Water Breathing: This gaudy ring is made of gold with a large pearl as its centerpiece. It allows the wearer to breathe naturally when underwater. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 4-121, 7-76D.

Ring of Zox: This ring is made of beautifully worked jade, on which has been carved a set of calla lilies. It detects as evil. It acts as a ring of human influence, but with an important catch: every time either the suggestion or charm person abilities is used, there is a cumulative 1% chance that the character becomes a wraith. The soul of an ancient, thoroughly evil, magic user named Zox inhabits the ring. Those who wear the ring will not immediately realize that it is possessed. Sages might be able to identify the ring as that of Zox; once done, the evil nature of the ring might be revealed. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-2.

Ritha Ferk: This potent enchanted battle axe is a product of the fabled dwarven smithies of Kazildor. It operates generally as a battle axe +2, but when wielded by a lawful good dwarf it becomes a battle axe +3, +5 versus demons (against whom it always inflicts twice the usual damage). Experience Point Value: 1,200 G. P. Value: 9,000 Location: 4-177.

Rod of Turning: These powerful objects were created by the priests of Thoth in the old days to assist in the Archontean exploration of the lower Halls. They appear as 3’-long pieces of ebony pierced at one end to allow a silver chain to pass through (the chain loops around one’s hand). Rods of turning allow any user to automatically turn undead. They are charged, but the procedure for creating (and recharging) them has been lost, rendering them extremely valuable. The number of charges expended per use depends on the power of the undead to be turned:

- 1 charge: skeletons, zombies, ghouls
- 2 charges: shadows, wights, ghouls
- 3 charges: wraiths, mummies, spectres

The rod cannot turn vampires or more powerful undead. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-40, 6-159, 7-79, SL6-53, SL13-10C.

Rod of Wind Control: This rod is formed of copper, incised with symbols of Set animals (see new monsters). It allows the wielder to perform a number of feats: 1) gust of wind, per the 3rd-level magic user spell (1 charge); 2) control winds, per the 5th-level druid spell (2 charges); 3) wind walk, per the 7th-level clerical spell (4 charges); and 4) summon a raging vortex of swirling air 60' in diameter that lasts for up to 1 turn. Those within the vortex may not move and must save vs spells or be tossed 10-30' in a random direction (1-4 HP damage). The wielder of the rod is protected by a personal 'eye' that is 3' in diameter (2 charges). Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-51 Class Limit: BDCIM.

Rudishva Useful Palms: The rudishva created a variety of technosorcerous objects shaped like a rudishva hand (analogous to human hands, but with longer and more spindly fingers). Each hand was about 3" tall, was formed of flesh-colored plasteel, and took the form of a gesture with the thumb and first finger touching, with the other fingers erect. A stylized third eye appears in the center of the palm; sometimes this is a colored dot, other times it is a fully depicted eye. All useful palms have a rod-shaped handle extending below the hand, which the operator uses to hold the device. A useful palm is activated by pointing the third eye in the palm at the desired target and thumbing a tiny stud on the handle.

Once activated, a colored beam projects from the eye towards the target; typically the color of the beam matches the color of the eye. Targets get a saving throw where appropriate. The devices are charged, but the process of recharging them was lost with the rudishva. Even the few rudishva survivors – e.g., the Arena Lord or Psalor-Ki – are unable to recharge these devices.

To determine how many charges a useful palm retains, roll d20: 1-10: 1-4 charges; 11-15: 5-10 charges; 16-19: 11-20 charges; 20: 21-40 charges. Useful palms came in a variety of forms, each with a specific function. Some of the surviving palms are as follows:

Palm of Cancellation: The third eye is dead black. It produces a pale violet beam 5' in diameter that serves to drain all magic items it touches of their powers. The beam lasts for 4-7 rounds per charge, and can drain one item per round. Only artifacts gain a saving throw (each artifact must exceed 5 on a roll of d20 to save). Experience Point Value: 10,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 9-33.

Palm of the Cleansing Wind: The third eye and resulting beam are pale blue. The beam produces a physical effect that feels like a gust of wind, and acts like the 3rd-level magic user spell, although for only 5-12 rounds. In addition, the beam acts to dispel magic, both in terms of spell effects and in terms of lesser magic items like potions (as the 3rd-level cleric spell). Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 5-95A.

Palm of Correction: Both the third eye and the beam are ruby red. Range is 20'. If the target fails to save, the beam freezes the target in place (i.e., paralysis) indefinitely. Using the device a second time on a frozen victim releases that person from the effect. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 2-48, 7-24.

Palm of Size Adjustment: Both the third eye and the beam are azure. Range is 30'. One charge causes target to shrink to 3" in height. A second charge restores the target to full size. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 3-36E, 5-18.

Palm of Repelling: The third eye is canary yellow, but the beam is a sickly green. Range is 40'. A charge causes an invisible force field 30' square to push any being up to 500 lb in weight backward at the rate of 10' per round for a turn (i.e., the effect is analogous to the magic user spell, forceful hand). Once the force field reaches an immovable object (e.g., a stone wall) it effectively pins the target for the remainder of the duration. Certain types of apparently solid construction (e.g., wooden walls, trees) may be unable to resist the force and will be knocked over. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL6-45, SL7-2.

Palm of Temporal Flux: Both the third eye and the beam are amber colored. Range is a 40'-diameter sphere around the palm. One charge causes time to stop for all but the wielder of the palm, who has 12 plus 1-6 segments to act as he/she pleases. Use of a second charge can end the effect; of course, the user can simply allow the effect to expire naturally as well. Experience Point Value: 10,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 6-9A, 7-124, SL9-77.

Rug of Instant Access: This item comes in the form of a pair of beautiful and valuable prayer rugs (3'x4'). The imagery on the rugs can vary widely, but is always identical for a given pair. The pair serves to instantly teleport anyone who steps on one rug and speaks the command word to the other rug. The command words are typically prosaic ("Now", "Move", etc. in Mithric). Should either rug of a pair be destroyed, the enchantment is broken.

About a dozen pairs were made by Archontean-era wizards before their applicability to thievery and assassination became apparent and production was discontinued (Sligo the Devious gave one rug as a 'peace offering' to his enemy, Leonidas of Archontos, and then sent his assassins through Leonidas's defenses via the rugs). Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 3-66, SL4-10, SL12-19.

Salt Lamp of Protection: These magical lamps are carved from rock crystal and then imbued with protective spells, usually against one of the usual forces (evil, good, law, chaos, negative energy). They come in lesser and greater varieties. Both varieties require a power source, which can come in one of two forms: 1) specially prepared packets of 'protective essence' or 2) the blood and life essence of a willing donor. The former is obviously the more useful variety, and arcanists who own such lamps are known to possess recipes for the creation of such packets of 'fuel.' The latter is a process used only in extremis, for it requires a willing donor to hold the lamp and let the lamp draw life-blood for fuel.

Lesser lamps provide a protective bonus (+2 AC and saves versus the relevant creatures), and drain 1-4 HP per hour when fueled by a donor. The greater lamps produce a magical barrier that is impervious to the relevant force, but extract a much steeper toll when powered by sentient life essence (2-12 HP per turn). It can be difficult to distinguish the lesser from the greater versions without the assistance of a trained sage or magic user Experience Point Value: (lesser) 2,000; (greater) 4,000 G. P. Value: (lesser) 10,000; (greater) 30,000 Location: 4-148, 6-90, 9-59, 9-148, SL5-5, SL6-17A, SL10B-26.

Sandals of Agility: This unique pair of heavily worn sandals were the property of the ancient hero, Spiculus Carbo. They convey +3 to saves against any sort of area attack (e.g., fireball, dragon's breath, etc.). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL6-77.

Sarcophagus of Entombment: A red basalt sarcophagus some 4' high, 6' long, and tapering from 4' to 3' wide, this evil item usually bears a painted black eye on one or more of its faces. It comes with a brass lid and eight long spikes or nails with which to affix the lid to the base. If the sarcophagus is empty, the lid will appear to be blank and undecorated. If the sarcophagus is found with the lid attached to the base, a hideous image of a trapped, screaming, and clawing person will appear imprinted on the brass lid from below.

The ancient cult of Set used these sarcophagi as a terrible form of judicial punishment. Those guilty of heinous crimes were forced into the sarcophagus while still living (often drugged); the lid was then fastened to the base and the poor victim was allowed to die slowly of thirst and madness. The magic of the sarcophagus lies in its ability to turn its dead victim into undead creatures. The sort of undead depends on the amount of time the victim is left in the sarcophagus:

Duration of Entombment	Type of Undead
0 to 2 years	Skeleton
2-19 years	Zombie
10-49 years	Ghoul
50-99 years	Ghast
100-199 years	Wight
200+ years	Mummy

Only a few sarcophagi of entombment are known to exist. Of these, at least one is reputed to possess an extra enchantment (a sort of domination effect) which will lure the unsuspecting or unlucky into the sarcophagus. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 3-129.

Scorcher: This intelligent blade is finely made from the best steel, with a well-tooled varumani-skin grip. Scorcher is normally a short sword +2, but is more potent against trolls (including varumani). It emits red sparks when trolls are within 50'; is +3 to hit and damage versus trolls, and prevents troll regeneration when it strikes the killing blow. Scorcher is also sentient, albeit a sleepy entity; it will not reveal itself to its wielder until trolls are nearby (within 50'), when it will emit red sparks and shout in Thorcin "My enemy is nigh! Let the Scorching begin!" Once activated, Scorcher can carry on simple conversations with its wielder, but is remarkably uninterested in anything but killing trolls. It will, however, be difficult to control around trolls, as it truly lives for the troll-slaughter. Scorcher has INT 16 and ego 10; it is chaotic good in alignment, and speaks Thorcin and the chaotic good alignment tongue. Its primary powers are these: 1) detect sloping passages in a 10' radius; 2) detect traps of a large size in a 10' radius; and 3) detect precious metals, kind and amount in a 20' radius. Experience Point Value: 1,440 G. P. Value: 7,200 Location: 3-197.

Scepter of the Goblins: The legendary symbol of regnal authority for the goblin king in Arden Vul appears as a bronze rod about 3' long, with an apple-shaped head. A faint inscription around the neck, below the apple, reads in Mithric: "Dulce pomum quum abest cultos" (tr.: Forbidden fruit is the sweetest). The scepter serves as a club +2, +4 versus goblins and allows the bearer to charm goblins (as charm person, but only towards goblins) as many times per day as is desired. It also renders the bearer unable to be surprised.

The scepter was lost centuries ago, and its exact appearance is recalled only vaguely. Recently Gislú the mystic (4-2) has re-energized interest in locating the scepter, and has linked the legitimacy of Weskenim to its possession. Any non-goblin familiar with ancient Archontean artifacts will easily recognize this as imperially-made, and as originally an object designed to subdue goblin slaves. Still, should it be known that a non-goblin possesses the scepter, the goblins of Arden Vul will instantly treat that person as a mortal enemy. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: 8-69.

Scroll Case of Potency: These delicately-carved ivory scroll cases bear images of animals with horns: elephants, narwhals, unicorns, rhinoceros, etc. Placing a spell scroll inside the case for at least a turn activates the case; when removed, the spell on the scroll will be twice as potent as initially. The owner may choose to have one of the following factors doubled (but not all): duration, range, or effects (e.g., damage or # affected). The scroll case may only be used once per day. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 9-22, SL3-5.

Scrying Ball: A scrying ball is a lesser version of a crystal ball. It can be attuned to one location at a time and allows the user the ability to watch activity in that location. It does not permit clairaudience or other advanced types of magic. To attune a scrying ball, one must bring the ball to the desired location and then cast clairvoyance and enchant an item on the scrying ball (the ball is already enchanted, of course; the spell just serves to fix the desired location). Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 4-61, 4-121.

Set Animal Masks: The masks are semblances of the Set animal (long curved snout, square ears), and are enchanted. They enhance sight and hearing by 100% (reducing the wearer's chance of being surprised in half), but will eventually drive insane those who wear them. For every day of use, the chance of insanity is 1% (cumulative). They can be taken on and off at will. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 3-24, 3-108, 7-96.

Set's Bane: This halberd is made of brass and is quite heavy. In the hands of anyone but a lawful good character, it is merely a halberd +1. When wielded by a lawful good character, however, it is a halberd +2, +3 versus evil clerics, and +4 versus clerics of Set. Against clerics of Set, it scores double damage on a to hit roll of 20. Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 3-35.

Shawl of Warmth: This modest-appearing, homespun woolen shawl is actually of great aid to travelers. The shawl keeps out all ill effects from cold, and even reduces damage from cold spells by 1 per die. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-13.

Shield of Dubious Faith, Cursed: This medium metal shield is painted azure blue, and was formerly owned by the commander of the local sept of the Knights of the Azure Shield (see AK-1). The shield provides a magical bonus of +1 to AC against all opponents except demons and devils, against whom it provides a penalty of -3 to AC. Unfortunately, the shield does not detect as evil. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: AV-11.

Shrunken Head: Shrunken heads are formed from the wizened heads of animals or sentient beings. Despite having their eyes and mouth sewn shut, they possess true seeing and love to jabber about what they see (as well as 1-3 other subjects). Heads are famously vulgar, and one of their 'subjects' is often copulation; others may include local personalities, directions to specific locations, famous scandals, etc. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 3-163D, 9-4, SL4-11, SL6-17A, SL12-23.

Sistrum of Bastet: This instrument is about 3' long and made of bronze; a thick handle leads to a u-shaped frame, through which slide ring-covered rods. When shaken, the sistrum can produce rhythmic percussion ranging from soft susurrations to loud clanking. As one of the favored items of Bastet, the item has several powers. First, it can be wielded as a mace +2. Second, shaking it serves to summon and command ordinary cats; all cats within hearing range (approx. 200') will be drawn to the wielder, who will be able to command them to act on her behalf. Third, when the command word "joy" is spoken in the secret tongue of cats, the sounds of the sistrum are able to produce enforced merriment on all who listen (and who fail a save vs. spells); this effect works identically to the spell irresistible dance except that the duration is for as long as the sistrum is shaken and those subject to the sistrum's merriment fail their saving throws. In the hands of a bard the sistrum may produce a fourth effect: infravision (as spell) upon all within 10'. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 55,000 Location: 8-37.

Skull of Gneis Valor: This human skull is completely coated in a purple waxy substance that is extremely difficult to remove; in its eye sockets are bronze disks depicting the Set animal (see new monsters). It is in fact the skull of Gneis Valor, the first high priest of Set in Arden Vul. A portion of Gneis Valor's evil spirit still inhabits the skull (although it is not sentient), and this spirit, along with Set himself, powers the object. The skull radiates the darkest evil; indeed, possession of the skull slowly changes the bearer's alignment to lawful evil (5% cumulative chance per month).

The skull has many powers: 1) protection from good, constant and permanent; 2) magical protection: the skull absorbs all hostile magic cast at the caster, including death magic, hold person, mind-affecting magic, and up to 50 HP worth of magical damage per round (magic missile, fire, etc.). The skull provides no protection versus melee damage. Should more than 50 HP of magical damage be inflicted in a single round, the skull provides no protection at all (i.e., all damage goes to the owner); what is more, the owner must thereafter reapply the waxy purple coating (a ritual costing 25,000 gp and requiring live sacrifices) before the protection power is again enabled; 3) unhallow: the skull performs the equivalent of an evil hallow spell (see new spells) if left for 1-3 days in the same location and if appropriate rituals are performed; 4) unholy blast: once per day the possessor can hold the skull in both hands, invoke Gneis Valor, and produce a circle of magical power that explodes outwards in a 50' radius from the holder. The blast does 6-36

HP damage to all creatures within range, and will also stun any survivors unless they save vs petrification (with a -2 penalty); 5) gate: once per day the possessor can open a gate to the Nine Hells. If the possessor knows the names of no devils, then there is a flat 25% chance of being able to gate in 1-2 horned devils (50%) or 1 ice devil (50%). If the possessor invokes the name of a major devil, then that devil is 90% likely to appear (or send appropriate agents).

Stephania, high priestess of the modern cult of Set would go to great lengths to recover this object. The possessor of this artifact is sure to attract the attention of all manner of thieves and foes. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 90,000 Location: 4-148.

Slippers of Stealth: These slippers are highly valued by thieves. They provide the following powers: 1) invisibility 1/day; 2) silence, 5' radius 3/day; 3) bonus of +20% to Hide in Shadows. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 4-146, 8-97.

Smokeless Torches: These functional items are enchanted such that they emit no smoke and never burn out. They can be extinguished and relit as normal torches. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-158, 3-165, 8-125.

Snapper: This black-leather bullwhip is normally a whip +1 to hit, but is +3 versus animals. If wielded against – or even demonstrated to – the baboons of Arden Vul, the baboons automatically have reduced morale and are twice as likely to flee. This whip has a range of 10' and requires 10' to use; it inflicts 2-3/2-4 HP damage (not counting magical bonuses). Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-99.

Solar Ring: Each member of the Sun-Scarred Knights (see new monsters) wears one these copper rings set with a silver scarab beetle on top of their gauntlets. Solar rings have various powers: at will they can summon sunlight in a 50' radius; at will they act as rings of feather fall, or rings of jumping; finally, they can also produce an air bubble around the head of the wearer which will permit travel under water for a period of 1 day. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: On Sun-Scarred Knights, and 7-82.

Sorrow's Vial of Tears: This small ivory vial is carved with words for 'grief' in at least a dozen languages. A unique item, it is the personal property of Sir Sorrow, the sun-scarred knight (SL4-19). The enchantment on this vial serves to protect the memory and emotion of instances of grief. It works when the holder sheds a single tear into the vial. Until that tear is replaced (by another one), it is possible to uncork the vial, inhale deeply, and relive the moment of grief that spawned the tear. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL4-19.

Sortian Baculus: A Sortian baculus is a bronze rod about as long as a human forearm; its head is carved in the form of a complex knot and its shafts bear the Mithric inscription Causa occulta, sors manifesta (trans: "The cause may be hidden, but its fate is obvious"). All baculi act as enchanted clubs (+1 to hit and damage), but some few are also enchanted with one additional spell effect. Some possible effects that may be enchanted in a baculus include: detect magic, detect evil, infravision, suggestion, or blink. If imbued with an additional enchantment, the item is charged (up to 15 charges), with the cost of each use equal to the level of the spell being replicated. Recharging requires casting a contained spell twice, thereby gaining enough charges to cast it from the baculus once. In addition, unless the arcanum forge (9-60) is used during the recharge, 100 gp worth of special oils and powdered gems per gained charge is also required. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: 1-19, 6-169, 4-24, 5-26, 7-24, 7-56, 7-62, 7-88, 7-96, 9-31, 9-61, 9-62, 9-64, SL6-16, SL10B-21.

Sortian Chain Mail: Forged with a special formula that employs arcanum (see new magic items), this chain mail is as light as elven chain but is far more powerful, as the arcanum in it allows it to be used without penalty by magic users and illusionists. The use of arcanum results in chain links that are tinged orange and glow slightly. The Sortians developed the technology near the end of the Archontean period, and it aided them immensely in the War of the Sortians and Theosophs (see World of Archontos appendix). Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 2-47, 7-88, 9-148, SL4-40D.

Sortian Eyes: These enchanted objects were used by the ancient Sortians to activate various magical devices (Sortian faces, Sortian portable sages, etc. – see new magic items). The eyes detect of magic, but do not possess specific effects; rather, they help to activate other magic. Eyes are always solid, eye-shaped exemplars of the substance in question; most have the features of a human eye (lashes, pupil, iris) incised on the surface of the eye. The following varieties (in increasing level of rarity) are known: silver, gold, and sapphire. Individual Sortian apparatuses usually have sometimes-obscure inscriptions detailing which eyes must be used to activate the device in question. Thanks to Nerub Null (9-64), the modern Priscians have figured out how to use the eyes to navigate the Sortian face network.

Just a few months ago, the Priscian forge team (Palestrina and Big Theo – see area 9-60) made a breakthrough in reproducing Sortian eyes. Still, their procedure is slow (the ritual magic takes 3 months), costly (3,000 gp per eye) and morally suspect (their procedure requires the use of a pair of fresh human eyes as material components). As a result, the Priscians have only been able to make a few new Sortian eyes. They would clearly like to improve the process so as to make better use of the Sortian faces (q.v.), but are currently stymied; what they do not know (but what Big Theo suspects) is that they are missing an entire quire of Jace Far-Seer’s manual (see Forging with Arcanum in Arden Vul books), and thus will be unable to replicate the eyes in the same manner as the ancient Sortians. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: (silver) 150; (gold) 650; (sapphire) 2,000 Location: 2-47, 3-80, 3-155, 3-172B, 4-2D (stall 4), 4-24 (Galadnor), 4-24 (Horace Trych), 5-3, 6-85, 7-76C, 9-63, 9-64, SL3-12, SL3-27, SL6-70, SL10B-21 (silver); 2-29, 2-56, 3-155, 3-172B, 3-173, 4-2D (stall 4), 4-24 (Horace Trych), 6-85, 6-104, 7-22, 7-24, 7-76C, 7-88, 9-63, 9-64, SL3-10, SL5-22, SL5-36, SL6-16, SL6-70, SL10B-21 (gold); AV-random encounters; 3-144, 3-155, 3-172B, 3-220, 4-2D (stall 4), 4-24 (Horace Trych), 6-64, 6-85, 6-129, 7-21, 7-22, 7-56, 7-76C, 7-76J, 8-5, 9-63, 9-64, 10-54, SL4-40F, SL6-16, SL10B-21 (sapphire).

Sortian Face: These objects are immobile but puissant. Each is a 4’-tall, high-relief carving of a human face, one depicting a close-cropped, bearded man of late middle age, complete with age lines, crow’s feet, and blemishes. The only unrealistic element is the eyes, which appear as empty sockets. The face is meant as an approximation of the classical Archontean figure of the Philosopher. The faces detect as magic. They served several practical effects to the Sortians of antiquity, provided the user possessed one or more Sortian eyes (see new magic items). These effects are triggered by placing Sortian eyes into the empty eye sockets on the face. Some effects are fixed, and some are individual to a given face. Eyes may be placed in either eye socket; that is, it does not matter whether a silver eye is in the right socket and a sapphire eye is in the left socket (or vice versa). As there are three sorts of Sortian eyes (silver, gold, and sapphire), nine combinations, with concomitant effects, are possible:

First Eye	Second Eye	Sortian Face Effect	GM Notes
Silver	None	Magic Mouth: I cannot see the path. Help me to see clearly.	The point is that two eyes are necessary to activate the face.
Silver	Silver	Healing: all within 10’ are healed of 3-24 HP damage	Self-explanatory. This combination consumes both eyes.
Silver	Gold	Magic Mouth: The League has formed, The Theosophs scorned, Priscus persuades, and Livia dissuades, while Macrinus crusades. Whither the league? Wherefore this intrigue?	League= the Sortian League; Priscus= Priscus Pulcher, a major Sortian; Livia= Livia Cuspianus, the Lictor (see SL11-13), another Sortian leader; Macrinus= Macrinus Furiosus (see SL11-13), another Sortian leader. For Priscus and the Sortians, see the World of Archontos appendix.
Silver	Sapphire	Magic Mouth: The Theosophs have pounced, The League is trounced. The Greywand is afraid, Livia unmade, Priscus is betrayed and Macrinus acts a renegade. Should an anxious Sortian wish for aid to obtain, Let her search near the fire pool in the Ibis-Lord’s domain, Or seek the subterranean pool where mist perpetually rains.	Theosophs= enemies of the Sortians; Greywand= Hortensius Greywand, a powerful member of the ancient order of Thoth (see SL11-14); ‘fire pool in the Ibis-Lord’s domain’= area 3-49; ‘subterranean pool where mist perpetually rises’= 9-65, hinting at the location of the Sortian outpost (9-58 to 9-64). For the War of the Sortians and Theosophs, see the World of Archontos appendix.
Gold	None	Magic Mouth: I cannot see the path. Help me to see clearly.	See Silver and None above.

Gold	Gold	Teleportation: all within 5' are immediately teleported to the other face linked to this one.	Each face is attuned to a different location. See entries for individual Sortian faces for the destination for the teleport effect. This combination consumes both eyes.
Gold	Sapphire	Magic Mouth: The message varies according to the face being employed.	See entries for individual Sortian faces.
Sapphire	None	Magic Mouth: I cannot see the path. Help me to see clearly.	See Silver and None above
Sapphire	Sapphire	1. First Magic Mouth Speaks the other three messages in order, that is, the messages obtained by using the silver-gold, silver-sapphire, and gold-sapphire combinations 2. Second Magic Mouth After the preceding words, the mouth carefully identifies the location of the face to which it is linked 3. Teleportation Two rounds after the second mouth speaks, all within 10' are teleported to the other face linked to this one	Self-explanatory. This combination consumes both eyes.

Thanks to Nerub Null (9-64), the modern Priscians have figured out how to use the Sortian eyes to navigate the Sortian face network. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: — Location: 3-188, 4-167, 6-48, 8-6, 9-59, SL3-17.

Sortian Portable Sage: These strange objects take the form of a life-sized, bronze, bust of a man in late middle age, with close-trimmed beard, kind eyes, laugh-lines, well-proportioned nose and chin, and a few discrete blemishes. The only non-lifelike aspect of the portable sage is his empty eye sockets. The face of the sage is almost identical to that found in Sortian faces (q.v.), and is meant to depict the platonic ideal of the wise philosopher. The modern Priscians, who have only encountered a couple of these portable sages, state definitively (and quite wrongly) that it is the likeness of Priscus Pulcher himself.

Portable sages are enchanted in several ways. First, the sage bobs in the air about five feet from the floor (permanent levitation). Second, provided one knows the command word, one can interact with the sage: interaction includes commanding it to move, follow, or seek a particular location, but is especially devoted to asking true/false questions of the sage. Each portable sage has the same two major fields (Humankind and Supernatural and Unusual), but each has one specialty within each major field (and no minor fields). So, one portable sage might have a special knowledge of Archontean law and customs, while another might have special knowledge in dweomercraeft.

How the portable sage answers the questions is a matter of some dispute. Who answers the questions? A planar being? A god (but which one)? The spirit of some long-dead Sortian?

Recall that all questions must be answerable in a 'true/false' manner; the portable sage cannot offer long disquisitions, but merely replies 'true' or 'false' to any query or statement. The magic of a portable sage is finite, although capable of renewal. A portable sage may answer 100 questions before needing recharging; when found, therefore, a head will have 1-100 questions remaining. To recharge a portable sage, one must insert two sapphire Sortian eyes (see new magic items) into the empty sockets; these will vaporize instantly, and the sage will be fully charged (100 questions). Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 3-33, SL4-58.

Soul Stone: A polished white stone about 3" in length, this item is used by folk magicians and hedge wizards to prevent the souls of dangerous persons from escaping. Once the stone is enchanted, it must be placed in the mouth of a person recently deceased (within 3 hours); this prevents the person's soul from departing. It also prevents a person so bound from rising as an undead. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 3-79, 5-52.

Spear of Arden Ascended: This is the spear wielded by Arden the demigod. As such it is unlikely to come into mortal hands, unless, of course, Arden chooses to bestow it on a worthy champion for a specific (and temporary) purpose. The demigod will only allow her spear to be wielded by one of good alignment, and then only by one whose motives are pure and laudable and who has vowed to combat strong evil. Should a mortal to whom Arden has bestowed the spear fail in his/her task, or neglect to pursue it properly, or turn away from the path of good, the spear will instantly teleport back to the hands of Arden. Since Arden's ascension more than 1,800 years ago, the spear has only appeared seven times, and always in times of great collective need.

The spear of Arden Ascended is not to be confused with the ebon spear (q.v.); the former is the weapon of an immortal demigod, while the latter is the powerful but mortal weapon that Arden wielded in her lifetime. Like the ebon spear, however, the spear of Arden Ascended takes the form of the heavy thrusting spear of the Archontean legions. Its shaft is made of unbreakable black iron, while its head is made of mithril-coated meteorite. An unworthy person (see above) will find the combination incredibly heavy, such that a bend bars roll must be made to even lift it from the ground; such persons will find it impossible to wield in combat. Those to whom Arden has freely bestowed the spear, however, find it light and perfectly weighted.

As a mighty artifact of good, the powers of the spear are many. First, it acts as a spear +5, doing 7-17 HP damage against all targets regardless of size. It can be used for thrusting, or it can be thrown. If thrown it returns unerringly to the hand of its wielder. If wielded in melee, it permits three attacks per round, regardless of the level of the wielder. One of these attacks always hits; the other two attacks must be rolled to hit normally. By uttering a command word, the wielder is also able to cause the spear to burn with blue flame; when flaming, the spear inflicts an additional 1-6

HP damage on good or neutral creatures or an additional 2-12 HP damage on any creature of an evil alignment. In mortal hands, the blue flame can be activated 3/day. On a successful hit versus an evil creature, the spear also imposes dispel evil on that creature.

The wielder can also employ the following spell-like abilities: detect lie (at will), detect evil (at will), detect invisible (at will), protection from evil 10' radius (5/day), true seeing (3/day), and dispel magic (3/day). Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100,000 Location: SL13-10L.

Spear of Kauket: As the personal weapon of the dread demon lord Kauket, the spear of Kauket is a potent artifact of evil. It is 12' long and made of cold iron with a barbed copper tip. It may be wielded easily and with full powers by those of evil alignment. For neutral characters, however, it loses its level- and HP-draining powers, acting only as a spear +5 doing 3-18 HP damage. A good character who attempts to wield the spear is instantly cursed (GM's choice) and takes 2-8 HP damage per round he/she remains in contact with the spear; it will have no powers in such a person's hands.

The spear has many powers. It is +5 to hit, although it inflicts a flat 3-18 HP damage upon a successful hit. A successful hit also has a chance to drain 1-2 energy levels and to halve the victim's remaining hit points. The chance for draining levels and hit points is based on the foe's experience level or HD: those with up to 6 HD have a 90% chance of being affected, those with 7-12 HD have a 75% chance of being affected, and those with 13 or more HD have a 50% chance of being affected. If affected, a victim is entitled to a saving throw versus death magic. If the save is successful, he/she loses one energy level; if it is failed, he/she loses two levels. Regardless of the save, such a hit drains half of the victim's remaining hit points. In addition, hit points drained by the spear serve to cure the wielder, at a ratio of 2:1; that is, if the spear drains 20 HP from a victim, the wielder is cured of 10 HP damage (up to his/her normal maximum HP).

The wielder also gains the following spell-like powers: resist fire (at will), detect good (at will), true seeing (at will), dispel good (3/day), and dispel magic (3/day). Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100,000 Location: 10-35.

Staff of Anubis: A traveler's staff made of ebony, this unique item is found in the hand of the statue of Anubis (see area 8-8) and must be prised loose to be usable. Since the statue is large, the staff is also large (approx. 6' tall). Although anyone can carry the staff without fear or penalty, its magic powers are only usable by someone of lawful alignment. In the hands of such a person, it functions as a staff +3, with the following additional powers: 1) light, 5/day; 2) detect invisibility 2/day; 3) protection from chaos (as protection from good, but against any chaotic alignment instead), 3/day. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: 8-8 Alignment Limit: LG, LN, LE.

Staff of Blue Light: This staff acts as a staff +1 in combat. It also sheds pale blue light in a 30' radius. The name 'Balthazar' is inscribed in silver along the staff. The notorious magic user Balthazar the Blue had several of these staves enchanted. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 3-39, 3-201, 9-62.

Staff of Fenth: This gnarled and knotty staff is carved from the wood of a beech tree, and is named after Fenth, the ancient evil Thorcin deity of the woodlands, the First Seed and Lord of Trees. It is usable by evil magic users or clerics. In addition to functioning as a staff +1, it has the following powers: 1) animate dead per spell 5/day (no charges; animated zombies are Fenth zombies, see new monsters); 2) control trees 5/day (see below) (no charges); 3) hold person (2 charges); and 4) blast of Fenth (see below).

When the wielder uses the staff to control trees, it allows him/her to control 3-12 branches from trees within a 100' radius; those limbs strike as 4 HD monsters and do 2-5 HP damage per hit. The blast of Fenth is a retributive strike that inflicts 6-36 HP damage on all creatures within a 30' radius. Experience Point Value: 7,000 G. P. Value: 35,000 Location: SL13-10F Class Limit: CM Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Staff of Fermentation: This powerful wooden staff is carved with grapes and grapevine images, and can be used to cause several effects, each with a cost in charges.

Water to Wine (1 charge): Changes any non-alcoholic liquid (up to 10 cubic feet) into a potent golden ale.

Belligerence (1 charge): The subject saves vs spells at -3 or begins an argument with anyone nearby. After 3 rounds the belligerence turns into violence unless a second save is made.

Instant Courage (2 charges): The blood of a living creature is affected as if by strong alcohol, granting +1 STR, -6 WIS, -3 DEX, and +1 CHA for 1-6 turns. The victim must save vs poison once per turn after the 2nd turn or else pass out for the remainder of the effect.

Drunkard's Fog (2 charges): Causes a golden haze to appear in a 15' radius around the staff, causing those viewing the staff-wielder to lose sight of him/her, providing the wielder 3 rounds of invisible movement.

Rapid Ripening (3 charges): Instantly ages and weakens any organic substance; this will rot all provisions (no save), foul water and other beverages (no save), cause leather and clothing to weaken and rot (save vs petrification prevents), and age a living subject by 6 years, causing 10 hp of damage in so doing (save to avoid aging; no save vs HP loss).

The staff of fermentation can be recharged, but only while all involved are thoroughly soused. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: 5-9 Class Limit: BCDIM.

Staff of the Frog: A long (8') staff made of oak and carved in floral and geometric patterns. It is a staff +1, but is +4 versus amphibians and amphibian-like creatures (frogs, toads, salamanders, heqeti, Kauket). It allows the bearer to breathe water, and allows him/her to jump up to 6/day as per the spell. It also allows the bearer to understand the speech of all amphibians and to communicate with them in their own croaking languages. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G. P. Value: 30,000 Location: AV-40, 3-231, 9-114.

Staff of Illusions: This potent staff has numerous powers, all connected to the creation, detection, and manipulation of illusions. The following powers require no charges: change self, detect illusion, detect invisibility, detect magic.

The following powers drain 1 charge per use: audible glamer, dispel illusion, hypnotic pattern, illusionary script, improved phantasmal force, misdirection, non-detection, spectral force.

The following powers drain 2 charges per use: phantasmal killer, projected image, shadow monsters.

One final power costs 3 charges per use: programmed illusion.

The staff can be broken to form a retributive strike. It can also be recharged. Experience Point Value: 12,000 G.P. Value: 60,000 Location: through the deck of the magi (q.v.) Class Limit: I.

Staff of the Necromancer: This staff is potent and evil (usable by only those of evil alignment). Possession of it marks one as evil, and brings the attention of imperial authorities.

It allows the wielder to produce the following effects without using a charge: detect good, detect magic, protection from good.

The following powers drain one charge per use: curse, dispel magic, fear, animate dead.

The following powers drain three charges per use: cacodemon, death spell.

In addition to these spell-like powers, the staff enables the necromancer to project a bluish-gray beam of negative energy that drains an energy level from whomever it touches. The necromancer must succeed with a roll to hit (the staff acts as a 9th-level fighter for this purpose), and the victim gets a saving throw vs. death. Energy levels consumed by the staff serve to recharge it at the rate of five charges per level drained. This is the only way for the staff to be recharged. Experience Point Value: 12,000 G. P. Value: 60,000 Location: 4-139C, 9-91 Class Limit: M Alignment Limit: LE, NE, CE.

Stalker: Formed of ebony, the long bow Stalker is +2 against all creatures. Against animals, including giant or monstrous varieties, it is a long bow +4. Stalker also provides its bearer the surprise abilities of halflings and elves, and under the same circumstances. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: 5-85.

Statuette of Bastet: This unique icon of the cat deity, Bastet, is formed of solid gold with jet gems for eyes and nose; it is 3' tall. Although clearly and obviously magical, it offers little benefit to the greedy, and much potential danger. Anyone who touches the statuette is raked by spirit-form cat claws for 2-8 damage; the claws also inflict poison on the victim (save at +2 or die; take 3-24 damage even if save).

Those who examine the statuette (without touching it) for a round or more will begin to hear telepathic thoughts: these will start as meows, purrs, and hisses but, if one listens for another five minutes, the cat noises gradually coalesce into accented, but intelligible speech: "Avenge this wrong. Return me to my sister-people. Touching me is forbidden!" These words will be repeated over and over.

If returned to the shrine of Bastet in 8-38, the Cat Goddess will reward the PC who restores the statuette with the following benefits: a) she will communicate the location of one treasure hoard in the Nether Reaches (Level 8); b) she will bestow a +1 'luck' bonus to all rolls for a month; and c) she will ensure the friendliness of all cats towards the PC who restores the statuette. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-215.

Statuette of the Camel: A solid gold piece some 8" tall, this statuette is shaped like a camel and has small chips of carnelian for eyes. It conveys the legendary powers of the camel, namely the ability to eat and drink one quarter as often as normal. It also offers a +1 bonus to saves versus poison. Should a person who has been relying on the statuette for more than a month subsequently lose the item, however, he/she must make a system shock roll as his/her digestive organs readjust to a normal state. If the roll is failed, he/she loses 1-6 HP permanently. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 4-115.

Statuette of Faithful Service: Through a short-lived program pursued by Archontean archmages in antiquity, the service of certain favored soldiers or administrators was rewarded by preserving a non-sentient portion of their personality and skills in the form of gold statuettes (2' tall). The statuettes are perfectly carved, and valuable as art objects (average 5,000 gp).

But if addressed by the proper name of the individual depicted in the statuette, its magical powers are revealed. So addressed, the statuette grows to man-sized height and accompanies its owner as needed until either asked to return to miniature form or until destroyed. Should its owner be killed, the statuette reverts to its golden form.

Each statuette has slightly distinct skills, although most are military in nature. It should be noted that because the statuettes are not fully sentient, they cannot be interrogated about history, dungeon locations, etc. Statuettes cannot be 'healed', however, which means that they crumble to gold fragments (500 gp) when their hit point total is reached. A few examples of such statuettes are as follows:

Lucius Minux: The statuette depicts a warrior clad in the distinctive attire of the ancient (and elite) Archontean legions. The figure is identifiable to those who know their legends and history by the unusual tulwar (scimitar) that the figure bears, marking him as Lucius Minux. Lucius Minux was a lesser figure in the mythology of Arden the Defender, one who played a minor but important role in the Sixth Labor of Arden (The Lost Legion – SL13-10F). When activated by name, Lucius Minux proves a formidable warrior who is particularly adept at fighting undead and non-Archontean barbarians. Lucius Minux: SZ M; AL N; AC 3; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 50; #AT 1; Dmg 5-10; can affect foes hit only by +2 weapons; is +2 to hit and +2 damage versus undead; is +1 to hit and +1 to damage versus barbarians; immune to mind-affecting spells; fights as an 8th-level fighter. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: SL4-24.

Festus: The statuette depicts a hulking gladiator wearing a lion skin and nothing else. He carries a big club. Festus was one of the earliest prototypes for this program, and the Archontean mages naturally experimented on a rather dull bruiser from the III Legion Scutarii. Festus is particularly adept against animals and monsters. Festus: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 50; #AT 1; Dmg 6-11; can affect foes hit by +2 weapons; is +2 to hit and +2 damage versus animals and unintelligent monsters; immune to mind-affecting spells; fights as an 8th-level fighter. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: SL9-73.

Nestor Plumbatorix: The statuette depicts a warrior clad in scale mail and equipped with shield, gladius, and a dozen plumbata, or lead-weighted darts. Nestor is expert at the hurling of plumbata, and prefers them to hand-to-hand combat. Nestor: SZ M; AL N; AC 5; MV 90'; HD 8; HP 50; #AT 3 (darts) or 1 (sword); Dmg 3-6 (plumbata) or 3-8 (sword); can affect foes hit by +2 weapons; +4 to hit with the plumbata; and +2 to damage versus magic users; immune to mind-affecting spells; fights as an 8th-level fighter. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL12-23.

Statuette of Feline Friendship: This 6<sup>7</sup>-tall ebony statuette depicts a seated cat with a tiny gold earring in its left ear. It is a depiction of the cat deity Bastet, and has several powers. First, it provides its owner with a +50% reaction bonus for interactions with felines and feline-like creatures. Second, it allows the owner to summon a local incarnation of Bastet once a month, on the full moon; this representative will answer any three questions that are put to it in the language of cats. Bastet's representative will be displeased if bothered too often or if the questioner is imperious and demanding. Suitable gifts, although not strictly necessary, are advisable when summoning a Bastet or her representative. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-165.

Sterling Flail of Set: This unique magic item appears as a 3'-long footman's flail formed of solid silver. It is found in the hands of the statue of Set in the necropolis of that deity (4-138A). Although made of silver, the flail functions as hardened steel in combat. As an artifact associated with Set, it can only be wielded by one of evil alignment; others who touch it take 2-16 HP damage.

In the hands of an evil being, the flail functions as a footman's flail +2, +4 versus good. On a successful hit versus a good-aligned creature, it also inflicts blindness if a saving throw versus spells is not made. It allows its wielder the following additional powers: 1) detect good 3/day; 2) detect invisible (creatures only) in a 10' radius; 3) cure serious wounds on wielder 3/day; 4) divination, per the clerical spell, 1/day.

Wielding the sterling flail of Set makes the owner a target for good-aligned clerics, paladins, and the like, and the wearer can be turned as a special creature. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-138A.

Stone Salve: This unguent restores life to a petrified creature as does the stone to flesh spell. Each alabaster vial contains enough unguent for 2-5 man-sized creatures. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-174, 6-140, 7-26.

Stone of Passage: These oblong pieces of stone are enchanted to allow the holder to pass safely through a wall of force. Each time a stone is used to pass through a wall of force there is a 10% (cumulative) chance that the stone is destroyed after the passage is completed. Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: TS-20, SL7-33, SL12-25.

Stone of Striking: These stones usually take the form of thumb-sized, deep-copper-colored nuts, albeit of a hard, stony substance. If hurled at an enemy within 25' while the thrower shouts a description of the target (name or identifying feature), the stone will speed unerringly towards its target (it automatically hits). A hit from a stone of striking causes several effects, none of which are good for the victim: first, if the target is wearing metal armor, the AC of the armor is degraded by 1 point as the stone burns through the metal (leather and cloth are singed, but unaffected; magical armor gets a save to avoid being degraded); second, regardless of armor, the stone explodes when it eventually hits flesh, causing damage based upon the potency of the stones as generated below.

D100	Damage
1-10	3-12
11-20	4-16
21-30	5-20
31-70	6-24
71-80	7-28
81-90	8-32
90-00	9-36

The stones are used up by the impact. It is most common for stones to be discovered as part of a group (5-10 stones), usually in a valuable silk purse. The formula for enchanting these stones is very rare. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-14A, 6-4, 6-61.

Sulla's Battle Axe: An unusual weapon from the Archontean golden age (as they preferred swords), this large double-bladed axe features a maple haft carved with images of legionaries. It is a battle axe +2, +4 versus constructs. In addition, if wielded by a fighter (not a ranger or paladin), it has a small chance of petrifying those whom it hits. If the wielder rolls a natural 20, he/she must then roll a d6: on a roll of 5-6, the axe will petrify the victim (unless, of course, the victim saves vs. petrification). Experience Point Value: 1,400 G. P. Value: 7,000 Location: 8-107.

Sweat of Rimmaq-Isfet: This liquid is a dangerous extrusion from the dread god Rimmaq-Isfet (see new monsters). Although quite dangerous, its form is actually deceptive: it appears to be a clear, slightly viscous liquid. It is possible to mistake it for water, although it is found mostly in locations where its character should rightly be in doubt. The liquid may be safely ingested in small amounts (good and bad effects), but is otherwise caustic to human flesh: if smeared on human flesh or thrown as a grenade-like weapon it inflicts 1-4 HP of caustic damage per flask.

If carefully consumed in small quantities (up to 1 flask), the sweat of Rimmaq-Isfet grants the drinker the ability to breathe in any environment - air, water, gas, void, etc. - for a period of 4-7 turns. It also renders the drinker immune to poisons or irritants that attack the lungs, such as stinking cloud, etc. If consumed in larger quantities, it is toxic and will produce one or more unpleasant and permanent chaotic effects on the consumer:

D10	Chaotic Effect of Overdose
1	Grow grotesque but useless gills
2	Webbing grows between toes (50%) or fingers (50%)
3	Nose flattens and nostrils become slits: vaguely amphibian (-1 to CHA)
4	All hair falls off body permanently
5	Drinker's thighs grow disproportionately large and strong (+10% to prior abilities of jumping, leaping, running), but at a cost of hideousness (-2 to CHA)
6	Tongue grows in length and fungibility (-1 to CHA)

7	Body begins to continuously sweat a viscous and highly noxious yellow-tinged sweat
8	User attracts flies wherever he/she may be; always d20 flies buzzing around body
9	User becomes inimical to birds; small birds avoid him/her, and aggressive birds (rooks, crows, raptors) will buzz and/or attack him/her
10	Roll twice, ignoring further rolls of 10

These chaos effects may only be removed by dispel magic cast by a 12th or higher level spell-caster. Experience Point Value: 300 G. P. Value: 600 Location: 2-48, 3-116, 7-79, 9-40, 9-74, 9-122, 10-8.

Sword of Marius: This weapon appears as a standard, archaic Archontean legionary's gladius: it has a fine steel blade, a grip wrapped in red linen, and a simple wooden sheath. In combat it acts as a short sword +3, luckblade (with 2 wishes remaining). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 6-135.

Sword of Shadows: This short sword +1 drains 1 point of strength from any living creature it hits if the target fails a save against spells. Drained strength is regained at the rate of 1 point per day. In the hands of a black skeleton (see new monsters), this drain is in addition to the skeleton's drain. The blades of these short swords have flaky carbon deposits throughout their length, as if they have survived a strong fire. Experience Point Value: 600 G. P. Value: 3,000 Location: Level 4 random encounters, 7-75.

Syagria's Circlet: This enchanted circlet is worn by the lich Syagria Aitón. It appears like the circlets worn by her minions, that is, as a silver band with moon-shaped front piece to which is bound a large yellow corundum (3,000 gp). The circlet is enchanted and affords the wearer the benefits of comprehend languages, true seeing and ESP. It also allows one to teleport instantly and without error to area 9-56, provided one is within 200' of that location.

Because Syagria was long obsessed with arcanum (see new magic items), she infused it into the circlet. This has led to a side effect: the wearer finds his/her thoughts slowly but surely fixating on arcanum. For 1-4 months this manifests merely as a curiosity and intellectual interest, but after this period there is a cumulative 10% chance per week that the wearer succumbs to the obsession and departs to seek and study arcanum to the exclusion of all else. At this phase, only remove curse will allow the circlet to be removed and the obsession ended. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50,000 Location: 9-55.

Tear of Kauket: These gem-like objects are solidified extrusions of pure chaos, allegedly collected from the Abyss where Kauket (see new monsters) and/or his servitors shed tears of rage or joy at the outcome of the demon lord's inscrutable plans. A tear is generally fist-sized, but can take many forms and colors. Some are absolutely spherical and smooth, others are irregular and rough. Some are the purest white, some are translucent, some are deep red, and others take other colors. Tears are sometimes mounted in settings, but are also found as unique objects. All convey a beneficial effect and a chaotic effect.

D8	Beneficial Effect
1	+1 WIS
2	+1 CHA in general, +3 CHA for chaotic persons/monsters
3	Magic resistance, 5% or 10% (roll to determine)
4	Infravision
5	Climb walls as a thief of same level
6	Ability to swim at 120'
7	+1 STR
8	+10% monetary treasure yield

D10	Chaotic Effect
1	Ears shrink to slits, -1 on listen checks, +10% reaction with reptiles and amphibians
2	Skin slowly transforms into scales; -30% reaction to humans
3	Becomes hairless; all hair on body disappears
4	Grows many green warts on neck and temples
5	Cannot sweat; must pant when hot
6	Attracts amphibians of all sorts whenever conditions permit
7	Mammalian animals fear and loathe person; avoid or attack
8	Skin requires frequent immersion in water; if not done 1/day, -2 CON
9	Hair changes color and consistency; becomes thicker, stringier, and a greenish color
10	Susceptible to cold; -2 CON in conditions below 50 degrees (F); takes +2 damage per die of cold damage

The above beneficial and chaotic effects are examples, not limitations. The GM is particularly welcomed to create new effects for this stuff of pure chaos. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 2-48, 4-127, 5-29, 6-1, 6-159, 7-79, 7-96, 7-139, 8-161, 8-162, 9-40, 10-13, 10-25, 10-37, 10-37, 10-40, 10-47, 10-48, 10-51, SL5-2, SL5-30-32, SL5-35, SL6-4.

Tears of the Twins: Extrusions from the zodiacal twins found in the shrine of Thoth the Astronomer in the Hall of Shrines (SL2-1), the tears appear as small rubies worth 500 gp each. If swallowed, however, they regenerate lost hit points at a rate of 2 hp/round for 2 days (10%), 2 weeks (20%), 2 months (40%), 2 seasons (20%), or 2 years (10%). The regeneration cannot heal wounds caused by acid or fire. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 9-55.

Theodorus's Chair of Great Ease: This useful item takes the form of a miniature, overstuffed armchair. When the command word ('sit' in Archontean) is uttered, the chair grows to a full-size, comfortable leather chair. As a bonus, one can always find 2d6-1 gp under the cushion once per day. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-66, 4-187.

Theodorus's Bed of Convenient Respite: Another of Theodorus's series of miniaturized useful items, this object typically appears as a 3"-long sleigh bed with comfortable bedclothes. When the command word is spoken ('sleep' in Archontean) it transforms into a full sized bed that is as comfortable as it looks. As a bonus, the sheets are always clean each time the bed is used. Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 2-69, 7-122.

Thieves' Mask: This potent item appears as a mask made of supple, face-fitting red leather, which is tied behind the neck with a red linen cord. It can be worn by anyone as a novelty, but only conveys its magic to those with thief abilities. For such, the mask provides a +20% bonus to each thief function (pick pocket, open locks, etc.), limited only by the maximum percentages for a 17th-level thief. In addition, when worn by a thief or bard, the mask itself (but not the thief or bard) turns invisible at a command word.

The mask was one of the legendary possessions of the master thief, Tettius Invisus. Tettius is broadly credited with founding two significant Archontean institutions, the Benevolent Brotherhood and the Drome, more than two thousand years ago. According to popular legend, he was the Oldest Brother, that is, the founder of the empire-wide thieves' guild that still exists to this day. His success was so great, however, that the imperial authorities led a decade-long search to locate him; when they did, they offered him a choice between death and founding an imperial spy agency (known colloquially as the Drome). Whether this legend is accurate in every detail is highly uncertain; some sages believe that the legend conflates at least two and possibly several different persons. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 35,000 Location: 3-41A Class Limit: ABMkT.

Thorstein's Oculae: A pair of mica lenses bound together by some copper wire, these odd devices increase chances of spotting secret doors by one pip (i.e., from 1 in 6 to 2 in 6), but also reduce vision to a 10' range. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-86.

Thothian Teleportation Rings: The priests of Thoth developed a network of stationary teleportation rings, which they used to travel between the various levels of Arden Vul. The rings are composed of a series of 2"-tall paving stones that are arranged in a 6'-diameter ring. Inset into the floor next to every ring is a rectangle 48" long by 8" tall; the rectangle is divided into six interior compartments, each 8" square.

To activate the ring, one must place six colored glass activation squares into the inset according to a sequence that matches the 'address' of the ring to which one wishes to travel; the six activations squares are respectively green, red, yellow, blue, black, and white. The squares are made of an arcanum-enriched glass, and are ½" thick. They are fragile and should be treated as 'mirrors' for the purpose of saving throws.

Once the squares are placed, a brief shimmer of energy is visible over the ring. At this point the user has 1 round to collect the squares and enter the ring, after which anyone in the ring is teleported without error to the address indicated by that sequence of squares. If the glass activation squares are not collected and/or if the travelers do not possess a second set of them, they are likely to be stranded in the location to which they have just teleported. The following table lists the locations within the Halls that feature a teleportation ring, as well as the address of each ring:

Location of Ring	Address of Ring	Locations where Address may be Discovered
AV-27	GR-RE-YE-BL-BK-WH	4-55, 9-107, SL10A-32
AV-29	GR-RE-YE-WH-BK-BL	2-72, 9-107, SL10A-32
1-19	GR-WH-RE-BL-BK-YE	9-107, SL10A-32
2-19	WH-YE-BL-GR-RE-BK	4-55, 9-107, SL10A-32
2-42	WH-YE-BL-RE-BK-GR	9-107, SL10A-32
3-33	YE-BL-GR-RE-BK-WH	9-107, SL10A-32
3-159	YE-BL-GR-WH-BK-RE	3-80, 9-107, SL10A-32
4-122	BK-RE-BL-WH-YE-GR	9-107, SL10A-32
4-171	BK-RE-BL-GR-YE-WH	6-133, 9-107, SL10A-32
5-2	RE-GR-WH-BL-BK-YE	9-107, SL10A-32
5-76	RE-GR-WH-BK-BL-YE	2-72, 9-107, SL10A-32
6-64	BL-GR-BK-YE-WH-RE	9-107, SL10A-32
6-141	BL-GR-BK-WH-RE-YE	2-72, 6-133, 9-107, SL10A-32
7-131	YE-RE-GR-BL-BK-WH	5-78, 9-107, SL10A-32
8-17	RE-BK-BL-GR-YE-WH	4-55, 9-107, SL10A-32
9-98	BL-YE-GR-RE-BK-WH	9-107, SL10A-32
SL2-1	YE-BL-RE-GR-BK-WH	2-72, 9-107, SL10A-32
SL4-49	BK-RE-YE-GR-BL-WH	6-148, 9-107, SL10A-32
SL6-28	RE-BK-YE-BL-GR-WH	3-220, 9-107, SL10A-32
SL7-30	YE-RE-BL-GR-BK-WH	9-107, SL10A-32

Notes: GR=green; RE=red; YE=yellow; BL=blue; BK=black; WH=white.

Few of the modern denizens of the Halls understand how the teleportation rings work. What is more, the sets of colored glass activation squares are scattered throughout the Halls in unusual locations. A few addresses may also be found in the Halls, but without addresses, explorers must experiment in order to find appropriate combinations. It must also be noted that only a few of the written addresses actually describe the location indicated by the address; using such an address for the first time can thus pose risks for the incautious. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: — Location: see above for rings.

Full sets of all glass activation squares may be found at: 2-19, 3-158, 3-162, 5-2, 7-122, SL3-2, SL5-14, SL7-30, and SL10A-32. Individual squares may be found as follows: black: TS-16, 2-29, 3-174, 4-62, 6-4, SL15-16; red: AV (Searching the Ruins - Table 4), 2-14, 3-174, 4-2D (Stall 2: Exotica), 6-9A, SL13-2; blue: AV (Searching the Ruins - Table 4), 3-28, 4-2 (Meral the key-monger), 4-24 (Galadnor's box), 6-19, SL6-15; white: TS-16, 3-8, 3-164A, 4-81, 6-19, SL4-12; yellow: 3-58, 3-71, 4-24 (Galadnor's box), 4-62, 6-140, SL4-3; green: 1-6, 3-58, 3-123, 3-164A, 6-140, SL3-12.

Tooth of Pol: A total of sixteen of these strange items exist. Each is formed from a piece of yellowed ivory, about 6" tall and 4" wide. Each tooth is carved in slightly different ways to reflect the variety of human teeth (incisors, canines, premolars, and molars). Each also has a different arcane glyph tattooed with blue ink on the inside of the tooth, along with the tiny letters "POL." If one fortunate enough to possess a tooth of Pol wears it against his or her skin, the user gains a bonus of +1 to INT; possessing and wearing two teeth of Pol confers +2 to INT, but a third tooth adds no bonus. The teeth, however, do cause subtle alterations to the wearer's personality: they render him/her quarrelsome and prone to sarcastic comments aimed at all and sundry. Beyond these individual powers, the teeth of Pol can also be used to re-activate the personality of Pol at area SL6-8. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-4, 3-123, 4-146, 5-10, 6-19, 7-31, SL6-13, SL6-20, SL7-13, SL12-25.

Torc of Authority: This item comprises a heavy silver torc, roughly 8" wide and 3" thick, that is attached to a heavy silver chain to ensure it stays secure around one's neck. The torc confers a bonus of +20% to reaction rolls and a +1 bonus to CHA. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-168A, 5-17, 6-4.

Torc of Domination: This powerful item allows the wearer to charm up to two persons per day (as the spell charm person). The effect is initiated when the wearer touches the torc and speaks to the subject in a mutually comprehensible language. The duration of the charm is calculated normally according to the victim's intelligence. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-154, 6-85.

Torc of Protection: This torc is made of thick silver, with the words "I guard" incised in gold Mithric letters. It hangs around the neck on a silver chain. The torc acts as a great helm (AC 1 for head) without limiting vision, and confers a +1 bonus to AC and to saving throws, while also providing +3 to AC versus arrows, bolts, and sling stones. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 2-47, 3-116, 9-22.

Treefeller: This fine ash spear is a potent weapon. It carries a +1 bonus against all foes, but is +3 to hit and damage and inflicts 4-24 damage when wielded against giants. Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 4-171.

Trident of Reiv-Tor: A large trident that functions as a +3 weapon, it has also been enchanted via techno-sorcery to allow it to perform the following functions: 1) shoot up to 3 spiny, poisoned darts per round (2-5 damage, save at +2 versus poison or be incapacitated for 1-3 turns; functions like magic missile); 2) summon a water weird 3/day; and 3) freeze water in a 10'-diameter sphere (those within save vs paralyzation or are imprisoned and will suffocate in 2-4 rounds; frozen water can be chipped apart by inflicting 15 hp damage on it). Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 35,000 Location: SL7-23.

Trident of Water Breathing: This trident +2 is formed of black steel. In addition to its combat bonuses, it grants its user the ability to breathe underwater when a command word is uttered. Experience Point Value: 1,250 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-11.

Tripod of Heating: These braziers are often made of bronze, and can be of great use to underground dwellers. They burn continuously without a fuel source and provide warmth and light (without smoke). Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 1-6, 3-158, 4-8B, 4-14, 4-31, 4-62, 4-135, 7-30, 7-38, 7-69, 7-73, 7-76], 7-77, 7-94, 8-1, 8-4, 8-73, 8-116, 9-70, 9-101, 9-107, 10-54, SL6-17A, SL8-21, SL9-27, SL9-68, SL9-77, SL9-78, SL10A-21, SL11-21-23, SL12-25.

Troll Flute: This 36"-long flute is carved from the femur of a giant intelligent troll. Playing any tune on the flute, no matter how simplistic, provides a +1 bonus to all rolls (saves, 'to hit', etc.) made by the player or his/her companions against trolls for as long as the flute is played plus 1-4 rounds afterward. Bards provide the standard +1 bonus when playing the flute, but also impose a -1 penalty to all rolls made by trolls as well.

Visible possession of the flute imposes a -50% reaction penalty to all dealings with the troll thegn and his subjects. Gislu the goblin (4-2) and his followers (SL4-57) are very likely to mistakenly identify this object as the long lost scepter of the goblins (see new magic items). The two are actually quite distinct, but as no one knows what the scepter looks like, the case of mistaken identity will be difficult to disprove. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 3-168.

Troll-Hammer: This rudishva-era weapon is formed of an oak haft and an oval head made of a strange, bluish metal not native to this planet. The kaliyani imbued it with enchantments, such that it functions as a mace +3 normally, but as a mace +6 versus varumani. In addition, the mace does an additional 2-8 HP of fire damage when it successfully hits a varumani or a normal troll. Trolls cannot regenerate damage inflicted by Troll-Hammer. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 4-155.

Trollsbane A bastard sword +2, with a hilt wrapped in black-and-yellow salamander hide, this blade is specially enchanted to affect trolls. Against trolls (including varumani - see new monsters) it is +4. Trolls cannot regenerate damage inflicted by trollsbane. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: AV-35.

Varumani Flensing Knife: This filleting knife is enchanted such that it is +1 versus varumani and trolls, and impedes their ability to regenerate for 4-7 hours. Against others it is a normal, if sharp, kitchen knife. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-72.

Wand of Alarms, Cursed: This wand functions normally as a wand of enemy detection, yet is also infused with a powerful curse: whenever a charge is expended, the user will be surprised by any enemy encountered in the next 1-3 turns (the user is treated as if rolling the worst possible roll for a surprise check). In addition, friends of the wielder within 20' suffer a penalty of 1 pip to surprise rolls for the same duration. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 2-23, SL2-1B.

Wand of Alignment Detection: This rare wand allows the user to detect alignment. It must be pointed at the creature to be examined; when a charge is expended, the wand glows briefly with a color appropriate to the alignment detected (e.g., blood red for chaotic evil, pure white for lawful good, etc.). Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 7,500 Location: 2-12, 4-121.

Wand of Life-Stealing, Cursed: This wand functions as a powerful wand of magic missiles, inflicting 1-8 damage per missile, and releasing one missile per charge (up to 3 per round). The cursed part, however, ensures that the damage to opponents is taken from the wielder. So, the wielder might use two charges against a foe and inflict 2-16 damage on it; but the wielder would be drained of 2-16 damage himself/herself. Furthermore, the wielder refuses to believe that the wand is the cause of his/her injuries, and will look for any and all explanations to justify them, no matter how apparently ludicrous. Finally, the wielder will feel strong compulsion to use the wand in any situation in which he/she thinks it appropriate (save vs wands or use the wand instead of a weapon/spell). Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-148, SL2-1B.

Wand of Shielding: This wand allows the wielder to cast shield (1 charge), minor globe of invulnerability (3 charges), or stoneskin (3 charges). These effects can be cast on any willing recipient. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 3-99 Class Limit: M.

Wand of Spectral Force: This wand is an improved version of the wand of illusion. It allows a user to cast improved phantasmal force for 1 charge, or spectral force for 2 charges. Experience Point Value: 3,500 G. P. Value: 25,000 Location: SL7-34 Class Limit: I.

Was Sticks of Set: These wooden wands possess a curved neck (like a prybar) and a forked tail, such that they resemble Set animals. They take their name from the ancient Mithric word for power (was). The sticks carry both symbolic and practical value to Set Priests. As symbols, they mark the authority of the priestly cast, such that any carrier of a was stick will receive a certain degree of respect (within reason) from cultists, guardsmen and some trained monsters/pets. Practically, their magical enchantments allow the bearer to control the impious.

Was sticks come in three different varieties. Acolytes' sticks are made of ash and can cast hold person 2/day. Deacons' sticks are made of maple and can cast hold person 2/day and silence 15' radius 1/day. Pontifexes' sticks are carved of ebony and can cast hold person 2/day, silence 15' radius 1/day, and cause light wounds 2/day.

A few rare varieties may have other cleric spells cast into them; for example, the Forum Inspectors (4-2) carry a special was stick enchanted to cast detect lie. An uncommon variety manufactured for the Guild of Service (c.f. 4-3 to 4-20) can cast hold person and cause light wounds. Experience Point Value: (acolyte) 1,000; (deacon) 2,000; (pontifex) 3,000 (special) 1,000 (uncommon variety) 2,000 G. P. Value: (acolyte) 10,000; (deacon) 20,000; (pontifex) 30,000 (special) 10,000 (uncommon variety) 20,000 Location: AV-44, 3-89, 3-92, 3-95, 3-106, 3-107, 3-109, 3-111, 3-125, 3-143, 4-2-5, 4-7, 4-23, 4-42, 4-43, 4-49-51, 4-61, 4-65, 4-84, 4-95, 4-123, 4-124, 4-128, 4-170A, 4-173, 5-85, 5-100, 5-101, SL4-23, SL4-40F, SL8-4, SL8-7, SL8-18 Class Limit: C (acolyte, deacon, pontifex)

Watcher Nataraja: These constructs are magically-animated, 4'-tall stone statues of the nataraja, that is, the lord of the dance. The figure balances on one leg, with the other folded across its front. It is hermaphroditic and boasts six arms that swirl in a rough circle around its head; the arms hold important symbols: a knife, a heart, a lily, a miniature eagle, an ascetic's sandal, and an eye. When commanded to do so by its owner, the watcher nataraja hops on one leg after any who enter the area it was set to watch (it has a movement rate of 60'). Its eyes transmit whatever it sees to either the original caster or to one who takes possession of the watcher (by learning a control word).

The watcher nataraja has no attacks; it is AC 0, with magic resistance of 50%, immunity to cold and fire, and 35 hit points. At the moment when/if it is destroyed, it shrieks in a high-pitched, piercing tone that causes confusion in all those who fail to save versus spells. Creation of a watcher nataraja requires 2-4 months of labor, 25,000 gp in supplies, and the casting of the wizard eye spell. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-70, 7-44.

Whip of Persuasion: This ancient crocodile-leather whip was used by Archontean overseers to drive laborers. At base it is +1 to hit and damage. It also has a 20% chance of casting the first level magic user spell, friends, on a successful hit. This whip has a range of 15' and requires 15' to use; it inflicts 2-3/2-4 HP damage (not including magical bonuses). Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL4-8.

Winged Statuette: These entertaining items appear as finely carved statuettes about 3” in length. Form varies, although common iterations include lizards, cats, pigs, and snakes. When the command word (usually inscribed somewhere on the item) is spoken, the statuette springs to life; the statuette will fly lazily around the holder’s head (in a 5’-diameter circle), performing a handful of aerial tricks such as loop-de-loops, barrel rolls, plunges, and so forth. When activated, each statuette brightly sounds (once per round) its own likeness’ signature sound (hiss, meow, grunt, etc.). Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 3-149, 5-16.

Wondrous Flute: Wondrous flutes are enchanted so as to perform a spell effect when the proper melody is played. Up to three distinct effects can be imbued in a flute, although some only have one or two. Most such flutes are named for their creator or owner. The lone wondrous flute in Arden Vul is known as Anders’s Wondrous Flute, after Anders the Dancer, a legendary Thorcin bard. This flute contains two effects: 1) nearly irresistible dance: save vs spells or dance uncontrollably for 1-3 rounds, -4 to AC and fail all saves; 2) entrancement: save vs spells or become entranced by the music. Only sentient, civilized beings can be so entranced. Entranced beings relinquish hostility and become susceptible to suggestion per the spell. If played by a bard, the flute can cure light wounds 1/day per creature. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 6-30.

Zhorak’s Bracelet: This well-crafted bracelet is 6” wide and formed of copper and silver. A pair of copper studs protrude from the bracelet. The item was devised by the great dwarven smith Zhorak (see 8-97) to allow him to control his mining constructs, known as Zhorak’s miners (see new monsters). One stud activates any miner within 20’; the user can ten issue simple commands in Dwarvish (“Dig coal”, “Bring ore to the forge”, etc.) to miners within range. The other stud effectively renders all miners within 20’ inert, causing them to cease activities immediately.

It should be remembered that the miners require rudishva power supplies (see new technological items) to operate. This means that the bracelet is useless if the miners are not charged up. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 8-97.

Zhorak’s Hammer: The legendary dwarven smith, Zhorak, used this smithing hammer to forge some of his most important work. It can be used in melee as a light hammer +3, +5 versus constructs and/or golems. Against constructs, it automatically does double damage on any successful to hit roll. The hammer can also be used as a missile weapon. It then acts as a throwing hammer +3, one that returns instantly to the hand of its owner.

In addition to its combat powers, the hammer proves highly useful in smithing items in Zhorak’s Forge (8-100). The hammer is enchanted to allow it to impart magical effects to items, so long as appropriate amounts of arcenum (see new magic items) are employed in the smithing process. To enchant an item using Zhorak’s hammer requires the following: a competent smith; a supply of arcenum; the hammer; and a week per magical effect. The below table some of the enchantments that the hammer can impart.

The GM may rule that the hammer can enchant other objects; these will need to be detailed separately. Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100,000 Location: 8-97.

Zhorak’s Ring: This beautiful ring is forged of alternating swirls of yellow and white gold, with a large, 2”-diameter shaped piece of jade mounted on it. It was specially crafted to serve as the ‘key’ to the secret door leading to area 8-97 (although objects of a similar shape will also serve the same purpose). In addition, the ring has the following magical powers: 1) protection, as a ring of protection +3; 2) invisibility 3/day; 3) bonus of +2 to STR, up to a maximum of 19. The ring is famous among dwarves, and will cause instant hostility if seen on the fingers of a non-dwarf. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 8-115.

Item Class	Zhorak’s Hammer Magical Effect	Quantity of Arcanum	Time Required
Weapon	Bonus of +1 to +4 to hit/damage	5 lb per plus	1 week per plus
	Detection (any one of the types listed for exceptional magic swords)	10 lb per type of detection	1 week per type
	Double damage on a successful hit roll against a particular class of creature (this is in addition to an additional plus; so a hammer +2, +3 versus goblins would require 20 lb of arcenum , 15 for the three pluses and 5 lb for double damage against the special target)	5 lb per effect (plus a body part from the creature)	2 weeks per effect
Armor	Bonus of +1 to +4 to AC	5 lb per plus	1 week per plus
	Additional effects	5 to 15 lb per effect, at the GM’s ruling depending on the power of the effect	1-3 weeks per effect
Rings	Feather falling	10 lb, plus feathers from a giant eagle	2 weeks
	Fire resistance	10 lb, plus a salamander scale	2 weeks
	Free action	20 lb, plus the ichor of an invisible stalker	4 weeks
	Protection	10 lb per plus	2 weeks per plus
	Shield (see new magic items)	10 lb, plus a tortoise shell	2 weeks
	Spider Climbing (see new magic items)	10 lb, plus a fistful of spider silk	2 weeks

NEW TECHNOLOGICAL ITEMS

Almost all of these devices were created by the rudishva and arrived in Arden Vul with the crash of the Beacon. The age of these devices has rendered them fragile and prone to breakdowns: unless specified otherwise, there is a 10% per use that the device fails permanently. Items that are not subject to this decrepitude are described as non-fragile in their descriptions.

Anti-Venom Kit: A 1'-long cylinder of yellow plasteel covered with Rudishva glyphs, this useful device neutralizes any poison when it is placed against flesh and the injector button is pressed. A kit held originally 4 charges, so those found in Arden Vul will have 1-4 charges remaining. There is a small (10%) chance that the anti-venom has decayed and no longer functions. Experience Point Value: 400 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-118, SL12-15, SL14-5.

Aquafactor: A bulky and sensitive device for producing water out of the humidity in normal air, the aquafactor appears as a set of copper piping 15' square attached to a plasteel cylinder (3'x2'). Holes in the tubing allow moisture to condense and drip into a catchment device below. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-121, SL10A-20 (non-functional).

Ballistic Baton: A 40"-long rod of hardened plasteel, this non-fragile, collapsible baton is used for non-lethal crowd control. It functions as a hammer (2-5/1-4) with an encumbrance of 2. It is usable by any class. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 200 Location: 5-74, 5-118, 7-18, 7-26, 9-93.

Battle Helmet: Constructed of plasteel, with a translucent faceplate, this device offers AC 0 to the head without vision limitations. It also provides infravision (120') and immunity to gas. It is usable by any class. Battle helmets are non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 1,500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-137, 7-18, 7-30, 8-67, SL10A-20, SL10A-33, SL14-5.

Biohazard Suit: This item appears as a bulky, florescent green, full-body suit with a hood and soft plastic face plate. It takes 3 rounds to don and provides full immunity from biological agents, including disease, spores, molds, and slimes. By masking the wearer's pheromones and scent, it also renders the wearer invisible to insects, both mundane and giant (if the wearer attacks such insects, they respond, albeit with a -2 penalty to hit). The suit is sized for rudishva, although humans and elves (but not dwarves or halflings) can wear it and it can be worn over padded, leather, and chain armor, but not bulkier types (scale, banded, plate). It is bulky, however, and inhibits vision, causing the wearer to move at a lower rate (90'). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 5-131, SL9-45, SL10A-20, SL12-15.

Biometric Protection Cards: These non-fragile plasteel cards provide protection from automated weapons systems such as point defense arrays and battle robots. They identify the holder as a friend, allowing him/her to pass such systems without initiating a hostile response. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 200 Location: SL9-34, SL9-44, SL10A-20.

Blasting Rod, Kaliyani: These rods are made of dull black metal and are about 18" long. Each end is partially hollow (the indentation is about 2" long on each end). A small black stud is found at one end. One operates the rod by holding it with the stud-end in one's hand; thumbing the stud causes a beam of plasma energy to burst forth and strike an opponent or object.

If used in combat, one must roll to hit an opponent (with a bonus of +1). The plasma beam explodes on contact, inflicting 6-24 damage on living targets and incurring a chance to disintegrate a portion of the target on an unmodified to-hit roll of 19 or 20, provided such a result hits the target. Roll d8 to determine what is gone: 1-4: armor plus 1-2 other objects (if no armor, reroll ignoring results of 1-4); 5-6: main weapon plus 1-6 other objects; 7: extremity (leg or arm); 8: torso.

An extremity that has been disintegrated can only be recovered via regeneration or limited wish or other such powerful, reality-altering magic. The disintegration of the torso means death with no chance of resurrection. Originally these devices were used for mining purposes, but the kaliyani adapted them to combat. Each rod initially had 100 uses, but most now have only 4-16. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-51A, 5-125, 6-33, 7-76C, 9-118, SL9-27A, SL9-65, SL9-71, SL9-73, SL9-77, SL10A-20.

Breast-Plate, Plasteel: This simple piece of orange plasteel armor provides AC 6 with an encumbrance of 10 lb. It can be worn by any class. It is non-fragile, non-bulky, with a base movement of 120', and is treated as leather armor for thieving abilities. Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 5-118, 5-134, 5-134.

Breather: This oval item is about 10"x4" in size and made of a soft, gel-like substance that adheres to flesh. When placed over one's nose and mouth, it filters all contaminants; this means the wearer is immune to harmful effects from smoke, gas, stench, air-borne

New Materials Saving Throws

Material	Acid	Blow, Crushing	Blow, Normal	Cold, Magical	Disintegrate	Electric Shock	Fall (5 ft.)	Fire-ball	Fire, Magical	Fire, Normal	Lightning
Plasgel	4	10	6	10	20	10	1	18	15	10	15
Plasteel	7	3	1	1	15	1	1	3	1	1	1
Plastic	10	4	2	6	20	5	1	15	10	5	15

TECHNOLOGICAL ITEM FAILURE FLOWCHART

ROLL D12

Modifiers:

16+ INT: +1

16+ WIS: +1

<10 INT: -1

<10 WIS: -1

Item Used Before*: +1 per successful use

Has Watched Military Instruction Manual: +4 (only rudishva weapons)

Has Read Rudishva Devices: +3 (all rudishva items)

*After 3 uses, item is always used without error

poisons, and spores. Breathers were customizable when initially purchased, and thus there is a 25% chance that any surviving breather has been customized to resemble a strange bug or flying animal from the rudishva homeworld. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-108, 5-137, 6-30, 6-39, 8-120, 8-124, 8-125, 8-157, 8-167, SL6-55.

Command Bracelet: A rarer version of the communication bracelet (q.v.), this non-fragile device made of red plasteel is also worn on the wrist. It allows the wearer to use all the functions of a communication bracelet, but also allows him/her to issue binding commands in Rudishva to any technological device capable of receiving commands; such devices include rudishva security constructs and rudishva battle robots (see new monsters for both), as well portable medical units, point defense arrays, and all devices from the Nutri-Vore, GnuCoder, CRUD-Ore, and CompositScan companies (see new technological items for all).

In the case of security constructs and robots, the wearer can direct them from a distance of 100' through voice-activated commands (including combat); he/she will also be able to over-ride any previously-programmed defense protocols. In the case of the mechanical devices, the wearer can operate them remotely from a distance of 100'. Unlike communication bracelets, command bracelets have unlimited charges. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: 6-85, 9-95, SL10A-32.

Command Tablet: This non-fragile device appears as a 12"x9" oval of plasteel, with two LED screens, a series of buttons with Rudishva glyphs and a pair of joysticks. While it has no use as an object on its own, it is essential to the operation of starships such as the Beacon. Two were present on each starship (for the sake of redundancy), in the possession of the Captain and the First Officer.

A command tablet fits snugly into an indentation on either armrest of the captain's seat on the bridge of the Beacon (area SL14-10A). Once installed, it allows the operator to activate all advanced operations of the communications, security, and astro-gation stations (see areas SL14-10C, SL14-10D, and SL14-10E for specific functions activated by a command tablet). In addition to these functions, a tablet can, when it is installed in the captain's seat, issue binding commands to any of the Beacon's artificial intelligences; the two surviving AIs are RAJ-750 (6-27) and AKL-600 (SL14-13). While the latter obeys any command from the Bridge, RAJ-750 has a 20% chance of ignoring a command due to its insanity.

The Archonteans discovered one of these devices (the tablet at 9-107), and came to refer to it as the tablet of the Beacon (q.v.). Although they made use of it in area SL14-10, they never were able to fully master the device. Experience Point Value: 1,000 Gold Piece Value: 5,000 Location: 9-94, 9-107.

Communication Bracelet: These bands are worn on the wrist and can either decipher speech in any language, or communicate to another bracelet within 25 miles. Each function drains one charge per cumulative hour of use. Each bracelet currently has 6+d6 charges remaining. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 6-117, SL2-4, SL6-55, SL7-13, SL7-20, SL12-15.

CompositScan 3000 Mineral Detector: Appearing as a 2'-long cylinder with smoked glassteel ends and yellow-and-blue plasteel bodies, these devices can be programmed to locate a particular inorganic element within 75'. One must first insert a lesser power supply (see new technological items), manipulate a series of buttons and slides, and then point the device in the desired direction. If the desired mineral or element is within range, a lemon-yellow LED lights up and blinks with increasing rapidity as one approaches the source of the mineral. One charge is expended from the lesser power supply for every turn in use. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL9-41.

CRUD-Ore 7500 Ore Processor: A standard item on all inter-planetary exploration vessels, the CRUD-Ore series of processors is non-fragile and designed to take sample of local ore samples and separate them into their core elements. The 7500 model is shaped like a conical beehive, some 13' in diameter at the base and 6' tall. It works as follows. Raw ore is deposited in a 4'-square drawer on one side of the processor; the operator turns a dial 90-degrees, and the machine works for about a turn. The component elements are deposited through six chutes on the opposite side of the device. The processor is powered by a greater rudishva power supply. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 15,000 Location: 9-26.

Cryogenic Chamber: This non-fragile, coffin-like object is about 8' long and 4' tall. It is made of grey plasteel, with an opaque plasteel lid. So long as it is powered, it will cryogenically 'freeze' anyone who is placed inside the chamber; while frozen, one's life is preserved in the state in which one entered the chamber. A dial on the lid allows the user to set a desired time limit for freezing; this limit can range from hours to decades. Although intended to be used to prevent critically wounded members of away teams from expiring, it also works to prevent aging; after the collapse of the rudishva hegemony, the three cryogenic chambers were primarily employed to extend the lives of the few rudishva survivors. The location of only one of the original three is known. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: SL6-17A.

Dart Thrower: These rudishva hand-held devices resemble slightly oversized handguns. They fire darts of various types (see below) that come in special 10-dart clips that take a round to reload. Rate of fire for this non-fragile weapon is 3 darts/round. Without specialized training (acquiring a proficiency) it is difficult to reload a clip (3 rounds), and the rate of fire is 1 every round. Unless otherwise indicated in the text, clips found in Arden Vul are assumed to be full (i.e., with 10 darts).

Darts, Ordinary: Darts cause 2-7/1-6 damage per dart; 1% cumulative chance per use that the dart becomes inoperable.

Darts, Explosive: Darts tipped with small explosive warheads; these do 2-12 damage to the target and have a chance to inflict 1-4 HP on all those within 10' (save vs breath weapons for no damage). Explosive darts are expended after each use. There is a 20% chance per dart that the explosives have failed due to age; if this is the case, the dart does 1-3 damage.

Darts, Immobilizing: Hollow darts that inject a chemical compound into a victim on a hit. The darts do 1-4 HP damage but require the victim to save vs paralyzation at -3 or else be unable to move for 7-12 rounds. There is a 33% chance that the chemical compound has decayed. If so, the altered compound either has no effect (50%) or acts as a lethal poison (50%).

Darts, Narcotic Gas: Darts tipped with a small canister of narcotic gas. The target gets a save versus paralysis or is knocked unconscious for 4-7 rounds; those within a 10' radius must also save (at +4) or suffer the same fate. Due to the age of these devices, there is a 50% chance that the gas has become inert; in such cases, the dart inflicts 1 HP of damage.

The niravairi version of the dart thrower is cosmetically different, but works in an identical fashion, using identical ammunition. Both types of dart throwers are non-fragile, and both have the range of a short bow (50/100/150). Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-108, 5-111, 5-118, 5-137, 6-27, 7-7, 7-17, 8-67, SL1-11, SL10A-33, SL14-5.

Data Crystals: These 2"-long, 3/4"-diameter rods of crystal are marked with a glyph on one end; they are usually stored in special grey plasteel cylindrical containers marked with the same glyph. Data crystals are non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 250 Location: 5-95A, 5-98, 5-111, 6-85, 6-117, 7-25, 7-67, 7-108, 7-143, 9-90, 9-93, 9-94, SL9-47, SL8-48, SL9-52, SL10A-23, SL12-28, SL13-37, SL13-37B.

Dehydrated Rations: A packet of dehydrated rations provides enough nutrition for one day, provided it is mixed with a pint of water. While both rudishva and niravairi possess such packets, the rudishva used up all of theirs prior to their demise within Arden Vul; the only such items are currently found with niravairi. Each packet weights 1/4 lb. Experience Point Value: 10 G.P. Value: 100 Location: 9-48, SL1-11.

Defense Array, Personal: The pinnacle of rudishva defense technology, the personal defense array improves upon the personal force shield (q.v.). It works like the personal force shield with the following additional powers: 1) unlike the force shield, it provides 360-degree defense to the wielder in a thin shell 2" from the wielder's body; 2) it defends against all attack forms, not just lasers or missiles (i.e., it deflects damage from natural and non-technological weapons). A single charge from a lesser power supply absorbs 60 HP of potential damage. A personal defense array is non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G.P. Value: 55,000 Location: 5-118, 7-27, SL10A-33, SL14-3.

Diplomat's Voice: A non-fragile niravairi device, worn as a collar over the vocal chords, this device serves to translate the wearer's speech into almost all known languages. It also presents the wearer's voice in a mellifluous, convincing manner, thus acting as a friends spell. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 45,000 Location: 9-48, SL1-11.

Dust Ionizer: A disk, some 18" in diameter and 3" tall, made out of yellow plasteel with a red power light on its top. It has track balls on its underside, allowing it to roll about fulfilling its cleaning mission. It ionizes cleanly and safely all dust and dirt that it encounters (but it cannot dispose of large items, like corpses). The ionizer is powered by the dust it removes, a fact which means it does not need power supplies for operation. It is non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 8-106, 9-93A.

Fire Extinguisher: This device appears as a set of six narrow cylinders of plasteel (2' tall and 3" in diameter) welded together, with a double-headed nozzle and spray system attached to the top. It has six charges (one per cylinder). One charge will extinguish 30 square feet of fire, or will inflict 4-24 damage to fire-based creatures (fire elementals, salamanders, etc.). Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 5-131, 8-157, SL4-30, SL7-24, SL12-15, SL14-3.

Force Shield, Personal: This potent non-fragile device was a recent innovation by rudishva scientists at the time of the Beacon's voyage. As a result, only a few were available to the crew. The device is belt-worn, and powered by a lesser power supply. It projects a 7'-tall by 4'-wide rectangle of buzzing energy 3' in front of the wielder. The shield neutralizes laser fire and physical missiles; each charge from a lesser power supply absorbs 50 points of damage from such devices. A personal force shield is non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 3,000 X G.P. Value: 35,000 Location: 5-118, 8-157.

GnuCoder 1000 Image Screen: The most basic entry in the GnuCoder line, this device allows the simple playback of data crystals on a 3"x5" screen. The device is made of black plasteel with a crystalline display; holes for a lesser power supply and a data crystal are found in one edge. The GnuCoder 1000 boasts no recording or image-manipulation capabilities. It is powered by a lesser power supply. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 2,500 Location: AV-searching, 7-143, 9-90, 9-95, SL12-15, SL12-28.

GnuCoder 3000 Data Recorder: This portable entry in the GnuCoder line appears as an egg-shaped piece of black plasteel some 3' in height; telescoping legs emerge from holes in the base to form a tripod up to 5' tall. The front has a sophisticated camera capable of capturing (or projecting) holographic images; the rear has a set of buttons and pads that allow a knowledgeable user to record, modify, and edit holographic recordings. The controls also allow one to project a holographic image from a pre-recorded data-crystal; the image appears 4' from the projector. The device is powered by a lesser power supply. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G.P. Value: 10,000 Location: 6-117, 7-67, 9-94, SL6-55, SL10A-20, SL13-37.

GnuCoder 5000 Full-Immersion Sensory Experience: The king of the GnuCoder line, this immobile, non-fragile device appears as a hooded, desktop unit about 4' square. Once users place their heads into the hood, they can enjoy a full immersion virtual reality experience with pre-recorded data crystals. The viewer can move about (virtually) within the scenes, thus allowing him/her to experience the recording from multiple perspectives. Although impressive, the device does not allow the viewer to actively interact with the recording. Slots for data crystals are located on the front of the unit, as are several control buttons and pads. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G.P. Value: 25,000 Location: 5-74, 5-97, SL10A-23, SL13-37.

Gothic Armor: All of the Sun-Scarred Knights (see new monsters) possess suits of non-fragile plate armor fashioned out of a strange black substance that is as hard as steel but as light as cloth. The armor varies in form, but commonly features elaborate gold- or silver-chasings worked into the arm and leg pieces and decorative extrusions on the shoulders and helmet (like Polish winged hussar armor). All suits show the symbol of the Order, a setting (or rising?) sun, on the breast plate.

The armor is highly effective, granting a base AC of -2. It also provides a 33% reduction of damage taken from fire, cold, and electricity. Each helm is customized by its wearer, usually with an exotic creature, animal, or symbol atop the helm proper; the helmets provide immunity to gas (and bliss pollen – see Level 8). Suits grant fast recovery of wounds, that is, they foster regeneration of 2 pts/round. This only continues as long as the knight is alive and it does not regrow lost limbs. A few suits are reputed to crackle with their own electricity, acting as shocking grasp spells (10th-level, 11-18 damage) to those who touch them. Gothic armor is considered a non-bulky armor for purposes of movement.

Suits of gothic armor were once a rare type of rudishva powered armor that were highly modified by Master Malachite and his original band of paramilitary friends. As a result, although they don't 'look' like technology, they are in fact technological. Part of Master Malachite's genius was converting the powered armor to run on neutrinos, effectively powering them forever. Gothic armor only weighs 5 lb, and may be worn by any class. Experience Point Value: 9,000 G.P. Value: 90,000 Location: on Sun-Scarred Knights, and 10-53.

Grav Disk: This device was designed for use in extra-vehicular exploration of difficult environments. It appears as a black plasteel disk about 3' in diameter. When charged with a lesser power supply, it manipulates gravitational forces to allow a user to levitate upwards (and downwards) and to move forward and backwards. In essence it is a floating disk that can move in any direction. The user controls the grav disk by tapping his/her feet on designated areas of the disk; learning to use the disk thus requires a fair amount of dexterity (minimum DEX 12) and practice. A lesser power supply provides four hours of use. Experience Point Value: 2,500 G.P. Value: 20,000 Location: 7-31, SL1-8.

Grenades: Rudishva grenades appear as 2"-diameter, 8"-tall cylinders of grey plasteel. The type of grenade is indicated by a glyph found on the outside of the canister.

Fragmentation: These grenades explode for 4-24 damage to all within a 30' radius. Those who save vs breath weapons only take half damage.

Gas: A small explosion disperses an irritant gas within a 50' radius. The gas causes blindness for 1-3 turns to all those who fail a save versus breath weapons; if the save is made, blindness is avoided, but combat penalties of -1 to hit and damage still apply.

Stun: These concussion devices stun all those who fail a save versus breath weapons for 4-7 rounds.

Twisting the ends of the cylinder in opposite directions activates a grenade. They explode 1 segment after activation. Grenades have a range of 10 ft. per point of Strength and weigh 2 lb. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 2,000 Location: 5-118, 6-27, 7-27, 8-157, SL10A-33, SL14-5.

Herbicide Dispenser: This device is a plasteel cylinder with a flexible plastic hose and trigger nozzle attached to one end. One fills the cylinder with herbicide, and then uses the nozzle and hose to spray the herbicide at desired targets. The one remaining intact and filled dispenser is found in 6-4. It can be used against normal plants, killing them in 1-2 rounds. It can also be used successfully against plant-based monsters (e.g. shambling mounds, assassin vines, etc.), slimes, puddings, and oozes: each discharge does 3-18 HP damage to such creatures. A cylinder holds 30 applications. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 10,000 Location: 6-4.

Hover Sled: These non-fragile practical items allow a small team to fly through the air atop a mobile platform. The sled takes the form of a 10'x6' oval. The front of the sled is protected by the equivalent of a permanent personal force shield (q.v.); the shield is 7' tall and wraps around the front third of the sled. The sled is operated by a floor-mounted set of pedals and levers, and is powered by a greater power supply. The sled can move easily in three dimensions at a speed of 90', and with maneuverability class A. In addition to the operator, three other medium-sized bipeds can ride on a sled (in fact, the rudishva used them as mobile fighting platforms). Experience Point Value: 8,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: 6-4, 6-100, 7-36, SL10A-20, SL13-37.

Hyperbaric Chamber: These non-fragile devices appear to the technologically illiterate as sarcophagi: orange plasteel sides and bottom, with a clear plasteel top. An access panel on the bottom allows the insertion of a greater power supply (q.v.) which provides power to the device. These were originally used for the usual medical reasons by the crew of the Beacon, but the two chambers that survived the crash were repurposed by Psalor-Ki (5-74) and Artax-Ris (3-39) to create giant rudishva and/or varumani skeletons. The one in area 3-39 creates intelligent giant skeletons, whereas the one in area 5-74 creates semi-intelligent ones. Experience Point Value: 10,000 G.P. Value: 60,000 Location: 3-39, 5-74.

Industrial Tools: This entry covers several types of non-fragile, hand-held tools used in construction. These include a soldering iron, an industrial stapler, a portable cutting tool, and a lesser welding tool. Each tool is powered by a lesser power supply. Each could be used as a weapon: the soldering iron might inflict 1-2 damage; the stapler 1-2 damage (with a range of 10'); the cutting tool 1-6 damage; and the welder 1-3 damage. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: SL12-28.

Instant Heat Sources: Each instant heat source is a 3"-long stick of flexible purple plasgel filled with a viscous green compound. Bending the stick 90 degrees causes a chemical reaction that produces a heat of great intensity (without melting the plasgel). One stick produces sufficient heat to boil 5 gallons of water in 1-2 rounds, or to heat a 20'-square chamber for an hour. Other uses may be devised by the GM. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-71, SL12-15.

Jet Ski: Made of a super-light plasteel alloy, this non-fragile vehicle resembles a snowmobile: it has a main body with a seat and steering joystick, two 5'-long, fixed skis attached to the center and rear of the body, and two 3'-long maneuverable skis at the front. It is powered by a greater power supply, which creates nine jets of super-pressured air, allowing the jet ski to skim across the surface of any liquid or semi-liquid surface with a maximum speed of 360'; effective use is something like 9,000 hours before the power supply must be replaced. It is designed for one person, but a second could be supported if he/she clutched the driver closely. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G.P. Value: 35,000 Location: SL13-37.

Laser Deflector Shield: This opaque plasteel shield is 5' tall and 2' wide. It provides a -2 bonus to AC versus all attacks. So long as it is powered, it also has a 50% chance to attract and deflect (i.e., neutralize) laser damage. Not only does it neutralize damage directed at the holder, it will also attract laser fire directed anywhere within 20' of the user. The shield is powered by a lesser power supply, each charge of which provides sufficient energy to neutralize 25 hit points of laser damage. Laser deflector shields are non-fragile, non-bulky, and weigh 5 lb Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-118, 7-31, 8-67, SL14-3.

Laser Pistol: The rudishva version of this standard galactic weapon has a scissors-like grip; the user fires shots by squeezing the two plasteel portions of the grip together. A casing for the lesser power supply that activates the pistol is located under the barrel. Above the handle is a laser-dot sight. The pistol fires twice per round, with each strike doing 3-12 HP of damage; each lesser power supply provides sufficient power for 240 shots. The niravairi version has a standard pistol-grip and a more bulbous barrel; it does 2-12 HP damage per shot. Range increments for pistols: S = 40 ft. M = 80 ft. L = 120 ft.. Both varieties are non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 3,000 G.P. Value: 30,000 Location: 4-138B, 5-74, 5-95, 5-111, 5-118, 6-27, 6-85, 6-122, 7-7, 7-31, 9-95, SL1-11, SL2-4, SL6-55, SL7-24, SL9-44, SL10A-33, SL14-5.

Laser Rifle: Standard galactic laser rifles contain a pair of lesser power supply casings mounted horizontally on either side of the barrel. The stock is feather-light plasteel, and most versions have a red-dot sight. The rudishva version fires one shot per round for 4-24 hp damage; the niravairi version has the same rate of fire, and does 3-24 Hp damage per shot. Each lesser power supply provides energy sufficient for 60 shots. Range increments for laser rifles: S= 60 ft. M=120 ft. L=240 ft. The rudishva also made a sniper variant of their standard laser rifle: it has double the normal range and does 5-30 HP damage per hit, but expends two charges from a power supply per shot. All varieties are non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: 5-108, 5-118, 5-137, 6-27, 6-85, 6-100, 6-113, 6-122, 7-31, SL1-11, SL2-4, SL9-58, SL10A-33, SL14-3, SL14-5.

Light Globe: Pear-shaped globes about 18" tall, these devices are made of a hard, crystalline substance filled with a mixture of gases. The interaction of the gas with the crystalline shell causes the globes to continuously emit light and heat, enough to both light rooms and provide the raw materials for photosynthesis. One end of the globe has a threaded hole, allowing the globes to be screwed onto metallic or plasteel rods. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 2,000 Location: 6-64, 6-85, 7-4, 7-13, 7-31-33, 7-51, 7-68, 7-75, SL10A-32, SL10A-33.

Medicaderm: Medicaderm was a recent and highly significant advance in rudishva biotechnology. It appears as a spongy, pellucid, semi-rigid gel-like substance, and requires constant temperature and electronic power (via power supplies or nuclear cores). Medicaderm is only found in medical facilities (such as area SL12-11), where it is fixed in a large hemisphere about 7' in radius; it forms a protective shield around a subject placed within it. The consistency of medicaderm allows a medical professional to mold it to a patient's body without compromising the sterile environment within. In addition, the qualities of med-icaderm can be altered on a molecular level to allow objects to pass through the gel; in this way, patients can be placed within or taken out of the shielding gel.

In practical terms, medicaderm offers four major abilities: 1) it can diagnose any disease or ailment, so long as it is connected to a medical console; 2) it can deliver narcotic pain relief to subjects; 3) it can deliver drugs and medicines to subjects; the operator injects the appropriate drugs into a drip tube attached to the medicaderm, and then molds the gel to touch the subject's flesh; and 4) it can heal all wounds, injuries, and disease in a matter of hours or days (depending on the severity of the injury). Medicaderm is not portable, as it must be connected to an appropriate console and power supply. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G.P. Value: 60,000 Location: SL12-11.

Mines: The crew of the Beacon possessed two types of mines, structural and anti-personnel. They had far more of the first, which they used for scientific and explorative purposes. Still, the arms lockers of the beacon held at least two dozen anti-personnel mines.

Structural mines are pyramidal, with a 1'-square base; the base contains an adhesive patch that allows it to be affixed to rock, metal or wood. These mines do 5-60 points of structural damage against wood and soft stone, and 5-30 points of structural damage against earth and hard stone. They can be altered to provide either broad, area-effect damage in a 30' radius, or a shaped charge capable of punching a 5' hole through 20' of rock. Unfortunate living beings caught in the blast of a structural mine take 6-36 HP damage (saves do not apply).

Anti-personnel mines appear as hexagonal pices of grey plasteel with 6"-long sides. The mines have proximity sensors; motion within 15' causes the mine to detonate, inflicting 5-40 HP damage to those within 30' and 3-18 HP to those between 30' and 45' from the mine. With some practice, these mines could be thrown as grenades, albeit with a -2 penalty to hit given the awkwardness of their shape. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-95A, 5-118, 9-90 (Structural); 5-118, SL13-36 (anti-personnel).

Mobile Stone Cutter: This tracked automated mining machine boasts a conical-shaped, diamond cutter-head about 4' long and 3' in diameter at its base. The stone cutter is powered by a greater power supply. It can operate in one of two modes: 1) pulverization, in which rock is ground into a micro-fine dust; 2) rock cutting, by which the head delicately cuts shaped pieces of rock from the mine face (for use elsewhere, say as sheathing). A full power supply allows 5,000 hours of rock cutting. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 20,000 Location: 6-96, 8-157.

Molecular Analyzer, Niravairi: These tablet-sized devices project a turquoise beam that analyzes the composition and nature of any organic or metallic object. The readout screen provides full details, albeit in niravairi glyphs. Molecular analyzers are non-fragile, and have fixed power supplies allowing for two years of use before powering down. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 10,000 Location: 9-48.

Neuroderm: This yellow, gel-like substance has two fixed properties: 1) it is the material that allows cryogenic stasis; 2) it is the material from which living bioforms can be created anew (see 5-131) or mutated (see SL7-23). Neuroderm is alive, but not sentient. It is non-fragile and can also replenish itself, although its rate of growth is controlled by the temperature of its environment. It is recommended that the GM develop additional properties beyond the two above. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-131, SL2-2, SL2-2A, SL7-23.

Nutri-vore 2000: This non-fragile workhouse unit of the ubiquitous Nutri-vore Corporation is about 3'x4'x2' in size, and produces 6"-diameter, 1"-thick 'cakes' of highly nutritious, if slightly unappetizing, protein and carbohydrate matter. A variety of buttons allow the consumer to select various flavors, most of which are almost indistinguishable from one another. One such cake will feed a medium-sized being for a day. If kept dry, the cakes last for a very long time. For this reason they are known as Arden Vul Cakes (see Arden Vul Items), and can be sold to adventurers for 15 gp per cake. The unit is powered by lesser power supplies; one such power supply can produce 500 cakes. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-106, 7-16, 7-31, SL10A-20, SL14-3.

Nutri-vore 2500: This device is identical to the 2000 model in all respects except that it adds a rudishva aquavit dispenser. Using the aquavit function takes one charge from a lesser power supply. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 15,000 Location: SL9-46, SL10A-21, SL12-25, SL14-13.

Pep Pills: If ingested, a pep pill acts as a haste spell for 1 turn; after the turn, the user is at one quarter movement for 1-4 hours. Experience Point Value: 200 G.P. Value: 500 Location: 5-95A.

Personal Shield, Niravairi: Appearing as a scarab-shaped object attached to niravairi web belts, this non-fragile device projects a force shield that provides AC 2. The shield also absorbs (i.e., nullifies) 25 HP of physical or laser damage; once that limit is reached, it provides AC 4. The absorption function cannot be repaired once exhausted, although if the limit is not reached, the shield will repair itself after 3 turns. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: 9-48, SL1-11.

Point Defense Array: These titanium-alloy turrets stand at the pinnacle of galactic defensive systems. Each non-fragile array has a rotating set of barrels that shave projectiles the size of a sand grain from a dense block of metal contained within the weapon's body and hurl them outward in a 270-degree arc. The array can modify its vertical firing paths as well (120 degrees of movement). Arrays are fitted with advanced sensors, allowing them to detect movement within 90°, and to discern broad categories of potential foes (so that they do not attack flies or small spiders, for instance).

An array attacks as a 10th-level fighter, doing 6-36 damage per round. It is also quite tough: SZ S; AC -2, HP 50, immune to fire and cold. In addition, the arrays project a 3'x5' personal force shield (q.v.) between the barrel and the rest of the unit; this shield absorbs 50 HP of laser or physical projectiles before collapsing.

A point defense array can be programmed to follow up to six simultaneous tactical protocols, each with a sophisticated range of conditions (i.e., 'fire on motion', 'wait 60 seconds to see if an identity card is displayed before firing', etc.). Arrays can also be controlled manually, either from a fixed-location console (e.g. 9-89) or from a portable controller (q.v.).

Point defense arrays are powered by internal power supplies analogous to a greater power supply; effectively their power and ammunition are inexhaustible. Experience Point Value: 7,000 G.P. Value: 70,000 Location: 5-95A, 6-27, 6-39E, 7-76K, 9-88, SL10A-20.

Point Defense Controller, Portable: This non-fragile device is about 4' long, 3' tall, and 2' deep, and is powered by a rudishva greater power supply. It requires an operator's key-card to activate. The controller has a single screen divided into four sub-screens, plus four switches, two dials, and four joysticks. The screens are connected wirelessly to cameras on the point defense arrays; currently that means they reveal most of the area in a 30-degree arc and 75' in front of each array. While the arrays are fully automated, and can be used as such in several modes (motion-sensitive, sweep, arc-control, etc.), the joysticks allow manual control as well. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-95A, 7-11, SL10A-20.

Portable Medical Unit: This non-fragile egg-shaped device is about 6' tall, 3.5' wide, and made of white plasteel. A 3'x 3' hatch allows access to the interior. To operate it, one crawls inside, sits on the featureless bench, and presses a black button. The egg seals itself for 2-4 hours (depending on the severity of the injuries to be healed) and, when the time has elapsed, the operator is cured of all disease, injury (HP), and aging (1-20 years per use). It is powered by a greater rudishva power supply. Experience Point Value: 10,000 G.P. Value: 100,000 Location: 6-85, SL10A-20, SL10A-32.

Power Supply, Greater: These non-fragile devices take the form of 3'-long cylinders of white plasteel, on which a flat panel with glowing Rudishva glyphs reveal the % charge remaining in the device. These devices serve as exceptionally powerful 'batteries', and can be attached to rudishva devices via a small plasteel-coated cord that links one end of the cylinder to a 1"-diameter, disk-shaped interface (so that it can be used in the same manner as lesser power supplies). If used to power a device, they last for 100-400 years.

It is 85% likely that any greater power supply found randomly in Arden Vul will be completely depleted of power. Even those that still retain a charge are typically badly depleted, and their utility should be measured in hours rather than centuries; those with a charge have 1-100 hours remaining. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G.P. Value: 50,000 Location: 3-38, 7-11, 9-22, 9-89, SL6-17A, SL12-28, SL14-5.

Power Supply, Lesser: As a more efficient way of powering their devices, the rudishva extensively used these non-fragile, disc-shaped, 1"-diameter, orange-colored 'batteries'. Each had a limited duration, best expressed in game terms as allowing 24 uses (or charges) when at maximum capacity. When found in Arden Vul, there is a flat 75% chance the power supply is empty; those with a charge have 2-24 remaining. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: AV-searching, 4-24, 4-138B, 5-74, 5-108, 5-118, 6-27, 6-114, 6-122, 7-7, 7-27, 7-96, 7-108, 7-143, 8-67, 8-143, 8-146, SL5-2, SL5-28, SL6-70, SL9-44, SL10A-7.

Power Supply Charger: This non-fragile device allows one to re-charge depleted lesser power supplies. It appears as a cylinder about 4' long. To use it, one inserts empty lesser power supplies into the four slots lining the long side and hits the 'charge' button. It takes 8 hours to recharge a lesser power supply. The charger is itself powered by a greater power supply with 112 years of charge remaining. Experience Point Value: 10,000 G.P. Value: 100,000 Location: SL12-28.

Rebreather, Niravairi: This non-fragile mask covers the niravairi mouth and olfactory slits; given the location of the latter, it resembles a surgical mask that wraps nearly entirely around the lower portion of a niravairi head. The rebreather allows the wearer to breathe in even the slightest of atmospheres (although not in deep space); more practically, it allows the wearer to ignore the effects of gas, smoke, stenches, and airborne poisons. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 20,000 Location: 9-48.

Repli-cube: This device appears as a 3”-square cube with a button on one face and a slot for a lesser power supply. If one presses the button, the cube will record video and audio on each face until the button is pushed again. One charge from a power supply will permit recording for up to 1 hour, or playback for 1 hour. Playback begins immediately, unless the power supply is removed; if the power supply is reinserted, the repli-cube automatically begins playback of whatever had been recorded on it. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 6-121, 6-122, 8-143.

Rocket Launcher, Portable Recoiless: These rare devices are exceptionally deadly. Comprised of a plasteel tube, with pistol grip and folding stock, the launcher is capable of firing a rocket up to 500’ away (range 180/300/500’). The launchers are efficient, absorbing recoil and gasses from the launch; this renders them highly valuable for assassinations and other covert work. Launchers are accompanied by a bandolier of 4 rockets, each of which explodes for 7-42 HP damage in a 40’ radius of impact. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: 5-118, 6-27.

Rudishva Identity Plaques: These non-fragile plaques are oval pieces of plastic or metal about 6” long and 2” wide on which are stamped some alien glyphs. The plastic plaques were issued to the crew of the Beacon and are exceedingly rare; they come in eight colors: rust, brown, sky blue, pale green, orange, pink, silver, and yellow. Plastic plaques have tiny micro-chips embedded in them; these chips not only allow the bearer to open rudishva iris doors, they also render the bearer immune to the attacks of rudishva portable defense arrays and battle robots. More common are the metal ones, forged after the crash of the Beacon. These come in copper, bronze, and silver varieties, and are purely symbolic; they were used to indicate status, and open nothing (they lack the chips). The color of the identity plaques define the command hierarchy of the Beacon and the general status of their holders: Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 500 Location: see below.

Security Encoder: This device appears as a 16”-square piece of flattened plasteel with 12”-diameter circles of silver on each side. The device is used to set and transmit a particular handprint code

Rudishva Identity Plaques

Color	Material	Original Users	General Use	Original Number	Current Locations
Rust	Plastic	Any crew-member	Doors to non-secure areas, a crew-member's living quarters	275	5-137, 6-19, 6-85, 6-114, 6-122, 7-26, 7-31, 7-49, 8-67, SL2-4 (x2), SL9-6, SL10A-32, SL12-15, SL13-35, SL14-4 (x2)
Copper	Copper	Any-crew member	Symbolic only; opens nothing	300	3-214, 5-74, 5-111 (x5), 5-90, 6-3, 6-85, 6-98, 6-114, 7-17 (x5), 7-18 (x3), 7-25 (x4), 7-26 (x2), 7-31, 7-51 (x2), 7-96, 7-143 SL2-4, SL14-4 (x3)
Brown	Plastic	NCOs of any race	Doors to non-secure areas, doors to all living quarters, storage lockers	75	4-24, 5-115, 5-128, 6-85, 6-114, 6-117, 6-122, 7-17, 7-18, 7-25, 7-31, 7-143, 8-67, SL10A-32, SL12-15, SL14-4
Bronze	Bronze	NCOs, junior officers	Symbolic only, opens nothing	175	5-74, 5-111 (x3), 6-85, 6-104, 6-114, 7-17 (x3), 7-18 (x2), 7-125, 7-31, 8-53, 9-29, SL2-4, SL14-4 (x2)
Sky blue	Plastic	Junior officers of any race	All areas opened by brown cards, plus some secure areas	50	5-74, 5-111, 5-137, 6-85, 6-117, 6-120, 7-7, 7-22, 7-143, 8-67, 9-96, SL1-8, SL9-44, SL10A-32, SL14-4
Pale green	Plastic	Senior officers of varuda race	As a sky blue card, but opens high security areas	12	Level 5 Random encounters (Sir Calculator), 5-111, 5-108, 6-85, 8-67, 9-29, SL2-4, SL14-4
Pink	Plastic	Senior officers of varumani race	As a sky blue card, but opens high security areas	12	5-30, 5-128, 5-137, 6-85, 7-18, 7-25, 7-26, 7-30
Orange	Plastic	Senior officers of the kaliyani race	As a sky blue card, but opens high security areas	12	5-30, 5-74, 5-115A, 6-36, 6-122, 7-18, SL4-40F, SL9-77
Silver	Plastic	Senior officers of the rudishva race	As a sky blue card, but opens high security areas	12	5-86 (destroyed), 5-98, 6-85, 7-27, 8-157, 9-95, 9-96, SL7-23, SL10A-32
Platinum	Platinum	Senior officers of any race	Symbolic only, opens nothing	50	5-74, 5-108, 6-85, 6-117, 9-96, SL1-8, SL2-4, SL9-6, SL9-77, SL10A-32, SL14-4
Yellow	Plastic	Captain only	As a silver card, plus access to teleporter T24	2	5-98, 9-96 to a troll chest (see new technological items). One places one of the circles against the locking mechanism of the troll chest and, while it is touching the lock, holds one hand on the other silver disk for 30 seconds. This process imprints the lock to the new handprint. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 2,500 Location: 7-18, 7-67, SL10A-20.

Shield, Plasteel: These non-fragile, translucent plasteel rectangles were intended for riot control. The medium shield (2'x3') provides -2 to AC and has an encumbrance of 5 lb; the large shield (3'x5') offers a -3 bonus to AC but weighs 10 lb. These shields can be wielded by any class, although classes that are not normally allowed shields suffer a -1 reduction in their efficacy. Experience Point Value: 250 (small), 500 (large) G.P. Value: 2,500 (small), 5,000 (large) Location: 5-118, SL14-5.

Sonic Fence: This 1'-square device made of plasteel projects a sonic field in a 50' radius. Animals will not cross the field, and sentient creatures that do so take 1-10 damage. Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-118, 6-120, 6-122, 7-31, 8-67, SL2-4, SL6-55, SL14-5.

Spear Gun: Intended for aquatic defense, this relatively rare rudishva device has many uses. It fires barbed spears that come in clips of four. The gun has a range of 40', and a rate of fire of one per round. Spears are made of hardened plasteel with barbed steel tips, and do 3-8 HP damage. They work equally well above the water as they do within.

Reiv-Tor (SL7-23) has modified the usual mechanism to allow loading a clip of 6 spears, with a rate of fire of two per round. Reiv-

Tor's techno-sorcery has allowed him to create spears that inflict special effects: explosive spears explode for 2-12 damage on the target, plus 2-5 damage to all others in a 10' radius; immobilizing spears stun those who do not save vs paralysis (at -2 penalty) for 2-5 rounds; blinding spears inflict blindness on target (save vs paralysis with -2 penalty) and those within a 10' radius (save vs paralysis with +1 bonus); submission spears do only 1-3 damage but act as a charm person spell unless a save vs spells (-1 penalty) is made.

Standard spear guns are fragile devices, but Reiv-Tor's gun is non-fragile. Experience Point Value: 500 (standard), 1,000 (modified) G.P. Value: 2,500 (standard), 5,000 (modified) Location: 5-118, 8-67, SL7-13, SL7-23.

Spell Tablet, Niravairi: This 8"x4" non-fragile tablet with a plasglass screen serves as the spell book for niravairi sorcerers. An interactive screen allows one to locate spells and page through the data. The small size of the screen means that if one tried to cast a spell directly from the tablet, one would need to double the casting time; the benefit, however, is that the spells are not erased from the tablet. Another flaw for non-niravairi users is the fact that the spells are recorded in niravairi glyphs. A spell tablet can contain up to 1,024 spell-levels worth of spells. Experience Point Value: 5,000 G.P. Value: 50,000 Location: SL1-11.

Stun Baton: These rare non-fragile devices are similar to ballistic batons, except that they have a conductive metal strip running up the length of the baton to a copper tip. A 3'-long wire leads from the end of the baton to a belt-worn electrical generator that is powered by a lesser power supply. The baton does minimal damage

(1-4 HP), but delivers an electric jolt that stuns opponents who don't save versus paralysis (at -1) for 3-6 rounds. Those wearing metallic armor save at -2. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-118, 5-131, 7-31, 8-157.

Sun Lance: Each of the Sun-Scarred Knights (see new monsters) carries one of these 4'-long non-fragile lances. The business end is formed of a black metal alloy, with a slot in it into which a silver metallic disk may be slipped (for charges). The metallic end is attached to a handle of varying substance (more metal, or wood, or even ivory). A sun lance can discharge a powerful burning ray of variable power: 1 charge (2-12 heat damage), 2 charges (4-24), 3 charges (6-36). It can also be used to inflict a burst of fiery energy (4 charges) which will do 6-36 damage to everyone in a 25' radius.

As lesser power supplies are growing scarce among the order of knights, most of the current knights are loath to use their lances ... except when faced with overwhelming need. Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 40,000 Location: on Sun-Scarred Knights, and 10-53.

Tablet of the Beacon: This is the Archontean name for one of the two surviving rudishva command tablets (q.v.). The Tablet of the Beacon came to assume a totemic value to the late-period archons, who cared little about its technological functions and used it primarily as a symbol of their general mastery. For details on the functions of the tablet, see 'command tablet.' Experience Point Value: 1,000 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: 9-107.

Tactical Suit: An all-black, flexible jump-suit constructed of ballistic fibers and used by rudishva security forces for crowd control and other sorts of dangerous environments. The chest, back, thighs, and upper arms are reinforced with light-weight plastel plates. All told, the tactical suit provides AC 0 without limiting movement (treat as leather armor, although any class can wear a tactical suit without penalty). It also provides partial resistance to fire and cold (½ damage). Although non-fragile, surviving examples of tactical suits are still incredibly old, and slashing weapons have a 1% cumulative chance per hit of tearing the suit. Each tear in the suit reduces its AC by 1 (so, one tear gives AC 1; two tears gives AC 2, etc.). Once a tear occurs, the chance of another tear resets back to 1%. Experience Point Value: 6,000 G.P. Value: 60,000 Location: 5-83, 5-95A, 8-47, SL10A-33.

Teleport Nodes: Rudishva teleporters deconstruct matter to the molecular level before reassembling them in an alternate, but matched, location. Each non-fragile node is comprised of a 5'-diameter circle of silvery material inset into the floor, with a 10"x10" square of the same material affixed to the wall. Each square has a different rune etched into the silvery material. To activate a node, one stands on the circle and touches one's hand to the square; one is then instantly teleported to the corresponding silvery circle. A pair of teleporters can be rendered inoperable if a thick, non-conductive material is placed over any pad; a slab of marble (as at 5-110) would do the trick, as would wood or even leather. To ensure lack of operation, the rudishva also preferred to glue a clear plastic covering over the appropriate silvered square. Teleporters are marked on the map with a T and a number (e.g., T6). It is still possible to create new teleport nodes (see area 5-89). Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: — Location: See below

T1: between 5-92 and 5-94
T2: between 5-92 and 5-132
T3: between 5-92 and 6-124
T4: between 5-92 and 6-95A
T5: between 5-109 and 5-118
T6: between 5-109 and 5-110
T7: between 5-112 and 5-118
T8: between 5-112 and 5-110
T9: between 5-132 and 5-137
T10: between 5-106 and 6-37
T11: between 5-95 and 7-144
T12: between 5-31 and 5-118
T13: between 5-31 and SL6-3
T14: between 5-31 and 6-162
T15: between 6-27 and 6-39G
T16: between 6-162 and 7-6
T17: between 7-6 and 7-110
T18: between 7-110 and 8-52
T19: between 8-52 and 9-97
T20: between 9-97 and SL13-38
T21: inoperable (it formerly connected 8-157 with an area near 5-122 that is now destroyed)
T22: inoperable (potential for GM expansion)
T23: between 6-32 and SL9-53
T24: between 9-97 and SL14-7
T25: between SL14-8 and 5-95A

Troll Chest: These non-fragile chests are 4' long, 2' wide, and 2' tall. They are made of a strange alloy of metal which, when polished, shines with a bluish gunmetal sheen. Although pieces of rudishva technology, they have, over the centuries, gained their name from their association with the varumani. The Troll Chests are incredibly light (10 lb), and remain so regardless of what is put into them. Such chests also provide near-immunity to their contents, protecting them from fire, cold, acid, and magic (but not from breakage if said items are fragile and get jostled!). Finally, troll chests have an 18"-diameter circle on their lid which can be keyed to a particular individual's hand- (or claw-) print using a security encoder (see new technological items). Unkeyed chests are extremely valuable, but keyed ones are doubly so. Of course, if the owner of a keyed chest is killed or disappeared, the contents of that chest are as good as lost until the chest is re-keyed. Keying a chest is a process known only to the varumani of the troll thegn's court. Experience Point Value: 2,000 G.P. Value: 15,000 Location: 5-54, 5-137, 5-139, 6-85, 7-1, 7-18, 7-22, 7-31, 8-157, 9-62, SL1-8, SL7-24, sl9-58, SL10A-20, SL10A-32.

Vibrablade: A monofilament wire that vibrates at ultrasonic speed, this non-fragile weapon is perfect for shearing through just about any substance. It acts as a +2 weapon for purposes of hitting creatures hit only by magic. It inflicts 3-12 HP damage per hit, and uses one charge from its lesser power supply per hour.

Vibrablades cannot parry: instead they subject the weapons of an attacker to a crushing blow save every round the weapon is used against the wielder of a vibrablade. Magic weapons gain a +3 to their roll for every magical +1 possessed. Vibrablades can be used by any class. The only known vibrablade in Arden Vul is wielded by the rudishva tactical advisor (see new monsters). Experience Point Value: 4,000 G.P. Value: 20,000 Location: 5-118.

ARDEN VUL ITEMS

Ankh-Key: These enchanted ankhs were devised by Archontean sorcerers for use as keys used to activate important sites or objects. Appearing as 1'-tall silver ankhs chased with red glass, they are used by pressing them into an ankh-shaped recess on the appropriate object. In Arden Vul, for example, they are necessary to activate the obelisks (AV-5, AV-28, AV-41) in the ruins of the city. It should be noted that the ankh-keys' enchantment allows them to save as hard metal; until that enchantment is broken by a dispel magic (12th-level caster), they are unable to be melted at their normal temperatures. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 125 Location: AV-searching the ruins (table 4), AV-23, AV-29, AV-35, 1-6, 2-22, 2-23, 3-24, 3-36E, 3-41A, 4-48, 6-140, 9-107.

Anti-Slime Paste: A creation of the kaliyani, this thick yellow paste is a marvelous at repelling slimes, oozes, puddings, jellies, and the like. If painted in a line, the slimes cannot cross the line (although those with pseudopods could, obviously, lash out across the line). If used to coat an entire room, it provides a safe haven (albeit a smelly one) from slimes. Finally, if successfully thrown as a grenade, the paste does 6-36 damage to any slime, ooze, etc. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 500 Location: 6-122.

Arden Vul Cakes: These edible objects appear as 6"-diameter, 1"-thick 'cakes' of highly nutritious, if slightly unappetizing, protein and carbohydrate matter. One cake will feed a medium-sized being for a day. If kept dry, the cakes last for a very long time. They are produced by rudishva Nutri-Vore 2000 machines (see new technological items), but can also be discovered separately. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 15 Location: 5-106, 5-134, 7-108, 7-124, 8-157, 9-18, 9-31, 9-33, 9-59, SL4-30, SL12-25

Coinage, Ancient Archontean: The weight, size, and relative value of coins minted by the Archontean empire has changed over the centuries. Unlike modern coins which are all 50 coins per lb, ancient coins come in various sizes.

Copper Bits: About the size and weight of a nickel, these coins are worth the same amount as a modern silver piece. Ancient bits have a pine tree on the obverse and the legend 'Credo' ('I believe') on the reverse. 90 copper bits weigh 1 lb.

Silver Pennies: These coins are about the size of a dime (1/2" diameter), although they are thicker (1/8") and heavier. They are equivalent in value to a modern gold piece. On the obverse most feature a bust of the emperor wearing a military helmet, surrounded by the letters of his name; the reverse contains a gladius with the words "Conquerendum est" [It shall be conquered]. A few unusual mintings have been recorded, however, so not all silver pennies are similar. 125 silver pennies weigh 1 lb.

Gold Solidi: Solidi (aka 'shillings') are thick (1/4") and large (1" diameter); they are worth 10 modern gp, but are 10x as heavy as an ordinary gp. The obverse features a bust of the emperor wearing an olive wreath surrounded by the letters of his name; the reverse has an image of the emperor in a chariot pulled by four horses. 5 gold solidi weigh 1 lb.

Octagonal Platinum Coins: Very large (2" across) and thick (1/2" thick), these coins are worth 375 modern gp and are 75x as heavy as a modern platinum piece. On the obverse they feature either a dragon's head or an obelisk with an eye in it; this image is surrounded by the legend "Imp. Archon. Regn. est" [Short for "Imperator Archontii regendum est", or, "the Archontean Emperor shall rule"]; on the reverse is the legend "Auc. est Potest." (Short for "Auctoritas est Potestas", or "Authority is power"). These rare coins were issued on symbolic occasions, e.g. coronation of a new emperor, a major victory, a political marriage, etc.; their relative scarcity is one factor in their value. 1 octagonal platinum coin weighs 1.5 lb.

Generally speaking, the ancient coins are valued more, although this is more true in urban environments than rural ones. That is, in a small village, a silver piece is a silver piece, regardless of whether it is ancient or modern. But in towns and cities, ancient coins have both greater inherent value and a degree of historical value, and can be exchanged for more than their usual worth. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: Varies Location: Innumerable.

Heqeti Spore Bombs: A spore bomb appears as a leathery oval object about 4' x 3' in size. Those unfamiliar with the devices may imagine them to be eggs, although of an unknown species. The bomb is activated in one of two ways, either by inflicting significant force on it (such as by dropping it, or striking it with a weapon) or by absorbing heat from warm-blooded creatures (such as humans). The first method is fairly obvious, but the second is truly insidious, for it means that any handling by warm blooded creatures produces a 20% chance (cumulative) per round of causing the bomb to explode. Furthermore, even proximity to warm-blooded creatures (such as by carrying in a backpack) will cause the device to activate, albeit more slowly: there is a cumulative 10% per turn of such proximity causing the bomb to activate. The heqeti filled their spore bombs with a variety of nasty substances, including green slime, molds, jellies, puddings, and other floral or fungal agents. To determine the contents of a spore bomb, roll on the following chart:

D10	Contents
1	Green slime
2	Olive slime
3	Yellow mold
4	Russet mold
5	Brown mold
6	Zygom milk
7	Cave lily spores (see new flora)
8	Slow stepper spores (see new flora)
9	Bliss flower pollen (see new flora)
10	Ichor of Rimmaq-Isfet (see new monsters)

Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 500 Location: 8-155, 8-162, Level 10 Random Encounters, 10-13, 10-20, 10-38, 10-40, 10-41, 10-46, 10-51, 10-58, SL2-5.

Houlios's Bee Suit: This unique item was created by Houlios (see 8-21 and 8-68) to allow him to work among the giant bees of areas 8-69 and 8-70. It is formed from two huge turtle shells, sewn together along the sides, with boiled leather arm and leg extensions. The helmet of the suit is made from the chitinous head of an ankheg. The suit functions as a suit of bulky armor providing AC 5, weighing 40 lb, and allowing 60' movement. It also imposes a -5 penalty to hit on giant bees that attack the wearer. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 8-68.

Hunter's Friend: Appearing in small vials and meant to be smeared on a weapon (blade or arrowhead), hunter's friend is a neurotoxin. On a successful hit, targets must save vs poison at -1 or be slowed (as spell) for 4-7 rounds. It takes but one segment after a failed save for the effect to take hold. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 200 Location: 6-129, 7-14, Level 9 Random Encounters, 9-4.

Imperial Field Plate: The sorcerer-smiths of the ancient Archontean empire developed a special formula for light steel that they used in creating these suits of armor. Sadly, the formula for that light steel has been lost, and as a result the armor is no longer made. Surviving exemplars are incredibly valuable, although they attract immediate and greedy attention from the powerful and from imperial officials. It is said that the Emperor's personal guard in Archontos is still equipped with this armor.

Imperial field plate conveys a bonus of 8 to armor class (i.e., it is AC 2); what is more, due to the ancient smithing technique, these suits weigh only 30 lb, are only fairly bulky, and have a base movement of 90'. A few suits were enchanted, rendering them even more valuable treasures (e.g., 4-52 and 4-184). Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 5,000 Location: AV-12, 4-24, 4-54, 4-183, 5-12, 5-13, 5-14, 5-95, 5-133, 6-19, 6-154, 7-31, 7-122, 8-16, 9-104, 9-121, 10-49, SL1-4, SL4-10, SL4-36, SL6-17A, SL6-24, SL6-77, SL7-28, SL9-73, SL10B-23 (partial), SL13-22, SL15-7.

Jelly, Sweating: This brown jelly aids in the respiration of lizards by relaxing muscles that aid in breathing. When smeared on the body of a lizard (or lizardman), the jelly serves as a haste spell for 3 rounds. For non-lizards, however, the relaxation of muscles serves to slow the user for 3 rounds. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 500 Location: SL5-4.

Kaliyani Refreshing Liquid: Appearing as a viscous, cloudy liquid that can be smeared on a surface, this liquid allows kaliyani to operate away from their preferred humid or watery environment. Kaliyani encountered away from their home bases carry vials of the liquid, which they must apply every 3-4 days. If the liquid is not applied, or the kaliyani is not able to immerse itself in clean water, the kaliyani will begin to ail; it will start to take 3-6 HP damage per day and, after a week (if still alive), its movement will be halved. The liquid has no known uses for non-kaliyani. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 5 Location: 4-51A, 5-125, 6-33, 9-118, 10-54, SL9-20, SL9-42, SL9-52, SL9-65, SL9-66, SL9-69, SL9-70, SL9-72, SL9-77.

Kauket's Vision: This is a strong psychotropic poison that the heqeti brew using an obscure slime. It causes immediate and severe hallucinations in those that do not save versus poison. The hallucinations commence in 2-3 rounds and last for 1-4 hours, although they are most intense in the first hour. While hallucinations vary, they invariably involve terrifying visual and auditory experiences, often in which enormous salamanders creep menacingly just out of sight, in the corner of one's vision.

A victim who fails to save versus poison (with a -2 penalty) to the roll will spend the first 1-6 turns of hallucinations either in flight (33%), paralyzed from fear (33%) or in active attempts to combat (fight) the hallucinations (33%). After this initial period of intensity, the hallucinations persist but do not force action; the victim can, at this point, act normally, albeit with a -2 roll to hit and save and with a -25% roll on relevant reaction tables. Experience Point Value: 50 G.P. Value: 200 Location: 9-36, 9-62, 10-5, 10-13, 10-40, 10-56, SL6-2.

Obsidian Gates, Keys to: Opening the fabled Obsidian Gates (area 5-6D) requires the simultaneous insertion of two rod-shaped keys into the openings on the portals. Each key is 15" long and 1.5" in diameter. One key must be made of platinum, and the other of gold. The existing keys are enchanted, and ordinary rods, even if coated in the proper material, will not work. The following table summarizes the locations of all the keys to the Obsidian Gates.

Gold Keys	Platinum keys
10-36 (inner fane of the ziggurat of Kauket)	10-36 (inner fane of the ziggurat of Kauket)
5-95A (secure rudishva treasury)	5-95A (secure rudishva treasury)

9-94 (rudishva captain's quarters)	9-94 (rudishva captain's quarters)
9-70 (tower of Walid)	9-70 (tower of Walid)
8-53 (rudishva detention block)	SL4-4 (in use as the scepter of Reskim, bailiff of the goblin court)
1-6 (Lankios the hermit)	3-214 (Idris the thief)
5-65 (sinkhole)	8-126 (rakshasa trophy room)
AV-40 (tower of the wyrm)	SL5-28 (pool of the pukel-mander)
6-39 (lock cavern)	2-48 (ancient monolith)
AV-35 (brooding lake)	7-79 (lesser heqeti ziggurat)

The heqeti weavers who erected the gates some 4,000 years ago created only ten sets of keys. Although the rudishva located several complete pairs of keys, the Archontean never did; as a result, the empire never penetrated behind the gates. The gold key weighs 19 lb and the platinum key weighs 34 lb. Their enchantment allows them to save as hard metal, and until it is broken by a dispel magic (12th-level caster), the keys are unable to be melted at their normal temperatures. Experience Point Value: 500 G.P. Value: 1,000 (gold key), 8,500 (platinum key) Location: see table.

Ring of Arden: These rings were issued to members of the elite Archontean cult, 'the Defenders of Arden' (see Sub-Level 13). Membership rings comprise a heavy gold band with an oval disk of gold on the face; in the center of the oval disk is an intaglio amethyst. An inscription in the gold disk reads 'nunc defensus est' ('Now she must be defended'). The carved amethyst depicts, in high detail, Arden the Defender in the same pose as the colossus at EX-6 (kneeling, with sword in one hand and outstretched palm in the other). In addition to their inherent value, the rings are used to open doors within the precincts of the Defenders of Arden. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL13-14, SL13-22.

Rudishva Aquavit: This rare liquor is typically found in light-blue plasteel flasks that date back thousands of years to the rudishva hegemony. The liquor is pale yellow and incredibly potent. Drinking more than a few sips renders one tipsy, thus reducing WIS and DEX by 2-5 points and increasing one's belligerence appropriately. Despite its intoxicating effects, it is delicious and causes no hangover. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 50 Location: 6-82, 9-63, SL10A-20, SL10A-21, SL10A-32, SL12-15.

Set Animal Repellent: This slightly-viscous clear liquid masks the scent of the user from Set Animals. As a result, the user is effectively invisible to Set Animals; what is more, the user can attack without losing this advantage. The repellent is efficacious for 3-6 hours. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 50 Location: SL8-10.

Set Armor: Special armor worn only by the priests of Set (see new monsters), this armor is formed of blood-red steel and copper. It takes the form of an ensemble similar to that of a Roman legionary, i.e., scale body armor (steel), copper leg and arm greaves, and a copper helmet shaped like a Set animal. The armor is worn by Set guardsmen and priests of the Set cult. As a group the basic ensemble provides AC 4 and a max move rate of 120'. Set deacons (see new monsters) usually possess enchanted Set armor +1, while Set pontifexes (see new monsters) possess Set armor +2.

All versions of Set armor in Arden Vul project a menacing image and emanate a vague sense of evil; as such, wearing a suit in public draws immediate attention to the wearer. The armor weighs 30 lb and is fairly bulky. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 450 Location: Innumerable.

Thothian Passkey: This simple-seeming iron skeleton key will open all locked doors in the precincts of Thoth, except for those specifically excluded in an area's description. Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 500 Location: 2-41, 3-36E, 3-71, 5-83.

Token of Arden: These objects appear as oblongs of platinum about 6" long, with an image of Arden the Defender (in the same pose as EX-6) on one face and the inscription "Nunc defensus est" (Now she must be defended) on the other. As the reward for completion of one of the Trials of Arden (see SL13-10), they constituted proof that a member of the Defenders of Arden (see Sub-Level 13) was sufficiently devoted to the cult to undertake (and complete) at least one of the trials. The tokens could also be used to open the doors leading to the cult precincts. Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 4-171, 5-18, 5-74, 5-30, 6-3, 6-138, 7-18, 7-76C, 7-124, 9-100, SL13-2.

Troll Thegn's Passport: These oblong pieces of bronze are 1/4" thick, 3" wide, and 8" long. On one side is stamped the image of a grinning varumani face. On the reverse is a hammer. All non-varumani who wish to enter the thegn's domain must present a passport to the varumani guardians of the lower Troll Lift (7-1). Holders of such passports are allowed access, although questions about how the passports were obtained might also be forthcoming. The thegn and some of his trusted advisors have been known to distribute passports to trusted allies amid the Halls.

It is a forgotten fact that the earliest passports were not made of bronze, but rather of plasteel, and featured a much more classical and moderate image of the thegn (see 5-90B). Experience Point Value: 100 G.P. Value: 250 Location: AV Searching Tables (Table 4: Puzzling Clues), 3-163D, 3-172B, 3-214, 4-95, 4-150, 5-2, 5-54, 5-90, 6-1, 6-114, 6-158, 7-1, 7-38, 7-73, 8-5, 9-4, SL5-2, SL5-28.

Varumani Knock-Out Juice: One dose of this narcotic liquid administered orally renders a medium creature unconscious for 3-12 hours; two doses serve the same function for large creatures. If used on weapons, the knock-out juice is only effective if the victim fails a save vs poison (at +3). Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 200 Location: Level 3 Random Encounters (areas 3-111 to 3-115), 7-14, 8-37, 8-55, 8-73, 8-131, 9-6.

Virgoolian's Special Brew: This special brew is mixed by the goblin chemist, Virgoolian (see 6-28), out of distillates from a range of psychotropic mushrooms. It induces a hallucinogenic state in he/she who consumes it; the effect lasts for 3-6 hours. During this time, actions and even combat are possible, albeit with a penalty of -2 to hit and to saving throws due to its powerful effects. And yet, the brew also allows the consumer to infer courses of action in a way analogous to an augury spell; in effect, the drinker can use augury as many times as he/she likes during the period of effect. Experience Point Value: 300 G.P. Value: 1,000 Location: 6-28.

NEW FLORA

Many new types of plant life are found in Arden Vul, most of them mushrooms, lichen, or fungi. Each entry below contains the four following abbreviated descriptions: T for type, C for coloration, S for size, and E for environment. G.P. Value is for a single “dose” of whatever size needed to cause the described effect.

Acid Drops: The thalli of these lichens are relatively fragile. While not toxic to the touch, they ooze a potent, yellow acid if the thalli are snapped or crushed. The acid inflicts 2-5 HP per round of contact with any mammal. The heqeti are immune to the acid drops, and consider them a delicacy. (T giant, fruticose lichen; C sickly yellow-green; S up to 12’ tall and 5’ in diameter; E very damp, humid, marsh-like conditions) G. P. Value: 10 Location: 10-15, 10-22, 10-26.

Aqua Vitae: These mushrooms are juicy and filled with liquid. They are edible raw, and an entire specimen can feed a person for a day. Should the cap alone be sautéed so as to release its liquid, the liquid acts as a minor cure, healing 1-8 hp per cap. One cap will produce enough liquid to fill a small vial, and the liquid remains potent for up to two weeks. (T mushroom; C large heavy white caps with brown stems and yellow ribs; S the caps are 5-8” in diameter, and grow about 4’ tall; E moist (but not too wet) regions underground, or in heavy forests) G. P. Value: 60 Location: 3-155, 3-186, 4-97, 6-28, 7-57, 8-134, 9-4, 9-6, SL4-12, SL4-27, SL4-30, SL9-2, SL10A-7.

Bliss Flowers: While the flowers and stems have no special effects, the pollen of these plants is potent. Inhaling the pollen of single plant causes a mild feeling of well-being and euphoria. But when bliss flowers are massed, their rapid metabolism creates hazy clouds of pollen that can be as dense as mist. Those who enter one of these pollen clouds must save vs petrification with a -3 penalty or find themselves wandering for 1-6 hours in random directions, blissfully unaware of their surroundings. A large patch of bliss flowers can extend for several acres, making it easy for those trapped in bliss to become lost in the pollen effects. (T flower, with pollen; C sun-yellow petals surrounding a dense cluster of black pollen-bearing stalks; S stalks 6’ tall, flowers 2’ in diameter (although the Arden Vul strain is 8’ tall and 3’ in diameter); E sandy soil, lots of sun (or imitation sun) G. P. Value: 1 Location: 8-67.

Blue Haze: This lichen is nutritious and curative, but also psychotropic. Those eating it will be cured of 2-6 HP, but will experience severe hallucinations randomly determined from the table below.

D6	Effect
1	Terrible nightmare or enemy appears
2	Warm and fuzzy appearance of old loved-ones
3	Environment changes in impressive and potentially dangerous ways

4	Good trip turns bad; after one hour, run for CON rounds in random direction
5	Happy trip
6	Happy trip

Duration of effect is 1-6+8 hours, although a poison save will reduce this by half. Those on a ‘bad trip’ are 50% likely to respond with violence to all around them, 50% likely to turtle in a catatonic state. Changes in environment may not make a trip less evident to companions, but will provoke either fear or obsession with otherwise normal environmental features. A happy trip makes the person a silly goofball, full of undeserved compliments and gushy statements to companions and/or enemies; combat is impossible in this state. The lichen exerts a powerful addictive attraction on xorn. (T lichen; C a faded pale-blue, tinged with grey and a few white tips; S patches range from 4’ across to more than 50’ in diameter; E cool subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 90 Location: 4-24, 4-96, 8-108, SL4-46, SL5-2, SL6-30.

Blue Trumpets: The flesh of these mushrooms is edible but unappetizing. One stalk feeds a person for 3 days. The caps are 75% likely to be filled with 1-6 gallons of water. (T mushroom; C blue; S 14’ tall, with 2’-diameter cup-shaped caps; E damp subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 20 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 6-28, 7-45, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6, 9-73, SL4-62.

Cave Lilies: These plants superficially resemble water lilies, but are in fact a rare species of aquatic fungi. They consist of a fruiting bulb floating on a thin layer of fungal material. The bulbs do bear a slight resemblance to the more familiar water lily flower, but are actually full of dangerous spores, which if inhaled cause extreme euphoria. Under euphoria, victims are unable to perform gross motor functions and thus may drown. Touching a bulb releases the spore cloud, which affects a 15’-diameter area. A successful save vs poison prevents the euphoria. (T aquatic fungi; C pigmentless (pale white); S 18” bulbs, stalks that can extend for up to 75’; E subterranean pools and lakes) G. P. Value: 60 Location: 8-164, 8-166.

Cloud Caps: These meaty, satisfying mushrooms are excellent for eating and offer a small restorative effect if consumed. One specimen will feed a person for three days, or can be cooked to produce a curative liquid (one specimen provides 12 doses) that restores 1-3 HP. They are also the prime ingredients in Deino’s exotic potions (see 3-158). (T mushroom; C white and blue mottled caps; S 9’ tall, with 2’-diameter caps; E damp subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 40 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 6-28, 7-26, 7-45, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6, 9-73, SL4-27, SL4-29, SL4-30, SL4-62.

Delver’s Reward: This is the name for both a rare subterranean tree and the nuts it produces. Twenty of these nuts can sustain a man-sized being for a meal. The trees produce a large crop of nuts twice per year. (T tree and nut; C gray tree with pink leaves, brown nut with pink meat; S 1"-diameter nut, 6'-tall tree; E damp subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 100 (tree), 1 (20 nuts) Location: 7-4.

Eye-Openers: If ingested, these fungi produce a psychedelic high that reduces INT by 6 for 2-12 hours, but allows the user a +1 bonus to detect secret doors and to listen checks. A typical specimen has 12 doses. They have no nutritional benefit. (T mushroom; C light blue caps spotted with yellow; S 9' tall, 5'-diameter caps; E damp subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 35 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 3-180, 6-28, 7-45, 7-91, SL4-62.

Glowing Friend: A mutation of the better-known green friend, the glowing friend also traces its origin back to the rudishva homeworld. The pneumocysts emit a low, yellow-green phosphorescence. Its holdfasts require water, but the fronds can thrive in water or air. The pneumocysts are buoyant enough to raise fronds 10' off the ground. Glowing friend has no other useful properties, although the heqeti are able to consume it. (T algae; C yellow-green; S forms large (10-15') stipes, with fronds and pneumocysts; E very damp, mineral-rich subterranean surfaces) G. P. Value: 1 Location: 10-15, 10-22, 10-26, 10-40, 10-47, 10-48, 10-51, 10-55.

Green Friend: Originally native to the rudishva homeworld, this strange plant has flourished in the dungeon setting of Arden Vul. Amid its long, curtain-like strings of rubbery 'fronds' grow pocket-like bubbles, in which ferments a strange dark green juice with healing properties. A 3' strand of dried green friend is enough for a nutritious single meal, but if a 1' section of freshly picked green friend is chewed like jerky, the juice from the bubbles cures 2-7 HP.

A maximum of three doses per day can be safely imbibed by humans and demi-humans; if more is consumed, nausea sets in, causing -1 to all rolls for 2-8 hours and halving movement. Lizardmen have no limit to the amount of green friend they can consume. Freshly-picked green friend retains its healing ability for 2-24 hours after picking. (T algae; C pale green; S large growths on very moist walls, especially near standing dungeon water, and grows in curtains along walls; E very damp, mineral-rich subterranean surfaces) G. P. Value: 1 (meal), 50 (fresh) Location: 4-2C, 7-76, Sub-Level 5, SL9-8.

Heqeti Sign Mold: A heqeti weaver (see new monsters) can impose a pictographic message in a patch of this mold before placing it. Then, whenever motion is detected within 10' of the colony, the mold's hyphae rearrange themselves to reveal that message. (T mold; C vermilion; S produces signs in patches 10' or more in diameter; E subterranean environments) G. P. Value: — Location: 8-158, 8-163, 10-2.

Lotus Powder, Gethite: Smoking Gethite lotus powder produces a pleasant, powerful, dreamlike experience for 10 + 3-30 minutes; during this period the user is incapable of other action. After that initial phase, the user feels euphoric and lucky; he/she gains +1 to saving throws, but -1 to all combat to hit and damage rolls. The powder is highly addictive: each dose smoked after the first adds 10% to the base 25% chance of addiction. Once addicted, the victim suffers withdrawal symptoms for 4-7 weeks if a dose isn't taken every week: these symptoms impose -1 to all rolls and cause the victim to actively seek new sources of the powder. The powder is imported from Sweetwater Hold, where a handful of traders hold a monopoly on its distribution. (T powder of the rare Geth lotus, mixed with secret ingredients; C a sticky black mass; S one dose is ½ oz; E desert oases) G. P. Value: 50 Location: 6-90, 7-14, 7-42, 7-76G, 7-96, 7-124, SL13-15.

Lotus Powder, Rastite: Inhaling the smoke of this powerful narcotic renders one non-aggressive and weak-kneed for a period of 6-11 rounds. Archontians, Thorcinga, and Wiskinga are ignorant as to the locations in which this plant grows; they acquire it from a handful of traders in Sweetwater Hold, who have an effective monopoly on distribution throughout the empire. It is similarly addictive as Gethite lotus powder. (T powder of the Rast Lotus, mixed with honey and spices; C a sticky red mass; S one dose is ½ oz; E desert oases) G. P. Value: 10 Location: 6-86, 6-89-91.

Lover's Aid: This rare subterranean orchid gives off a pleasant, mildly sweet aroma of honeyed raspberries. Unless a save vs. poison is made, any inhaling the scent becomes susceptible to most suggestions for 1-6 hours. A drugged person is not slowed, and perceives no change in his/her mental abilities; he/she is merely highly likely to agree to most reasonable requests. Clearly antithetical suggestions ('kill yourself', 'attack your friends', etc.) will be met by incomprehension and/or amusement. (T orchid-like flower; C light peach flower, with purple center; S flowers grow up to 8" in diameter; E subterranean humid environments) G. P. Value: 200 Location: 6-4.

Midnight Rose: This unusual plant is sometimes known as the 'reverse rose', for it generates chlorophyll in darkness but dies in sunlight. The sap of a cut midnight roses is curative; drinking it cures 2-16 hp. A plant will have 2-5 sap-bearing flowers in bloom at any given time; new blooms take 1-10 weeks to appear. (T enchanted flower; C black rose; S stem grows to 3' tall; E dark caverns) G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-179, SL4-44, SL9-2.

Mind Eater: These mushrooms taste good and are nutritious, and will sustain those who consume them, but are also deadly: for each specimen ingested a PC must save versus poison or go permanently insane. Two specimens will feed a person for a day. (T mushroom; C pale yellow with a red dot in center of the cap; S about 1' tall with 2" caps; E warm and humid regions underground) G. P. Value: 30 Location: 4-97A, 6-28, 7-57, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6, SL4-12.

Orange Lamps: These edible, but unappetizing, mushrooms emit low, orange-colored phosphorescence in a 30'-diameter area. The phosphorescence continues for 1-4 hours after the cap is picked. A single specimen will feed a person for two days. (T mushroom; C orange; S 10' tall, 3' diameter-caps; E subterranean environments) G. P. Value: 10 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 6-28, 7-26, 7-45, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6.

Pink Delight: The fruit of a wild subterranean creeper found on the floating garden, these fruits are refreshing and delicious. Consuming at least one fruit cures 1-4 HP per day (but consuming more will not increase the HP gain beyond 1-4 HP/day). (T fruit; C coral; S 6"-diameter globes; E subterranean humid environments) G. P. Value: 40 Location: 6-4.

Red Veil: If ingested, the red veil causes violent madness for 1-6 turns. This means -8 WIS, -2 AC, +3 to hit, and a temporary boost of +10 HP. Any character who drops below 3 WIS is functionally insane and will act chaotically according to the following table (roll once per turn):

D8	Action
1-2	Attack nearest (including, possibly, friends)
2-4	Run at full movement in a new direction (i.e., one not previously explored)
5-6	Sink into a stupor and destroy one random bit of personal gear (helmet, weapon, etc.)
7-8	Throw self against the wall repeatedly, incurring 1-6 damage per turn for duration

A few sages claim to be able to distill the red veil into a potent liquid form. (T mushroom; C blood red caps with pale yellow stems; S about 3' tall with caps 1' in diameter; E damp regions underground) G. P. Value: 40 Location: 2-23, 3-155, 3-190, 4-97, 6-28, 7-26, 7-57, 7-96, 9-4, 9-6, 9-33, SL3-2, SL3-16, SL3-20, SL4-12, SL4-46, SL6-30, SL9-69.

Red Lotus Blossoms: Inhaling the smoke of this mild narcotic reduces the will of the inhaler, resulting in a -1 penalty to all saves against mind-affecting attacks. However, with repeated use, the red lotus blossom strengthens the inhaler's will, providing a +1 bonus to all saves against mind-affecting attacks. The transition from negative to beneficial requires several months of exposure. (T lotus blossom; C deep scarlet sticky mass; S one dose is ½ oz; E warm and temperate shallow and murky waters) G. P. Value: 10 Location: 3-90.

Slow Steppers: If crushed or damaged the mushrooms emit spores that cause an effect analogous to a slow spell to all those in a 10' radius who fail a save versus poison. The effect lasts for a turn. (T mushrooms; C corpse-white with black flecks; S 2' tall; E damp underground areas) G. P. Value: 75 Location: 6-28, 9-4, 9-6.

Whispering Fungus: This phosphorescent and slightly furry fungus possesses a basic collective sentience in patches of 20 square feet or more, and one of its acts of volition is to ripple the air so as to create a breeze, filtering microscopic life to feed upon. (T fungus; C pale yellow; S large patches (20 square feet minimum, with ¾" stalks); E subterranean regions) G. P. Value: — Location: 8-148.

White Bulbs: The flesh of these mushrooms is poisonous; save vs. poison or die. Unexperienced spelunkers may confuse them (to their misfortune) with their larger and differently-shaped cousins, the white ribs. (T mushroom; C off white; S 11' tall, 2'-diameter bulb-caps; E subterranean regions) G. P. Value: 25 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 6-28, 7-45, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6.

White Ribs: These fast-growing, ubiquitous fungi are excellent for eating, and are consequently a staple of the diet of many Arden Vul creatures. One specimen will feed a person for 3 days. (T mushroom; C off white; S 15' tall, 4'-diameter caps; E subterranean regions) G. P. Value: 15 Location: 3-163D, 3-172B, 6-28, 7-26, 7-45, 7-91, 9-4, 9-6, SL4-27, SL4-29, SL4-30.

NEW SPELLS

Basil's Torch Treatment

Alteration

Level: Magic User 1

Range: 200'

Duration: See below

Area of Effect: 2 torches + 1 torch/level

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 segment

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 1-8, 2-70, 4-73, 5-85A, SL6-43, 8-133, SL3-2A,

SL5-13B, SL6-79

Having grown tired of seeing his minions' torches gutter out in the midst of his explorations, the mage Basil Bracteros devised this simple spell that extends the life of torches three-fold (that is, torches last for 3 hours). The material component for this spell is a bit of firefly or glowworm phosphorous.

The Bracteros Effect

Alteration

Level: Magic User 2, Illusionist 1

Range: 200'

Duration: 1-3 hours +1 hour/level

Area of Effect: 3 light sources

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 2-23, 2-70, 3-83, 5-85A, 6-8, 6-49, 7-44, 7-143,

8-133, 9-31, SL3-2A, SL4-44, SL6-43, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This spell was devised by the great mage Basil Bracteros as yet another utility spell for subterranean explorers. The magic user chooses up to three light sources (torches, continual light rocks, glowing swords, etc.) and sprinkles a bit of powdered gypsum over them while intoning this spell. For the duration (which Basil was unable to fix to a specific time), the light sources are effectively invisible to anyone but those within twenty feet. In other words, the light sources work normally for those carrying them and others within the 20' radius, but are completely masked to those outside that radius. Of course the Bracteros effect does not grant true invisibility, nor does it mask noise. But as a means of shielding one's light sources from curious – and potentially hostile – eyes, it has no equal. The material component for this spell is a bat's eye.

Brain Full of Large Spiders

Illusion/Phantasm

Level: Illusionist 4

Range: 240'

Duration: 1 round/level

Area of Effect: 1 creature

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 2 segments

Saving Throw: Special

Location: 4-8B, 9-31, SL2-1

The illusionist makes the subject believe that spiders are gnawing at his/her brainstem, causing excruciating pain and fear. The subject takes 2-12 HP/round and is rendered helpless with fear. Each round of the duration the subject must roll a saving throw; if/whenever the save is made, the damage for that round is halved and the subject is freed from fear for the remainder of the duration. The material component for this spell is a dead spider.

Brain Full of Small Spiders

Illusion/Phantasm

Level: Illusionist 2

Range: 240'

Duration: 3 rounds + 1 round/level

Area of Effect: 1 creature/level, up to 5

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 segment

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: 3-41, 4-8B, 4-14A, 6-49, 9-31, SL2-1

With this nasty spell, the illusionist creates the sensation that small spiders are crawling around on top of, and possibly within, the subject's head. The result is to cause the unfortunate subject to whip his/her head about, trying to clear the spiders. This imposes a -1 penalty to all rolls, and a halving of movement. The material component for this spell is a spider's web.

Cleophalus's Look-Away Spell

Illusion/Phantasm

Level: Magic User 1

Range: Touch

Duration: 2 rounds + 1 round /level

Area of Effect: Creature touched

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 3 segments

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: AV-32, AV-47, 3-40, 5-74, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This spell makes it difficult for viewers to pay attention to the target. Unlike invisibility, the target is always visible, as are all his/her possessions. But the magic of the spell causes those near the target to focus on other things, allowing the target to slip past them unseen. The spell is completely effective on creatures up to 4 +4 HD. Those above 4+4 HD get a saving throw. The GM may assess a modification to saves for environmental conditions: the more plausible it is for viewers to be looking away (e.g., in crowds, or when other activities, noises, etc. are occurring), the easier it is for a target to escape their attention. Conversely, in certain circumstances the viewers might have an easier time resisting the spell (if already alerted, if the target is walking in mud, etc.).

Curse Item

Conjuration/Summoning

Level: Cleric 5, Magic User 6, Illusionist 6

Range: Touch

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: Single Item

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 1 hour

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: AV-47, TS-12, 4-111, 4-146, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79. Also found in copies of "Property of Eustachius the Cantor" (see Arden Vul books): 3-57, 7-22

This spell curses an item (magical or mundane) with a minor malevolent effect. The caster, as well as any other individual or set of individuals (such as "all town guards" or "all halflings") chosen by the caster at the time the item is cursed are not affected by the curse. Only magical items are allowed a save against the spell: saving as 10th-level fighters.

Dameon's Shadow Spell Book

Illusion/Phantasm

Level: Magic User 4, Illusionist 2

Range: Touch

Duration: 6 turns/level

Area of Effect: Special

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 1 turn

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-32, AV-47, 5-52, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This spell creates a semi-real phantasmal duplicate of one of the caster's spell books. The phantasm glows with a soft light (equal to three candles) and allows the caster to memorize any spells contained within the real book. The shadow spell book has 1 hp. The illusionist Dameon created this spell after yet another imprisonment in a dark cell.

Feline Senses

Alteration

Level: Cleric 4

Range: 0

Duration: 2 + 1-3 turns

Area of Effect: Personal

Casting Time: 4 segments

Components: V, S

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-40, 3-63, 5-14

In casting this spell the cleric acquires enhanced senses, analogous to those of a cat. For the duration the cleric has infravision to 60', he/she can detect and identify smells at 60', and his/her listen checks receive a +2 bonus. In addition, he/she has a 50% chance to identify unknown (but non-magical) comestibles (food, liquids). Although most deities can grant this spell if so petitioned, its existence is largely unknown save to the priestesses of Bastet.

Friend of the Hekate

Divination

Level: Magic User 1

Range: 240'

Duration: 1 turn/level

Area of Effect: Special

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 2 turns

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79. Also found in copies of Codex Priscii (see Arden Vul books): 4-24, 5-74, SL10B-21

This spell was developed by Priscus Pulcher, with contributions from other Sortians. It detects the capacity for arcane spell-casting at an extended range. Although it has a long casting time, the duration means that one could walk through the slums, say, identifying all those children with a talent for magic (as Priscus did). The material component for this spell is a live caterpillar.

Frigg's Elephant Ears

Alteration

Level: Magic User 2

Range: 240'

Duration: 2 turns

Area of Effect: 2 man-sized targets

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 segment

Saving Throw: Halves duration

Location: 2-70, 4-56, SL4-12, SL5-35

Frigg the Wily, the legendary imperial goblin magic user (see World of Archontos appendix) devised this spell, which causes the ears of a target who utters any falsehood for the duration of the spell to grow to the size of elephant ears. The ears droop and flap, making the subject's lies instantly obvious to the caster. The material component for this spell is a piece of leather shaped like an elephant ear.

Frigg's Flatulence

Evocation

Level: Magic User 1

Range: Touch

Duration: Permanent until discharged

Area of Effect: Special

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 3 segments

Saving Throw: None

Location: 3-104, 4-180, 7-24, SL4-12

The legendary imperial goblin (see World of Archontos appendix) magic user, Frigg the Wily, devised this clever spell. The magic user paints a symbol (an X, a smiley face, etc.) on a surface, and then enchants the symbol such that the first time that any being 4' tall or larger passes it, a loud 'raspberry' is produced. The spell is commonly used as a perimeter warning system, as do the goblin witch doctors of Arden Vul (see area 4-12). The material component for this spell is the pigment used to draw the symbol mixed with a pinch of copper dust.

Frigg's Fraud

Illusion/Phantasm

Level: Magic User 2, Illusionist 1

Range: Touch

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: 70 cubic feet

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 2 segments

Saving Throw: None

Location: 2-27, 4-8B, SL4-12

Frigg the Wily devised this spell as a way to conceal the magical nature of enchanted objects. In a way, it is like the reverse of the normal spell, magic aura, as it serves to obscure a magical aura. Objects cloaked by the spell will not detect as magic in the usual way, although any magic user or illusionist who handles the cloaked object is allowed a saving throw (with a +1 bonus for illusionists) to realize that the object is, in fact, magical. The spell may not be cast on living beings. The material component for this spell is small bit of dirt rubbed onto the object.

Frigg's Jelly Legs

Alteration

Level: Magic User 2

Range: 120'

Duration: 4-6 rounds

Area of Effect: 1 + 1 man-sized creature/level

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 2 segments

Saving Throw: Special

Location: 3-5, 4-56, 9-31, 9-61, SL4-12

One of the creations of the imperial goblin magic user, Frigg the Wily (sometimes known to his disciples as "Frigg the Fabulous"), this spell causes the targets' legs to become rubbery and unstable. Those affected have their movement halved and suffer -2 penalties to all combat rolls for the duration of the spell. A successful save versus spells allows victims to move at  $\frac{3}{4}$  of normal movement, and only imposes a -1 penalty to combat rolls.

Frigg's Caustic Kisses

Evocation

Level: Magic User 2, Illusionist 3

Range: 120'

Duration: 1 round + 1 round/level

Area of Effect: One or more creatures

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 2 segments

Saving throw:  $\frac{1}{2}$

Location: 3-24, 4-8A, 4-180, 6-9A, 9-31, SL4-12, SL5-35

Another creation of the legendary imperial goblin (see World of Archontos appendix) magic user, Frigg the Wily, this spell allows a magic user to blow strange, enchanted kisses at a number of targets. Once casting is completed, the caster must physically pucker up and blow a kiss towards the desired target: a pair of red, puckered lips then floats swiftly towards the target. The victim suffers two effects: first, the enchanted lips dispel any invisibility or illusions that may cloak the target; second, they inflict 2-5 hp of acid damage. If the target saves versus spells, the damage is halved.

The caster can blow one kiss per round for the duration of the spell; targets can vary at the caster's discretion. The material component for this spell is small bit of rouge or other red pigment.

Garrulous Mouth

Alteration

Level: Magic User 3, Illusionist 4

Range: Special

Duration: Special

Area of Effect: One object

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 4 segments

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 3-123, 4-56, 4-171, 5-74, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This spell functions exactly like the 2nd-level magic user spell, magic mouth, with one exception: the caster can program the mouth to repeat its message a number of times equal to the level of the caster. So, a 5th level caster could have the message activate up to five times. The material component for this spell is a number of honeybee wings equal to the number of times a message is repeated.

Hallow (Reversible)

Invocation

Level: Cleric 4

Range: Touch

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: One object plus a 60' radius sphere around that object

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 3 turns

Saving Throw: None

Location: 3-66A, 4-51, 7-117, 8-140

Through this ritual the cleric infuses an object – an altar, a ring, a set of remains, whatever – and its surroundings with the holy power of his/her deity. The spell involves a lengthy ritual, as well as the sacrifice of objects (material components) worth at least 500 gp. When completed, the object (as well as an area around it described by a 60' radius circle) provides a palpable aura appropriate to the caster's alignment (evil, good). That aura conveys a +2 bonus to any rolls made by those of that alignment (to hit, saves, etc.), and a concomitant -2 penalty to all rolls by those not of that alignment.

The reverse serves to de-hallow a previously hallowed object and location. The spell requires 100 gp worth of alignment-appropriate materials applied to the object and area affected.

Harnessing the Chaos

Alteration

Level: Magic User 5

Range: 0

Duration: 3 rounds

Area of Effect: 30' radius

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: AV-47, 4-187, 7-117, 8-133, 8-140, 9-33, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL5-14, SL6-79

This incantation allows the caster to borrow specific powers for a short time from creatures aligned with chaos. Upon completion of the spell, the caster determines how many eligible creatures are within range; to be eligible, a target must be chaotic in alignment (CG, CN, CE). The caster then has a choice of what effect to produce. Either he/she may 'borrow' HP equal to twice the caster's level from all eligible targets that fail their saves, or he/she may borrow a single special ability from a single target. The caster must be familiar with the existence of an ability to be able to borrow it.

Once a power – whether HP or a special ability – is borrowed, the caster gains full use of that power for the duration of the spell, while the target(s) lose(s) the use of the stolen power. Note that if a creature is brought to 0 HP through the power of this spell, it is 'dead' for the duration of the spell. While creatures dropped in such a way will regain any lost HP at the end of the spell's duration, it is possible for the wizard or his/her comrades to administer a coup de grace while the spell is still in effect. The caster may exceed his regular HP maximum through the use of this spell, but that maximum reverts to its normal limit when the spell expires.

If the caster elects to borrow HP from multiple targets, then he/she can affect as many HD of creatures as he/she has experience levels. If the caster elects to borrow a special ability, then the spell affects one creature and borrows one ability. The caster always chooses which eligible target(s) he/she affects, and which power he/she borrows (although, as stated above, the power must be known). Limitations on a power's use transfer to the caster as well (hence a caster could not borrow a breath weapon and use it in excess of the regular daily allotment).

Special powers include any spell-like or magical power that a creature possesses. For instance, an orc's infravision is a special power, as is a demon's teleport power. Aside from the (limited) ability to borrow HP, the caster cannot borrow powers that are 'natural' and whose removal would effect instant death; so, for instance, the caster could not borrow a giant's strength (thus causing it to be incapable of movement), or any being's blood circulation, or a kraken's ability to breathe in water, etc. As this spell affords wide latitude to the caster, the GM must be careful that the wizard does not attempt to pervert the spirit of the spell, which is to 'borrow' one of the special powers that are the hallmarks of powerful creatures of chaos.

The Hekate's Bonds

Enchantment/Charm

Level: Magic User 5

Range: 60'

Duration: 2 rounds/level

Area of Effect: 1-8 small, or 1-3 man-sized, or 1 large bipedal creature

Components: V, S, M

Casting time: 6 segments

Saving throw: Negates

Location: AV-47, 2-47, 5-74, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

A version of hold person developed by Priscus Pulcher himself, this spell is more powerful than the basic version in a few ways. First, it affects a slightly larger class of 'persons', including any bipedal, mammalian-type creatures up to 8' in height. Second, it is harder to resist depending on the state of the person enspelled. Those struggling or in motion suffer a -2 to saves; those who recognize the spell (on a roll of 4d6 under INT for mages, 5d6 under INT for others) and/or become incredibly still in the round after casting save at +1. Otherwise it acts as hold person. The material component for this spell is a small (3") metal rod or bar per each creature held.

Holy Name

Conjuration/Summoning

Level: Cleric 2

Range: 120'

Duration: Special

Area of Effect: 30'-diameter sphere

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 1 segment

Saving Throw: Special

Location: AV-22, TS-16, 2-22, 3-24, 4-49

The cleric utters the divine name of his/her deity in a magnified, terrifying, deep-toned voice. The authority of this holy name affects those in the area of affect differently according to their alignment and that of the caster.

If a target's alignment is identical to that of the caster, the target gains +1 to all combat rolls and saving throws for 1 turn. If a target's alignment is one step removed from that of the caster (e.g., caster is LE and target is CE, NE, LG, or LN), then the target takes 1-4 damage and must save vs. spells or be stunned for 1-2 rounds. If the target's alignment is two steps removed from that of the caster (e.g. caster is LE and target is CG), the target takes 2-8 damage and must save vs. spells or be stunned for 2-4 rounds.

Strangely, those who are true neutral are unaffected by holy name, as are all creatures with 5 HD or more.

Kentillian's Abyssal Ice

Conjuration/Summoning

Level: Magic User 7

Range: Special

Duration: 1 turn/level

Area of Effect: 20 cubic feet per level

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: ½

Location: 8-155, SL5-13A, SL10B-26

This spell was devised by the great archmage Kentillian. With it the caster summons into her hand an 8"-long crystal of abyssal ice. Touching the abyssal ice to a body of water instantly 'freezes' the water into a magical form of non-cold 'ice' (and destroys the crystal). The crystal affects a volume of water equal to 20 cubic feet per level of the caster, and the caster can determine what form the ice takes (cube, sphere, long-but-thin 'bridge', etc.). The frozen water remains solid for as many turns as the caster has levels. During this time, the 'ice' remains solid at up to 100 degrees F; hotter temperatures reduce the duration as the GM sees fit. Note that the caster can either touch the water with the crystal or throw the crystal into the desired liquid.

The transformation of the water into 'ice' crushes whatever may have been present in the water at the time the spell was cast. Objects made of wood, shell, and other rigid materials are crushed into smithereens; other objects (metal, leather) must save versus a crushing blow. Living entities take 8-48 HP damage; a successful save versus spells reduces the damage by half.

The crystal of abyssal ice must be used within 1 turn or it melts into an inert puddle of blackish, acidic liquid. It also must be handled with care: a caster who doesn't use gloves takes 1-6 HP damage per round that the crystal is in contact with her hands. The material components include a dram of demonic blood and three whiskers from a polar bear.

Kentillian's Airy Command

Alteration

Level: Magic User 7

Range: Sight

Duration: 1 turn/level

Area of Effect: Up to 1 million cubic feet of water per level

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: None

Location: SL5-13A, SL6-1, SL13-2

Another of Kentillian's special aquatic-based creations, this spell temporarily transforms up to a million cubic feet of water (100x100x100 or 1,000 10x10x10 cubes) per level of caster into normal air. Anything that had been immersed in the water is subject to the new environment, and will potentially take damage as it falls through the air. At the end of the duration the water instantaneously returns; this may well pose problems for air-breathers that have not yet exited the area of effect. The material components are the tears of a seal and a fresh eagle egg.

Kentillian's Animate Water

Alteration

Level: Magic User 8

Range: 60'

Duration: 1 round/level

Area of Effect: 1 cubic foot/level

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: None

Location: 9-107, SL5-13A, SL6-1

This potent spell devised by Kentillian allows the caster to emulate many of the features of the 6th-level clerical spell, animate object, albeit with water. The caster turns water of any shape into an animate creature.

Unlike with animate object, the caster can determine the density of the animated water; thus, the animated water could be considered light supple, light hard, hard medium, hard heavy, or whatever she desired. If the caster concentrates for a round, moreover, she can alter the density of the animate water; so, she might elect to have it start as light, hard, but could alter it to hard, heavy by concentrating for a round. The maximum size of the creature is dependent on the volume of water available and the caster's level.

The caster can, however, elect to animate several smaller creatures so long as their total volume does not exceed the area of effect limitations. In terms of damage, the animate water does damage according to its size, density, and weight; see animate object for details.

Kentillian's Useful Sphere

Abjuration

Level: Magic User 8

Range: 0

Duration: 2 rounds/level

Area of Effect: 10'-diameter sphere

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 round

Saving Throw: None

Location: 9-121, 10-26, SL5-13A

With this spell, the great Kentillian improved upon and added some useful effects to the standard globe of invulnerability. In terms of spell defense, therefore, it blocks all 1st- through 5th-level spells from entering the sphere; the caster can, however cast her own spells through the sphere. In addition, the sphere moves with the caster, it provides clean, breathable air within the sphere, it provides a comfortable temperature (70-degrees F), and, best of all, it prevents creatures within the sphere from being energy drained, poisoned, or petrified. The material components are a pint of blood drawn from a living cleric (of any alignment), and a glass bead or globe.

Knit Bones

Necromantic

Level: Cleric 4

Range: Touch

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: One creature

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 turn

Saving Throw: None

Location: 3-63, 4-42, 4-58, 4-100

This potent spell allows a cleric to channel divine magic so as to repair serious injuries in a humanoid body. Although the spell restores no HP, it effectively knits together broken limbs, closes up suppurating wounds, and restores all forms of lesser injuries resulting in a reduction of fitness (lameness, blindness, deafness, etc.). Knit bones does not help with magical ailments (curses, feeblemind, etc.), nor can it regrow severed or destroyed body parts or organs: such requires regeneration. The material components of this spell are a holy/unholy symbol and a vial of holy/unholy water.

Locate Living Being

Divination

Level: Magic User 2

Range: 1 mile

Duration: 2 turns + 2 rounds/level

Area of Effect: Special

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 2 rounds

Saving Throw: None

Location: SL12-20

A piece of notorious blood magic, this spell allows the caster to unerringly locate a particular living being, provided that the caster possesses at least one drop of blood from the being to be located. The spell creates a red arrow that points in the direction where the being currently may be found; the arrow starts as a pale, pinkish red, but becomes darker as it comes closer to the being. The spell only works for sentient beings, i.e. those with INT of 3 or greater.

Locate Place (Reversible)

Divination

Level: Magic User 2

Range: 100' + 20'/level

Duration: 2 rounds/level

Area of Effect: Special

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 turn

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-20, AV-47, 4-184, 7-44, 7-76F, 7-143, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL4-44, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This spell is similar to the more familiar locate object spell, except that it locates places known to the caster instead of objects. Places specifically known to the caster should be described as specifically as possible (the cave where the owlbears used to lair); generic places may also be sought (e.g., a cave with an immediate exit to the surface). The spell is directional, requiring the caster to rotate in place while chanting the description of the sought-after place. Like locate object, intervening walls or obstacles do not hinder this spell. The reverse of the spell serves to shield one location (up to 40' square) from magical detection of all kinds.

The Long Death

Necromantic

Level: Cleric 6

Range: 10'

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: One creature

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 turn

Saving Throw: None

Location: 4-48, 4-142, 4-146

This spell allows a powerful cleric to create a mummy. A body must first be properly mummified, taking seventy days and using 1,000 gp worth of special embalming materials. The mummy is then placed into an elaborately-carved sarcophagus (costing another 1,000 gp), and the spell then cast. It takes another seventy days for the mummy to achieve "unlife" and become a fully-functioning mummy. The caster has no control over the created mummy.

Mindshift

Alteration

Level: Magic User 8

Range: Touch

Duration: 12 turns/level

Area of Effect: One creature or object

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 1 turn

Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL5-14, SL6-79. Also within copies of Mind over Blood - or How to Cheat Death (see Arden Vul Books): 9-55, SL6-17A

This spell shifts the intelligence and memory (including memorized spells) of the caster to another person or object, effectively creating a duplicate mind (without affecting personality). While the spell is in effect, the receiver of the magic user's intelligence and memory is capable of casting memorized spells with the same aptitude as the magic user who cast mindshift.

This spell is an integral part of the path to lichdom as the would-be-lich imbues the would-be phylactery with intelligence and memory. Three gems (sapphire, emerald, ruby) are the material components for this spell, each of at least 1,000 gp value. The gems are crushed into an ounce of hard alcohol that is poured over an object or consumed by a creature.

Nighteyes of Bastet

Alteration

Level: Cleric 3

Range: 120'

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: 60' radius globe

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 6 segments

Saving Throw: None

Location: 4-55, 8-31, 8-32, 8-37, 8-38

This spell is granted to clerics of Bastet as a replacement for continual light. It creates actual moonlight instead of the light normally created by continual light, allowing clerics of Bastet to see within the moonlight as if it was normal daylight. The spell cannot be used like continual light to blind opponents, however, as moonlight is not intense enough for that purpose..

Planar Punishment

Conjuration/Summoning

Level: Magic User 8

Range: Touch

Duration: Instantaneous

Area of Effect: One or two creatures

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 7 segments

Saving Throw: ½

Location: 4-31, SL5-13B, SL5-14. Also within copies of Mind over Blood - or How to Cheat Death (see Arden Vul Books): 9-55, SL6-17A

This spell quickly summons the very stuff that makes up the planes, and in rapid order, thereby subjecting the target(s) to a reality-shifting attack. Every plane of existence roils through the targets in less than a second, causing massive damage of all conceivable types and rendering immunities and resistances ineffectual. Planar punishment does 1d6+1 damage per level of the caster.

In addition to its uses against foes, this spell is an integral part of the path to lichdom; the would-be-lich must subject him-/herself to its effects just after quaffing the final potion that ensures the death of the body.

Pelagion's Bridge of Sighs

Conjuration/Summoning

Level: Magic User 2

Range: self, and 50' distance

Duration: 1 turn/level

Area of Effect: Vaporous object covering 200 square feet

Components: V, S, M

Casting Time: 3 segments
Saving Throw: None
Location: 4-55, 4-62, 7-39, 7-143, SL4-44

A spell invented by Pelagion the Grey (4-62) while under the influence of a powerful arcanum (see new magic items) pocket, this spell is useful when the caster and his/her friends are confronted by a difficult-to-cross barrier, like a chasm, ravine, or other kind of pit. At the end of the casting time, the caster begins to belch forth clouds of whitish vapor. The clouds appear permeable, but may be trod upon without fear. The size of the cloud is a maximum of 200 square feet, although the caster can determine the shape that the cloud takes. For instance, he could ordain a narrow 2'x100' bridge or ramp, or a more comfortable 4'x50' bridge. The caster must concentrate on his/her breathing for the duration of the spell, although he/she can be led slowly by comrades at ¼ movement rate. Note: the bridge need not be horizontal. The material component is a vial of quicksilver.

Pelagion's Rock Sympathy

Divination

Level: Magic User 3
Range: 0
Duration: 2 turns/level
Area of Effect: 20' radius sphere
Components: V, M
Casting Time: 1 round
Saving Throw: None
Location: 4-55, 4-56, 4-62

Another spell invented by Pelagion the Grey while under the influence of arcanum (see new magic items), this spell affords the caster complete understanding of all rock within a 20' radius around his/her person. This comprehension includes knowledge of rock and mineral types within the spell radius, as well as (obviously) their relative location.

Although Pelagion intended it as a means of locating additional arcanum pockets, the spell has the unintended – but important – side effect of allowing the caster to detect slopes or grades, new construction, sliding or shifting rooms/walls, traps involving stonework, and depth underground. Note: the spell does not allow one to 'converse' with rock, nor does it allow one to pass through stone. It is a knowledge spell, pure and simple. The material component is a perfectly smoothed stone, 1" in diameter; if the stone is arcanum (and smooth), both the duration and the area of effect are quadrupled.

Pol's Endless Sneezes

Enchantment/Charm

Level: Magic User 2
Range: 120'
Duration: 2 rounds/level
Area of effect: 1-2 creatures capable of sneezing
Components: V, S, M
Casting Time: 3 segments
Saving Throw: Negates
Location: AV-47, 7-24, 7-76F, 7-117, 8-133, 9-31, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL5-14, SL6-43, SL6-79. Also found in copies of Pol's Book of Laughs (see Arden Vul books) at: 5-74, SL12-25, SL6-17A

With this spell the caster causes up to two creatures to be wracked with endless sneezes. The sneezing is convulsive and violent, and imposes several adverse effects: movement is halved, saves are reduced by 1, and combat rolls suffer a -1 penalty. With a successful save versus spells the target(s) completely avoid the sneezing fit.

Pol's Improved Eye

Alteration

Level: Magic User 5
Range: 0
Duration: 5 rounds/level
Area of Effect: Special
Components: V, S, M
Casting Time: 1 turn
Saving Throw: None
Location: AV-47, 3-24, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL5-14, SL6-79.
Also found in copies of Pol's Book of Laughs (see Arden Vul books) at: 5-74, SL12-25, SL6-17A

This is a better version of wizard eye, with vastly improved duration. In all other ways it is similar to wizard eye.

Pol's Inner Eye

Divination

Level: Magic User 6
Range: 60'
Duration: Instantaneous
Area of Effect: One sentient creature
Components: S
Casting Time: 1 segment
Saving Throw: Special
Location: 5-40, SL5-13B, SL5-14. Also found in copies of Pol's Book of Laughs (see Arden Vul books) at: 5-74, SL12-25, SL6-17A

Through this powerful spell the caster is able to penetrate the mind of another in order to recover a secret. If successful, the victim does not know that his/her mind has been picked. The spell has several limitations: first, the caster must be able to see the eyes of the victim. Second, the desired secret must be a specific one, that is, a word or phrase or number of something similar. The spell cannot be used to, say, master a complex process or acquire complex directions to an object. It can, however, reveal a password, a name, or even a description of a location ('the crown is in the treasury in Castle Grey'). Third, natural magic resistance is valid against the spell. Fourth, the victim gets a saving throw; should the victim succeed, the spell fails and the magic user is stunned for one round. Finally, creatures without sentience or creatures with clearly alien minds are immune to this spell.

Pol's Recall

Alteration

Level: Magic User 7
Range: 0
Duration: Special
Area of Effect: Special
Components: V, M
Casting Time: 1 segment
Saving Throw: None

Location: AV-47, 4-187, 8-133, 9-33, 9-121, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL5-14, SL6-79. Also found in copies of Pol's Book of Laughs (see Arden Vul books) at: 5-74, SL12-25, SL6-17A

An arcane version of the cleric spell, word of recall, this spell was developed by the archmage Pol. With Pol's version, the caster recites a single word while holding a pre-prepared object associated with the place to which the caster is to be recalled. Like the cleric version, a specially designated spot in the wizard's sanctuary needs to be prepared as the 'destination' for the recall. Transportation by the recall is instantaneous and without error. The magic user may transport up to 25 lb/level of additional weight with him/her.

Probus's Thunderous Alert

Evocation

Level: Magic User 2

Range: Touch

Duration: Special

Area of Effect: One spider-silk thread

Components: S, M

Casting Time: 2 segments

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: 2-27, 5-74

One of the earliest beastmen witch doctors (Probus) developed this spell in consultation with Deino. The caster enchants a spider-silk thread of anywhere from 6" to 10' in length, and places it across an opening. The next being to cross the opening breaks the thread and triggers an exceptionally noisy alarm lasting for 10 minutes. In Probus's version of the spell, the alarm takes the form of a dozen brass instruments of various timbres. A successful save versus spells means the 'victim' has avoided breaking the thread, but the spell is still active.

The Pummeling Fists of Arak-Zhorr

Evocation

Level: Magic User 2

Range: 30'

Duration: 1 round/level

Area of Effect: 20'x20'x20' cube

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 4 segments

Saving Throw: Special

Location: AV-47, 2-70, Level 3 random encounters, 4-2, 4-187, Level 5 random encounters, 5-85A, Level 6 random encounters, 6-48, 7-24, 8-133, 9-31, Sub-Level 3 random encounters, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, Sub-Level 6 random encounters, SL6-79. Also found in copies of "Property of Eustachius the Cantor" (see Arden Vul books): 3-57, 7-22

This spell, named for the infamous air elemental Arak-Zhorr, fills a 20'x20'x20' cube with flailing fists of air. Anyone in the area of the spell sustains 1-6 points of damage per round and must save or have anything they are holding torn from their grasp and thrown away from them.

Sun's Gift

Alteration

Level: Cleric 4, Magic User 6

Range: 120'

Duration: Permanent

Area of Effect: 75' radius sphere

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 8 segments

Saving Throw: None

Location: 3-24, 4-51

The invention of the eccentric Archontean mage, Houlios (see 8-21, 8-67), this spell is a more powerful version of continual light. Like that spell, it produces light in a globe some 150' in diameter; unlike continual light, however, Houlios's spell produces actual sunlight. An area in which sun's gift has been cast thus counts as daylight for the purposes of most monsters averse to daylight (goblins, etc.). Undead take 1 HP damage per round in the sunlight, and are at -1 to attacks and saves. Even vampires are adversely affected; as with actual sunlight, they lose their powers in the spell's light and will be destroyed in 1 turn if unable to escape.

Of course the real purpose of this spell was as a horticultural aid; it serves admirably to provide real sunlight to plants growing in areas (like dungeons) where sunlight is normally unavailable.

The Thane's Betrayal

Alteration

Level: Magic User 5

Range: 60'

Duration: 6 rounds

Area of Effect: One weapon

Components: V, S

Casting Time: 3 segments

Saving Throw: Negates

Location: 4-24, SL3-2

By this spell, a magic user is able to temporarily take control of an enemy's weapon. The enemy must have a weapon (not claws or natural weapons) and must be within the sight of the caster. The caster names the weapon to be controlled, and the victim must make a save versus spells with every + of the target weapon added as a bonus to the save. If the save is successful, the spell has no effect although the targeted weapon grows warm. If the save fails, the caster takes direct control of the weapon. The true beauty of this spell, however, is that after a failed save, the caster need only shout 'attack X' (with X being a specific target) and the controlled weapon will attack on its own, as if it were a 9th-level fighter. This leaves the caster free to conduct other actions.

Should the controlled weapon slay its foe and should the duration not yet be complete, the caster may take a full-round to designate another target.

The Thane's Collar

Enchantment/Charm

Level: Magic User 6

Range: 30'

Duration: 1 month/level

Area of Effect: 1 man-sized, sentient being

Components: V, M

Casting Time: 1 turn
Saving Throw: Negates
Location: 4-24, SL3-2

Invented by Tikun Thane, one of Newmarket's resident mages, this nasty spell allows the caster to completely overwhelm the will and independence of a victim. In essence, it produces complete slave-like submission from the victim. This means that the victim will do exactly as the caster says, even to the point of acting in ways foreign to his/her alignment or basic personality. The caster can also give general orders which the victim must attempt to fulfill as best he/she can (e.g., "Guard my tower against all intruders.") The victim is not lobotomized nor is he/she rendered zombie-like; rather, the force of the spell compels the victim to follow the caster's specific and general commands to the letter.

This spell is part of the procedure whereby Tikun Thane creates his 'disciplined' servants (q.v. new monsters, sub 'disciplined'). Targets who succeed at a save versus spells not only resist the effect, they also cannot be targeted by the spell for an entire year. The material component is a small iron collar. Note: the casting time is very slow, and is almost a ritual; as a result it would be hard to see this spell used in combat situations.

The Thane's Vengeful Veil

Alteration/Evocation

Level: Magic User 5
Range: 0
Duration: 1turn/level
Area of Effect: Personal
Components: V, S
Casting Time: 3 segments
Saving Throw: Special
Location: 4-24, SL3-2

This retributive spell was created by Tikun Thane as a way of helping ensure his safety while on excursions into Arden Vul. The caster creates a shimmering, form-defining field of off-white energy around his body. This field serves to reflect back a portion of the damage taken by the caster, whether the damage is physical or magical. Any attacker who successfully hits a mage protected by the veil must roll a save versus spells. If the attacker succeeds, he/she takes half the damage he/she inflicted on the caster; if the attacker fails the save, he/she takes the full value of the damage he inflicted on the caster. Note that the caster still takes damage; this spell merely reflects that damage back on the caster's enemies so that they, too, share the pain.

Warding Chain of Glyphs

Abjuration/Evocation

Level Cleric 6, Magic User 7, Illusionist 7
Range: Touch
Duration: Permanent until discharged a certain number of times
Area of Effect: Up to 400 square feet
Components: V, S, M
Casting Time: 1 day
Saving Throw: ½
Location: AV-47, 3-66A, 4-48, 4-51, 8-133, SL2-1, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This is a more powerful version of the cleric's glyph of warding spell; it also comes in an arcane variation. The spell is used for guarding exceptionally important locations or objects, for it chains together a number of iterations of the usual glyph. As per glyph of warding, the caster traces a powerful glyph on the surface to be warded; unlike the less powerful spell, the caster can trace multiple iterations of the glyph on the same location. The maximum number of glyphs is equal to half the caster's level. The glyphs do variable damage per the chart below. They activate in series, one per round, starting with the first glyph. As with all glyphs of warding, the glyphs are invisible (but can be detected through the use of spells or abilities that reveal invisibility).

The spell requires 1,200 gp of powdered gems for the first glyph and 600 gp for additional glyphs. Casters can learn different types of glyph, each of which inflicts a different sort of damage (fire, cold, electric, air, pure magic, or negative energy).

Typically the knowledge of how to form each type of glyph is closely guarded. When this spell is first learned, the GM should roll 1d6 to determine which glyph is included in the written version of the spell; this is the only glyph the caster can inscribe until he/she somehow learns one or more of the other glyphs.

Glyph	Damage
First	1d6+3
Second	2d6+2
Third	3d6+1
Fourth	4d6
Fifth	5d6
Sixth	6d6
Seventh	7d6
Each glyph above seven	7d6+4

Wizard's Cache

Alteration

Level: Magic User 2, Illusionist 3
Range: 10'
Duration: Permanent until dispelled
Area of Effect: 2'-diameter sphere
Components: V, S, M
Casting Time: 3 segments
Saving Throw: None
Location: AV-47, 2-23, 4-8A, 5-52, 5-74, 8-133, SL3-2A, SL5-13B, SL6-79

This handy spell allows a mage to create a small pocket of extra-dimensional space into which he/she can place objects he/she does not wish others to find. The space is 2' in diameter and is hidden behind a glowing green glyph of the mage's own design (e.g., Kel Bormol's glyph contains an intertwined 'K' and 'B'). The glyph is visible to all, but serves as a secure barrier against any but the mage who cast the spell. Only knowledge of the password, or deployment of dispel magic at a level higher than that of the mage who cast the wizard's cache, can force open the cache.

ARDEN VUL BOOKS

Each of the below entries contain the nine following abbreviated descriptions: A for author, L for language, T for type, D for dimensions (width, height, depth), W for weight, R for rarity, FoS for field of study, SKC for special knowledge categories.

Gold piece values listed for data crystals are for buyers who have the ability to read them or who are specifically collectors; otherwise reduce their value by  $\frac{1}{10}$ th as they are effectively only curiosities. The GM should note that many books within Arden Vul provide the finder experience points as would a magic item: such tomes are important finds of their own.

The Adrieniad: A unique epic poem composed by the short-lived archon of Arden Vul. The verse is quite good, even if the content shows insufferable vanity, for the hero is Adrienic himself; the story involves his rise through the imperial court and his winning of the commission to re-take Arden Vul; it dwells at length on the ease with which the expedition seized the pyramid of Thoth, built a new guard tower at the foot of the falls (EX-4), cleared the Boulevard of Knowledge and Grand Forum (AV-6 and AV-7), and established a HQ near the sundered span (5-35). The poem is not complete, and ends with the confident decision to re-subjugate the Arden Vul 'trolls' to the Emperor's authority. (A Adrienic; L Archontean; T codex; D 6x9x2; W 1 lb; M unbound quires of parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history, poetry, politics) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 5-26.

Allies for Ever!: A glossy, 120-minute production detailing the history of the rudishva and kaliyani peoples and their momentous meeting among the stars, a meeting which led to the formation of the "Glorious Star-Borne Hegemony." The backdrops are all futuristic and alien, with strange colors, devices, and many talking-head shots of rudishva and kaliyani scholars. (A unknown; L Rudishva and Kaliyani; T data crystal; D 2" long x  $\frac{3}{4}$ " in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoid & giantkind; SKC history, psychology) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, 9-90.

Anatomy of the Enemy: A rudishva training manual that explains the biological abilities of the heqeti (with ample images of dissection), as well as their offensive and defensive capabilities. Provides a viewer with full understanding of the basic combat abilities of all types of heqeti and a +1 to hit and damage against them. (A unknown; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x  $\frac{3}{4}$ " in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS fauna; SKC amphibians) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, 7-25.

The Ancient Ones: Composed by one of the chief lieutenants of the archon, Irene Bellatrix (c. AEP 1070), this text describes the mysterious ancient beings known to the Archontes as the 'Survivors of the Old War', but self-described as 'Rudishva' and as 'the Beacon's children'. The overview describes the Ancient Ones as immortal, tall and skinny, with slightly demonic visage, long slender fingers, and a marvelous ability to create and use magical items. Despite this obvious affinity for magic items, they do not appear to cast spells, at least any known to the Order of Thoth. They eat, but sparingly, and prefer vegetarian fare. Some have taken up residence with the Archontes, and have offered their skills. They claim not to be able to manipulate the Obsidian Gates. Laelius describes each of these survivors in turn:

Crallicarus: Always grinning, always attempting jokes. Appears to be an entertainer, but a highly disciplined and highly organized one. GM Note: Laelius refers to Crellik-Var, now the Lord of the Arena in 6-85.

Salorikus: A gifted surgeon, learned in anatomy and capable of the most impressive medical procedures. Highly valued by the archon for his excellent service. GM Note: The author is referring to Psalor-Ki, now in 5-74.

Ravatorus: A sage of sorts, with deep knowledge of subterranean and piscine life forms. Has offered assistance in identifying rare creatures and helping determine their abilities. GM Note: Laelius refers to Reiv-Tor, now found in SL7-23.

Melacorius: A great general of the rudishva. Rarely seen by the Archontes, only visiting on occasion from an unknown redoubt hidden by sorcery. Polite, educated, fluent in Archontean, with immense charisma. GM Note: Laelius is referring to Melok-Ri, or Master Malachite area SL10-32.

Isocrates: The companion of Melacorius; silent, brooding, unpleasant. Apparently a soldier, for he always comes with a large sword. GM Note: Laelius refers to Isok-Crix, now found in area 6-20.

Nacalorus: Humble, self-abasing, with few skills save language. Has aided the temples in teaching a spoken form of Rudishva. Apparently a servant to the greater lords. GM Note: The author refers to Naik-Lir, now an intelligent giant rudishva skeleton at SL7-13.

(A Laelius the Praetor; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x19x2; W 6 lb; M oak boards and a single gathering; R very rare; FoS humankind, humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, politics and genealogy, psychology) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 7-22, 8-125, SL6-17A.

Animating the Inanimate: The most significant ancient Archontean work on the principles and practice of creating constructs. Vaslotus provides 75% of the necessary information for creating imperial stone guardians (see new monsters), as well as full guidelines on how to animate stone statues. One of two copies of this work was stolen from the Imperial Academy by Kerbog Khan. (A Vaslotus Light-Fingers; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x12x4; W 4 lb; M oxhide binding; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraft) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL12-25.

Archons of Arden Vul: A text that lists most of the archons, from the first, Fretevus of Haldor (r. AEP 893-902), to one of the last, Ismil the Coward (AEP 1783-1790). It provides a brief summary of the reign of each. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T 4 scrolls; D 1x10x1; W 1 lb; M vellum; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 8-125, 9-107, SL6-17A.

Arden Speaks: A beautiful volume that collects alleged sayings by the great Arden. Each folio gets a different saying, which is accompanied by a moralizing gloss by the author. The tenor of Arden's epigrams is positive, serving to emphasize imperial virtues of hard work, loyalty, obedience, and respect for proper authority. (A Marcellinus Septimus; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x10x3; W 2 lb; M white tooled leather binding; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore, philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 200 Location: SL14-4.

The Art of Becoming: This valuable work details the process of construction of imperial stone guardians (see new monsters). The process is widely considered lost, so this manuscript would be nearly priceless to imperial officials. Depending on how it was deployed, it might even alter power structures throughout the empire. This copy is highly annotated with speculative questions about various rudishva constructs (see new monsters); while the annotations are learned, they provide no special insight into how to create or destroy such constructs.

Varix's tome reveals that the process for creating an imperial stone guardian is complex, costly, and lengthy. A magic user of at least 14th level must expend 1,000 gp per HP (minimum 50,000 gp) and spend two months creating the guardian. The wizard must also employ special concrete, into which has been mixed a dram of blood from an Archontean citizen and the ground-up bones of an Archontean soldier who fell defending the empire from attacking foes. The magic user must also cast limited wish, polymorph any object, geas, and protection from normal missiles. (A Varix the Archmage; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x5; W 4 lb; M battered brown leather binding embossed with an image of a stone guardian; R unique; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 500,000 Location: SL14-4.

Be the Best Scout You Can Be! A 22-minute training video used to help new varuda recruits learn their role in the rudishva military structure. The video emphasizes stealth and observation, emphasizing how the unique gliding skills of the varuda can be enhanced by technological advances. The narrator is a shorts-and-tunic wearing varuda named Heert. The GM might decide that a thief could gain +5% to his/her Move Silently skills by watching this video. (A Heert; L Varuda; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoid & giantkind; SKC law and customs, psychology) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-111.

Best Aerial Vacations in Hegemony Space: A breathtaking, two-hour tour of nine of the most popular vacation destinations for varuda tourists. These destinations all involve gliding via thermals through spectacular, if alien, landscapes. For those with vertigo, the experience can be nausea-inducing. The production is narrated by a breathless varuda whose excitement becomes palpable (with chirps and squeaks) as the action becomes aerial. (A anonymous; L Varuda; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoid & giantkind, physical universes; SKC law and customs, geography) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 5-111.

The Betrayal: A short, hastily scribed, and slightly bitter account of the treason of a certain Lisstak, chief of the kaliyani, against the rudishva. The account claims that, after 'our victory,' Lisstak grew bored with peace. Lisstak began to use honeyed words to twist the minds of the kaliyani, causing them to envy the varumani and the varuda. Lisstak's counsel grew contentious, and it angered Leil-Jor, who commanded obedience. Lisstak refused and departed, with the majority of the kaliyani. Lisstak sought out the remnant of the 'old enemy', and traded secrets of the masters for protection. Finally, the scroll alleges that it was through Lisstak that the 'sickness' arrived. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T scroll; D 1x10x1; W .5 lb; M rudishva linen 'paper'; R unique; FoS humanoid & giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 500 Location: 5-97.

Beyond the Veil: Interviews with the Elementals: An obscure text by the bizarre Khumus elemental, Kagni-na-Phen, which purports to record a series of interviews with named elementals from each of the elemental planes. The names of these elementals are, of course, extremely valuable. The rest of the text is opaque, and drifts between Khumus, elemental languages, and an apparently invented tongue created by the author. What is clear is that the text provides practical advice on the dangers and proper techniques for summoning elementals, with descriptions of their powers. (A Kagni-na-Phen; L Khumus; T codex; D 5x7x3; W 12 lb; M horsehide bindings; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC elemental planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 800 Location: 5-128, 9-63.

Biological Systems: An Owner's Manual: A lengthy (6 hour) description of the anatomy and basic biology of each of the four star-faring races found on the Beacon: the rudishva, the varumani, the varuda, and the kaliyani. A viewer with 18 INT might be able to glean a slight advantage in combat (+1 to hit) against varumani or kaliyani by reading it. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC biology) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, SL12-28.

Blood is the Key to All: This unique and blasphemous work was considered the basic text for the principles of blood magic, that is, the way to use blood as a focus for spell casting. The sole known copy was held in the Imperial Academy before it was stolen by Cerbactos Kalthetos (aka Kerbog Khan, see SL12-25). The identity of the author is a minor mystery among the score or so mages who even know of the existence of this volume; all that they agree upon is that he lived prior to the war of the Sortians and Theosophs. In fact, the author was Psalor-Ki (5-74), who retains the autograph manuscript in his sanctum. (A the Sanguinator; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x11x4; W 5 lb; M tanned human skin; R unique; FoS supernatural and unusual, humankind; SKC dweomercraeft, biology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-74, SL12-25.

Book of Night Maneuvers: This rare volume was widely condemned in its day. It describes procedures for all manner of burglary, house-breaking, and second-story work. It also includes an appendix that describes eight famous heists conducted during the Golden Age of the Archontean Empire, with speculation on where the stolen objects ended up. In essence, it provides eight treasure maps. (A Tetrus Beloved-of-Jael; L Mithric; T codex; D 4x6x5; W 4 lb; M black dragon hide binding; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 8-125, SL15-7.

Book of Priors: This volume was begun in 937 AEP by Gaius Probus, prior of the temple of Thoth, and provides an annalistic record of the city of Arden Vul from the founding in 864 AEP. The first 20 years of Gaius's account are fairly general, mostly listing various series of clerical and secular functionaries; starting in 866, however, the volume provides an invaluable, first-hand record of the great years of Archontean expansion, with detailed descriptions of the chasm, the main levels of the Halls, the heqeti, and the wars begun by archons against the hoppers. A reader of this section will gain full knowledge of the basic location of all worked, inter-level transitions (e.g., 3-55, 5-63).

Five more recensions have been added to the volume by later, unnamed priors. The second recension covers the years 1145-1190 AEP, namely the first inter-dynastic period and the restoration by Marcion IV. The third covers the years 1203-1210, and focuses mostly on art. The fourth treats the period from 1397 to 1499, with a focus on the glorious shift in imperial dynasty to Basil II Piso; this section has three folios describing the breaking of the 'ancient compact' (the Compact of Ennius - see World of Archontos appendix). The fifth covers the years 1633-1698, which describes the hardening of positions between the old temples and the Sortians, and the start of the great civil war. The final recension describes the terrible events of 1770 to 1782 AEP, with doom looming for Arden Vul (indeed, the city was sacked in 1783).

These later sections provide extremely valuable history lessons to the reader. (A Gaius Probus and others; L Mithric; T codex; D 15x23x10; W 14 lb; M simple cow-hide bindings; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC art and music, demography, history, law and customs, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 10,000 gp Location: 3-63.

The Book of Thoth: This enormous codex cannot be removed from the Shrine of Thoth. In it may be found an incredible trove of information, recorded by postulants over many centuries. The rules for consulting the volume are rigid, however; for them, see SL2-1C. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 36x60x24; W 23 lb; M green leather covers, with ivory plates for folios; R unique; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC theology and myth, astrology and numerology, divination, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: — Location: SL2-1C.

A Canticle of Arcane Knowledge: An important text by one of the great Sortians, Priscus Pulcher, that outlines his theories of magic. Chief among these is the concept that talent for magic is a spark equally distributed throughout the population. The text was widely condemned and burned in its day. As a result, few copies remain. While the principles Priscus espoused are now normative, the revelation that Priscus Pulcher, usually seen as a villain, espoused these ideas would cause a minor shock throughout the empire. (A Priscus Pulcher; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x8x2; W 2 lb; M black leather bindings; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,250 Location: 4-55, 8-125.

Canticle of Revelation: One of the main liturgies of the ancient cult of Thoth, it enjoins the recitation of a complex set of Thothian precepts followed by poems and chants celebrating Thoth's role in revealing language, magic, and knowledge to humans. (A Berenice the Chanter; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x12x4; W 5 lb; M white and black cowhide bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myths) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 2-70, 3-57.

The Case for Action. A 60-minute recording without special effects and narrated in the Kaliyani tongue by a grim-looking kaliyani. The recording serves as a justification for the kaliyani revolt by outlining the grievances of the kaliyani crew in the years after the crash of the Beacon. Examples include: a general sense of being treated as second-class members of the hegemony; the promotion of rudishva ahead of better-qualified kaliyani; the unfair fecundity of the varumani and varuda, which caused their numbers and influence to surpass that of the kaliyani; unequal access to essential items of technology, including power supplies; and a sense that the rudishva took credit for kaliyani discoveries and achievements, including the discovery of the many uses of arcanum (see new magic items). (A Jevereel; L Kaliyani; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, politics) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL9-52.

Codex Legionariorum: This volume provides a complete manual of arms for Archontean legionary drills and tactics - at least as practiced 1,600 years ago. It also contains an extended epilogue on the use of spears. Should a fighter (or paladin or ranger) spend a month studying this volume, he/she would gain proficiency in spears and enough experience to rise to the next level (or 40,000 XP, whichever is less). (A Hintorex the dekach; L Mithric; T codex; D 10x15x4; W 7 lb; M red leather binding; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 8,000 G. P. Value: 40,000 Location: SL15-7.

Codex Priscii: A rare text written by one of the Sortian leaders shortly after the end of the War of Sortians and Theosophs, this volume provides a laudatory biography of Priscus Pulcher. In glowing terms, it describes Priscus's egalitarian outlook and his efforts to find and train as magic users those members of the lower orders of Archontean society in whom he glimpsed the arcane spark. The last folios contain a copy of Priscus's spell, friend of the Hekate (see new spells). (A Naelor Geisteon; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x10x4; W 5 lb; M oxhide binding; R rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC history, politics and genealogy, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 800 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 4-24, 5-74, SL10B-21.

Codex Sequentis: This 90-folio, unique volume acts as an instruction manual of sorts for operation of the thaumaturgic circle found in area SL14-15. Touching the silver plaques inset on the pillars of SL14-4 activates the thaumaturgic circle, and this codex provides some of the possible 'addresses' for the circle. The first folio lists the title and author of the codex. Forty of the ninety folios that follow have on the recto a line of squares, neatly painted in silver leaf; on top of each square is a Mithric numeral in black ink. On the verso of each folio are notes which describe the effect produced by touching the pillars in the pattern described on the recto. The descriptions for the first six folios concern manipulation of some features of the thaumaturgic circle (SL4-15). Beginning with folio 7, and running through folio 40, the verso leaves describe not a magical process but an unusual creature or a distant location; these notes frequently offer phenotypical pointers and, sometimes, a carefully spelled name. The following table lists the contents of folios 1-13.

Codex Sequentis Contents

Folio	Pattern (on recto)	Description (on verso)
1	n.a.	(Title page): "Codex Sequentis. Property of Kel Bormol, Overseer of Truth, Hierarch of the Planar Circle, Adept of the Squamous Cylinder, Knower of the 97th Name. He wrote this." (c.f. SL3-2A)
2	I-II-III-IV-V	Initiates binding features of thaumaturgic circle; none within the circle may step out of it.
3	V-IV-III-II-I	Drops binding features of circle; those inside may now step out of it
4	I-III-V-IV-II	Initiates magical scourging of any inside circle; 3-18 damage per round (save for half damage)
5	II-IV-V-III-I	Initiates immobilization feature; any inside circle are frozen as per time stop for 1 hour
6	III-IV-II-I-V	Dispels and/or banishes any summoned entity from the circle
7	I-II-III-IV-V-VI-VII-VIII-IX	A 12-HD keqemander (see new monsters) is summoned into the circle
8	II-IV-VI-VIII-IX-VII-V-III-I	The demon Rizzit (see new monsters) is summoned into the thaumaturgic circle (for more information on Rizzit, see SL4-15)
9	I-III-IV-V-VI-VII-VIII-IX-II	An entrapment devil (see new monsters) is summoned into the circle
10	IX-VII-V-III-I-II-IV-VI-VIII	A type V demon is summoned into the thaumaturgic circle
11	III-I-VI-IV-VIII-IX-V-II-VII	The Free City of Duneagle – all inside circle are teleported to that most-famous of all cities
12	IV-V-VI-I-II-II-VII-VIII-IX	City of Archontos - all inside circle are teleported there
13	IX-VIII-VII-VI-V-IV-III-II-I	City of Brass - all inside circle are teleported there

The GM is encouraged to add further patterns to the codex, leading to other destinations and/or creatures. (A Kel Bormol; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9x3; W 4 lb; M red leather bindings with a gold-and-blue eye embossed on the cover; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft, planes, inner, planes, outer) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 8,000 Location: SL4-14.

A Complete Decoding of the Old Ones' Glyphs: This codex of 200 folios assembles pictures of every known rudishva glyph and provides a short sentence or two of Mithric translation and explanation. Herodian, called 'tiro' because of his youth, was a star pupil of the famed Laelius the Praetor; sadly, Herodian was assassinated by a jealous husband before he could produce any other works of scholarship. (A Herodian Tiro; L Mithric and Rudishva Glyphik; T codex; D 7x11x3; W 4 lb; M unbound vellum quires; R very rare; FoS humankind, humanoids and giantkind; SKC languages) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-128, SL12-25, SL14-4.

The Courtship of Julius the Exarch: A light romantic 'epic' in pedestrian verse, describing the efforts of Julius, exarch of Arcturus, to locate and woo a suitable wife. In quality it is the equivalent of a cheap romance. (A Anna of Magger; L Mithric; T codex; D 4x6x3; W 2 lb; M linen-covered wooden boards; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 60 Location: TS-16, 2-11, 6-129.

Creating D-<sup>3</sup>He Reactions from Native Minerals: This 25 minute recording is science-dense, describing a process by which a reaction yielding high levels of energy (deuterium-helium<sup>3</sup>) can be achieved from the proper manipulation of a number of rare minerals obtained from the strange mud-flats of Sub-Level 9. Most readers will find this to be undecipherable gibberish, even if they understand the rudishva language. Only those with a proper understanding of advanced science will be able to understand that this is a genius breakthrough. The deuterium was needed for the new propulsion formula devised by hegemony chemical engineers to power the remaining shuttle of the Beacon (see areas SL13-37B and 9-94). Those able to comprehend advanced science could use the process described here to create deuterium, provided they had access to a hi-tech laboratory. (A Spiv-Kol; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R unique; FoS physical universe; SKC chemistry, geology and minerology) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL9-48.

Crew Roster: A five-hour production that lists and describes every initial crew member of the Beacon. Originally the crew consisted of 200 rudishva, 75 kaliyani, 100 varuda, and 75 varumani. Each individual is depicted in 3D images, with voice-over describing their rank and station, psychological attributes, and posting history. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC demography) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 9-90.

Crew Roster (Medical): This special version of the crew roster adds detailed medical histories of every crewmember to the basic recording, increasing the duration of the presentation by 2 hours. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC demography) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 3,000 Location: SL12-28.

Deeds of the Azure Knights: An account of the appearance of the first known Azure Knight, Reccared Grey-Eyes, in the Archontean Empire. The author provides a largely mythological account of Reccared's early years before turning to a more reliable account of the valuable assistance he rendered to the Empire, first negotiating peace terms with the varumani troll-thegn during the Archontean retreat, and then in helping to maintain public order during the War of the Sortians and Theosophs. (A Juliana the Prior; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9x4; W 4 lb; M brown leather binding; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: AK-1, 4-55, 5-128.

The Deeds of Marius Tricotor: This famous text provides a full account of the character and public career of the great Archontean military archon, Marius Tricotor. It describes Marius Tricotor's arrival in Arden Vul as archon and his careful strategic planning; it lauds his common touch, including his decision to live among and in the style of the ordinary legionaries; it praises his rejection of every form of 'gift' offered by the great temples; it records the laments of his servants at his unwillingness to wear formal court attire; it notes his possession of the four artifacts of the archons; and, at length, it describes his campaigns through the lower halls against the 'amphibians'.

Anyone who carefully reads the text gains general information about the functions of the surviving buildings in the ruined city, and some relational directions about Level 3 (areas 3-1 to 3-162), Level 4 (areas 4-1 to 4-122), and Level 6 (areas 6-1 to 6-18, and areas 6-53 to 6-92). Lucius Cornelius's work appeared in several forms, as a codex and also as a set of scrolls. (A Lucius Cornelius Scriptor; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x10x5; W 7 lb; M purple leather binding embossed with a yellow archon's seal; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: AV-40, 2-70, 4-55, 6-135, 9-107, SL6-43, SL12-25.

Deeds of Phagtro the Westron: Phagtro was an ancient Thorcin warrior famed for his heroic martial exploits. Like Larel One-Eye, many stories are told of Phagtro, and the boundaries between 'reality' and legend are fairly blurry. Typically one encounters a single quire recounting one of Phagtro's many supposed deeds. In rare cases, a codex might be encountered in which many of the deeds are gathered together. The GM can make up his own 'tale of Phagtro', or roll on the following chart for sample quires:

D8	Title	Description
1	Phagtro and the Floating Castle	Assault on a sorcerous floating castle
2	Phagtro and the Pirates	Taken by pirates, Phagtro subverts them and takes command
3	Phagtro and the Moving Island	Discovery of an island inhabited by strange beasts; it turns out to be a giant turtle
4	Phagtro versus the Giants	Slaughter of a tribe of hill giants
5	Phagtro the Scout	Guiding the imperial legions to a favorable site (Trenner's Rock) from which to fight the assembled Thorcinga
6	Phagtro and the Roc's Egg	Delivering a roc's egg to an archon
7	Phagtro and the Courtiers	Encountering ridicule for his 'country ways' at court, Phagtro gets his vengeance
8	Phagtro and the Legion of the Undead	Eliminating a scourge of zombies

Tales of Phagtro were extremely popular among the Archontean, despite (or because of?) his 'barbaric' and unsophisticated ways. Phagtro was a real figure, however, and his burial mound can be found within the Thicket in Burdock's Valley (see World of Archontos appendix for both). (A anonymous; L Mithric; T quire; D 5x7x.5; W .5 lb; M parchment quire; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 2-14, 2-22, 2-60, 3-59, 4-138B, 9-63.

Deeds of Ptarmis: An obsequious biography, this manuscript was never widely disseminated and today exists only in fragments. It describes the efforts of the priest of Thoth, Ptarmis, to study and preserve the vast mushroom groves located underneath Arden Vul (3-163 and 3-172). The unnamed author paints Ptarmis as a saintly, almost druidic figure. The extant fragment of this text does include the following tidbit, which might aid those seeking to discover the resting place of Ptarmis (3-174): the 'great fungal explorer, Lord Ptarmis, chose to abandon his kith and kin and establish his home – and ultimate resting place – on a high promontory amid the mushrooms that he loved.' (A anonymous; L Mithric; T a single quire filled with excerpts from a lost text; D 5x7x1/2; W .25 lb; M vellum;

R unique; FoS humankind, flora; SKC demography, history, fungi)
Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 200 Location: 3-144.

Description of the Inn of the Lost: This bifolium records an anonymous visitor's perceptions of the location known as the Inn of the Lost (see areas 6-7 to 6-20). It reads as follows: "The House of Iscorax is most pleasant. The proprietor, a certain Thegan White-Mane, is attentive and accommodating. He has hidden facets, as we discovered one night when, uncharacteristically, he joined us in the common room for several mugs of ale. He displayed a surprising interest in ancient military history and tactics, and was well versed in the kinds of things that make our comrade Gister's eyes glaze over. Thegan seemed embarrassed on the morrow, and upgraded us to a better class of room; we were all surprised, as who doesn't occasionally require a few tankards to let the steam loose? The next morning Gister was gone, and the sacristan fellow recalled seeing him departing hurriedly through the peace door on his way to the Troll Lift. We are disappointed, but Gister was an odd one. He certainly ..." [breaks off]. The fragment also describes a route to the Inn from 3-1: 3-1 to 3-7, to 5-44A, to 5-48, to 5-35, to 5-55, to 6-3.
GM Note: this diary entry provides information about areas 6-7 to 6-20, and, if read critically, offers hints about both Thegan's past (as a member of the 3rd Cohort) and his current nefarious activities. (A anonymous; L Archontean; T bifolium; D 5x7; W negligible; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs)
Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: 3-202.

Diary of Pliv-Mol, Chief of Security. An episodic recording of journal entries. They commence with confidence and optimism about the 'harmonious work ethic' of the 'star-born hegemony' during the post-crash period of hardship. It notes with satisfaction their relatively easy conquest of the indigenous amphibian-oid populations, the relative safety offered by their subterranean location, and their optimism at the engineers' promises to fix the Beacon. Later entries describe the strategic breeding programs for varuda and varumani and further efforts to engineer replacement parts for the Beacon, especially using the 'orange rock that so fascinates our fellow-hegemons, the kaliyani'.

Gradually, over many entries occupying more than four hours of time, the entries become shorter, more pessimistic, and despairing. The final entry contains clear evidence that Pliv-Mol suspected Lisstak, the kaliyani leader, of plotting imminent treason. Pliv-Mol closes by musing that it may be necessary to quarantine the kaliyani, and that he has secretly placed rudishva structural mines (see new technological items) throughout their dwellings east of the Midnight Road (see Level 5). These mines are on 24 hour timers, and are designed to detonate unless Pliv-Mol enters the appropriate code on a daily basis (the code is given as "Dipra-Jol" [his partner's name]).

These details amount to a full account of the decline of the rudishva, as well revealing that the upper leadership expected a revolt by the kaliyani (even if they did not prepare for the specific nature of it). (A Pliv-Mol; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 9-90.

Diary of Trocadero of Newmarket: Although the initial folio of this battered diary bears the phrase 'Property of Trocadero of Newmarket', this inscription has been crossed out and a cruder hand has printed "Ptarmis of Thoth" in blockish Archontean. The initial pages of the diary have been torn out, leaving only a handful of leaves. These folios describe the finding of the amulet of Ptarmis some 20 years ago, and the author's increasing fascination with the Great Cavern and its flora over the next decade. The last entries are over five years old, and are almost indecipherable, containing mad ramblings about spores. (A Trocadero of Newmarket; L Archontean; T unbound codex; D 5x7x1; W 1 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind, flora; SKC psychology, fungi) Experience Point Value: — G.P. Value: 25 Location: 3-176.

Divine Breath of Thoth: This text describes Thoth's pneuma (see SL2-1) and outlines two rituals, one of which requires the postulant to offer written knowledge to the God in return for wisdom. Strangely, the 1st-level magic user spell, rope trick, is inscribed on the reverse side of the scroll. (A Theophania the Devout; L secret tongue of the priests of Thoth; T scroll; D 3x14x3; W .5 lb; M parchment; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myth) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 1-2.

Divine Power is a Manifestation of Collective Will: This radical theological text was deemed heretical and suppressed on four separate occasions over a span of 600 years. In it, the unknown theologian argues that there are no gods; divine power is nothing more than a projection of the collective willpower of like-minded ordinary people. According to this theory, spells are concrete manifestations of that collective willpower. For obvious reasons, the temples opposed this teaching, and the text is now obscure. (A the Unknown Areopagite; L Mithric; T codex; D 5x3x5; W 2 lb; M crumbling ash boards; R very rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC theology and myth, metaphysics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 200 Location: 9-62, SL10B-14.

Do Your Part!: A 30-minute propaganda film which mostly features highly stylized images of rudishva crewmen in orange jumpsuits posing with laser rifles and pistols next various locations within the Halls, e.g., the Weapons and Residential Pods of the Beacon (6-26 and 6-113) or before an enormous heap of amphibian corpses at the foot of an ominous ziggurat (see 10-32). At the end is a stirring speech by Captain Leil-Jor exhorting 'we few remaining heroes to do our best to repel the hopping hordes!' (A Mol-Prev; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-111, 6-117.

The Dogmatics of Father Set: A once-common introductory examination of the theological underpinnings of the worship of Set. The volume is heavy on practical questions (sin, punishment, etc.) and respect for hierarchy, and is rather light on describing the inner mysteries of the cult. The identity of the author (who gave merely his title) has remained a mystery since antiquity. (A the Third Potestator; L secret tongue of the priests of Set; T codex; D 6x9x3; W 3 lb; M red-infused iron binding ; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myth) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 7-22, SL6-17A, SL8-22, SL10B-9.

Duty Awards, Stardate 6532: a 15-minute video, over a swelling electronic score, showing Captain Leil-Jor of the Beacon bestowing awards for distinction, time-in-service, and extraordinary valor to three rudishva, two varumani, two varuda, and a kaliyani. One of the varumani is the legendary Vanara (see 5-139). Delivering this crystal (with a means of viewing it) to Varboka, the troll thegn (7-30) would procure instant alliance with the varumani. (A Mol-Prev; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W negligible; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, law and customs) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 6-117.

The Eighth Collegium – Fact or Fiction?: A rather breathless account of the common rumor that there is an eighth, or hidden, collegium of magic users in operation in the Empire. Isadora offers various uncorroborated theories – that the 8th is limited to goblins only, that it is composed of vampires, that its members are all eunuchs selected by the emperor, that its members are radical democrats, and so forth. (A Isadora the Seer; L Archontean; T scroll; D 2x18x2; W negligible; M parchment; R uncommon; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC law and customs, cryptography) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 5-128, 9-70.

Elements of Animal Reproduction: A serious, scientific examination of the principles of animal breeding, with particular emphasis on mammals. Still used extensively in the great imperial ranches (for cattle and other meat animals), the volume has much general insight about animal biology. (A Canis Renard; L Mithric; T codex; D 10x15x5; W 5 lb; M oak boards for binding; R common; FoS fauna; SKC mammals) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 8-125, SL8-22.

Elves are the Enemy: A scurrilous and racist tract accusing elves of nefarious plans to overthrow the Archontean Empire. Penned just before the ill-fated embassy of Gilleshorn Ellagelsson (1833 AEP) and distributed in surprising numbers, many conspiracy theories exist as to who backed the otherwise unknown and pedestrian Holger. (A Holger of Archontos; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x4x3; W 3 lb; M blue-silk covered wooden boards; R uncommon; FoS humankind, demi-humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 35 Location: SL10B-20.

Emperors of Archontos, Volume I: Offers capsule biographies of the first 275 emperors of Archontos, from Constans I to Marcion VI. Each emperor gets only two paragraphs of space, and the focus is on genealogy and military affairs. (A Mucius the Lesser; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x6; W 8 lb; M brown leather binding, 24 illuminations in gold leaf and colored ink; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: 3-5, 5-128, SL6-17A.

Euphronia's Awakening: An anonymous piece of soft-core pornography, this work details the sexual coming-of-age of the eponymous Euphronia via sordid affairs with various gardeners, valets, and grooms. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x5x2; W 2.5 lb; M unbound quires stitched together; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC literature, philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 8-133.

Expedition Notes of Kaitor: This diary was penned some 234 years ago by Kaitor, cleric of Heschius Ban, as a record of the expedition of Adrienic to recolonize Arden Vul. It is valuable in recording candid assessments of the leadership of the various officers who led the expedition, including Adrienic, the new archon (a good administrator, but arrogant and stubborn); Basil Junienos, his second in command (craven and weak; a functionary); Tulliaros, polemarch of the 2nd Legion (Sheepshead rangers) (an excellent tactician, a sober voice of reason); Maurikios Ligareon, taxiarch of the imperial tagmata (standoff-ish and superior, but a good disciplinarian); Kallison, cleric of Debellaton and chief clerical advisor to Adrienic (a political appointee, and a social bore; but powerful and well-loved by his God); Kyrenaios the chartoularios, chief administrator (the brains behind Adrienic); the Sacred Band (intimidating in their devotion to each other and the mission).

Some other details are pertinent to the puzzle of Lankios (1-6 and 5-11): Kaitor relates both his great friendship with Lankios the paladin, and his unrequited love for Guivrel. In fact, Kaitor spends a fair amount of time mooning over Guivrel; his tone becomes more exasperated, and he wonders about the changes he claims to be witnessing in her (She is becoming mean. Why? Is it me?)

The diary serves as a convenient summary of the background information about Adrienic's expedition (as found in areas 5-11 to 5-30). (A Kaitor; L Archontean; T codex; D 5x9x3; W 3 lb; M battered black leather bindings; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: 5-11.

The Faithful Manager: A tedious, over-acted, didactic, 75-minute children's story in which a pair of rudishva children play a series of increasingly mean pranks on their varumani household manager; eventually they need him when a poisonous reptile enters the compound, and they learn a lesson about obligation, fidelity, and servitude. (A Anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, 6-117, 7-67.

The First History of the Order of Thoth in Arden Vul: This unique volume records the experiences of the priesthood of Thoth at Arden Vul. Unlike The Founder and His Deeds (q.v.), this codex de-emphasizes the role of Ptoh-Ristus and instead focuses on an array of junior administrators, and their exciting discoveries beneath the cliff of Arden Vul, discoveries attributable, of course, to Thoth, the Light of Comprehension. Much of this reads as a travelogue, recounting the exploration of areas that would provide the core of the Thothian halls on levels 1-3: the text describes discovery, but also the early building projects of the priesthood. careful reader would be able to intuit the general location of the following areas: 3-9, 3-10, 3-11, 3-22, 3-38, 3-40, 3-66, 3-67, 3-71, 3-123, 3-163, 3-172, 3-175, 'the back door' (3-189), 5-2, 5-6, and 5-34.

The text also describes the Thothians first encounters with those they call 'the survivors', strange beings stranded on Magae after the crash of their boat, the Beacon. Particular mention is made of Salorikus and Isocrates (see above, Ancient Ones). Reading these sections of the codex imparts the following useful information: 1) the Beacon was a vessel or boat of some sort; 2) the Ancient Ones are really old, and the last remnant of their race; 3) a terrible cataclysm wiped out the Ancient Ones' culture, which still holds secrets locked behind the Obsidian Gates; 4) a basic knowledge of some Rudishva words and glyphs, amounting to a 20% chance to recognize a glyph and a 15% chance to recognize a word. (A the Unknown Areopagite; L Mithric; T codex; D 27x14x6; W 8 lb; M brown leather binding; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 900 Location: 3-22.

Forging with Arcanum: A unique text scribed by one of the last apprentices of the great Sortian arcane smith, Jace Far-Seer. The pages describe the process of using arcanum-infused mineral waters to create magical works of great power. Serving as the foundation for the creation of Sortian magic items, it is particularly notable for providing a formula for super-light, arcanum-infused Sortian chain mail usable by magic users. Other recipes describe the creation of Priscian rings, Priscian gladii, Sortian faces and Sortian baculi (see new magic items for all). The current Priscian smiths have come to suspect that the recension of the text that they possess is incomplete, as they have been unable to permanently enchant Sortian chain mail, and have been unable to create Priscian rings and Priscian gladii. The smiths are correct, as a crucial quire is missing. (A Jace Far-Seer; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x19x6; W 11 lb; M 50 folios of thin platinum bound in red demon-hide; R unique; FoS physical universe; SKC geology and mineralogy) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 12,500 Location: 9-60.

The Formation of the Harmonious Brotherhood: This crystal is introduced by a rudishva named Isok-Crix, who proudly reveals that he and his ‘brother’, Melok-Ri, have grown alarmed by the complacency of the Hegemony and by the failures of the Captain to attain any of the promised goals. Consequently, the pair has sworn a pact to form a new community based on vigilance, strength, and fidelity, one that will not repeat the errors of the past but will point towards a new order for the rudishva and their servitors. They call their group the “Harmonious Brotherhood.” Images follow of the pair in sophisticated, black, rudishva-style armor with high-tech weaponry. Later scenes show the addition of five more brothers who swear to uphold the pact. The brothers agree to build a cache of ‘necessary items’ and then ‘strike out for the surface’, where they will dominate the primitive locals and create a new order. Half-way through the crystal, a new narrator emerges (Melok-Ri). He states: “Plans are on hold after we encountered the shape-shifter that bit me. I find the bright skies increasingly distressful. The new order may be best achieved from a base underground. Some of the brothers are having second thoughts. They must be persuaded.”

The remainder of the crystal features this group of seven rudishva locating and creating the Citadel and Sanctum of the Knights (SL10A and SL10B), but also reveals increasing disaffection among the group concerning philosophy, goals and agenda. Eventually Melok-Ri records, with sadness, that the brotherhood was fragmented by the insufficient willpower and fidelity of some of its members.

The fourth crystal describes how Melok-Ri set out to forge a new, better brotherhood from ashes of the first. It reveals how he ‘recruited’ teenaged humans, how he tested them, and how they were initiated into a new Order through a series of rituals culminating in scarification (see SL10A-28). He reports bitterly that some could not handle the ‘full transformation’, and that he has had to eliminate them. Sometime later he reports that yet more new recruits, although not brought into full harmony with his own nature, have been more acceptable. (A Isok-Crix and Melok-Ri; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL10A-23.

The Founder and His Deeds: A lengthy, detailed account of the life and adventures of Gnaeus Ricturnus, an Archontean cleric of Thoth who took the name Ptoh-Ristus after he was ordered by the emperor to found a new temple of Thoth at Arden Vul. The text describes his humble origins, his service to Lord Thoth, his struggles against evil and the undead, and his eventual founding of the new temple at Arden Vul. Of potential interest to readers are the long chapters describing Ptoh-Ristus’s travels with the legendary heroes, Arden and Vul. The author not surprisingly plays up the role of Ptoh-Ristus as a participant in the Ninth Labor of Arden (see World of Archontos appendix); Ptoh-Ristus is given a heroic role as the one who repulsed the hordes of undead while Arden located a musical instrument with which she silenced the aulos player. (A Sabaf the Neophyte; L secret tongue of the priests of Thoth; T scroll; D 4x15x4; W .5 lb; M vellum; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 3-66, 5-74, 9-62.

The Fragment: This text is one of the most prized secret texts of the modern Priscian cult because it reveals hidden details about Priscus Pulcher and the Sortians. Alas, the modern Priscians have only a single folio of this work (although two more folios may be found in 7-23). The single folio reveals that Priscus Pulcher acquired ‘the item’ with ‘the words of power’ that allowed him to summon ‘the ancient allies’. The ‘item’ was, of course, the Compact of Ennius (see World of Archontos appendix), and the ‘ancient allies’ were dragons. Although the single folio does not contain those words of power, it makes clear that the ancient allies were dragons, and that Priscus had a close friendship with one whose name begins with the letters ‘YAS’ (the rest of the name is lost) [GM Note: this is Yasidoranicil, aka Isadora - see Sub-Level-11]. The additional folios of the Fragment held in 7-23 reveal the full name of Yasidoranicil and make clear that she was a gold dragon who could take human form; they also reveal much detail about the partnership between Priscus and Isadora during the War of Sortians and Theosophs.

Only the uppermost Circles of the Priscian Order are aware of the existence of the Fragment; leaders such as Nerub Null (9-64) would be most eager to acquire unknown folios from it. Any folios (new or old) from the Fragment would be extremely valuable to the Archontean authorities. The version held by Kerbog Khan is a copy of the one known to the Priscians (e.g., 9-64). (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T loose folios; D 3x8; W.5 lb; M vellum; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 7-23, 9-64, SL12-25.

Fraternal Triumph, or Taticus and Thekla against the Troll: A 10,000-line poem in hexameter that describes in glorious detail the virtues of the youthful twins, born to a minor chartoularios and her husband in the backwards frontier town of Newfort. The twins’ excellence in learning, rhetoric, and martial discipline brought them to the famous school of Gnaeus the Wisp, fencing master in Archontos. There they became celebrated for their stylish but effective dueling skills. Eventually, challenged by another pair of young aristocrats, the twins journeyed to Kaedigoland on the north shore of Borealios, where they challenged and defeated a notorious troll that had been terrorizing the local Wiskin population. They returned to the Empire, and established their own dueling academy in Magger, near to where they grew up. They were buried with full imperial honors in Arden Vul.

While the verse of this poem is excellent, it is perhaps more valuable for its description of the marvelous powers of the twins' unusual enchanted rapiers, the Gemini blades (see new magic items). (A Verdonius the Blessed; L Mithric; T scroll; D 2x10x2; W .5 lb; M vellum; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 9-135, SL6-87.

On Friends and Enemies: Unlike his more general Politics, this text by the famous ancient political theorist Teracleon is less well-known and carries a slightly insalubrious reputation. It advocates underhanded methods and the use of deceit in the furtherance of an ambitious politician's ends. It also emphasizes the need to appear virtuous by getting others to do one's dirty work. In antiquity the work was banned by several of the more pious emperors. (A Teracleon; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x10x5; W 3 lb; M plain brown leather bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 5-128, 9-70, SL6-17A, SL10A-32.

Games and Strategies of Hithra the Paleologos: A set of distinct, unbound quires numbered 1 to 12, these notebooks offer a record of hundreds of chess games played by Hithra the Paleologos against a series of rivals in the priesthoods and archonal administration of Arden Vul. The detailed notes and moves described in the volumes are quite valuable, and would serve as a fine tutorial to anyone looking to gain advanced skills in chess. Volume 12 is devoted to games against "Kel Bormol the Overseer, that cheating, untrustworthy snake!" Hithra's last ten games versus Kel Bormol were all losses, and the final entry includes a few frustrated notes: "He anticipates my every move! He must be cheating! We shall see how he likes a dose of my Useful Palm! I will offer to play him in his chambers above the Great Hall, and will even let him play orange for once. Let him attempt to cheat the Paleologos once more! He shall regret it..." This note provides some context for Hithra's betrayal of his sometime friend, Kel Bormol, a story recounted in more detail in area SL3-2A. (A Hithra the Paleologos; L Mithric; T 12 separate quires; D 8x11x2; W 2 lb each; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC chess) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 3-36E.

The Genealogy of the Deities of Archontos: This dense work of theology suggests that the gods of the modern Archontean pantheon (the Ten and their companions) are lineal descendants of the original pantheon (the Twelve). His argument is complex and difficult, and relies on a unique theory of avatar-hood and reincarnation as well as on unusual interpretations of mythological stories. While the priesthoods reject him completely, systematic theologians often find value in Velok's work. (A Velok the Scholar; L Mithric; T codex; D 10x15x8; W 6 lb; M black lizard-hide bindings, with numerous gilt illuminations; R uncommon; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC metaphysics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65 Location: 8-5, SL10B-14.

Gesta Isadorae (i.e., the Deeds of Isadora): Only three copies of this text written by a Sortian friend of Priscus Pulcher and Isadora are known to exist, and all three are held by high-ranking circularii in the Priscian Order. The Priscians value it as a unique window into the woman they consider the life-partner of the great mage from whom they derive their identity. As such it is one of the three core texts of the Priscian Order. That said, the Gesta is remarkably circumspect when it comes to secrets (particularly the identity of other Sortian figures), preferring to talk about Isadora's role in shaping the decision-making of Priscus in the key events of the War of the Sortians and Theosophs. The final chapter, which describes how Isadora walked bravely through the jeering crowds to remove Priscus's body from the gallows is of special importance to the Priscians, as the episode is not widely known in more general histories and it provides the tantalizing suggestion that finding Isadora might also mean finding Priscus's remains. The Priscians have been unable to identify the author; Alden is a Thorcin name, but their researches have not located a suitable Alden from the period. Those Priscians unfamiliar with the Fragment (q.v.) will be unaware that Isadora was a dragon (see Sub-Level 11). (A Alden, "friend of Isadora"; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x11x5; W 3 lb; M purple leather bindings embossed with "P" in gold; vellum folios; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 8,000 Location: 9-64, SL10B-21.

Great Feats: A long (63 minutes) and somewhat tedious series of interviews with grinning varumani who describe in bloody detail particularly impressive feats of personal combat against several types of heqeti. Anyone viewing this program learns 2-4 specific powers or vulnerabilities of heqeti. (A Anonymous; L Rudishva, Varumani; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS fauna; SKC amphibians and/or heqeti) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 7-67.

Great Vampire Lords and their Demise: Usuon describes the rise and fall of seven great vampires from the glory days of the Archontean Empire. Intended to be a shocking, coffee-table style book, it actually offers much useful information to potential vampire-hunters. Any thorough reader will become fully apprised of a vampire's main magical powers, and gains a +1 bonus to resist a vampire's charm attack. (A Usuon of Agoreon; L; Mithric T codex; D 14x18x5; W 8 lb; M calf-hide bindings; parchment folios; R rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC history, vampires) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 350 Location: 5-74, SL10B-22, SL12-25.

Great Villains of Archontos, part I: Secunda the Witch: The first entry in the conservative and stuffy Yeng's popular series of 'histories' designed for a general audience. Secunda was the granddaughter of that Ennius whose compact with the Ancient Allies is understood as the foundation of Archontean greatness; she became one of the first female arch-mages in Archontean history.

In Yeng's telling (375 years ago), Secunda merits the status of villain for having used magic to bewitch Marcus Basileus (founder of the Basileon clan) into hiding the compact of Ennius and concealing its terms from the general population. Yeng's argument is thus that Secunda's actions are the reason that modern Archontean are left in the dark about the nature of the compact and the Ancient Allies. (A Yeng of Narsileon; L Archontean; T codex; D 10x15x4; W 5 lb; M troll-hide bindings, parchment folios; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 5-128, 9-62.

Great Villains of Archontos, part II: Kegfiller the Proedros:

A racist diatribe against one of the first freed-goblins to attain a position of power, this is the second entry in Yeng's series of pot-boilers. Kegfiller had been emancipated by his owner, Plectrus Dives, before the latter assumed the imperial title. As emperor (998-1019 AEP), Plectrus made Kegfiller a proedros and shocked the court by diverting much important business towards Kegfiller and his staff.

While other accounts suggest that Kegfiller was a financial and bureaucratic genius, Archontean popular opinion was unable to look beyond his race and origins and he became a stock stereotype of the crafty, plotting, deceitful goblin. Yeng's work has done much to reinforce this tired interpretation for more recent audiences. (A Yeng of Narsileon; L Archontean; T codex; D 10x15x4; W 5 lb; M troll-hide bindings, parchment folios; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 6-129, 9-70.

Great Villains of Archontos, part III: Arthuinus the Less-than-Mighty:

Buoyed by the success of his first two works, Yeng turned in the third installment to a savage revision of the reign of Emperor Arthuinus, who had styled himself 'the Mighty'. Yeng mocks Arthuinus's aspirations to 'philosopher-king' status, offering numerous anecdotes designed to show the emperor's true stupidity and lack of consistency in judgments and policy-making.

Although Arthuinus was widely considered to have been a weak emperor, the tone of Yeng's revision went a bit too far, and critics in Archontos turned on him, arguing that it undermined the imperial title and office. In a panic, Yeng bought up all the copies he had had made; for this reason, this is the rarest of his series. (A Yeng of Narsileon; L Archontean; T codex; D 10x15x4; W 5 lb; M troll-hide bindings, parchment folios; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 5-128.

Great Villains of Archontos, part IV: Larsinius the Exarch:

A lachrymose account of the cowardice and weakness of Larsinius, exarch of Arcuros at the time of the Archontean retreat some 1,175 years ago. In Yeng's telling, Larsinius's personal and moral failings – outlined in an extensive list of specific examples – prevented the empire from retaining its hold on this exarchate.

This book was widely seen by readers as an attempt to rehabilitate Yeng's reputation after the disastrous reception of his work on Arthuinus. Because it is far more simplistic in its style and criticism than the first three; some sages believe that the original Yeng cannot be the real author. (A Yeng of Narsileon; L Archontean; T codex; D 10x15x5; W 5.5 lb; M blue cowhide bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65 Location: 3-5, 9-62.

Great Villains of Archontos, part V: Priscus the Traitor:

A colorful work appearing more than a decade after the last installment, this text offers a fairly simplistic ad hominem attack against Priscus Pulcher, here described as a foul sorcerer who betrayed the emperor's personal trust. The picture painted of Priscus is of a cartoon villain, with hunchback, warts, foetid breath, and a morbid fascination with death; according to the text, Priscus intended the destruction of the empire from the start, and used his evil sorcery to bewitch noble Archonteans before turning them against each other. In Yeng's telling, Priscus is abetted by a wretched crone named Isadora, who is both his lover and follower. The text culminates in an epic battle at Arden Vul in which the evil Priscus is slain, Isadora vanishes in a puff of smoke, and much of the city is leveled. Yeng concludes with some hortatory passages warning readers to be on the alert for 'sons of evil' who seek to emulate or venerate the evil Priscus.

Despite the fact Yeng's account is almost entirely fictitious, and laden with the worst sort of stereotypical tropes, this was by far his most successful work, and has shaped most modern Archonteans' general knowledge of Priscus and the War of Sortians and Theosophs. Sages and literary scholars are confident that this work is by a later continuator of the Yeng series. (A 'Yeng of Narsileon'; L Archontean; T codex; D 11x16x6; W 7 lb; M blue horsehide bindings; R common; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: AV-40, 5-74, 9-64, 9-70.

Green Are My Lover's Eyes:

A classic of Archontean love poetry, by arguably the most famous of the empire's golden-age poets. This volume is widely read, even today, and widely taught as a paragon of style. It was less widely known that Aelia wrote these verses for her then-current inamorata, Rahelia, daughter of the empress Juliana the Sage (1221-1263 AEP). (A Aelia of Perros; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x11x2; W 3 lb; M sealskin bindings; R common; FoS humankind; SKC art and music) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 35 Location: 5-74, 8-125, SL11-22.

Harmony through Brotherhood:

A unique volume written by the ancient rudishva who is now known as Isocorax (see 6-20), this short pamphlet is a manifesto expressing a philosophy of aggressive collective action, by which those interested in harmony must swiftly move to eliminate threats rather than compromising with them. It formed the guiding principles of the Harmonious Brotherhood, the paramilitary group of seven rudishva that Isok-Crix and Melok-Ri formed in the waning days of the rudishva hegemony (see the level introduction to Sub-Level 10). Originally a data-crystal (now lost), Melok-Ri had it transcribed into the Mithric language and written into a small octavo volume. (A Isok-Crix; L Mithric; T codex; D 5x8x1; W 1.5 lb; M red-leather bindings; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: SL10A-32.

The Hidden Codex:

An ultra-rare Priscian text, this work is simultaneously historical and philosophical. It describes in detail the events leading up to the actual outbreak of war between Sortians and Theosophs, with a focus on explaining Priscus Pulcher's motivations. And yet it takes a skewed view in its explanations and analysis, preferring a darker, more secretive approach to Sortian motives and objectives; indeed, the author seems well-versed in Teracleon's infamous On Friends and Enemies, and interprets Sortian actions in this cynical, selfish way.

The modern Priscian cult naturally have embraced this as the 'true history' of the Sortians, and claim its author was Priscus himself. In fact, although no author is listed, the author was actually the far more bellicose Sortian, Macrinus Furiosus. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 11x14x4; W 5.5 lb; M white leather binding; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 800 Location: 7-23, 9-64, SL6-16.

A Hierarchy of Essential Fluids: In encyclopedic form, Licinia considers the potential magical use of all essential fluids of most beings, both sentient and animal. She considers blood, bile, urine, semen, menstrual fluid, and so forth. Some of the analysis is pure hedge-wizardry, but a good 33% is extremely useful. Licinia's nickname is metaphorical, as she was not really a vampire. One of only two extant copies of this volume was stolen by Kerbog Khan from the Imperial Academy. (A Licinia the Vampire; L Mithric; T codex; D 18x24x10; W 12 lb; M bearskin binding; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual, fauna; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 3,500 Location: SL12-25.

High Score!: A five minute, shaky video that captures the legendary performance of a certain Penda (the future 4th Thegn) in the most difficult of the varumani training sequences (5-129 and 5-133); this performance won Penda 'high score' and the acclaim of all varumani. The video acquaints viewers with the perils and sequences of the training sites (5-129 and 5-132). (A Anonymous; L Varumani; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 1,500 Location: 7-67.

The Highly Impressive Story of Frigg the Fabulous: This lengthy codex serves as a panegyric-cum-biography of the magic user Frigg the Wily. Frigg was an imperial goblin (see World of Archontos appendix) and one of the first of that race to ever receive formal training as a magic user (and not merely as a witch doctor). The episodes described within are highly dramatized and exaggerated. They include a lengthy section on Frigg's difficult years as an apprentice as well as a series of snapshots describing Frigg's encounters with a troll, an ogre, a giant worm, and an elegant lady of the court, etc.

The author of this puff piece was Frigg's adventuring companion, Ulee White-guard; his style is fairly sophomoric. Aside from providing some information about the training of magic users 1,700 years ago, many copies of this volume also include 1-3 of Frigg's original spells. (A Ulee White-Guard; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x5; W 4 lb; M wooden boards; R rare; FoS demi-humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC history, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 (plus value of included spells if applicable) Location: 5-74, 8-125, SL4-12.

A History of Dragonkind: A unique and highly valuable text penned by the ancient gold dragon, Yasidoranicil. Describes the various divisions of dragonkind (chromatic, metallic), notes famous dragons and their sires and offspring, outlines the strengths and weaknesses of different breeds, and provides a full history of the relationship of the Archontes with dragonkind from the signing of the pact of Ennius to the war of the Sortians and Theosophs. (A Yasidoranicil; L Draconic; T codex; D 15x20x7; W 12 lb; M red dragonhide binding, vellum, plentiful illuminations; R unique; FoS fauna; SKC dragons) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 6,000 Location: SL11-22.

History of the Pagan Cults: The standard Archontean account of non-Archontean deities and their cults, focusing particularly on Thorcin and Wiskin deities. Oronius is respectful of these rivals to the Archontean state cult, providing decent overviews of theology and doctrine, as well as surprisingly relevant anthropological information of cult and temple structures. A shorter appendix treats 'demonic cults', including Dagon, Frelothian, Mzingalok, Rimmaq-Isfet, Orcus, Thanatos, and Yazgog the Spider; these are notably less detailed, however. (A Oronius the New Theologian; L Mithric; T codex; D 11x17x7; W 8 lb; M yellow-died calfskin; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myth) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 9-62, SL6-17A.

The Honey Project: A parchment bifolium, in which the author recorded the results of his experiments in subterranean horticulture and bee cultivation. A key passage reads as follows: "My efforts to render the lower caves habitable and useful continue. Thanks to my leadership we have carved out a small facility just beyond the gaze of Lord Anubis [i.e., area 8-8]; from there we have developed a strain of bliss flowers that grow to enormous size. This strain is able to flower and prosper underground thanks to the new version of the standard light spell developed by Houlios. Houlios is convinced that their growth can be maintained indefinitely, but their vigor and hardiness is slightly alarming. Of course the real goal of the project is to develop a self-contained system for producing the special honey required in higher level alchemical study. To that end, the rapid growth of the flowers is only a good thing."

I am proud to claim credit for introducing a hive of giant bees to a specially prepared chamber north of the cavern of flowers; they service the flowers and produce significant quantities of the desired honey. They have grown slightly aggressive, however, and may need to be replaced with a smaller breed that poses less danger to my servants. I have no doubt that my efforts here in the depths shall win recognition from the archon, and that I will shortly be restored to the inner circle. [signed] Valens Kalian, proedros.

The text provides information concerning the origins of the Golden Nectar Project (8-67, 8-69, and 8-70) as well as some hints as to the dangers those areas present to explorers. Valens was the ambitious administrator who defied the archon in setting up this project; Houlios was the mage and alchemist whose talents allowed it to prosper. (A Valens Kalian; L Mithric; T bifolium; D 7.5x10x.5; W .5 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS flora, fauna; SKC flowers, insects) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 8-21.

The Honorable Life of Ligareus the Archon: A hagiographical account of the kentarch who rose to become archon of Arden Vul. Although Ligareus is primarily remembered as the founder of the Ligareon clan (now one of the Five Families, see World of Archontos appendix), the biography focuses mostly on his years as a soldier and, later, archon of Arden Vul. What is not discussed by Junius Octavus is the fact that Ligareus was the son of fishmongers (for this fact, see SL6-47), and thus not even from the lowest rung of the nobility. Nor is his role as the archon who popularized living mosaic (see new magic items) given much shrift. Rather, the work is heavy on virtue, military deeds, and noble action. (A Junius Octavus; L Mithric; T scroll; D 1x12x1; W 3 lb; M parchment; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65 Location: 9-107.

How Divine Gifts of Power Differ from Demonic or Diabolic Influence: An obscure treatise, this work attempts to prove that the origin and essential nature of divine powers (miracles, sendings, clerical powers) are utterly distinct from those possessed by denizens of the lower planes. The argument is extremely complex, relying on philology, poetics, and nominalism; still, it is greatly admired by philosophers (even if mostly dismissed by demonologists and diabolists). (A Geradreon; L Mithric; T codex; D 15x5x3; W 7 lb; M succubus-hide bindings; R rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC theology and myth, metaphysics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 600 Location: SL10B-14.

How to Talk with the Natives: A 60-minute instructional video designed to provide a simple primer of equivalence between Rudishva and Mithric. A clearly terrified Archontean prisoner provides the Mithric pronunciations. Any speaker of Mithric with INT>15 who views this video 1-4 times will be able to read and pronounce most Rudishva glyphs. It also permits a 50% chance to convey simple ideas in spoken Rudishva. (A Anonymous; L Rudishva and Mithric; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind, humankind; SKC languages, languages) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-74, 6-117, 7-67.

How to Write Elegantly: A basic primer for learning calligraphy in Semi-glyphik, it also contains a small glossary of common words; as a result it could be used to expand a basic knowledge of Semi-glyphik. (A Anonymous; L Varumani Semi-glyphik; T codex; D 7x11x2; W 2 lb; M varumani-skin bindings, parchment folios; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC languages) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 7-30.

Imagining in Rounds: A book of Elvish poetry, full of elliptical but beautiful passages. The themes are largely existential, about how a thinking elf might imagine his/her existence in the broader world. (A Inellador; L Elvish; T scroll; D 1x8x1; W 2 lb; M papyrus; R uncommon; FoS demi-humankind; SKC art and music) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 95 Location: 9-63A.

Injury and Disease: Practical Solutions: The standard rudishva medical manual, this crystal provides instruction on how to cure injuries suffered in the line of work (broken limbs, burns, crushed body parts, etc.) as well as a full catalogue of known diseases with symptoms and cures. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC medicine) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-74, SL12-28.

The Intelligent User's Guide to the Mystical Properties of Gems: A comprehensive treatment, this text presents an alphabetical listing of all known gemstones (with color palettes for each one) along with their reputed use in magical preparations, alchemy, and spell-casting. (A Keladon the Strong; L Mithric; T deluxe codex; D 10x17x9; W 12 lb; M red oxhide binding; R rare; FoS physical universe; SKC geology and mineralogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: SL5-13B, SL11-22.

Irene Bellatrix: on the Wars of this Great Archon: A simple account of the great (female) warrior archon who succeeded Marius Tricotor. Special attention is given to the discovery of the Drowned Canyon during her reign. Close readers will notice several important details that might help gain access to this fabled area: 1) the text describes the 'long staircase' that leads from the environs of the temple of Thoth to the Drowned Canyon; 2) that Irene's architects planned a major water-works, one that they termed a 'spillway'; this project would direct run-off from the Drowned Canyon into a channel running west, past the tomb of the great Marius Tricotor and into the Great Chasm. (A Egidius of Archontos; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9.5x5; W 4 lb; M owlbear-hide bindings, vellum folios; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 9-107, SL6-17A, SL11-22.

Justification for the Ravatorus Project: This dry report from an Archontean functionary is mostly comprised of a long list of alchemical equipment (glass beakers, vials, retorts, etc.) and ingredients, but concludes with a valuable, two-folio analysis of the benefits of continuing to fund 'the strange, ancient survivor known as Ravatorus' (Reiv-Tor; see area SL7-23). Lipanius's analysis conveys the following information: 1) 'Ravatorus' was a rudishva alchemist; 2) he had offered his services to the archon long ago; 3) he had successfully created new hybrid life-forms, including several varieties of 'gilled beings'; 4) the current archon doubted the utility of Ravatorus's increasingly narrow research; 5) Ravatorus was being given only three more months to produce something practical, that the archon could employ against the Sortians. GM Note: this quire of parchment summarizes the backstory of Reiv-Tor, and might prove useful in devising strategies to oppose him. (A Lipanius the chartouliarios; L Mithric; T quire; D 7x9x.5; W .5 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind, fauna; SKC biology, ichthyoids) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL7-9.

The Kauketiad: An epic poem in remarkably good alexandrine verse describing the wars of the Archontean against the heqeti. Rather than emphasizing heroic individuals (as does the Deeds of Marius Tricotor - q.v.), this poem de-emphasizes individual leaders in favor of a constant repetition of the main virtues of the Archontean martial class: fidelity, protection, vengeance, and nobility. The verse allegorizes these virtues with special objects, respectively a ring, armor, a sword and the heart (GM Note: this might be a clue to the puzzle in area 6-154). The text also includes directions to the great ziggurat of the enemy: "from the foot of the chasm, follow the tunnels delved just north of the lake, on the east wall of the cavern." It includes a detailed description of the ziggurat of Kauket (areas 10-32 to 10-35) (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x9x3; W 3 lb; M demon-hide bindings, vellum folios; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 6-97, 8-5, 9-62.

Kel Bormol's Chess Diary, vol. 3: This 16-folio quire is a chess diary in Mithric recording games played by Kel Bormol, the Overseer of Thoth (see SL3-2 and SL3-2A). Clearly part of a series of chess diaries, this one records the last games before Kel Bormol's disappearance. The cover folio bears the title, and each of the remaining folios has the same format: a header reading "KB versus [name]", plus a date, and then a series of chess annotations. The last four opponents were the same person: "Hithra Paleologos" (see 3-36A to 3-36E).

Across the bottom of the recto of folio 9 is scrawled the following: "Hithra reveals his weakness at last! He relies too heavily on his High Priests. He is mine!" Kel Bormol seems to have won each match. Folio 12 recto is headed "KB versus Hithra Paleologos. 1801 AEP", but there is no record of the moves or outcome of that match (for that was the date on which Kel Bormol was imprisoned in his own chess set - see SL3-2A).

Over the last four folios, a different hand has made entries and observations in Archontean about “specimens”: these include their ‘date of capture’, ‘size’, ‘endurance’, and ‘resistance to treatment’. The second hand is that of Tikun Thane, who is recording his capture of baboons for breeding. (A Kel Bormol, with recent additions by Tikun Thane; L Mithric and Archontean; T quire; D 4x7x.5; W .5 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 125 Location: SL3-2.

Laboratory Notes of Spiv-Kol, Chief Science Officer: This long (3 hour) recording contains 50 short segments in which Spiv-Kol describes in flat terms the lack of progress of the science lab in finding a suitable combination of minerals to replicate the chemical reactions that would allow the Beacon’s shuttle to be converted to interstellar flight. The last two entries are different. The penultimate is cautious but optimistic, noting that “A breakthrough seems imminent.” The final entry, however, is animated and joyous, as Spiv-Kol breathes “Harmony Restored!” (the Rudishva equivalent to ‘Eureka’) over and over, before smiling and declaring “The formula has been sent to Chemical Engineer Fek-Prail and to our Captain. The long exile is now over.”

There is not much of interest here, except to those interested in piecing together the story of the rudishva. The crystal confirms a scientific breakthrough in chemical engineering (see Creating D-3He Reactions from Native Minerals) that seems to have implied the ability of the rudishva to leave Arden Vul. When the news leaked to the kaliyani, however, the kaliyani put their plan of revolt into action. (A Spiv-Kol; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS physical universe; SKC chemistry) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL9-48.

Laelius’s Linguistic Primer, or How to Speak the Old Ones’ Tongue: This three-volume work is a one-stop resource for those wishing to learn the Rudishva language. The first volume is a grammar, one that makes surprisingly good sense of Rudishva. The second volume is a word-list organized by Archontean words; each Archontean word is followed by its transliterated Rudishva equivalent, plus a phonetical pronunciation guide. The last volume reverses the organization of the second: an alphabetically-organized list of transliterated Rudishva words with their Archontean equivalents. Only two copies of this text is known to exist. (A Laelius the Praetor; L Mithric and Rudishva; T 3-volume codex; D 10x17x5 (each); W 8 lb (each); M red-leather bindings, vellum; R unique; FoS humankind, humanoids and giantkind; SKC languages) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL12-25, SL14-4.

Lament of the Beacon: This shakily-recorded data crystal was produced by Psalor-Ki (c.f. 5-74) as a complete, if subjective, record of the crash of the Beacon, the exploits of the rudishva, and their swift demise. Experiencing this production through the GnuCoder 5000 will be slightly unnerving, as Psalor-Ki has only a partial familiarity with recording techniques; most of the 10-minute production is experienced as if one were a camera operator filming an interview. Still the viewer will gain a basic overview of the rudishva experience in Arden Vul, as well as the cause of their demise. (A Psalor-Ki; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, 5-97.

Lamentations of Hesus, or the Last Days of Lord Thoth’s Dominion: This parchment bifolium explains how civil order broke down in Arden Vul after the death of the last archon, Uriel Basileon, and the retreat of the imperial legions. Hesus and the other members of an elite ascetic sect, the Inner Order of Thoth, refused to leave the Sanctum [GM: area 5-83]; they were encouraged in their devotion by an avatar of Thoth himself that appeared miraculously in their hour of need. This avatar, which sometimes called itself Oziman, was fair and persuasive, and swiftly gained control over the surviving monks.

As city services failed, starvation ensued, and anarchy commenced, the devotees of the Inner Order began to act more and more strangely. Hesus, who had been sent on a mission of desperation to the Lower Halls to find supplies, returned to find his colleagues insane; they were conducting perverse rituals in honor of a new incarnation of Thoth, ‘the Tentacled One’ (GM Note: this refers to the paralyzing brain in 5-65).

Hesus retreated to this hidden chamber. Despondent at increasingly grisly rites and insane liturgies of his erstwhile colleagues, Hesus eventually set down this account and then drank poison. (A Hesus Tecum, apocrisarius of the Inner Order; L secret tongue of the priests of Thoth; T bifolium; D 8x12x.25; W .25 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65 Location: 5-78.

The Lay of Marius Invictus: A poem summarizing portions of the author’s prose Deeds of Marius Tricotor (see 6-135), this text is long on stirring prose and short on details. Still, the details mentioned provide an important clue as to how the Archontean defeated the heqeti. The first stanzas read as follows:

*Gliding into the fathomless deep,
To hunt the hopping things where they creep,
The cruising sky-sled bore noble Marius.*

*Well-armed and -girt was the famous lord,
Ere he set forth to face the darkening horde,
Astride his ancient sky-sled sat Marius.*

*Down the crevasse and past the Span,
Thru’ the purple mists where the boneless ran,
the shining Tablet of the Beacon guided Marius.*

*O’er the croaking and the dire moans
Rose foul tones from the flutes of bone,
Yet silence emanated from the Iron Circlet of Marius.*

*Tho’ leapers leapt and creepers crept,
And darts flew and slimes dripped,
Shielded by the Warlock’s annular marrow was Marius.*

*When the Eldest Cantor spake his charm,
And the risen Behemoth sought him harm,
The Ebon Spear streaked forth from the hand of Marius.*

*And thus the gore-clad cyclopean mound,
With heaps of twisted bodies strewn all around,
Was cleansed through the mighty blows of Marius.*

The poem refers to the following famous artifacts employed by Marius Tricolor (for Marius, see 6-154): a rudishva hover-sled (e.g., 6-4, 6-100, 7-36; see new technological items), the tablet of the Beacon (9-107; see new technological items), the iron circlet of Ghanor (3-127A; see new magic items), the bone ring of Jagri-Naz (5-74; see new magic items), and the ebon spear (SL5-13B; see new magic items). (A Lucius Cornelius Scriptor; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x19x4; W 4 lb; M black leather bindings embossed with gold leaf; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 3-163D, 4-8A, 5-74, 6-75, 6-133, 7-21, 7-76A, SL4-48, SL6-17A, SL6-43.

Legionary Rex and the Celadon Shipment: This text comprises the 13th installment in a series of adventure stories featuring the eponymous “Rex”, a legionary in the XLVth Velites (a fictional legion). Rather breathless, and written in a simplistic style, each chapter ends with a cliff-hanger. Rex is tall, olive-skinned, black-haired, with a sharp but elegant nose and a square jaw; the ladies find him irresistible. The final chapter (of ten) also provides a hook to the next volume in the series. In this volume Rex locates a missing shipment of high-quality celadon-ware stolen by some ignoble goblin freedmen from an honest female Archontean innkeeper. It was a well-known ‘secret’ that Marcus Marcus was a pseudonym of a famous Archontean philosopher, the identity of whom was a popular topic for discussion. (A Marcus Marcus; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x3; W 3 lb; M cheap cloth boards; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC literature) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 8-133.

Legionary Rex and the Hidden Temple: The 7th installment in a series of adventure stories featuring the eponymous “Rex”, a legionary in the XLVth Velites (a fictional legion). Rather breathless, and written in a simplistic style, each chapter ends with a cliff-hanger. Rex is tall, black-haired, with a sharp but elegant nose and a square jaw; the ladies find him irresistible. The final chapter (of ten) also provides a hook to the next volume in the series. This installment finds Rex locating a lost temple to the bat god, Camazotz, one tended by vampiric maidens. Rex stakes all the vampires, and saves a pretty maiden who was due to be sacrificed. It was a well-known ‘secret’ that Marcus Marcus was a pseudonym of a famous Archontean philosopher, the identity of whom was a popular topic for discussion. (A Marcus Marcus; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x3; W 3 lb; M cheap cloth boards; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC literature) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: SL6-17A.

Letters Home: A 90-minute series of video interviews recorded in front of the Residential Pod (6-113) in which rudishva crewmen express longing for Rudish (their home planet), assorted mothers, wives and children, and numerous unrecognizable words (e.g., ‘splitter’ – a vegetable, ‘uvretiq’ – a signature dish, ‘pilnic’ – an alcoholic beverage, and ‘Kelj Falls’ – a famous landmark). Director: Mol-Prev. (A Mol-Prev; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, 6-117, 9-90.

Lexicon of Mithric: The standard grammar and dictionary of Mithric (the ancient form of Archontean). Two weeks’ study allows basic grasp of Mithric, provided one already knows modern Archontean. One year’s systematic study will provides full reading fluency. (A Basilia the Grammarian; L Archontean and Mithric; T codex; D 10x15x5; W 7 lb; M blue cloth boards, parchment leaves; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC languages) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 3-5, 9-70, SL10B-9.

The Life and Deeds of Rekkarev. A 15-minute, highly sympathetic overview of the life of the kaliyani Second Science Officer, narrated by his friend and colleague, Spiv-Kol. Makes the case for Rekkarev’s brilliance, lauds him for his discovery of arcanum (see new magic items) and his realization that it could be used in conjunction with deuterium compounds to form a reaction capable of powering a fusion engine, and laments his untimely demise at the hands of a mud worm (see new monsters) on Sub-Level 9. The video suggests greater harmony in the science team than other crystals do, and hints at the important formulae for fueling the shuttle (see 9-94 and SL9-48). (A Spiv-Kol; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R humanoids and giantkind; FoS; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: SL9-52.

Litany of Light: This text describes the central liturgical ceremony of the ancient cult of Thoth. The ceremony is simultaneously allegorical and magical, and it celebrates Thoth’s gift of knowledge to his faithful through the metaphor of light. The Litany is conducted through four sections.

The first is the Invocation of Light: in it, participants chant “Let the Faithful Acknowledge the Darkness and Invoke the Light of Truth” for several minutes, in a round-style chant; the invocation ends with the celebrant declaring: “Let Thoth Illuminate My Ignorance.” The Invocation is meant to beseech Thoth to share his wisdom with the world.

The second section is called the Reception of Light; in it, participants celebrate the benefits of Thoth’s revealed light (or wisdom). During this portion, participants intone the phrase: “Let the Faithful Acknowledge the Darkness and Invoke the Light of Truth,” before the celebrant ends the section with the words: “Let Thoth Illuminate My Ignorance.”

The third section, entitled the Glorification of Light, enjoined participants to exalt the wisdom they had received from Thoth. During it, participants individually recite the phrase, “Let the Faithful Render Honor and Glory to the Light Which Reveals All,” without regard for unison. It concludes after many minutes with the celebrant shouting “All Glory to the Light of Knowledge.”

The final section of the Litany is called the Concealing of Light, and reminds participants that Thoth’s gifts are bestowed on the faithful, and not necessarily on all and sundry. During this section, participants whisper “The Light Must Be Guarded Against the Impious” in hushed voices before joining the celebrant to declaim, in a stentorian voice, “Thoth’s truths are for Thoth’s Children.”

Texts of the Litany exist in deluxe and simple versions; the deluxe versions are oversized, with ample illumination; the simple versions are portable copies, and contain merely the words over suggested chant rhythms. The canticles of the Litany are also inscribed in stone in areas 2-2 through 2-5, as well as on a column at TS-3. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex (mostly); D varies; W varies; M varies; R uncommon; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC metaphysics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 (simple), 250 (deluxe) Location: AV-searching the ruins, table 7; 2-47, 2-56E, 2-72, 3-16 (partial), 3-24, 3-158, 4-8C, 4-24

(incomplete), 5-3 (partial), 5-78, 6-114 (partial), 7-76 (Aruna the Gatherer), 7-76A, SL9-27A, SL10B-9.

Liturgy of the Strong: This seven-verse chant was a common liturgy used in antiquity by the temple of Set. The verses assert the strength and invulnerability of the liturgist in increasingly stark terms. As a result, this was particularly popular with Set guardsmen, who loved to chant it in unison when advancing on their foes. The liturgy was lost in antiquity; should it be rediscovered and delivered to the modern cult, the guardsmen will quickly adopt it as their favored battle chant. When chanted by three or more cultists (or guardsmen) at the same time, the liturgy provides a bonus of +25% to morale checks.

Copies of the liturgy are rare, since in antiquity the simple chant was known to most and it was therefore rarely written down. The few surviving copies are typically simple scrolls without much inherent value. (A Anonymous; L the secret tongue of the priests of Set; T scroll; D 1.5x8x1; W 1 lb; M parchment; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC philosophy & ethics and psychology) Experience Point Value: -- G.P. Value: 3,000 gp to the cult of Set Location: 4-138B, 4-146, 5-74, SL13-14.

The Lives of the Noble Founders, Arden and Vul: This was the standard, semi-hagiographic puff-piece about the noble companions Arden and Vul and their selfless devotion to the empire. It presents the Twelve Labors of Arden (see Arden Vul books), as well as the Four Summonings of Vul, albeit in adumbrated form. A reader will gain few useful details outside of the Labors and Summonings. (A Herodocius the Legate; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x13x5; W 6 lb; M brown leather binding; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 45 Location: 2-70, 4-55, 8-116, 9-70, SL6-17A.

Lo! The People have been Abandoned!: An eleven-minute recording filmed by Chirk, a varuda junior officer. Chirk describes in breathless terms how one morning the ‘people’ discovered the halls of the people closed and locked, with even the transportation pads (e.g. 5-112) preventing egress. All attempts at communication with the Captain failed; the only message is a repeating one from the Masters that stated: “Emergency! Shelter in Place! Your officers have the situation under control. When it is safe to do so, access will be restored. Please wait.” Chirk expresses confidence that the great leader, Raalk, will be able to negotiate an end to the quarantine. The video ends in a violent shouting and feather-fluffing match as Chirk is accosted by several other varuda, all of whom shout for him to ‘open the blessed doors!’

Although it doesn’t explain the cause of the quarantine of the varuda, this video makes clear what happened to them: the rudishva quarantined the brood halls when an emergency arose, and apparently the quarantine was never lifted. (A Chirk; L Varuda; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-111.

Locomotion in Animals and Humanoids: A classic Archontean work of zoology with a focus on the muscles and ligaments that allow locomotion. Thorough study of the text will permit a reader to know the relative movement rate of all non-monstrous animals and of the known sentient races. There is a 5% chance that Spindledor has also treated a given monster, the movement of which can then also be known. (A Spindledor; L Mithric; T codex; D 11x18x9; W 12 lb; M ogre-hide binding, parchment leaves; R uncommon; FoS fauna; SKC all) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 8-125, SL12-25.

The Logbooks of the Thegns: This title comprises a collection of 103 quarto codices bound in grey lizard hide. The logbooks annalistically record the deeds and events of the varumani, both good and bad, in the voice of every varumani thegn from the 8th to the 37th (i.e., to Varboka in the present). The earliest codex (the sole logbook of the 8th thegn) records the submission of the varumani to the archon, Marius Tricotor, called ‘invictus’ (see 6-154); the third logbook of the 16th thegn records the retreat of the Archontean; the fourth logbook of the 31st thegn records the glorious varumani victory over Adrienic at the Cave of Blood (7-76); and so forth.

The number of logbooks produced by a given Thegn varies by the length of that thegn’s reign and by personal proclivity; it is evident to any serious scholar, for instance, that the logbooks have become terser and less polished in the past century or so. (A various thegns; L Varumani; T codices; D 9x13x3; W 2 lb each; M grey lizard-hide bindings, goblin-skin parchment; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 50 (each) G. P. Value: 300 (each) Location: 7-67.

A Lover’s Lament: A slim volume, this text contains twelve original and highly accomplished love poems ranging in length from 15 to 135 lines. Although “Aelia of Perros” is well known among literary scholars and lovers of poetry for espousing same-sex love, a close reader of this volume will find nothing to suggest that theme here. This is because the poems are actually the work of Sir Sorrow, the Sun-Scarred Knight (SL4-19); she attributed them to Aelia partly out of modesty, and partly to attract interest. (A Aelia of Perros [actually Sir Sorrow]; L Archontean; T codex; D 4x8x1; W 1 lb; M red calfskin binding, vellum leaves; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 200 Location: SL4-19.

The Manipulation of Lesser Peoples, or My Time Among the Beastmen: A set of serious musings on how to use fear, intimidation, love, and reward to achieve diplomatic and political goals. This text would be invaluable to Machiavellian politicians. (A Sir Hegemon; L Archontean; T codex; D 10x16x3; W 4 lb; M goatskin binding; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: SL10B-19.

Memorial Codex of the Cult of Thoth: This volume presents the names, death dates, and brief biographies of the priors, high priests, and selected other officials of the priesthood of Thoth. The organization of the volume is calendrical, not chronological, working from January to December; each entry appears on the appropriate date of death of the figure in question. This makes finding an individual figure somewhat difficult. The codex is filled with numerous interlinear and marginal additions and comments, as well as a quite a few deleted (scraped) entries. The first quire, moreover, contains a full version of the Litany of Light. The genealogical and political information contained in the codex make it valuable to modern scholars and sages. (A various; L Mithric; T codex; D 17x33x11; W 15 lb; M white leather binding; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 450 Location: 3-158.

Meson's Guide to the Brothels of Archontos: The title is fairly clear. This small octavo volume provides a detailed description, with qualitative ratings, of the seedier side of Archontos, at least as it existed close to 1,300 years ago. Meson added comments about madams and his own personal (and rather perverse) preferences. The amazing thing is that 10 of the 200 establishments are still in existence. (A Meson the Oak; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9x4; W 3 lb; M black leather binding; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs, sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 8-133, SL6-17A, SL8-23.

Military Instructional Manual: A 240-minute interactive video presentation of how to operate all rudishva weaponry. Anyone who has viewed this video has an improved chance of operating rudishva weapons without error. If the viewer speaks or comprehends Rudishva, then he/she can operate any weapon without error. (A Anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-74, 6-117, 7-67.

Mind over Blood, or How to Cheat Death: This text offers a guide to preparing for lichdom, including the transference of intellect and memory to a new, more durable receptacle (the phylactery). It includes two new spells: mindshift, and planar punishment (see new spells). (A Syagria Aitón; L Archontean; T codex; D 12x15x3; W 5 lb; M brown leather binding; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 1,600 G. P. Value: 6,000 Location: 9-55, SL6-17A.

Moralia in Teracleon: A polemical work of political thought, outlining what Antipater sees as the Machiavellian tendencies implicit in Teracleon's famous "Politics" and arguing that politics should be conducted through a set of moral principles, ones to be derived from traditional stoic traditions. (A Antipater the Sage; L Mithric; T codex; D 10x15x4; W 5 lb; M lizardman-hide binding; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 80 Location: 8-5, 9-62.

My Ancestors: One of the few accounts of the inner society of the realm of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador, by a half-elf who spent two centuries there among his mother's people. (A Pellador Half-Elven; L Elvish; T scroll; D 1.5x8x1.5; W 1 lb; M parchment; R rare; FoS demi-humankind; SKC law and customs, sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 500 Location: SL10B-22.

Native Fauna of the Local Mud Flats: This 63-minute video describes various fauna of the mud-flats of Sub-Level 9 in great detail, both scientific and behavioral. Among the creatures covered are: mud worms and chasm cephalopods (see new monsters for both), as well as sixteen varieties of small insects, lizards, and crustaceans. Viewers will learn the modes of attack of these creatures and, hence, potential methods of detecting them. (A Anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS fauna; SKC arachnids, cephalopods & echinoderms, crustaceans & mollusks, insects, reptiles) Experience Point Value: 200 G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: SL9-48.

The Night Urges: An insipid and rather tame volume of soft-core pornography detailing the exploits of Sturdy Gareth among the ladies of the imperial court. No author is named. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x10x3; W 3 lb; M wooden boards; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 25 Location: 8-133.

The Nine Hells: a Catalogue, with Descriptions and Summoning Notes: An infamous, dangerous text that attempts to catalogue the types of devil by region of hell, along with sympathetic accounts of the personalities, ambitions, and alliances of the princes. The volume always smells strongly of sulfur. There is a 1% chance that it contains the name of a powerful demon or devil. (A Ixion of Narsileon; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x12x5; W 6 lb; M Folios of dried human skin bound in the blood-red hide of a demon; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes, outer) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 850 Location: 4-55, 9-64, SL6-17A.

Notes on the Followers of the Arch-Traitor, Priscus Pulcher, with Suggestions for their Destruction: This small volume constitutes a jeremiad against the Sortians, and especially against one of their leaders, Priscus Pulcher. Although the author is anonymous, it was obviously written by a highly biased Theosoph. The text misrepresents Priscus's goals and agenda to make him appear as a traitor and villain. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x12x1; W 2 lb; M unbound gathering of four quires; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 2-70.

Notes on the Rudishva Spirits: This unbound quire contains a series of transcripts of conversations between Archontean scholars and the two rudishva AIs, RAJ-750 (6-27) and AKL-600 (SL14-13). Since the Archontean recognized AKL-600's holograph as 'illusory', and since they never located the weapons pod (6-27) and thus only spoke with RAJ-750 through the Beacon's bridge (SL14-10), they considered these knowledgeable voices to be 'spirits', 'ghosts' or gods. In fact, the last three folios of the quire contain Holger's speculations that these 'spirits' are in fact the deities of the rudishva. Given this assumption, he expresses confusion that these gods offer no spells, and seem to exist to aid, rather than command, their subjects.

Readers of the text learn: a) that these entities exist (if they have not yet discovered the two AIs); b) that the entities can offer advice about rudishva technology and the layout of the Halls; and c) that the entities are maddeningly unwilling to reveal certain locations and knowledge (e.g., how to open the Obsidian Gates - see 5-6D). (A Berricus Greybeard and Holger Risus; L Mithric; T quire; D 7x10x1; W 1.5 lb; M parchment quire; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs, sociology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: SL14-4.

On the Care and Keeping of Baboons: This text offers a full biological description of baboons of all types, including the large Arden Vul ones. It also offers advice on breeding them, along with cautions about trying to pen and control them. A reader gains full information about their combat abilities. (A Graika the Breeder; L Mithric; T codex; D 10x13x3; W 5 lb; M baboon-hide binding; R rare; FoS fauna; SKC mammals) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 2-70.

On the Errors of the Sortians: This anonymous treatise offers a fairly reasoned and substantive explanation for why the Sortians were misguided and incorrect. In rebutting their egalitarian claims about magic and sorcerous training, the treatise actually provides a fairly good overview of the range of Sortian perspectives from the pacifism of Priscus Pulcher to the violent proclivities of Macrinus Furiosus. Still, the author offers plausible counter-arguments, ones that put the good of the whole and the needs of the state above the rights of the individual. The modern Priscians would pay a fair sum for this text. (A Anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 11x16x1; W 1.5 lb; M cloth boards, parchment leaves; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 (500 to Priscians) Location: 3-24, 9-70, SL6-17A.

On the Location of Priscus Pulcher: This partly-completed quire contains the semi-learned speculations of Alexandros, librarian for the cult of Set, concerning the location of the remains of the notorious Sortian, Priscus Pulcher. Alexandros lists a total of seventeen purported resting places for Priscus's bones, and offers brief arguments for and against each location. In every case but one he ends on a dubious note. The one location which he has not eliminated is entitled "the villa of Lady Ysadora" and refers to area AV-20, which, of course, does lead to Sub-Level 11 and Priscus's remains (SL11-24). The other locations range from the fanciful ("the Cloud Castle of Earl Reginald") to the plausible ("a charnel pit on the outskirts of Arden Vu," or "the Tower of Scrutiny," aka TS-1). (A Alexandros the bibliothecarius; L Mithric; T quire; D 6x9x.5; W .5 lb; M parchment; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 4-55, SL10B-9.

On Profit: A standard guide to venture capitalism, with advice on how to form collective ventures, how to finance them, and how to impose monopolistic conditions within a region. The copy held in SL15-7 has a secret ledger inscribed in a code written into the margins. If the code can be broken, it provides blackmail material on five scions of famous, old Archontean families.

Of course, that information is 1,500 years old; but there is a 20% chance per family that the blackmail is still 'hot', and could be used to squeeze 1,000-100,000 gp out of one of the Five Families. (A Fulvius the Factor; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x15x4; W 5 lb; M black leather binding with gold embossed seal; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 65 Location: 8-5, SL15-7.

On the Terrible Old Gods: The only extant copies of this notorious text are small, octavo volumes bound in demon-hide, with obscure arcane symbols burned into the binding. The edges are slightly charred. The language is an extremely primitive form of Mithric that makes it difficult to read or transcribe. The author's identity is mysterious. Usually he is thought to be a pre-imperial sorcerer in possession of now-lost arts, but a few archmages have dismissed him as an invention, and his ideas as fables.

Sarquin describes a set of seven ancient deities who ruled the planes before time and before the appearance of human gods and demons. According to Sarquin these seven are 'elder' and more powerful than any human deity. They were banished from time and reality by processes unknown and are 'now' mostly forgotten (even in Sarquin's day). Indeed, they are only remembered by obscure and dangerous cults. Their goals are opaque, but cultists believe they seek to return to the main channel of time so as to wreak vengeance for the exile of their deities. Among the seven entities are Rimmaq-Isfet, Frelothian, Mzingaloq, Viirdo Star-Eater, Piqor-Piqaad, Jeqellathon, and Nzimballik.

Sarquin spends the most time describing Rimmaq-Isfet. He alleges that Rimmaq-Isfet's mind and motives are unknowable, not merely in the usual sense that a god's godhood rendered its actions ineffable, but in a deeper, more profound sense: it seemed, perhaps, that Rimmaq-Isfet had no motives, or at least no motives and no agendas that were comprehensible to human minds.

According to Sarquin, Rimmaq-Isfet bears the following titles: the Devourer, the Worm who Licks the Heart of the Earth, the Extruder of Potent Slimes, the Fecund Sire, and the Corroder. Its symbols are a thin black circle on a white or blue field; a sinuous tongue; or an ovoid cave opening on a cliff face. Occasionally cultists worship it as the Worm of Qok. Sarquin offers varying and contradictory descriptions of Rimmaq-Isfet, sometimes as a colossal salamander over 200' long, other times as a gigantic multi-headed worm, other times as a titanic biped with the head of a worm. Some accounts describe it as having legs, others do not. All accounts confirm the existence of at least one enormous maw filled with teeth and circled with a beard of tentacles; all accounts also agree in describing its three, dull-green, lidless eyes. The coloring of Rimmaq-Isfet is variable in the several accounts, ranging from midnight black with flecks of yellow, to mottled green and brown, to corpse white. Many cultists speak ecstatically of the properties of its sweat, which is scraped from its skin by fawning spawn and delivered to lucky (?) allies.

Sarquin also devoted an entire quire to an ontological discussion of the relationships, if any, between demonkind and the 'elder gods'. He used a variety of philosophical, logical, and theological arguments to suggest that demons were clearly distinct from these entities, as their motives were at least partially comprehensible and their forms at least analogous to those experienced in prime material reality; in contrast to the relatively comprehensible, if still fearsome nature of demons, the appearance of the Old Gods was utterly foreign, even incomprehensible. Even the form usually ascribed to it by cultists was, in this view, merely allegorical.

Despite this firm conclusion, however, Sarquin mused that certain demons may have been spawned by Rimmaq-Isfet and the other Old Gods; as such the most potent demons might approximate the powers, instincts, and portfolios of the Old Gods while nevertheless existing as shadows of their sires.

Sarquin concluded that any who choose to worship the Old Gods, let alone to conduct rituals on their behalf, must be held as criminally insane, and should be persecuted with extreme prejudice. This volume is considered highly dangerous, and thus highly valuable. (A Sarquin of Archontos; L primitive Mithric; T codex; D 8x6x6; W 3 lb; M bound in grey demon-hide with mystical symbols bound into the bindings; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC outer planes) Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 5-74, 9-62, SL10A-32, SL15-7.

On the Wars of the Old Ones with the Trolls: This text comprises a dry, tactical account of the early archons' military campaigns against the varumani (see new monsters). Although much of his analysis of motives and small-unit tactics are 'imagined', the volume is useful for its clear description of various locations within Arden Vul. It contains accurate directions to the court of the 'Troll Lord' (7-75) from Level 3. It also contains sketches of the layout of all non-secret areas of the varumani domain (areas 7-1, 7-8 to 7-33, 7-38, 7-65 to 7-77), although these are overlaid with arrows and tactical notes. (A Clarius; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x15x4; W 6 lb; M red leather bindings; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 400 Location: 4-55, 5-74, SL11-22, SL12-25, SL14-4.

Our Friends, the Kaliyani!: A slick, superficial, 15-minute puff-piece about the important strategic and leadership ability of our 'wet-skinned allies.' The crystal is notable for a segment on the surprising aptitude of the kaliyani for 'the new discipline of techno-sorcery' that they learned from the native inhabitants and that they enhanced via the unusual properties of 'the orange mineral' (arcanum, see new magic items). It contains lots of images of smiling rudishva (including Captain Leil-Jor) shaking hands with dour-looking kaliyani. (A anonymous; L Rudishva, Kaliyani; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 6-117.

Our New Home!: This crystal provides a video travelogue of the Halls as they existed in the days of the rudishva. It is narrated by the cheerful morale officer, Mol-Prev. Much will be unfamiliar, but several features – and the rough routes between them – are still recognizable to the seasoned explorer of Arden Vul. Among these recognizable locations are:

"Our Command Center, where Captain Leil-Jor prepares our return to the skies." – i.e., areas 5-94 to 5-98.

"The Transport Hall, through which we move about our domain." – area 5-92.

"The Forge, where we are building the replacement parts we need to fly the Beacon out of here!" – 5-89.

"The Detention Block. Enough said!" – SL2-2.

"The Weapons Locker, although I can't show you the Captain's new security protocols, or she'd have to kill us both! [smile]." – 6-27.

"Grev-Kilj's seat of scrutiny, where the Far-seer watches over the chasm and the deeps." – 3-52.

"Home away from home, with its all-important entertainment consoles!" – a view of the exterior and interior of 6-113, 6-118, 6-121 and 6-122.

"The Bridge of the good, old Beacon, still operative and ready to fly again." - SL14-10.

"The Officers' Quarters - See? They don't live any better than we do." - 9-93 to 9-96.

"Our transit shaft, by which we move heavy equipment and supplies." - e.g. 5-84.

(A Mol-Prev; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 250 G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 6-117.

Pandects of Thaumaturgical Visitation: This treatise provides a comprehensive theory of magic that is brilliant but confusing. One month of study by a reader with at least a 16 INT raises INT by 1-2 (to a max of 19) but also decreases WIS by 0-1. Authorship (or alleged authorship) varies by the particular edition one possesses. Many sages believe that Annodius the Archadepth was the original author, but copies attributed to others, including Theodore the White, Knut Knot-Cleaver, Lugga the Clever (a goblin), and Fauricius of Magger, are known. Regardless of how many copies are located and read, a reader can only benefit once from the basic text. (A varies; L Archontean; T codex; D 11x8x5; W 4 lb; M heavy linen paper folios bound in sharkskin; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 2,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 7-22, 9-64, 9-70, SL5-13B, SL6-17A, SL9-27.

Paulus and the Goblin King: A serialized set of simple adventure stories in the mold of Legionary Rex (q.v.), this series relates the adventures of Paulus, a simple chartouarios working in the Private House in Narsileon. In each tale Paulus ends up mixed up in intrigue and skullduggery, generally with exotic settings and with the assistance of his faithful goblin servant, Freedigger. In this volume (the 4th in the series), Paulus and Freedigger thwart a plot by the wild goblin king, Grimganto, to incite the freedmen of the empire to a revolt. (A Mirko Bennius; L Mithric; T scroll; D 2.5x11x2.5; W 3 lb; M parchment; R common; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 8-133.

The People Improve: This crystal contains a 45-minute film describing the efforts of the rudishva scientists to bio-engineer 'new and more deadly' varieties of varumani (i.e., 'the People'). It features a full walkthrough of the Troll Pits (5-131) and their control center (5-132), as well as interviews with the thegns Vanara and Druva (both of whom appear stoic and slightly pained by the process). Those who view this crystal 1-4 times will be able to operate the Troll Pits without difficulty (5-131, 5-132). (A Rekkarev, the Second Science Officer; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC biology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 7-67.

Personal Diary of Mol-Prev: A 420-minute, low-tech, un-enhanced series of monologues by Mol-Prev, in which the morale officer displays growing despair over: 1) the inability of the engineers to fix the Beacon, 2) the growing lack of hope among the rudishva crew, 3) the increasing disrespect shown by all three servitor races, but especially the kaliyani (whom Mol-Prev suspects of imminent treason), 4) their chances of surviving another war with the "hopping ones", and 5) his anxiety about rudishva susceptibility to 'slime attacks'. (A Mol-Prev; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, sociology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 6-117.

Planar Dwellers and their Powers: This obscure work offers detailed descriptions (with illustrations) of 1-3 types of residents of each of the inner planes. Descriptions include special abilities and vulnerabilities (with a 20% chance per entry to provide an incorrect power or vulnerability). Examples include efreeti, marids, air elementals, shadows, etc. Some copies of the book (25% chance) include additional entries for demons and devils (1-3 types of each creature). Strangely, no two copies of the text contain the same set of entries. (A Nominus Obscurus; L Archontean; T codex; D 13.5x22x5; W 11 lb; M parchment leaves, blood for ink, and efreeti-hide bindings; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 450 Location: 7-22, 9-55, 9-64, 9-70, SL5-13B, SL10B-23.

Platinum Portals: An Improvement on the Standard Silver Models: This unique and experimental treatise offers a theory for the construction and employment of more permanent and more stable portals to the various planes; these new portals would appear to be platinum, not silver. It is not clear that Cornelius's theories were effective. (A Cornelius of Arden Vul; L Archontean; T codex; D 11x15x3; W 4.5 lb; M unbound parchment; R unique; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft, planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: 9-70.

Plotina's Recipe Book: This valuable text contains the formulae devised by the great alchemist, Plotina, for six of her special, unique potions: that is, potions of fire resistance, frost cage, Greek fire, hostile levitation, molasses, and singing birds (see new magic items for all). (A Plotina; L Mithric; T single quire; D 8x11x.5; W 1 lb; M parchment; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 9-70, SL6-96.

Poetic Interludes: Nerix-Vaj was the most important and beloved of the classical rudishva poets, in part for the aching nostalgia produced by the harmonious combination of his glyphs, but also for the care in which glyphs of similar shapes and appearance were grouped together and for the sensory outputs (smell, sound, etc.) that accompanied his 'poem-crystals'. So that he could continue to enjoy the poetry after the rudishva technology started to break down, Melok-Ri (aka Master Malachite - see SL10A-32), transcribed Nerix-Vaj's Glyphik into the more literary form of Glyphis, adding some text to metaphorically represent the sensory accompaniments of the original. The result is its own work of art, a loving interpretation of the master by admiring student. (A Nerix-Vaj, transliterated by Melok-Ri; L Rudishva; T codex; D 12x19x5; W 9 lb; M parchment with yellow leather binding; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC literature) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: SL10A-32.

The Politics: A classic text of political philosophy, this work argues that pragmatism and opportunity ought to guide the actions of politically active individuals. In arguing for ends rather than means, the work has acquired a slightly dishonorable odor. (A Teracleon; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x10x2.5; W 4 lb; M parchment with brown leather binding; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC philosophy and ethics, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 5-74, 9-62, SL10A-32.

Pol's Book of Laughs: This text is primarily a joke book, one that contains several hundred jokes of variable quality. Hidden among the humor, however, are copies of many of Pol's original spells, including Pol's Endless Sneezes, Pol's Improved Eye, Pol's Inner Eye, and Pol's Recall (see new spells for all). A casual reader may miss the spells, although detect magic will reveal that something is up with this codex. Only three copies exist, one held in the Tower of Pol, one held by Psalor-Ki, and one acquired somehow by Kerbog Khan. (A Pol, 'the Grinning Mage'; L Mithric; T codex; D 13x20x5; W 10 lb; M parchment with blue leather binding; R very rare; FoS humankind, legends and folklore, supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 10,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 5-74, SL6-17A, SL12-25.

Practical Animal Magic: An immense compendium of the mundane and magical properties of animal organs, fluids, hides, hair, scales, and so forth, this volume serves as a standard textbook for sorcerers and alchemists interested in experimenting with magical and medicinal brews. Useful ideas for spell components are easily gleaned from a careful reading. (A Licinius Monad; L Mithric; T codex; D 14x22x6; W 12 lb; M parchment, leather binding; R uncommon; FoS fauna; SKC [all fauna]) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: AV-Searching the Ruins (table 7), SL8-22, SL14-4.

Practical Liturgies of Lord Thoth: This text provides a useful compendium of one hundred eleven liturgical ceremonies for the worship of Thoth, complete with proper gestures, invocations, and chants. Ceremonies are divided according to daily ceremonies (73 liturgies) and ceremonies specific to unusual occurrences, such as the hallowing of a new altar, the ordination of a new priest, etc. (38 liturgies). For all of its utility, this volume does not contain the Litany of Light. (A anonymous; L secret tongue of the priests of Thoth; T codex; D 16x32x9; W 15 lb; M parchment, with orange leather binding; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC metaphysics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 2-70.

Principles of Comedy: A standard philosophical work, this text attempts both to explain the biology of laughing and humor as well as the philosophical and moral value of comedy to the human soul. (A Teracleon; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x13x3; W 3.5 lb; M parchment with leather binding; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: SL6-17A, SL11-22, SL12-25.

Principles of Magical Attraction: This general work is a fundamental study of the various methods used to create sympathetic magical connections between objects or individuals. A brief section on blood makes elliptical reference to the Sanguinator's notorious work, Blood is the Key to All (q.v.). (A Herluinus; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x16x3; W 6 lb; M parchment with wooden boards; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 5-74, SL12-25.

Preparing for the Long Death: This treatise describes the processes to be used in creating undead mummies. It is traditionally recorded on three ivory plaques, the first of which details the materials needed for mummification. The second plaque describes the process of mummification, the prayers to be chanted, and the initial spells to be cast in order to create a mummy. The third plaque contains the spell, the long death (see new spells), as well as some final instructions and ritual incantations. Without all three plaques, it is impossible to create a true mummy. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T set of three plaques; D 6x9x1 (for each plaque); W 6 lb; M ivory; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 3,000 G. P. Value: 6,000 Location: 4-142 and 4-146, 9-55.

Proceedings against Triv-Lok: This 360-minute recording describes the lengthy court martial proceedings held by Captain Leil-Jor against Jemadar Triv-Lok. Triv-Lok was accused of dereliction of duty for abandoning her post in the hopes of establishing peace with the heqeti. Captain Leil-Jor eventually found her guilty. The final shot of the recording is of Triv-Lok being forced, unwillingly, into a hemi-cylindrical tube. The tube is one of the cryogenic storage tanks (SL2-2), where Triv-Lok may well still be found. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 6-117.

Proper Marksmanship Techniques: This 41-minute training video walks new recruits through the use of rudishva military weapons, including dart guns, laser pistols, and laser rifles. The video explains how to maintain them, as well as how to fire them. A PC viewing this video will have no chance of misusing these weapons, and will only suffer a -1 non-proficiency penalty if non-proficient. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-111.

"Property of Eustachius the Cantor": As this miscellany lacks any title, it is described by the inscription on the inside cover: "Property of Eustachius the Cantor". The codex contains a variety of sections, including the following: descriptive notes of a variety of Thothian liturgies (Litany of Light, Canticle of Revelation, a Psalmody); descriptions and vague summoning notes for being known as the "Guardians" [i.e., Guardians of Thoth - see new monsters]; a 10-folio history of the temple of Thoth within Arden Vul; a series of capsule hagiographies of early high priests; the exact note sequence for a song called the Cantor's Lament (see 8-148); and two unique spells, the pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr and curse item (see new spells). (A Eustachius the cantor; L the secret tongue of the priests of Thoth; T codex; D 9x12x3; W 5 lb; M leather-bound parchment; R rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC history, theology and myth, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 8,000 Location: 3-57, 7-22, 8-53.

The Properties of Arcanum: This treatise enumerates eight ways in which arcanum (see new magic items) can be used to create, recharge, and modify various items. It makes frequent reference to the 'Creation Molds' (i.e., area 5-89) and includes several of the 'recipes' needed to operate the molds. (A anonymous; L Rudishva Glyphis; T scroll; D 1x10x1; W 2 lb; M parchment, or rudishva linen 'paper' (at 5-97); R; FoS; SKC ) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 2-71, 5-97, SL10A-32.

The Properties of Blood, Especially when Infused with Other Elements: This rare, semi-mystical and semi-scientific text examines the practical and magical uses of blood, especially when it is infused with magical elements (powdered basilisk eye, unicorn hair, etc.). The text distinguishes between 'sanguine ordinary' (blood of non-magical creatures) and 'sanguine special' (blood of magical creatures). To much criticism, Kalut claimed that he could enhance the former with proper infusions, thus transforming it into an analogue of the latter. (A Kalut; L Mithric; T codex; D 5x9x2; W 2.5 lb; M human-skin leaves, human-blood ink, unicorn-hide bindings; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC medicine, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 4,000 Location: SL5-13B, SL8-22, SL15-7.

Prosperity in the Eternal Now: This work of classical rudishva philosophy espouses a zen-like focus on the present rather than a crippling dwelling on the past. Although in his youth Melok-Ri rejected Redip-Beq's teachings, he has, over the millennia, come full circle and is now a devotee of the sage's teachings. The 'book' is an interesting quarto volume bound in white leather; it has the classical Rudishva Glyphik on one folio, and a rough Archontean translation on the facing one. (A Redip-Beq; L Rudishva Glyphik and Archontean; T codex; D 6x9x3.5; W 3 lb; M parchment with white leather binding; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC philosophy and ethics) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-74, SL10A-32.

The Red Book of the Defenders of Arden: This codex is divided into twelve sections, one for each of the twelve Labors of Arden (for the labors, see SL13-10). Within each section is a carefully ruled table, with column headings reading "Name", "Date Completed", "Date Failed". The tables for the first 6 Labors contain approximately 90 names each (e.g., Kaledor Basileon); of these, about 66% successfully completed the labor while 33% seem to have failed. The sections for Labors 7-11, however, have many fewer entries (on average only 35 names), with a much higher failure rate (80% failure).

Note that it is possible to track names across the sections; by spending 1-4 hours one learns that while five individuals completed nine of the eleven labors, and two completed ten, no individual completed all eleven labors. The final section ("The Twelfth Labor") contains no names, either as completed or failed. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex of 252 folios; D 9x15x9; W 9.5 lb; M red oxhide binding; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: SL13-14.

The Rise of the Sortians: This unique text describes the rise of the faction of Sortians within the city of Arden Vul, and recounts their bitter opposition to what they saw as the stultifying rituals and customs of the Order of Thoth and of the great temples (see World of Archontos appendix). The text mentions how visits from Priscus Pulcher fired the imagination of the politically-engaged young, and describes his close emotional attachment to one of the 'Elder Allies', a 'golden one' named Yasidoranicil. In addition to these precious bits of information, the text names ten senior officials of Arden Vul who joined the Sortians, as well as 23 more junior members. Such information (and especially the clue that Priscus Pulcher was bonded to a gold dragon) makes this text invaluable to the modern Priscians. GM note: Yasidoranicil is none other than Isadora, for whom see Sub-Level 11. The author is anonymous, and adopts a pseudo-objective tone, but the fact that he/she does not condemn the Sortians outright is a hint as to his/her loyalties. (A anonymous; L secret tongue of the priests of Set; T special; D 4x4x7; W 3 lb; M seventeen bone plates (4" square) bound together with demon-hide sinew; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 [10,000 to modern Priscians]) Location: 4-142.

A Rudigaya's Best Friend: The first ten folios are written in formal Rudishva Glyphik, and describe a score of plots conceived by Rudiga and his friends that were then carried out against the heqeti and other enemies. The remainder of the text is in Semi-glyphik, and describes centuries' worth of secrets, plots, counterplots, and betrayals relating to the period of Archontean hegemony in Arden Vul. Readers of this tome gain a +1 bonus on to hit and damage rolls against heqeti. (A various; L Rudishva Glyphik and Varumani Semi-glyphik; T codex of 200+ folios; D 5x8x6; W 3 lb; M heqeti-hide bindings; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind, humankind; SKC law and customs, history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 7-17.

Rudishva Devices: This unique manuscript is of immense value to explorers of Arden Vul, as it contains sketches of almost every common rudishva device (including laser weapons), with explanations of functions, properties, and important ‘what not to do’ sections. Someone who has read this volume eliminates most of the danger associated with random experimentation with technological items, and will only suffer a -1 non-proficiency penalty if non-proficient. (A Junius Zofer; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x10x7; W 5 lb; M parchment with brown leather binding; R unique; FoS physical universe; SKC architecture and engineering) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: SL14-4.

Secret Courtship of Julius the Exarch: An X-rated version of the standard Courtship of Julius the Exarch (q.v.). The author is an obvious pseudonym, but for whom? (A ‘Manna of Agger’; L Mithric; T codex; D 4x6x3; W 2 lb; M unbound parchment quires; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 165 Location: 8-116.

Secreta Secretorum: This rare text was compiled, it is said, by a cohort of highly-placed Archontean officials, who met regularly to gossip and exchange secrets. Each copy of the text is slightly different, as new exemplars regularly came to include new secrets. Still, a core of original secrets can be found in all the extant copies. These include all seven of the secret names of Thoth (see below); two ancient scandals concerning the Ligareon clan which could be used in the present for political profit in Narsileon or Archontos; and a map of Level 6 of Arden Vul showing areas 6-130 to 6-160; the genealogical abnormalities of a powerful merchant clan, the Vasildon; evidence proving that the Silent Factor was planned as a front for the imperial Private House; and so forth.

The seven secret names of Thoth are as follows:

Font of Magic Giver of Words
Thrice-Born Linguist
Light of Comprehension
Keeper of the Seven Keys
Guardian of the Silver Veil
Thrice Great

Most copies of the text are deluxe codices, with vellum leaves bound in red leather. Some copies are merely scrolls. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex (mostly); D 6x9x3; W 4 lb; M vellum leaves bound in red leather; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, law and customs, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 8,000 Location: 9-62, 6-133, SL6-94.

Service Manual for Optical Devices produced by GnuCoder S.A.: This dense, chart- and mathematics-heavy video walks viewers through the most typical mechanical issues faced by all entries in the GnuCoder range of viewers, recorders, etc. (see new technological items). A viewer with 18 INT might (10% chance) be able to use this video to repair a malfunctioning piece of GnuCoder equipment. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS physical universe; SKC architecture and engineering) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 5-74, 7-67, SL12-28.

The Seventeen Uses of a Dead Troll: Among the promised uses are the following: a formula to brew troll blood into a short-term potion of regeneration (requiring the blood of one troll, the heart of one troll, and 3 opals worth 1,000 gp each); a recipe for troll-haunch pasties; and a disquisition on the uses of trolls’ eyes in a variety of alchemical formulae. (A Jacobus One-Arm; L Mithric; T scroll; D 1x13x1; W 1 lb; M parchment; R rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC biology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 5-74, 9-62, SL12-25.

The Seventy-Four Ways of Opening the Lotus: One of the most famous volumes of erotica from the late Archontean golden age, this text can appear in numerous sizes (quarto, octavo) and formats (some illustrated). It is basically the Archontean version of the Kama Sutra. (A Rissala the Limber; L Mithric; T codex; D varies; W varies; M parchment or vellum, with high-quality bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 200 Location: 3-58.

Seventy-Seven Quips of Balak the Arch-Mage: A set of numbered aphorisms purportedly uttered by the great archmage, Balak of Arcturus. The subjects are various and apparently unsystematic; some are concerned with social niceties, others with dining, others with strange creatures Balak had encountered, and still others with pseudo-Stoic philosophies. Still, there is secret knowledge buried among the banalities. One month of dedicated study may reveal a pattern to the quips; the reader’s chance of detecting the pattern is 2% per point of INT. The pattern, if discovered, is revealed to be a message embedded in the first, third and final letters of the second, fifth, seventh and ninth word of each quip. The message itself reveals precise directions to the buried laboratory and library (neither of which are in Arden Vul) of Balak himself. GM Note: the more commonly encountered text, The Thirty-Seven Quips of Balak the Sage is a bastardization of the original and contains no message. (A Balak the Arch-mage; L Mithric; T codex; D 3x7x2; W 2.5 lb; M vellum leaves, blue leather binding; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 125 Location: SL5-13B, SL6-17A.

The Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven: Technical Specifications of this Yort-Class Exploration Vessel: This video provides a six-hour walk-through (with hyperlink indices) of the main systems of the Beacon, including life support, weapons, communications, medical, astrogation, and shuttle operations. It is presented in the form of carefully scripted interviews conducted by an anonymous rudishva with a range of engineering officers of several species. As the Beacon split into various modules when it crashed, the program cannot be used in the manner originally intended. Still, any viewer with 17-18 INT has a 15% chance of being able to apply insight gleaned from the video to any one of the pods. This might be particularly significant in helping to understand the shuttle operations (SL13-37B). (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS physical universe; SKC architecture and engineering, astronomy, mathematics, physics) Experience Point Value: 500 G. P. Value: 5,000 Location: 9-90, SL12-28.

Sixteen Steps to Successful Administration: A popular writer from 1,400 years ago, Hoel set out to instruct his readers in successful managerial practice. The text is beloved of middle administrators in temple and imperial bureaucracies. Gargus writes in a breathless, engaging, and affirming style. (A Hoel Gargus; L Mithric; T scroll; D 2x9x2; W 1 lb; M parchment; R common; FoS humankind; SKC psychology, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 7-122, SL8-22.

Solutions to the Propulsion Problem: The crystal is narrated by “Chemical Engineer Fek-Prail” and announces: “the breakthrough we have awaited all these decades, namely the transformation of the LOAV’s short range pulse engines into a time-dilation-capable warp drive. The solution involved slow and careful centrifuging of the essential element found in that orange rock-like substance found in these caves. Once separated, it must be combined at high heat in a solution with deuterium-two and standard propellant. I have provided the specific formula here [...]. As you know, our final success will be mitigated by the issue of space; given the modifications we have had to make, the LOAV is now only capable of supporting a crew of ten for interstellar travel. We in the scientific arm of the RISEA [Rudishva Inter-Stellar Exploration Agency] do not envy you your difficult decision in this respect; we trust that you will make the appropriate selections in an honorable and useful way. Proper credit must be given to the team led by Spiv-Kol [see SL9-48], whose impressive work in a most unappealing environment procured a suitable supply of minerals from which we were able to synthesize the deuterium needed for our formula.”

This information demonstrates that the rudishva had finally solved the problem preventing them from using the shuttle to leave Arden Vul; but before they could take advantage of this breakthrough, the kaliyani betrayal and heqeti attack destroyed the rudishva hegemony. This crystal is mostly descriptive, and does not contain the formula for the creation of appropriate fuel; to synthesize such fuel, one would need a companion crystal, Creating D-3He Reactions from Native Minerals (q.v.). (A Fek-Prail; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS physical universe; SKC chemistry) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 9-94.

Song of Jacinth the Rose: This text tells the story in epic verse of the great Archontean trickster figure, Jacinth the Rose. Jacinth’s stories mostly revolve around the urban world of the imperial bureaucracy, Factor economics, temple politics, and so forth. Even though she is often described as the sister of Larel One-Eye, her orientation in the urban world gives that theory the lie. Jacinth is generally less well admired than Larel, as her tales generally do not contain redeeming humor or morality. Instead, she usually uses people badly, profiting clearly and without qualm from their discomfiture. Jacinth emerges as a cold, talented spy, rogue, thief, and assassin. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D ; W ; M ; R ; FoS ; SKC ) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 2-70, 4-55, 5-74, 9-62, SL10B-18.

Sorcerous Properties of Gems: This pseudonymously-written work enumerates the ways in which gems can be used to fuel magical spells and experiments. (A Sardonyx Peridot; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x15x6; W 7 lb; M parchment, with gem-studded leather bindings; R rare; FoS physical universe; SKC geology and mineralogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: 2-70, 4-55, 8-125.

Specimen XRF-6013: Notes by Haddi-Yon, Chief Medical Officer: This video provides a low-quality series of ‘selfies’ of the chief medical officer inspecting, dissecting, and repairing the space squid (SL12-11) that the Beacon encountered on an uncharted moon. A viewer with 16 INT will learn the main offensive and defensive capabilities of the space squid (and may understand why Kerbog Khan has elected not to release it!). (A Haddi-Yon; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS ; SKC ) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: SL12-28.

Success: This codex details a series of detailed plots and trickeries performed by members of the Rudigaya clan over the past several hundred years. Most of these are mundane and petty, involving personal humiliations and grudges, but a few are of interest: one describes how Muq (8-151) encompassed the permanent banishment of Gog (5-2) from the court by faking a crime for which Gog was implicated; another describes Hraskaya’s plan to undermine the authority of Varboka the thegn by offering contradictory counsel, thereby preventing any decisions from being made. Varboka would be most grateful to receive this information. (A various; L Varumani Semi-glyphik; T codex; D 5x8x4; W 3 lb; M ; R parchment, with heqeti-hide bindings; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 7-17.

Successful Reanimation: This theoretical treatise describes the process of keeping a brain alive outside of its body, through the application of electricity, arcanum (see new magic items), and a special cocktail of herbs and spices. As a work of necromancy that requires the use of a living brain, the work is considered blasphemous and therefore illegal. The autograph manuscript was kept in the library of the Imperial Academy until it was stolen by Kerbog Khan. (A Herbertus Occidentalis; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9x3; W 1.5 lb; M human-skin bindings, vellum leaves; R unique; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC biology, dweomercreaft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 800 Location: SL12-25.

Summoning from the Beyond: A description of seven types of summoning circles, pentagrams, and so forth, and their proper construction. Also includes advice on which extra-planar entities can be bound by which sort of circle. Contains the names of three demons: Furcer (Type IV), Ziagorga (Type V), and Aymif (Type VI). (A Alienor the Crafter; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x9x5; W 4 lb; M parchment with leather bindings; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes-outer) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,250 Location: 2-70, 9-64, SL5-13B, SL12-25.

Symbols of Power, or the Archonal Regalia of Arden Vul: This illustrated, luxury volume describes the formal ceremonial rites of the archons of Arden Vul circa 1500 AEP (300 years before the Archontean collapse). The first part enumerates the proper rituals for archonal audiences, including clothes to be worn by supplicants, courtiers, and the archon, as well as appropriate gestures and sample invocations and panegyrics. The second part describes the appropriate clothing for each appropriate occasion, with illustrations. The last part describes the four pieces of regalia that define the archonal status, with pictures and locations for each. (A Beriacius Solus; L Mithric; T codex; D 15x22x7; W 12 lb; M milk-white calfskin bindings, vellum leaves; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC politics and genealogy, sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 350 Location: 7-122, SL5-13B.

Tales of Larel One-Eye: Stories of the mischievous hero of popular fable, Larel, are legion throughout the Archontean Empire. Larel's exploits mostly come at the expense of figures who obviously deserve their comeuppance; they also take place mostly in the world of the common folk, for whom Larel can appear as a Robin Hood-like figure. Unlike Jacinth the Rose, therefore, who is sometimes erroneously assumed to be his sister, Larel is a true folk hero of the common people. In his tales, Larel's famous green linen cap, his ancient, patched cloak of many colors, his stiletto-like dagger, and his simple cotton sack, which he carries over his shoulder, feature heavily. Archontean bards have identified at least 133 'tales of Larel'; the typical codex describes 20-30 of these. Among the most popular and common of Larel's exploits are these:

Larel and the Farmer's Wife: Larel tricks a cold-hearted farmer's wife into feeding a group of hungry farm hands.

Larel and the Wolves: He produces a chicken from his sack so as to distract wolves.

Larel and the Laundry: He uses his cloak as a quilt to conceal himself from an angry husband.

Larel the Hungry: He cleverly spikes four apples on his dagger while distracting the innkeeper with a card trick.

Larel the Lucky: he absconds from the castle of the wizard Tilgo with the latter's spell book in his sack and Tilgo's daughter by his side.

Larel and the Three Bugbears: Captured by three bugbears, Larel keeps them occupied by arguing about how best to cook and eat him. When the bugbears kill each other, Larel walks off with their stuff.

Larel and the Archon's Sister: Larel seduces the sister of an archon over a sumptuous banquet and is arrested. In gaol, he manages to produce the key to the cell from his sack and then escapes.

Larel and the Legionary: Larel joins the legion because he's hungry and wants the three square meals per day, but he finds the work too difficult. While on guard duty he persuades a farm lad to try on his equipment and then saunters off.

Larel the Priest: Larel produces priestly garments and ritual objects from his sack so as to disarm and fool a mob of angry townsfolk from whom he has 'borrowed' several goats.

The editions at 2-70, 5-74, and SL10B-18 and SL15-7 are deluxe, illuminated, two-volume sets; those in 4-55, 7-122, and SL4-46 are compact, battered, densely-written traveling versions. (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 14x26x4 (deluxe) or 5x9x5 (compact); W 11 lb (deluxe) or 2.5 lb (compact); M parchment with embossed red leather bindings (deluxe), or parchment with simple wooden boards (compact); R rare (deluxe) or common (compact); FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 (deluxe), 35 (compact) Location: 2-70, 4-55, 5-74, 7-122, SL4-46, SL10B-18, SL15-7.

Testament of Phocion the Builder: This tightly rolled scroll provides a narrative of the various building projects of the famed Archontean architect, Phocion, spread over thirty lines of cramped text. The list of his projects includes the Pyramid of Thoth (AV-15), the Archon's palace (AV-29), various structures that are completely destroyed, the temple of Thoth (3-70), the temple of Set (3-90), and the now-lost temple of Horus. The parchment also conceals an acrostic message. Beginning with the 2nd line, the opening letters of each line read: Strength prepares the way. The acrostic is a hint to the location of the secret door located on the south wall of 8-142, which is located under the 'S' in the inscription ('strength') that is found on that south wall. (A Phocion the Builder; L Mithric; T scroll; D 10x11x1; W .25 lb M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 8-142.

Testament of Skarphedin of Westholm: This strange text takes the form of a large sheet of parchment folded several times into a smaller square. On it is written an account of magical dueling related to the Tower of Pol (see SL6-5 and SL6-17): In the chaos of the burning city, Rigord decided the time had come to seek the fabled Tower of Pol. Following my master, I accompanied him down the long stair from the nearly deserted temple of Thoth and there reached the Canyon, where so many nobles had built their tombs.

There we discovered that the tomb guards had deserted their posts and that the magical wards had been broken. I easily dispatched some of the lunatics who championed the fish-god by putting them to the sword. Approaching the entrance platform with its statuary, Rigord revealed the name of the current castellan, Odericus the Poxed, and announced that he would have to defeat the poxed one in single combat. Rigord stood upon the platform and lo! even upon the fateful symbol, and there cast the merest of cantrips. Immediately we faced the Tower. Rigord performed the ritual challenge according to the formula revealed by his arcane powers. And then, just like that!, Odericus appeared, wand in hand, ready to defend his rights.

As the two entered the dueling pit, I found myself unable to breach a shell of arcane force; my master would have to face the poxed one on his own. I watched helplessly as Rigord struggled to overcome mighty Odericus. Oh, the potent energies that the two unleashed! I saw many terrible and awful things that morning, from tentacled creatures summoned from the darkest pits, to explosions of colored fire, from shimmering shields of energy to the excruciating moans of the antagonists.

In the end, my master was overcome, and the accursed powers of Pol caused him to vanish. Odericus turned to me, smiled thinly, and wagged a finger at me. He spoke thus: 'Your master has been found wanting. Not for nothing has Odericus ruled the Tower of Pol these last centuries. You and your friends shall have to try harder if you wish to replace me.' With that, he disappeared in a poof of smoke.

I stood on the pentagram and returned to the Canyon. There the decorative statues had been altered. Odericus's work? I could not say. All I knew was that the new statue looked disturbingly like Rigord. My serving boy, who already knew his letters, gasped as he beheld the words carved below the statue; but even to this day, as I dictate this story to him, he refuses to tell me what they said. I left swiftly, vowing to never return to that place of ill omen. This is my testimony, and by this sign I testify it to be true. [signed] Skarphedin of Westholm. Michael the scribe wrote this. A second hand has added the following to the foot of the note: The arch-mage Michael Clear-Eyes did return to the Tower of Pol after many years of study in the collegia. He placed this testimony where it might serve as a warning to others. (A Skarphedin of Westholm, as dictated to Michael the scribe; L Mithric; T single parchment sheet; D 9x9x.1 (folded into a square 2x2x1); W negligible; M parchment; R unique; FoS humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: SL6-6.

Testament of Vanara: This ancient scroll was written by the great varumani thegn, Vanara, on his deathbed. It describes in detail the collapse of the rudishva hegemony, the treachery of Rudiga, the death of Druva, and the wanderings of the varumani. It also clearly describes the route from 7-28 to 5-141, as well as Vanara's own resting place.

Written as a sort of life story, the text describes how, after leading his people to a new home in the lower levels, Vanara grew dismayed by the speed with which his followers forgot their masters and duties, and at their willingness to engage in internecine warfare. After several decades as Thegn, Vanara retreated back to Level 5 in secret, accompanied only by a trusted handful of bodyguards; he brought with him much of the varumani's remaining high technology, and obscured the route to Level 5 behind secret doors.

Once on Level 5 he sought unsuccessfully for signs of his old masters, and then for Rudiga and the kaliyani, hoping at the least to avenge his old partner's treachery. Eventually he encountered Psalor-Ki, who persuaded him that the best way to help his people was to transform himself into an ever-living guardian. Vanara agreed to this procedure and, with, his housecarls, was transformed into a giant skeleton. Displeased with the results, he retreated in humiliation to this cave, where he prepared himself for the day when his people might eventually return to their ancestral home.

The centuries have been long and slow, and Vanara has slumbered through most of them. He has become quite cynical about the potential for his own people (indeed, he destroyed the high technology items, deeming them too powerful for his lost children), even as he still waits for them to rediscover their heritage.

In sum, the testament conveys the information found in the GM Backstory sections of areas 5-135, 5-137 and 5-139, complete with a map showing the route between 7-28, 7-88, 5-141, and 5-137.

Were the contents of the Testament to be made widely known to the varumani, its contents would cause serious repercussions at the thegn's court: 1) the Rudigaya clan would be shamed, and its members marginalized; 2) the harmony of the varumani society would be broken, leading to factionalization and infighting; 3) expeditions to reclaim Level 5 would be mounted almost immediately. The original autograph manuscript of the testament lies with Vanara himself (5-139); a copy was deposited in the hidden varumani treasury at 7-23. (A Vanara the thegn; L Varumani Semi-glyphik; T scroll; D 1x11x1; W 1 lb; M parchment; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 5-139, 7-23.

Testimony of Vanara: This 28-minute, no-frills recording was made by Vanara, the First Thegn of the varumani, a day after the rudishva collapse and just before the varumani set out to find a new home within the halls. Vanara ponders the absence of Rudiga, noting that "the People" could have used his intellect in this dire time. He bitterly describes the kaliyani betrayal; the quarantine of the varuda (5-108, 5-111); the battle for the command centers (5-113, 5-114); and the tragic vulnerability of the rudishva to the heqeti slimes. He notes with relish how the People were able to reduce the kaliyani dwellings to 'slag and dross', but admits that most had already fled before this retaliatory strike occurred.

In other words, this crystal offers viewers a blow-by-blow account of the collapse of the rudishva and thus contains useful information about specific areas of Level 5. (A Vanara the thegn; L Varumani; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 1,000 G. P. Value: 10,000 Location: 7-67.

The Thegns Speak: This 75-minute interview was conducted in Rudishva with the three original thegns, Vanara, Druva, and Rudiga in the months preceding the heqeti sneak attack (and the betrayal by the kaliyani and Rudiga). The subject matter is politics and tensions within the Star-Borne Hegemony. Vanara appears cautious and diplomatic, attempting to soothe tensions towards the kaliyani. Druva is impatient with Vanara's worrying. He instead counsels an 'immediate preemptive strike' on the rebuilt heqeti pyramid at the base of the chasm. Rudiga seems either quietly contemplative or sullen, and offers only words of caution about moving too rashly. (A various; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, politics and genealogy) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 7-67.

The Theskelonia: This volume compiles the maxims and anecdotes of Theskelon, one of the great high priests of Set in antiquity. For all of his fame, most of the sayings are rather trite, being variants of truisms about power and/or wisdom; a few are nothing more than vulgar limericks. Scattered throughout the mundanities, however, are seven nuggets of information that form the true core of the Theskelonia.

Indeed, the mundane dross that surrounds them is just that, insipid blathering designed to hide Theskelon's true wisdom. It will take careful study and perhaps some luck to figure out that real wisdom is hidden among the inanity: a base 15% on casual inspection to notice a nugget, modified by an additional 5% per full day spent in study. Only one insight can be learned at a time; once one has been learned, the chance to learn a second reverts to the base chance (15% plus 5% per day). The first six insights should be determined randomly; the seventh can only be learned after the first six are acquired:

Philosophical Insight: A reader gains +1 point of WIS, up to WIS 16.

Magical Insight: A cleric reader gains one spell slot for 1st level spells; others gain nothing.

Economic Insight: A reader is hereafter able to spend 10% less on costs for level advancement.

Influence over Crowds: A reader gains +20% to reaction rolls when attempting to persuade groups of more than 10 individuals.

Summoner's Insight: A reader learns the name of one greater devil, and intuits the type of circle necessary to control it once summoned.

Political Insight: A reader learns subtle insight into the Archontean imperial and temple bureaucracies; gains +20% to reaction rolls when dealing with functionaries in either type of administration.

Protection of Set: A reader can summon a Set animal once per week. If LE, the Set animal is of the greater variety and can be directed by the summoner; if of another alignment, the summoned creature is a lesser Set animal that cannot be controlled.

(A Theskelon; L secret tongue of the priests of Set; T codex with 84 folios; D 10x18x3; W 5 lb; M linen folios, devil-skin bindings; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC politics and genealogy, psychology, sociology) Experience Point Value: 4,000 G. P. Value: 20,000 Location: 4-142, SL8-13A.

Thirty Uses for Arcanum: A treatise penned by an eccentric Archontean scholar-mage, this volume details a number of alleged uses for arcanum (see new magic items). In some cases, Ysgred is absolutely correct: arcanum can be used to enchant objects, as well as to recharge magical items. In some other cases, Ysgred's theories sound plausible: arcanum might well assist in opening gates to the astral plane, and might well produce a euphoric state conducive to the invention of new spells. But in over half of the 'uses', Ysgred sounds as mad as his nickname suggests: few believe that arcanum can 'leach the morality from the evil', or that 'in powdered form it can enhance libido', or that 'it can be used to instantly tame dragons.' (A Ysgred the Mad; L Mithric; T codex; D 4x7x3; W 3 lb; M parchment, brown leather binding, arcanum-infused ink; R very rare; FoS physical universe; SKC geology and mineralogy) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 100 Location: 4-55, 9-62.

Thirty-Seven Quips of Balak the Sage: This text is a bastardization of the rarer, and more useful Seventy-Seven Quips of Balak the Arch-mage (q.v.). Some ill-advised epitomizer stripped away forty of the quips, and in so doing eliminated the possibility of decoding the message hidden in the quips. The epitomizer also had no real knowledge of the identity of Balak, and altered his name to 'sage'. As a result, this text is merely a collection of odd maxims. (A Balak the 'sage'; L Mithric; T codex; D 5x8x1; W 1.5 lb; M parchment with brown-leather bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC sociology) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 30 Location: 7-122, 8-116, SL11-22.

Thorcin Poisons and their Cures: This valuable tome provides recipes for 93 poisons, divided into four categories: contact, penetrating, ingested, and thrown. A majority are non-lethal, but 26 are highly potent and thus highly proscribed. The text also provides alleged antidote formulae for all but seven of the most lethal poisons. (A anonymous; L Thorcin; T codex; D 7x11x3; W 4 lb; M parchment leaves, brown leather bindings, brass fittings; R very rare; FoS fauna, physical universe; SKC arachnids, insects, chemistry) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 450 Location: 3-5, 4-55, 10-54, SL5-13B.

Toth in All His Forms: This dry work pedantically provides an alphabetical listing of all known incarnations of Toth, from 'aardvark' to 'baboon', from 'colossus' to 'yak'. For all its aridity, it has immense utility in providing an appendix that lists four of the seven secret names of Toth. Those four names are the first four secret names, that is: Font of Magic, Giver of Words, Thrice-Born Linguist, and Light of Comprehension (for the other three secret names, see Secreta Secretorum - q.v.). (A Gaufridus magister; L secret tongue of the priests of Toth; T codex; D 9x13x6; W 9 lb; M baboon-hide bindings; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myth) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 350 Location: 2-70, 7-22, 9-70, SL6-17A.

Tibe-Riv's Primer of Primitive Cultures: This 60'-minute video offers a discussion by Tibe-Riv (a dashing rudishva with gold jumpsuit and white scarf) about the primitive human and humanoid cultures that surround the cliff of Arden Vul. Contains interesting reflections on the nature of the early Archontean Empire, and its fatal reliance on a small number of families. Muses that the 'flying lizards' will not prove to be lasting allies of the humans. Also ponders the issue of inter-species mating, with much optimism that the Star Borne are compatible with the natives. (A Tibe-Riv; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humankind, humanoids and giantkind; SKC history, legends and folklore, biology) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 1,000 Location: 6-117.

Time of Darkened Skies: This scroll provides a lengthy description of the efforts of the rudishva to drive back and destroy what they refer to as 'the Hopping Ones' (i.e., the heqeti). Among the useful nuggets are these:

The 'hopping ones' were vulnerable to fire and 'blasting'.

The rudishva troops were organized in three units, varuda flyers, varumani heavy infantry, and kaliyani 'power-wielders'.

The events of the war include the seizure of the Obsidian Gates and Hall of Pillars (5-6); the razing of the hoppers' Upper Temple (7-78 and 7-131); the slaughter of the hoppers in the Chasm; the defeat of the varuda at the Cave of Tears (8-67); and the final, successful, assault on the ziggurat of Kauket (areas 10-32 to 10-35) with attendant massacre of the hoppers.

Rudishva generals include 'our lord', Leil-Jor; the 'prince of the delvers', Grev-Kilj; the doomed and incompetent 'star-reader', Reav-Tak; the 'mighty fist', Vanara; the 'brute-leader', Druva; 'far-soaring' Raalk; and 'the whisperer', Lisstak.

The original data crystal recording these events is lost. The only extant exemplars are written in various hegemony languages on rudishva linen 'paper': one in Rudishva Glyphis (5-97), one in Rudishva Glyphik (6-82), and one in Varumani Semi-glyphik (7-25). (A anonymous; L varies, see text; T scroll; D 2x13x2; W 3 lb; M rudishva linen 'paper'; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 5-97, 6-82, 7-25.

Travels in the Astral Plane: This valuable tome provides advice about how to establish connections to the Astral Plane via spell, portal, or device, followed by careful notes about silver cords, the mutable properties of items on that plane, and some of the creatures to be encountered there. It includes a rare section on the aroksachaul (demonic huntsmen – see new monsters) and their proclivities. Many copies of this text are heavily annotated by their owners, presumably following those owners' experiences in the Astral Plane. (A Nicodemus the Nose-less; L Mithric; T codex; D 9x13x4; W 6 lb; M vellum with green demon-hide bindings; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 350 Location: 9-70, SL5-13B, SL6-17A.

Trifold Tome of Theodore the White: This rare text provides a catalogue of descriptions, powers, and proclivities of numerous demon lords and princes, including Orcus, Tsathogga, Juiblex, Demogorgon, and Kauket (see new monsters). Much of the text is taken up with descriptions of the cultic practices and rituals of these lords' human followers. (A Theodore the White; L Mithric; T codex; D 7x10x6; W 5 lb; M vellum with wooden boards; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 650 Location: 5-74, 9-70, SL5-13B, SL6-17A.

A True Account of the Embassy of Gilleshorn Ellagelsson to Archontos: This parchment quire provides an account of the ill-fated embassy of Gilleshorn, son of Lady Ellagel, to Archontos in 1833 AEP. Gilleshorn was attempting to mediate between factions still simmering in the aftermath of the War of Sortians and Theosophs. His embassy was marred by intrigue and misunderstanding, and Gilleshorn ended up dead on the streets of Archontos, slain by an angry mob whipped into an anti-Elven fervor. Many sages believe his death is the explanation for the general retraction of elves from human lands, and thus for their relative rarity in the Empire. (A Belladia Varsdottir; L Elven; T single quire; D 7x9; W .25 lb; M parchment; R very rare; FoS demi-humankind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 125 Location: SL10B-22.

A True History of Isadora, companion of Priscus Pulcher: A detailed, if mostly fabulous biography of the famed Sortian, this text invents a family history for Isadora and provides her with a suitably heroic back-story. In Justinian's account, Isadora was the daughter of a provincial chartoularios who trained as a philosopher before taking up charity work among the poor. She fell in with the Sortians and became the amanuensis, companion, and defender of the infamous Priscus Pulcher.

The final section of the biography provides an accurate account of the events of the War of Sortians and Theosophs (see World of Archontos appendix), including a stirring description of Isadora's grief when she retrieved the broken body of Priscus Pulcher from the gibbet in Narsileon. Justinian was, however, completely unaware of Isadora's true identity, for which see the Fragment and Gesta Isadorae (q.v.). (A Justinian the Wise; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x12x2; W 4.5 lb; M white leather bindings, vellum leaves; R very rare; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: 4-55, 9-64.

True Tales of Larel One-Eyed: This work is a variant title for the more common Tales of Larel One-Eye (q.v.). (A anonymous; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x19x6; W 9 lb; M red leather bindings, gold-edged vellum leaves; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 90 Location: SL10A-32.

Twelve Labors of Arden: This well-known volume provides full descriptions of Arden's famous, and now iconic, twelve Labors.

First Labor (The Owlbears of Mount Juventus): In a series of volcanic passages on the dormant volcano, Mount Juventus (on Mithruin), a pack of owlbears began threatening imperial goblin miners. Arden was sent with a small unit to investigate. Although her comrades were slain, she triumphed by killing all the owlbears.

Second Labor (The Troll of Pelousia): A band of trolls was menacing settlements near Arcturos. The band was led by a specimen of unusual size and intelligence. Playing on the troll's greed and confidence, Arden agreed to a bargain: they would fight a duel. If Arden lost and lived, she would serve the trolls for a decade; if Arden lost and was killed, they would eat her. If she could dismember the chieftain, the band would depart for greener pastures. Arden won, and the trolls left.

Third Labor (The Laughing Lord of the Grain Islands): A troupe of ogre magi appeared in the Grain Islands, setting themselves up as rural lords in a beautiful manor house. From this fortress they enslaved the local halfling farmers and disrupted food shipments to Mithruin. After an inconclusive fight with the charmed servants of the ogre magi, Arden brazenly invited herself to dinner with the Laughing Lord; at dinner she pretended to drink too much wine, while the Laughing Lord did drink too much wine. Arden told the lord of a great treasure she held in a special metal box; when the laughing lord looked into it, she pushed him in and sealed it with wax. The other ogre magi fled, and Arden tossed the sealed box into the ocean.

Fourth Labor (The Three Berserkers of Westholm): The emperor sent an envoy to Westholm in Borealis to negotiate tribute from local Wiskin chieftains. While visiting the hall of Odd Skallason, a local jarl, the envoy was slain and crucified. Arden and Vul arrived to seek vengeance without provoking a war. She entered the hall and engaged the men of Jarl Odd in a series of tests: a drinking bout on one day, a strength feat on the next, a running race on the third. On the fourth day a trio of Wiskin berserkers arrived, as if by chance, and after a few ales insulted Arden and sought her death. She killed them all, and Odd submitted, sending his bear-claw necklace to the emperor in tribute.

Fifth Labor (The Greedy Jarl): While in Borealis to accomplish the Fourth Labor, Arden was visited by other Wiskin chieftains, who complained about a family of frost giants that was claiming lordship over a neighboring valley. The giants were capturing and eating those who refused to submit. Arden and Vul journeyed to the jarl's hall, stormed it, and decapitated the jarl.

Sixth Labor (The Lost Legion): The 5th kataphracti rode out to investigate reports of unrest. Riding through a canyon on Irthuinn they were met at its mouth by a Thorcin thane, Hadric Lawfinder. Hadric consulted with the polemarch for a few moments before stabbing him to death. The rest of the column was ambushed from above, and 90% of the legion slaughtered. Hadric took the phlamoulon as his trophy. Arden and Vul were sent to scout the scene before more troops were sent. The pair investigated many Thorcin villages until they tracked down Hadric at a longhouse built deep in the woods next to a shrine to Fenth. There they slew Hadric and some priests of Fenth and recovered the phlamoulon.

The heroes were aided by one of the surviving members of the 5th kataphracti, the tulwar-wielding Lucius Minux .

Seventh Labor (The River God): Vul discovered a magically-active area atop and within an enormous cliff, from which poured a violent waterfall (the future site of Arden Vul). Arden and Vul scaled the cliff and investigated the site. Vul attempted to construct a tower by the river, but the river kept shifting location and destroying his work. The pair determined that a water elemental inhabited the lower reaches of the river. They banished it and seized the enchanted giant triton shell that had kept it imprisoned in this location.

Eighth Labor (The Hidden Priest): A village headman registered a complaint with the local chartouarios, claiming that the local priest of Osiris was an impostor; he also complained that exactions from all the local temples had skyrocketed, and without explanation. Imperial investigators found nothing amiss, and the regional council of priests found the new exactions and tithes to be appropriate. The headman turned up dead a month later. His daughter sought out Arden, who arrived with Vul to investigate. Vul journeyed to the temple of Osiris, where he observed a suspiciously high level of tithe collection; he also discovered many messengers traveling to the temple of Isis. Arden adopted the guise of a pilgrim and spent a fortnight begging for Isis. Eventually the pair discovered that a powerful priestess of Jael was impersonating the priestess of Isis, and that her minions had also replaced the priests of other local temples. Arden located the hidden shrine to Jael, and destroyed it, thus ending the illusion and permitting a return to proper religious harmony. Arden presented the half-moon torc of the priestess of Jael to the chartouarios.

Ninth Labor (Singing the Dead to Sleep): At the new settlement of Magnus Ager, the dead refused to remain in their graves and crypts. Citizens reported eerie music in the night, with reports of walking dead terrorizing and even attacking the living. Arden and Vul arrived, with their comrade Ristus, a cleric of Thoth. Despite their efforts, which involved re-killing a number of undead, the problem didn't end. Finally, Arden realized that the music was controlling the dead. The trio tracked the music to the crypt of a Thorcin scop. The trio defeated the scop after Arden was able to challenge him to a musical duel. Once placated, the scop retired and the hauntings ceased.

Tenth Labor (The Fallen Mage): Apollonius of Archontos, the primus magus of the Order of Thoth, devised a necromantic ritual to preserve himself as a lich. He filled his town house in Archontos with traps, slew his servants and apprentices and raised them as undead, and prepared to spend millennia seeking information and power. The particular process for becoming a lich that he pioneered, however, required that he spend 50% of his time in hibernation; he was woken periodically by the activation of certain talismans that his undead servants preserved. A century after disappearing into lichdom (in his own demi-plane), Apollonius began appearing in the capital city, taking valuable tomes and magical artifacts, striking down even the most powerful nobles if they tried to resist. The emperor could not tolerate this blatant thievery, especially from one of the empire's great archmages. Arden and Vul were tasked with putting the theft and violence to a halt. The heroes visited Apollonius's town house, cleared it of minions, and journeyed to his demi-plane. There they confronted Apollonius. After defeating various traps and minions, Apollonius negotiated with the heroes, promising to cease his predations in Archontos in return for being left alone. He provided a talisman with his sigil, a heron eating a fish, to seal the bargain. Arden and Vul presented the talisman to the emperor.

Eleventh Labor (The Dragon's Egg): Seeing the new settlement at Arden Vul as a threat, an ancient red dragon and its partner began to attack the Archontean settlers there. Since the dragons were breaking the Compact of Ennius (see World of Archontos appendix), Arden and Vul were sent to handle the situation. They located the dragon's lair atop a crag in the mountains west of Arden Vul. After several skirmishes involving magic, fire, and physical combat, the pair decided to force the dragons into compliance by stealing their eggs through stealth. An invisible Arden scaled the heights and stole three eggs. Vul then dictated terms to the dragons: they would cease attacking Archontean settlements or their offspring would be slain. If the parents agreed, the offspring would be raised within the Empire and according to the Compact of Ennius. When the parents agreed, Arden and Vul brought two of the eggs to the Emperor in Archontos. The third egg disappeared.

Twelfth Labor (Unknown): At the height of her fame, Arden disappeared along with her partner Vul. Imperial legend has it that she sleeps across the centuries in preparation for her twelfth and final labor. When the Empire needs them both, Arden and Vul will awaken to complete their final task. As a result, there is no fixed interpretation of the twelfth labor, with most accounts simply leaving it 'empty'.

(A anonymous; L Archontean or Mithric; T codex; D 8x11x5; W 7 lb; M orange leather bindings, vellum leaves; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC history, legends and folklore) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 150 Location: 2-70, 5-128, 6-129, 7-122, 8-5, 8-20, 8-125, 9-62, SL6-17A, SL13-11.

Untitled. A home-produced crystal made by Pliv-Mol's life-partner, Dipra-Jol, this short video (15 min.) shows a rudishva clad in a blue, one-piece shift moving through elaborate yoga-like poses. It ends with close-up of Dipra-Jol saying (in Rudishva): "Your honor is my honor. Return safely so that we shall both be enhanced in honor and joy." This is essentially a love letter. (A Dipra-Jol; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2" long x ¾" in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R very rare; FoS humanoids and giantkin; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 9-90.

The Value of Mud: This book details the process of using sorcery to create mud people (see new monsters). The procedure works as follows: a magic user of 12th-level or higher must spend 5,000 gp in rare ingredients per hit die (thus a 3 HD mud person requires 15,000 gp) and spend two full days conducting appropriate rituals procedures. The magic user then casts transmute rock to mud, reincarnation and curse. The process creates 2-5 mud people that obey the commands of their creator. (A Herodian the Blessed; L Mithric; T codex; D 4x9x4; W 3 lb; M parchment leaves, wooden boards; R very rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC dweomercreaft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,500 Location: 2-70, 4-55, 6-135, SL9-6, SL12-25.

Varboka's Logbook: Since the time of Vanara, the First Thegn, it has been customary for the thegn of the varumani to keep a logbook of decisions and events that are significant to his/her people. Varboka's logbook is rather sparse, as he is not a strong writer. Among the details that might be pertinent to adventurers are the following:

“Our hunters have located the forge of the half-man, east of the cave of the flowers. It was cold and empty when they arrived. What’s the big deal? Why do the humans care so much for it?” This note refers to Zhorak’s Forge (8-100).

“A puny goblin snuck past the lift guardians one level below the Domain, and stuck a strange stick into the beehives. Our hunters killed him for his impunity.” This note reveals location of the scepter of the goblins (8-69).

“I have ruled that the cat-women must not be molested. Their ruler, Oobast [sic], is powerful and can change shape at will!” Here Varboka refers to the temple of Bastet (8-30 to 8-41), and to the high priestess Oubaste (8-37).

“The lord Cinna is not to be trusted, for his words are honey and cause the people to look the other way. It is said he moves like the air itself.” This note refers to Cinna Minux, the vampire lord (7-122)

“Crellik-Var is one of the former masters, and yet he recognizes us not when we visit his domain! He is content to rule the arena as an entertainer, forgetting the glorious heritage of both our peoples. Tragic.” This note offers a hint about the nature of the arena lord (6-85), who is a rudishva survivor.

“The ancient enemy, that is, the hopping ones, have returned to their halls at the foot of the Great Chasm. Our hunters report that they are fortifying the areas north of the lake. Should we assault them? I wonder.” This note provides evidence that the heqeti have returned to Arden Vul, and a hint about their location on Level 9 (areas 9-information about the return of the heqeti to level 9 (see 9-76 to 9-82)).

(A Varboka the thegn; L Varumani Semi-glyphik; T codex; D 9x13x3; W 2 lb each; M grey lizard-hide bindings, goblin-skin parchment; R unique; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 2,000 Location: 7-30.

Voyages of the Shining Beacon of Glorious Heaven: This crystal offers a 45-minute overview of the Beacon’s construction, commissioning, and launching into space. It contains a full walk-through of the various modules and pods, several of which might be recognizable (e.g., the Residence Pod of 6-113, the Weapons Locker of 6-26, etc.), and concludes with a formal interview with Captain Leil-Jor, who assures the viewer that the Beacon will go where no rudishva has gone before, and will bring glory, fame and wealth to ‘our people’. (A anonymous; L Rudishva; T data crystal; D 2” long x ¾” in diameter; W .5 lb; M plastic; R rare; FoS humanoids and giantkind; SKC history) Experience Point Value: 100 G. P. Value: 500 Location: 5-111, 6-117, 7-67, SL12-28.

Vul Speaks: Allegedly an autobiographical account of Vul’s life, many scholars suspect that the stories and sayings collected here were actually invented long after Vul’s death so as to provide a plausible account of the life of the great wizard. The text provides extended descriptions of Vul’s travels, his deeds with Arden, his mastery of arcana (see new magic items), and his construction of a suitable habitation ‘within sight of the city that bears my name.’ Each of these sections is introduced by a half-dozen wise-sounding quips said to have come from Vul’s own lips. The volume is relatively dry, and consequently is less popular than Arden Speaks (q.v.). A magic user who studies the volume intensively may (20% chance plus 5% chance per point of INT greater than 14) uncover enough useful magical theory to allow him/her to permanently gain an extra 1st-level spell slot. (A “Vul the Sorcerer”; L Mithric; T codex; D 8x13x3; W 5.5 lb; M creamy vellum leaves, red devil-hide bindings; R rare; FoS humankind, supernatural and unusual; SKC history, dweomercraeft) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 750 Location: 5-128, 6-135, 9-62.

Waldinus’s Guide to the City of Brass: Waldinus has a bad reputation among scholar mages as a blowhard and exaggerator, and this breathless text has not eased this reputation. He writes in a tone of wonder, using purple prose and plentiful exclamation marks. Still, if one reads between the hyperbole, Waldinus provides a useful overview of the social and political institutions in that famed locale, complete with a set of etiquette tips. For instance he describes the workings of the Sultan’s court, the role of the Council of Pashas, and the duties of a score of deys, sardars, and sheikhs. A section concerning the laws and customs of the City are likely to prevent first time visitors from irritating the efreet and thereby dooming themselves to a painful death in the Dome of Contention. (A Waldinus Counsel-Avoider; L Mithric; T codex; D 12x20x3; W 9.5 lb; M parchment leaves, polar bear fleece bindings; R rare; FoS supernatural and unusual; SKC planes) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 250 Location: SL6-17A.

The Whispering Widow: This piece of soft-core pornography was favored by adolescent Archontean boys 1,800 years ago. The ‘plot’ concerns a lonely widow who seeks solace among the beds of young noble lads. Enough said! (A Vas Valens; L Mithric; T codex; D 5x7x3; W 3.5 lb; M parchment, leather bindings; R uncommon; FoS humankind; SKC law and customs) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 50 Location: 8-133, SL8-22.

Why all So-Called Gods are Merely Avatars of the One Deity: This obscure work of theology advances the blasphemous and unpopular opinion that there is but a single divine force extant throughout the planes. According to Loricar, then, all so-called gods, demons and other powers are merely incarnations of that single divine principle. His idea seemed so ridiculous to the great minds of the ancient empire that he easily earned his nickname; as a result, copies of his work are difficult to find. (A Loricar the Unread; L Mithric; T codex; D 6x8x2; W 2.5 lb; M parchment with cheap wooden boards; R rare; FoS humankind; SKC theology and myth) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 75 Location: SL10B-14.

Words and Symbols: an attempt to understand the symbols of the Old Ones: This ultra-rare text was commissioned by the early archons of Arden Vul. It provides the most complete dictionary of rudishva glyphs (i.e., Glyphik), with meanings/definitions given in Mithric. A reader who studies the text for 3-4 months will have a 75% chance to decode a given glyph on sight; one who merely flips through the text on an ad hoc basis has a 50% chance to decipher a given glyph within 1-3 turns.

The autograph copy (held in SL10A-32) ran to three volumes, but Hanon produced some condensed versions (such as those in SL6-17A and 7-122- which are 5x9x4 in size, weigh 4 lb, and are covered in simple goatskin bindings). (A Hanon the Scribe; L Mithric, Rudishva Glyphik; T 3-volume codex; D 9x14x3; W 7 lb each; M vellum leaves, red calfskin bindings; R very rare; FoS humankind, humanoids and giantkind; SKC languages) Experience Point Value: — G. P. Value: 450 Location: 7-122, SL6-17A, SL10A-32.

MAGAE

14

THE WORLD OF ARDEN VUL

THE WORLD OF ARCHONTOS

There are eight distinct sections in this appendix, each containing material appropriate to its heading: A. Geographic Areas; B. Persons of Note; C. Races and People; D. Institutions and Organizations; E. Culture, History, and Events; F. Titles and Hierarchies; G. Languages and Writing Systems; and H. Gods of Magae. Individual entries are alphabetically arranged within each heading, and population numbers exclude any standing military troops at or near the location.

A. GEOGRAPHIC AREAS

Agoreon (a-GOR-ee-on): A semi-legendary Archontean city, located in the steamy south of Ostralius. The city was destroyed in 1775 AEP during the War of the Sortians and Theosophs (q.v.) and was never resettled. Only the tops of the hills on which the city was built now project from the warm waters of the southern oceans.

Archontos (ar-KON-tos): The capital city of the Archontean empire, and the largest city in Magae. Archontos is built on seven (and a half) hills surrounding a lagoon where the river pools before rushing into the Wine-Dark sea. The estates and towers of the rich cluster on the hills and along the mountainous slopes that ring the northern, western, and southern limits of the city. By hoary tradition, the elites in Archontos build towers for their lineages; these slender structures, with conical tops, provide the city with one of its most recognizable sights and one of its most familiar nicknames. Bridges connect the hills, allowing the well-heeled to pass from one hill to the next without descending to the flats; in addition to traditional bridges, sky trams exist in a few spots. The flat, humid areas between the hills are the home to the poor and middle class.

Archontos is also known as: Mithruntir, the City, the City-State, the City of a Thousand Towers, the Shining City, the Navel of the World, the Stirring Giant. Population: 125,000.

Arcturos (ark-TUR-os): An important Archontean city located on Irthuun, and the seat of an imperial exarchate. Arcturos was reoccupied by the empire in 2639 AEP, after a long absence. Population 30,000.

Azure Keep: A partly-ruined citadel built by the ancient Archontean in the river valley a few miles from the cliff of Arden Vul (AK-1). A sept of the Knights of the Azure Shield (q.v.) are repairing and modernizing it under the leadership of Lady Alexia Basileon. A small town, called Gosterwick, has grown up at the foot of the Azure Keep.

Bedric's Landing: This small settlement of miners and Archontean naval personnel is located in the Iron Isles.

Borealios (bor-ee-AL-ee-os): The Archontean name for the island chain to the north of the Wine-Dark Sea. Borealios is home to the Wiskinga. Although the Archontean have claimed Borealios as theirs, and the emperor has assigned a strategos (general) to pacify the region, Archontean authority is limited to a few small towns (e.g. Westholm).

Burdock's Valley (aka Burdoc Valley, Vale of Burgheat): The valley on Irthuun in which Arden Vul, as well as the town of Newmarket, is located. Known to the local Thorcinga as the Vale of Burgheat, the valley is held as an imperial fief by an Archontean aristocrat, Iskander Basileon, who bears the title "Lord Burdock".

Burdock, Castle: A fortification sited on a ridge at the mouth of Burdock's Valley. Castle Burdock is the seat of Lord Burdock, the title held currently by Iskander Basileon.

Epirenus (ep-ihr-EE-nus): A small town located on Irthuun in the exarchate of Arcturos. It is the center of Archontean viticulture. Population: 6,000.

Freyr's Landing: A small town located on Borealios. Jarl Boda Tingsson and his extended family rule the area, which is famous for its whaling, sealing, and ivory production. Population: 1,000.

Frith's Hearth: A relatively typical Thorcin settlement about a week's walk west of Narsileon. Its thegn is Cynefrith.

Gosterwick: A truly new town, growing at the base of the cliff outside Arden Vul, around the Azure Keep (q.v.). Lady Alexia Basileon (q.v.) is actively recruiting merchants, craftsmen, and adventurers to this location. The current population bears a high proportion of adventurer-oriented businesses: sellers and buyers of curios, general sutlers, trainers, etc. Population: 2,200.

Grain Islands, The: A chain of large islands to the east of Mithruun, perfectly suited for agriculture. The majority of halflings living within the Archontean Empire reside here.

Iron Isles, The: Several tiny islands located just off the east coast of Irthuun. The islands are semi-tropical and would be otherwise insignificant were it not for the substantial deposits of iron located here. In addition to several mines, the Archontean operate a port and naval yard at Bedric's Landing.

Irthuun (IHR-thoo-eeen): A huge continent lying west of Mithruun across the Wine-Dark Sea. Its eastern coastline formed numerous provinces of the Archontean empire in antiquity, before the empire receded during the War of Sortians and Theosophs (q.v.). In 2639 AEP, some 350 years ago, the empire returned, re-establishing exarchates in Narsileon and Arcturos, and subjecting the local Thorcin thanes to imperial authority. Eastern Irthuun is home to the Thorcinga. The middle of the continent is a vast swathe of old forest. The far west of the Irthuun is largely unknown to the Archontean; there lie the endless steppes and the khanates of Khumus nomads. The largest elven realm, that of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador, also lies on Irthuun, amid the old-growth forests of the center of the continent. The legendary dwarven kingdom of Kazildor is said to rest beneath the mountains north and west of Narsileon. Irthuun is also known as Occidentos.

Kazildor (KAZ-uhl-door): Kazildor is the subterranean realm of the dwarves of Irthuín, where the dwarven clans conduct the age-old Endless War against their doppelgänger enemies. The dwarves of Magae are notoriously reclusive and suspicious, and few humans have been permitted entrance to Kazildor. As a result, little is known of its size and structures, as those few dwarves who travel under the sun are oathbound to maintain the secrets of their people.

Magae (MAG-eye): The Archontean term for the earth.

Magger: A small town on Irthuín, in the exarchate of Narsileon. Magger is surrounded by numerous Archontean latifundia, large estates devoted to grain production. Also known as Magnus Ager. Population: 5,000.

Mithruin (MYTH-roo-éen): A large island in the center of the Wine-Dark Sea. As the seat of the Archontean Empire, it is home to the great city of Archontos, the largest city on Magae. The remainder of the island is home to the estates of the Archontean nobility, the great imperial silver mines, and millennia of accumulated magical and mundane treasures. While Mithruin is obviously home to the Archontean people, it is also home to a sizable population of ‘imperial goblins’, now ‘civilized’ by centuries of enslavement, as well as a small colony of dwarves. Also known as Archontea (ar-KON-teh-ah).

Moorleigh: A Thorcin settlement on the edge of the moors found north and west of Narsileon. Its thegn is Wulfhere.

Narsileon (nar-SILL-ee-on): Important city on Irthuín, and the seat of an Archontean exarchate. After the retreat of the empire from Irthuín, Narsileon had been solely populated by Thorcinga for almost a thousand years. When the Archontean returned to the western continent in 2639 AEP, they subjugated Narsileon and expelled many of its leading Thorcinga citizens so as to accommodate an Archontean ruling class of lords, merchants, and soldiers. Order is kept by the several legions quartered in its cantonments. Population: 40,000.

Newfort: A small town on Irthuín in the exarchate of Narsileon. It is known primarily as a military depot, where one of the Archontean legions resides on a quasi-permanent basis. Also known as Castrum Novum. Population: 2,000.

Newmarket: A bustling new town on Irthuín, in the exarchate of Narsileon. Newmarket lies in the valley of Burdock (q.v.), but is exempt from the lordship of Lord Burdock (q.v.); this fact has led to barely veiled hostility between the town’s leaders and Lord Burdock. Also known as Noviomagus. Population 4,000.

Ostraliós (aw-STRAL-ee-os): The continent lying to the south of Mithruin across the Wine-Dark Sea. The northern-most three hundred miles or so of Ostraliós are thickly-forested tropical jungle, inhabited by monsters, refugees, and fierce local tribes. It is said the ruins of older empires lie buried in the jungles, as do, indeed, the ruins of the old Archontean city of Agoreon (q.v.). To the south, beyond the belt of mountains that rim this jungle, are said to lie exotic civilizations of great wealth and power; to the Archontean, however, these stories are mostly legend.

Ostentown: The largest settlement on the Grain Islands, home to numerous prosperous halflings (as well as an Archontean administrative elite). Grain and other produce harvested from the islands are typically shipped to other parts of the empire from this port. Population 3,750.

Pristen: A small town on Irthuín, in the exarchate of Narsileon. Also known as Castrum Pristinus. Population: 2,000.

Realm of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador: The chief elven realm in northern Magae. The Two Lords have ruled elvenkind for millennia, presiding over a culture that values balance in emotions, magical sensibility, knowledge, and connections to nature.

Red Keep: A border fortress operated by the Archontean to the north of Narsileon. The current lord is Gedeon Ligareon.

Skallasholm (SKAL-as-home): A tiny town on Borealiós, founded by the legendary Wiskin jarl, Skalla Audunsson. It is known mostly as the location of the annual Althing, which most Wiskin landholders attend each autumn. Population 750.

Storm Point: A fancy villa located on the cliffs south of Narsileon (q.v.). The estate was formerly owned by the exarch of Narsileon, but has recently been purchased by Alexios Hestales.

Sweetwater Hold: A town or city inhabited by pirates, criminals, and exiles from the Archontean Empire. The location of Sweetwater Hold is a closely guarded secret among the disreputable galley captains who call there. It is said that both geography and magical defenses bar access to those seeking harm to Haven. All that imperial officials know of its location is that it lies far to the south of Arcturos, possibly along the coast of Ostraliós. Also known as Haven. Population: unknown.

Terchester (TER-chest-er): A town on Irthuín in the exarchate of Arcturos. It takes its name from three ancient towers that loom over the skyline; these towers have no apparent means of ingress. Also known as Tricastrum. Population 4,200.

Thicket, The: A huge thorny thicket occupying several acres in Burdock’s Valley (q.v.), not far from the old imperial road leading from Newmarket to Arden Vul. The thicket is home to a tribe of kobolds and, unknown to all, the tomb of the ancient hero, Phagtro the Westron.

Upford: A town on Irthuín, in the exarchate of Narsileon. Also known as Altumvadum. Population 2,000.

Wainscross: An agricultural town on the Grain Islands, populated mostly by halflings. Population 2,500.

Westholm (WEST-home): The largest town on Borealiós, known as the conduit between the Wiskin peoples and the Archontean Empire. Numerous merchants, both Wiskin and Archontean, occupy stalls here. The Archontean maintain a sizable military presence here. Population 2,500.

Wine-Dark Sea: The ocean that binds together the continents and islands of northern Magae. These include Mithruin, Irthuín, Borealiós, the Grain Islands, and Ostraliós.

B. PERSONS OF NOTE

Alexia Basileon, aka the Green Lady: Female Archontean noble who feels she has been cheated of her rightful inheritance of Burdock's Valley (q.v.) by her half-brother, Iskander. She has established a new settlement at Gosterwick, close by the Azure Keep (qv.), and would like to recover the regalia of the archons of Arden Vul as part of her plan to claim her inheritance (see AK-2). Alexia has piercing green eyes, and favors emerald-green clothing. She is well-connected in Narsileon, although she is currently considered a loose cannon. What is less well known is that her mother was Thorcin; as a result, she is secretly on excellent terms with many of the local Thorcin thegns.

Alexios Hestales: A parvenu Archontean nobleman, and recent purchaser of the former imperial estate called Storm Point. Alexios is rich and arrogant, but not particularly smart.

Chloris Hestales: Born into the Xenarcheon clan, she is wife of Alexios Hestales, whom she manipulates ruthlessly.

Constans XXV: The current Archontean emperor, who rules from his enormous palace in Archontos.

Cynefrith: Male Thorcin and thegn of Frith's Hearth. Cynefrith is in his late 40s, with greying hair in warrior braids, and a badly scarred left-side of his face. He is staunchly anti-Archontean, and therefore is widely suspected to be a leader of the Thorcin Recovery League (although no evidence has yet linked him to their activities).

Eadric Strigona: The leader of the Thorcin Recovery League (q.v.). Although Eadric's name is frequently invoked, he is almost never seen, leading some to wonder whether there actually is an Eadric Strigona, or whether his is just a name used to inspire confidence and/or fear.

Ellagel, Lady: Co-ruler of the largest Elven realm, a mysterious woodland far to the west of the exarchate of Narsileon.

Gallador, Lord: Co-ruler of the Elven realm west of Narsileon.

Gedeon Ligareon: A talented Archontean soldier and administrator. Gedeon is the current leader of the Ligareon clan in the exarchate of Narsileon, and the lord of the Red Keep.

Helena the Unseen: Female Archontean magic user. Helena is mistress of the college of Perception in Narsileon and would very much like to bring Tikun Thane to heel for past transgressions against the college.

Iskander Basileon, aka Lord Burdock: A male Archontean aristocrat and prominent member of the Basileon clan. He has been awarded lordship over Burdock's Valley by the exarch of Narsileon, over the loud objections of his half-sister, Alexia Basileon. Iskander's claim is based on his descent from the last Archontean archon of Arden Vul, Uriel Basileon, who died when the city was sacked in 1783 AEP.

Isokrat the Even-Keeled: Male Archontean and chief priest of Enna in the town of Newmarket.

Josselin Rinstock: Female Archontean and mayor of Newmarket. She is anxious to preserve the 'free' status of Newmarket as a regional trading center against the claims of Lord Burdock.

Keko the Lamé: Male Archontean, and logothete (or chief administrator) of the Drome in the exarchate of Narsileon. Keko is thus responsible for all imperial intelligence and special operations in the exarchate. He appears as a courtly man in his early sixties, with silver hair and piercing black eyes; his left leg is largely useless, and he walks with a cane. Keko's name is used to inspire fear in children, while the fact that his family name is unknown causes equal consternation among the Five Families.

Klimt: A strange, possibly bodiless, wizard with a 'tent' in both Newmarket and Narsileon. Visitors to the tent swear that it is bigger on the inside than the outside, even though it is somewhat hard to tell, since the tent is pitch black until Klimt's many 'eyes' appear to inspect and question the visitor. Klimt speaks in a sibilant tone, and appears to have knowledge of events dating back many centuries.

Lukon Carleon, aka Lukon the Souless: Male Archontean. Like Keko, his title is merely chartoularios of the House of Sight, but in fact Lukon is the logothete of the Drome in Archontos, with supervisory powers over the leaders of the Drome elsewhere in the Empire. This makes him one of the most powerful figures in the Archontean Empire.

Melchior the Magnificent: A roguish, male, Archontean magic user operating in the exarchate of Narsileon. Melchior has swindled several magic users out of their magic items. His family name is Macrinus.

Phlebotomas Plumthorn: The leader of a band of evil halfling thugs who are currently occupying the entrance precincts to level 3 of the Halls of Arden Vul. Phlebotomas and his men have a recipe for a particularly virulent poison that they are marketing surreptitiously throughout the exarchate of Narsileon.

Plashey the Face: Male Archontean. The public 'face' of the Vengeance Factor in Narsileon.

Rudigar Red-Nail, called 'the Finder': Male Archontean ranger and 'fixer' for various good-aligned Archontean officials and institutions. He has worked frequently with (for?) Gedeon Ligareon. Few know that he is also a leading member of the Dawn Striders.

Stephania: Female Archontean and high priestess of Set (see area 4-51). From the restored cult chambers of Set within Arden Vul, Stephania directs operations throughout the Archontean Empire, through which she attempts to restore Set to his 'rightful place'. The Drome, and particularly Keko the Lamé, are working against her.

Tikun Thane: A powerful male Archontean mage, with a bad reputation among the collegia thanks to his manipulation of the colleges of Cinder and Perception many decades ago. Currently he is master of the Tower of the Ape in Newmarket. Tikun Thane has a secret connection to Arden Vul (see area SL3-2).

Valerian Krakteros: Male Archontean aristocrat and current exarch of Narsileon. Valerian is a hard-nosed politician who cares mostly about his own power and about pleasing the Emperor.

Wulfhere: Male Thorcin thegn of Moorleigh. Wulfhere is sympathetic to the interests of the Thorcin Recovery League, but is more actively concerned about hill giant activity on the moors.

Ysabet Basileon: Female Archontean aristocrat and courtier. Ysabet is cousin to Alexia and Iskander Basileon. An accomplished intriguer, Ysabet has managed to arrange to be married to the exarch of Narsileon, Valerian Krakteros. She hopes to manipulate him to further her own career.

C. RACES AND PEOPLES

Archonteans (Ar-KON-tee-ehns): Properly the term refers to the humans from the great city of Archontos, capital of the empire and dominant center on the island of Mithruin, but it has come to refer to any citizen of the empire, regardless of where he/she resides.

Archonteans are typically medium height (5'4" to 5'7"), with black or dark brown hair and slightly olive-colored skin. They are naturally arrogant when dealing with 'barbarians', even while deferring to the myriad social hierarchies that govern Archontean society. Archontean society is highly ordered, with a strong belief in the 'city' as the natural building block of civilization.

While Archonteans do farm, the elites typically run their plantations from the nearest 'civilized' location. As a result of their urban focus, the Archonteans have been great builders, of towns and cities, bridges, aqueducts, roads, and fortifications.

Archonteans are modeled on the ancient Romans and Byzantines. In antiquity, their names were Latinate, typically with two names (e.g., Priscus Pulcher, Marius Tricotor). About a millennium ago, however, their names have shifted to a more Greek, or Byzantine, style. Hence, the names of the powerful clans Basileus and Ligareus shifted to become Basileon and Ligareon; similarly personal names have ceased to favor names like Priscus, Marius, Julia, and Licinia and instead favor names such as Alexios, Georgios, Marcion, and Theodora.

Modern Archontean male names typically end in -on, -ion, -os, or -ios, while female names typically end in -a or -is. Modern male Archontean names: Alexios, Anaximander, Basil, Belisarios, Hector, Heraclion, Iskander, Kallion, Lukon, Marcion, Melchior, Paullor, Teodor, Uriel, Valerian. Modern female Archontean names: Alexia, Basina, Berenice, Callista, Eudocia, Helena, Megaris, Petronia, Sarabel, Syagria, Theodora.

Dwarves: Dwarves appear cold, distant, and avaricious to humans. By nature, they are clannish, wary of outsiders, and extremely vengeful, to the extent that they frequently seem xenophobic. Sarcastic jokes about 'the generosity of dwarves' are common in Archontos. Dwarves are reputed to be masters of stoneworking, metalworking and enchantment; still, as a rule they refuse to offer their goods for sale, so few are able to evaluate these claims. In keeping with their flinty, avaricious natures, dwarves are often teetotalers, as they fear that the effects of alcohol may render them open to being tricked or cheated. They prefer dour black clothes, sometimes embroidered with silver or gold thread. Some warrior clans favor beards, but most dwarven craftsmen do not.

Dwarven society is two-tiered. The upper tier is composed of the established clans, most named after a type of rock or similar substance (e.g. Malachite); members of these clans are the elites, and enjoy special privileges within dwarven holds. It is said that members of a clan will go to any end to rescue a clansman, or at least to recover his/her body and life-stone. The lower tier of dwarven society is composed of the clan-less. Some of the clanless were born that way, others were exiled from their clans for misdeeds, while still others are survivors of clans that imploded or were eliminated in factional politics.

The clanless do much of the mining and shaping, usually under the supervision of a dwarf from an established clan. When dwarves die, they are said to 'take to the stone'; whether this is literal or figurative is an open question among human sages, for the dwarves are particularly tight-lipped about such intensely intimate practices.

The Archonteans know of only two dwarven settlements, although its sages suspect that other holds exist on Irthuun and in the southern jungles. One known settlement is Durildor, or Deephold to humans; this small settlement is set in the mountains of Mithruin. The dwarves of Durildor are technically citizens of the Archontean Empire, although they are quite reclusive. It is said that ancient Emperors swore terrible oaths of support to persuade the dwarves to come to Archontea, and that the price of their arrival was near immunity from imperial rule and law.

The other known settlement is Kazildor (Dwarfhome), a major hold lying beneath the mountains north and west of Narsileon. The dwarves of Kazildor have refused all requests on the part of the empire to exchange ambassadors, so little is known of Kazildor itself. Perhaps to fend off more such requests, the dwarves of Kazildor have recently established a small permanent embassy in Narsileon. In return for certain advice and smithy work, the exarch has allowed the dwarves to operate their own trading factor in Narsileon, and has granted them certain monopolies.

Dwarven names are usually derived from types of rock or stone, and/or stone-related crafting, mining or related skills. Given names vary widely, but clan names (if a dwarf has a clan) are relatively few in number, and are of great antiquity. Dwarven clan names: Gest, Granite, Jade, Malachite, Obsidian, Tapper. Dwarven male given names: Etsil, Gedric, Grist, Jasper, Scoria, Utor, Zhorak. Dwarven female given names: Bressia, Dunita, Grishia, Hergist, Norita, Sable.

Elves: Elves are rare in the human-dominated areas of Magae. The largest and best-known elven enclave is the realm of Lady Ellagel and Lord Gallador, located deep within the central forests of Irthuun. Those elves that travel in human society frequently do so for highly specific, temporary reasons (searching for a specific object or piece of knowledge); on occasion, they reside as advisors in the courts of human lords. Most humans have never seen an elf, and will treat elves with fear and caution.

Elven society is broadly collective, with younger elves associating themselves with seniors who have established reputations for great deeds, excellent craftsmanship, or particular wisdom. Elves prize core balance in all things. Those elves who are able to blend their emotions, magical sensibilities, knowledge, and connections with nature are held as paragons. Elves are curious and inquisitive, but do not care to reveal themselves before strangers (and especially non-elves). Most elves pursue a highly specific intellectual interest, as well as a specific interest in magic of some sort, whether as a practitioner, theorist, or amateur. Elves are particularly attracted by wisdom, by knowledge, by beauty, and by magical lore.

Elves have two names, one given name and one that describes one of their parents. Given names vary widely. The second name invariably is composed of a parent's name with the suffix -son or -dottir. Which parental name an elf adopts as his/her second name is a personal choice, one marked by much symbolism (as the elf is thereby linking his/her future to that of the selected parent).

Only the most venerable and powerful of elves dispense with the parental name. Male elf names: Erist Ellagelsson, Gallador, Gelanchian Gellisson, Jiltorin Trillissason, Lellagalon Begelsson, Nagellor Belladorson, Nisdis Jeronsson, Seldorin Seldorsson. Female elf names: Aelin Gillesladsdottir, Ellagel, Gilleslad, Noreden Galesdottir, Pelissa Halbestdottir.

Halflings: Halflings are uncommon, and largely found in segregated agricultural communities. Most halflings known to the Empire live on the Grain Islands to the east of Archontea, where their agricultural prowess provides important food supplies to Archontos itself. These halfling communities are largely self-regulating, although they are under the loose supervision of the imperial strategos and his legion. Local halfling lore does not fully account for their existence on the Grain Islands, being content to distantly recall the Great Voyage on the Big Ships.

Although most halflings are content with their rural lives, a few bold sorts attach themselves to the staff of the Strategos and end up traveling 'across the water' to Archontos. These halflings are seen as exotic and rustic, and they tend to suffer some general paternalistic patronizing from Imperial citizens. Imperial officials treat halflings in a genial but patronizing way, and will assume them to be political naïfs. Ordinary citizens of the Empire treat halflings as great curiosities, and will often approach them, pinch them, and ask them simplistic questions.

Halflings have given and family names. Family names are typically derived from botanical or agricultural features. Given names vary widely, but are typically English in origin. Male halfling names: Harry Berrymash, Jenks Pipeweed, Phlebotomas Plumthorn, Rosco Barleystalk, Williston Appleroot. Female halfling names: Alice Goldengrain, Gail Winebottom, Livinia Greenthumb, Lucy Rosepetal, Petunia Turnstile.

Imperial Goblins: The humans of Archontos enslaved the goblins of Mithruin in antiquity and put them to work as miners and as laborers on the vast imperial latifundia of Mithruin. Millennia of servitude – but also of exposure to the 'civilizing' forces of the Archontean empire - have created a distinct racial subgroup. Even if they resemble 'wild goblins' (monsters) physically, these 'imperial goblins' are culturally distinct from their monstrous kin and thus look at wild goblins with disdain.

Imperial goblins are short, long-armed, and bandy legged, with yellowish skin and, frequently, yellow eyes. They possess black hair and are comfortable wearing minimal clothing, but possess their own standards for fine dress (these include tall conical caps, colorful vests, and jodhpurs tucked into beautiful leather boots). They reach a maximum of 4' 8" in height. Goblins are known for their wiry strength and tough constitutions.

Many imperial goblins have been freed from slavery over the years, leading to a large number of imperial freedgoblin citizens. Although these freedgoblins are noted as highly effective merchants, estate managers, and bureaucrats, they are typically treated as second-class citizens by ordinary Archontean and are the object of casual racism on the part of the Archontean. If allowed by the GM, imperial goblin PCs should use the racial statistics of gnomes (who are unknown on Magae).

Imperial goblin names combine two radicals, and usually describe a profession or task that the goblin (or his/her ancestors) practiced. Male imperial goblin names: Capdoffer, Lamplighter, Seamfinder, Wicktrimmer. Female imperial goblin name: Hearthminder, Kettlelifter, Threadspinner, Warplifter.

Khumus (Koo-moose): The Khumus are a nomadic horse-people. They inhabit the far western side of Irthuun, and their Khor-ate is separated from the Thorcinga and Archontean by the vast forests of central Irthuun. The Khumus are small (5'1" to 5'5"), swarthy, and typically expert riders and bowmen. They are only rarely encountered in the Archontean territories. Khumus is used both as a noun and as an adjective. Male Khumus names: Arslan, Batengis, Batu, Ganzorig, Nergui. Female Khumus names: Enegen, Gerel, Khulan, Sarnai, Sube.

Thorcinga (thor-KING-ga): The origin of these inhabitants of the western continent of Irthuun is opaque. Physically they range in size and coloring, a fact that outsiders use to claim that they are a hybrid people. Some Archontean sages, in fact, believe that the Thorcinga are the descendants of the ancient Archontean abandoned on Irthuun when the empire pulled back to Archontos about 1,200 years ago. Whatever their origin, however, the Thorcinga have established their own distinctive culture.

Although the Thorcinga did occupy the old Archontean cities and maintained them as trading depots, the Thorcinga prefer a rural life. A hereditary aristocracy (the thegns) holds title to most of the cultivated land and other rights of wealth; lesser folk living in villages or manors owe taxes (in kind) and service to their local thegn. Since the return of the Archontean to Irthuun 350 years ago, and the re-establishment of imperial exarchates at Narsileon and Arcturos, many Thorcinga have chafed at the reappearance of imperial law and bureaucracy. A Thorcin Recovery League (TRL) has sprung up, led by a possibly mythical figure known as Eadric Strigona, with the purpose of permanently driving the Archontean from Irthuun.

Thorcinga is the collective noun; Thorcin (THOR-kin) is the substantive noun and adjective. Their names are loosely derived from the stock of English names of the Anglo-Saxon period. Male Thorcin names: Aelfric, Aethelred, Colmund, Edric, Godric, Horsa, Swithun. Female Thorcin names: Aethelflad, Cyneburga, Eadgithu, Ebbe, Thalia.

Wiskinga (wis-KING-ga): Inhabitants of Borelios, the Wiskinga are typically tall, blonde or red-haired, and fair-skinned. Their society is more tribal than that of the Archontean, being based on small kinship groupings clustered around a chieftain's hall. Wiskin society values physical skills and ability, and reaving is an ancient and well-respected tradition among young Wiskinga. It is also common for young Wiskinga to journey within the Archontean empire, seeking glory, adventure, and wealth before returning to the ancestral steading.

Wiskinga is the collective noun, Wiskin (WIS-kin) is the substantive noun and adjective. Their names are loosely based on Old Norse naming conventions. Male Wiskin names: Bjorn, Hjalti, Njal, Olaf, Thorvald. Female Wiskin names: Birte, Freya, Gudrun, Gunhild, Hallgerd.

D. INSTITUTIONS & ORGANIZATIONS

Army, Archontean: The Archontean emperor maintains a standing army composed of five legions of heavy cavalry (cataphracts), six legions of heavy infantry (scutarii), and three legions of light infantry (velites). In addition, the emperor directly controls nine cohorts of the tagmata, or imperial guard.

Each legion is led by a polemarch and is supposed to contain 3,000 soldiers. Legions are subdivided into 6 cohorts of 500 men, each led by a komes; each cohort has 5 kentarchia of 100 men, each led by a kentarch; each kentarchia has two pentarchia of 50 men, each led by a pentarch; each pentarchia is divided into five konturbia of 10 men, each led by a dekarch.

The imperial tagmata are slightly different. Each cohort contains 1,000 men and is led by a taxiarch. Each cohort is divided into two banda of 500 men, each led by a komes; each bandon is divided into 5 kentarchia of 100 men, each led by a kentarch; each kentarchia is divided into 5 konturbia of 20 men, each led by a dekarch. Common soldiers (privates) are called spatharii.

Azure Shield, Knights of the: A knightly order that is more militarized than the Black Legion or Sacred Band. It is divided into septs of twenty knights (each with squires). Septs typically act as independent units.

Benevolent Brotherhood: The Brotherhood is the empire-wide thieves' guild, active in all major Archontean cities and towns. Members are ranked: Little Brothers are the rank and file thieves; Brothers run cells within a given area; Elder Brothers are those with a certain geographic jurisdiction and authority over 7-10 cells; Eldest Brothers are a shadowy handful of senior thieves who coordinate empire-wide activities as needed.

In sizable population centers (e.g., Narsileon), the Brotherhood operates a public 'front', where those in need of the Brotherhood's services may deposit requests for service with a named Brother (or with a randomly-chosen one, if none are known to the petitioner).

The imperial authorities normally do not intervene in the daily affairs of the Brotherhood, leading many to speculate that the Brotherhood pays regular 'tithes' to avoid scrutiny.

Black Legion, The: A private knightly order composed of very noble and thus very haughty members.

Bureaucracy, Archontean: The vast imperial bureaucracy is divided into three main branches, the House of Coins, the House of Sight, and the Private House (see separate entries for each). Each branch is led by a thesmothete living in Archontos, who consults regularly with the basileus about decisions affecting the empire. In each imperial theme or exarchate, the chief bureaucrat for each branch of the administration is a logothete, who administers a small army of chartoularii, enforcers, guards, and so forth. Service in the bureaucracy is common for middle- and upper-class citizens.

Collegia: The seven collegia effectively monopolize the formal training in magic use in the Archontean empire. Originally there was but one collegium, the Order of Thoth, and it was strictly limited to the nobly born. Resentment of this stratification was one of the causes of the infamous War of the Sortians and Theosophs, which nearly destroyed the empire some 1,200 years ago. A result of the war, alongside general imperial retraction from Irthu, was that magical training became more egalitarian. Seven collegia now exist, each with its own identity and/or specialty:

The Order of Thoth: generalists; the original order, and still politically powerful

The College of Perception: illusionists and magic users interested in illusion

The Imperial Academy: generalists; few in number; snobby, limited to uppermost nobility

Collegium of Macrina: academics and researchers; their members produce the largest number of new spells

New School of Arcane Might: generalists and necromancers; follows a philosophy of domination

Order of the Fifth Circle: summoners and those interested in the planes

Collegium of Cinders: elementalists

A few well-placed magi suspect that an eighth, secret collegium exists. That secret, 'eighth collegium' is in fact the Order of Priscians (q.v.).

Dawn Striders, The: An ultra-secret organization of powerful good-aligned humans and demi-humans. The Striders have two goals: 1) to sniff out and eliminate powerful evil throughout the known world. This does not mean combatting all evil-doers everywhere; rather it means focusing only on powerful evil - both organizations and individuals; 2) to attempt to shape the political direction of the Archontean Empire subtly and from within. Here, their aim is to influence affairs and events so as to produce more humanitarian, more egalitarian, and more morally positive results. The existence of the Striders is known to the Drome, although they have not yet managed to identify any of its members.

Drome, The: Technically a bureau housed within the House of Sight, the Drome is the name of the imperial secret police. So important is the Drome that its facilities are usually distinct from - and much larger than - those of the House of Sight; indeed, the Drome operates as an utterly distinct agency, and its regional leaders are given the title of logothete (a title equal to their putative supervisors in the House of Sight). Special agents of the Drome are known colloquially as the Black Lotus, and are greatly feared. In Narsileon, the logothete of the drome is Keko the Lame; Keko has a quiet and engaging public demeanor, but is utterly ruthless in the pursuit of imperial interests.

Exarchate (EX-ar-kate): A sub-division of the Archontean empire. Exarchates are ruled by exarchs, and have the most independence from the imperial center due to their 'frontier' status. The three exarchates are the Grain Islands, Narsileon, and Arcturos (the last two are on Irthuïn).

Factors, The: The Factors are large, empire-wide mercantile enterprises. All of the major Factors has constructed a Factor-Hold in each of the major Archontean population centers. Individual merchants belonging to the Factor can thus travel between cities and towns and be assured of a secure base for their transactions. The Factors also offer banking services: one can deposit monies or goods for secure storage, and one can also procure letters of credit to be redeemed at any Factor-Hold (thus reducing the amount of cash one must carry). While the four large factors have truly empire-wide reach, a number of more regional factors also exist. The four large Factors are:

- The Silent Factor
- The Golden Band
- The Prosperity Factor
- The Wisdom Factor

Each of the four has certain idiosyncrasies. For instance, members of the Silent Factor publicly wear attire that covers all but their eyes and refuse to speak to non-members at all; they use elaborate sign-language (and, occasionally, interpreters). The Golden Band is the largest and most prosperous of the four.

Five Families: The five large clans of aristocrats whose members functionally rule the empire in conjunction with the imperial family. The five are these: the Basileon, Krakteros, Junienos, Ligareon, and Xenarcheon families.

Each clan sponsors a clan-hold in major habitations (e.g., Narsileon), but individual members of a given family may have their own large estates, palaces, and so forth. The clans contain thousands of members, not all of which are of equal economic status; that is, some lineages within a clan are wealthier and more aristocratic than others. Clan rivalries are long-lasting and notorious (such as that existing between the Basileon and Ligareon clans).

It is possible to become a member of one of the Five Families through adoption; this honor is accorded only to extremely valuable allies.

House of Coins: Perhaps the most hated of the three branches of imperial government, the administrators of the House of Coins are responsible for all direct and indirect public taxation, and for operating the five imperial mints. In addition to being responsible for paying 10% of their annual income to the officials of the House of Coins, citizens are liable to a bevy of other taxes, including tolls, usage fees, extraordinary 'aids', and so forth. In Narsileon the current logothete of the House of Coins is Lord Alexandros Junienos.

House of Sight: The smallest of the three official branches of government, the House of Sight is concerned with the road system, with postal service, and with diplomacy. While formally a subsidiary office within the House of Sight, the Drome is in practice a separate bureau, with its own logothete who acts with full independence. In Narsileon, the current logothete of the House of Sight is Lord Rebecca Xenarcheon.

Lords of Justice: A recently-formed, secretive, alternate thieves' guild, designed to challenge the Benevolent Brotherhood's monopoly. The nature, size, and motives of the Lords of Justice are unknown. The Brotherhood is quite concerned about this threat, even as the imperial authorities have so far turned a blind eye to its activities.

Navy, Archontean: The Archontean have a long history as a naval power, even as their only real threats by sea are Wiskin long ships and pirates from the coast of Ostraliös. The Archontean navy is built around the dromon, a fast galley with one or two banks of oarsmen plus a lateen sail. Light dromons carry 108 oarsmen in one bank, where heavy dromons carry 180 oarsmen in two banks. A super-heavy ship, the chelandion, carries 300 oarsmen in three banks. Each ship is captained by a novarch. A unit of 2-20 ships is called a squadron, and is commanded by a droungarios. A unit of more than 20 ships is a fleet, and is commanded by a strategos.

The main Archontean naval forces are located as follows: the Karabisoi, or home fleet, based in Archontos; the Grain Isle squadron, based in Ostentown; the Irthuïn Squadron, based in Narsileon; the Borealiös squadron, based in Westholm; the Ostraliös squadron, officially based in Agoreon but actually based in Arcturos; and the Iron Isles Squadron, based in the Iron Isles. Each ship carries a complement of marines numbering 1/6 the number of oarsmen; these marines are trained as, and have the same prestige as, members of the imperial tagmata.

Priscians, Order of (PRISH-ens): This secretive, modern order of magic users claims descent (falsely) from Priscus Pulcher, the great historical Sortian figure. Modern Priscians favor rigid hierarchy, secrecy, and the hoarding of magical knowledge (all concepts which the original Priscus loathed). Members refer to the order as the Eighth Collegium.

Private House, The: The bureaucrats of the private house are responsible for administering all property and financial rights held directly by the imperial family. These duties include managing the emperor's personal estates, collecting revenues due from tenants on those lands, ensuring that tolls and other exactions held directly by the emperor are paid promptly and in full, and so forth.

Although its scope might seem the narrowest of the three branches of government, the Private House is, in fact, the largest of the three branches, with numerous chartoularii serving in regional offices of the Private House all over the empire. In Narsileon, the current logothete of the Private House is Lord Georgios Hellakreon, called 'Half-Hand' for obscure reasons.

Sacred Band: A knightly order of paired lovers, some male-male, some male-female, some female-female. Typically, the pair includes one fighter/knight and one magic user. While proud of the order as a whole, members are typically more devoted to their partner than to the order as a whole. This renders the Sacred Band more valuable for heroic individual (or dyadic) missions than for large, collective endeavors.

Themes: The Archontean empire is subdivided into thirteen themes, or administrative units. Six of the themes are on Mithruin: the city of Archontos itself, plus three agricultural and two mountain themes. Three more are mainly military in nature, and encompass the seas and trading lanes of the North, South and Center. The last four reflect overseas possessions: Borealius, the Grain Islands, Narsileon and Arcturos.

The title of the officers in charge of themes varies by their nature, being either an eparch (for Archontos the city), an archon (the agricultural themes of Mithruin), a strategos (the mountain themes of Mithruin, the theme of Borealius, and the naval themes), or an exarch (the Grain Islands, Narsileon, and Arcturos).

Thorcin Recovery League (aka TRL): The name given to organized, Thorcin resistance to the Archontean Empire on the continent of Irthuain. Members of the TRL use distinctive blue arrows and are said to be led by a certain Eadric Strigona (q.v.). Stated goals of the TRL include the expulsion of the Archontean empire from Narsileon and Arcturos.

Vengeance Factor: The empire-wide public assassin's guild. While it is legal to hire assassins for private matters (especially matters of honor), Archontean law prohibits the Vengeance Factor from targeting public officials.

As the bureaucracy is very large, many individuals are 'protected' by their status. It is not uncommon, therefore, for a person to hire the Vengeance Factor to satisfy his grudges immediately before taking public office. Assassination that is not conducted by the Vengeance Factor is strictly prohibited, and is punished with the most gruesome of public torture.

The Vengeance Factor is quite selective in what contracts it accepts, at least partly because members of the Factor who are killed in the service of a contract may not be avenged. In Narsileon, the Vengeance Factor operates a guild-hall in the Grain Market district, where Plashey the Face facilitates contracts.

E. CULTURE, HISTORY, AND EVENTS

Arden, called 'the Defender': One of the great heroines of Archontean history, Arden, with her companion, Vul the Sorcerer, is responsible for a number of quasi-legendary feats.

Arden was a simple legionary who rose through the ranks to command a legion of heavy infantry before being tapped by the expansionist emperors for 'special duties'. These duties are usually presented as the Twelve Labors of Arden (see the Twelve Labors of Arden in the Arden Vul books appendix). Whatever the historicity of the Labors, it is a fact that she and Vul discovered the cliff of Arden Vul and established the first imperial outpost there.

Despite her reputed toughness, in the present Arden is viewed by ordinary Archontean with great warmth and affection (more so than Vul the Sorcerer); she is often cited as the epitome of the protective and caring warrior.

Calendar: The dominant calendar used in the eastern portion of Magae is the Ennian calendar, that is, the official Archontean imperial calendar. The founding of the Empire is traditionally dated from the year of the signing of the Compact of Ennius (Ennii pactum). Dates are thus given either as SP, or before the compact (literally sine pacti, 'without the compact'), or as AEP, or after the compact (literally ab Ennii pacto, 'from the compact of Ennius'). The calendar is called the Ennian Calendar, for obvious reasons.

The current year is 2993 AEP. In official documents, however, it is common to date documents to a specific year of the reign of a given Emperor/Empress; thus, the current year (2993 AEP) might also be presented as "in the 8th year of Emperor Constans XXV". For this reason, lists of emperors with their regnal dates are held in all administrative offices of the empire.

The Thorcinga once had a distinct calendar, but it has been completely overshadowed by the Ennian calendar and is almost entirely forgotten. The Wiskinga never developed a distinct calendar system; in the north, then, years are reckoned by the season and/or by the lifespan of local jarls (although 'civilized' Wiskinga use the Ennian calendar).

The dwarves use an entirely distinct calendrical system, one based on the founding of the great hold of Kazildor, an event that occurred in 1877 SP (by Ennian reckoning); the dwarves date years 'from the stone', and thus the present is the year 4870 'from the stone'. Elves use a calendar based on years from the creation of Gildorin, the first elf; according to this reckoning, it is the year 9,533. Halflings and imperial goblins follow the Ennian calendar.

Years on Magae are comprised of 372 days. The Archontean, and most other human civilizations, divide this period into twelve months of 30 days based on the lunar cycle. Two six-day intercalary periods are added to the year, one in the late summer (harvest festival) and one in the winter (the winter solstice).

Weeks are seven days long. The Archontean names for the days of the week are: Basilsday, Lunday, Totsday, Mitrasday, Tasday, Horasday, and Demmasday (these are named after, respectively, the basileus, the moon, Thoth, Mitra, Ptah, Horus, and Demma). Numerous holidays and festivals dot the calendar year, sponsored by all the temples, by the imperial administration, as well as by local communities.

Compact of Ennius, The: This agreement was named after, Ennius, that lord from Mithruntir (aka Archontos) who first proposed and signed it 2,993 years ago. It bound a network of seven sorcererlords residing on the Shining Isle of Mithruin to the Seven Princes of Dragonkind in perpetual alliance by means of powerful oaths and a blood pact. According to the Compact, the Dragon Princes would assist these lords of Mithruin when summoned, and would in return receive a tithe of imperial revenues along with a promise that the nascent Empire would not expand in certain directions.

The Compact, which was inscribed on a tablet of gold and ivory, served Ennius and his human allies well, for with dragon support they dominated Mithruin and expanded to the Grain Isle and the Western Continent (Irthuín). As a supplement to the sorcerous skills of the Mithruntiri, the Compact ensured both the creation and longevity of the ancient Archontean Empire.

The Compact was never widely disseminated, with the early emperors content to tell their subjects that they enjoyed the friendship of unnamed ‘Elder Allies’. As dragonkind waned and the Archonteans waxed, the compact became strained, and its terms less frequently enforced; arrogant Emperor Basil III Piso actively broke its terms in 1588 AEP. During the War of Sortians and Theosophs, dragon allies were used on both sides, and that internecine discord led to a final fragmentation of the compact.

A few sorcerer-scholars in the present would like to locate the original compact and attempt to renew its terms. The signing of the compact serves as the starting date for Archontean calendars: 1 AEP means 1 year from the signing of the compact of Ennius [‘ab Ennii pacto’].

Elder Allies, The: A term for the mysterious allies who aided the Archontean empire in its explosive expansion more than two millennia ago. A few scholars know that the allies were, in fact, the Seven Princes of Dragonkind. Today that knowledge is lost and most Archonteans have no idea who the Elder Allies were.

Isadora, aka Yasidoranicil: An ancient gold dragon who preferred interaction with humans, particularly in the polymorphed form of Isadora, a wealthy Archontean aristocrat. Isadora bonded with Priscus Pulcher and became his lover. She recovered his broken body from Narsoleon during the War of Sortians and Theosophs and buried it in her sanctum (SL11-24). She ‘took the stone’ shortly after his demise; her body may be found at SL11-19. Almost no living person knows that “Lady Isadora” was a gold dragon.

Larel One-Eye: The most famous legendary figure in Archontean history. Larel is the archetypal trickster, who always manages to reveal the pride or stupidity of the powerful through his wit and cleverness. A certain number of his escapades are iconic; many more are known only as regional variations.

Marius Tricotor (aka Marius Invictus, or Marius the Unconquered): An ancient Archontean military hero. As archon of Arden Vul in the early years of the Archontean presence, he was responsible for defeating and mostly exterminating the ‘hopper’ foes (i.e., heqeti).

Phagtro the Westron: A popular ‘barbarian’ warrior featuring in Archontean epic literature. The “Deeds of Phagtro” are numerous and vary according to the teller. He is usually cast as a grudging but useful ally of the Archonteans during their expansionist phase, although his outsider status allows writers to use him to critique Archontean social norms. There was a real Phagtro, and his burial mound may be found hidden within the Thicket in Burdock’s Valley.

Priscus Pulcher, ‘the Hekate’: A powerful male Archontean magic user in antiquity. Priscus became one of the prominent Sortians (q.v.), and an advocate for the liberalization of magical training. He died tragically in the War of the Sortians and Theosophs (q.v.). Although in life he strove to expand the rights of all Archonteans, over the centuries Priscus has come to be thought of as a great villain whose ‘treachery’ brought the empire to its knees. His remains are secretly entombed in SL11-24.

Sortians (SOR-tee-ans): The reformers and rebels who battled the Theosophs in the great civil war that ended the Archontean golden age 1,200 years ago (aka ‘the War of the Sortians and Theosophs’).

Taking their name from the word for ‘fate’ or ‘prophecy’, they formed a loose “League of the Sortians” with the goal of forcing the Order of Thoth to democratize the training of magic throughout the empire. The traditional system was rigidly hierarchical and socially restrictive; the Sortians felt that the empire would prosper if all those with the talent for magic were given the same, imperially-sanctioned training.

Because its members eschewed rigid hierarchies, the Sortians proved maddeningly difficult for the entrenched Theosophs to eliminate; rather than a single leader, the Sortians preferred collective action and de-centralized, cellular structures.

Although modern Archonteans think of all the Sortians as identical and as having been corrupted by the ‘dark prince’ of the Sortians, Priscus Pulcher, in reality the Sortians embraced a number of philosophies, personalities, and approaches. Priscus Pulcher (sometimes called ‘the Hekate’) was, in fact, merely one of the leading voices within the League, although he was especially influential among those who favored negotiation and compromise.

Other groups of Sortians, including those more closely bonded with chromatic dragonkind, favored hardline guerilla and paramilitary action. As a part of the eventual compromise that ended the great war, all prominent Sortians agreed to retire from public life (even as their egalitarian goals were realized).

Ten, The: The modern pantheon of deities worshipped in the Archontean empire emerged out of the chaos surrounding the War of the Sortians and Theosophs. Whether the ‘new’ gods are merely avatars of the original Twelve (q.v.) is an open theological question. An additional seventeen minor deities are also venerated within the Empire. See below, Gods of Magae, for the modern pantheon.

Theosophs (THEE-oh-soffs): An obscure word used pejoratively to describe the conservative faction in the great civil war that ended the Archontean golden age 1,200 years ago (the War of the Sortians and Theosophs). While both factions drew from all reaches of Archontean society, the Theosophs were dominated and led by the powerful priesthoods of Thoth, Set and Horus, and by the old-timers in the wizardly Order of Thoth. The Theosophs maintained that Archontean success was predicated on retaining divine favor, and thus that the reforms advocated by the Sortians would lead to the retraction of divine influence.

The power of the Theosophs was broken in the war, leading to the democratization of magical training (and the swift creation of six new collegia to accompany the Order of Thoth).

Trenner’s Rock: A famous Archontean victory of antiquity, at which the legions defeated a larger force of assembled Thorcin thegns on Irthuín. The architect of the victory was the polemarch Eadgifia, a native Thorcin but acculturated Archontean, who commanded the 3rd Legion of heavy infantry. The victory shattered effective opposition to Archontean expansion, and thus led to the creation of the exarchates of Narsileon and Arcturos.

Twelve, The: These were the original gods of Archontos, worshipped for more than 3,000 years. In the centuries on either side of the War of Sortians and Theosophs, however, the Archontean came to worship a new pantheon (the Ten). Some theologians argue that the Ten are merely reskinned versions of the original twelve; others maintain that the new pantheon ousted the old. Devotees of the twelve still exist, but in many fewer numbers, and typically in secluded communities; for instance, a revived cult of Set has proven most troublesome to the current imperial administration. Most agree that at least one of the Twelve was actually slain (Horus), although arguments about how his death occurred are legion. See below, Gods of Magae, for the Twelve.

Twelve Labors of Arden, The: These are the twelve famous feats accomplished by the great adventurer-heroine, Arden the Defender. While modern scholars are probably right in suspecting that many of the labors conflate numerous lesser accomplishments, the historicity of the Labors is largely accepted by the Archontean people, who love to relate the tales to children, cite them didactically, and use them to highlight normative virtues. For details of each Labor, see the Twelve Labors of Arden in the Arden Vul books appendix. The Twelfth Labor is generally undescribed, since, according to tradition, Arden will return from death to aid the Empire in its time of greatest need.

Vul the Sorcerer: One of the great heroes of the Archontean expansion. Vul was a classic adventuring magic user who, with his companion Arden the Defender, journeyed through the imperial territories, solving problems and experiencing adventures. Despite the fact that the two almost always appear as equals in the stories, it is Arden and not Vul whom modern Archontean revere. Vul is known mostly as the taciturn, moody companion of compassionate Arden; only a few wizards and sages know of his real role in Arden's Labors. He is also known, albeit only to experienced mages, for his famous Four Summonings.

War of the Sortians and Theosophs: A bitter civil war fought within the Archontean Empire some 1,200 years ago. The Sortians (q.v.) were a group of radical reformers who wished to bring innovation to hidebound imperial institutions, particularly by liberalizing access to magical instruction by opening the Order of Thoth to any with the gift for magic. The Sortians were opposed by traditionalists known as Theosophs (q.v.), who argued that Archontean dominance was a sign of divine favor and that, therefore, the status quo should not be threatened; the chief members of the Theosophs were the old-timers in the Order of Thoth and most of the clergy in the powerful temples of Horus, Thoth, and Set.

Decades of rising antagonism and failed attempts to broker a compromise escalated into open war after a leading Sortian, Priscus Pulcher, surrendered to authorities in the mistaken belief that doing so would lead to peace. When the authorities in Narsileon instead tortured and executed him, the more militaristic Sortians rose in open warfare. The war was cataclysmic, resulting in the utter destruction of Agoreon and Arden Vul, and the retraction of the Empire from Irthuín for some 800 years. Only when Emperor Drusus V Dives personally guaranteed the peace did the two sides lay down their arms.

As part of the compromise, prominent Sortians agreed to retire from public life, while the Order of Thoth was opened to any and all (a ruling which led swiftly to the creation of six new collegia). Eventually the Emperor Drusus V Dives made peace between the factions (including a democratization of the collegia), but by then the damage had been done.

Worthies of the Archontean Empire: Imperial historians and apologists love to construct lists of the twenty greatest heroes of antiquity. While these lists usually vary in a few names, most of the following are usually included: Amalasantha of Narsileon, Arden the Defender, Crinius the Rector, Ennius the First Lord, Felix Minucius, Halduin the Citharist, Horatius Interfector, Jixon of Archontos, Licinia the Seer, Kalea the Theosoph, Marius Tricotor (called Marius Invictus), Phocion the Builder, Plotinus Quartus Claudino, Pol the Grinning Mage, Taticus and Thekla (the Twins), Vul the Sorcerer, and Yeth, He-Who-Sought-to-Bring-Law-to-Chaos. Frequent (but controversial) additions to this list include Priscus Pulcher and Larel One-Eye.

Some devotees of lists have concocted a list of 'lesser worthies', that typically includes: Eadgifia 'the wall' (a legionary), Gimir the Mighty (a Wiskin warrior), Hertulion the legionary, Hjaltion the dekarch, Isidora companion of Priscus Pulcher, Jaken the Proud, Janata the scout, Lauret the archer, Lucius Minux, Phagtro the Westron, Pharastina sister of Phagtro, Ptoh-Ristus the priest, and Terencius Borsa ('the gut-sucker').

Yasidoranicil: See Isadora.

F. TITLES AND HIERARCHIES

Civilian:

Archon (AR-kon): Either 1) governor of one of the seven urban districts of Archontos, or 2) sole governor of a smaller city/town

Basileus (bas-uh-LEY-us): Emperor

Chartouarios (char-too-LAR-ee-us): Ubiquitous middle- and low-level administrators, reporting to a logothete

Eparch (EP-ark): Prefect or governor of the city of Archontos

Exarch (EX-ark): Governor of a province that is extended from the imperial city

Krites (KREE-tays): Judge. Plural: kritai (KREE-tie).

Logothete (LOGO-theet): Financial administrator under an archon or exarch; also the traditional chief of one of the bureaus of imperial bureaucracy; also the chief of a regional branch of the Drome

Proedros (pro-A-dros): Mid-level administrator charged with logistics; under an archon

Protonotarios (proto-no-TAR-ee-os): Civilian chief administrator within a military theme

Sebastos (say-BAS-tos): Current leader of one of the Five Families

Strategos (STRA-teh-gos): Governor of a theme (unless that theme is governed by an exarch); also a military title

Thesmothete (THES-mo-theet): Senior administrator, particularly as chief assistant to an archon

Military:

Dekarch (DEHK-ark): In a regular legion, commander of a konturbs of 10 men; in a cohort of the imperial tagmata, commander of a konturbs of 20 men

Domestikos (do-MESS-tee-kos): Chief commander of the entire Archontean military establishment

Droungarios (droon-GAR-ee-os): Rear admiral, one in command of multiple naval units; often the adjutant to a naval strategos

Kentarch (KENT-ark): In both regular legions and cohorts of the tagmata, a commander of a kentarchia of 100 men

Komes (KO-mays): In a regular legion, commander of a cohort of 500 men; in a cohort of the tagmata, commander of a bandon of 500 men

Magos (MA-gos): Military magic user of any level attached to any unit

Novarch (NOV-ark): Captain of a naval vessel

Pentarch (PENT-ark): In a regular legion, a commander of a pentarchia of 50 men

Polemarch (POLE-uh-mark): Commander of a legion of 3,000 men; each legion is subdivided into six cohorts

Spatharios (spah-THAR-ee-os): Basic legionary, or private

Strategos (STRA-teh-gos): Commander of an army comprised of several disparate units, whether ground or sea forces; also the term for a governor of certain themes. Often used generically as 'general'.

Taxiarch (TAX-ee-ark): Commander of a cohort of the imperial tagmata; a cohort is subdivided into two banda few modern Archontean speak (or even read) Mithric, and no one reads or speaks Rudishva. In order to plumb the Halls of their deepest secrets, it may be necessary for some PCs to acquire facility in these (or other) tongues. The process of language acquisition can provide an opportunity for questing, learning, and negotiation with other intelligent denizens of the Halls.

Optional Rules for Languages

Mithric for Magic Users and Illusionists: Although no longer a spoken tongue, the Mithric language is still the language of arcane theory and practice. Any magic user or illusionist trained at one of the imperial collegia (that is, the majority) will have some ability to read Mithric. In game terms, such a PC has a 10% chance per level of sight-reading any given bit of written Mithric. For example, a 5th-level magic user has a 50% chance to read a piece of Mithric encountered as an inscription. This chance is doubled if the magic user has access to a good library to aid in reading it.

Starting Languages: A GM planning an Arden Vul campaign may wish to offer the following 'new' languages as potential starting languages: Mithric, Archontean, Thorcin, Wiskin, Khumus.

"Common": In most respects, Archontean functions as the 'common' tongue for the portion of Magae in which Arden Vul is located. That is, because of its cultural and political dominance, the language of the Archontean empire can be considered as the default language. So, even if a PC is Thorcin by origin, it is not inconceivable that he/she should be partly or fully comfortable with Archontean. The same holds for adventuring demi-humans: it can be assumed that they will have learned enough Archontean to get by in human-dominated areas.

G. LANGUAGES & WRITING SYSTEMS OF ARDEN VUL

As a site filled with strange and lost cultures, Arden Vul offers numerous new and different languages to challenge and delight adventurers. Some groups may care little about such matters. For them, the languages listed in the text and in this appendix may simply appear as color or fluff. Other groups and GMs may wish to use the language structure to facilitate role-playing. After all,

Language Tables

Two tables follow. The first is organized according to spoken tongues. It lists all the spoken languages that are unique to this setting (as well as a few 'regular' ones), providing notes about who speaks each language and about the written form (if any) of that tongue. The second table is organized around the writing systems mentioned in column three of the first table, along with a description of that system (and, sometimes, some notes about the development of the system).

Spoken Language	Modern Speakers	Written Form
Mithric	Mithric is a dead language. It is still employed as the language of arcane theory and practice, so all magic users trained at one of the imperial collegia (i.e., the majority) have some knowledge of Mithric. In game terms, a PC magic user has a 10% chance per experience level to decipher something written in Mithric. Otherwise Mithric must be acquired like any other language.	Mithric
Archontean	Archontean, halflings, imperial goblins, beastmen (in a debased form)	Mithric
Thorcin	Thorcinga	Mithric
Wiskin	Wiskinga	Wiskin Runic
Khumus	Khumus	Khumic characters
Beastman	The beastmen of Arden Vul	Mithric
Secret tongue of the priests of Thoth	No modern speakers; in antiquity, the priests of Thoth	Mithric

Secret tongue of the priests of Set	No modern speakers; in antiquity, the priests of Set	Mithric
Elvish	Elves	Sylvan Runic and Sylvan
Fey	Fey	Sylvan Runic and Sylvan
Dwarvish	Dwarves	Dwarven Runic
Galactic Common	Space-faring galactic races, including the rudishva, varumani, varuda, kaliyani, and niravairi	Glyphik (symbols), Glyphis (literary)
Logik	Galactic experts in mathematics, physics, astronomy, and engineering	Glyphik
Rudishva	Rudishva	Glyphik, Glyphis
Varumani	Varumani	Semi-glyphik
Kaliyani	Kaliyani	Semi-glyphik
Varuda	The debased varuda	None
Niravairi	Niravairi	Glyphik, Glyphis
Heqeti	Heqeti	Heqeti Runic
Draconic	Literate dragons	Draconic Runic

Writing System (Associated Spoken Tongues)	Description of Writing System
Mithric (Mithric, Archontean, Thorcin, Beastman, the secret tongues of the priests of Set and Thoth)	Mithric was the original writing system of the Archontean Empire. In expressing the spoken form of Mithric, the early Archontean employed a set of angular letters (30) alongside a relatively small corpus of symbols (50); the symbols were mostly those used for public expressions of power and might. In the past 1,000 years, spoken Mithric has largely died, having been replaced by its linguistic daughter, Archontean. While Archontean uses the same Mithric alphabet, four letters and all the symbols have largely fallen away; this means that modern written Archontean uses only twenty-six letters of the old Mithric alphabet. As citizens of the empire, both the halflings of the Grain Islands and the imperial goblins speak Archontean like their masters and use the exact same version of Mithric for writing. The Thorcinga adopted the Mithric alphabet to their own distinct spoken language; in so doing, they retained two of the now-lost original Mithric letters and have added three others (for a total of 31 letters). Finally, the beastmen of Arden Vul have unsurprisingly retained Mithric as their writing system; their version of the Mithric alphabet is simpler, as it uses only 22 letters.
Dwarven Runic (Dwarvish)	As a runic system comprising some 350+ images, Dwarven Runic expresses concepts, nouns, and adjectives symbolically. Differences in time, number, and gender can be indicated by adding small flourishes to the base rune. Dwarven Runic is famous for devoting 63 characters to various descriptions of the shape, smell, taste, hardness, and color of rock.
Wiskin Runic (Wiskin)	Wiskin Runic is a simple runic system modeled on Dwarven Runic. It is able to convey numbers from 1-10 and in groups of 10, 50, and 100. It also includes a set of 200 or so angular runes used to describe concepts, temperatures, time, and nouns.
Sylvan Runic (Elvish, Fey)	In the distant past the elves contented themselves with a set of 275 runes that were used primarily for aesthetic and simple descriptive purposes (e.g., in smithing). Their system was adopted and modified by the intelligent Fey. While the elves eventually adopted a true alphabet (see Sylvan, below), they still employ Sylvan Runic for artistic, decorative, and symbolic purposes.
Sylvan (Elvish, Fey)	In response to the growth of human culture and writing, the elven lords commissioned a true alphabet to complement Sylvan Runic. This system, begun 4,500 years ago, was intended to represent spoken Elvish in both aesthetic and functional ways. Sylvan appears as a cursive, semi-continuous script of 31 letters, in which new thoughts are represented by elaborate geometric patterns which themselves carry hints of meaning (that is, each symbol, including symbols denoting pauses, connotes a different intention, emotion, or expectation)
Glyphik (Galactic Common, Logik, Rudishva, Niravairi)	A symbolic writing system associated with the great galactic empires, Glyphik is designed to convey practical information. Yet because it comprises a vast set of 1,500 characters, each formed by a combination of a basic octagonal shape with a greater or lesser proportion of radiating and delimiting lines, it is capable of sophisticated expression of complex ideas. Further subtleties can be added to the basic symbols by adding half-lines and curlicues to the base. Logik is a specialized form Glyphik, one that uses hyper-specialized symbols to express higher mathematical concepts and elements of equations, as well as terminology specific to physics, engineering, chemistry, and astronomy. Logik is only comprehensible to a narrow caste of the galactic peoples.

Glyphis (Galactic Common, Rudishva, Niravairi)	Glyphis is the philosophical and literary form of writing used by the galactic peoples. Based on Glyphik, it selected a limited set of Glyphik's symbols and modified them to create a fixed set of letters that emulated the sounds created by the main galactic races. This pared-down version of Glyphik resulted in an alphabet of 48 characters. Individual races could and did modify the basic system to reflect cultural and linguistic differences. The rudishva version, for instance, is highly cursive, with the 48 characters being linked by flourishes, curlicues, and so forth.
Semi-Glyphik (Varumani, Kaliyani, Varuda)	In the broadest terms, Semi-glyphik refers to any smaller set of symbolic characters or runes drawn from the larger corpus of Glyphik. Indeed, Glyphis itself might be considered to be but one form of Semi-glyphik. In the context of Arden Vul, however, 'Semi-glyphik' properly refers to the simplified systems of writing developed by the different starfaring races after the crash of the Beacon, and especially after the demise of the rudishva hegemony. Today, only the varumani and the kaliyani still use this system, as the few remaining debased varuda are not literate. Over the years, the varumani version of Semi-glyphik has mutated into system that combines an angular set of 15 letters with about 100 concept- and action-oriented symbols. The kaliyani version has developed into a far more fluid, rounded, and cursive example: it includes 13 letters and a corpus of 110 symbols. Because varumani and kaliyani Semi-glyphik have developed of over two millennia without cross-fertilization of words and concepts, the two systems are almost entirely unintelligible to each other.
Heqeti Runic (Heqeti)	Heqeti Runic combines a set of twelve letters with a system of several hundred pictographic symbols. It is fairly primitive, and does not lend itself to long narrative, philosophical, or theological discussion.
Khumic (Khumus)	Khumic developed without any influence from Mithric. It contains 19 letters and 200+ symbols, all of which are typically joined together in an elegant, cursive hand.
Draconic (Draconic)	Draconic is one of the oldest languages native to Magae. Spoken draconic sounds like long wheezes of sound, varying in intensity of expelled breath, in timbre, in volume, and very occasionally in the presence of glottal interjections. Written draconic is a continuous and elaborate cursive script, without distinct words or punctuation; it is thus very difficult to get a sense for the meaning of a text without reading the entire thing, as context and shades of meaning can be modified by the expressions found later in a manuscript.
Galactic Common	Space-faring galactic races, including the rudishva, varumani, varuda, kaliyani, and niravairi
Logik	Galactic experts in mathematics, physics, astronomy, and engineering

H. GODS OF MAGAE

Many deities are worshiped across Magae. Whether or not each is distinct, or merely an avatar of a set of ur-deities, is a question that has been debated by theologians in Archontos and other bastions of learning for millennia. Some heretics are even known to have claimed that deities are nothing more than mortals who have transcended death and time.

The Archontean Pantheons (aka, The Twelve and the Ten)

There were twelve original gods of Archontos, with the earliest written reference to one of them dating to 1218 SP (it refers to Toth). Certainly, all of the Twelve were acknowledged by c.500 SP, and thus they were the gods whom the Archontean brought with them in the great period of imperial expansion. During this golden age, the Twelve each boasted broad portfolios of 'expertise'. This made syncretism not only possible but common during the Archontean expansion: it was easy enough for the Archontean to see in some foreign god a particular 'aspect' of one of the Twelve. Many aspects were thus 'discovered'. For instance, Sekhmet (F) came to be understood as an aspect of Wadjet, with special influence on fire and warfare. Of course, whether or not such foreign 'gods' were distinct entities or merely aspects of the Twelve was, of course, a hotly debated theological point. Some modern theologians blame this flexible and accepting approach for the gradual decline of the Twelve; these critics suggest that by claiming to encompass all things, the Twelve lost their uniqueness and thus their appeal to the broader populace. For whatever reason, worship of the Twelve had become ossified and ritualized by the time of the War of Sortians and Theosophs. By 1855 AEP, the imperial government decided to officially link itself to a new slate of deities, ones whose divine support promised to revive the empire. The new pantheon centered around ten very powerful deities ("the Ten") who were served by seventeen (or more) lesser gods. Theological cynics could and did note that many of these 'new' gods resembled the most popular of the 'aspects' of the old pantheon, but the official position is that the Ten are distinct from the Twelve. In the present, worship of the old gods is rare; some of the Twelve are forgotten, at least one (Horus) is presumed 'dead', and another (Set) is the object of secretive, illegal cult worship. The Ten and the Seventeen have clearly replaced them. For the past 500 years, the emperor has also been the subject of a cult; the theology of this is a bit fuzzy, and 'worship' of the emperor is primarily understood as a measure of loyalty more than anything else. Note: the Archontean remain accepting of foreign gods; it is not at all uncommon to find temples or shrines to the Wiskin and Thorcin pantheons existing alongside those of their Archontean rivals within the communities of the Empire. The same, however, is not true beyond the borders of the empire; shrines and temples to the Ten are unwelcome outside the imperial boundaries.

Table 1: The Twelve

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Anubis (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	Burial, guidance (both of the souls of the dead and of travelers)	Jackal; staff, dagger
Besa (F), greater god	Chaotic evil	Potency, pleasure, violence, hedonism	Phallus, green eye; phallic mace
Horus (M), greater god	Neutral good	Sky, sun, right behavior	Solar disk, hawk; mace
Isis (F), greater god	Lawful good	Fidelity, motherhood, mercy, magic	Ankh; staff
Jael (F), greater god	Neutral evil	The moon, nighttime, secrecy, lawlessness, vengeance	Quarter moon; dagger
Osiris (M), greater god	Neutral	The afterlife, death, justice, punishment	Feather; staff
Ptah (M), greater god	Lawful good	Creator of the universe through thought, wisdom, craftsmen, harvests	A level, pencil, or plumb line; bow and arrow
Seker (M), greater god	Lawful good	Creation, fertility, crafting, the sun	A golden seed; spear, flail
Set (M), greater god	Lawful evil	Power, knowledge, domination, judgment, vengeance, serpents	Whirlwind, Set animal, jackal, red-headed man; was stick, spear
Toth (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	Knowledge, judging, magic, secrecy and gnosis	Ibis, baboon, arcane symbols; staff
Tiamat (F), greater god	Neutral evil	Wealth, selfishness, conquest, queen of dragons	Rainbow; spear
Wadjet (F), greater god	Lawful neutral	Protection, warfare, snakes and lizards	A lidless snake's eye, a hooded cobra; toothed club

Table 2: The Ten

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Ardenia Tessaeron (F), greater god	Lawful good	Wisdom, battle tactics, invention, justice	Owl; spear
Crestion (M), greater god	Chaotic good	Poetry, music, the arts, creative impulses, selfishness	Lyre, cluster of wild berries; bow
Debellaton (M), greater god	Lawful evil	Death, might, order through might, sacrifice	Skull, scythe, black disk; flail
Demma (F), greater god	Lawful good	Fertility, crops, households, childbirth, magic	A seed; flail
Heschiu Ban (M), greater god	Lawful evil	Triumph, water, inevitability, power, magic	Shackles, a green oval; flail
Lucreon (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	Profit, amassing wealth, negotiation, merchants, impartiality	A gold coin; hammer
Lysseon (M), greater god	Chaotic neutral	Wine, indulgence, madness, rage, creativity	A bunch of grapes; flail, sickle
Mitra (M), greater god	Lawful good	Justice, contracts, omniscience, defender, oaths, humanitarian impulses	Scales of justice, lions, flames; long sword

Thelis (F), greater god	Chaotic good	Love, desire, aspiration, planning	Diamond; sword
Tychias (F), greater god	Chaotic neutral	Luck, fate, wealth, 'the Lady of Thieves'	Crimson coin; dagger, staff

Table 3: The Seventeen

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Aranyania (F), lesser god	Neutral	Woodlands, nature, growing things, time, balance	Oak leaf; longbow
Atashak (M), lesser god	Lawful evil	Fire, the sun, inevitable destruction, battle, sacrifice	Burning torch; battle axe
Banion (M), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Decision-making, trickery, deceit; the twin of Yanion	An idealized face, half white and half black, with red eyes; dagger
Basileus (M/F), lesser god (?)	Lawful neutral	The Emperor	Laurel wreath; mace
Bisor (M), lesser god	Lawful good	The household, security, lineage	Blue key; staff
Chibalba (M), lesser god	Neutral	The underworld, slow death, savage beauty, Lord of Caves	Barred gate; scythe
Diktyнна (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Hunting, the chase in all forms, the moon	A horn, a brown satchel; bows, hunting spears
Ellion (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	The night, the moon, uncertainty, financial ventures	Blindfolds, stilts; dagger, crossbow
Envalios (M), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Battle, mercenaries, fire as pitiless destruction	Crow; battle axe
Kaerion (M/F), lesser god	Neutral	The (genderless) Lord of Time, endlessness, prophecy, creation	Hourglass; staff
Lyncion (M), lesser god	Neutral evil	Secrets, magic, demons, hidden knowledge, power	A blue eye; dagger
Melkarton (M), lesser god	Neutral good	The sea, travel, merchants, fair dealing	Manta ray; long sword
Nicetoreon (F), lesser god	Neutral	Judgment, the afterlife, passage of souls, earning merit	A lead weight, a small figurine representing the soul; mace
Qandisi (F), lesser god	Chaotic evil	The Sloe-Eyed Lady of Lust, the Dancing Maiden of Chaos, lust, control, sex	Human image with breasts and phallus; whip
Rudiana (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Battle, berserkers, unrestrained violence	Red teardrop; axe
Treshub (M), lesser god	Chaotic evil	Storms, the sky, lightning, fertility	Lightning bolt; spear
Yanion (F), lesser god	Lawful neutral	Medicine, thresholds, decisions (twin to Banion)	A half-empty vial; club

The Wiskin Pantheon

The Wiskinga are a hardy people inhabiting the frozen north of their gods inhabit an enchanted valley high up in the mountains glaciers, mountains, and snow-covered fields. The Wiskinga believe above Westholm.

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Bragi (M), greater god	Chaotic good	Poetry, music, persuasion, beauty	A bagpipe; staff
Fenrir (M/F), lesser god	Chaotic evil	Hunger, chaos, destruction, wolves	Wolf's pawprint; axe
Freya (F), greater god	Chaotic good	Beauty, love (esp. unrequited), sadness, wealth	Strand of yellow hair; sword

Frigg (F), greater god	Lawful good	The household, motherhood, spinning	Distaff; staff
Gna (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Travel, messages, speed	Brass arrow; arrows
Hafgufa (F), greater god	Chaotic evil	The Seas, relentlessness, implacability, the Red Whale	Red whale; trident
Heimdall (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	Watchmen, fidelity, stamina, defense	Blindfold; halberd
Jormungundir (M/F), greater god	Lawful evil	Destruction, sabotage, planning and undermining endeavors, snakes	Ouroboros; flail
Loki (M), greater god	Chaotic evil	Plots, trickery, crafts, invention	Fish; dagger
Odin (M), greater god	Neutral good	War, justice, prophecy, inspiration, the All-Father	Raven; spear
Snotra (M), lesser god	Lawful neutral	Hospitality, noble behavior, speech	Songbird; sword
Surt (M), lesser god	Lawful evil	Fire, caves, smithing	Pair of glowing red eyes; hammer, two-handed sword
Thor (M), greater god	Chaotic good	War, battle, storms	Hammer; war hammer
Ymir (M), lesser god	Chaotic evil	Strength, endurance, giants; All-Father of Giants	Red handprint; maul

The Thorcin Pantheon

The Thorcinga have a remarkably diverse pantheon, especially for a people that have never built a lasting monumental civilization. If Father Utar is the technical head of the pantheon, he is in fact often an object of ridicule for the failure of his (and Thorcin) schemes.

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Apenn (M), greater god	Chaotic good	Good fortune, wine, agriculture, revelry. Represents life of the vine from first tender shoots to death in winter	Wine cup; sickle, staff
Croul (M), greater god	Neutral	Mountains, snow, pitiless striving. The Lord of Peaks, the Cold Warrior. Famously uncaring.	N.a.; axe
Ethrik (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Love, sensuality and passion, beauty, seduction and carnal desire. The eternal adulteress without spite. Daughter of Utar and Shimra, twin of Shapral	Figs; dagger
Fenth (M), greater god	Lawful evil	Forests, nature, harshness. Lord of The Trees, First Seed. Brother of Utar.	Acorn; bow
Ghareela (F), greater god	Chaotic evil	Anarchy, destruction, chaos; hermaphroditic; the Destroyer, the Dark Mother, Lady of Blood.	Skeletal finger, hooded figure; bows, acid
Ghureena (F), greater god	Lawful good	Life, growth, productivity, order. Toad-headed opposite of Ghareela	Toad; club
Laraveen (F), greater god	Lawful neutral	Wisdom, war, planning, construction	Framing square; spear
Mishpral (F), greater god	Lawful neutral	Health, healing	An open hand; spear
Nitheral (F), lesser god	Neutral	Forests, nature, hidden paths and secrets; Pitiless Lady of the Hunt, Wild Daughter, Finder of Tracks. Daughter of Fenth, and more popular than him.	A large canine tooth; bow
Pertiora (F), lesser god	Chaotic evil	The Seas. The Bitch of the Sea, who preys on impious sailors	Octopus; spear

Phreena (F), lesser god	Lawful neutral	Fate, lost causes, slaves, the destitute	Potsherd with a black dot on it; staff, club
Shapral (M), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Thieves, the night, adventure, warfare. Son of Utar and Shimra, twin to Ethrik	Coil of rope; long sword
Sherlosh (M), greater god	Chaotic neutral	Seas and oceans, fishing	Net, fishing hook; trident
Shimra (F), greater god	Lawful good	The hearth, kitchens, mothers, infants. Wife of Utar.	Cooking pot; knife
Utar (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	Knowledge, wisdom, schemes, oratory, justice, ingenuity, questioning authority. Father Utar, Lord of the Eyes	Jeweled eye; short sword
Thefila (F), greater god	Lawful good	Marriage, respect and fidelity, hearth, family	Tear-drop earring; staff
Thrufor (M), lesser god	Chaotic good	Travel, trade, the disabled. Clubfooted.	Generic smiling face, sandal; iron-shod staff

The Khumus Pantheon

The gods worshipped by the Khumus people of the far west are not widely known in the Archontean empire. As such, only a handful of their deities are listed here. If more are needed the GM should feel free to expand upon the list.

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Ak Alif (M), greater god	Neutral good	Fertility, fecundity, plenty, horses. Brother of At Ayut	A stallion's head, a phallus; spear
At Ayut (F), greater god	Neutral evil	Sorrow, death, loss, consumption. Sister of Ak Alif	A skull; bows
Gol Tingri (M), greater god	Chaotic evil	Battle, destruction, sacrifice	A red dot; swords, axes
Tingri (M), greater god	Lawful neutral	The sky, winds, storms, procreation, creation	Raindrop, lightning bolt, yurt; spear, bow

Demi Human Deities

The various demihuman races tend to have smaller pantheons.

Dwarves: Dwarves venerate a single creator god, Zoddarrim, the All Father, Shaper of Stone, First Tapper, Giver of Gifts, Lord of Battle.

Elves: The elves of Magae do not worship deities per se. They believe that creation was wrought by Valborian, who created Gildorin out of pure magic and who subsequently shaped the hundred First Elves to be Gildorin's companions. All subsequent elves are thus Valborian's children, and while they know they will return to him/her some day, they do not actively construct cults, temples, priesthoods, and so forth. Many Elves, particularly wild ones, revere nature, and acknowledge the role that Aranyania plays in human cosmogony; but again, they do not 'worship' her per se.

Half-Elves: Depending on their lineage (human or elven), half-elves follow human or elven practice.

Halflings: The small folk have a fairly limited pantheon of deities, and often worship human ones.

Imperial Goblins: The 'civilized' goblins have a fairly limited pantheon of traditional goblin deities and are often found worshipping human ones.

Dwarven God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Zoddarrim	Neutral	Creation, battle, stone-work, crafting, fertility	A stone chip, hammer; war hammer

Halfling Gods	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Alder Lightfingers (F), lesser god	Chaotic neutral	Stealth, thievery, wanderlust, adventure	Footprint; sling
Griffo the Roarer (M), lesser god	Chaotic good	Feasting, drinking, oratory, parties, prosperity	Foaming mug; sword

Hamson Greenfinger (M), lesser god	Lawful good	Fields, fertility, security, harvest	Pipe-weed leaf; pole-arms
Rowan Fairbrow (F), lesser god	Neutral good	Security, protection, love	A red apple; spear

Imperial Goblin Gods	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)
Dapp Sapfinder (M), lesser god	Neutral	Mountain forests, growth, fertility, animals	Raccoon; spear
Glum Gaping-Maw (M), lesser god	Chaotic evil	Consumption, avarice, destruction	Fanged, gaping mouth; mace
Grindledor (M), lesser god	Lawful evil	Creation, might, judging. The Creator	Three concentric circles, a clenched fist; whip
Jacko the Frowner (M), lesser god	Neutral evil	Entropy, revenge, sorrow. Twin to Jeska	Black anvil split in two; war hammer
Jeska Pouchlifter (F), lesser god	Chaotic good	Luck, trickery, crafting. Twin to Jacko	Gold coin; hand axe

Cults and Unusual Deities

The following does not constitute a pantheon of linked gods but is rather a simple list of unusual deities. Most are inimical and thus proscribed in human and demi-human societies. Ontological questions about about some of these entities: are they demons? True deities? Something greater than the usual 'known' deities?

God	Alignment	Areas of Influence	Symbol(s) and Weapon(s)	Notes
Bajrang the Destroyer	Chaotic evil	Apes, animals, chaos	A black ape's head; club
Dagon	Chaotic evil	Water, darkness, the underworld	A single tentacle, a five-sided star; trident, spear	Also a demon prince
Frelothian	Chaotic evil	?	?	One of the seven elder deities, banished
Jeqellathon	Chaotic evil	?	?	One of the seven elder deities, banished
Mzingaloq	Chaotic evil	?	An opening door	One of the seven elder deities, banished. Waits in Lyaeltok, with its 11 servitors. Rival of Rimmaq-Isfet
Rimmaq-Isfet (see new monsters)	Chaotic evil	Salamanders, slimes, chaos	A thin black circle on a white or blue field, a sinuous tongue, an ovoid cave opening on a cliff face	One of the seven elder deities, banished. Rival of Mzingaloq
Orcus	Chaotic evil	Demons, pain, destruction, torture	Pentagram with skull in the middle of it; mace	A demon prince
Thanatos	Lawful evil	Death, burial, unlife	A glove; flail
Tsathogga	Chaotic evil	Chaos, slimes, slow destruction	A giant frog; sword	A demon prince
Yazgog the Spider	Chaotic evil	Chaos, plotting, destruction	Black widow spider; dagger
Zerig the Uncaring	Chaotic evil	Endless appetite, consumption, magic	None; dagger

NPC APPENDIX

This appendix is divided into two sections. The first section provides ten traditional NPC adventuring groups, each with a good mixture of typical adventuring classes. The second section addresses the 'magic user with flunkies' category. In each case three sets of statistics for the group are offered, one for that group at low level (levels 1-3), one for middle levels (levels 4-7), and one for high levels (levels 8-10).

A table at the commencement of each section allows a GM to randomly select a group; of course it is always worth thinking about the context in which such a group will be employed before deciding to use that group. Some GMs may decide to choose an appropriate group based on the level and interests of their PCs.

It is also important to note that some NPC groups also may be encountered as a fixed encounter in certain parts of the Halls (e.g., the Bad Neighbors, at 6-113 and 6-129). If such a group is indicated in the random table, the GM may wish to select a different group in order to preserve the integrity of the fixed encounter for that group. Of course the GM could always substitute one of the random parties for a group indicated as a fixed encounter.

I. NPC ADVENTURING PARTIES

1. Group 1: Dalton's Darlings (neutral/evil)

Leader: Dalton Erdell

General Ethos: Neutral/Evil. Dalton's Darlings are a roguish and self-centered bunch. They are quite willing to assist those more powerful than themselves and are more than willing to bully those who seem weaker.

Goals and Motives: Their goal is to get rich by looting the Halls and/or by stealing valuables from other adventurers.

Members

1. Dalton Erdell, male human (Archontean) fighter: AL CN; STR 16; INT 13; WIS 14; DEX 16; CON 10; CHA 17. Dalton is very handsome, with flowing brown hair tied back with a leather cord and a dashing smile. He is charming, a glib talker, and utterly self-centered.

2. Jason, male human (Archontean) fighter: AL LE; STR 17; INT 8; WIS 9; DEX 15; CON 16; CHA 13. Jason is short, barrel-chested, with close-cropped black hair, a long black beard and pretty blue eyes. He is vain but reserved.

3. Helga, female human (Wiskin) thief: AL NE; STR 10; INT 9; WIS 11; DEX 16; CON 15; CHA 17. Helga is big and blond, an archetypal Wiskinga warrior maiden; she has a long scar down her left cheek. By nature, she is quiet and reserved, but she has a long memory and a vengeful nature.

4. Heliagabulus, male human (Archontean) magic user: AL NE; STR 9; INT 17; WIS 10; DEX 17; CON 12; CHA 8. A member of the Collegium of Cinders, Heliagabulus is thin and ascetic, with greasy black hair and a long, Roman nose. He is distant and unpleasant, and socially insecure.

5. Isidor Half-Hand, male halfling thief: AL NE; STR 12; INT 13; WIS 16; DEX 17; CON 12; CHA 9. Isidor is a round, plump halfling, who affects ridiculous hats and bright but faded clothing. He has a strong body odor. Isidor is unctuous and completely venal. He enjoys mead and sweet rolls.

6. Yvette of Archontos, female human (Archontean) cleric of Debellaton: AL LE; STR 16; INT 7; WIS 16; DEX 10; CON 15; CHA 12. Yvette is short, with a hunched back, prematurely grey hair, and keen grey eyes. She is a social snob, which makes her imperious despite her inherent stupidity. By 9th level Yvette's WIS has increased to 17.

D10	Name of Adventuring Party	Ethos	Average Levels of Party as Statted Below	Found as a Fixed Encounter?
1	Dalton's Darlings	Neutral/Evil	2 nd , 5 th , 9 th -10 th	No
2	Five Fingers of Destiny	Neutral/Good	3 rd , 6 th , 9 th	No
3	The Bad Neighbors	Evil	3 rd , 7 th , 10 th	Yes, at 6-113 and 6-129
4	The Broom	Evil	1 st -2 nd , 4 th , 7 th -8 th	Yes, at 7-75
5	Survivors of the Stone	Neutral	1 st -2 nd , 5 th , 10 th	No
6	Arcane Vengeance	Neutral	2 nd , 5 th , 10 th	No
7	Jellik's Jarls	Evil	2 nd , 5 th , 9 th	No
8	Hama and Company	Good	1 st , 5 th , 12 th	No
9	Discipline and Punish	Evil	1 st -2 nd , 5 th -6 th , 9 th -10 th	No
10	Lost and Found	Good	1 st -3 rd , 5 th -7 th , 9 th -11 th	No

Statistics: Dalton's Darlings Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Dalton Erdell (16, 13, 14, 16, 10, 17)	F2 (CN)	90'	1	15	Banded and shield	Longsword (2-9), light crossbow, with 20 bolts (1-4)	Potion of healing
Jason (17, 8, 9, 15, 16, 13)	F2 (LE)	60'	2	18	Splint and shield	Battle axe (2-9), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Helga (10, 9, 11, 16, 15, 17)	T3 (NE)	120'	6	19	Leather	Broad sword (2-8), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)
	Thief Skills: PP 40%, OL 38%, F/RT 30%, MS 27%, HS 20%, HN 15%, CW 87%, RL 0%
Heliagabulus (9, 17, 10, 17, 12, 8)	MU2 (NE)	120'	7	7	N.a.	Darts (1-3)	Potion of fire resistance
	Memorized spells: charm person, shield
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, magic missile, read magic, shield
Isidor Half-Hand (12, 13, 16, 17, 12, 9)	T2 (NE)	90'	5	9	Leather	Short sword (1-6), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)
	Thief skills: PP 45%, OL 44%, F/RT 30%, MS 36%, HS 35%, HN 15%, CW 71%, RL 0%
Yvette of Archontos (16, 7, 16, 10, 15, 12)	C2 (LE)	60'	5	13	Scale mail and shield	Flail (3-8)
	Spell prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds, detect magic

Statistics: Dalton's Darlings Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Dalton Erdell (16, 13, 14, 16, 10, 17)	F5 (CN)	120'	0	33	Banded mail +1 and shield	Longsword +1 (3-10), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Potion of healing
Jason (17, 8, 9, 15, 16, 13)	F5 (LE)	90'	2	41	Banded mail and shield	Battle axe (2-9), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6), spear (1-6), 2 javelins of piercing (7-12)	Potion of healing
Helga (10, 9, 11, 16, 15, 17)	T6 (NE)	120'	5	28	Leather +1	Broad sword +1 (3-9), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)
	Thief Skills: PP 55%, OL 52%, F/RT 45%, MS 47%, HS 37%, HN 20%, CW 92%, RL 30%
Heliagabulus (9, 17, 10, 17, 12, 8)	MU5 (NE)	120'	6	15	n.a.	Darts (1-3)	Ring of protection +1, wand of negation (53 charges), potion of human control
	Memorized spells: charm person, enlarge, magic missile, shield; knock, mirror image; lightning bolt
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep; continual light, knock, magic mouth, mirror image, scare; dispel magic, lightning bolt, slow
Isidor Half-Hand (12, 13, 16, 17, 12, 9)	T5 (NE)	90'	5	20	Leather	Short sword (1-6), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Potion of invisibility, boots of elvenkind
	Thief skills: PP 60%, OL 57%, F/RT 45%, MS 55%, HS 51%, HN 25%, CW 75%, RL 20%
Yvette of Archontos (16, 7, 16, 10, 15, 12)	C5 (LE)	90'	3	34	Chain mail and shield +1	Flail +1 (4-9)	Rope of climbing
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), remove fear; find traps, hold person, know alignment, silence 15' radius, slow poison; blindness (reverse of cure blindness)

Statistics: Dalton's Darlings High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Dalton Erdell (16, 13, 14, 16, 10, 17)	F9 (CN)	120'	0	75	Banded mail +1 and shield	Longsword +2 (4-11), light crossbow with 20 bolts +1 (2-5)	Potion of extra healing (x2)
Jason (17, 8, 9, 16, 15, 13)	F9 (LE)	120'	0	81	Chain mail +2 and shield	Battle axe +2 (4-11), short bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7), 2 javelins of piercing (7-12)	Potion of extra healing (x2)
Helga (10, 9, 11, 16, 15, 17)	T11 (NE)	120'	2	50	Leather +3	Broad sword +1 (3-9), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Potion of invisibility (x2), cloak of elvenkind, ankh of protection (2 charges; see new magic items)
	Thief Skills: PP 90%, OL 77%, F/RT 70%, MS 86%, HS 70%, HN 35%, CW 99.1%, RL 55%
Heliagabulus (9, 17, 10, 17, 12, 8)	MU10 (NE)	120'	-3	28	n.a.	Staff of power (3-8), darts (1-3)	Ring of protection +2, bracers of defense (AC 4), wand of negation (13 charges), staff of power (11 charges), potion of human control
	Memorized spells: charm person, enlarge, magic missile, shield; knock, levitate, mirror image; dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt; charm monster, fear; cone of cold
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, message, protection from evil, push, read magic, shield, sleep, ventriloquism; continual light, knock, levitate, magic mouth, mirror image, rope trick, scare wizard lock; blink, dispel magic, gust of wind, hold person, lightning bolt, phantasmal force, slow; charm monster, fear, fire charm, monster summoning II, polymorph self; cone of cold, hold monster, passwall, wall of stone
Isidor Half-Hand (12, 13, 16, 17, 12, 9)	T11 (NE)	90'	2	42	Leather	Short sword +1 (2-7), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Ring of protection +3, boots of elvenkind, potion of invisibility, potion of dispelling (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 100%, OL 87%, F/RT 75%, MS 101%, HS 90%, HN 40%, CW 84.1%, RL 50%
Yvette of Archontos (16, 7, 16, 10, 15, 12)	C9 (LE)	120'	1	59	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Flail +1 (4-9), hammer (3-6)	Rope of climbing, smokeless torch (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), remove fear, resist cold; chant, find traps, hold person, know alignment, silence 15' radius, slow poison; animate dead, blindness (reverse of cure blindness), continual light, remove curse; cure serious wounds, neutralize poison; flame strike

Group 2: Five Fingers of Destiny (neutral/good)

Leader: Roger the Rapier

General Ethos: The Five Fingers consider themselves to be dashing, bold, and highly experienced. This tends to make them appear blithe and over-confident. Still, they are not unwilling to chat with 'neophytes.' They might even come to the aid of an embattled party, provided the odds were good and they stood to benefit from the intervention.

Goals and Motives: They have two goals, namely 1) to eliminate dangerous and evil threats from the Halls, and 2) to procure items from AV on demand (and for a healthy) fee to interested parties in Newmarket and Narsileon.

Other: They have a catch-phrase, which Roger utters in a dramatic voice whenever possible: 'Five Fingers ... unite!' The phrase is accompanied by him slowly and dramatically clenching his left fist. At this, the group is expected to 'huddle up' to discuss/negotiate a course of action. The addition of a sixth party member (Hixonius) has made the 'five fingers' phrase a bit awkward.

Members

1. Roger the Rapier, male human (Archontean) magic user: AL CG; STR 10; INT 18; WIS 12; DEX 15; CON 16; CHA 12. Roger is short and stout, with a wide grin, good teeth, and a strong scent of pomade. He affects loose and colorful robes and a turban. Although he appears slightly goofy, he is quite clever and can be ruthless if needed.

2. Lucrotus, male human (Archontean) fighter: AL N; STR 18/34; INT 7; WIS 12; DEX 10; CON 16; CHA 9. Lucrotus is large, muscular, and dim-witted. He loves fighting and brawling and is fanatically loyal to Roger.

3. Jenks, male halfling thief: AL N; STR 14; INT 14; WIS 7; DEX 18; CON 10; CHA 13. Jenks is short, stout, and affable. He loves mead and toasted cheese. He's also an incurable kleptomaniac, although he's always filled with regret about his petty thievery.

4. Tressa of Narsileon, female human (Thorcin) cleric of Mitra: AL CG; STR 16; INT 9; WIS 16; DEX 15; CON 11; CHA 13. She is thin and severe-looking, with raven hair tied into three long tails. Despite appearances, she is quite vain. A classic cleric of Mitra, she is kind to the needy but merciless to criminals. By 6th level, Tressa has WIS 17.

5. Adelrod the Grey, male human (Thorcin) magic user: AL CN; STR 8; INT 16; WIS 12; DEX 15; CON 14; CHA 8. Adelrod is very tall and gangly (6'5"), with cropped blond hair and a tattoo of a skull over one eye. He is monosyllabic and obsessed with the undead (he is both afraid of and attracted to them).

6. Hixonius of the Glebe, male human (Thorcin) fighter: AL LN; STR 17; INT 15; WIS 11; DEX 7; CON 13; CHA 13. Barrel-chested and square-jawed, with a shoulder-length 'prince valiant'-style haircut, Hixonius looks like a rube fresh off the farm. Despite speaking Archontean with a thick accent, he is quite intelligent.

Statistics: Five Fingers of Destiny Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Roger the Rapier (10, 18, 12, 15, 16, 12)	MU3 (CG)	120'	8	13	n.a.	Darts (1-3), staff (1-6)	Amulet of natural armor +1 (see new magic items), scroll of fireball
	Memorized spells: jump, sleep, mirror image
	Spell book: dancing lights, detect magic, friends, hold portal, jump, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; audible glamer, mirror image, scare, web
Lucrotus (18/34, 7, 12, 10, 16, 9)	F3 (N)	60'	4	29	Splint mail	Two-handed sword (4-13), short bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	10 arrows +1
Jenks (14, 14, 7, 18, 10, 13)	T3 (N)	90'	4	14	Leather	Short sword (1-6), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Potion of invisibility
	Thief skills: PP 55%, OL 53%, F/RT 40%, MS 47%, HS 45%, HN 20%, CW 72%, RL 0%
Tressa of Narsileon (16, 9, 16, 15, 11, 13)	C3 (CG)	90'	3	19	Chain mail and shield	Mace +1 (4-9)	Scroll of protection from evil
	Spells prayed-for: cure light wounds, detect evil, light, remove fear; find traps, hold person, silence 15' radius
Adelrod the Grey (8, 16, 12, 15, 14, 8)	MU2 (CN)	120'	9	6		Dagger (1-4), darts (1-3)	2 darts of sleeping (see new magic items)
	Spells memorized: charm person, shield
	Spell book: charm person, feather fall, magic aura, push, read magic, shield, sleep, ventriloquism
Hixonius of the Glebe (17, 15, 11, 7, 13, 13)	F1 (LN)	90'	6	9	Ring mail and shield	Battle axe (2-9), heavy crossbow with 20 bolts (2-5)	Potion of healing

Statistics: Five Fingers of Destiny Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Roger the Rapier (10, 18, 12, 15, 16, 12)	MU6 (CG)	120'	3	24	n.a.	Staff (1-6), darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), eye of seeing (see new magic items), wand of magic missiles (42 charges), scroll of protection from elementals
	Spells memorized: enlarge, identify, magic missile, sleep; knock, web; dispel magic, fireball
	Spell book: comprehend languages, dancing lights, detect magic, enlarge, friends, hold portal, identify, jump, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb; audible glamer, continual light, knock, levitate, mirror image, scare, stinking cloud, web; dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, invisibility 10' radius, protection from normal missiles, suggestion
Lucrotus (18/34, 7, 12, 10, 16, 9)	F6 (N)	120'	4	56	Chain mail +1	Two-handed sword +1 (5-14), short bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of extra healing, potion of the berserk (see new magic items)
Jenks (14, 14, 7, 18, 10, 13)	T7 (N)	90'	3	31	Leather +1	Short sword (1-6), sling +1 with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Dust of disappearance
	Thief skills: PP 75%, OL 72%, F/RT 60%, MS 75%, HS 68%, HN 30%, CW 79%, RL 30%
Tressa of Narsileon (16, 9, 17, 15, 11, 13)	C6 (CG)	90'	3	37	Chain mail and shield	Mace +1 (4-9)	Periapt of finding (lesser) (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: command, cure light wounds (x2), light, protection from evil; chant, find traps, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius; continual light, dispel magic, remove curse
Adelrod the Grey (8, 16, 12, 15, 14, 8)	MU5 (CN)	120'	5	15	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), potion of clarity (see new magic items), ring of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items), wand of fire (23 charges)
	Spells memorized: charm person, magic missile, shield, sleep; darkness 15' radius, invisibility; fly
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, feather fall, light, magic aura, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep, ventriloquism; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, ESP, invisibility, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement; clairaudience, dispel magic, fly, hold person
Hixonius of the Glebe (17, 15, 11, 7, 13, 13)	F5 (LN)	90'	4	42	Banded mail and shield	Battle axe +2 (4-11), heavy crossbow with 20 bolts (2-5)	Potion of healing, helm of infravision (see new magic items)

Statistics: Five Fingers of Destiny High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Roger the Rapier (10, 18, 12, 15, 16, 12)	MU9 (CG)	120'	2	34	N.a.	Staff (1-6), 10 darts +1 (2-4)	Torc of authority (see new magic items), bracers of defense (AC 5), ring of protection +1, wand of paralyzation (33 charges), wand of magic missiles (19 charges), potion of ESP
	Spells memorized: enlarge, identify, magic missile, shield; continual light, knock, web; fireball, gust of wind, suggestion; charm monster, ice storm; feeblemind
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, dancing lights, detect magic, enlarge, friends, hold portal, identify, jump, light, magic missile, read magic, protection from evil, shield, sleep, spider climb; audible glamer, continual light, knock, levitate, locate object, mirror image, scare, stinking cloud, web; dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, invisibility 10' radius, phantasmal force, protection from normal missiles, suggestion; charm monster, fire shield, ice storm, massmorph, mnemonic enhancer, wall of fire; conjure elemental, feeblemind, hold monster, telekinesis
Lucrotus (18/34, 7, 12, 10, 16, 9)	F8 (N)	120'	2	72	Banded mail +2	Two-handed sword +2 (6-15), short bow +1 and 20 arrows +2 (3-8)
Jenks (14, 14, 7, 18, 10, 13)	T9 (N)	90'	2	37	Leather +2	Short sword (1-6), sling +1 with 20 bullets +2 (4-7)	Ring of change self (see new magic items), amulet of spell absorption (see new magic items), glass sphere of arcane assistance (dispelling; see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 85%, OL 82%, F/RT 70%, MS 90%, HS 81%, HN 35%, CW 83%, RL 40%
Tressa of Narsileon (16, 9, 17, 15, 11, 13)	C8 (CG)	90'	1	51	Banded mail and shield +1	Mace +2 (5-10)	Ankh of healing (3 charges; see new magic items), torc of domination (see new magic items), potion of truthfulness (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: command, cure light wounds (x2), light, protection from evil; chant, find traps, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius; continual light, cure disease, dispel magic, remove curse; cure serious wounds, neutralize poison
Adelrod the Grey (8, 16, 12, 15, 14, 8)	MU9 (CN)	120'	5	28	N.a.	Dagger +1 (2-5), darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), ring of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items), wand of fire (31 charges), wand of shielding (19 charges)
	Spells memorized: feather fall, light, magic missile (x2); continual light, ESP, ray of enfeeblement; clairaudience, lightning bolt, slow; confusion, dimension door; cloudkill
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, feather fall, identify, light, magic aura, magic missile, protection from evil, push, read magic, shield, sleep, ventriloquism; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, ESP, invisibility, knock, locate object, mirror image, pyrotechnics, ray of enfeeblement; blink, clairaudience, dispel magic, fly, hold person, lightning bolt, protection from evil 10' radius, slow; confusion, dimension door, fumble, minor globe of invulnerability, plant growth, remove curse; interposing hand, cloudkill, distance distortion, monster summoning III
Hixonius of the Glebe (17, 15, 11, 7, 13, 13)	F8 (LN)	120'	2	63	Banded mail +1 and shield	Battle axe +2 (4-11), heavy crossbow with 2 bolts of fire (see new magic items) (4-7 + 5-8) and 20 regular bolts (2-5)	2 doses of stone salve (see new magic items), amulet of courage (see new magic items), potion of Greek fire (see new magic items), potion of extra healing

Group 3: The Bad Neighbors (evil)

Leader: Klibo, the cleric of Heschius Ban

General Ethos: This ruthless band is highly directed, confident, and eager to locate unusual treasures and magic. Although 'evil', the Neighbors are more selfish than they are interested doing harm to others. Of course, in any dispute over territory, they live up to their nickname with ruthless ferocity.

Goals and Motives: The Neighbors are extremely interested in the rudishva. They are confident they will be able to penetrate or bypass the Obsidian Gates thereby allowing them access to the rudishva areas.

Fixed Encounter Location: 6-113, 6-129

Members

1. Klibo, male human (Archontean) cleric of Heschius Ban: AL LE; STR 13; INT 13; WIS 17; DEX 10; CON 16; CHA 15. Klibo is wiry and lean, with a luxurious black handlebar moustache. He is arrogant and something of a bully, never failing to exploit politeness or perceived weakness to his advantage. He is, however, also exceptionally loyal to 'his' team.

2. Haldor, male human (Wiskin) fighter: AL NE; STR 17; INT 7; WIS 9; DEX 15; CON 15; CHA 15. A tall, muscular, handsome Wiskin with flowing blond hair, Haldor affects tight-fitting leather clothing that shows off his physical gifts. He has a cruel streak that is only mitigated by his lack of imagination.

3. Idris One-Eye, female human (Thorcin) magic user: AL LN; STR 7; INT 17; WIS 12; DEX 16; CON 10; CHA 8. Idris lost her right eye in an apprentice's hazing ritual, so she wears a violet-colored eye-patch that has provided her nickname. She bears an abiding hatred towards the Collegium of Macrina, which she blames for her injury.

4. Uriel Bean, male halfling thief: AL CN; STR 13; INT 13; WIS 8; DEX 18; CON 15; CHA 10. Uriel dresses in black silk pajamas and slippers (even over his armor). He is somewhat reserved for a halfling, preferring to scope marks from the shadows.

5. Wotar the Puny, male human (Khumus) fighter: AL NE; STR 18/69; INT 8; WIS 10; DEX 12; CON 17; CHA 10. An expert horseman of the western steppes, Wotar is possessed of exceptional strength that is concealed by his lilted, bandy-legged gait. His beard is long and stringy, and he often has to tuck it into his belt. His command of the Archontean language is rather primitive.

6. Qid of Qon, male (?) human (Khumus) magic user: AL CE; STR 9; INT 18; WIS 11; DEX 16; CON 11; CHA 12. A short, round, Khumus nomad, Qid is completely hairless. For this reason no one is exactly sure whether Qid is male or female. He/she communicates mostly in grunts which are interpreted by Wotar.

7. Diomedes, male human (Archontean) cleric of Debellaton: AL LE; STR 17; INT 8; WIS 17; DEX 10; CON 12; CHA 14. Diomedes is convinced he has been sent by Debellaton to act as the god's harbinger of death. When anticipating battle, he paints his face as a skull. While his odd habits have not won him many friends, even within the Neighbors, he has assured Klibo that Debellaton wants him to assure the Neighbors's success.

8. Cyricus, male human (Archontean) fighter: AL LE; STR 17; INT 10; WIS 15; DEX 12; CON 15; CHA 14. A handsome lad from the slums of Narsileon, Cyricus is a bit untrained but a particularly vicious, dirty fighter with plenty of tricks up his sleeve. Don't be fooled by his winning smile ...

9. Gyrde, female human (Wiskin) magic user: AL LE; STR 9; INT 17; WIS 11; DEX 16; CON 9; CHA 9. A scrawny Wiskinga with blonde braids and bad skin, Gyrde is interested in demons ... verrrrry interested in demons.

10. Four male Thorcin bearers, noncombatants: AC 10, HP 2, 2, 1, 1.

Statistics: The Bad Neighbors Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Klibo (13, 13, 17, 10, 16, 15)	C3 (LE)	90'	4	24	Chain mail and shield	Flail (2-7)
	Spells prayed-for: command, create water, resist cold, sanctuary; hold person(x2), silence 15' radius.
Haldor (17, 7, 9, 15, 15, 15)	F3 (NE)	60'	2	25	Splint mail and shield	Bastard sword (3-9), long bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing
Idris One-Eye (7, 17, 12, 16, 10, 8)	MU3 (LN)	120'	6	9	N.a.	Staff (1-6)	Earring of protection +2 (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: magic missile, shield; pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells)
	Spell book: charm person, detect magic, floating disk, hold portal, identify, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, knock, levitate, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), wizard lock; fireball

Uriel Bean (13, 13, 8, 18, 15, 10)	T3 (CN)	90'	4	15	Leather	Broad sword (2-8), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Potion of diminution
	Thief skills: PP 55%, OL 53%, F/RT 40%, MS 47%, HS 45%, HN 20%, CW 72%, RL 0%
Wotar the Puny (18/69, 8, 10, 12, 17, 10)	F2 (NE)	60'	5	18	Scale mail and shield	Spear (4-9), 4 throwing axes (1-6)	Amulet of mighty fists (see new magic items)
Qid of Qon (9, 18, 11, 16, 11, 12)	MU2 (CE)	120'	8	6	N.a.	Darts (1-3)	Scroll of mirror image
	Memorized spells: shield, sleep
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, friends, identify, light, read magic, shield, sleep; Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), mirror image; monster summoning I
Diomedes (17, 8, 17, 10, 12, 14)	C2 (LE)	90'	4	13	Chain mail and shield	Mace (3-8)	Potion of clairvoyance
	Spells prayed-for: command, cure light wounds, curse (reverse of bless), protection from good
Cyricus (17, 10, 15, 12, 15, 14)	F1 (LN)	90'	6	10	Ring mail and shield	Halberd (2-11), broad sword (2-8), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)
Gyrde (9, 17, 11, 16, 9, 9)	MU1 (LE)	120'	8	4	N.a.	6 throwing daggers (1-4)
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: comprehend languages, detect magic, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), continual light
Bearers (x4)	n.a. (N)	120'	10	2	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.

Statistics: The Bad Neighbors Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Klibo (13, 13, 17, 10, 16, 15)	C7 (LE)	120'	2	51	Chain mail +1 and shield +1	Flail +1 (3-8)	Wand of fear (31 charges)
	Spells prayed-for: command, cure light wounds (x2), cause fear, protection from good; chant, hold person, holy name (see new spells), know alignment, silence 15' radius; dispel magic, cause blindness; cause serious wounds.
Haldor (17, 7, 9, 15, 15, 15)	F6 (NE)	90'	2	47	Chain mail and shield +1	Bastard sword +1 (4-10), long bow with 20 arrows and 2 arrows of striking (see new magic items)	Potion of frost giant strength
Idris One-Eye (7, 17, 12, 16, 10, 8)	MU7 (LN)	120'	6	21	n.a.	Staff (1-6)	Earring of protection +2 (see new magic items), wand of lightning (24 charges), amulet of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: charm person, detect magic, magic missile, shield; knock, levitate, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); dispel magic, fireball; ice storm
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, floating disk, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, detect invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), scare, wizard lock; dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion, tiny hut, tongues; dimension door, ice storm
Uriel Bean (13, 13, 8, 18, 15, 10)	T7 (CN)	90'	3	37	Leather +1	Short sword (1-6), sling +2 with 20 bullets (2-5)	Boots of levitation
	Thief skills: PP 75%, OL 72%, F/RT 60%, MS 75%, HS 68%, HN 30%, CW 79%, RL 30%

Wotar the Puny (18/69, 8, 10, 12, 17, 10)	F5 (NE)	90'	4	45	Chain mail and shield	Spear +3 (7-13), throwing axes (1-6)	Amulet of mighty fists (see new magic items)
Qid of Qon (9, 18, 11, 16, 11, 12)	MU5 (CE)	120'	3	15	n.a.	Darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), wand of magic detection (61 charges), 3 stones of striking (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: charm person, comprehend languages, friends, sleep; Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), strength; hold person
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, friends, identify, light, read magic, shield, sleep, floating disk; ESP, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), levitate, mirror image, strength, web, wizard lock; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball, hold person, monster summoning I
Diomedes (17, 8, 17, 10, 12, 14)	C4 (LE)	90'	4	25	Chain mail and shield	Mace +1 (4-9)	Amulet of swimming (see new magic items), potion of clairvoyance, potion of ESP
	Spells prayed-for: command, cure light wounds (x2), curse (reverse of bless), protection from good; find traps, hold person, silence 15' radius, spiritual hammer
Cyricus (17, 10, 15, 12, 15, 14)	F3 (LN)	90'	4	23	Chain mail and shield	Halberd (2-11), broad sword (3-9), light crossbow with 20 bolts +1 (2-5)	Potion of healing (x2)
Gyrde (9, 17, 11, 16, 9, 9)	MU4 (LE)	120'	6	12	n.a.	6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items), wand of secret door and trap location (35 charges), potion of invisibility
	Memorized spells: detect magic, enlarge, magic missile; continual light, ESP
	Spell book: burning hands, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), continual light, ESP, knock, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, web; blink, protection from evil 10' radius
Bearers (x4)	n.a. (N)	120'	10	2	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.

Statistics: The Bad Neighbors High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Klibo (13, 13, 17, 10, 16, 15)	C10 (LE)	120'	2	75	Chain mail +1 and shield +1	Flail +1 (3-8)	Necklace of prayer beads (3 special beads), wand of fear (11 charges), staff of curing (19 charges)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), detect good, detect magic; chant, hold person, know alignment, silence 15' radius, augury, speak with animals; dispel magic, glyph of warding, curse; cause serious wounds (x2), protection from good 10' radius; commune, flame strike.
Haldor (18/00, 7, 9, 15, 15, 15)	F9 (NE)	120'	0	76	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Bastard sword +1 (9-15), long bow with 20 arrows and 2 arrows of striking (see new magic items), rudishva laser rifle (3 charges; see new technological items)	Gauntlets of ogre power, potion of extra healing

Idris One-Eye (7, 17, 12, 16, 10, 8)	MU10 (LN)	120'	5	31	n.a.	Staff (1-6)	Ring of protection +3, wand of lightning (14 charges), wand of shielding (53 charges), amulet of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: enlarge, identify, light, shield; darkness 15' radius, invisibility, knock, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); dispel magic, fireball, suggestion; confusion, ice storm; animate dead, cone of cold
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, floating disk, friends, hold portal, identify, light, magic aura, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, detect invisibility, invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), pyrotechnics, scare, strength, wizard lock; clairaudience, dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion, tiny hut, tongues; confusion, dimension door, ice storm, minor globe of invulnerability, remove curse; animate dead, cone of cold, monster summoning III, telekinesis
Uriel Bean (13, 13, 8, 18, 15, 10)	T11 (CN)	90'	2	53	Leather +2	Short sword +1 (2-7), sling +2 with 20 bullets (2-5), rudishva laser rifle (2 charges; see new technological items)	Boots of levitation, ring of change self (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 105%, OL 92%, F/RT 80%, MS 106%, HS 95%, HN 40%, CW 84.1%, RL 50%
Wotar the Puny (18/69, 8, 10, 12, 17, 10)	F8 (NE)	120'	3	81	Chain mail+1 and shield	Spear +3 (7-13), throwing axes (1-6)	Amulet of mighty fists (see new magic items), potion of the berserk (see new magic items), potion of healing
Qid of Qon (9, 18, 11, 16, 11, 12)	MU8 (CE)	120'	3	24	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Horn of chaos (see new magic items), bracers of defense (AC 5), wand of magic detection (31 charges), 3 stones of striking (see new magic items) wand of frost (27 charges)
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, light, magic missile, shield; continual light, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), web; dispel magic, fireball, protection from evil 10' radius; confusion, polymorph self
	Spell book: affect normal fires, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, erase, friends, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, unseen servant; audible glamor, continual light, detect invisibility, ESP, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), invisibility, knock, levitate, mirror image, rope trick, strength, web, wizard lock; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball, hold person, monster summoning I, protection from evil 10' radius, slow, water breathing; confusion, fear, hallucinatory terrain, polymorph self, wall of fire
Diomedes (17, 8, 17, 10, 12, 14)	C8 (LE)	90'	3	65	Chain mail and shield +1	Staff of striking (22 charges), mace +1 (4-9)	Amulet of swimming (see new magic items), brooch of confident action (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cause light wounds, cure light wounds, light; chant, hold person, know alignment, resist fire, silence 15' radius; animate dead, blindness, dispel magic; cure serious wounds, protection from good 10' radius
Cyricus (17, 10, 15, 12, 15, 14)	F7 (LN)	120'	2	58	Banded mail +1 and shield	Halberd (2-11), broad sword +1 (4-10), light crossbow with 20 bolts +1 (2-5)	Potion of healing (x3), potion of stone giant strength, helm of infravision (see new magic items)

Gyrde (9, 17, 11, 16, 9, 9)	MU8 (LE)	120'	5	22	n.a.	6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Ring of protection +3 (see new magic items), wand of secret door and trap location (11 charges), wand of magic missiles (53 charges), glass sphere of arcane assistance (protection – see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: charm person, detect magic, enlarge, magic missile; continual light, ESP, locate object; dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt; charm monster, polymorph other.
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, locate object, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball, fly, hold person, lightning bolt, protection from evil 10' radius; charm monster, fear, monster summoning II, polymorph other
Bearers (x4)	n.a. (N)	120'	10	2	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.

Group 4: The Broom (Evil)

Leader: Harold Good-Ears

General Ethos: This band of cutthroats is venal and ruthless; its members believe in eliminating anyone who gets in their way, and even those who may be bystanders (hence their nickname – they 'sweep' everyone away). While willing to accept contracts and treaties, they are just as willing to break them when doing so is to their advantage.

Goals and Motives: While publicly they claim wealth and magical treasure as their overriding goal, privately they also enjoy slaughter for its own sake. By mid-levels they have come to use the troll thegn's court (7-75) as a base of operations, and they can be found there. At this point in their career they have slain a group of kaliyani (see 8-8), which has garnered them wide respect with the varumani. They also know the location of the goblin mystic, Gislur (see 4-2), and are eager to profit from this information.

Fixed Encounter Location: 7-75

Members

1. Harold Good-Ears, male human (Wisikin) fighter: AL CE; STR 18/77; INT 9; WIS 12; DEX 11; CON 17; CHA 15. Harold is a tall, handsome Wisikin with protruding ears. His nickname, though, comes from his ability to appear to listen sympathetically to those around him, even if he is already plotting how best to eliminate them.

2. Aethelwig the Golden, male human (Thorcin) magic user: AL CE; STR 9; INT 17; WIS 13; DEX 15; CON 12; CHA 11. Aethelwig is the second son of a powerful Thorcin thegn. Thanks to his father, he has an apparently inexhaustible supply of coin (hence his nickname). Although a product of the Imperial Academy, he hates Archontians with a passion.

3. Hestia of Arcturos, female human (Thorcin) cleric of Ghareela: AL CE; STR 13; INT 9; WIS 17; DEX 11; CON 15; CHA 9. Short and squat, Hestia is constantly plotting how to destroy beauty and goodness. Her obsessions make her a bit extreme even for the rest of her party, which treats her with kid gloves.

4. Pella the Souse, female human (Thorcin) thief: AL NE; STR 12; INT 10; WIS 11; DEX 17; CON 15; CHA 8. A recovering alcoholic, Pella hates her nickname. She has the good luck (for her trade) for not having any distinguishing features: she looks just about like almost every other Thorcin woman whom one has seen.

5. Malachi Jade, male dwarf fighter: AL NE; STR 18/53; INT 10; WIS 10; DEX 12; CON 15; CHA 14. Malachi's predilection for cruelty and torture rendered him an embarrassment to his clan, and he was encouraged to spend some time 'among the trees'. He is very proud of his strength.

6. Silken Turrissa, female Human (Thorcin) magic user: AL CE; STR 10; INT 16; WIS 13; DEX 18; CON 9; CHA 12. Turissa is a smooth operator, preferring to use misdirection and illusion to achieve her goals and avoid any tight spots.

7. Mulch of Skallasholm, male human (Wisikin) thief: AL CE; STR 16; INT 12; WIS 6; DEX 18; CON 15; CHA 15. Mulch seems a perfect specimen of Wisikin manhood: tall, blonde, strong, quick, and handsome (with warrior braids and a long handlebar mustache). It's too bad that he's got the common sense of a golden retriever.

Statistics: The Broom Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Harold Good-Ears (18/77, 9, 12, 11, 17, 15)	F2 (CE)	60'	5	21	Scale mail and shield	Battle axe (5-12), short bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing
Aethelwig the Golden (9, 17, 13, 15, 12, 11)	MU2 (CE)	120'	9	7	n.a.	Staff (1-6), darts (1-3)	Scroll of shield
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: comprehend languages, friends, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep
Hestia of Arcturus (13, 9, 17, 11, 15, 9)	C1 (CE)	60'	5	9	Scale mail and shield	Mace (1-8)
	Spells prayed-for: cure light wounds (x2), protection from evil
Pella the Souse (12, 10, 11, 17, 15, 8)	T1 (NE)	120'	5	7	Leather	Long sword (1-8), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)
	Thief skills: PP 35%, OL 35%, F/RT 20%, MS 20%, HS 15%, HN 10%, CW 85%, RL 0%
Malachi Jade (18/53, 10, 10, 12, 15, 14)	F1 (NE)	90'	5	11	Chain mail	War hammer (5-8), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)
Silken Turissa (10, 16, 13, 18, 9, 12)	MU1 (CE)	120'	6	4	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), throwing daggers (1-4)
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell Book: charm person, detect magic, friends, magic missile, read magic, shield sleep
Mulch of Skallasholm (16, 12, 6, 18, 15, 15)	T1 (CE)	120'	4	7	Leather	Club (2-7), throwing daggers (1-4)
	Thief skills: PP 40%, OL 40%, F/RT 25%, MS 25%, HS 20%, HN 10%, CW 85%, RL 0%

Statistics: The Broom Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Harold Good-Ears (18/77, 9, 12, 11, 17, 15)	F5 (CE)	120'	3	48	Chain mail +1 and shield	Battle axe +1 (6-13), short bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of extra healing
Aethelwig the Golden (9, 17, 13, 15, 12, 11)	MU5 (CE)	120'	5	15	n.a.	Staff (1-6), darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), wand of fire (35 charges), scroll of protection from elementals
	Memorized spells: enlarge, light, magic missile, sleep; continual light, web; fireball
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, enlarge, find familiar, friends, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, write; continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, levitate, magic mouth, rope trick, shatter, web; dispel magic, fireball, monster summoning I, slow, tongues; dimension door
Hestia of Arcturus (13, 9, 17, 11, 15, 9)	C4 (CE)	90'	3	27	Chain mail and shield +1	Mace (1-8)	Amulet of spell absorption (see new magic items), potion of dispelling (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bles, cure light wounds (x2), light, protection from evil; find traps, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius
Pella the Souse (12, 10, 11, 17, 15, 8)	T4 (NE)	120'	4	21	Leather	Long sword +1 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Ring of protection +1, potion of invisibility
	Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 47%, F/RT 35%, MS 38%, HS 30%, HN 15%, CW 88%, RL 20%

Malachi Jade (18/53, 10, 10, 12, 15, 14)	F4 (NE)	90'	4	32	Chain mail +1	War hammer +2 (7-10), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Potion of healing
Silken Turissa (10, 16, 13, 18, 9, 12)	MU4 (CE)	120'	4	12	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), throwing daggers (1-4)	Amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items), wand of alignment detection (27 charges, see new magic items), scroll of dispel magic
	Memorized spells: charm person, shield, sleep; invisibility, mirror image
	Spell Book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, friends, identify, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; audible glamor, continual light, detect invisibility, invisibility, mirror image, rope trick; dispel magic, phantasmal force, suggestion
Mulch of Skallasholm (16, 12, 6, 18, 15, 15)	T4 (CE)	120'	4	20	Leather	Club (2-7), 6 throwing daggers +1 (2-5)	Ring of free action, potion of fire resistance
	Thief skills: PP 55%, OL 52%, F/RT 40%, MS 43%, HS 35%, HN 15%, CW 88%, RL 20%

Statistics: The Broom High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Harold Good-Ears (18/77, 9, 12, 11, 17, 15)	F8 (CE)	120'	2	78	Chain mail +1 and shield +1	Battle axe +2 (6-13), short bow and 20 arrows (1-6)	Amulet of courage (see new magic items), potion of extra healing
Aethelwig the Golden (9, 17, 13, 15, 12, 11)	MU8 (CE)	120'	3	25	n.a.	Staff (1-6), darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 4), wand of fire (44 charges), scroll of protection from elementals, scroll of lightning bolt, potion of clairvoyance
	Memorized spells: charm person, comprehend languages, hold portal, magic missile; continual light, darkness 15' radius, web; dispel magic, fireball, haste; confusion, dimension door
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, enlarge, find familiar, friends, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, levitate, magic mouth, rope trick, shatter, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, infravision, monster summoning I, slow, tongues, water breathing; charm monster, confusion, dimension door, fire shield, minor globe of invulnerability, monster summoning II; airy water
Hestia of Arcturus (13, 9, 17, 11, 15, 9)	C7 (CE)	90'	2	46	Banded mail and shield +1	Mace +2 (3-10)	Amulet of spell absorption (see new magic items), potion of dispelling (see new magic items), rod of turning (29 charges; see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds, remove fear, sanctuary; chant, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius (x2); animate dead, blindness, dispel magic; cure serious wounds
Pella the Souse (12, 10, 11, 17, 15, 8)	T8 (NE)	120'	3	42	Leather +2	Long sword +1 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Brooch of shielding (54 HP), pearl necklace of invisibility (15 pearls) (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 70%, OL 67%, F/RT 55%, MS 67%, HS 54%, HN 25%, CW 96%, RL 40%
Malachi Jade (18/53, 10, 10, 12, 15, 14)	F7 (NE)	90'	3	58	Chain mail +2	War hammer +2 (7-10), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Amulet of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items), potion of healing (x2)

Silken Turissa (10, 16, 13, 18, 9, 12)	MU7 (CE)	120'	4	21	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), throwing daggers (1-4)	Amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items), wand of alignment detection (27 charges, see new magic items), wand of illusion (60 charges) scroll of dispel magic
	Memorized spells: burning hands, charm person, friends, shield; continual light, invisibility, mirror image; dispel magic, suggestion; charm monster
	Spell Book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, friends, identify, jump, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; audible glamour, continual light, detect invisibility, invisibility, mirror image, rope trick, scare; dispel magic, fireball, phantasmal force, protection from normal missiles, slow, suggestion; charm monster, fire shield, fumble, remove curse, wall of fire, wizard eye, distance distortion
Mulch of Skallasholm (16, 12, 6, 18, 15, 15)	T7 (CE)	120'	3	36	Leather +1	Club (2-7), 6 throwing daggers +2 (3-6)	Ring of free action, potion of fire resistance
	Thief skills: PP 70%, OL 67%, F/RT 55%, MS 65%, HS 53%, HN 25%, CW 94%, RL 35%

Group 5: Survivors of the Stone (neutral)

Leaders: Ljot and Hallsted, cousins from House Diorite in Kazildor (see World of Archontos appendix)

General Ethos: Cautious and curt; they are scrupulously uninterested in the affairs of others, wishing only to live and let live.

Goals and Motives: They seek the legendary forge of Zhorak so as to reclaim it for dwarves. They are eager to grab as much ancient lore and wealth as can be found, and then take it all back to Kazildor.

Members

1. Ljot Diorite, female dwarf fighter: AL LN; STR 18/31; INT 13; WIS 9; DEX 10; CON 17; CHA 14. Ljot is as hard as her clan-name; this applies both to her incredible physical conditioning and to the methods she uses to further the goals of clan Diorite.

2. Hallsted Diorite, male dwarf cleric: AL LN; STR 16; INT 9; WIS 17; DEX 11; CON 15; CHA 8. Hallsted is a thin and wiry, with a set of impressive black fu-manchu moustaches. He is easier-going than Ljot, and has exhibited some curiosity about human culture and history.

3. Krezik the Locksmith (clan-less), male dwarf thief: AL CN; STR 11; INT 15; WIS 11; DEX 17; CON 15; CHA 9. Krezik was expelled from his clan for theft. Small and wizened, with a thief's brand on his cheek, Krezik burns with resentment. He is very grateful to Hallsted for including him on this mission.

4. Feldic Basalt, female dwarf fighter: AL LG; STR 18/76; INT 7; WIS 11; DEX 10; CON 16; CHA 10. Affianced to Hallsted some twenty years ago as part of an arranged marriage between clans Diorite and Basalt, Feldic isn't sure she likes her future husband and his lack of proper morals. She accompanied the expedition to see how he comports himself, and also to carry an independent report on its progress back to the Council of Clans. She blames Hallsted's seeming lack of empathy on the 'bad influence' of Ljot.

5. Zwerg the Unruly (clan-less), male dwarf fighter: AL CN; STR 18/03; INT 10; WIS 6; DEX 15; CON 16; CHA 9. Zwerg is a classic clanless tunnel-fighter from the lower reaches of Kazildor: rough, blunt, and self-centered. He favors a mohawk and numerous piercings.

6. Georgia the Faithful, female human (Archontean) magic user: AL LN; STR 9; INT 16; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 9; CHA 10. Hired originally as a mercenary to provide arcane support to Ljot and Hallsted's venture, Georgia proved her worth and was eventually accorded a full share of any profits. Short and stout, with raven-black hair, it helps that she seems almost dwarf-like.

7. Chisel, the war-dog: Ljot raised Chisel from a pup, and Chisel is fanatically loyal to his mistress.

Statistics: Survivors of the Stone Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Ljot Diorite (18/31, 13, 9, 10, 17, 14)	F2 (LN)	90'	4	20	Chain mail and shield	Long sword (4-11), throwing axes (1-6)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), potion of healing
Hallsted Diorite (16, 9, 17, 11, 15, 8)	C2 (LN)	90'	4	15	Chain mail and shield	Staff (2-7)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), ankh of protection (5 charges; see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2), protection from good
Krezik the Locksmith (11, 15, 11, 17, 15, 9)	T2 (CN)	90'	5	11	Leather	Long sword (1-8), 10 darts (1-3)
	Thief skills: PP 40%; OL 49%; F/RT 40%; MS 26%; HS 20%; HN 10%; CW 76%; RL 0%
Feldic Basalt (18/76, 7, 11, 10, 16, 10)	F1 (LG)	60'	3	12	Splint mail and shield	Battle axe (5-12), sling and 20 bullets (2-5)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items)
Zwerg the Unruly (18/03, 10, 6, 15, 16, 9)	F1 (CN)	60'	4	12	Scale mail and shield	Military pick (5-10), 3 javelins (1-6)
Georgia the Faithful (9, 16, 14, 17, 9, 10)	MU1 (LN)	120'	7	4	n.a.	Staff, 6 darts (1-3)	Scroll of shield, scroll of protection from evil
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: burning hands, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; continual light
Chisel, war dog	SZ M; AL N; MV 120'; HD 2+2; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8

Statistics: Survivors of the Stone Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Ljot Diorite (18/31, 13, 9, 10, 17, 14)	F6 (LN)	90'	3	58	Chain mail and shield +1	Long sword +2 (6-13), throwing axes (1-6)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), potion of healing
Hallsted Diorite (16, 9, 17, 11, 15, 8)	C6 (LN)	90'	3	41	Scale mail +2 and shield	Staff of striking (4-9)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), ankh of protection (5 charges; see new magic items), staff of striking (14 charges)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2), detect magic, protection from good; chant, hold person (x2), know alignment, silence 15' radius; continual light, dispel magic, remove curse
Krezik the Locksmith (11, 15, 11, 17, 15, 9)	T6 (CN)	90'	4	32	Leather +1	Long sword +1 (2-9), 10 darts (1-3)	Cloak of the dwarves (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 40%; OL 49%; F/RT 40%; MS 26%; HS 20%; HN 10%; CW 76%; RL 0%
Feldic Basalt (18/76, 7, 11, 10, 16, 10)	F4 (LG)	60'	3	36	Splint mail and shield	Battle axe +1 (6-13), sling and 20 bullets (2-5)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), potion of invulnerability
Zwerg the Unruly (18/03, 10, 6, 15, 16, 9)	F4 (CN)	90'	3	34	Chain mail and shield	Military pick (5-10), 3 javelins +1 (2-7)	Potion of super-heroism, eye of seeing (14 charges; see new magic items)

Georgia the Faithful (9, 16, 14, 17, 9, 10)	MU4 (LN)	120'	5	11	n.a.	Staff, 6 darts (1-3)	Amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items), scroll of fireball , scroll of protection from magic
	Memorized spells: magic missile , shield, sleep; mirror image, web
	Spell book: burning hands, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, hold portal, identify, magic missile , read magic, shield, sleep; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, knock, mirror image, web; dispel magic, feign death
Chisel, war dog	SZ M; AL N; MV 120'; HD 2+2; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8

Statistics: Survivors of the Stone High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Ljot Diorite (18/31, 13, 9, 10, 17, 14)	F11 (LN)	90'	1	95	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Long sword +4, defender (8-15), 6 throwing axes +1 (2-7)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), ring of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items)
Hallsted Diorite (16, 9, 17, 11, 15, 8)	C11 (LN)	90'	2	66	Banded mail +1 and shield	Staff of striking (4-9)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), ankh of protection (2 charges; see new magic items), rudishva useful palm (repelling; see new magic items), torc of domination (see new magic items), staff of striking (19 charges)
							Spells prayed-for: bless , command, cure light wounds (x2), detect evil, detect magic, protection from good; chant, hold person (x2), know alignment, resist fire , silence 15' radius, slow poison; continual light, cure disease, dispel magic, feign death, remove curse; cure serious wounds, neutralize poison, protection from evil 10' radius; flame strike , raise dead; heal
Krezik the Locksmith (11, 15, 11, 17, 15, 9)	T12 (CN)	90'	3	57	Leather +2	Long sword +1 (2-9), 10 darts +2 (3-5)	Cloak of the dwarves (see new magic items), ring of levitation (see new magic items), rope of climbing
							Thief skills: PP 105%; OL 97%; F/RT 90%; MS 99%; HS 82%; HN 35%; CW 89.2%; RL 55%
Feldic Basalt (18/76, 7, 11, 10, 16, 10)	F9 (LG)	90'	0	83	Splint mail +2 and shield +1	Battle axe +3 (8-15), sling and 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Dwarven lifestone (see new magic items), helm of telepathy, brooch of shielding, potion of invulnerability
Zwerg the Unruly (18/03, 10, 6, 15, 16, 9)	F9 (CN)	90'	2	77	Banded mail +1 and shield	Military pick +2 (7-12), 3 javelins +2 (3-8)	Arrow of direction, ring of regeneration, potion of super-heroism
Georgia the Faithful (9, 16, 14, 17, 9, 10)	MU9 (LN)	120'	-2	28	n.a.	Staff of power (3-8), 6 darts +2 (3-5)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), scroll of fireball , staff of power (22 charges), ring of human influence , scroll of protection from magic
							Memorized spells: burning hands , comprehend languages, enlarge, magic missile; darkness 15' radius, levitate, web; dispel magic , fly, haste; ice storm, wall of ice; interposing hand
							Spell book: affect normal fires, burning hands, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, floating disk , hold portal, identify, jump, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, knock, levitate, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, web; dispel magic, feign death, fireball , fly, haste, protection from normal missiles, suggestion; charm monster, fear, fumble, ice storm, monster summoning II, wall of ice; conjure elemental, interposing hand, stone shape, telekinesis
Chisel, war dog	SZ M; AL N; MV 120'; HD 2+2; HP 13; #AT 1; Dmg 2-8

Group 6: Arcane Vengeance (Neutral)

Leaders: The siblings Noreden and Trillis

General Ethos: Cautious and imperious, this band of kinfolk are disciplined and directed. They haunt the territories of the factions, hoping to acquire information about (and locations of) arcane power through negotiation, bribery, and diplomacy. Still, when necessary, they are ruthless and violent.

Goals and Motives: They are seeking major supplies of arcanum (see new magic items), as well as lost items of magical power, particularly those associated with the Sortians.

Members

1. Noreden Galesdottir, female elf magic user: AL LN; STR 9; INT 17; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 10; CHA 16. Twin of Trillis, Noreden is tall, slender, with prematurely white hair and a penchant for impressive jewelry. She prefers to observe from the shadows before making decisions.

2. Trillis Galeson, male elf magic user: AL N; STR 9; INT 17; WIS 10; DEX 16; CON 15; CHA 10. Twin of Noreden, Trillis is short for an elf, with a brown Prince Valiant haircut. Trillis is also reckless for an elf, a fact which Noreden both admires and fears.

3. Edrias Noredensson, male elf fighter/magic user: AL LN; STR 17; INT 16; WIS 12; DEX 16; CON 10; CHA 11. Quite different in appearance from his elegant mother (Noreden), Edrias is a plain, black-haired elf with a large nose and several scars. A proud warrior, he considers himself the defender of the clan.

4. Riannis Trillisdottir, female elf magic user/thief: AL N; STR 9; INT 16; WIS 10; DEX 18; CON 13; CHA 15. For all her blonde beauty and charisma, Riannis is far more shy and reserved than her bold father (Trillis). She is fascinated with the Archontean golden age.

5. Palar Gadilloson, male elf fighter/magic user/thief: AL CN; STR 17; INT 16; WIS 9; DEX 16; CON 10; CHA 9. A cousin of the twins Trillis and Noreden, Palar is a cautious elder statesman who sees his duty as protecting the band on what he considers to be an ill-advised expedition.

6. Franalis Raedisdottir, female elf fighter/magic user/thief: AL N; STR 18/59; INT 16; WIS 9; DEX 17; CON 8; CHA 9. Another cousin of the twins, Franalis is partner to Palar and shares her spouse's belief that it is her duty to protect the 'rash' younger members of the team.

Statistics: Arcane Vengeance Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Noreden Galesdottir (9, 17, 14, 17, 10, 16)	MU2	120'	5	7	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 8)
	Memorized spells: grease, sleep
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, grease, light, magic missile, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, wizard's mark; darkness 15' radius, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility; dispel magic
Trillis Galeson (9, 17, 10, 16, 15, 10)	MU2	120'	7	9	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Cloak of protection +1
	Memorized spells: magic missile, protection from evil
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, light, magic aura, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep; continual light, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), strength; clairaudience
Edrias Noredensson (17, 16, 12, 16, 10, 11)	F1/MU1	120'	2	7	Elfin chain and shield	Long sword (2-9), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
	Memorized spells: spider climb
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, identify, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, spider climb; continual light, knock
Riannis Trillisdottir (9, 16, 10, 18, 13, 15)	MU1/T2	120'	4	8	Leather	Long sword (1-8), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of invisibility
	Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 39%, F/RT 30%, MS 36%, HS 35%, HN 15%, CW 86%, RL 0%
	Memorized spells: light
Spell book: dancing lights, enlarge, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; ESP, web

Palar Gadilloson (17, 16, 9, 16, 10, 9)	F1/MU1/T1	120'	6	7	Leather	Long sword (2-9), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
	Thief skills: PP 35%, OL 25%, F/RT 20%, MS 20%, HS 20%, HN 15%, CW 85%, RL 0%
	Memorized spells: magic missile
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, enlarge, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield; ESP, shatter
Franelis, Raedisdottir (18/59, 16, 9, 17, 8, 9)	F1/MU1/T1	120'	5	7	Leather	Long sword (4-11), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
	Thief skills: PP 40%, OL 30%, F/RT 20%, MS 25%, HS 25%, HN 15%, CW 85%, RL 0%
	Memorized spells: charm person
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), knock, mirror image, stinking cloud

Statistics: Arcane Vengeance Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Noredde Galesdottir (9, 17, 14, 17, 10, 16)	MU5	120'	3	16	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), rod of beguiling (29 charges), necklace of missiles
	Memorized spells: charm person, light, magic missile, sleep; invisibility, web; slow
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, dancing lights, detect magic, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, wizard's mark; darkness 15' radius, flaming sphere, forget, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility, acid arrow, rope trick, web; dispel magic, fireball, fly, gust of wind, hold person, slow, suggestion; dimension door, the hecate's bonds (see new spells)
Trillis Galesson (9, 17, 10, 16, 15, 10)	MU5	120'	6	20	n.a.	Staff of striking (4-9)	Cloak of protection +2, wand of secret door and trap location (55 charges), staff of striking (15 charges)
	Memorized spells: enlarge, magic missile, protection from evil, shield; continual light, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); suggestion
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, light, magic aura, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, invisibility, knock, levitate, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), strength, wizard lock; clairaudience, dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion; minor globe of invulnerability
Edrias Noredde sson (17, 16, 12, 16, 10, 11)	F4/MU4	120'	1	28	Elfin chain and shield +1	Long sword +1 (3-10), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Scroll of protection from magic
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, magic missile, shield; continual light, invisibility
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, identify, magic missile, message, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, forget, invisibility, knock, levitate, pyrotechnics; hold person, phantasmal force, slow
Riannis Trillisdottir (9, 16, 10, 18, 13, 15)	MU4/T5	120'	3	18	Leather +1	Long sword (1-8), short bow +1 with 20 arrows (1-6)	Boots of elvenkind, potion of invisibility
	Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 52%, F/RT 45%, MS 55%, HS 51%, HN 30%, CW 90%, RL 25%
	Memorized spells: enlarge, shield, spider climb; ESP, invisibility
	Spell book: armor, dancing lights, enlarge, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; continual light, ESP, flaming sphere, invisibility, mirror image, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), web; clairaudience, dispel magic

Palar Gadillosson (17, 16, 9, 16, 10, 9)	F4/MU4/T5	120'	5	28	Leather +1	Long sword +1 (3-10), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Ring of levitation, wand of shielding (41 charges; see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 55%, OL 42%, F/RT 40%, MS 45%, HS 41%, HN 30%, CW 90%, RL 25%
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, magic missile, push; knock, web
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, enlarge, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, write; continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, rope trick, shatter, web; gust of wind, infravision
Franalis, Raedisdottir (18/59, 16, 9, 17, 8, 9)	F4/MU4/T5	120'	4	27	Leather	Long sword +1 (5-12), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Ring of protection +1, wand of fire (33 charges)
	Thief skills: PP 60%, OL 47%, F/RT 40%, MS 50%, HS 46%, HN 30%, CW 90%, RL 25%
	Memorized spells: burning hands, enlarge, magic missile; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), mirror image
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), continual light, ESP, knock, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud; fly, lightning bolt

Statistics: Arcane Vengeance High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Noredde Galesdottir (9, 17, 14, 17, 10, 16)	MU10	120'	0	31	n.a.	Staff of power (3-8), 6 darts (1-3)	Robe of the archmagi (gray), staff of power (21 charges) rod of beguiling (19 charges), necklace of missiles, wand of illusion (41 charges), scroll of polymorph other
	Memorized spells: charm person, light, magic missile, sleep; acid arrow, darkness 15' radius, flaming sphere, web; fireball, fly, hold person; harnessing the chaos (see new spells), polymorph other; interposing hand, magic jar
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, dancing lights, detect magic, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, melt, message, precipitation, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, taunt, ventriloquism, wizard's mark; bind, darkness 15' radius, deppockets, detect evil, flaming sphere, forget, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility, irritation, know alignment, locate object, acid arrow, rope trick, vocalize, web, wizard lock; blink, cloudburst, dispel magic, explosive runes, fireball, fly, gust of wind, hold person, item, minute meteor, secret page, slow, suggestion, water breathing; confusion, dig, dimension door, extension I, fire trap, fumble, harnessing the chaos (see new spells), the hecate's bonds (see new spells), ice storm, massmorph, plant growth, polymorph self, polymorph other, remove curse, shout, wall of ice; avoidance, interposing hand, contact other plane, extension II, hold monster, magic jar, sending, teleport; chain lightning, disintegrate, eyebite, legend lore, part water; Kentillian's abyssal ice (see new spells)
Trillis Galesson (9, 17, 10, 16, 15, 10)	MU10	120'	1	39	n.a.	Staff of striking (4-9), 6 darts (1-3)	Robe of blending, bracers of defense (AC 4), ring of protection +1, staff of striking (18 charges), wand of secret door and trap location (35 charges), wand of frost (47 charges), scroll of fireball
	Memorized spells: enlarge, identify, light, shield; darkness 15' radius, invisibility, knock, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); dispel magic, fireball, suggestion; confusion, ice storm; animate dead, cone of cold
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, floating disk, friends, hold portal, identify, light, magic aura, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, detect invisibility, invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), pyrotechnics, scare, strength, wizard lock; clairaudience, dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion, tiny hut, tongues; confusion, dimension door, ice storm, minor globe of invulnerability, remove curse; animate dead, cone of cold, monster summoning III, telekinesis

Edrias Noreddensson (18/00, 16, 12, 16, 10, 11)	F6/MU9	120'	-1	36	Chain mail +2 and shield +1	Long sword +3 of wounding (10-17), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Gauntlets of ogre power, scroll of protection from magic, wand of alignment detection (62 charges), scroll of hold monster
	Memorized spells: charm person, identify, magic missile, shield; continual light, forget, web; dispel magic, fireball , suggestion; charm monster, ice storm; cone of cold
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, erase, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, message, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, floating disk ; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, forget, invisibility, knock, levitate, pyrotechnics, scare, strength, web, wizard lock; dispel magic, fireball , hold person, phantasmal force, slow, suggestion, tongues; charm monster, dimension door, fire shield , ice storm, polymorph other, remove curse, wall of ice; conjure elemental, cone of cold, hold monster, stone shape, transmute rock to mud
Riannis Trillisdottier (9, 16, 10, 18, 13, 15)	MU9/T10	120'	2	38	Leather armor of shadows (see new magic items)	Long sword +2 (3-10), short bow +1 with 20 arrows (1-6)	Boots of elvenkind, necklace of adaptation, potion of invisibility, scroll of stonesskin
	Thief skills: PP 95%, OL 77%, F/RT 70%, MS 103%, HS 93%, HN 35%, CW 99%, RL 50%
	Memorized spells: grease, magic missile, shield, shrink (reverse of enlarge); invisibility, mirror image, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt; fire shield , ice storm; feblemind
Spell book: armor, charm person, dancing lights, enlarge, feather fall, grease, identify, light, magic missile, mending, magic aura, push, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; continual light, ESP, flaming sphere , forget, invisibility, levitate, mirror image, preserve, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), rope trick, scare, web; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, feign death, fireball , hold person, invisibility 10' radius, lightning bolt, material, protection from evil 10' radius, sepia snake sigil, wind wall; charm monster, dimension door, fire shield , ice storm, mnemonic enhancer, remove curse, stonesskin.; airy water, cloudkill, distance distortion, feblemind, passwall, stone shape; enchant an item, globe of invulnerability, project image
Palar Gadillosson (17, 16, 9, 16, 10, 9)	F6/MU8/T8	120'	3	51	Leather +3	Long sword +2 (4-11), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Ring of levitation, wand of shielding (31 charges; see new magic items); bag of holding (150 cu. ft.), scroll of fireball
	Thief skills: PP 70%, OL 57%, F/RT 55%, MS 67%, HS 59%, HN 30%, CW 96%, RL 40%
	Memorized spells: charm person, comprehend languages, hold portal, magic missile; continual light, darkness 15' radius, web; dispel magic, fireball , haste; confusion, dimension door
Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, enlarge, find familiar , friends, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, spider climb, write; continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, levitate, magic mouth, rope trick, shatter, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball , gust of wind, infravision, monster summoning I, slow, tongues, water breathing; charm monster, confusion, dimension door, fire shield , minor globe of invulnerability, monster summoning II; airy water
Fralanis, Raedisdottir (18/59, 16, 9, 17, 8, 9)	F7/MU8/T8	120'	2	54	Leather +2	Long sword +2 (6-13), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Ring of protection +1, wand of fire (43 charges), potion of healing (x2), scroll of dispel magic
	Thief skills: PP 75%, OL 62%, F/RT 55%, MS 72%, HS 64%, HN 30%, CW 96%, RL 40%
	Memorized spells: charm person, detect magic, enlarge, magic missile; continual light, ESP, locate object; dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt; charm monster, polymorph other
Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, sleep; the Bracteros effect (see new spells), continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, locate object, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, web; blink, dispel magic, fireball , fly, hold person, lightning bolt, protection from evil 10' radius; charm monster, fear, monster summoning II, polymorph other

Group 7: Jellik's Jarls (evil)

Leader: Jellik

General Ethos: The Jarls are a group of utterly opportunistic and ruthless predators with a strong Wisinga cultural background. Like the seaborne reivers from their homeland, they are just as willing to trade with those they consider dangerous as they are to assault those they consider weak.

Goals and Motives: Jellik and his crew are uninterested in the history or culture of Arden Vul and care only about wealth. They have come to the logical conclusion that it is often easier to relieve other adventurers of wealth than to seek it on their own; as a result they operate much of the time as simple – albeit highly dangerous – bandits. This means that they typically circle about well-traveled areas, hoping to spot likely marks to track into the wilds of the dungeons and there relieve them of their valuables and lives.

Fixed Encounter Areas: None, although they are known to frequent the Forum (4-2), the Peace Door (6-7A), the Troll Market (7-76), and the Goblin market (SL4-40F).

Members

1. Jellik, male human (Wiskin) thief: AL NE; STR 8; INT 14; WIS 11; DEX 17; CON 15; CHA 15. Jellik is small and dark for a Wiskin, but he is possessed of a charming wit and the gift of gab. He uses these skills to mask his ruthlessness.

2. Arvid, female human (Wiskin) cleric of Loki: AL CE; STR 16; INT 8; WIS 16; DEX 13; CON 11; CHA 10. By 9th level, Arvid's WIS has increased to 17. A tall ginger woman, Arvid lives for deceit and trickery.

3. Teodor, male human (Archontean) fighter: AL CN; STR 17; INT 6; WIS 13; DEX 13; CON 17; CHA 11. Teodor is a dull-witted, fire-plug-shaped fellow who owes his life to Jellik. He repays it with fanatical loyalty.

4. Vask, male human (Archontean) magic user: AL LE; STR 10; INT 17; WIS 13; DEX 10; CON 7; CHA 10. An average-looking Archontean with olive skin and black hair, Vask has a consumptive cough that is a product of a run-in with the Drome some years back. He consequently bears a grudge against the imperial bureaucracy and most Archontean.

5. Gunter, male human (Wiskin) fighter: AL LE; STR 16; INT 8; WIS 12; DEX 14; CON 16; CHA 14. Gunter is a typically blonde Wiskin. He had to flee his village after conducting a vengeance killing against his jarl's family.

6. Ixon, male human (Wiskin) fighter: AL LE; STR 16; INT 5; WIS 14; DEX 14; CON 16; CHA 9. Ixon is particularly dense. He foolishly aided Gunter in his vengeance killing and was forced to flee with Gunter.

7. Frida, female human (Wiskin) magic user: AL LN; STR 10; INT 18; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 11; CHA 15. Frida has waist-length blonde hair and a pretty face. A child prodigy at the New School of Arcane Might, Frida is young and impressionable; Jellik easily convinced her that joining him would be her fastest path to real arcane power.

Statistics: Jellik's Jarls Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Jellik (8, 14, 11, 17, 15, 15)	T3 (NE)	120'	5	16	Leather	Long sword (1-8), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	2 vials of mortality poison (see area 3-4), torc of domination (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 45%, OL 43%, F/RT 30%, MS 32%, HS 25%, HN 15%, CW 87%, RL 0%
Arvid (16, 8, 16, 13, 11, 10)	C3 (CE)	90'	3	17	Banded mail and shield	Flail +1 (3-8), 3 throwing hammers (2-5)	Potion of healing
	Spells prayed-for: cure light wounds (x2), light , sanctuary ; chant , hold person , silence 15' radius
Teodor (17, 6, 13, 13, 17, 11)	F3 (CN)	90'	3	27	Chain mail and shield	Spear +1 (3-8), 4 javelins (1-6)	Potion of heroism
Vask (10, 17, 13, 10, 7, 10)	MU3 (LE)	120'	8	9	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 8), scroll of shield, scroll of magic missile
	Memorized spells: magic missile , sleep ; web
	Spell book: charm person , dancing lights , detect magic , grease , identify , light , magic missile , read magic , run , sleep , spider climb , taunt , wizard's mark ; darkness 15' radius, deppockets , invisibility , acid arrow , rope trick , web , wizard lock ; slow

Gunter (18/59, 8, 12, 14, 17, 14)	F1 (LE)	90'	6	12	Ring mail and shield	Military pick (5-10), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Ixon (16, 5, 14, 14, 16, 9)	F1 (LE)	90'	6	12	Ring mail and shield	Battle axe (2-9), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)
Frida (10, 18, 14, 17, 11, 15)	MU1 (LN)	120'	6	4	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Ring of protection +1, scroll of protection from magic
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, feather fall, magic missile, read magic, shield, shocking grasp; levitate

Statistics: Jellik's Jarls Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Jellik (8, 14, 11, 17, 15, 15)	T6 (NE)	120'	4	33	Leather +1	Long sword +1 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	2 vials of mortality poison (see area 3-4), torc of domination (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 60%, OL 57%, F/RT 45%, MS 52%, HS 42%, HN 20%, CW 92%, RL 30%
Arvid (16, 8, 16, 13, 11, 10)	C6 (CE)	90'	2	36	Banded mail and shield +1	Flail +1 (3-8), 3 throwing hammers (2-5)	Horn of chaos
	Spells prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2), endure heat, protection from evil; chant, enthrall, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius; negative plane protection, speak with dead
Teodor (17, 6, 13, 13, 17, 11)	F6 (CN)	120'	3	63	Chain mail +1 and shield	Spear +2 (4-9), 4 javelins (1-6)	Guard cap (see new magic items)
Vask (10, 17, 13, 10, 7, 10)	MU6 (LE)	120'	5	18	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), wand of magic missile (41 charges)
	Memorized spells: burning hands, magic missile, sleep; darkness 15' radius, acid arrow; fly, lightning bolt
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, dancing lights, detect magic, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, taunt, ventriloquism, wizard's mark; bind, darkness 15' radius, deeppockets, detect evil, invisibility, irritation, know alignment, acid arrow, rope trick, web, wizard lock; blink, cloudburst, dispel magic, fly, hold person, item, lightning bolt, minute meteor, slow, suggestion, water breathing; confusion, shout
Gunter (18/59, 8, 12, 14, 17, 14)	F4 (LE)	90'	3	42	Banded mail and shield	Military pick +1 (6-11), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Potion of healing
Ixon (16, 5, 14, 14, 16, 9)	F4 (LE)	90'	3	38	Chain mail and shield +1	Battle axe +1 (3-10), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Potion of hill giant strength
Frida (10, 18, 14, 17, 11, 15)	MU4 (LN)	120'	2	12	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Ring of protection +1, bracers of defense (AC 6), wand of conjuration (10 charges)
	Memorized spells: magic missile, shield, shocking grasp; knock, levitate
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, feather fall, hold portal, light, magic missile, push, read magic, shield, shocking grasp; darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, knock, levitate, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, web; lightning bolt, protection from normal missiles

Statistics: Jellik's Jarls High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Jellik (8, 14, 11, 17, 15, 15)	T11 (NE)	120'	4	58	Leather +1	Long sword +2 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	2 vials of mortality poison (see area 3-4), torc of domination (see new magic items), 3 stones of striking (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 95%, OL 82%, F/RT 70%, MS 91%, HS 75%, HN 35%, CW 99.1%, RL 55%
Arvid (16, 8, 17, 13, 11, 10)	C10 (CE)	120'	1	56	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Flail +3 (5-10), 3 throwing hammers (2-5)	Horn of chaos, ring of acid resistance (see new magic items), lesser periapt of finding (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless , command , cure light wounds (x2), detect good , detect magic ; chant , hold person , know alignment , silence 15' radius , augury , speak with animals ; dispel magic , glyph of warding , curse , prayer ; cure serious wounds (x2), protection from evil 10' radius ; commune , flame strike
Teodor (17, 6, 13, 13, 17, 11)	F10 (CN)	120'	1	91	Chain mail +2 and shield	Spear +4, defender (6-11), 4 javelins of piercing (7-12)	Guard cap (see new magic items)
Vask (10, 17, 13, 10, 7, 10)	MU10 (LE)		3	30	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), ring of protection +2, wand of magic missile (31 charges), staff of the necromancer (17 charges, see new magic items), scroll of conjure elemental
	Memorized spells: grease , identify , magic missile (x2); acid arrow , darkness 15' radius , invisibility , web ; dispel magic , hold person , suggestion ; confusion , dimension door ; interposing hand , hold monster
	Spell book: burning hands , charm person , dancing lights , detect magic , firewater , grease , hold portal , identify , light , magic missile , melt , message , precipitation , read magic , run , sleep , spider climb , taunt , ventriloquism , wizard's mark ; bind , darkness 15' radius , deppockets , detect evil , flaming sphere , forget , invisibility , irritation , know alignment , locate object , acid arrow , rope trick , vocalize , web , wizard lock ; blink , cloudburst , dispel magic , explosive runes , fly , gust of wind , hold person , item , lightning bolt , minute meteor , secret page , slow , suggestion , water breathing ; confusion , dig , dimension door , extension I , fire trap , fumble , ice storm , massmorph , plant growth , polymorph self , remove curse , shout , wall of ice ; avoidance , interposing hand , contact other plane , extension II , hold monster , magic jar , sending , teleport ; chain lightning , eyebite
Gunter (18/59, 8, 12, 14, 17, 14)	F7 (LE)	120'	2	74	Banded mail +1 and shield	Military pick +3 (8-13), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7) and 2 arrows of striking (2-7)	Ring of free action, gauntlets of swimming and climbing
Ixon (16, 5, 14, 14, 16, 9)	F7 (LE)	90'	2	67	Banded mail and shield +1	Battle axe +2 (4-11), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4) and 3 bolts of fire (3-6)	Potion of hill giant strength, wand of illumination (55 charges)
Frida (10, 18, 14, 17, 11, 15)	MU7 (LN)	120'	2	21	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Ring of protection +1, bracers of defense (AC 6), wand of conjuration (10 charges), scroll of wall of fire
	Memorized spells: charm person , light , magic missile , shield ; darkness 15' radius , levitate , ray of enfeeblement ; gust of wind , lightning bolt ; ice storm
	Spell book: charm person , comprehend languages , detect magic , feather fall , hold portal , light , magic missile , push , read magic , shield , shocking grasp ; darkness 15' radius , detect invisibility , knock , levitate , ray of enfeeblement , stinking cloud , web ; dispel magic , fireball , gust of wind , haste , lightning bolt , protection from normal missiles , slow ; dimension door , fear , ice storm , polymorph self

Group 8: Hama and Company (good)

Leader: Hama Reeveson

General Ethos: Cautious but kind; Hama and his band are classic nurturers, caring for the weak and powerless. They hope to use wealth and knowledge found in Arden Vul for the betterment of Thorcin communities.

Goals and Motives: Hama is sympathetic to the Thorcin Recovery League's general ideology of promoting Thorcin rights (see World of Archontos appendix), but he disagrees with the TRL's violent methods. He has heard rumors of lost Thorcin treasures in Arden Vul and would like to recover them (he's thinking about the Archonal regalia). The regalia are the bone ring of Jagri-Naz (area 5-74), the tablet of the beacon (9-107), the ebon spear (SL5-13A), and the iron circlet of Ghanor (3-127A).

Members

1. Hama Reeveson, male human (Thorcin) fighter: AL NG; STR 18/43; INT 11; WIS 11; DEX 10; CON 17; CHA 14. Possessed of a quiet confidence and charisma, Hama leads by example.

2. Grestain Fifty-Hides, male human (Thorcin) magic user: AL NG; STR 10; INT 17; WIS 15; DEX 17; CON 11; CHA 8. By 9th level, he has INT 18. Short and stout, Grestain has an inferiority complex that he overcompensates for with showy magic.

3. Justina the Areopagite, female human (Archontean) cleric of Ardenia Tessaeron: AL LG; STR 16; INT 10; WIS 17; DEX 11; CON 16; CHA 12. By 9th level she has WIS 18. Brown-haired and olive-complexioned, Justina is kind, compassionate, and eager to help the poor and disenfranchised.

4. Thorwald, male human (Wiskin) thief: AL N; STR 10; INT 14; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 15; CHA 17. Tall and fair, with flowing brown locks, Thorwald is incredibly handsome and charming. He uses his charm to enable his cons and thieving adventures ... all for the greater good, of course.

5. Blytha, female human (Thorcin) fighter: AL CG; STR 17; INT 15; WIS 6; DEX 10; CON 16; CHA 10. Blytha looks big and dumb, but she is actually highly intelligent. Many of Hama's long-term strategies are planned by Blytha.

6. Willa the Badger, female human (Thorcin) ranger: AL CG; STR 17; INT 15; WIS 15; DEX 11; CON 16; CHA 9. Willa is introverted and contemplative, but a genius on the trail. She wears her hair cut short and favors unassuming peasant clothes.

Statistics: Hama and Company Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hama Reeveson (18/43, 11, 11, 10, 17, 14)	F1 (NG)	60'	3	12	Splint mail and shield	Spear (4-9), broad sword (5-11), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Grestain Fifty-Hides (10, 17, 15, 17, 11, 8)	MU1 (NG)	120'	7	4	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Scroll with shield and protection from evil
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, jump, light, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep; invisibility
Justina the Areopagite (16, 10, 17, 11, 16, 12)	C1	60'	5	10	Scale mail and shield	Mace (2-9)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2)
Thorwald (10, 14, 14, 17, 15, 17)	T1	120'	5	7	Leather	Long sword (1-8), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)
	Thief skills: PP 35%, OL 35%, F/RT 20%, MS 20%, HS 15%, HN 10%, CW 85%, RL 0%
Blytha (17, 15, 6, 10, 16, 10)	F1	60'	5	12	Scale mail and shield	Morning star (3-9), 6 javelins (1-6)
Willa the Badger (17, 15, 15, 11, 16, 9)	R1	90'	5	15	Chain mail	Long sword (2-9), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)

Statistics: Hama and Company Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hama Reeveson (18/43, 11, 11, 10, 17, 14)	F5	90'	3	52	Chain mail and shield +1	Spear +1 (5-10), broad sword (5-11), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Pearly white ioun stone
Grestain Fifty-Hides (10, 17, 15, 17, 11, 8)	MU5	120'	4	15	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 7), wand of illumination (61 charges), scroll of protection from evil and magic missile
	Memorized spells: light, magic missile, shield; invisibility, mirror image, web; fireball
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, identify, jump, light, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, invisibility, knock, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, web, wizard lock; blink, dispel magic, fireball , hold person, invisibility 10' radius, monster summoning I, suggestion, tongues
Justina the Areopagite (16, 10, 17, 11, 16, 12)	C5	90'	2	40	Banded mail and shield	Mace +1 (3-10)	Pale lavender ioun stone (23 levels remaining)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), light; chant, hold person (x2), silence 15' radius, speak with animals; dispel magic, remove curse
Thorwald (10, 14, 14, 17, 15, 17)	T6	120'	4	33	Leather +1	Long sword (1-8), sling with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Brooch of confident action (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 60%, OL 57%, F/RT 45%, MS 52%, HS 42%, HN 20%, CW 92%, RL 30%
Blytha (17, 15, 6, 10, 16, 10)	F5	90'	4	50	Chain mail and shield	Morning star +1 (4-10), 6 javelins (1-6)	Potion of super-heroism, amulet of courage (see new magic items)
Willa the Badger (17, 15, 15, 11, 16, 9)	R5	90'	4	47	Banded mail	Long sword +1 (3-10), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Cloak of elvenkind, potion of extra healing

Statistics: Hama and Company High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hama Reeveson (18/43, 11, 11, 10, 17, 14)	F12	120'	0	110	Banded mail +2 and shield +1	Spear +3 (7-12), broad sword +1 (6-12), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (1-6)	Pearly white ioun stone, scarab of protection, potion of Greek fire (see new magic items)
Grestain Fifty-Hides (10, 18, 15, 17, 11, 8)	MU12	120'	1	34	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 4), wand of illumination (21 charges), scroll of protection from magic, staff of the magi (21 charges), ring of water walking, 3 darts of sleeping (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, detect magic, magic missile (x2); continual light, detect evil, levitate, ray of enfeeblement; dispel magic, fireball , slow, suggestion; confusion, monster summoning II, remove curse, wall of force; cone of cold, conjure elemental, interposing hand, wall of force; monster summoning IV
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, feather fall, friends, hold portal, identify, jump, light, magic missile, message, protection from evil, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, detect invisibility, ESP, invisibility, knock, levitate, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, stinking cloud, strength, web, wizard lock; blink, clairaudience, dispel magic, fireball , gust of wind, haste, hold person, invisibility 10' radius, lightning bolt, monster summoning I, slow, suggestion, tongues; charm monster, confusion, dig, extension I, hallucinatory terrain, ice storm, monster summoning II, polymorph other, remove curse, wall of fire; cone of cold, conjure elemental, contact other plane, interposing hand, magic jar, monster summoning III, telekinesis, wall of force; forceful hand, globe of invulnerability, monster summoning IV, stone to flesh

Justina the Areopagite (16, 10, 18, 11, 16, 12)	C12	120'	1	84	Banded mail +2 and shield	Mace of disruption (3-10), hammer +2 (4-7)	Wand of alignment detection (50 charges; see new magic items), eye of seeing (8 charges; see new magic items), amulet of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items), scroll of protection from evil
	Spells prayed-for: bless, remove fear, command (x2), create water, cure light wounds, light, resist cold; augury, chant, hold person (x2), resist fire, silence 15' radius, speak with animals; cause blindness, cure disease, dispel magic (x2), remove curse, speak with dead; cure serious wounds, divination, neutralize poison, protection from evil 10' radius; flame strike, true seeing; aerial servant, heal
Thorwald (10, 14, 14, 17, 15, 17)	T13	120'	3	61	Leather armor of shadows (see new magic items)	Long sword +2 (3-10), sling with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Brooch of confident action (see new magic items), pearl necklace of invisibility (11 pearls; see new magic items), sapphire Sortian eye (see new magic items), 2 rudishva fragmentation grenades (see new technological items)
	Thief skills: PP 110%, OL 92%, F/RT 80%, MS 114%, HS 100%, HN 40%, CW 99.3%, RL 65%
Blytha (18/46, 15, 6, 10, 16, 10)	F12	120'	1	100	Banded mail +2 and shield	Morning star +3 (8-14), 6 javelins (1-6), 2 javelins of piercing (7-12)	Pale blue ioun stone, amulet of courage (see new magic items), helm of infravision (see new magic items), potion of healing (x2)
Willa the Badger (17, 15, 15, 11, 16, 9)	R11	120'	2	90	Chain mail +3	Long sword of sharpness (3-10), long bow with 20 arrows +3 (4-9)	Cloak of elvenkind, potion of extra healing, a jar of restorative ointment, olifant of command (woodland animals; see new magic items)

Group 9. Discipline and Punish (evil)

Leaders: Hrothgar and Doffy

General Ethos: This team of villains prefers to present a neutral face that masks their carefully-laid plans for domination, theft, and murder.

Goals and Motives: They would like to recover the archons's regalia and use it to establish themselves as political players in the Archontean empire. The regalia are the bone ring of Jagri-Naz (area 5-74), the tablet of the beacon (9-107), the ebon spear (SL5-13A), and the iron circlet of Ghanor (3-127A).

Members

1. Hrothgar Mickel, male human (Wisikin) fighter: AL LE; STR 18/63; INT 12; WIS 14; DEX 10; CON 17; CHA 15. Appearing as a hick who regularly chews straw, Hrothgar is in fact eagle-eyed and strategically gifted.

2. Doffy, male imperial goblin thief: AL CE; STR 11; INT 15; WIS 10; DEX 18; CON 15; CHA 11. N.B.: If imperial goblins are not used as a playable race (see World of Archontos appendix), Doffy will be a halfling and his thief abilities will need to be appropriately adjusted. A brash trash-talker who likes nothing more than taunting his enemies, Doffy has a long revenge list. That said, he is also easy to antagonize.

3. Eadred, male human (Thorcin) fighter: AL CE; STR 17; INT 9; WIS 15; DEX 16; CON 14; CHA 9. By 7th level Eadred has CON 15. Taciturn and uncomfortable indoors, Eadred prefers the woods. He always wears green and affects a jaunty, robin-hood-style cap.

4. Jadeel the Soulless, female human (Archontean) illusionist: AL NE; STR 8; INT 17; WIS 14; DEX 17; CON 10; CHA 11. Jadeel likes to boast about her actual and imagined accomplishments. She dresses flamboyantly, with faux silks and plenty of costume jewelry.

5. Fredegar, male human (Thorcin) cleric of Shapral: AL CN; STR 13; INT 13; WIS 17; DEX 10; CON 16; CHA 10. Always amiable in company, Fredegar is venal, slippery, and a good liar. He wears pilgrim's garb over his equipment.

6. Theodora the Rose, female human (Archontean) magic user: AL LE; STR 9; INT 18; WIS 13; DEX 16; CON 15; CHA 8. Theodora is a remarkably unpleasant, brown-haired woman who endlessly practices yoga.

Statistics: Discipline and Punish Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hrothgar Mickel (18/63, 12, 14, 10, 17, 15)	F1 (LE)	90'	4	12	Chain mail and shield	Battle axe (4-11), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing
Doffy (11, 15, 10, 18, 15, 11)	T2 (CE)	90'	4	11	Leather	Short sword (1-6), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)
Thief skills: PP 45%, OL 49%, F/RT 40%, MS 36%, HS 30%, HN 20%, CW 71%, RL 0%
Eadred (17, 9, 15, 16, 14, 9)	F1 (CE)	90'	4	9	Studded leather and shield	Spear (2-7), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Jadeel the Soulless (8, 17, 14, 17, 10, 11)	MU2 (NE)	120'	7	7	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Scroll of sleep
	Memorized spells: grease, sleep
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, sleep, spider climb, taunt; bind, deppockets, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility, irritation, acid arrow
Fredegar (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	C1 (CN)	60'	3	8	Scale mail and shield	Flail (2-7)
	Spells prayed-for: cure light wounds (x2), light
Theodora the Rose (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	MU1 (LE)	120'	8	5	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 darts (1-3)	Scroll of shield
	Memorized spells: sleep
	Spell book: burning hands, detect magic, enlarge, identify, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep, unseen servant; Frigg's elephant ears (see new spells), Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells)

Statistics: Discipline and Punish Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hrothgar Mickel (18/63, 12, 14, 10, 17, 15)	F5 (LE)	120'	2	53	Chain mail +1 and shield +1	Battle axe +1 (4-11), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing
Doffy (11, 15, 10, 18, 15, 11)	T6 (CE)	90'	3	33	Leather	Short sword (1-6), dagger of venom (2-5), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Ring of protection +1
	Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 67%, F/RT 60%, MS 62%, HS 52%, HN 30%, CW 77%, RL 30%
Eadred (17, 9, 15, 16, 14, 9)	F5 (CE)	90'	3	38	Chain mail and shield +1	Spear +2 (4-9), long bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of Greek fire (see new magic items)
Jadeel the Soulless (8, 17, 14, 17, 10, 11)	MU6 (NE)	120'	3	18	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), bag of holding (70 cu. ft.), wand of magic missiles (71 charges), potion of clarity (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: grease, magic missile, sleep, spider climb; acid arrow, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells); dispel magic, hold person
	Spell book: burning hands, charm person, firewater, grease, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, melt, read magic, run, sleep, spider climb, taunt, wizard's mark; bind, darkness 15' radius, deppockets, detect evil, flaming sphere, Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility, irritation, acid arrow, rope trick, vocalize; blink, cloudburst, dispel magic, fireball, fly, hold person, item, minute meteor, slow, suggestion; dimension door

Fredegar (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	C5 (CN)	120'	1	35	Chain mail +1 and shield	Flail +1 (2-7)	Amulet of spell absorption (20 levels; see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless , cure light wounds (x2), light , sanctuary ; chant , hold person , know alignment , resist fire , silence 15' radius ; cause blindness , dispel magic
Theodora the Rose (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	MU5 (LE)	120'	5	20	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 darts (1-3)	Cloak of displacement, ring of protection +1, wand of wonder (49 charges), scroll of protection from demons
	Memorized spells: dancing lights , magic missile , shield , sleep ; Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), mirror image ; fireball
	Spell book: burning hands , dancing lights , detect magic , enlarge , find familiar , identify , magic missile , protection from evil , read magic , shield , sleep , unseen servant ; audible glamer , continual light , darkness 15' radius , Frigg's elephant ears (see new spells), Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility , knock , magic mouth , mirror image , ray of enfeeblement , strength , web ; clairvoyance , dispel magic , fireball , garrulous mouth (see new spells), hold person , invisibility 10' radius , Pelagion's rock sympathy (see new spells), slow , suggestion ; extension I

Statistics: Discipline and Punish High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hrothgar Mickel (18/63, 12, 14, 10, 17, 15)	F9 (LE)	120'	2	94	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Battle axe +3 (6-13), short bow with 20 arrows +2 (3-8)	Necklace of harmony (see new magic items), potion of explosive acid (see new magic items)
Doffy (11, 15, 10, 18, 15, 11)	T10 (CE)	90'	1	55	Leather +2	Short sword +2 (3-8), dagger of venom (2-5), sling with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Ring of protection +1, scroll of conjure earth elemental, Melchior's beads of escape (4 beads; see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 90%, OL 87%, F/RT 80%, MS 93%, HS 78%, HN 40%, CW 84%, RL 50%
Eadred (17, 9, 15, 16, 15, 9)	F9 (CE)	120'	0	68	Banded mail +1 and shield +1	Spear +3 of wounding (5-10), long bow with 20 arrows +1 (2-7)	Potion of Greek fire (see new magic items), torc of protection (see new magic items)
Jadeel the Soulless (8, 17, 14, 17, 10, 11)	MU10 (NE)	120'	3	31	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 6), bag of holding (70 cu. ft.), wand of magic missiles (21 charges), wand of shielding (45 charges; see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: light , magic missile , precipitation , sleep ; darkness 15' radius , Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility , web ; dispel magic , fireball , suggestion ; the hecate's bonds (see new spells), shout ; magic jar , teleport
	Spell book: burning hands , charm person , dancing lights , detect magic , firewater , grease , hold portal , identify , light , magic missile , melt , message , precipitation , read magic , run , sleep , spider climb , taunt , ventriloquism , wizard's mark ; bind , darkness 15' radius , deppockets , detect evil , flaming sphere , forget , Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility , irritation , know alignment , locate object , acid arrow , rope trick , vocalize , web , wizard lock ; blink , cloudburst , dispel magic , explosive runes , fireball , fly , gust of wind , hold person , item , minute meteor , secret page , slow , suggestion , water breathing ; confusion , dig , dimension door , extension I , fire trap , fumble , harnessing the chaos (see new spells), the hecate's bonds (see new spells), ice storm , massmorph , plant growth , polymorph self , remove curse , shout , wall of ice ; avoidance , interposing hand , contact other plane , extension II , hold monster , magic jar , sending , teleport ; chain lightning , disintegrate , eyebite , legend lore , part water ; Kentillian's abyssal ice (see new spells)

Fredegar (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	C9 (CN)	120'	0	63	Chain mail +2 and shield	Flail +3 (4-9)	Amulet of spell absorption (20 levels; see new magic items), rod of cancellation (32 charges)
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), light, sanctuary; chant, detect charm, hold person, know alignment, resist fire, silence 15' radius; animate dead, cause blindness, dispel magic, glyph of warding; cure serious wounds, protection from good 10' radius; insect plague
Theodora the Rose (9, 18, 13, 16, 15, 8)	MU9 (LE)	120'	3	36	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 darts (1-3)	Cloak of displacement, ring of protection +3, wand of wonder (29 charges), wand of conjunction (33 charges), dust of disappearance
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, charm person, magic missile, shield; continual light, detect good, mirror image, ESP; dispel magic, fly, suggestion; fear, polymorph other; feeblemind
	Spell book: all 1 st -level spells; audible glamer, continual light, detect good, darkness 15' radius, detect invisibility, ESP, forget, Frigg's elephant ears (see new spells), Frigg's jelly legs (see new spells), invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, magic mouth, mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, rope trick, stinking cloud, strength, web; blink, clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball, fly, garrulous mouth (see new spells), gust of wind, haste, hold person, invisibility 10' radius, lightning bolt, monster summoning I, Pelagion's rock sympathy (see new spells), phantasmal force, slow, suggestion, water breathing; confusion, extension I, fear, ice storm, massmorph, minor globe of invulnerability, polymorph other, remove curse, wall of fire; conjure elemental, contact other plane, feeblemind, mage's faithful hound, teleport

Group 10: Lost and Found (good)

Leaders: Balthazar the Blue (sometimes), or Grimley (sometimes)

General Ethos: Curious but easily led astray, this group follows whatever new lead presents itself. It is capable of great compassion, particularly with the downtrodden, but it is also bloodthirsty when it comes to the evil.

Goals and Motives: None that can be easily determined, except that Balthazar strives always to maximize his own reputation.

Members

1. Balthazar the Blue, male human (Archontean) magic user: AL NG; STR 10; INT 18; WIS 11; DEX 16; CON 16; CHA 14. Dressing all in blue, Balthazar is like a peacock, vain and self-possessed. He loves nothing more than to spread stories about his own achievements. Despite this, he's a gifted tactician and deadly enemy.

2. Wicktrimmer, male imperial goblin thief: AL N; STR 11; INT 15; WIS 9; DEX 17; CON 14; CHA 11. If imperial goblins are not a playable race (see World of Archontos appendix), Wicktrimmer should be considered a halfling and his thief abilities will need to be appropriately adjusted. Quiet and secretive, Wicktrimmer always has a plan in the works. He has a penchant for delivering the killing blow when needed. He has a soft spot for the downtrodden, especially the freed-goblins of the imperial cities.

3. Aelin Fireheart, female human (Thorcin) ranger: AL LG; STR 16; INT 13; WIS 14; DEX 18; CON 14; CHA 11. Introverted and quiet, Aelin prefers to observe from the shadows.

4. Callista, female human (Archontean) monk: AL LN; STR 16; INT 13; WIS 15; DEX 17; CON 13; CHA 9. A former woman-at-arms, Callista decided at age 20 to retrain herself as a monk. She is naturally curious and regularly thinks outside the box.

5. Grimley, male human (Thorcin) paladin of Phreena: AL LG; STR 17; INT 14; WIS 13; DEX 14; CON 17; CHA 17. A brewer's son and former alcoholic, Grimley found redemption in devotion to Phreena. Now he is a paragon of virtue who quietly supports the poor and disadvantaged in every location he visits and who smites evil wherever it may be found. By 5th level he has lost an eye, and by 9th level he has lost his left hand (although a smith has produced a buckler that attaches to the stump).

6. Maggie, female half-elf thief: AL CN; STR 9; INT 16; WIS 10; DEX 18; CON 9; CHA 18. The daughter of an elven noblewoman, Maggie grew up believing her father was the notorious Thorcin rebel, Eadric Strigona, founder of the Thorcin Recovery League (see World of Archontos appendix). As a consequence, she has become 'more Thorcin than the Thorcinga' in dress and demeanor. It was a blow at level 6 to learn that her father was, in fact, the logothete of the imperial drome (see World of Archontos appendix). Uncertain of herself despite her beauty and talents, Maggie strives to establish her own identity in an uncertain world.

7. Drombaush Slate, male dwarf cleric of Mitra: AL LG; STR 14; INT 11; WIS 18; DEX 12; CON 16; CHA 6. Gruff and possessed of few social niceties, Drombaush is no charmer. Yet he is loyal and generous to a fault. He refuses to explain why he left Kazildor.

8. Cleopatra, female human (Archontean) illusionist: AL CG; STR 8; INT 17; WIS 11; DEX 10; CON 13; CHA 16. A radiant, raven-haired beauty, Cleo is accustomed to getting her way through charm as much as through spells. Her striking features and smooth voice are a perfect accompaniment to her hypnotic spells.

9. Adric, male human (Wisikin) cleric of Odin: AL NG; STR 17; INT 9; WIS 17; DEX 10; CON 15; CHA 8. Adric removed his own eye to better embody his patron god. He is a classic warrior cleric, preferring to lead from the front lines.

Statistics: Lost and Found Low-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Balthazar the Blue, (10, 18, 11, 16, 16, 14)	MU3 (NG)	120'	7	15	n.a.	Staff of blue light (1-6; see new magic items)	Amulet of protection from normal missiles (see new magic items), ring of protection +1
	Memorized spells: magic missile, sleep; web
	Spell book: affect normal fires, burning hands, enlarge, identify, jump, magic aura, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant; audible glamer, Cleophas's look-away spell (see new spells), mirror image, ray of enfeeblement, web; fireball
Wicktrimmer (11, 15, 9, 17, 14, 11)	T3 (N)	90'	5	14	Leather	Short sword (1-6), dagger +1 (3-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Potion of invisibility, potion of levitation
	Thief skills: PP 45%, OL 48%, F/RT 40%, MS 37%, HS 30%, HN 20%, CW 72%, RL 0%
Aelin Fireheart (16, 13, 14, 18, 14, 11)	R2 (LG)	90'	1	19	Chain mail	Longsword (2-9), longbow +1 with 20 arrows (2-7)	Potion of healing
Callista (16, 13, 15, 17, 13, 9)	M1 (LN)	120'	10	7	n.a.	Bo stick (1-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4), open hand (1-3)
	Thief-like skills: OL 35%, F/RT 20%, MS 20%, HS 15%, HN 10%, CW 85%
Grimley (17, 14, 13, 14, 17, 17)	P1 (LG)	90'	5	12	Chain mail	Two-handed sword (2-11)
Maggie (9, 16, 10, 18, 10, 18)	T1 (CN)	120'	4	6	Leather	Longsword (1-8), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)
	Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 40%, F/RT 25%, MS 25%, HS 25%, HN 10%, CW 85%, RL 0%
Drombaush Slate (14, 11, 18, 12, 16, 6)	C1 (LG)	90'	4	10	Chain mail, shield	Hammer (2-5)	Scroll of protection from evil
	Spells prayed for: cure light wounds (x2), light
Cleopatra (8, 17, 11, 10, 13, 16)	I1 (CG)	120'	10	4	n.a.	Dagger (1-4)	Potion of diminution
	Memorized spells: hypnotism
	Spell book: audible glamer, the Bracteros effect (see new spells), color spray, dancing lights, hypnotism, light, phantasmal force; hypnotic pattern
Adric (17, 9, 17, 10, 15, 8)	C1 (NG)	90'	4	9	Chain mail, shield	Mace (3-8)	Potion of healing
	Spells prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2)

Statistics: Lost and Found Mid-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Balthazar the Blue, (10, 18, 11, 16, 16, 14)	MU7 (NG)	120'	4	35	n.a.	Staff of blue light (1-6; see new magic items)	Wand of magic missiles (51 charges), bracers of defense (AC 6), wand of fire (5 charges)
	Memorized spells: identify, magic missile (x2), sleep; knock, Pol's endless sneezes (see new spells), web; fireball , lightning bolt; black tentacles
	Spell book: affect normal fires, burning hands, comprehend languages, dancing lights, erase, enlarge, identify, jump, magic aura, magic missile, mending, message, push, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant, write; audible glamor, Cleophalus's look-away spell (see new spells), continual light, darkness 15' radius, ESP, knock, levitate, mirror image, Pol's endless sneezes (see new spells), ray of enfeeblement, rope trick, scare, shatter, strength, web, wizard lock; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball , fly invisibility, lightning bolt, monster summoning I, protection from evil 10' radius; charm monster, black tentacles, ice storm, polymorph other, polymorph self, remove curse; the thane's betrayal (see new spells)
Wicktrimmer (11, 15, 9, 17, 14, 11)	T7 (N)	90'	5	32	Leather	Short sword (1-6), dagger +2 (3-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Necklace of adaptation, potion of invisibility, potion of levitation
	Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 67%, F/RT 60%, MS 65%, HS 53%, HN 35%, CW 79%, RL 35%
Aelin Fireheart (16, 13, 14, 18, 14, 11)	R6 (LG)	120'	0	42	Chain mail +1	Longsword +1 (3-10), longbow +2 with 20 arrows (3-8)	Scarab of protection
Callista (16, 13, 15, 17, 13, 9)	M5 (LN)	190'	7	18	n.a.	Bo stick +1 (2-7), jo stick (1-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4), open hand (2-7)	Ring of change self (see new magic items)
	Thief-like skills: OL 52%, F/RT 40%, MS 45%, HS 36%, HN 20%, CW 90%
Grimley (17, 14, 13, 14, 17, 17)	P5 (LG)	120'	4	53	Chain mail +1	Two-handed sword +1 (3-12)	Horn of Valhalla (silver)
Maggie (9, 16, 10, 18, 10, 18)	T5 (CN)	120'	3	23	Leather +1	Long sword +1 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Wand of magic detection (61 charges), potion of invisibility, potion of healing
	Thief skills: PP 70%, OL 57%, F/RT 45%, MS 50%, HS 46%, HN 20%, CW 90%, RL 25%
Drombaush Slate (14, 11, 18, 12, 16, 6)	C5 (LG)	90'	2	40	Banded mail +1, shield	Hammer +1 (3-6)	Staff of curing (19 charges)
	Spells prayed for: bless, cure light wounds (x2), detect magic, light; chant, find traps, hold person (x2), slow poison; cure disease, dispel magic
Cleopatra (8, 17, 11, 10, 13, 16)	I5 (CG)	120'	4	16	n.a.	Dagger +2 (3-6)	Bracers of defense (AC 4), wand of shielding (61 charges; see new magic items), potion of diminution, potion of polymorph self
	Memorized spells: color spray, dancing lights, hypnotism, phantasmal force; brain full of small spiders (see new spells), mirror image; suggestion
	Spell book: audible glamor, the Bracteros effect (see new spells), color spray, dancing lights, darkness, hypnotism, light, phantasmal force; blur, brain full of small spiders (see new spells), detect magic, hypnotic pattern, improved phantasmal force, invisibility, mirror image; continual light, dispel illusion, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), paralyzation, suggestion; brain full of large spiders (see new spells)
Adric (17, 9, 17, 10, 15, 8)	C5 (NG)	120'	3	36	Chain mail +1, shield	Mace +1 (4-9)	Brooch of shielding, potion of extra healing
	Spells prayed-for: bless, command, cure light wounds (x2), light; chant, hold person, holy name (see new spells), resist fire, silence 15' radius; cure disease, dispel magic

Statistics: Lost and Found High-Level Characters

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Balthazar the Blue, (10, 18, 11, 16, 16, 14)	MU11 (NG)	120'	1	55	n.a.	Staff of striking (4-9)	Wand of magic missiles (23 charges), scarab of protection, wand of animal control (39 charges), scroll of lightning bolt, bracers of defense (AC 3), wand of fire (21 charges), staff of striking (19 charges)
	Memorized spells: floating disk , magic missile (x2), message; invisibility, knock, Pol's endless sneezes (see new spells), web; fireball , lightning bolt, protection from evil 10' radius, slow; black tentacles, polymorph other , remove curse; cloudkill, teleport, the thane's betrayal (see new spells)
	Spell book: affect normal fires , burning hands, comprehend languages, dancing lights, erase, enlarge, feather fall, floating disk , friends, identify, jump, magic aura, magic missile, mending, message, push, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, spider climb, unseen servant, write; audible glamer, Cleophalus's look-away spell (see new spells), continual light, darkness 15' radius, detect evil, detect invisibility, ESP, forget, invisibility, knock, levitate, locate place (see new spells), magic mouth, mirror image, Pelagion's bridge of sighs (see new spells), Pol's endless sneezes (see new spells), ray of enfeeblement, rope trick, scare, shatter, strength, stinking cloud, web, wizard lock; blink, clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, feign death, fireball , fly garrulous mouth (see new spells), gust of wind, haste, hold person, invisibility, lightning bolt, monster summoning I, protection from evil 10' radius, protection from normal missiles, slow, water breathing; charm monster, enchanted weapon, black tentacles, extension I, fear, fire charm , fire shield , ice storm, magic mirror, massmorph, polymorph other , polymorph self , remove curse, resilient sphere, stonewall, wall of fire, wall of ice, wizard eye; cloudkill, cone of cold, dolor, feeblemind, teleport, the thane's betrayal (see new spells); anti-magic shell, ensnarement, legend lore, part water
Wicktrimmer (11, 15, 9, 17, 15, 11)	T12 (N)	90'	3	61	Leather +2	Short sword +2 (3-8), dagger +2 (3-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)	Necklace of adaptation, pearl necklace of invisibility (15 pearls, see new magic items), djed amulet (see new magic items)
Thief skills: PP 105%, OL 92%, F/RT 85%, MS 104%, HS 87%, HN 45%, CW 84.2%, RL 60%
Aelin Fireheart (16, 13, 14, 18, 14, 11)	R10 (LG)	120'	-1	67	Chain mail +2	Longsword +2 (4-11), longbow +2 with 20 arrows (3-8), 3 arrows of striking (see new magic items)	Scarab of protection, boots of elvenkind
Callista (16, 13, 15, 17, 13, 9)	M9 (LN)	230'	3	32	n.a.	Bo stick +2 (3-8), jo stick +1 (2-7), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4), open hand (2-12)	Mantle of Fenth (37 HP; see new magic items), ring of change self (see new magic items)
Thief-like skills: OL 72%, F/RT 60%, MS 75%, HS 61%, HN 30%, CW 98%
Grimley (17, 14, 13, 14, 17, 17)	P9 (LG)	120'	0	95	Imperial field plate +1 (see Arden Vul items), shield	Long sword +3, frost brand (5-12)	Ring of fire resistance; horn of Valhalla (silver)
Maggie (9, 16, 10, 18, 10, 18)	T9 (CN)	120'	2	41	Leather +2	Long sword +1 (2-9), sling with 20 bullets +1 (3-6)	Wand of magic detection (21 charges), amulet of spell absorption (see new magic items), potion of invisibility, potion of healing
Thief skills: PP 90%, OL 77%, F/RT 65%, MS 80%, HS 71%, HN 30%, CW 98%, RL 45%

Drombaush Slate (14, 11, 18, 12, 16, 6)	C9 (LG)	90'	2	72	Banded mail +1, shield	Hammer +3, dwarven thrower (5-8)	Staff of curing (19 charges), necklace of prayer beads, potion of truthfulness (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed for: bless , cure light wounds (x3), detect magic , light ; augury , chant , find traps , hold person (x2), slow poison ; continual light , cure disease , dispel magic , locate object ; cure serious wounds , neutralize poison ; raise dead
Cleopatra (8, 17, 11, 10, 13, 16)	I9 (CG)	120'	4	28	n.a.	Dagger +2 (3-6)	Bracers of defense (AC 4), wand of shielding (43 charges; see new magic items), staff of illusions (22 charges; see new magic items), potion of deafening light (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: audible glamer , color spray , dancing lights , hypnotism , phantasmal force ; brain full of small spiders (see new spells), improved phantasmal force , mirror image ; Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), suggestion ; brain full of large spiders (see new spells), confusion ; chaos
	Spell book: audible glamer , the Bracteros effect (see new spells), color spray , dancing lights , darkness , Frigg's fraud (see new spells), gaze reflection , hypnotism , light , phantasmal force ; blur , brain full of small spiders (see new spells), deafness , detect magic , hypnotic pattern , improved phantasmal force , invisibility , mirror image , misdirection ; continual light , dispel illusion , fear , Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), paralyzation , spectral force , suggestion , wizard's cache (see new spells); brain full of large spiders (see new spells), confusion , emotion , massmorph , phantasmal killer ; chaos , major creation , maze , shadow door , shadow magic
Adric (17, 9, 17, 10, 15, 8)	C9 (NG)	120'	2	63	Chain mail +2, shield	Mace +3 (6-11)	Brooch of shielding, ankh of healing (see new magic items), potion of the berserk (see new magic items)
	Spells prayed-for: bless , command , cure light wounds (x2), light , sanctuary ; chant , hold person , holy name (see new spells), know alignment , resist fire , silence 15' radius ; cure disease , dispel magic , glyph of warding , remove curse ; cure serious wounds , protection from evil 10' radius ; insect plague

II. MAGIC USERS WITH FLUNKIES

Magic users are attracted to the secrets and lost arcana of Arden Vul like bears to honey. Below may be found six magic users who are traveling the Halls along with their servants, henchmen, and/or flunkies. Two magic users are low-level, two magic users are mid-level, and two magic users are high-level.

D6	Magic User	Level	Alignment	Flunkies
1	Clavinia	MU2	CG	4 men-at-arms
2	Hrodulf Ice-Blood	MU3	CN	1 cleric, 2 fighters, 1 torch-bearer
3	Lissop the Shrog	MU5	LE	1 thief, 3 fighters
4	Gellivan	MU6	CG	1 magic user, 2 fighters, 1 thief
5	Restep the Prestidigitator	MU8	LN	2 fighters, 1 thief
6	Thorda Thief-Eyes	MU10	CE	1 fighter, 4 charmed lizardmen

Statistics: Clavinia and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Clavinia (9, 17, 13, 16, 15, 11)	MU2 (CG)	120'	8	5	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Scroll of shield, scroll of invisibility
	Memorized spells: charm person, sleep
	Spell book: charm person, detect magic, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, sleep
4 men-at-arms	0-level (N)	60'	6	6, 5, 4, 4	Scale mail	Spear (1-6), light crossbow with 20 bolts (1-4)

Statistics: Hrodulf Ice-Blood and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Hrodulf Ice-Blood, male human (Wisikin) magic user (12, 16, 10, 17, 15, 14)	MU3 (CN)	120'	4	11	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 7), scroll of lightning bolt
	Memorized spells: magic missile, shield; web
	Spell book: affect normal fires, burning hands, dancing lights, identify, jump, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb; ESP, fools gold, knock, shatter, web
Ulf, male human (Wisikin) fighter (16, 8, 10, 15, 17, 6)	F1 (LN)	60'	4	12	Scale mail and shield	Battle axe (2-9), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Freyal, female human (Wisikin) fighter (18/63, 8, 11, 16, 15, 9)	F1 (LE)	90'	3	9	Chain mail	Halberd (4-13), 6 javelins (1-6)
Hoskuld Priestsson, male human (Wisikin) cleric of Heimdall (16, 9, 16, 11, 15, 10)	C1 (LN)	60'	5	7	Scale mail and shield	Mace (3-8)
	Spell prayed-for: bless, cure light wounds (x2)
Ralf the slave, torchbearer (non-combatant)	0-level (N)	120'	10	2	n.a.	n.a.

Statistics: Lissop the Shrog and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Lissop the Shrog, male human (Khumus) magic user (8, 17, 11, 18, 13, 15)	MU5 (LE)	120'	4	16	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 6 darts (1-3)	Amulet of natural armor +2 (see new magic items), wand of illusion (53 charges), ankh of protection (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: identify, magic missile, sleep; mirror image, strength; lightning bolt
	Spell book: affect normal fires, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, erase, feather fall, hold portal, identify, light, magic missile, protection from evil, read magic, shield, sleep; continual light, detect evil, ESP, knock, locate place (see new spells), mirror image, rope trick, stinking cloud, strength; clairvoyance, dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt, slow; ice storm

Batengis Horse-Hide, male human (Khumus) thief (14, 14, 9, 17, 11, 10)	T2 (CN)	120'	5	10	Leather	Club (1-6), 6 darts of sleeping (see new magic items)	Potion of invisibility
	Thief skills: PP 40%, OL 39%, F/RT 25%, MS 26%, HS 20%, HN 10%, CW 86%, RL 0%
Arslin, male human (Khumus) fighter (17, 8, 11, 16, 16, 8)	F2 (LE)	90'	3	19	Chain mail	Two-handed sword (2-11), long composite bow (1-6)	Potion of healing
Enegen, female human (Khumus) fighter (17, 10, 14, 9, 17, 14)	F1 (CE)	60'	5	12	Scale mail and shield	Battle axe (2-9), short composite bow with 20 arrows (1-6)
Sube, female human (Khumus) fighter (18/37, 9, 10, 11, 16, 15)	F1 (CE)	60'	5	11	Scale mail and shield	Khopesh (5-11), short composite bow with 20 arrows (1-6)

Statistics: Gellivan and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Gellivan, male elf magic user (10, 17, 15, 17, 9, 10)	MU6 (CG)	120'	1	18	n.a.	Dagger (1-4), 6 darts (1-3)	Bracers of defense (AC 5), ring of protection +1, wand of fire (39 charges), eye of seeing (9 charges; see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: charm person, detect magic, magic missile, shield; levitate, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells); dispel magic, fireball .
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, floating disk, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, read magic, shield, spider climb, unseen servant; continual light, detect invisibility, knock, levitate, locate object, pummeling fists of Arak-Zhorr (see new spells), scare, wizard lock; dispel magic, fireball, gust of wind, slow, suggestion, tiny hut, tongues .
Larrivan, male elf magic user, apprentice of Gellivan (12, 16, 12, 16, 12, 12)	MU2 (LN)	120'	7	7	n.a.	Staff (1-6), 4 throwing daggers (1-4)	Cloak of protection +1
	Memorized spells: charm person, shield
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, magic missile, read magic, shield
Katareen, female half-elf thief (16, 12, 10, 17, 10, 9)	T2 (N)	120'	5	10	Leather	Long sword (2-9), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Potion of deafening light (see new magic items)
	Thief skills: PP 50%, OL 39%, F/RT 25%, MS 26%, HS 25%, HN 10%, CW 86%, RL 0%
Vodi, male human (Thorcin) fighter (18/77, 8, 10, 11, 17, 10)	F2 (LG)	60'	3	22	Splint mail and shield	Military pick (6-11), heavy crossbow with 20 bolts (2-5)	Potion of healing
Provata, female human (Archontean) fighter (17, 10, 15, 10, 16, 8)	F2 (NG)	90'	4	20	Chain mail and shield	Spear (2-7), longbow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing

Statistics: Restep the Prestidigitator and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Restep the Prestidigitator, human (Thorcin) magic user (10, 18, 14, 16, 15, 14)	MU8 (CN)	120'	2	38	n.a.	Staff +1 (2-7), 6 throwing daggers (1-4)	Bracers of defense (AC 4), robe of eyes, wand of illusions (77 charges), wand of magic missiles (33 charges), ring of acid protection (see new magic items)
	Memorized spells: comprehend languages, light, magic missile, shield; continual light, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), web; dispel magic, fireball, protection from evil 10' radius; confusion, polymorph self
	Spell book: affect normal fires, charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, erase, friends, identify, light, magic missile, read magic, shield, shocking grasp, sleep, unseen servant; audible glamer, continual light, detect invisibility, ESP, Frigg's caustic kisses (see new spells), invisibility, knock, levitate, mirror image, rope trick, strength, web, wizard lock; clairaudience, clairvoyance, dispel magic, fireball, hold person, monster summoning I, protection from evil 10' radius, slow, water breathing; confusion, fear, hallucinatory terrain, polymorph self, wall of fire
Brand of Eastholm, male human (Wisikin) fighter (18/22, 9, 11, 15, 16, 10)	F4 (N)	120'	1	38	Banded mail +1 and shield	Long sword +1 (5-12), spear +2 (6-11), 6 javelins (1-6)	Potion of extra healing
Lolly Bright-Eyes, female halfling thief (9, 11, 10, 18, 15, 14)	T5 (CN)	90'	3	29	Leather +1	Short sword (1-6), sling +1 with 20 bullets +1 (4-7)	Potion of invisibility (x2)
	Thief skills: PP 65%, OL 62%, F/RT 50%, MS 60%, HS 56%, HN 25%, CW 75%, RL 20%
Martin the Souse, male human (Archontean) fighter (17, 12, 8, 15, 17, 8)	F3 (CN)	90'	3	33	Chain mail and shield	Spear +1 (3-8), short bow with 20 arrows (1-6)	Potion of healing

Statistics: Thorda Thief-Eyes and Flunkies

Name (Attributes)	Class, Level (AL)	MV	AC	HP	Armor	Weapons (Damage)	Misc. Magic Items
Thorda Thief-Eyes, female human (Wisikin) magic user (11, 18, 12, 16, 15, 15)	MU10 (CE)	120'	3	40	Robe of the archmagi (black)	Staff of striking (4-9)	Rod of turning (33 charges; see new magic items), wand of conjuration (49 charges), scroll of protection from magic, staff of striking (12 charges)
	Memorized spells: charm person, enlarge, magic missile, shield; knock, levitate, mirror image; dispel magic, hold person, lightning bolt; charm monster, fear; cone of cold
	Spell book: charm person, comprehend languages, detect magic, enlarge, friends, hold portal, identify, magic missile, message, protection from evil, push, read magic, shield, sleep, ventriloquism; continual light, knock, levitate, magic mouth, mirror image, rope trick, scare wizard lock; blink, dispel magic, gust of wind, hold person, lightning bolt, phantasmal force, slow; charm monster, fear, fire charm, monster summoning II, polymorph self; cone of cold, hold monster, passwall, wall of stone
Hoskuld, male human (Wisikin) fighter (18/09, 8, 10, 10, 17, 12)	F5 (CE)	120'	3	54	Chain mail +1 and shield	Battle axe +1 (5-12), sling with 20 bullets (2-5)	Potion of extra healing, potion of stone giant strength
Four charmed lizardmen	SZ M; AL N; AC 4; MV 60', 120' swimming; HD 2+1; HP 16, 15, 13, 13; #AT 1 or 3; Dmg 1-6 (club) and 1-6 (javelin), or 1-2/1-2/1-8. Possessions: clubs; javelins; shields.

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES

A

Adamantine, Mard, dwarf thief and prisoner – 7-81
Aditya, true varumani prophet – Level 5 random encounters
Adric, cleric – SL4-40
Aebbe Long-Nose, cleric and merchant – 6-28
Aedelwine the Fair, logothete – AK-15
Aethelflaed Flatnose, Priscian war mage – 9-31
Aethelwig the Golden, magic user – 7-75
Aethgrim Fleet-hand, thief and lutist – 6-8
Agoravere, goblin sub-chief and interrogator – SL4-33
Aitón, Syagria, lich – 9-55
AKL-600, rudishva AI – SL14-13
Akla-Chah – see AKL-600
Alexandros, librarian – 4-54
Alexia Basileon, Lady – AK-2
Alison, magic user – 6-28
Amadec, Priscian war mage – 7-143
Anaximander, mad sage – 3-118
Ancharias, skeleton warrior – SL13-10J
Anders the Snake, thief – AK-5
Androsia, greenhag – 3-204
Anuran, petrified true varumani – 7-86
Apollonius of Archontos, lich – SL13-10J
Apophis, giant lizard – 3-112
Arcane Practitioners' Club – AK-30
Archon's Palace of Arden Vul – AV-29
Arctos, beastman sergeant and ambassador – 7-75
Arena – 6-68
Arena Lord – 6-85
Arethas, Set sergeant – 4-21
Arjun, true varumani apprentice – 7-21
Armory (rudishva) – 5-118
Artax-Ris, giant rudishva skeleton – 3-39
Artiklines, Joskelin, ranger and prisoner – 7-33
Aruna the Gatherer, thief and peddler – 7-76
Asbjorn, thief and merchant – 4-2D
Asdrusil the Swift, Priscian conversus – 9-61
Ashoka, true varumani court sorcerer – 7-22
Asim, marid – SL15-16
Astableon, scribe – AK-29
Astorion, Lyssandra, magic user – AK-30
Astreyiv, kaliyani sorcerer – 6-33

Astrid the Strong, smith – SL10A-19
Atet, cleric and priestess – 8-32
Audun Yellow-Eyes, logothete – AK-13
Aurellus, Georgius, vengeful spirit – SL6-46
Azgallatu, cleric and prisoner – 3-105
Azure Keep – AK-1
Azure Shield, Knights of – AK-1

B

Babildor, niravairi fighter/thief – SL1-11
Baela Ice-Hand, Priscian conversus – 6-49
Balcinger, Teodora, ranger – AK-2
Balthid, varlet – SL10A-18
Barileon, spectre – SL7-9
Basil, fighter and gladiator – 6-71
Basileon, Lady Alexia, aristocrat – AK-2
Bastet, temple of – 8-38 to 8-39
Beacon, bridge – SL14-10 to SL14-14
Beacon, engine room – 7-143
Beacon, medical pod – SL12-4 to SL12-15
Beacon, residential module – 6-113 to 6-124
Beacon, shuttle bay – SL13-37
Beacon, weapons module – 6-27
Bean, Uriel, halfling thief – 6-113
Bedara, true varumani prisoner – 10-8
Bede the Bloody, cleric – 4-2
Begelsson, Lellagalon, elf fighter – SL10A-4
Belisarius the Overseer, fighter and Set leader – 4-47
Bellringer, goblin sub-chief – 3-185
Belst, Udrenna, cleric of Heschius Ban – AK-8
Berenib, cat-form mummy – 8-40
Berenice, Set deacon and prisoner – 7-33
Bergthora, enslaved cleric – 4-13
Bertis, magic user and prisoner – 5-72
Besa, temple of – 8-120
Bestor, messenger and prisoner – 4-180
Beuvon, varlet – 7-76A
Bleth, goblin sub-chief and prisoner – 3-148
Benevolent Brotherhood – AK-5
Berrib, enslaved stone mason – 4-2
Bibi, goblin witch doctor – SL4-12
Bindu, true varumani apprentice – 7-21
Birgir, thief and merchant – 4-2D
Bitaurus, Priscian conversus – 7-44

Bjorn, bear-brother jarl – SL13-10D
Blandveg, magic user – 3-5
Bledwyn, ranger, heiress, slave – 4-7
Bliss Flowers, cave of – 8-67
Blutus, petrified Set acolyte – 4-95
Bobila, fighter and bodyguard – 4-8B
Boniface, varlet – SL10B-2
Bootsy, weretiger – 7-76
Bormol, Kel, magic user – SL3-2
Bothig, lesser varumani – 6-159
Brenna Three-Braids, fighter and vampire – 7-127
Brestillion, Glebeus, aristocrat – 4-7
Breg, lesser varumani – 7-30
Broken Head, Sign of – AV-22
Brood-nests of the Varuda – 5-108, 5-111
Bruno Bent-Nose, fighter and gambler – 6-61
Bsak, lizardman shaman – SL5-30
Bunefer, spectre – 8-122
Burris, fighter and prisoner – 2-29

C

Caertileon, Tappho, thief and prisoner – 10-43
Calculor, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – 4-2, Level 5 random encounters, 6-1, Sub-Level 6 random encounters
Callista, fighter and prisoner – 4-64
Cassie Top-Knot, Priscian conversus – 9-61
Caudatssa the Tongue, heqeti builder – 7-79
Cavern, Great – 3-163, 3-172
Celsus Torquatus, vengeance aspect of Sekhmet – 9-104
Cenwulf the Unseen, Priscian war mage – 9-31
Chairduster, goblin metallurgist – AK-11, AK-28
Chanda, lesser varumani apprentice – 7-21
Charity, varlet – SL10A-22
Chasm, Great – 2-63A, 3-38, 5-34, 6-108, 7-3, 8-2, 9-1
Chaudri the Ecophont, magic user and merchant – 7-76C
Choumnos, Basil, magic user and castellan – SL6-17A
Cheksib, heqeti weaver – 10-13
Christopher, Gaius, Knight of the Azure Shield and emissary – 7-75

Cinna Minux, fighter and vampire – 7-122
 Citadel of the Sun-Scarred Knights – SL10A-14
 Claudine of Narsileon, Set deacon and merchant – SL4-40F
 Clearchus, fighter and prisoner – 7-81
 Cleo, assassin and bodyguard – 4-8C
 Clug, lesser varumani – 3-162
 Coelrith the Mixer, magic user and merchant – 7-76G
 Cold Jordan – see Rivulus, Jordan
 Corbel, ‘child’ automaton of Kerbog Khan – 4-176
 Corner, the, bar – 6-64
 Cornelius, Lucius, the scriptor, tomb of – 6-135
 Cos, lesser varumani – 7-38
 Court of the Goblin King – SL4-23
 Court of the Troll Thegn – 7-75
 Craastonistorex, green dragon – AV-40
 Creation, Fire-Pits of – 5-89
 Crellik-Var – see Lord of the Arena
 Creon the Unctuous, shopkeeper – AK-25
 Crinux the Wrinkled, Priscian war mage – 9-31
 Crisarius Three-Legs, statue broker – AV-22
 Crosbenim, goblin prisoner – SL5-34
 Crotus, Scarred, Priscian war mage – 7-39
 Cyra Red-Eyes, magic user and prisoner – SL9-55
 Cyricus, fighter – 6-129

D

Darko, fighter and guard commander – 6-80
 Deino, witch – 3-158
 Demetrios Sinister, Priscian war mage – 9-31
 Demma, temple of – AK-9
 Diomedes, cleric – 6-129
 Discord, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – 8-116
 Dolofina Yellow-Eyes, Priscian war mage – 9-61
 Donjon (citadel) of Arden Vul – AV-27
 Drood, beastman witch doctor – 3-144
 Druva the Thegn, enhanced skeletal wight – 5-137
 Dworm, fighter and bodyguard – 4-2D

E

Eadgithu, ranger and prisoner – 3-104

Ebba of Pristen, Priscian war mage – 9-62
 Ecath, true varumani overseer of the Troll Lifts – 8-1
 Edric ‘who drinks water’, cleric – Level 8 random encounters
 Edwin the Wrinkled, fighter and spy – 6-8
 Egill Flat-nose, bartender – AK-4
 Egrk, caveman and prisoner – 2-65
 Eigon the Bald, Priscian conversus – 9-61
 Elena, paladin and prisoner – SL4-33
 Ellagelsson, Erist, petrified elf magic user – SL6-5
 Ellagelsson, Hallar, half-elf fighter-magic user and merchant – 7-76F
 Ellergast Half-Elven, Priscian war mage – 9-62
 Elliana, charmed fighter – 7-124
 Ellisif, translator – AK-20
 Elsevian, elf magic user and prisoner – 5-72
 Ennius, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10A-21
 Eracleis, fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Erdell, Dalton, fighter - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Erenbald, ranger and prisoner – 10-11
 Eroica, Priscian conversus – 7-143
 Estelle, cleric of Tychias – AV-22

F

Facetcutter, goblin shopkeeper – AK-11, AK-28
 Factors – AK-17, AK-20, AK-24
 Faidelsson, Revet, half-elf assassin – AK-21
 Faradie, fighter – 6-28
 Feasting Hall – 8-75
 Fedolcin, half-elf druid – SL4-41
 Felstapper, Gest, derro trader – SL9-76
 Fenitor Stone-Hands, statue broker – AV-22
 Feqarrip, heqeti weaver – 10-11
 Ferx, true varumani – SL5-38
 Fire Pits of Creation (rudishva) – 5-89
 Flaxseed, Kerrie, halfling thief and prisoner – 6-104
 Fleetfingers, Carloman, halfling fighter and prisoner – SL4-33
 Flisserak, amnesiac heqeti builder – SL5-7
 Floating Garden (rudishva) – 6-4, 7-4
 Fogduster, goblin cook – SL10B-5
 Foglifter the Seer, goblin peddler – 7-76
 Forge of Zhorak – 8-100
 Forty Pillars, Hall of – 5-6
 Forum of Set – 4-2
 Freyasson, Drusus, cleric – 6-8
 Freydis the Stern – AK-2

Furicus, Gnaicus, fighter and golden statue – 5-95

G

Gadril, Mekos, vengeful spirit – AV-27/SL15-4
 Gaius Christopher, Knight of the Azure Shield and emissary – 7-75
 Galadnor Half-Elven, magic user and merchant – 4-2D
 Galesdottir, Noredde, elf, Priscian and prisoner – 7-24
 Galeth, enhanced wight – AV-43
 Garden, Floating (rudishva) – 6-4, 7-4
 Gastevean, Neolynda, guard captain – AK-32
 Gavra the Easy-Going, true varumani clan chief – 7-25
 Geldaka, lesser varumani smelter – 9-26
 Geleg, magic user and prisoner – 3-105
 Gellisson, Elanchian, Priscian war mage – SL4-44
 Gemma of Arcturos, petrified magic user – SL6-5
 Gennadius, ghost – 8-41
 Georgik, beastman count – 3-149
 Georgios, smith – SL10A-19
 Gerg, bestial varumani – 5-55
 Gert, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-72
 Geroius, cleric and prisoner – SL5-6
 Gerrilad the Grey, half-elf druid – 2-69
 Gesellion, Horatius, Sept Commander of the Knights of the Azure Shield – AK-1
 Gesellon, petrified Sortian magic user – 7-88
 Gethe, rudishva security construct – 6-16
 Gevorda, true varumani prisoner – SL12-11
 Gib, Arena wrangler and prisoner – 6-20
 Gibreon, Priscian war mage – 9-62
 Gillen, magic user and bandit leader – 4-180
 Gimon, bat-human – 6-167
 Gisli, fighter – 6-8
 Gislu, goblin mystic – 4-2
 Glesteon, Theron, logothete – AK-19
 Glif, lesser varumani first adept – 7-24
 Glory of Thoth (statue) – 3-2
 Gneiss, Beryl, dwarf fighter and merchant – AK-24
 Godric the Wise, statue broker – AV-22
 Gog, exiled lesser varumani – 5-2
 Gol, Ukamah, illusionist and chief torturer of Set – 4-14
 Gordy, fighter – 4-180

Gorlen, true varumani overseer of the Troll Lifts – 6-5
 Grachan of Newmarket, fighter and prisoner – SL5-34
 Grain Hall – AK-18
 Grakpe, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-71
 Granite, Sable, dwarf (doppelganger) – 7-75
 Great Cavern – 3-163, 3-172
 Great Chasm – 2-63A, 3-38, 5-34, 6-108, 7-3, 8-2, 9-1
 Great Hall (of Thoth) – 3-123
 Great Pillar (rudishva) – 5-138, 6-103, 7-37, 9-30
 Great Pukel – 9-40
 Greenliver, Bartimaeus, halfling fighter and prisoner – SL7-22
 Gren, beastman sergeant and gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Grequillap the Undying, servitor of Mzingaloq – SL9-24
 Gresta, cook – 4-41
 Greta One-Eye, fighter and prisoner – 10-43
 Grev-Kilj, giant rudishva skeleton – 3-52
 Grevilar, Ida, thief and gambler – 6-61
 Grevilar, Odile, cleric and gambler – 6-61
 Grex, Julian, enhanced spectre – 5-85
 Greywand, Pelton, magic user – AK-30
 Gribble, goblin captain and prisoner – 3-105
 Griga, true varumani card-shark – 6-8
 Grim, insane Set acolyte and prisoner – 5-72
 Grim, fighter – 6-8
 Grist, dwarf fighter and prisoner – 3-105
 Guillemin, varlet – SL10A-18
 Gunnar, guildmaster of Set – 4-10, 4-64
 Gunnbjorn, cleric – 7-75
 Gwelf, dwarf thief and prisoner – 2-36D
 Gyrd, magic user – 6-129

H

Hadellor, Martin, Knight of the Azure Shield – AK-1
 Haine, rudishva security construct – 6-84
 Hak, lesser varumani brewer – 7-94
 Hakreon the Apothecary, cleric and peddler – 7-76
 Hakrim the Hairy, true varumani overseer of the Troll Lifts – 6-3
 Hal, lesser varumani barman – 6-64
 Halbestdottir, Pelissa, elf fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Haldor, fighter – 6-113
 Halidor the Observant, cleric of Lucreon – AK-10

Hall, fighter and prisoner – SL7-22
 Hall, Grain – AK-18
 Hall, Great (of Thoth) – 3-123
 Hall of Forty Pillars – 5-6
 Hall of Judgment (of Thoth) – 2-35
 Hall of the Labors (of Arden) – SL13-10
 Hallam, fighter – 6-8
 Halti the hunter, true varumani hunter – 7-14
 Haltor, Priscian conversus – 7-39
 Hamfast, halfling fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Hamil, advanced Set acolyte – 3-125
 Harab, goblin sub-chief – 3-130
 Harold, man-at-arms – 6-8
 Harold, merchant – 7-76I
 Harold the Wary, fighter – 4-143
 Harold, Handsome, Priscian conversus – 9-62
 Harold Good-Ears, fighter – 7-75
 Haskell, goblin witch doctor – SL4-12
 Hazel, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10A-18
 Hazlitt One-Eye, fighter and merchant – 4-2D
 Hector, fighter and gladiator – 6-71, 6-78
 Hedin, frost giant emissary – 4-102
 Hegemon, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10A-21
 Helena of Archontos, money-lender – 4-2G
 Heliabolus, spectre – 7-56
 Heliagabulus, magic user - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Helga, thief - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Helgi, fighter – 6-8
 Helgi of Westholm, cleric and prisoner – 6-104
 Helios, beastman sergeant – 4-2
 Hella, true varumani outlaw – 6-8
 Helle, bartender – AK-21
 Heltor, ranger – 4-7
 Hemptwister, goblin cook – SL10B-5
 Hendrav, true varumani – 7-38
 Hengist, fighter – 6-28
 Hent, cleric and priestess – 8-32
 Heraclion, Set sergeant – 4-46
 Herman, Set acolyte and gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Heschiu Ban, temple of - AK-8
 Heska, true varumani – 7-30
 Hestia of Arcturos, cleric – 7-75
 Hestril, kaliyani sorcerer – 5-125
 Hexameros, fighter and escaped slave – 4-100
 Hidlat, magic user and Set torturer – 3-99
 Hilduin Two-Teeth, thief and emissary – 7-75
 Hinna, lesser varumani smith – 7-69
 Histar, enslaved beastman sergeant – 3-221
 Hithra Paleologos, tomb of – 3-36

Hjall, frost giant emissary – 4-102
 Hjalti, fighter and prisoner – 4-149
 Hobim, goblin witch-doctor – SL4-12
 Hod, fighter – 6-8
 Hod, halfling merchant – 7-76B
 Hogier, varlet – SL10B-2
 Horatio, petrified Set guardsman – 4-95
 Horsa, fighter – 6-28
 House of Coins – AK-19
 House of Isocorax – see Inn of the Lost
 House of Sight – AK-13
 Howling Caves – 2-56
 Hraskaya, true varumani clan chief – 7-17
 Hugo Berrydraw, undead spirit – 5-9
 Huguccio, magic user and merchant – AK-24
 Huguette, varlet – SL4-19
 Hurub, Set deacon – 3-89

I

Icheltor, cleric – 4-180
 Ichthelon, mummy – 4-146
 Ichthelon, paladin and prisoner – 5-72
 Idris, fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Idris One-Eye, magic user – 6-113
 Igrippa the Unruly, true varumani clan chief – 7-26
 Iklor, petrified true varumani – 5-53
 Ilvala, rakshasa – 8-124
 Imperial Span – 5-35
 Inkor, giant intelligent baboon – SL3-25
 Inlevris Half-Elven, Priscian conversus – 9-63A
 Inn of the Lost, 6-7 to 6-20, 6-28
 Inns – AK-12, AK-21, AV-22, 6-7 to 6-20
 Intef, Set deacon and emissary – 7-75
 Ipwet, cleric and priestess – 4-2, 8-32
 Iredell, Tresti, magic user and prisoner – 2-36C
 Iris, thief – 3-214
 Isadora, deceased gold dragon – SL11-19A
 Isidor Half-Hand, thief - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Isidor Quick-Tongue, auctioneer – AK-18
 Isocorax, rudishva survivor, vampire, and prisoner – 6-20
 Isok-Crix – see Isocorax
 Isocritis Half-Hand, magic user – 2-70

J

Jacinth, varlet – SL10B-27
 Jacoby, Big, halfling merchant – 7-76B

Jade, Malachi, dwarf fighter – 7-75
 Jador the Just, cleric of Mitra – AK-7
 Jagat, lesser varumani apprentice – 7-21
 Jalalbak, niravairi magic-user – SL1-11
 Janaka, kaliyani sorcerer and prisoner – SL2-2
 Janara, true varumani courtier – 7-75
 Jaracondus the Sprightly, Priscian war mage – 9-63
 Jason, fighter - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Jellicos, Priscian war mage – 7-44
 Jennistacoril, silver dragon – 7-76
 Jerronsson, Nisdis, elf fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Jevvil, kaliyani scout – SL9-72
 Jhentris, powerful ghoul – 2-22
 Jicks, cleric and prisoner – 5-72
 Jiks, lesser varumani gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Jillia, Priscian war-mage – 6-49
 Jisko Grey-Eyes, guildmaster of Set – 4-8C
 Jisstriv, kaliyani sorcerer – 5-125
 Jixon, beastman witch doctor – 3-144
 Jobim, goblin brewer – SL4-40F
 Jocko, bartender – AK-26
 Jolene, apprentice magic user – SL10B-26
 Jonas, magic user and gladiator – 6-71
 Joshuel the Binder, magic user and vampire – 7-127
 Jost of Newmarket, fighter and prisoner – 2-36E
 Jostri the Skald, thief and escaped slave – 4-100
 Judgment, Hall of (of Thoth) – 2-35
 Julia, halfling fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Juliana, magic user – 8-37
 Julianus the Red, petrified Sortian magic user – SL4-40D
 Junienos, Marius, second priest of Set – 4-56
 Juno, fighter – 5-128
 Justin the Nose, magic user and sacristan – 6-7
 Justine Two-Hands, fighter – 9-130
 Justinian, Priscian war-mage – 6-48 and elsewhere
 Justinus, Set sergeant – 4-44
 Justus, vengeful spirit – SL13-14

K

Kaastir, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-77
 Kaelo, bathhouse owner – AK-3
 Kaitor, vengeful spirit – 5-11
 Kaledon, Set deacon and prisoner – 4-64
 Kaledor, Priasson, merchant and spy – AK-12

Kalifer, skeleton knight – 3-36C
 Kaligo, true varumani – Level 3 random encounters
 Kallion the White, dead adventurer – 8-15
 Kalyan, true varumani apprentice – 7-21
 Karol, beastman deserter – 8-1
 Kathroc, fighter and Set torturer – 3-99
 Kauket, demon prince – 10-35
 Kauket, temple of – 7-78
 Kekulessa, heqeti old one – 7-139
 Kel Bormol, magic user – SL3-2
 Kellan, Set sergeant – SL5-38
 Keller, aka Killer Keller, fighter – 8-112
 Kelo-Rep, rudishva thief and prisoner – SL2-2
 Kelt, magic user and gladiator – 6-71
 Kentillian the Undying, lich – SL5-13A
 Kerbog Khan, techno-sorcerer – SL12-25
 Kerbog Khan, workshops of - SL12-28
 Kerrakistorac, red dragon – SL13-10K
 Keth the Friendly, lesser varumani gambler – 6-61
 Ketil, ranger and prisoner – 2-65
 Ketil the Caterpillar, fighter and bandit – 8-5
 Khan, Kerbog, techno-sorcerer – SL12-25
 Kiglon, dying ranger – 4-149
 Killik, goblin chief – 5-46
 Kist, true varumani card-shark – 6-8
 Kit, lesser varumani – 7-38
 Kiwu, strong debased monk – 5-80
 Kiya, cleric and priestess – 8-32
 Klibo, cleric – 6-113
 Klimopercet, blood-seeking demon – 4-14A
 Knut the Lucky, fighter – Level 8 random encounters
 Knut Half-troll, Priscian war mage – 9-61
 Kolgrima, magic user – 6-8
 Kop, Baltaj, niravairi fighter and prisoner – SL2-2
 Korakios, Set deacon – SL8-7
 Kormak the Snake, fighter – 8-132
 Krakteros, Lady Aelia, aristocrat and emissary – 7-75
 Krakteros, Justina, Priscian war mage – 9-62
 Krator the Wit, Priscian conversus – 6-39
 Kreel, fishman shaman – SL6-15
 Krest, lizardman shaman – SL9-26
 Krexit, goblin sub-chief – 5-49
 Kronos Kettle-Belly, innkeeper – AV-22
 Kunda the Outlander, cleric – 5-121
 Kup, lesser varumani wrestler – 7-103
 Kurab, Set deacon and prisoner – SL4-32
 Kusok One-Eye, lizarman shaman – SL5-31
 Kvillor, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-72
 Kyros, fighter – 5-128
 Kzaal, lizardman prophet – 4-2

L

Labors, Hall of the (of Arden) – SL13-10
 Lacedaion, third priest of Set – 4-57
 Laegel the Forsworn, Priscian war mage – 7-143
 Laertes the Lithe, magic user – 8-112
 Lake, merchant and prisoner – SL4-34
 Lankios the hermit – 1-6
 Lanlius, Publius, oathbound knight – 6-148
 Laocoon, shadow lord – 8-15
 Lara, fighter and gladiator – 6-71, 6-76
 Lara One-Ear, fighter and bandit – 8-5
 Larakim, goblin witch doctor – 3-130, SL4-12
 Larel, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10A-22
 Larel One-Eye, spirit of – 3-46
 Layela Three-Tufts, true varumani market warden – 7-76
 Leddy the Worm, goblin gambler – 6-61
 Ledyard of Arcturos, thief and gambler – 6-61
 Leifcrim, Master, halfling thief and merchant – SL4-40F
 Leila, fighter – 4-2
 Leila, goblin servant – 6-84
 Lella the Ripper, fighter – 4-2
 Lenuel the jailer, fighter – 3-104
 Leofwin Rufus, cleric – SL5-45
 Lepp, thief – 6-158
 Leutherius, Set guardsman and prisoner – SL9-17
 Library of Set – 4-55
 Library of Thoth – 2-70, 2-72
 Licata, spectre – SL6-79
 Liesbet the Reptile, Priscian conversus – 9-64A
 Ligareon, Anna, guildmaster of Set – 4-8B
 Ligareon, Maurikios – see Thegan White-Mane
 Ligareon, Ysabel, cleric and prisoner – 3-148
 Lightfingers, Klisko, illusionist – 3-191
 Lillecin, half-elf druid – SL4-41
 Lillian, canon of Mitra and prisoner – 3-105
 Liriaco, fighter – 5-128
 Lishna, true varumani courtier – 7-75
 Lisut, Priscian war mage – 7-44
 Lithiric the Talker, magic user – 9-22
 Livod the Hunter, true varumani – 7-14
 Ljots, powerful doppelganger – 8-100
 Loff, lesser varumani smith – 7-69
 Lommt, lesser varumani prisoner – 10-43
 Lord of the Arena, rudishva survivor – 6-85

Lorg, lizardman shaman – SL5-30
Lucinda, petrified Set guardsman – 4-95
Lucitan, Gneiss, duergar fighter and prisoner – 10-43
Lucreon, temple of – AK-10
Ludrig, petrified true varumani – 4-95
Lugo, renegade lesser varumani – 8-136
Lukas, beastman deserter – 6-1
Lukor, Priscian war mage – SL4-44
Lump, varlet – SL10B-6
Lyssandra of Newmarket, fighter and merchant – 7-76I
Lytta, insane woman – SL13-6
Lyxander, fighter and prisoner – 7-79

M

Maab, Moder, svirfneblin fighter and prisoner – 10-43
Malachi, Priscian war mage – 7-143
Malachite, Master of the Sun-Scarred Knights – SL10A-33
Malachite, Kador, dwarf fighter and prisoner – 7-33
Malachite, Kegil, dwarf cleric and prisoner – 7-33
Malachite, Utor, dwarf fighter and peddler – 7-76
Malliastorin, red dragon – SL13-10K
Mananik, niravairi magic user/thief – SL1-11
Marco, beastman and prisoner – 2-65
Margarita Blood-Eyes, thief and trader – 10-54
Margot the Red, innkeeper – AK-21
Maris, succubus – 4-58
Marius Tricotor, shrine to – 6-145
Marius Tricotor, tomb of – 6-154
Maude, merchant – 7-76I
Melok-Ri – see Malachite, Master
Mendacity, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight and prisoner – 7-81
Meral the Key-Monger, ranger – 4-2
Meskenit, greater mummy – 4-139C
Mestropo, fighter – 5-128
Metion, spectre – 5-17
Metit, passive revenant – 5-80
Midnight Road – 5-91
Minux, Cinna, fighter and vampire – 7-122
Migi, true varumani smith – 7-69
Mirko, magic user – 5-128
Mitra, temple of – AK-7
Mittoril the Ugly, magic user and gladiator – Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
Mogret of Narsileon, merchant and prisoner – 4-180
Mollop, varlet – SL10B-28

Moneychanger – AK-27, 4-2G
Mord, magic user and gladiator – 6-71
Mox, lesser varumani prisoner – 10-11
Muddy Puddle, tavern – AK-26
Muirasso, wight – 5-38
Mulch of Skallasholm, thief – 7-75
Muq, exiled lesser varumani – 8-151

N

Naik-Lir, giant rudishva skeleton – SL7-13
Narbo, elf magic user and prisoner – SL4-34
Narbonnim, goblin emissary – SL5-38
Nassiv, kaliyani sorcerer – 4-51A
Nasteon of Upford, charmed thief – 7-124
Necropolis of Set, 4-136 to 4-146
Neepariq, heqeti weaver – 10-40
Neferet, greater mummy – 3-127A
Neftali, magic user and merchant – AK-20
Nemead, Lucia, Knight of the Azure Shield – AK-1
Nerub Null, Priscian war mage – 9-64
Nictas the Aesthete, magic user and bandit – 8-5
Nictas the bailiff, fighter and emissary – SL4-40
Nikeos, beastman count – 3-152
Niskim, goblin sub-chief – 8-114
Nisslok, lizard king and chieftain – SL9-27
Nixon the Bold, fighter and prisoner – SL9-55
Nizamudden, efreeti lord – 4-7, 7-75
Njall, fighter and bodyguard – 4-8A
No-Thumbs, bartender – 4-20
Nolgi the Hunter, true varumani – 7-14

O

Oakheart, Njal, charmed fighter – 2-36
Obsidian Gates – 5-6D
Octavus, Pretius, Priscian war mage – 9-31
Odd of Freyr's Landing, ranger and prisoner – 6-104
Olaf the Bee-Whisperer, magic user – 8-73
Old Well Tavern – AK-16
Oracle of Thoth – 3-118
Oresniffer, goblin slave – 4-2
Oskarina, Priscian war-mage – 6-39
Oswyn, fighter – 4-7
Oubaste, cleric and high priestess – 8-37
Oziman, 'avatar of Thoth' and demon – 5-83

P

Paganus, Priscian conversus – 7-44
Palestrim, goblin major domo – SL4-23
Palestrina the Enchantress, magic user and smith – 9-60
Pamiu the Chanter, benign ghost – 5-86
Pannius the Discordant, greater mummy – SL15-13
Paolindar the Caterpillar, guard captain – AK-32
Paula Sunburst, thief and merchant – 6-8
Paullor, Priscian conversus – SL4-44
Pavallo, beastman sergeant and prisoner – 10-43
Peabo, lesser varumani exile – 8-55
Peace Door – 6-7A
Peelstiv, kaliyani soldier and trader – 10-54
Pelagion the Grey, magic user – 4-62
Pelagor, Priscian war mage – 7-143
Pelipev, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-65
Pella the Souse, thief – 7-75
Peller, fighter and bodyguard – 7-76
Perrilk, lizardman prisoner – SL4-34
Petronia, thief and prisoner – SL7-22
Pharastina, petrified thief – 4-95
Philautia, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10B-2
Philippous of Newmarket, thief and merchant – 6-28
Phocas, chamberlain to Lord Burdock – 4-2, 7-75
Phocion the Builder, tomb of – 8-143
Phokas, Eusebia, thesmothete – AK-23
Phryne, nymph – SL15-16
Pikaressa, heqeti builder and Second Tongue – 10-49
Pillar, Great (rudishva) – 5-138, 6-103, 7-37, 9-30
Pillik, goblin sub-chief and ambassador – 7-75
Pippin of Magger, magic user and prisoner – 10-43
Pivvri, kaliyani sorcerer – 6-33
Plec-Gris, rudishva prisoner – SL2-2
Plesstra, kaliyani sorcerer – 4-51A
Plod, goblin servant – 7-76G
Plotina, mummy – SL6-96
Plumthorn, Phlebotomas, halfling thief – 3-5
Pol, the grinning mage, sentient stone head – SL6-8
Pol, tower of – SL6-17A
Posson, goblin and prisoner – 6-20
Prayaska, true varumani – 9-22
Preskell, goblin witch doctor – SL4-12
Priddy of Archontos, magic user – 5-128
Prika, true varumani prisoner – 10-43
Prisp, lizardman shaman – SL9-26

Private House – AK-15
 Probus, Gesteon, cleric of Mitra – AK-7
 Proethus of Epirenus, magic user and prisoner – 7-81
 Prosper the Doughty, paladin – 6-8
 Prosperity Factor – AK-24
 Prudence, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – 7-76A
 Psalor-Ki, rudishva survivor and vivisectionist – 5-74
 Psillav, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-71
 Ptarmis, fungal mummy – 3-174
 Pugh, lesser varumani – 6-1
 Pukel, Great – 9-40
 Pulcher, Priscus, remains of – SL11-24
 Purbrin, goblin prisoner – SL4-34
 Pyramid of Thoth – AV-15

Q

Qassapik, heqeti weaver – 10-48
 Qebbil, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-72
 Quade, fighter – 4-180
 Quarm, goblin slave – 4-101
 Qid of Qon, magic user – 6-113

R

RAJ-750, insane rudishva AI – 6-27
 Rango, giant intelligent baboon – AV-9
 Ranke, rudishva security construct – SL10A-16
 Ranko, giant intelligent baboon – SL3-16
 Rarities Factor – AK-17
 Raste, incognito Fey lord of Asters – 6-1
 Ravi, petrified true varumani – 7-90
 Razor Face, human gambler – 6-61
 Red Bridge (of Set) – 4-120A
 Reeflik, goblin advisor – SL4-23
 Reepsiq, heqeti weaver and Great Tongue – 10-47
 Reestiq, heqeti old one – SL9-30
 Reesa the Hammer, thief – AK-26
 Reith, lesser varumani overseer of the Troll Lifts – 6-1
 Reiv-Tor, insane rudishva – SL7-23
 Reja, lesser varumani courtier – 7-75
 Relke, rudishva security construct – 6-30
 Reskim the bailiff, goblin sub-chief – SL4-4
 Relleion, Gaius Christopher, Knight of the Azure Shield – AK-1
 Resedior, Yon, guildmaster of Set – 4-8A
 Ressie, fighter – 6-28
 Rí Mear, quickling lord – 9-14
 Ricchar Wither-Hand, magic user – SL10B-26

Riglon, true varumani overseer of Troll Lifts – 5-54
 Rissalviq, heqeti weaver – 7-79
 Rivulus, Jordan, thief and merchant – 7-76D
 Rivvep, kaliyani sorcerer – 9-118
 Rizzit, lucern demon – SL4-15
 Robben the Fat, merchant – 4-2D
 Rocko, goblin sous-chef – 4-42
 Rolf, ranger and prisoner – 3-148
 Rorgo, varlet – 8-116
 Roscoe, fighter – 3-214
 Rushing River – 4-67
 Rusticus, Priscian conversus – SL4-44

S

Sakeon the Horse-Whisperer, stabler – AK-31
 Samantha the Red, fighter and prisoner – 2-36B
 Sammy, Big, goblin sub-chief and gladiator – Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Sanctum (of Thoth) – 5-83
 Sarabel Jewel-Eye, Priscian conversus – 9-31
 Saucy, goblin chef – 6-14
 Schisthelm, Silica, dwarf fighter – 4-2
 Scoria, Arkose, 'dwarf' – see Ljots
 Seamfinder, Klip, derro trader – SL9-76
 Seldorsson, Seldorin, elf thief – SL4-41
 Seamly Run, underground river – 3-217, 3-230
 Semillimes, entrapment devil – 2-31
 Serriv, kaliyani soldier – SL9-72
 Set, Forum of – 4-2
 Set, library – 4-55
 Set, necropolis of, 4-136 to 4-146
 Set, Red Bridge of – 4-120A
 Set, temple of – 3-90
 Sgraal, lizard king and chieftain – SL5-36
 Shirley, receptionist – AK-5
 Shilva, true varumani smith – 7-69
 Sign of the Broken Head – AV-22
 Silent Tempest, thief – 5-121
 Simonet, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – 3-131
 Silent Factor – AK-20
 Sirsk of Archontos, bard – 4-2
 Sisko, giant intelligent baboon – 2-29
 Sixth, Sir, insane Sun-Scarred Knight – 6-39
 Skalla of Wesholm, animated skeleton – 2-27
 Skalla Ironmonger, fighter and merchant – 7-76E
 Skimmel, goblin advisor – SL4-23
 Skindros, Skellan, merchant – 4-2D

Skleros, beastman count – 3-151
 Smallleaf, Jeremias, halfling moneylender – AK-27
 Smithy – AK-14, 3-153, 4-2E, 7-68, 8-100, 9-60, SL10A-19
 Sorrow, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL4-19
 Spes, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10A-24
 Spriviv, kaliyani scout – SL9-20
 Stephania, high priestess of Set – 4-51
 Stemwinder, Rikso – imperial goblin – 4-7
 Stiller, damaged rudishva security construct – 6-36
 Stunned Acolyte Inn – AK-12
 Stylesia, fighter and prisoner – 4-180
 Sulla the Myrmex – SL6-22
 Sulla Bellator, tomb of – 8-107
 Sun-Scarred Knights, Citadel of – SL10A-14
 Sundered Span – 5-35
 Susarra, fighter – 3-83
 Sveestik, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-77
 Sweetmeat, goblin chef – 6-14
 Swiddy the Baker, ranger and baker – 6-28
 Swithun of Upford, paladin – 7-75
 Sycadora, varlet – SL10B-29

T

Tador, chef – AK-12
 Talg-Roe, rudishva prisoner – SL2-2
 Tataka, rakshasa – 8-125
 Taverns – AK-16, AK-26, 4-2, 4-20, 6-64, 7-94, SL4-40F
 Telator, Vafer, mummy – SL6-69
 Temples – AK-7, AK-8, AK-9, AK-10, 3-71, 3-90, 7-76, 8-38 to 8-39, 8-120
 Temrin, goblin artist – SL4-40F
 Tergon the Rutter, Priscian conversus – 6-49
 Testareon, magic user and prisoner – SL9-55
 Thalia, ranger and prisoner – 2-60
 Thane, Tikun, magic user – SL3-2
 Thegan White-Mane, fighter, thief, and innkeeper – 6-19
 Theo, assassin and bodyguard – 4-8C
 Theo, Big, fighter and smith – 9-60
 Theodora, Set sergeant – 4-40
 Thirk, beastman witch doctor – 3-144
 Theophrastus, escaped slave – 4-100
 Thomas, fighter and gladiator – 6-71
 Thomas, Set acolyte and prisoner – 3-148
 Thorgrim the Easy, fighter and merchant – SL4-40F
 Thorgrim the Stout, Priscian war mage – 9-31
 Thorir, cleric and bandit – 8-5

Thoth, Glory of (statue) – 3-2
 Thoth, library of – 2-70, 2-72
 Thoth, oracle of – 3-118
 Thoth, pyramid of – AV-15
 Thoth, Sanctum of – 5-83
 Thoth, temple of – 3-71
 Threadneedle, Roddy, thief and prisoner – 5-72
 Tikun Thane, magic user – SL3-2
 Tillis, Chert, duergar cleric/assassin and trader – 10-54
 Tissel, Poulos, vengeful spirit – AV-27/SL15-4
 Torunn, smith – AK-14
 Tornikion, Loukios, master wraith- TS-16
 Torquatus, Celsus, vengeance aspect of Sekhmet – 9-104
 Tower of Pol – SL6-17A
 Transit Shaft (rudishva) – 5-84, 6-164, 7-146, 9-91
 Treb, lesser varumani jailer – 7-33
 Trebizet, spectre – SL4-48
 Tredgeris the Dapifer, fighter and overseer of gladiators – 6-75
 Trefill, Theodor, auctioneer of Set – 4-3
 Trefko, giant intelligent baboon – 2-32
 Tressa, thief – 4-180
 Trevel, man-at-arms – 6-8
 Tricotot, Marius, shrine to – 6-145
 Tricotot, Marius, tomb of – 6-154
 Triforius, Set sergeant – 4-60
 Trijax, true varumani overseer of the Troll Lifts – 7-1
 Trillip, magic user – 3-214
 Trillissason, Jiltorin, elf thief – 4-2, SL4-40
 Trilti, bestial varumani – 5-55
 Trisko the Natty, beastman count – 3-154
 Triss, thief and prisoner – 5-55
 Triv-Lok, rudishva fighter and prisoner – SL2-2
 Trocadero of Newmarket, insane magic user – 3-176
 Troll Lifts – 5-55, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3, 6-5, 7-1, 8-1
 Troll Market – 7-76
 Troll Pits – 5-131
 Troll Thegn – see Varboka
 Troll Thegn, court of – 7-75
 Trood, lesser varumani – Level 3 random encounters
 Trucleon, wrangler – AK-31
 Trych, Horace, thief and merchant – 4-2D
 Tsilliv, kaliyani sorcerer and magistra – SL9-77
 Tuftwillig, sentient tree – AV-7
 Tuolicha, mummy – 3-116
 Turissa, Silken, magic user – 7-75

U

Ujax, beastman witch doctor – 3-144
 Ulana of Newmarket, merchant – 4-2
 Ulf the Dim, fighter and prisoner – 4-180
 Ulf No-brows, Priscian war mage – 9-61
 Umsko, giant intelligent baboon – 2-60
 Uthgrim, magic user – SL5-38

V

Valdorsdot, Fael, half-elf druid – AK-18
 Vambrace, Sir, Sun-Scarred Knight – SL10B-2
 Vanara the First Thegn, giant varumani skeleton – 5-139
 Varboka, true varumani and thegn – 7-30
 Vareon, Ulf, innkeeper – AK-12
 Varly, lesser varumani gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Varuda, brood-nests of the – 5-108, 5-111
 Varumani, court of the – 7-75
 Vatapi, rakshasa – 8-120
 Vedreya One-Eye, true varumani clan chief – 7-18
 Veeblik, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-78
 Velerim, kaliyani sorcerer – 9-118
 Veracity, varlet – SL10B-28
 Verr, Laedion, bartender – AK-16
 Verv, lesser varumani – 3-162
 Veshlok, niravairi fighter – SL1-11
 Vig, lesser varumani prisoner – SL9-55
 Vimela, true varumani record keeper – 7-66
 Vingelok, niravairi fighter – 9-48
 Vingrim the Surly, goblin guard commander – SL4-24
 Virgoolian, goblin chemist – 6-28
 Visby, magic user and prisoner – SL5-34
 Vislok, Durdeon, fighter/thief and entrepreneur – AV-12
 Vivian, cleric of Demma – AK-9
 Vor, lesser varumani – 7-38

W

Walid, ogre mage chieftain – 9-70
 Warin the Tall, thief and merchant – AK-20
 Well of Light - AV-14, 2-1
 Wellor, Priscian conversus – SL4-44
 Weskenim, goblin king – SL4-22
 Whispering Hall – 2-63

Wicktrimmer, goblin merchant and thief – AK-17
 Wiggy, goblin servant – 7-76G
 Wigmund, fighter and emissary – 7-75
 Winterleaf, Roskelly, halfling thief – 3-2
 Workshops of Kerbog Khan – SL12-28
 Wotar the Puny, fighter – 6-113

X

Xerxes, fighter and gladiator – 6-71

Y

Yamki, giant intelligent baboon – 2-61
 Yasidoranicil – see Isadora
 Yeggit, lesser varumani prisoner – 7-81
 Yellow Cloak Inn – AK-21
 Yerevan of the Yurt, magic user and gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Yerk, fighter and gladiator – 6-71, 6-77
 Ykriv, kaliyani sorcerer – SL9-71
 Yoburra, true varumani ambassador – 4-101
 Yog, lesser varumani courtier – 7-75
 Yost, jackalwere and gladiator - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text
 Yrtol the Hungry, ghost – EX-4
 Ysadel, Priscian war mage – SL4-44
 Yurtil Skreel-friend, magic user – SL5-35
 Yvette of Archontos, cleric - Areas 6-58 to 6-91 text

Z

Zhorak, forge of – 8-100
 Ziggurat, heqeti, lesser – 7-79
 Ziggurat of Kauket (greater) – 10-32 to 10-37

∞

Years, how many it felt like it took to complete this work. Also see Years, 11

This product uses the OSRIC™ System (Oldschool System Reference and Index Compilation™). The OSRIC™system text may be found at <http://www.knights-n-knaves.com/osric>. The OSRIC™ text is copyright of Stuart Marshall. "OSRIC™" and "Old School Reference and Index Compilation™," are trademarks of Matthew Finch and Stuart Marshall and may be used only in accordance with the OSRIC™ license. This product is not affiliated with Wizards of the Coast." Some artwork from Fantasy Filler Art copyright Rick Hershey, All Rights Reserved.

OPEN GAME LICENSE Version 1.0a

The following text is the property of Wizards of the Coast, Inc. and is Copyright 2000 Wizards of the Coast, Inc ("Wizards"). All Rights Reserved.

1. Definitions: (a) "Contributors" means the copyright and/or trademark owners who have contributed Open Game Content; (b) "Derivative Material" means copyrighted material including derivative works and translations (including into other computer languages), potation, modification, correction, addition, extension, upgrade, improvement, compilation, abridgment or other form in which an existing work may be recast, transformed or adapted; (c) "Distribute" means to reproduce, license, rent, lease, sell, broadcast, publicly display, transmit or otherwise distribute; (d) "Open Game Content" means the game mechanic and includes the methods, procedures, processes and routines to the extent such content does not embody the Product Identity and is an enhancement over the prior art and any additional content clearly identified as Open Game Content by the Contributor, and means any work covered by this License, including translations and derivative works under copyright law, but specifically excludes Product Identity. (e) "Product Identity" means product and product line names, logos and identifying marks including trade dress; artifacts; creatures characters; stories, storylines, plots, thematic elements, dialogue, incidents, language, artwork, symbols, designs, depictions, likenesses, formats, poses, concepts, themes and graphic, photographic and other visual or audio representations; names and descriptions of characters, spells, enchantments, personalities, teams, personas, likenesses and special abilities; places, locations, environments, creatures, equipment, magical or supernatural abilities or effects, logos, symbols, or graphic designs; and any other trademark or registered trademark clearly identified as Product identity by the owner of the Product Identity, and which specifically excludes the Open Game Content; (f) "Trademark" means the logos, names, mark, sign, motto, designs that are used by a Contributor to identify itself or its products or the associated products contributed to the Open Game License by the Contributor (g) "Use", "Used" or "Using" means to use, Distribute, copy, edit, format, modify, translate and otherwise create Derivative Material of Open Game Content. (h) "You" or "Your" means the licensee in terms of this agreement.

2. The License: This License applies to any Open Game Content that contains a notice indicating that the Open Game Content may only be Used under and in terms of this License. You must affix such a notice to any Open Game Content that you Use. No terms may be added to or subtracted from this License except as described by the License itself. No other terms or conditions may be applied to any Open Game Content distributed using this License.

3. Offer and Acceptance: By Using the Open Game Content You indicate Your acceptance of the terms of this License.

4. Grant and Consideration: In consideration for agreeing to use this License, the Contributors grant You a perpetual, worldwide, royalty-free, non-exclusive license with the exact terms of this License to Use, the Open Game Content.

5. Representation of Authority to Contribute: If You are contributing original material as Open Game Content, You represent that Your Contributions are Your original creation and/or You have sufficient rights to grant the rights conveyed by this License.

6. Notice of License Copyright: You must update the COPYRIGHT NOTICE portion of this License to include the exact text of the COPYRIGHT NOTICE of any Open Game Content You are copying, modifying or distributing, and You must add the title, the copyright date, and the copyright holder's name to the COPYRIGHT NOTICE of any original Open Game Content you Distribute.

7. Use of Product Identity: You agree not to Use any Product Identity, including as an indication as to compatibility, except as expressly licensed in another, independent Agreement with the owner of each element of that Product Identity. You agree not to indicate compatibility or co-adaptability with any Trademark or Registered Trademark in conjunction with a work containing Open Game Content except as expressly licensed in another, independent Agreement with the owner of such Trademark or Registered Trademark. The use of any Product Identity in Open Game Content does not constitute a challenge to the ownership of that Product Identity. The owner of any Product Identity used in Open Game Content shall retain all rights, title and interest in and to that Product Identity.

8. Identification: If you distribute Open Game Content You must clearly indicate which portions of the work that you are distributing are Open Game Content.

9. Updating the License: Wizards or its designated Agents may publish updated versions of this License. You may use any authorized version of this License to copy, modify and distribute any Open Game Content originally distributed under any version of this License.

10 Copy of this License: You MUST include a copy of this License with every copy of the Open Game Content You Distribute.

11. Use of Contributor Credits: You may not market or advertise the Open Game Content using the name of any Contributor unless You have written permission from the Contributor to do so.

12 Inability to Comply: If it is impossible for You to comply with any of the terms of this License with respect to some or all of the Open Game Content due to statute, judicial order, or governmental regulation then You may not Use any Open Game Material so affected.

13 Termination: This License will terminate automatically if You fail to comply with all terms herein and fail to cure such breach within 30 days of becoming aware of the breach. All sublicenses shall survive the termination of this License.

14 Reformation: If any provision of this License is held to be unenforceable, such provision shall be reformed only to the extent necessary to make it enforceable.

15 COPYRIGHT NOTICE

Open Game License v 1.0 Copyright 2000, Wizards of the Coast, Inc.

System Reference Document Copyright 2000, Wizards of the Coast, Inc.; Authors Jonathan Tweet, Monte Cook, Skip Williams, based on original material by E. Gary Gygax and Dave Arneson.

OSRIC™ copyright 2006, Stuart Marshall, adapting material prepared by Matthew J. Finch, based upon the System Reference Document, and inspired by the works of E. Gary Gygax, Dave Arneson, and many others.

Castles & Crusades: Players Handbook, Copyright 2004, Troll Lord Games; Authors Davis Chenault and Mac Golden.

Castles & Crusades: Monsters & Treasure, Copyright 2005, Troll Lord Games; Authors Robert Doyel and Stephen Chenault.

Character Portraits: Fantasy Heroes copyright 2003, Mongoose Publishing

The Halls of Arden Vul, Copyright 2020, Expeditious Retreat Press, Author Richard Barton

Designation of Product Identity:

The following items are hereby designated as Product Identity in accordance with Section 1(e) of the Open Game License, version 1.0a: Any and all Expeditious Retreat Press logos and identifying marks and trade dress; any specific characters, monsters, creatures, and places; capitalized names and names of places, artifacts, characters, countries, creatures, geographic locations, gods, historic events, magic items, organizations, spells, and abilities; and all stories, storylines, histories, plots, thematic elements, and dialogue; and all artwork, symbols, designs, depictions, illustrations, maps, and cartography, likenesses, poses, logos, or graphic designs, except such elements that are already Open Game Content. The above Product Identity is not Open Game Content.

Designation of Open Game Content:

Subject to the Product Identity designation above, the entirety of The Halls of Arden Vul is designated as Open Game Content excepting all content preceding the Arden Vul Table of Contents.

THE MAPS OF

ARDEN VUL

CREDITS

Author: Richard Barton

Consigliere & Cartography: Andreas Claren

Editor, Layout, & Improver of Ideas: Joseph Browning

Cover Art: Vivid Covers

Interior Art: Dave Allsop, Bruno Balixa, John Bingham, Yoann Boissonnet, Jacob E. Blackmon, John Blaszczyk, Luigi Castellani, Lucas Claren, Daniel Comerci, Storn Cook, Gary Dupuis, Marcio Fiorito, Filipe Gaona, Earl Geier, Scott Harshbarger, Rick Hershey, Jack Holliday, Ash Jackson, David Lewis Johnson, Christopher Letzelter, Eric Lofgren, Wind Lothamer, Ramon Lucha, Nate Marcel, Joyce Maureira, Indi Martin, William McAusland, Jeremy McHugh, Lawrence van der Merwe, Rich Longmore, Juan Ochoa, Stefan Poag, Claudio Pozas, Jeff Preston, Shaman's Stockart, David Sharrock, Del Teigeler, Rob Torno, Jason Walton, Jeff Womack

Stock Art Usage Legalese:

Some art © Rob Torno, 2011. Licensed by Nevermet Press, LLC. Used by permission.

Some artwork from Fantasy Filler Art copyright Rick Hershey, All Rights Reserved.

Some artwork © 2018 Scott Harshbarger, used with permission. All rights reserved.

Publisher's Choice Quality Stock Art @ Rick Hershey / Fat Goblin Games

Some artwork Indi Martin © 2015.

Some artwork © 2018 Eric Lofgren, used with permission. All rights reserved.

Some images copyright 2006 by Reality deviant Publications

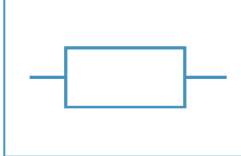

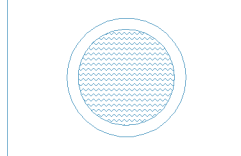

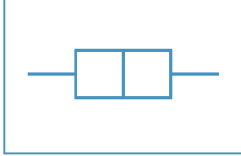

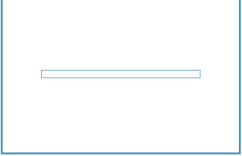

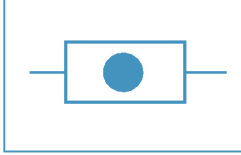

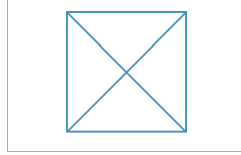

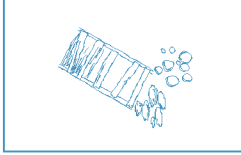

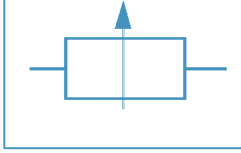

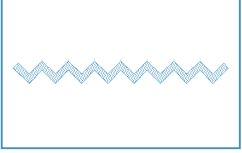

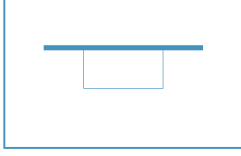

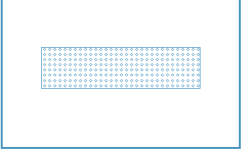

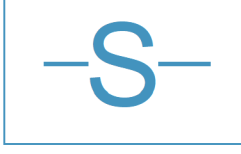

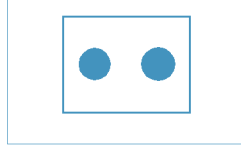

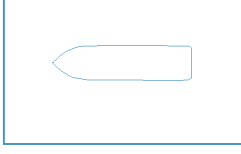

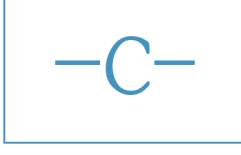

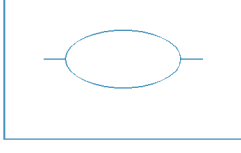

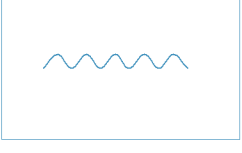

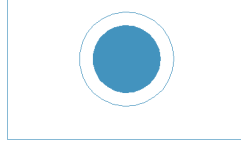

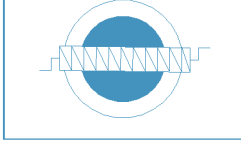

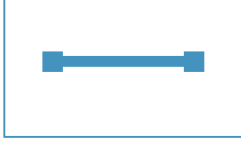

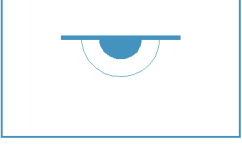

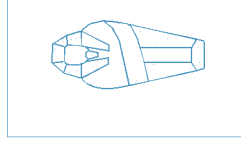

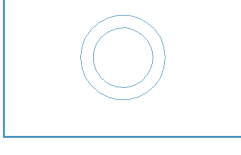

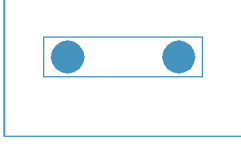

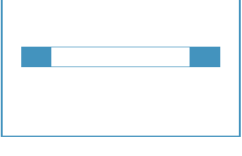

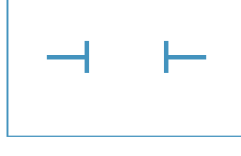

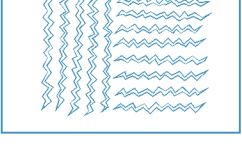

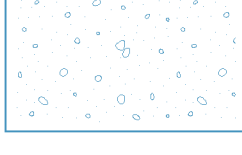

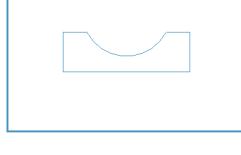

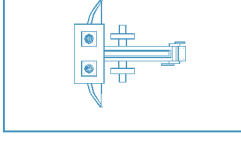

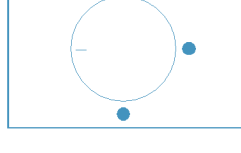

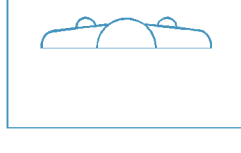

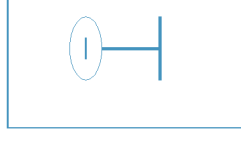

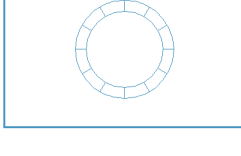

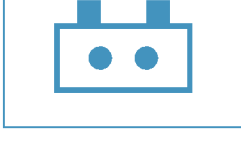

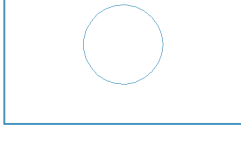

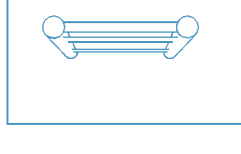

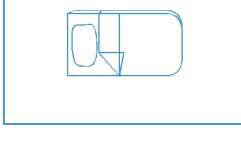

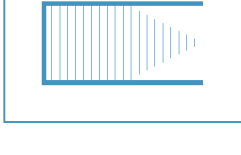

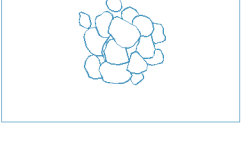

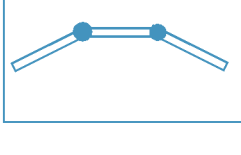

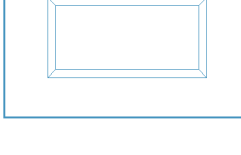

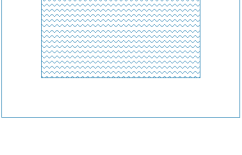

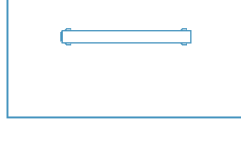

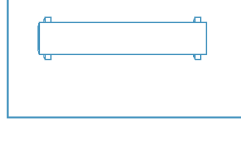

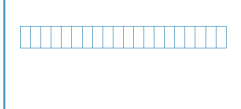

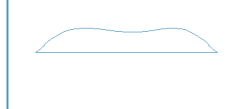

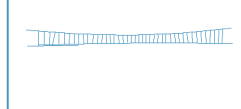

Some artwork © 2018 Earl Geier, used with permission. All rights reserved

All Maps within this volume © 2020 by Andreas Claren. Used with permission.

ARDEN VUL - MAP KEY

	Door		Illusionary Wall		Pool		Chair
	Door, Double		False Wall		Trap		Pod
	Door, locked		Spy Holes in Wall		Pit Trap		Broken column
	Door, One-way		Force Wall		Fire Pit		Bed
	Door, false		Rudishva Force Wall		Statue		Vat
	Door, Secret		Barricade		Altar		Rowboat
	Door, concealed		Portcullis		Throne / Chair		Caryatid Column
	Door, electronic		Curtain		Fountain		Well
	Magic Portal		Wall Basin		Sarcophagus		Well
	Sluice Gate		Window		Archway		Vine curtain
	Trap door, floor		Field		Pillar		Cage
	Trap door, ceiling		Sand / Muck		Bas-Relief		Ballista
	Priscian Teleporter		Mushrooms		Bas-relief statue		Rudishva Point Defense Array
	Thothian teleport ring		Mud		Fireplace		Stove
	Rudishva teleport ring		Slime		Ladder		Bed
	Stairs		Rubble		Chest		Folding Screen
	Spiral Stairs		Path		Lever		Manacles
	Elevator		Water		Bench		Bench
	Bricked-up Wall		Whirlpool		Magic Mouth		Rope Bridge

MAGAE

THE WORLD OF ARDEN VUL

1 Hex = 100 miles

Realm of the Elves

Borealios

Westholm

Freyr's Landing

Arden Vul

Narsileon

The Winedark Sea

River Ellesseios

Irthuin

Mithruin

Grain Islands

Archontos

Ostentown

Iron Isles

Khumus Khor-ates

Kazidor

Arcturus

Dry Wastes

Sweetwater Hold

Red Sand Desert

Agoreon

Ostralis

BURDOCK'S VALLEY

N

- |   |               |   |                                |
|---|---------------|---|--------------------------------|
|  | Forest        |  | Special Site                   |
|  | Marsh / Swamp |  | Contour Line (300 feet / line) |
|  | Settlement    |  | Water                          |
|  | Castle        |  | Road                           |

1 Hex = 3 miles

To Narsileon ↓

BURDOCK'S VALLEY

- |  |               |  |                                |
|--|---------------|--|--------------------------------|
|  | Forest        |  | Special Site                   |
|  | Marsh / Swamp |  | Contour Line (300 feet / line) |
|  | Settlement    |  | Water                          |
|  | Castle        |  | Road                           |
- 1 Hex = 3 miles

To Narsileon ↓

THE AZURE KEEP

GOSTERWICK

1 square = 50 feet

ARDEN VUL
THE CLIFF FACE

1 square = 50 feet

ARDEN VUL

THE RUINED CITY

1 square = 50 feet

Connections to The Dungeon Levels

AV-10	To Level 2-54
AV-12	To Level 3-52A
AV-14	To Level 2-1
AV-14	To Sub-Level 1-1
AV-14	To Level 2-64 and 2-65
AV-15	To UP and Level 3-1
AV-16	To Sub-Level 4-37
AV-17	To Level 1-1
AV-18	To Level 2-23
AV-19	To Level 3-50A
AV-20	To Sub-Level 11-18
AV-27	To Sub-Level 6-152
AV-29	Thothian teleportation ring
AV-34	To Sub-Level 14-1
AV-39	To Level 4-122A
AV-44	To Sub-Level 15-9
AV-45	To Sub-Level 15-10
AV-46	To Sub-Level 15-21

UNDER THE PYRAMID OF THOTH

THE TOWER OF SCRUTINY

Top floor
(30' from ground)

3rd floor
(20' from ground)

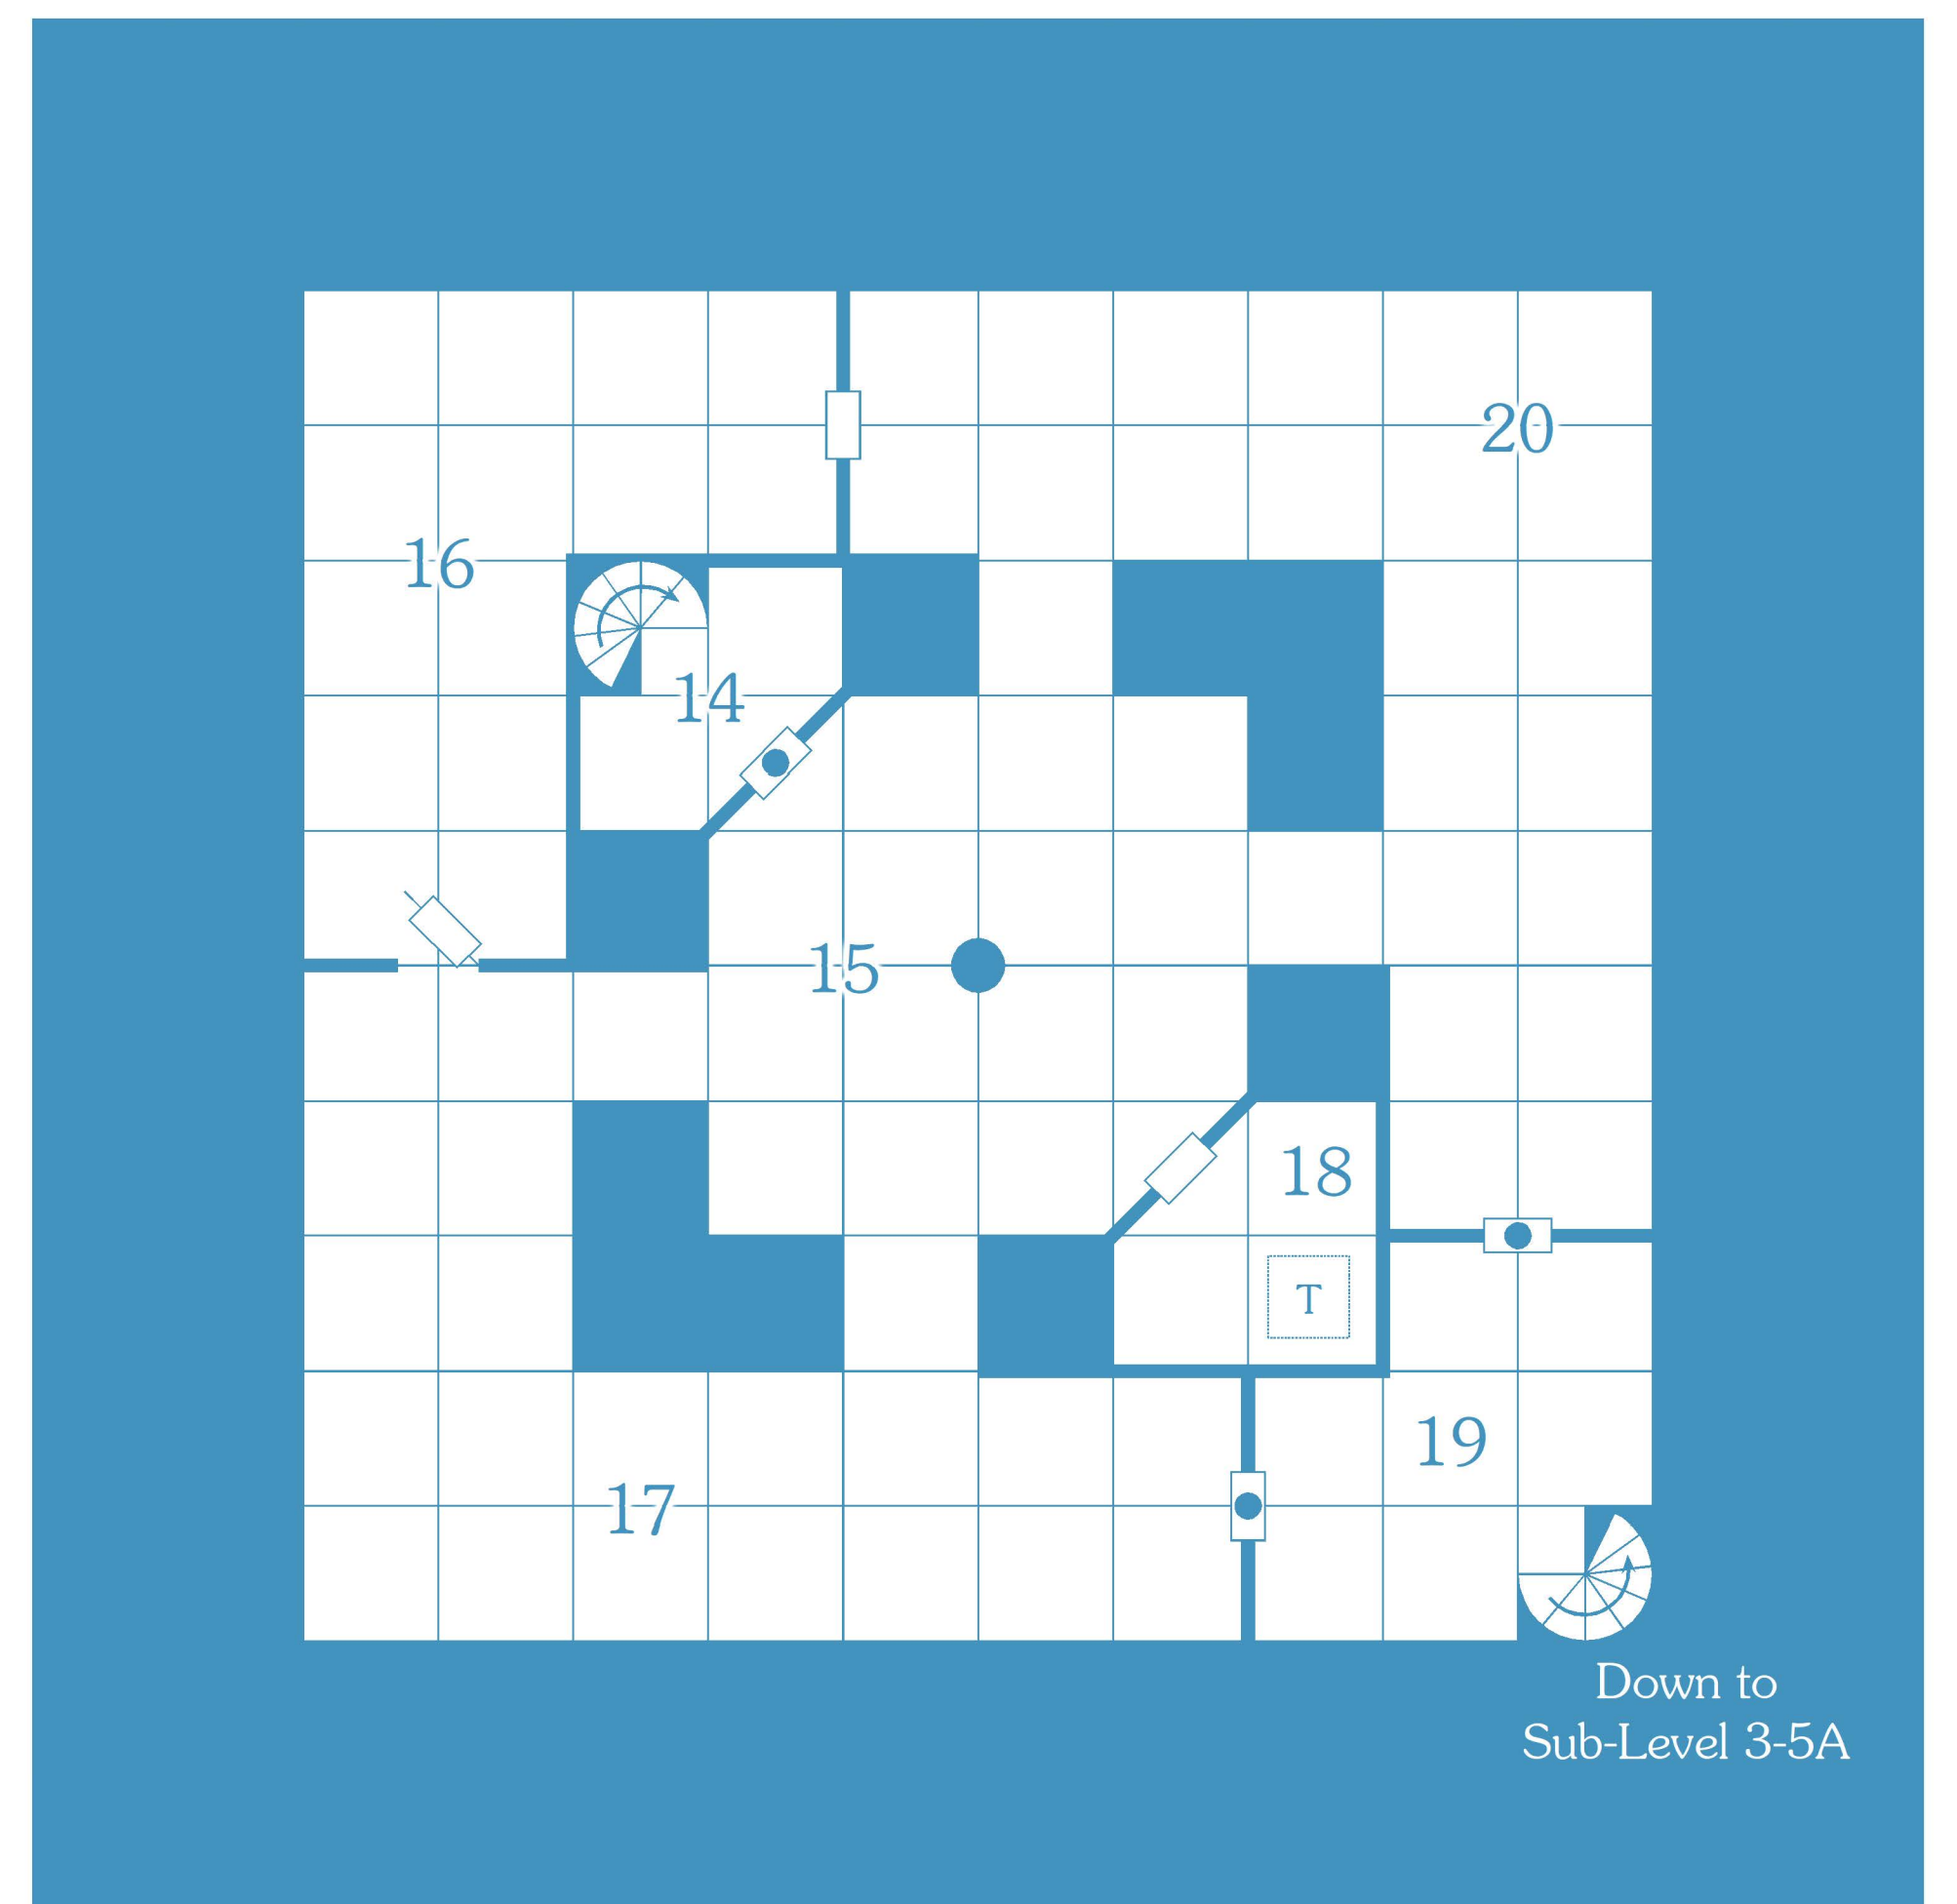

2nd floor
(10' from ground)

1 square = 5 feet

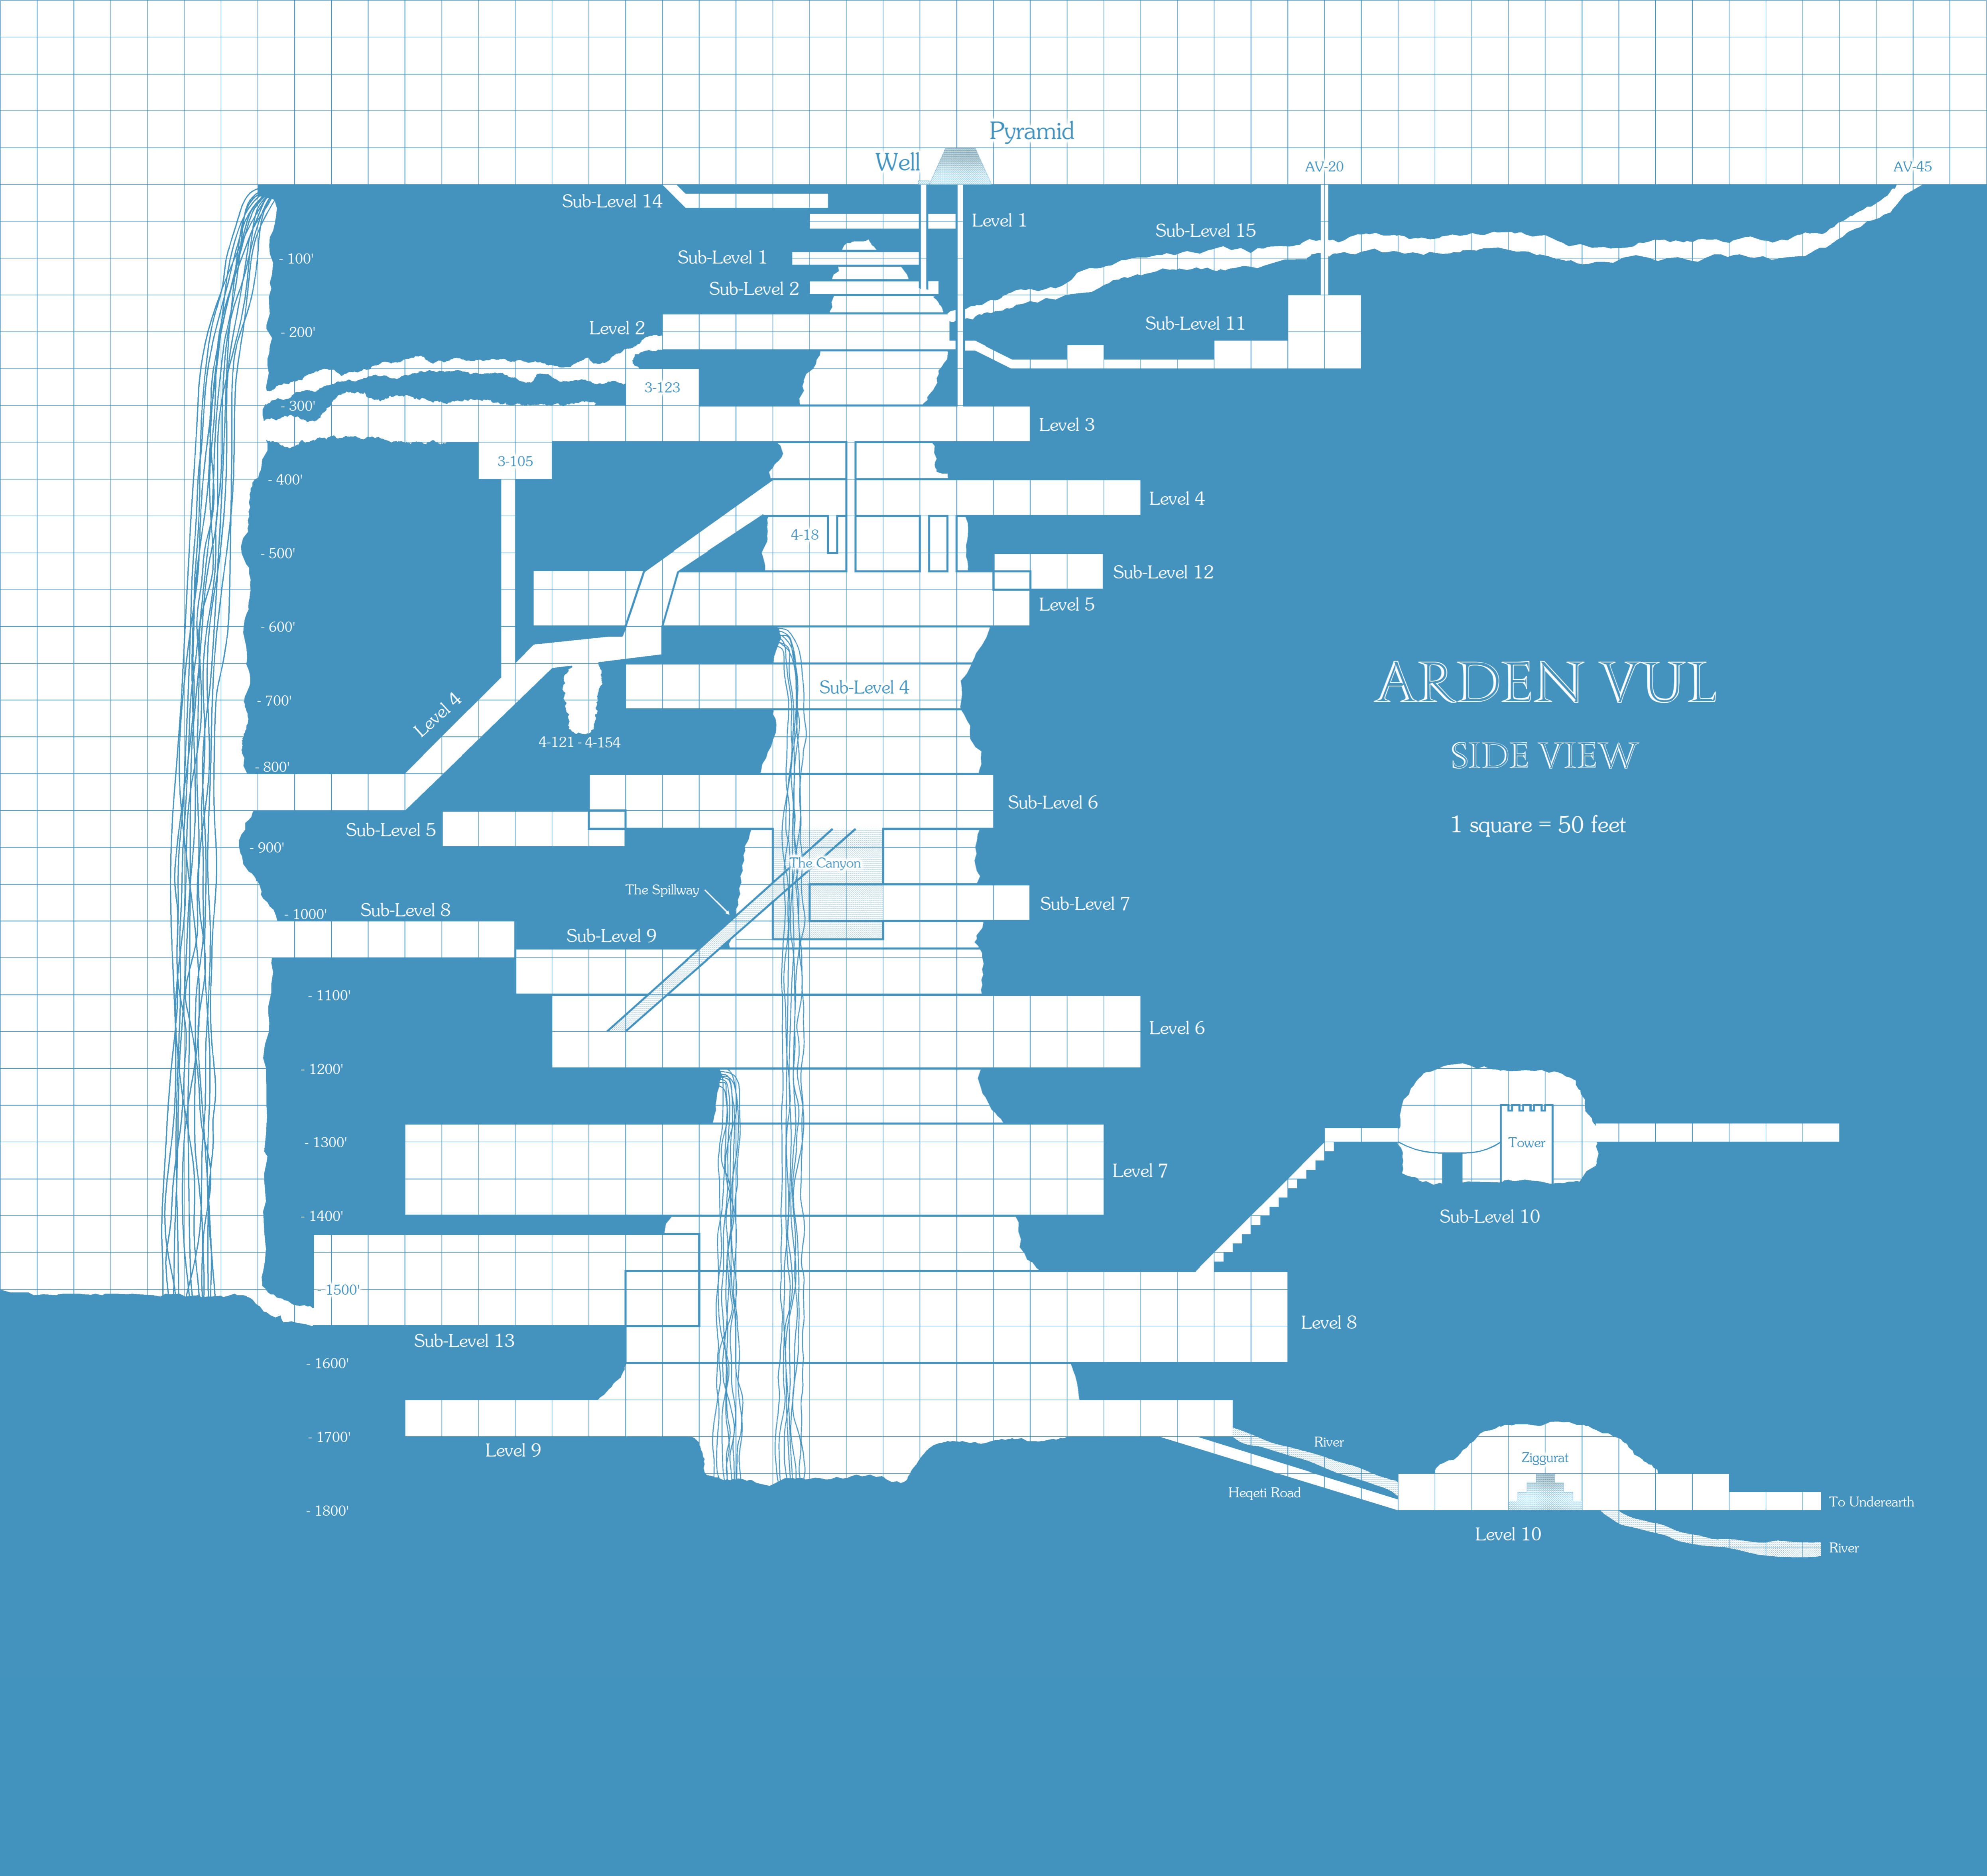

Ground floor

Basement

ARDEN VUL

SIDE VIEW

1 square = 50 feet

LEVEL 1 THE BASEMENT

LEVEL 2 THE HOWLING CAVES

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 3
THE HALLS OF THOTH

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 4 THE FORUM OF SET

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 5

THE OBSIDIAN GATES

1 square = 10 feet

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 6 THE TROLL LIFTS & THE ARENA

Cavern extends upwards to SL 4-28

Pod
Lower Level

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 7

THE COURT OF THE TROLL THEGN

LEVEL 8

THE NETHER REACHES

1 square = 10 feet

LEVEL 9
 THE CHASM FLOOR

1
 (entire cavern)

Up to Level 7.136

Up to Sub-Level 10A8

Down to Level 10.1

Down to Level 10.1

Up to Level 8.95A

Up to Level 8.110

Up to Level 7.146

Up to Level 7.147

Up to Sub-Level 2.6

Up to Level 8.23

Up to Level 7.2 and 7.14

Up to Level 5.52B

Up to Level 6.112A

Up to Sub-Level 13.32

Up to Level 7.64

Up to Level 7.52

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

Slope Down

THE ZIGGURAT OF KAUKET

ZIGGURAT SIDE VIEW

1 square = 10 feet

INSIDE THE ZIGGURAT

SUB-LEVEL 3 LESSER BABOON CAVES

1 square = 10 feet

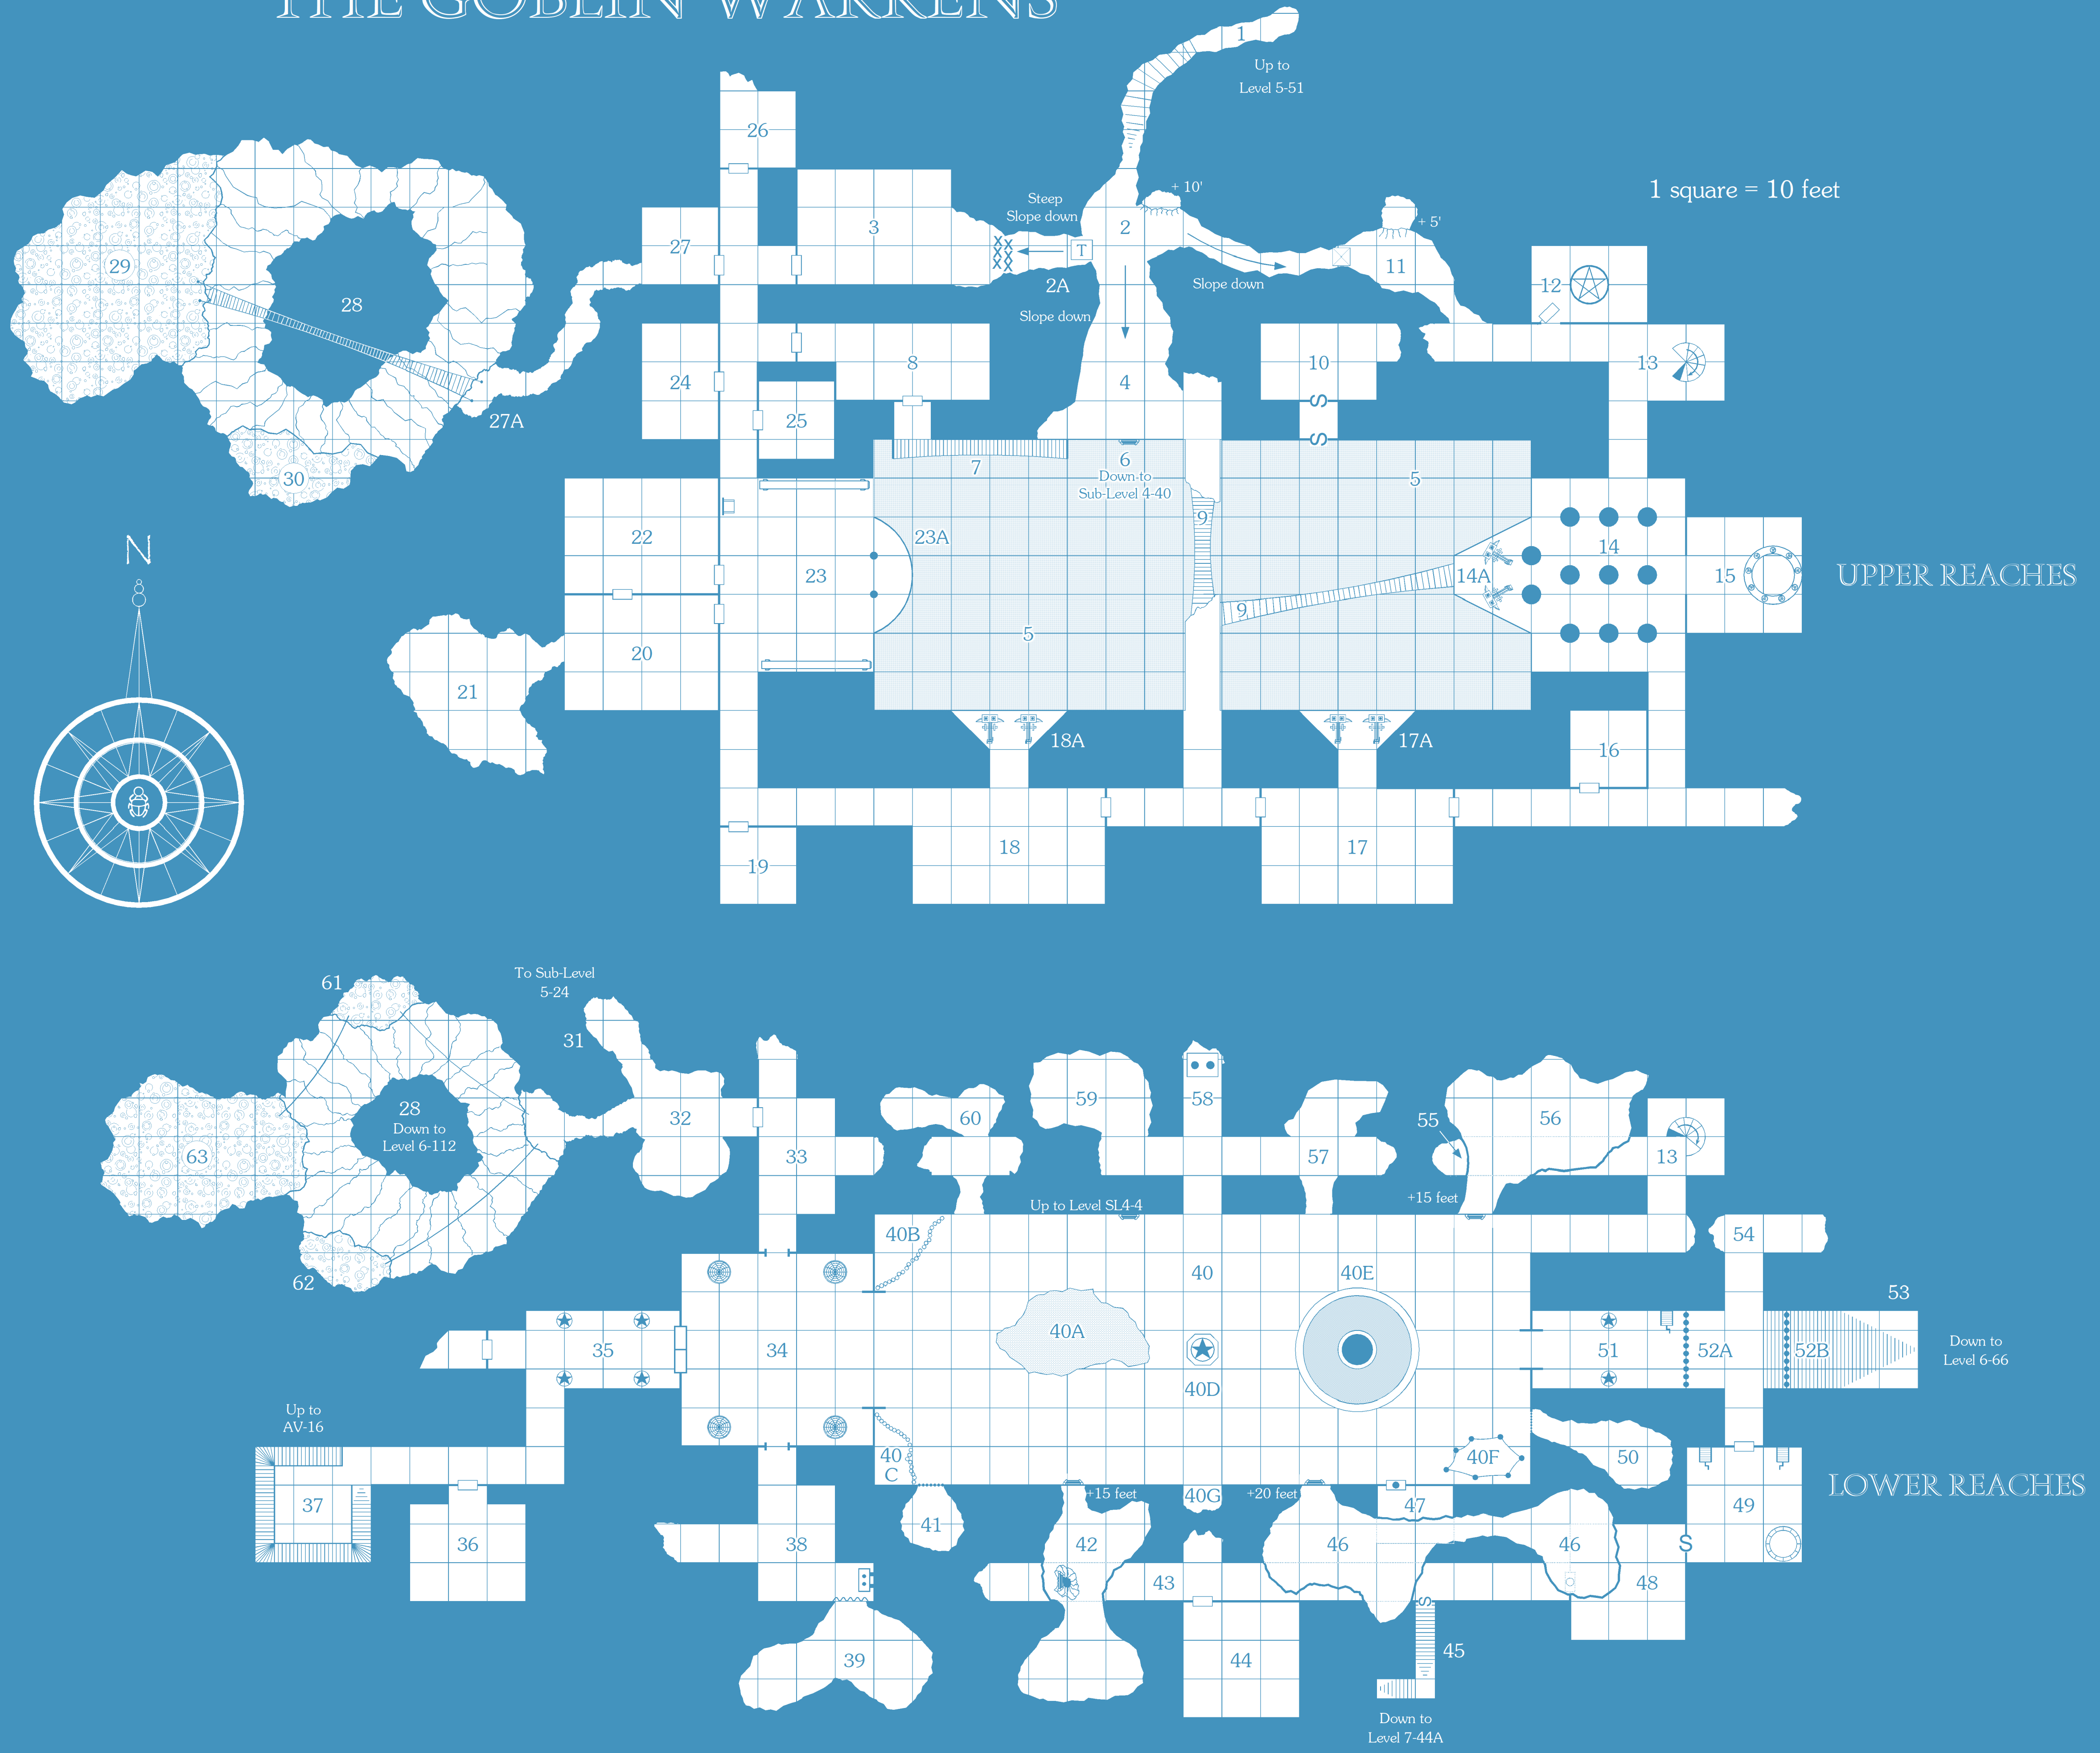

30

EX-12
275' down cliff face

SUB-LEVEL 4

THE GOBLIN WARRENS

SUB-LEVEL 5

THE LIZARDMAN CAVES

To Sub-Level 6-36

Up to Sub-Level 4-31

Down to Sub-Level 9-9

Down to Level 7-95

Up to Level 4-165

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

Slope down

SUB-LEVEL 6

THE DROWNED CANYON

Tower of Pol

Level 1 0'
Level 2 +15'
Level 3 +30'
Roof +45'

To Sub-Level 5-47

SUB-LEVEL 6
 THE DROWNED CANYON
 TOMB LEVEL

SUB-LEVEL 7

THE FLOODED VAULTS

SUB-LEVEL 8

THE CAVES BEHIND THE FALLS

1 square = 10 feet

SUB-LEVEL 10A

HOLD OF THE SUN-SCARRED KNIGHTS

SUB-LEVEL 10B

CITADEL OF THE SUN-SCARRED KNIGHTS

Level 1
(0' from floor)

Level 2
(20' from floor)

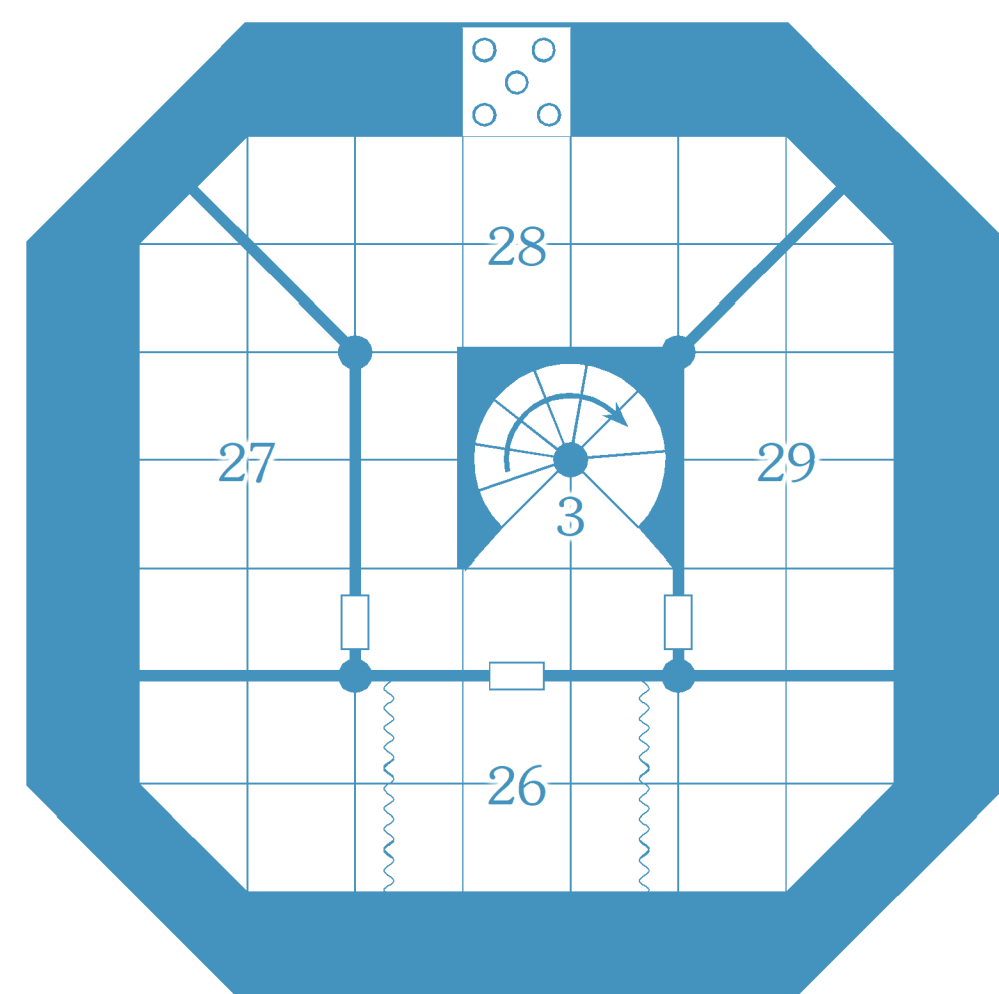

Level 3
(40' from floor)

Level 4
(60' from floor)

Level 5
(80' from floor)

Level 6
(100' from floor)

Level 7
(120' from floor)

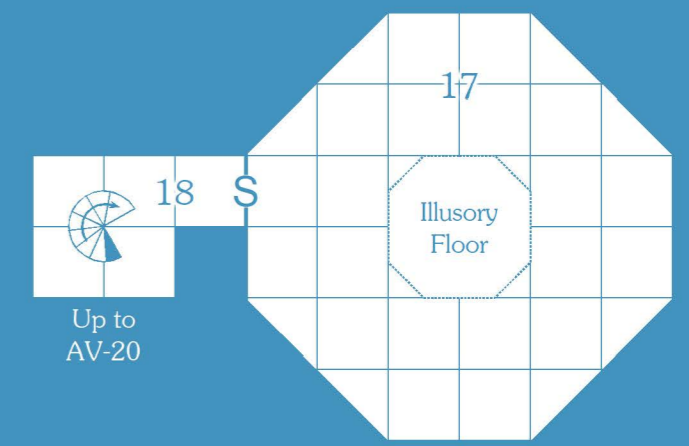

SL 10A-15

SUB-LEVEL 11

THE TOMB OF ISADORA

Upper Level

SUB-LEVEL 12

THE WORKSHOPS OF KERBOG KHAN

SUB-LEVEL 13

LOST CHAMBERS OF ARDEN

EX-17 on Cliff Face map

SUB-LEVEL 14

THE CHAMBER OF THE BEACON

SUB-LEVEL 15

THE DRUID'S RETREAT

1 square = 50 feet

Rough edge of City Walls

Down to Level 2-33

Down to Level 8-60